That's quite a list of accomplishments for someone who only managed to pass the New Mexico bar exam a mere six months ago (<https://www.nmexam.org/pas.htm>). Looks more like this is his first case, and they gave him a throw-away on which to cut his teeth.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:99t6gc030k7@news2.newsguy.com...

">The attorney who filed this complaint doesn't >appear to be very competent.

LOL :)) The attorney in question is a high powered corporate attorney in New Mexico working for one of the top firms in the state. He has successfully sued and won several cases involving big corporations in New Mexico and Massachusettes, or so I hear. Once this comes to trial - if it does - you'll find out how incompetent he really is. ROTFL :)))

cheers,
Nima

**>

>The story as reported in the Toronto Star was: -

**>

Yes, Dermod. But if you were interested in fairness you would also be posting the court case which followed which found the good doctor to be innocent of all these accusations. None of the three patience who supposedly made accusations had any of more substance to say in court than the fact he sometimes made them feel uncomfortable, by doing things such as removing his shoes.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Greetings, Susan.

No. I was quoting the positions of those irrelevantly speaking about Hossayn Danesh. I was not expressing any opinion on that individual's innocence or guilt. The newspaper report as I recall it specified British Columbia as the area of jurisdiction, though, my whole point is that he is largely irrelevant, because he is a person, and while personality is pretty well all most fundamentalists speak about, issues are all that are valid.

The Baha'i vision is one that is broad-minded, tolerant, inclusive, accepting of the equality of women and men, the harmony of faith and reason, the independent investigation of truth, the freedom of thought and expression. This is what is relevant. Personalities are not.

M

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

**>

> For someone who is ignorant of the details of the case you are certainly quick > to pass judgments regarding his guilt. He taught at McGill University which is > in Montreal. And as I already stated before these allegations arose after he > had already announced his retirement and was planning to leave for Europe.

**>

> warmest, Susan

**--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

> This is ad hominem.

Dear Michael,

The only thing that is ad hominem is bringing this guy into the discussion period.

> The point I think being made is that the people running Baha'i, >including the current lot on the UHJ, are corrupt because this former >leading Canadian NSA member was doing hanky panky and his buddies took >care of him by placing him in a position of trust.

Except that point is false, for the following reasons:

1) A court of law established there was no evidence of such hanky panky.

2) The House of Justice had nothing to do with the position in question, it was the Swiss NSA that hired him.

3) He had already accepted this position before any allegations of hanky-panky were made. So his appointment was quite irrelevant to this case, except that it gave him no incentive to fight for the right to continue practicing medicine.

>Lovers of the ad
>hominem leap to defend him

Michael I believe you have just turned the meaning of ad hominem on its head.

and people can debate whether he was really >at fault (they didn't lock him up)

The court case was a civil not a criminal case. There was no question of locking him up, only whether he would have to pay this woman damages. The court could not find sufficient evidence to establish even the preponderance of evidence necessary to win a civil case.

>(but, he agreed not to >practise his profession in British Columbia, or is it Canada, or is it >anywhere any more).

For someone who is ignorant of the details of the case you are certainly quick to pass judgments regarding his guilt. He taught at McGill University which is in Montreal. And as I already stated before these allegations arose after he had already announced his retirement and was planning to leave for Europe.

warmest, Susan

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Greetings, Susan, Nima and all.

This is ad hominem.

The point I think being made is that the people running Baha'i, including the current lot on the UHJ, are corrupt because this former leading Canadian NSA member was doing hanky panky and his buddies took care of him by placing him in a position of trust. Lovers of the ad hominem leap to defend him and people can debate whether he was really at fault (they didn't lock him up) or innocent (but, he agreed not to practise his profession in British Columbia, or is it Canada, or is it anywhere any more).

To me this is ad hominem and beside the significant issue.

I've said before that Hooper and his buddies can have as many mistresses as they please (though I'd advise them to have consensual sex) and that doesn't bother me at all. It's a non-issue.

The issue is that the founder of the Baha'i Faith envisaged an open minded, universalist movement, administered according to certain essential principles and the guys running the show have mutilated that vision by operating according to traditional divisive partisan politics & religious fundamentalism (abhorrent to Baha'u'llah) and they expect to be followed unthinkingly no matter how extensively they mutilate the Baha'i vision.

It is not which individuals are dividing the believers, declaring people not to be Baha'is, discriminating against women, opposing the freedom of thought and expression, etc., etc. It is the platform of fundamentalism, the abuse of authority to mutilate Baha'u'llah's position on the freedom of thought and expression and his views on the equality of women, etc. which is the issue.

The issue is that Baha'i is a universalist movement that promotes the diversity of human understandings, that firmly accepts the equality of sexes, that is inclusive, liberal (in the beneficial meaning of the word), etc. When the issues are discussed, instead of whether Hossayn Danesh did or did not grope his female patients, then it becomes a bit clearer what's involved here. At some point Baha'i authority is going to return to Baha'u'llah's abhorrence of fundamentalism, partisan politics, disunity and start living the life he envisaged, guiding according to his principles, rather than the old hat of outworn dictatorial domination, imposed dogmas, etc. etc.

Let's realize what the issue really is and not play the personality game.

M

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

**>>

>>So why would he cut a deal never to practice psychiatry ever again?

**>

> The "deal" had nothing to do with the civil case which was dismissed with > extreme prejudice.

> But he gave up his license to practice medicine before this came to court > because he had already retired and was on his way to Europe at the time. He > thought doing this would quiet things down without bringing any embarrassment > on the Faith. Obviously he was wrong, and my understanding that the NSA

and

> the House were none too pleased that he handled things as he did.

**>

> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . ."

> Don McLean's American Pie
> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

>
>> I >> suppose you also believe OJ Simpson is innocent because he was acquitted >on >> a technicality *grin*.
>
>If memory serves, the civil lawsuit against Simpson was successful.

That's quite correct. One only has to prove preponderance of evidence, not guilt beyond a reasonable doubt in a civil case. The case against Danesh was dismissed because the only real evidence against him was that he supposedly made this woman uncomfortable. His DNA was on nothing. :-)

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie
<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Nima Hazini" <lotusapt@wxc.com.au> wrote in message
news:99u7il$mmt$1@gnamma.connect.com.au...

> >None of that changes the fact that the allegations were the subject of a > >civil lawsuit, and the allegations were found to be without merit during > >that lawsuit.

> So what? You still haven't addressed why he will never practice psychiatry > in Canada ever again.

Egads. The facts were adjudicated in a court of law, and your response is, "So what?!" At that point, your question is irrelevant. The facts are that the man didn't do anything wrong. No number of speculative questions will change those facts.

As for OJ Simpson's criminal case, that, too, is irrelevant. The case against Dr. Danesh was brought under civil law. Civil law requires a far lower burden of proof than does criminal law. Indeed, civil cases require the lowest possible burden of proof. If a "preponderance of the evidence" was insufficient for the plaintiff to prevail, then there's no way that proof "beyond a reasonable doubt" can possibly exist.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Nima Hazini" <lotusapt@wxc.com.au> wrote in message
news:99tum7$k1m$1@gnamma.connect.com.au...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> news:99t6gc030k7@news2.newsguy.com...
> >Dr. Danesh case where people repeatedly cite one > >newspaper article but fail to point out that the facts actually did go to > a > >trial and that Dr. Danesh was found to have not acted improperly in any > way.

> So why would he cut a deal never to practice psychiatry ever again?

First of all, the deal covered Canada, not the world. Secondly, people change professions quite often. Quitting clinical practice in order to pursue academic interests isn't unheard of.

None of that changes the fact that the allegations were the subject of a civil lawsuit, and the allegations were found to be without merit during that lawsuit.

> I > suppose you also believe OJ Simpson is innocent because he was acquitted on > a technicality *grin*.

If memory serves, the civil lawsuit against Simpson was successful.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Nima Hazini" <lotusapt@wxc.com.au> wrote in message
news:99s8hg$4n0$1@gnamma.connect.com.au...
> It's a deposition. Do you know what a deposition is?

No, Nima, it's a complaint, the first of what will likely be several pleadings in the case. A complaint is the standard way one files a lawsuit. The complaint itself doesn't constitute evidence. It merely contains the allegations for which the plaintiff seeks relief and outlines the kind of relief sought.

Depositions won't even exist until, indeed even if, the case gets to the discovery phase, and, even then, there's little chance you or I will ever see all of what's in them.

I'll make a little prediction, though. This case will get dismissed before it gets to trial. Indeed, I'd be surprised if it even goes into the discovery phase. While the complaint spends a lot of time alleging libel and fraud, it fails to allege any facts that would constitute either libel or fraud under the law. The attorney who filed this complaint doesn't appear to be very competent.

And, as usual, we get to see the allegations but not one scintilla of the actual evidence--sensationalistic, and quite yellow, journalism, if one can call this "journalism" at all. Somehow, I get the feeling that this is going to turn out like the Dr. Danesh case where people repeatedly cite one newspaper article but fail to point out that the facts actually did go to a trial and that Dr. Danesh was found to have not acted improperly in any way.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

It's a deposition. Do you know what a deposition is?

cheers,
Nima

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message news:20010328000635.13283.00002188@ng-fi1.aol.com...

>Yorgos D. Marinakis
>Attorney for Plaintiffs
>P.O. Box 45923
>Rio Rancho, NM 87174

An actual lawyer wrote this mishmash? It doesn't even make any sense!

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Hi, Susan.

Well, I guess if the directors of a corporation do not respond to the mail of the members of the corporation, that is a legitimate complaint. It is even a legitimate complaint that someone told, "Soon", by someone who died in 1921, something would be as clear as the sun at noon, is expected to have been informed about something not yet clear.

I assume you mean corroborate, or have you really participated in the slowness of Baha'i authorities to respond?

M

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

>
> I've read the complaint and still can't figure out *what* it states except that > some people clapped their hands and one person thought he was god. And oh yeah, > the NSA is really, really slow to answer its mail. Now, that's one complaint > even *I* can collaborate.

>
> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . "
> Don McLean's American Pie
> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

>I can corroborate all of what it states >based on my own experience.

I've read the complaint and still can't figure out *what* it states except that some people clapped their hands and one person thought he was god. And oh yeah, the NSA is really, really slow to answer its mail. Now, that's one complaint even *I* can collaborate.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

That's not the only complaint in the brief. However, having lived in that community in the early 90s myself, I can corroborate all of what it states based on my own experience. In fact, it was thanks to that community and its loonier than looney LSA that my eyes opened about the cult-like reality of the Baha'i community and its administration.

cheers,
Nima

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message news:20010328095258.22616.00001825@ng-md1.aol.com...
Sorry, Nima. I'd like to see someone trying to persuade a judge that applauding
constitutes fixing an election. ;-}

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Greetings, Susan.

Many thanks for the detail. If this is correct, then there still is the context: was this at the election? had the one getting the applause primed the audience? Did the applause go on for several minutes? was he being introduced as he was about to give a campaign speech? Anyway, the issue is that applause MAY be an evidence of electioneering, and, the complaint seems to be that the directors of the corporation were failing to fulfill their obligations as directors of the corporation; electioneering would be a failure of Baha'i leadership responsibility, as currently understood, although electioneering is not contrary to Western democratic practise.

M

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

>>Uhm, how could there be applauding? When did it happen? Was this when >>the names of candidates were read?

**>

> Dear Michael,

**>

> I believe the complaint indicates they applause came when they were introduced > at a meeting.

>
> warmest, Susan

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Greetings, Susan.

Thanks again for commenting on issues.

Uhm, how could there be applauding? When did it happen? Was this when the names of candidates were read? Did it come during or following a speech? Applauding has the suggestion that perhaps electioneering was taking place. Let's have some details here. Maybe it was after the results of the election were announced, maybe it was accompanying a political speech. Let's get the facts.

M

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

**>>

>>If your By-Laws forbid campaigning in any manner, I think the judge >>might justg buy the argument. I think Abdul-Baha would have.

**>

> If the by-laws state that the plaintiff failed ot mention it. . It is not at all > clear what connection applauding is supposed to have with electioneering or > electioneerring with "rigging."

**>

> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . "

> Don McLean's American Pie

> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

**>

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Sorry, Nima. I'd like to see someone trying to persuade a judge that applauding
constitutes fixing an election. ;-}

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

If your By-Laws forbid campaigning in any manner, I think the judge might justg buy the argument. I think Abdul-Baha would have.

On 28 Mar 2001 14:52:58 GMT, smaneck@aol.com (Susan Maneck ) wrote:

>Sorry, Nima. I'd like to see someone trying to persuade a judge that >applauding
>constitutes fixing an election. ;-}
>
>"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
>left to start again . . ."
>Don McLean's American Pie
><https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>
I am surprised that the Universal House of Injustice has allowed it to get this far without announcing she has at least lost her voting rights, or is a covenant breaker, maybe in their micheavellian minds silence is now the now the best policy. Naaa!

On Wed, 28 Mar 2001 07:03:45 -0600, "Patrick Henry" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote:

>Perhaps some sort of legal defense fund should be created for >victims of the fundamentalists. Often people have excellent >cases but not the where-with-all to pursue justice, the best >beloved of all things in His sight....
>
>--
>FG
>www.FG.com
>The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
><https://members.nbci.com/FG/index.htm>
>
>
>"Nima Hazini" <lotusapt@wxc.com.au> wrote in message >news:99sgtg\$74p\$1@gnamma.connect.com.au...
>> The clincher here - which shows how smart this attorney is - is that he's >> pursuing the matter based on laws of incorporation and members rights >> therein. While Baha'i fundamentalists lately have been hiding behind the >red >> herring of "the Baha'i faith is a voluntary organization" argument, they >> would be hard pressed to argue this one to a judge where the law as >spelled >> out in this specific case is concerned. If a judge found that a board of >> trustees violated their own bylaws and rules in treating incorporated >> members, she could rule very decisively against the board of trustees, and
>I >> suspect that should this attorney have enough testimony and evidence to
>that >> effect, it could very well happen.
>>
>> It seems that Shoghi Effendi's insistence in having the Baha'i faith >> incorporated as an organization is finally coming back to haunt, at least, >> this generation of Baha'i leadership. One could say that the AO has >finally >> been put on notice. Of course, I say this is all for the good of the >Baha'is
>> themselves, part of the process of helping the maturation of their >> administrative order and all. May there be more lawsuits - and there >will -

>> to help expedite this process along.

>>

>> cheers,

>> Nima

>>

>>

>> <multiman@aros.net> wrote in message

>news:3ac1a554.30228214@news.aros.net...

>>

>> I have seen many suits being an assistant to a para legal, and it is no >> worse than most, and if the facts are true, it should prove very >> interesting.

>>

>> Plus as I wrote on another site, this can be expected when as Shoghi

>> Effendi stated the administration has been "multilated."

>>

>>

>>

>> On 28 Mar 2001 05:06:35 GMT, smaneck@aol.com (Susan Maneck ) wrote:

>>

>> >>Yorgos D. Marinakis

>> >>Attorney for Plaintiffs

>> >>P.O. Box 45923

>> >>Rio Rancho, NM 87174

>> >

>> >An actual lawyer wrote this mishmash? It doesn't even make any sense!

>> >

>> >"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no

>> time

>> >left to start again . . "

>> >Don McLean's American Pie

>> ><https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

>> >

>>

>>

>>

>

>

The clincher here - which shows how smart this attorney is - is that he's pursuing the matter based on laws of incorporation and members rights therein. While Baha'i fundamentalists lately have been hiding behind the red herring of "the Baha'i faith is a voluntary organization" argument, they would be hard pressed to argue this one to a judge where the law as spelled out in this specific case is concerned. If a judge found that a board of trustees violated their own bylaws and rules in treating incorporated members, she could rule very decisively against the board of trustees, and I suspect that should this attorney have enough testimony and evidence to that effect, it could very well happen.

It seems that Shoghi Effendi's insistence in having the Baha'i faith incorporated as an organization is finally coming back to haunt, at least, this generation of Baha'i leadership. One could say that the AO has finally been put on notice. Of course, I say this is all for the good of the Baha'is themselves, part of the process of helping the maturation of their administrative order and all. May there be more lawsuits - and there will - to help expedite this process along.

cheers,
Nima

<multiman@aros.net> wrote in message
news:3ac1a554.30228214@news.aros.net...

I have seen many suits being an assistant to a para legal, and it is no worse than most, and if the facts are true, it should prove very interesting.

Plus as I wrote on another site, this can be expected when as Shoghi Effendi stated the administration has been "multilated."

On 28 Mar 2001 05:06:35 GMT, smaneck@aol.com (Susan Maneck ) wrote:

>>Yorgos D. Marinakis
>>Attorney for Plaintiffs
>>P.O. Box 45923
>>Rio Rancho, NM 87174
>
>An actual lawyer wrote this mishmash? It doesn't even make any sense!
>
>"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
>left to start again . . ."
>Don McLean's American Pie
><https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

>Yorgos D. Marinakis
>Attorney for Plaintiffs
>P.O. Box 45923
>Rio Rancho, NM 87174

An actual lawyer wrote this mishmash? It doesn't even make any sense!

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."
Don McLean's American Pie
<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
How sweet it is :)

cheers,
Nima

"Patrick Henry" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message news:tc11cr1ip1od57@corp.supernews.com...

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
COUNTY OF BERNALILLO
STATE OF NEW MEXICO

DEBORAH BUCHHORN, for herself ) and for MINORITY ) MEMBERS OF THE SPIRITUAL ) ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ) ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, )
)
Plaintiffs, )

**)
vs. ) No. CV 2001-01978

**)
)
TRUSTEES OF THE SPIRITUAL ) ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í S OF ) ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, and )
THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE ) BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, )
NEW MEXICO, a non-profit ) corporation, and the )
NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY ) OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF THE ) UNITED STATES, )
an Illinois Corporation, )
)
Defendants. )

VERIFIED COMPLAINT FOR FRAUD, LIBEL, BREACH OF CORPORATE DUTIES, AND DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

COMES NOW Plaintiffs by and through their attorney of record, Yorgos D. Marinakis, and for their Complaint states as follows:

INTRODUCTION

- 1. Plaintiffs file this shareholder or member derivative suit against:
  - the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico (Local Spiritual Assembly, or LSA),
  - their Trustees, and
  - the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States (National Spiritual Assembly, or NSA), with whom the Local Spiritual Assembly and its Trustees have privity.
- 2. Plaintiffs allege that Trustees breached their duties as corporate officers.
- 3. Plaintiffs allege that the National Spiritual Assembly breached their duty of deciding appeals owed to Plaintiffs.
- 4. Plaintiffs allege that the literature review policies of the Local Spiritual Assembly and the National Spiritual Assembly, which lie in privity, unlawfully prevent shareholders from their right to communicate with other shareholders.

5. Plaintiffs allege that Defendants failed to execute their duties under their corporate by-laws.

PARTIES

6. Named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn was a shareholder or member of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico, at the time of the incidents stated in this Complaint, and she continues to be a member.

7. The Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico (Local Spiritual Assembly) is a New Mexico non-profit corporation.

Shareholder-members may appeal decisions by the Local Spiritual Assembly to the National Spiritual Assembly.

8. The Trustees of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico (Trustees) individually reside in Bernalillo County, New Mexico, as a condition of their Trusteeship. Trustees are Kambiz Victory, Ok-Sun and John McHenry, Manijeh Kavelin, Nelson Sapad, Harry and Sondra Day, Owen

Creightney, and Carol Caldwell. Jenny Beery was a Trustee during the time of many of these incidents.

9. The Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of the United States (National Spiritual Assembly) is incorporated in and has its principal place of business in Illinois.

FACTS

10. The Bahá'í have no clergy. Instead, each community in the Bahá'í Faith annually elects nine Trustees or a "Local Spiritual Assembly," which acts as an agent or subsidiary of the National Spiritual Assembly. Each National Spiritual Assembly answers to the supreme Bahá'í body, The Universal House of Justice. The Universal House of Justice established the Continental Board of Counsellors (sic) to assist them, and the Countinental Board of Counsellors further has the Auxiliary Board to assist them.

11. In the particular situation between the Trustees of the Spiritual Assembly of Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico, Defendants Trustees controlled what member activities Plaintiffs were able to engage in and what members they were able to talk to. They stopped them from interacting with friends at member events. They stopped Plaintiffs from serving on committees and stopped their individual activities for personal reasons. They made all the decisions relating to Plaintiffs' membership-related activities. They told named Plaintiff that opinions she may personally hold were bad and implicitly threatened to curtail her presence at member functions. They acted as if the abuse were no big deal, that it was Plaintiff's fault, and denied doing it. They failed to act when one member was physically threatened and shoved by another member.

12. Although Plaintiffs have consistently complied with Defendant Trustees' demands, they have also consistently filed complaints against them with the National and International Bahá'í authorities. This has enraged the Defendant Trustees.

13. Defendant Trustees have never made specific accusations or informed Plaintiffs of wrongdoing, other than vague statements such as "you have issues with the Spiritual Assembly."

14. Therefore, deep-seated animosities and distrust have arisen between Plaintiffs and the Trustees, which are incapable of resolution and thereby present an irreconcilable barrier to the ability of the corporation to function as is.

15. Plaintiffs' reasonable expectations that they would be able to participate in the management and activities of their corporation, as minority shareholders, have been thwarted since at least 1995.

16. Article IV of the LSA by-laws provides that the LSA shall compose differences and disagreements among members of the community. Article VII, section 9 of the NSA by-laws provides that any member of a Bahá'í community may appeal from a decision of his LSA to the NSA.

Failure to Allow Inspection of Books and Records

17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained in an inaccurate and inequitable manner.

18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000 discrepancy in the corporate books.

19. In a letter dated September 3, 2000, named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn informed the Local Spiritual Assembly that she desired to inspect their financial books. Defendants refused.

20. Following mailing of the demand letter, the LSA offered to allow named Plaintiff to inspect the books and records, but under conditions that the Plaintiff deemed in bad faith.

Fraudulent Oppression and Prevention of Communications between Shareholders

21. On April 19, 1998, Defendant Trustees ordered named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn to refrain from discussing her "issues" with anyone but Auxiliary Board member Brent Poirier and the Local Spiritual Assembly. Plaintiff complied and appealed to Brent Poirier and the National Spiritual Assembly, who took no action. Defendant LSA has wrapped many of their dealings with members in the cloak of secrecy in a like manner.

Electioneering

22. At the Annual Meeting Feast of 1999, Defendant Trustees fraudulently rigged the election of Trustee Nelson Sapad by calling for applause for him three times prior to an election of corporate officers. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

23. Defendant Trustees or their agents fraudulently rigged the election of Harry and Sondra Day, by introducing them and calling for applause moments before an election of corporate officers.

24. Trustees do not ensure secret balloting at the Annual Meeting Feast. The usual practice is not to use a ballot box, but for members to lay their ballots on a plate or in a basket in plain sight of the election tellers. Ms. Buchhorn appealed to Brent Poirier on at least one election. Mr. Poirier responded by handling the collection basket himself.

25. In the member newsletter and prior to the annual election and during the Annual Meeting Feast, Trustees have used scriptural quotes to draw attention to persons serving on certain committees.

Fraudulent and Oppressive Behavior Relating to the TV Show "Spiritual Reality"

26. Plaintiffs conceptualized and produced a TV show named "Spiritual Reality." After 100 showings, during which Defendant Trustees only complimented Plaintiffs, Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, mandated major changes in the show. Plaintiffs complied and appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

27. Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, ordered Plaintiffs to "temporarily postpone" their television show, "Spiritual Reality." Plaintiff complied, and Defendants never specifically informed Plaintiffs what they had done to precipitate the arbitrary and capricious termination. The effect of this order, namely the termination of the TV show, violated the right of shareholders to communicate with other shareholders.

28. Trustees fraudulently and under false pretences stated that the reasons for termination would be fully discussed at a later meeting, at which meeting those reasons were never discussed. Defendant Trustee Kambiz Victory, employee of channel 41, knew or should have known that a television program cannot be "temporarily postponed." Plaintiffs appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly, who took no action.

29. Defendant Kambiz Victory, a Trustee, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, told named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn in regards to her television show that "Your teaching can have no effect because you are not in unity with the Spiritual Assembly." Defendant knew that Ms. Buchhorn's television show brought in 15% of the information requests during an unrelated major regional advertising campaign by Defendants. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly, who took no action.

30. Defendant Trustees fraudulently and under false pretences set-up Plaintiffs to a "confession" of their animosity towards Defendant Trustees. Named Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly, who took no action.

Other Oppression

31. As an act of individual initiative, named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn organized a Bahá'í parade float for several years for the New Mexico State Fair Parade. In 2000, Defendant Trustees convened a task force to organize the parade float for that year. On August 22, 2000, approximately 19 days before the parade, Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, instructed Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn to terminate her parade float activities. A false reason for this termination was published in the membership newsletter by Defendant Trustees, causing Plaintiff embarrassment. Plaintiff complied, and Defendant never informed Plaintiff as to the reason for that termination. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

32. Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, ordered Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn to receive instruction on the Bahá'í Covenant. Plaintiff complied and attended that "instruction," which in fact consisted of three (3) hours of interrogation by Trustee Owen Creightney, and John and Ok-Sun McHenry. It became apparent at this meeting that Trustee Creightney had lied to the Trustees in order to oppress named Plaintiff. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

33. Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, ordered named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn to resign from the Bahá'í gospel choir. Plaintiff complied, and Defendant never informed Plaintiff as to the reason for that termination. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

34. Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, undermined named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn's Saturday Night Coffee House and in effect stopped her Coffee House. Defendant never informed Plaintiff as to these circumstances. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action.

35. Defendant Trustees, fraudulently and with intent to oppress, have ordered numerous Bahá'ís to shun Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn.

36. Defendant Trustee Kambiz Victory told a Plaintiff "I am the voice of God in this community."

Libel

37. Defendant Trustees knowingly published false and defamatory information about Plaintiffs in the Albuquerque Bahá'í newsletter, specifically relating to the parade banner.

Unlawful Prevention of Communication between Shareholders

38. Defendant National Spiritual Assembly has the policy that Local Spiritual Assemblies are responsible for reviewing pamphlets and newsletters and materials that mention the Faith such as songs, play scripts, souvenir items, and greeting cards, intended for publication or distribution within their communities, whereas the National Spiritual Assembly is responsible for review of those same materials intended for nationwide publication.

CAUSES OF ACTION

Count I

39. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

40. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly acted and continue to act fraudulently towards the Plaintiffs.

41. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count II

42. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

43. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly libeled the named Plaintiff.

44. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count III

45. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

46. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly failed to act and continue to fail to act in good faith, which failure constitutes fraud.

47. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count IV

48. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporates all previous paragraphs.

49. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly failed to act and continue to fail to act with the care an ordinary prudent person in like position would exercise under similar circumstances, which failure constitute fraud.50. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count V

51. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

52. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly failed to act and continue to fail to act in a manner they reasonably believe to be in the best interests of the corporation and its members, which failure constitutes fraud.

53. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count VI

54. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

55. The Trustees have repeatedly failed their duty to compose differences and disagreements with themselves and the members, in violation of their by-laws, which failure constitutes fraud.

56. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count VII

57. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

58. The National Spiritual Assembly has repeatedly failed their duty to hear appeals from Plaintiffs, in violation of their by-laws.

59. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count VIII

60. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

61. The literature review policies of the National and Local Spiritual Assemblies violate the rights of corporate members to communicate with other corporate members.

62. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

Count IX

63. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate all previous paragraphs.

64. The practice of the Local Spiritual Assembly to direct members not to speak about their dealings with the LSA with other corporate members violates the rights of corporate members to communicate with other corporate members.

65. Plaintiffs have suffered emotional damages thereby.

JUDICIAL RELIEF

WHEREFORE, for these reasons, Plaintiffs request that this Court:

1. Declare that the Trustees acted fraudulently towards Plaintiffs;
2. Declare that Trustees libeled Plaintiffs;
3. Declare that the Trustees breached their corporate duties towards Plaintiffs;
4. Remove the Trustees from their positions and enjoin them from serving in official Bahá'ís capacities for nineteen (19) years;
5. Remove the LSA Directors who are also Trustees;
6. Declare that the Local Spiritual Assembly violated members' rights to inspect corporate books and records;
7. Compel Defendant LSA to retain an independent certified public accountant to audit the books for the last two years;
8. Declare that Defendant LSA violated their corporate by-laws by failing

- to compose differences and disagreements among members of the community;
6. Declare that the National Spiritual Assembly breached their duty of hearing Plaintiffs' appeals;
  7. Declare that the literature review policies of the Bahá'ís violate United States common law as preventing corporate members from communicating with other corporate members;
  8. Enjoin Defendants National Spiritual Assembly and Local Spiritual Assembly from enforcing their literature review policy;
  9. Declare that the secrecy practices of the Local Spiritual Assembly violate United States common law as preventing corporate members from communicating with other corporate members;
  10. Enjoin Defendant Local Spiritual Assembly from continuing their secrecy practices;
  11. Award compensatory damages from Defendants to Plaintiffs;
  12. Award attorney's fees and costs to Plaintiffs;
  13. Any other relief this Court deems appropriate.

Respectfully submitted,

---

Yorgos D. Marinakis
Attorney for Plaintiffs
P.O. Box 45923
Rio Rancho, NM 87174
505-459-4664
877-430-9550 (fax)

Named Plaintiff's Verification

STATE OF NEW MEXICO )
) ss.
COUNTY OF BERNALILLO)

COMES NOW Deborah Buchhorn, and being duly sworn, states as follows:

1. I have read and understood the contents of this Complaint.
2. I have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein.
3. I attest to and verify their truth and accuracy._____

DEBORAH BUCHHORN

SWORN TO AND SUBSCRIBED before me this ____ day of _____, 2001.

---

Notary Public

My Commission Expires:

Nima,

You never know, your doing the leg work and finding in the talisman archives might just be of use to Mr. Marinakis. If you can find the time and files concerned, please post them here.

--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

"Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
news:9a5dh3$ear$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> Hi, Nima.

> Could you or someone kindly post this here.

> Thrive,

> M

>

> "Nima Hazini" (lotusapt@wxc.com.au) writes:

> > snip snip snip snip - Whatever!

> >

> >

> >>If you really want to say the Albuquerque community was hopelessly whacked

> > out,

> >>please do so in _detail_, not generalizations, not cliches, please, _how_ > >>elections were rigged, how the riggers precluded complaints, _how_ etc.

> > _what_ > >>etc. _who_ etc. etc. etc.

> >

> > Go to the talisman9 archives and you'll find my detailed memoirs of the > > Albuquerque Scientology (sorry, Baha'i) community.

> >

> > cheers,

> > Nima

> >

> >

>

>

> --

> "My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."

> (Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

>

Hi, Nima.

Could you or someone kindly post this here.

Thrive,

M

"Nima Hazini" (lotusapt@wxc.com.au) writes:

> snip snip snip snip - Whatever!

>

>

>>If you really want to say the Albuquerque community was hopelessly whacked

> out,

>>please do so in _detail_, not generalizations, not cliches, please, _how_

>>elections were rigged, how the riggers precluded complaints, _how_ etc.

> _what_ >>etc. _who_ etc. etc. etc.
>
> Go to the talisman9 archives and you'll find my detailed memoirs of the > Albuquerque Scientology (sorry, Baha'i) community.
>
> cheers,
> Nima
>
>

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

snip snip snip snip - Whatever!

>If you really want to say the Alburqueque community was hopelessly whacked
out,
>please do so in _detail_, not generalizations, not cliches, please, _how_ >elections were rigged, how the riggers precluded complaints, _how_ etc.
_what_ >etc. _who_ etc. etc. etc.

Go to the talisman9 archives and you'll find my detailed memoirs of the Albuquerque Scientology (sorry, Baha'i) community.

cheers,
Nima

Thanks Pat!

I had almost forgotten Rick's nickname!

Cheers, Randy

--

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message
news:3AC54391.68F4FA65@ameritel.net...
> What Rick is referring to is the childish taunting that Nima has been doing.
> "Merde" is Spanish for "shit". Nima refers to Rick as "shit". If you want to > take on the thankless task of lecturing the contributors on manners, please
> please please do!
>
> Rick Schaut wrote:
>
> > <multiman@aros.net> wrote in message
news:3ac4ee18.567578@news.aros.net...

> > > Such humility! Really for those that lurk and those of us who have > > > only begun to post it smacks of conceit.
> >
> > (snip)
>
> > I will only note that my own > > supposed "conceit" doesn't consist of purposefully misstating someone else's > > appropriate name or abusing particular pronunciations of their names.
> >
> > > But perhaps you are better than most who post here.
> >
> > Perhaps, but I seriously doubt it. Frankly, such questions strike me as > > abundantly unimportant. It's rather like trying to decide whether apple pie > > is better than chocolate cake. The answer really depends on the cook.
> >
> > As for whether or not I'm a Baha'i, I think you already know the answer.
> > Why did you ask?
>
> Nima,
>
> Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmum!
>
> o
> Pat
> kohli@ameritel.net
>

Vegamite!

Nima Hazini wrote:

> Mmmmmmmm, what??
>
> cheers,
> Nima
>
> -
> Nima,
>
> Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmum!
>
> o
> Pat
> kohli@ameritel.net Mmmmmmmm, what??

cheers,
Nima

-
Nima,

Mmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmmum!

o
Pat
kohli@ameritel.net

"Pat Kohli" <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message news:3AC54391.68F4FA65@ameritel.net...
> What Rick is referring to is the childish taunting that Nima has been doing.
> "Merde" is Spanish for "shit".

Actually, I believe the language is French. But, then, when speaking French, I have a tendency to use articles the way one would in Spanish, and I speak Spanish with a French accent, so what do I know?

Regards,
Rick Schaut

Hi Pat

Is your statement what we really mean when we say that the Guardian interprets the writings? The idea you present below as an example is a new twist to me. Not that I hadn't heard about the saying of the Greatest Name but rather that it was a type of interpretation. I always assumed that the Guardian's interpretation was more directed to the meaning of what Baha'u'llah said rather than to the timing of the application of it. Though I'm sure his interpretations also apply to application as well. Is it true that the UHJ can't change Shoghi Effendi's interpretation on applicability but can only tell us that it's a good idea? What about the Huquq?

Cheers, Randy

**--

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message
news:3AC5F48E.262CD9CD@ameritel.net...>

**>
>SNIP>
> For example, the Baha'i most holy book might say that Baha'is should recite the > greatest name a number of times a day in a certain way. One of the prerogatives > of the Guardian was interpretation. The Guardian could say that the verse does > not apply to most of the Baha'is in the world at a given time; a subsequent > Guardian would say it does apply. There really was a verse in the Kitabi Aqdas > to that effect and Shoghi Effendi did really say it was not applicable to Baha'is
> in the west. Decades later the UHJ can inform Bahai's of what the Guardian > decided decades ago, and/or encourage Baha'is in that day to do it anyway, but

> they really can't interpret the verse as being inapplicable now, or as applicable > now; only the Guardian can do that, and the individual believer can decide for > themselves.
>
> SNIP

multiman@aros.net wrote:

> I must admit I may have been a little blunt, but it seems to be the > way people are on this site. I do therefore apologize for the > question of Faith, I myself am not a Bahai and while investigating it > have not found so far that which would appeal to me.

Well you are a bigger guy than some of us. The pace is a bit more deliberate (i.e. more tactful, less blunt) at soc.religion.bahai. That group is moderated so don't look for your messages right away - they'll show up the next day.

> Perhaps I will > but I am observing the flow and have not found the argument for the > hands and UHJ (I will for your sensibilities in this post not use the > other appellation which I have so far found more appropriate) as the > successors being very compelling.

I'd like to encourage you to think outside the Remey paradigm - there really was no successor to Shoghi Effendi. Yes, there is a 'highest authority' w/in the faith, but that is about the extent of succession. A successor Guardian would have the same prerogatives as the previous Guardian; the UHJ does not have the same prerogatives.

For example, the Baha'i most holy book might say that Baha'is should recite the greatest name a number of times a day in a certain way. One of the prerogatives of the Guardian was interpretation. The Guardian could say that the verse does not apply to most of the Baha'is in the world at a given time; a subsequent Guardian would say it does apply. There really was a verse in the Kitabi Aqdas to that effect and Shoghi Effendi did really say it was not applicable to Baha'is in the west. Decades later the UHJ can inform Bahai's of what the Guardian decided decades ago, and/or encourage Baha'is in that day to do it anyway, but they really can't interpret the verse as being inapplicable now, or as applicable now; only the Guardian can do that, and the individual believer can decide for themselves.

I say there is no successor because Shoghi Effendi appointed no one in accordance w/ the terms of the Will and Testament. The Will requires him to have a group of the Hands assent to his nominee. That did not happen. Rather, the Hands (to include Mason Remey) assented that there was no successor. So, _if_ Mason Remey really had been the infallible interpreter and his interpretation was that there was no successor, as it was in late 1957, then, again, for sure, even if we assumed Mason were right, we can conclude that there is no successor, because Mason said so, and the hands who would have assented to the nominee also said so. If someone tells you that "assent" was not necessary, remember that 'Abdu'l Baha said it was.

Blessings!
- Pat
kohli@ameritel.net

<https://www.safnet.com/bahai/writings/will.test.abd/>

The Hands of the Cause of God must elect from their own number nine persons that shall at all times be occupied in the important services in the work of the Guardian of the Cause of God. The election of these nine must be carried either unanimously or by majority from the company of the Hands of the Cause of God and these, whether unanimously or by a majority vote, must give their assent to the choice of the one whom the Guardian of the Cause of God hath chosen as his successor. This assent must be given in such wise as the assenting and dissenting voices may not be distinguished (i.e., secret ballot).

<https://www.safnet.com/bahai/writings/will.test.abd/WT-1.html>

Allahu Abha!

This is a good point. If someone did engage in bold electioneering and if the AO ignored complaints about it, how would someone make their case? Some of the stuff in the complaint (or whatever it is) don't make much sense to me (plaintiff not allowed to communicate w/ defendants?), but I'll focus on the electioneering because I could imagine it.

For one thing, I would think the case would belong at the NSA or the UHJ. Even so, I assume that others present would corroborate that electioneering had been done, so that an election would be voided and redone. That might not be the case; suppose some witnesses, for whatever reason, would not complain about electioneering. How would one witness make a case?

The first step, in my mind, would be to create some probable cause to seriously investigate the matter. My initial reaction was that it was so outrageous, if it had happened everyone would complain about it, or something. If there were only one complaint, I'd suspect that someone completely misrecalled or misinterpreted something (or was deluded, or lied).

Suppose they consented to and took a polygraph. If the results showed that they were not lying, then maybe they really did misrecall, maybe they were deluded, or maybe it really did happen. So, I'd encourage the plaintiff to take a polygraph.

If the results excluded the plaintiff lying, or contra-indicated lying as unlikely, I'd question all witnesses to the event and get their perceptions, even encouraging them to take the polygraph. Then I'd try to sort through the statements of all witnesses and any other polygraph results to assess what might have happened.

W/ all this investigating going on, if I worked for the AO, maybe as another ABM (Prot), can you imagine the fuss going on here over my inquisition?

John Woodlock wrote:

>
> Rick,
>
> what advice would you give to Debra/the lawyer to help them present their > case?
>
> Perhaps, a more pertinent question is would you help Debra in this case if > you could or would you, because it has a bahai institution as a 'defendant', > not do so? So far you appear to be assuming a 'defender of the faith role' > (i.e. these people on trb holding up this complaint as something to be heard > should be fought against).
>
> It's worth a think about. I've been thinking about it and so far have > concluded that its important to be neutral (unless one has material > information). Statisically, there must be some dodgey LSA's eh?
>

May your days as 'good cop' be long and sunny like December.

- Pat

kohli@ameritel.net

From: "Patrick Henry" <patrick_henry@liberty.com>

Subject: ^^ bahai ^^ - New Mexico LAWSUIT for Fraud & Libel (sound familiar?) - FULL TEXT - against bahai institutions

Date: Saturday, March 31, 2001 9:32 AM

Read for yourself the full text of the filed complaint:

New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL

<https://members.nbci.com/FG/NMLawsuit.htm>

--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

Welcome to usenet, TRB and ARB, Stuart,

Stuart Palin wrote:

> Patrick Henry <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message
> news:tcbn1st8b3eo2a@corp.supernews.com...
> > Read for yourself the full text of the filed complaint:
**> >
> > New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL
> > <https://members.nbc.com/FG/NMLawsuit.htm>
**> >
> A dead link, like all of your members.nbc.com links.

HTML seems to be something that Fred either does not understand, or he is bound by nbc.com to ignore, posting only URLs which include their add frame panes.

You may have better luck w/ this URL, https://members.nbc.com/\_XMCM/FG/NMLawsuit.htm though you may find the charges to be more puzzling than anything else.

> Perhaps Mr Glaysher,
> if you backed up your venom with facts, rather than grandiose and > unsubstantiated claims I would consider your opinions worthwhile. As it is,
> from a purely objective point of view, you seem to spend most of your time > pouring out tired posts attacking this religion. You reiterate the same > points over and over again under new header and avoid any form of > intelligent debate. Indeed, your own warning signs of fanaticism fit you > like a glove.
**>
> I only joined this newsgroup today in the hope of some intelligent > discussion, instead I find tired arguments being trotted out for a > peanut-gallery crowd. Such a waste of time, both mine and yours. I hope you > all enjoy Mr. Glaysher's spectacle, I certainly won't be staying for another > encore.

If you don't enjoy every word of Mr. Glaysher's spam you can sue your ISP for a refund, or killfile him, as he recommends all newcomers killfile those 'bahai fanatics'.

You are posting using Outlook Express; I use Netscape so I'll rely on Fred's directions. Fred says,

"Assuming you use IE5, click on Tools, then Message Rules, followed by News. Add for talk.religion.bahai and for alt.religion.bahai the email addresses or names of the bahai fundamentalists and fanatics of your choice:"

See, Fred _can_ have useful input. I was mistaken.

at your service,
kohliCUT@ameritel.net
patk9018@my-deja.com

I may be reached at kohli@ameritel.net, the others are spamblocks.
NBCi.com will hang up or freeze sometimes on its ads for some reason. I feel I owe them a little advertisement for their kind hosting of my site.

The link below has NO ADS & usually always works without hanging up:
https://members.nbc.com/\_XMCM/FG/index.htm

The alternative is just to hit your Refresh button.

--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

"Stuart Palin" <kweezil@NOSPAMukonline.co.uk> wrote in message news:mfnx6.6304$u93.889049@news6-win.server.ntlworld.com...
> Patrick Henry <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message
> news:tcbn1st8b3eo2a@corp.supernews.com...
> > Read for yourself the full text of the filed complaint:
> >
> > New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL
> > <https://members.nbc.com/FG/NMLawsuit.htm>
> >
> A dead link, like all of your members.nbc.com links. Perhaps Mr Glaysher, > if you backed up your venom with facts, rather than grandiose and > unsubstantiated claims I would consider your opinions worthwhile. As it is,
> from a purely objective point of view, you seem to spend most of your time > pouring out tired posts attacking this religion. You reiterate the same > points over and over again under new header and avoid any form of > intelligent debate. Indeed, your own warning signs of fanaticism fit you > like a glove.
>
> I only joined this newsgroup today in the hope of some intelligent > discussion, instead I find tired arguments being trotted out for a > peanut-gallery crowd. Such a waste of time, both mine and yours. I hope you > all enjoy Mr. Glaysher's spectacle, I certainly won't be staying for another > encore.
>
> -Stuart Palin
>
>

Patrick Henry <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message news:tcbn1st8b3eo2a@corp.supernews.com...

> Read for yourself the full text of the filed complaint:

>

> New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL

> <https://members.nbci.com/FG/NMLawsuit.htm>

>

A dead link, like all of your members.nbci.com links. Perhaps Mr Glaysher, if you backed up your venom with facts, rather than grandiose and unsubstantiated claims I would consider your opinions worthwhile. As it is, from a purely objective point of view, you seem to spend most of your time pouring out tired posts attacking this religion. You reiterate the same points over and over again under new header and avoid any form of intelligent debate. Indeed, your own warning signs of fanaticism fit you like a glove.

I only joined this newsgroup today in the hope of some intelligent discussion, instead I find tired arguments being trotted out for a peanut-gallery crowd. Such a waste of time, both mine and yours. I hope you all enjoy Mr. Glaysher's spectacle, I certainly won't be staying for another encore.

-Stuart Palin

> Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to > paste the

> detail of his case on the Internet?

Dear Dermot,

The lawyer didn't post this complaint to the internet. Somebody else posted it here.

> Do you really think that any > lawyer is > going to put more detail than he need to on the Writ posted in Court

> to > initiate proceedings

He has posted a great deal less than is necessary to get it to go anywhere. My guess is that it won't make it past first base.

warmest, Susan

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

>

> Somebody made it available for posting. I wonder who that was.

Probably the plaintiff who realizes she will get more mileage out of it on the internet than she ever will in court.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcfijjtoqu17e5@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Susan Maneck" <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message

> news:20010401171857.28041.00003369@ng-mi1.aol.com...

**> > >

> > > Somebody made it available for posting. I wonder who that was.

> > Probably the plaintiff who realizes she will get more mileage out of it on > > the internet than she ever will in court.

> I thought it was a public document that anybody could access and post > wherever.

Not off the web. Nor is one generally able to find that complaint by doing a general keyword search. It's difficult to even find any mention of the case unless one knows what one is looking for, and where to look. While it might well be possible for someone to get their hands on a copy of the complaint without having heard of the case from either the plaintiff or someone close to it, it's highly unlikely that someone has.

Regards,

Rick Schaut

"Rick Schaut" <rsshaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9a805e0dpn@news2.newsguy.com...

**>

> > Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to > > paste the detail of his case on the Internet?

**>

> No, but, then, we're not talking about something an attorney simply posted > to the internet. We're talking about the actual complaint that he filed in > court. The means by which that complaint managed to get posted to the > internet, indeed the very fact that it was posted, is rather irrelevant.

Indeed yes but very annoying to all of you BIGs. You and others were called back off furlough to combat the enemy here on TRB and do your best to rubbish the fact that a BIGS is taking the sanctimonious AO to Court.

**>

> > Do you really think > > that any lawyer is going to put more detail than he need to on the > > Writ posted in Court to initiate proceedings knowing it to be a > > document that will be posted on the Internet?

**>

> As noted above, whether or not the complaiing has been posted to the > internet is irrelevant. I do, however, expect a competent attorney to put > sufficient detail into a complaint filed in court to at least provide the > court with probable cause to believe that the plaintiff has, indeed, been > harmed in some way and that the harm is one that's addressable under civil > law.

Well I really think that that is a matter for the Court to decide and not some partisan BIGS whose only interest is in rubbishing the Complaint in toto prior to its reaching Court. Need one remind you that the same tactic was attempted with Sohrab (the roles were reversed in that the AO initiated proceedings) both prior to and after the case which the AO, incidentally, lost.

> Do you really think a judge is going to accept any vague claim of fraud
or > libel without a single allegation of fact that would constitute fraud or > libel under the law? If so, then you must believe that the courts look > kindly on lawsuits that are filed for the purposes of conducting a fishing > expedition.

That's why there are things called Hearings in Court where both sides have the opportunity to present their own evidence and challenge that presented by the other. Now I know from past experience with you that you find this kind of thing to be rather tedious and not at all necessary, when an Assembly could do a much better "snow" job but this is the show in town this week. No amount of drivel from you and your associates can negate the fact that this Complaint will ultimately only show its evidentiary worth if or when it gets to a hearing.

The Defendants do of course under US law have the opportunity to file for a motion of dismissal. Does anybody know if they have done this - in the light of the opinions herein expressed, I should have expected a hasty filing and granting of such?

Your current rubbishing of it just displays your partisanship founded and steeped in arrogance, ignorance, prejudice and bigotry of the first order.

>
> > Do you really > > think witness statements and/or other evidence is going to be > > disclosed for your erudition?
>
> As a matter of fact, no. One doesn't have to prove the allegations of fact > in a complaint. However, one does have to at least allege facts that would > constitute an addressable issue under the law. This complaint fails to do > so.

Well again we'll leave that up to a Judge and a Court to decide. Granted there is no evidence produced as yet to back up the allegations, there is nonetheless, IMO, a sufficient case stated to warrant a full hearing. That is all that is necessary at this stage. One need not preclude the possibility that the parties could resolve their differences outside of and prior to any Court hearing. This seems to me a better option for the AO to explore than to trot you people out with your tired and worthless opinions but, of course, one has to note that the AO has had this complaint for some unspecified time yet has failed to address it.

>
> > As usual, Rickster, you made the ad hominem and are now trying to > > weasel your way out by casting the blame on somebody else.
>
> Ah, had I argued that the complaint is flawed _because_ the attorney is > incompetent, then it would have been an ad-hominem argument. In fact, I > argued precisely the opposite: that the attorney appears to be incompetent > because the complaint is so obviously flawed.

As you've already been told, the guy with a Ph.D. has obviously done more with his head than grow hair. Surely it is up to the Court to determine whether the Complaint is flawed or not. What you did was a sneaky look around the Internet or wherever to get the "dirt" on the guy! That's ad hominem no matter how you try to disguise it! Dirt ball tactics by a dirt ball for a dirt ball organisation - that's not ad hominem - that's justifiable.

>
> As usual, you and Mr. McKinney are finding ad-hominems where there are none, > and are failing to speak out about it when someone actually does engage in > an ad-hominem argument. Of course, that would require you to chastise > yourself as much as you've chastised anyone else, but I guess a little > hypocrisy is allowed when one's agenda is at stake.

Except that with you, the "running dogs" BIGS bigots, and your joint agenda - it's a great deal of hypocrisy.

>
> > As usual Mr
> > Schaut, you delight in spreading the news that he has only recently, > > apparently, passed the Bar exam in New Mexico and perhaps suggest > > thereby that he's not that good and the case therefore is a mere > bagatelle,
> > something for the boy to cut his teeth on.
>
> As usual, Mr. Ryder, you have your facts somewhat confused. I had suggested > that the attorney didn't seem particularly competent based on a reading of > the complaint he filed. Mr. Hazini responded by pulling some facts out of > his backside, and, while I admit to having a small amount of pleasure in > subsequently proving that Mr. Hazini must have pulled those facts out of his > backside, I have never argued that the attorney in question is incompetent > merely because he only passed the New Mexico bar exam some six months ago.

No Rickster you're too shrewd to argue that the guy is incompetent - although you did suggest a throwaway case for his first. For once you didn't pull the facts out of your backside - you went looking for them and you suggested the guy wasn't competent based on your assessment of the Complaint which counts for doodly squat. Nima doesn't trawl the Internet looking for the dirt on the guy the way you did.

You play a cannier game Rickster, "to damn with civil praise, assent with civil leer and without sneering cause the rest to sneer."

BTW what is it with this anal pre-occupation you have, rather disturbingly IMO, displayed in recent posts?

>
> > You know nothing about this lawyer;
>
> Well, actually, I do know that he only passed the written portion of the New > Mexico bar exam some six months ago. That's a little more than "nothing."

But not enough - is it? (Rhetorical) So you bring this up hoping the world will draw the conclusion you want it to.

>
> > but has it > > occurred to you that a man with a PH. D has used his brain for more than > > keeping his ears apart (a practice in which you are adept, perhaps).
>
> I don't recall ever saying that I thought the man to be a complete idiot.
> At the same time, having a Ph.D. in biochemistry doesn't necessarily qualify > one to be an attorney. Now, were I to be awed by this chap's skill as an > attorney merely because he holds a Ph.D. in some unrelated field, then one > might suggest that I've used my brain for little more than keeping my ears > apart.

We have in earlier correspondence already determined all questions relating to your brain. I personally think that the only thing keeping your ears apart is sheer force of habit.

>
> > You
> > know nothing about the detail of the case and, in spite of that, are > > endeavouring to make little of it.
>
> Except that you forget the reason why I know so little about this case:
the > complaint doesn't allege any facts that would constitute addressable issues > under civil law. And, while you and Mr. McKinney have been engaging in your > own form of ad-hominem argument by hypocritically taking me to task for an > ad-hominem argument I haven't made, neither of you have attempted to address
> the issue of whether or not the complaint alleges sufficient facts for a > court to find probable cause that a justiciable issue exists.

DUH! It is not the function of a Complaint to prove facts - its function is to state a case that the Complainant intends to address to the Court. Now from the Complaint it appears that the Complainant intends to ask the Court to rule on matters which are clearly within the Competence of the Court - the allegations of fraud, libel and that this Assembly failed/refused to carry out its business in accordance with its own rules. The Court will determine this issue on the merits of the EVIDENCE not the allegations contained in the Complaint.

>
> > Fact is - win or lose - it is a disgraceful indictment of your > > religious organisation that one of your fellow believers has to take a > > complaint to an attorney at law to endeavour to get it dealt with in a > > satisfactory manner.
>
> It's amazing, or perhaps amusing, that I should have to point that you've > prefaced a statement of opinion with the words, "Fact is." And, while > you're certainly entitled to hold whatever opinion suits your fancy, I > generally prefer to have sufficient facts in hand before forming an opinion.
> In this instance, I'd rather prefer to allow the lawsuit to play itself
out
> before I decide who, if anyone, has acted disgracefully.

No! I stand by it. FACT is that it is a disgraceful indictment that your much lauded AO cannot deal with a comparatively simple matter (as per the Complaint) which it has had under its purview for some unspecified, but I suspect unreasonably long, period and drives a Bahai to go to Court.

>
> But I will state an opinion on an issue where I do have sufficient facts, > and that issue is the extent to which some people are willing to reach > conclusions based on such collections of "facts" as the accounts one reads > in newspapers or a poorly written complaint that's been filed in a court
of > law in a case for which the defendants haven't even had enough time to file
> a competent response to that complaint. Now _that's_ a disgrace.

Au contraire, Rickster!! The defendants had this case within their purview for some time and did nothing about it. Read the Complaint before you pontificate. And with the speed at which lawyers normally work, I would hazard a guess the defendants have had this case under their purview for some considerable time. As the Dear Lady observed the NSA moves like molasses in January - well some people reckon that that could be the reason this Complaint has been filed. Nothing like a Court case to light a fire under the ass and put some urgency into a matter!

I refrain from comment on the other allegations - I await the evidence that presumably will be filed in Court by way of substantiation. Unlike you Rickster, I haven't made up my mind about the merits of this case or the decision that will be rendered. It would be disingenuous of me to do other than state that I hope the Plaintiff wins it and that by that victory positive change will be brought about in the BF. It is a terrible shame that a religion that was designed to bring the Light of God into the world has degenerated into the erection of marble and the spread of an unwanted Theocratic pretension.

>

> Worse yet, some of these people seem to have inoculated themselves against > revising their opinions when further facts have been brought to light.
> Rather than revise their opinions, they engage in a most vile form of > personal attack against the individuals who have had the temerity to bring > those further facts to light. That's not a disgrace. That's downright > despicable.

What further FACTS have come to light - that YOU consider this case flawed, that the lawyer passed his NM Bar exams 6 months ago? What have you become - the arbiter of public opinion and public decency?

You don't seem to realise that it is Court that will ultimately determine this matter - as to whose behaviour has been despicable vis a vis Plaintiff and Defendant. Public opinion shall determine whose behaviour on this forum (and/or others) has been despicable.

The Grim Reaper.

Hey all!

What are you really talking about? This is in the US. A country where you can sue - and win! - for not being warned not to dry your cat in a microwave oven. The country which defines superfluous lawsuits, and whose citizens have a supreme sense of rights, but little wish to understand responsibility. Mix in personalities and ... hey presto! Another lawsuit.

Leave it to the lawyers - truth will never, ever come out of it, neither will justice. Remember OJ. In this case, all sides lose.

Brian

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tch3usl9varja0@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> TRB has exploded after a quiet March into an orgy of so called fact finding > and ill founded opinions about this case.

With much of the "explosion" coming in the wake of someone posting outright lies.

> I suspect that the Complaint has been filed in Court as a last resort in an > effort to get the NSA to deal with a complaint that has been resting in its > office for a very long time.

If that's the case, then why does the complaint fail to mention any effort to bring these issues to the attention of the Universal House of Justice? Wouldn't it be equally reasonable to suspect that the complaint was filed in a New Mexico court because the plaintiff doesn't recognize the authority of the Universal House of Justice to settle matters which have caused differences among the members of the Baha'i Faith?

> It can of course opt for an open Court case but that would be to court > further adverse publicity.

Or, it might be an opportunity to practice a wide range of Baha'i principles relating to truthfulness, honesty and justice regardless of whether adherence to those principles would court adverse publicity or not.

> In as much as I and others have long anticipated
> (and warned of) such a case developing due to the AO's aversion to dealing > with dissent by such sensible means as reconciliation, conflict resolution > and/or negotiation, it has brought this situation on itself.

Well, adherence to principles and authoritative texts can, and often does, give rise to unavoidable conflicts with certain individuals. We've seen a number of instances where individuals have demanded that a Baha'i institution take an action that is clearly outside that institution's sphere of legitimate authority. It's difficult to see how such issues would be negotiable.

To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave, as an individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief in Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve the conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

> The behaviour of its apologists on this list has been less than helpful -

One could say the same thing about the behavior of others in this forum. The posting of outright lies, getting distracted over inconsequential statements while failing to adequately address the points that had been raised, promoting a double-standard of conduct with regard to comments relating to character, all of these have contributed nothing to the advancement of truth or the level-headed consideration of facts and issues.

But, more importantly, I think Mr. Ryder greatly exaggerates the importance of whatever happens in this little corner of the Internet. What happens here has about as much impact on the rest of the world as a New York street squabble has on passers-by. A few folks might stop and watch, but they all go on about their business.

> It may be this hope of reform which motivates the Plaintiff rather than the
> "egomania" which is normally attributed to "opponents" of the AO.

The case will play itself out. As for "egomania", that's not a bad word describe the attitude under which one attempts to pass one's opinions off as established fact.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

> to have sworn testimony in Court that the matters >alleged in the Complaint are well founded, that a member of the corporation >declared himself to be the voice of God etc. Evidence like that is a heaven >sent story for the press

Dermod,

You can't be serious? Do you really think that either the courts or the press cares that a member of an obscure religion claims to be the voice of God?. Just turn on the television. They do it every morning at 11:00 am and what does John

Q. Public do? Turn the station, of course. This is neither news, nor an legal matter.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20010402214218.27249.00003359@ng-ch1.aol.com...

> > to have sworn testimony in Court that the matters
> >alleged in the Complaint are well founded, that a member of the corporation > >declared himself to be the voice of God etc. Evidence like that is a heaven
> >sent story for the press

>

> Dermod,

>

> You can't be serious? Do you really think that either the courts or the press > cares that a member of an obscure religion claims to be the voice of God?. Just > turn on the television. They do it every morning at 11:00 am and what does John > Q. Public do? Turn the station, of course. This is neither news, nor an legal > matter.

Not just that but all of the other bits as well - my journalist friends are very interested and just awaiting the right moment to print an article - Voice of God makes a good header for the story. This will invoke the Wrath of Khan who has been spouting about the way bad BIGS bring the AO into disrepute ... sorry, attract adverse press comment. he is constantly invoking Divine Assistance to counteract this but he thinks the lucj won't hold out forever.

Pip Pip,

Dermod.

Merde Man pontificates:

<snip>

>> You were warned by the Guardian that your Faith could fail. It has!

>Which begs the question, why are you here?

Actually, the more appropriate question is who puts you up to your officioocratic rantings on the net! We know Maneck has her patron in Ghadirian, who is yours Rickster? Rumour has it that it's Henderson.

>You're wasting your time. Get a >life, indeed!

Again, Rickster, please do the world a favor and go sailing into the sunset on your little paddle boat (yacht, whatever!). The world can do well enough without American Baha'i hezbollahis such as yourself.

> When it comes to Mr. Hazini, I have a great deal of justification in not >trusting what he attempts to pass off as fact.

Same here. Where Merde Man is concerned there is even greater justification in knowing that his rantings are nothing more than an orchestrated apology of his patrons.

Get a life yourself, Rickster. After all you're the cultist and cult apologist, not us. Which brings me to the question: where you perchance potty trained at gun point??

cheers,
Nima

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcj82vb2amqjd7@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9abdp901k9p@news2.newsguy.com...

> > Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member > > and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues > > might cast this whole case in completely different light.

> It would, except that they weren't!

That's a speculative conclusion. All we do know, assuming she's telling the truth, is that the plaintiff in the lawsuit didn't know what was being done about the situation.

> > > And who for this day has interpreted those authoritative texts such > > > that a believer like Alison can be kicked out on her ear without a > > > chance to justify her position.

> > That appears to depend on whom you ask. Some folks have alleged that the > > issue is free speech, in which case her expulsion would have come about > > because she justified her position all too well.

> Was this before or after the fact?

I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions. One holds that the Universal House of Justice wanted to silence her, and the other holds that she has had no opportunity to speak her mind. These positions cannot both be true.

As for "superior intellect" (I'm reminded of another character who had an inflated sense of his intelligence), I'm not sure one can rightly categorize an intellect that fails to grasp the meaning of the phrase "not subject to present or future speculation" as a "superior" intellect.

> > But, the fact remains that she can still address her concerns to the > > Universal House of Justice.

> There is no appeal against the supreme body unless, of course, there is > "repentance" and that's a whole different ball game. In not consulting with > her beforehand the supreme body indicated that it had determined the matter
> absolutely.

The Universal House of Justice has an established policy that anyone can bring any issue directly to them, yet, despite that policy, you choose to interpret, in the absence of any direct statement on the matter, what they've done as indicating that this particular issue is closed. Looks more like an excuse not to engage in dialogue than any well-reasoned conclusion about what's going on in the minds of the members of the Universal House of Justice.

If she wants to know why they instructed the AZ National Spiritual Assembly to return her membership card, then why doesn't she just ask them? Why concoct these lame excuses for not engaging in any dialogue?

> I wouldn't speculate about the attitude or remit of the Privacy Commission.

Perhaps, but the fact remains that she has a dispute with the Universal House of Justice but has done nothing by way of addressing that dispute with them. Frankly, it looks like she has no real interest in resolving the dispute, and is only looking for someone, somewhere, who will say, "Oh you bad Universal House of Justice! Who do you think you are for enforcing standards of Baha'i membership?"

> Bloodsports! I enjoy the kill - the smell of cordite and the whiff of > napalm in the morning ... Ooops! Getting carried away there! Sorry!

Dang. For a moment, there, I thought you might simply explode. Course, that would make such an awful mess.

> > When it comes to Mr. Hazini, I have a great deal of justification in not > > trusting what he attempts to pass off as fact.

> So why have you formulated an opinion?

Now, that's news to me. Have I stated an opinion on the merits of this case? If so, please quote it for me.

> > But you seem to forget. I haven't, at all, discussed the validity of the > > factual claims in the complaint.

> You can speculate on the "facts" all you want - doesn't affect the "fact" > that a Complaint has been filed and that if it is not satisfactorily > resolved it could wind up in Court and the AO could win or it could lose.

Yo, Dermod. It's already in court. Plaintiff chose to take it there. And there's not a thing I can do to change that fact. I don't know why you keep exhorting me to endeavor to change that which is beyond my power to change.

> > At which point did I claim that she is, indeed, the source of the > > conflict?

> Try this bit - cited above: -

Well, we've all had a chance to read it a couple of times, now. And, for that matter, I at least recall precisely what I wrote. The fact remains, however, that I haven't stated that the principle specifically applies in this case. I've merely stated a principle that could apply in this case, depending, of course, on what further facts, if any, come to light.

> You shouldn't even try to apportion blame for the start of this conflict - > you have no evidence on which to do that.

Well, then I guess it's a very good thing that I haven't tried to apportion any blame, isn't it?

> To "articulate a principle", as > above, in the context in which you did is to leave all aware of your > predetermined judgement that the Plaintiff is to blame for the contention.

No. To articulate a principle, as I did and in the context in which I did so, is to outline what facts might be relevant to any conclusion that one might draw in this case. The purpose is two-fold: 1) to point out that some speculation fails to consider relevant facts that are not in evidence; and 2) to suggest specific avenues for further inquiry should the opportunity for further inquiry arise.

Of course, you fail to notice this. You're more interested in constructing straw creatures that can be burnt with a dab of napalm than you're interested in a well-reasoned discussion of the issues.

> Within a Bahai context I would agree with you but in other matters it lies > within the purview of the Courts if either party makes an appeal thereto for > resolution.

Well, there are, in fact, some very legitimate reasons for the courts to not get themselves embroiled in the details of an internal dispute within any religion. There are several reasons why the framers of the U.S. Constitution chose to include two clauses concerning this issue in the very First Amendment of the Bill of Rights. You might want to spend some time reading the Federalist Papers in order to familiarize yourself with these issues.

- > At what point does delay in responding to an appeal cross the divide between
- > inactivity and rejection? If an appellant hears nothing pertaining to the
- > Appeal for a period of time what is he/she do about that? In other words
- > what is a reasonable time to leave an appeal in the hands of the NSA before
- > taking further action? A week, two weeks, a month, two months, three months

Frankly, the answer would depend on the issues involved. Some appeals require immediate attention. Others not so immediate.

It would also depend on the manner in which the appeal has been made. The fallacy of communication is the assumption that it has taken place. It's not too difficult to imagine a bombastic letter of denial and dispute as being someone's excuse for an appeal. Indeed, it would be precisely the kind of "appeal" letter I'd expect to get from one Dermot Ryder.

However, it's not entirely clear that a bombastic letter of dispute indicates any desire to review the issues from any point of view but that of the supposed appellant. Try sending a similar writ of certiorari to a U.S. Appeals Court, and see how far it gets you.

- > They may indeed have no obligation to keep her
- > informed - but is that efficiency, is that courtesy, is that the Bahai way?

And, again, that depends on the nature of the issues involved. To take something from this case, consider the whole issue involving the applause:

"22. At the Annual Meeting Feast of 1999, Defendant Trustees fraudulently rigged the election of Trustee Nelson Sapad by calling for applause for him three times prior to an election of corporate officers. Plaintiff appealed to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action."

First of all, the immediately appropriate action is to investigate the matter. Secondly, there are a number of things that the National Spiritual Assembly might do depending on the results of that investigation. On this particular issue, however, since it doesn't involve a specific adverse decision by an institution involving administrative sanctions against her, the National Spiritual Assembly has no obligation to keep her informed. Indeed, the principle of confidentiality precludes them from telling her everything they've done.

In addition, the National Spiritual Assembly is looking to find patterns of behavior, and not necessarily isolated instances of misconduct. The issue isn't so much whether or not someone is straddling Baha'i law and procedures. Rather, the issue is really about a person's intent. There are known cases where the Universal House of Justice has instructed a National Spiritual Assembly to restore an individual's voting rights because the case involved a single violation of Baha'i law, and about which the individual was striving to correct his or her behavior.

The point is that the process of applying Baha'i law is a rather lengthy process. It doesn't simply consist of applying sanctions the moment the Assembly has determined that someone has violated Baha'i law. Efforts are made to ascertain the individual's attitude regarding his or her behavior, the individual's knowledge of the relevant principles involved, and the extent to which that individual would be amenable to consultation on these issues.

Now, given that the most strident sanction a National Spiritual Assembly can possibly apply is the prohibition on giving to the fund and attending Feast, it's difficult to imagine any issue that would require a timely response due to any hardship arising from any sanction that's been imposed. I suppose one might argue some aspect of "emotional" damages (as are alleged in this complaint), but I just have difficulty finding any sympathy for that notion. Yes, the courts do recognize "emotional" damages under certain circumstances, but more often than not, "emotional" damages have served as nothing more than an excuse for someone to extort money from deep pockets.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tckvdilpte0a88@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9ad1nh06jf@news2.newsguy.com...

> > "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message > > news:tcj82vb2amqjd7@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> > > "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> > > news:9abdp901k9p@news2.newsguy.com...

> > > > Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member

> > > > and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues > > > > might cast this whole case in completely different light.

> > > It would, except that they weren't!

> > That's a speculative conclusion.

> It's not speculation - I know how long the NSA sat on the complaint and did > sweet doodly squat about it.

You appear to be claiming access to evidence to which I'm not privy. If you have it, then post it.

> You can phone your friends at Wilmette to ask > them if they want me to note this on the Internet for public appraisal or if

> they would prefer that I not divulge the information.

But, excuse me for being amused at the suggestion that you're withholding this evidence for the sake of saving the U.S. National Spiritual Assembly embarrassment. Is there anything you'd like to see more than public embarrassment of Baha'i institutions? That seems to be your sole purpose for even being here.

> > I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions.

> Really! My what a display of logic! Of course everybody but you can clearly > the fallacy in this.

Well, you did fail to notice that the complaint in the NM case alleges two facts that cannot simultaneously be true.

> > If she wants to know why they instructed the AZ National Spiritual Assembly > > to return her membership card, then why doesn't she just ask them? Why > > concoct these lame excuses for not engaging in any dialogue?

> And how do you know she didn't and if she did, what reply was received?

> Answer - you don't! I, on the other hand may do, but whether I do or not

> I'm not going to acquaint you with the information.

[Snort.] Um. You owe me a new keyboard.

If you do, indeed, have such documents in your possession, the only reasonable conclusion withholding them from public disclosure is that you would find their contents more embarrassing than would any institution of the Baha'i Faith.

> > > Bloodsports! I enjoy the kill - the smell of cordite and the whiff of > > > napalm in the morning ... Ooops! Getting carried away there! Sorry!

> > Dang. For a moment, there, I thought you might simply explode. Course, > > that would make such an awful mess.

> But a lot less mess than if you got a dab of semtex where the sun don't > shine

Not necessarily. My eyes are blue. What color are yours?

> - just saying that to placate your anal fixation.

You seem way more fixated about it than I do.

> > Now, that's news to me. Have I stated an opinion on the merits of this > > case? If so, please quote it for me.

> Well let's see - you've rubbished me,

With quite a bit of due, on that score.

> the attorney,

Yes. I said that he doesn't seem to be all that competent based on the complaint. Of course, that's only one complaint, and I'm sure the fellow has a wonderful career _ahead_ of him (note that in contrast to Mr. Hazini's manufacturing of a past career for this particular attorney).

> the Complaint,

With legitimate cause. The complaint stinks from a legal standpoint.

> the Plaintiff,

Only if one accepts the straw creatures you've constructed through unwarranted inferences based on my remarks.

> anybody who doesn't agree with you (apart from your pal Bart Simpson) ... anybody here not know what Rick's opinion of this case is?

So long as we're talking about the legal issues, yes. I would suspect that everyone who is following this thread knows exactly what my opinions are. Where the facts are concerned, however, I have yet to state any particular opinion as to their merits.

> > Yo, Dermod. It's _already_ in court. Plaintiff chose to take it there.

> It's not IN Court - it's awaiting the day that it does go into Court with > the attorneys, Plaintiff, witnesses etc. and the Judge.

I see. You expect me, and other members of the Baha'i Faith, to be doing hand-stands, back-flips and maybe even an arabesque or two, whatever it takes to keep this case from going to trial (just so long as it's not on a legal "technicality" like the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution--nasty little technicality there), regardless of what's actually true or which would be the most just course of action. But, then, I don't quite share your vehement distate for all things related to Baha'i Institutions.

> >The fact remains,

> > however, that I haven't stated that the principle specifically applies in > > this case. I've merely stated a principle that _could_ apply in this > case,

> > depending, of course, on what further facts, if any, come to light.

> Well now why didn't you say that to begin with that you were merely citing > general principles which might or might not be applicable?

Because I had, apparently mistakenly, beleived that people could see that I was doing nothing more than stating a principle without my having to point it out to them.

- > Indeed why bring
- > it up at all for in the context in which you used it, you invited BIGS to
- > agree with you that this is a BAD Bahai who dares take the AO to a nasty
- > Civil Court.

You mean the context in which I had specifcly disavowed any effort to reach a conclusion on the merits of this case?

- > > Well, then I guess it's a very good thing that I haven't tried to
- > > apportion any blame, isn't it?

- > Really? Let's ask the folks out there for their opinion on that
- > proposition!

Yes, lets. Tell you what, why don't we simply suspend this discussion for a few days, and see if anyone chimes in?

- > > > At what point does delay in responding to an appeal cross the divide
- > > between
- > > > inactivity and rejection?

- > > Frankly, the answer would depend on the issues involved. Some appeals
- > > require immediate attention. Others not so immediate.

- > Put a time on it - a specific time. After what period of elapsed time
- would
- > you expect

Nope. My answer remains the same. Moreover, where this case is concerned, the answer would be rather irrelevant. She has another recourse other than the courts. Did she avail herself of that recourse?

- > > It would also depend on the manner in which the appeal has been made.
- The
- > > fallacy of communication is the assumption that it has taken place.
- It's
- > > not too difficult to imagine a bombastic letter of denial and dispute as
- > > being someone's excuse for an appeal. Indeed, it would be precisely the
- > > kind of "appeal" letter I'd expect to get from one Dermod Ryder.

- > Now is this another of these "general principles" or quite specific
- > innuendo?

Well, there's no innuendo whatsoever in the last sentence. As to whether or not it applies in the present case, well, I believe you already know the answer, but you'll make whatever inferences suits your bloodthirst despite anything I might say.

- > You keep telling us the the AO system is flexible. Has it therefore the
- > inherent ability and flexibility to deal with such a "bombastic"
- complaint?

Sure. Indeed, one legitimate means would be to instruct the National Spiritual Assembly involved to remove the author of the complaint from the membership roles, depending, of course, upon the specific circumstances.

> Complaints have to be dealt with - if a Microsoft customer lambasted you

But, then, we're not talking about a business with customers. Where one's relationship with the Baha'i Institutions are concerned, there are attitudes that are clearly spelled out in authoritative Baha'i Texts (c.f. "Baha'i Administration" and numerous letters from `Abdul-Baha). Moreover, however, there is the explicit statement within these Writings, that Spiritual Assemblies do not answer to their constituents. They answer to their conscience. You may not like this, but you cannot deny that it is an aspect of Baha'i Administration.

So, yes, complaints have to be dealt with, but one that is sufficiently bombastic may well reveal more about the complainant than the issues that the complaint actually reveals.

[Snip]

> All of the above is arrant dog-muck as the NSA sat on its corporate fat arse > and did absolutely nothing.

Which is Mr. Ryder's way of saying that he has no counter to my remarks that's based on a thorough review of Baha'i principles.

And, I suppose one might notice how "dog-muck" and "fat arse" could indicate an anal fixation, but I don't think it would be necessary to point out any of Mr. Ryder's fixations.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

Greetings, Rick.
You poorly expressed your thought.
You wrote:

"Rick Schaut" (RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom) writes:

> I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions. One > holds that the Universal House of Justice wanted to silence her, and the > other holds that she has had no opportunity to speak her mind. These > positions cannot both be true.

This is perfectly consistent if the UHJ was successful; I assume your words do not fully correspond with what you're attempting to communicate.
M.

**--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Greetings, Rick.

Uhm, well, what's stopping the Universal House of Justice from stepping in and resolving differences here? I suppose considering the past performance of the guys currently in power when it comes to doing this, we might be grateful they've not intervened in the case.

However, at some time there could come actions by the UHJ that are in accordance with the title and job description, including resolving differences -- really resolving them that is. This is antipodal from seeking to impose one authoritarian dogma and declaring the rainbow of valid personal opinions to be invalid, except for the opinion of the faction in power, and everyone else to have the freedom to remain silent or to have their say outside the entity Hooper, Doug and their buddies control.

So, if there are differences, and, if their job is to resolve such differences, what are they waiting for? Do they need an invitation from the disagreeing parties? Every dawn brings a new day during which those in charge of Baha'i have another opportunity to be true Baha'i guides for a species quite some distance from harmony.

Here's to the day the UHJ begins functioning as what it was meant to be, and what humanity can benefit from.

M.

"Rick Schaut" (RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom) writes:

>

> If that's the case, then why does the complaint fail to mention any effort > to bring these issues to the attention of the Universal House of Justice?
> Wouldn't it be equally reasonable to suspect that the complaint was filed in > a New Mexico court because the plaintiff doesn't recognize the authority of > the Universal House of Justice to settle matters which have caused > differences among the members of the Baha'i Faith?

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
news:9ad2v808a7@news2.newsguy.com...

>

> "Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
> news:9acf8s$aem$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> > Uhm, well, what's stopping the Universal House of Justice from > > stepping in and resolving differences here?

>

> Now there's a fascinating image. The Universal House of Justice coming over

> the ridge like the cavalry saying, "Judge Scott, you may set this case > aside. We're handling the matter, now." The only thing missing is the deep > voice singing, "Here I come to save the day!"

>

Looks like Randolph Scott (hallowed be his name and memory) has been co-opted onto the House of Horrors to hold office with John Wayne and Tom Mix.

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcgoalg0l6v2da@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9a8t430210k@news2.newsguy.com...

> > It has everything to do with the pattern of behavior under which certain > > individuals latch on to whatever might cast someone else in a bad light > > regardless of the actual substance behind it.

> Not "someone" Rick - actually it is two corporate bodies

And what does this have to do with the issue of substance, or lack thereof?

> > All I did was express an opinion. Is there some reason you have to > > flatulate like this every time someone expresses an opinion?

> There's that anal fixation again!

And I'm still wondering why that bothers you.

> I can only repeat the obvious when it is apparent that the obvious hasn't > sunk in.

I rather strongly suspect that the reason is entirely different.

Regarding my "sneaky" peek around the internet:

> Why the interest in the person?

Well, good old Mr. Hazini asserted that the attorney was some high-powered corporate lawyer who has won several cases. I sought to check it out for myself, and came up with facts relevant to Mr. Hazini's claim. If you want to know why the interest in this attorney's record, then ask Mr. Hazini. While you're at it, please explain why you haven't taken Mr. Hazini to task for trying to sell us a bill of goods. Or is it OK to post outright lies if the lies happen to be flattering?

> > Oh, and I'll remember your comments on "dirt" the next time you bring up
> > Dr. Danesh.

> And I 'll bring it (and/or similar) up again the next time you and/or other

> AO apologists start slinging dirt and ad hominems.

Proving, once again, that you really don't care about the truth when there's an opportunity for flaming members of the Baha'i Faith.

> There is no need in a Complaint to state other than the broad grounds upon > which one is proceeding against the defendants. The "facts" are spelled

out
> in Court.

No. The facts are proved, or not as the case may be, in court. They should be spelled out in the complaint. If one doesn't spell out the facts in the complaint, then one is, rather obviously, using the court as a vehicle for a fishing expedition. Courts don't take all too kindly to that.

> > Now, exactly which of those constitutes a justiciable issue under the law?

> > Under which system of law does any of those alleged facts constitute > > either fraud or libel that would render the claim justiciable?

> Re applause - was it called for or was it spontaneous? Did it thereby > constitute "electioneering"?

Two salient facts. 1) We're talking about a religious organization; and 2) The U.S. Constitution has an amendment that prohibits the government from infringing upon the practice of a religion and or effecting the establishment of a religion. Any issue that would hinge upon the rules of the religious organization would, therefore, be non-justiciable matters in a US court of law.

And no fraud or libel, here.

> 17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained in an > inaccurate and inequitable manner.

> An allegation which shall be substantiated or not dependent on independent > audit.

This might be negligence, but in order for the plaintiff to show damages, one needs to go through the mental gymnastics of turning members of a religion into shareholders of a corporation. Not justiciable on the grounds that plaintiff has no standing on the issue.

And, again, no fraud or libel here. Indeed, the very next alleged fact would obviate any claim of either fraud or libel in this regard:

> 18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000 discrepancy in the > corporate books.

> See above but this is obviously an alleged fact - another one indeed.

Yes, it's an alleged fact. But, is the fact justiciable? No. For the same reason that #17 fails to allege a fact that would be justiciable under the law. All this fact establishes is that any claim of fraud or libel is specious.

> 19. In a letter dated September 3, 2000, named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn > informed the Local Spiritual Assembly that she desired to inspect their > financial books. Defendants refused.

> A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.

That didn't parse. Are you saying that this could be an opinion based on the evidence? If so, then I'm afraid you're still woefully confused as to the difference between a statement of opinion and a statement of fact.

And, while this is an allegation of fact, the question still remains whether it alleges a fact that's justiciable under the law. The very next allegation of fact would negate any justiciable issue regarding a refusal to allow the books to be inspected.

And, _again_, no fraud or libel.

> 20. Following mailing of the demand letter, the LSA offered to allow named > Plaintiff to inspect the books and records, but under conditions that the > Plaintiff deemed in bad faith.

> A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.

But, where's the law that would require the Local Spiritual Assembly to allow the plaintiff to inspect the books on the plaintiff's terms and conditions? That the plaintiff deems the terms and conditions to reflect bad faith is meaningless. Why aren't those terms and conditions spelled out in the complaint? This is simply too vague to present an issue that would be justiciable.

And, above all, there's _still_ no allegation of fact that would constitute either fraud or libel.

> Now are not all of the above facts, or alleged facts, actionable in a Court
> of law, which alone shall determine the merits and render due verdict > thereon?

Yes, they're alleged facts. None of them appears to be a fact that would present a justiciable issue.

You seem to think that anyone can take any issue to a court of law and ask that court to render an opinion on it. If so, where did you get such a notion?

And, again, I'll note that no one has made even the remotest attempt to claim that any of these alleged facts constitutes either libel or fraud. Yet, the complaint itself is virtually littered with the words "fraud" and "libel". It's as if the attorney knows that the complaint is thin on justiciable facts, and needs to come up with some kind of smoke screen that would obscure just how thin those facts are.

> Ditto for your own propositions on this case.

But, then, I'm not demanding that other people take my opinion to be established fact.

> This complaint has been sat on for > a much longer period than that without any indication that it was even being > looked at. Is this not actionable at law?

If it is, then please cite the law that would make it actionable.

> > What I had in mind is Dr. Cole's despicable practice of retaining the > > newspaper article about Dr. Danesh without so much as a hint of the fact > > that the entire matter was decided, by dismissal of a civil lawsuit, in a > > court of law.

> Nothing whatsoever to do with the NM case.

It has everything to do with the practice, in this forum, of presenting only part of the facts in order to cast aspersions on Baha'i institutions. The behavior regarding Dr. Danesh's case is remarkably similar to the posting of a complaint within days of that complaint being filed in court, as if the complaint constitutes established fact in and of itself. Is there any reason that people couldn't wait until this case had run its course before people began discussing it here? Why post the complaint before a court has had any opportunity to address the issues it raises?

> In the light of what you state > about a subsequent civil action (on which I have yet to see any reported > facts)

Where have you been? Dr. Maneck has reported several facts in this regard. Are you claiming that she's lying?

> the fact still remains that Danesh negotiated to have charges against > him withdrawn.

The fact is that Dr. Danesh didn't fight to keep a license to practice clinical psychiatry at a time when he had already decided to quit clinical practice to pursue academic interests.

But, then, we've pretty much established that you wish to not be confused by such details, so I suppose I should apologise for pointing them out to you.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tchput7vrvcvca@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message > news:9aa81108e7@news2.newsguy.com...
> > Any issue that would hinge upon the rules of > > the religious organization would, therefore, be non-justiciable > > matters in a US court of law.

> Anything about the content of the rules of a religious organisation is > covered by the Constitution. But where that religious organisation

- > incorporates itself its behaviour as governed by corporate law comes
- > within the jurisdiction of the Court.

You're suggesting that, merely by the act of incorporation, a religious organization forgoes any protection that might be accorded to it by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution--namely the right to conduct its affairs (i.e. how the organizations chooses to uphold its own by-laws) as the organization itself sees fit. That's a novel theory, but I'd certainly like to see that stated in some court decision before I accept it as anything other than your own creation.

I know of no court case that directly addresses this issue. One that comes close, however, is Combs v. Methodist Church (USCA 5th Circuit, Case No. 98-10193). Combs, a female Methodist Minister, sued the Methodist Church for sexual discrimination, but the case was dismissed under the First Amendment establishment of religion clause. Defendant church was a non-profit corporation as well.

This would lead one to believe that no court will even consider any form of injunction or relief based on a claim having to do with whether or not a religious organization is adhering to its own by-laws.

- > Furthermore it must abide by civil law as the
- > Guardian pointed. The Constitutional safeguard is for matters of
- > conscience not a license to break every other law in the book.

The complaint doesn't allege that any law has been violated. Were we talking about violations of law, then this would be a criminal case not a civil case.

However, you are quite incorrect in limiting the First Amendment to merely matters of conscience. There are two clauses involved, only one of which has to do with conscience (i.e. the free exercise of one's religious beliefs). The other clause is the so-called "establishment" clause. It's doubtful whether the freedom of exercise is an issue at all, but there is little doubt as to whether or not the establishment clause would provide grounds for dismissal under Federal Rules of Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6). See the above-referenced case.

- > The US Constitution provisions did not prevent the
- > conviction of the Revd Moon on charges of Tax evasion.

How is that relevant to this case?

- > > > 17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained
- > > > in an inaccurate and inequitable manner.

- > > Not justiciable on the grounds
- > > that plaintiff has no standing on the issue.

- > They are members of the corporation and she is a member of the corporation.

Which explains paragraph 6 of the complaint:

"6. Named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn was a shareholder or member of the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahá'ís of Albuquerque, New Mexico, at the time of the incidents stated in this Complaint, and she continues to be a member."

You might want to try to grasp the implications of what the complaint _doesn't_ say.

As I mentioned, this might be cause for a negligence tort, but the claim never even mentions negligence. Indeed, the claim doesn't demand specific monetary damages based on funds that may have been misplaced or even misappropriated. All damages listed in the complaint are based on so-called "emotional" damages.

They only possible way to wrangle some kind of justiciable issue out of this would be to find some kind of fiduciary relationship between the defendants and the Plaintiffs, but that relationship doesn't exist between the members of a private organization and the officers of that organization. At least I haven't been able to find any case law that holds this--if you can find some, by all means, post the details.

There is a financial fiduciary relationship between the officers of a corporation and the shareholders of that corporation, but that's not the relationship here. As you have so deftly noted, we're talking about _members_, not _shareholders_. Yet, the claim goes through this mental gymnastics, quoted above, of equating "member" with "shareholder".

> > > 18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000 > > > discrepancy in the corporate books.

> A discrepancy of a material sum of money whether it arise from fraud, > incompetence or negligence is actionable at law.

But only by the party that's actually harmed by the discrepancy. If you're a shareholder, then, yes, you have an actionable claim. If you're simply a member, then no (hence the mental gymnastics in paragraph 6 of the complaint).

If anything, the Albuquerque LSA would have an actionable claim against the person or persons responsible for handling those funds, but general members of the community don't have any standing that would obligate the Albuquerque LSA to act on that claim in any particular manner despite whatever "emotional" impact this might have on said member of the community.

> Deborah says that she asked to see the books, which, as a member of the > corporation she has a right to do and the other members wouldn't let her so > she is going to ask the Judge to make them let her see the books.

Deborah also says that they did make an offer to allow her to see the books, but she didn't like the color of the walls in the room, so she decided to sue the LSA.

Did you fail to notice that the complaint alleges two facts which cannot simultaneously be true?

> If it's contrary to Corporation law it's actionable!

Repetition with an exclamation point, even. That still won't render the assertion valid. See the above-referenced case.

> > But, where's the law that would require the Local Spiritual Assembly to > > allow the plaintiff to inspect the books on the plaintiff's terms and > > conditions?

> It's Corporation law again time and she's a member.

Frankly, I think you've cooked up this "corporation law" argument without so much as a single whiff of any case history that would establish it as being anything other than the product of your own imagination. Try dealing with the _actual_ law, and not the law in some fantasy world.

> If the defendants try > to limit what she sees in the books it could be contrary to law.

You mean like not allowing her to see who contributed how much? As I said, this allegation is too vague.

> > You seem to think than anyone can take any issue to a court of law and ask > > that court to render an opinion on it. If so, where did you get such a > > notion?

> No, not any issue.

Good. Now, describe, those particular elements that render a particular issue justiciable. Why don't you go to www.findlaw.com, click on the legal dictionary (toward the bottom of the page), and look up the terms "justiciable", "standing" "cause of action" and "jurisdiction".

> > Is there _any_ > > reason that people couldn't wait until this case had run its course before > > people began discussing it here? Why post the complaint _before_ a court > > has had any opportunity to address the issues it raises?

> The Complaint was posted for information as it is a public document.

That doesn't render it's posting any less an act of sensationalistic journalism than the retention of the newspaper article on Dr. Danesh. Fred's home address is currently a matter of public record. It's even easier to find his home address on the web than it is to find a copy of this complaint. Yet quite a few people got their noses bent out of shape because someone decided to post that information here.

The mere fact that certain information is publicly available doesn't render the dissemination of that information a morally or conscionably acceptable act.

- > It has
- > not excited any great controversy on Talisman for example

Probably because no one there has enough knowledge to discuss the legal issues intelligently.

- > When I joined this thread it had been
- > ongoing for sometime and being argued on grounds that posters seemed not to
- > comprehend.

And you continue to argue it on grounds that you seem not to comprehend. What's your point?

- > You were advancing information on the competence of the
- > attorney

In response to someone else's claims about the attorney's record.

- > and rubbishing the Complaint without apparently understanding its
- > nature or its place in the scheme of things.

That's not entirely clear. You haven't cited any case law that would indicate my understanding of the legal issues is flawed in any way.

- > You seemed to want to rubbish
- > it to death, at least to members of this forum and certainly to your own
- > satisfaction.

Actually, I rather enjoy discussing legal issues. I find them fascinating. This complaint affords an opportunity to do so, despite the fact that there seems to be no one else here who understands these issues enough to discuss them intelligently.

- > Your
- > ramblings contribute naught but ignorance and prejudice to an already
- > difficult situation for both parties.

And your ramblings manage to contribute anything else? If you don't like the fact that this discussion is taking place, then, by all means, stop participating in it.

- > > The fact is that Dr. Danesh didn't fight to keep a license to practice
- > > clinical psychiatry at a time when he had already decided to quit clinical
- > > practice to pursue academic interests.

- > So why did he pay $10,000? Seems an expensive way to retire from medicine.

Substantially less expensive than the legal costs of fighting to keep the license to practice when one has already made plans to render the license irrelevant.

- > If Danesh won the civil case and proved
- > his innocence thereby why did he give the undertaking he did and pay the
- > cash he did?

First of all, the license issue arose before the civil case.

Secondly, the effort to defend himself in the civil matter didn't negate the expense that would have been required to fight the issue before the OCPS.

- > As I said, at the very least, his judgement has to be called
- > into question.

Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to expend the money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcj830hgcs1fd8@xo.supernews.co.uk...

- > I am so glad that you have proved to your own satisfaction that the Courts
- > have no jurisdiction in matters religious.

It seems I've demonstrated this to your satisfaction as well, or, at least, to a level at which you no longer have a well-reasoned response.

Does that mean we can talk about the competence of this attorney, again?

- > > Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to expend the
- > > money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?

- > Why question the judgement of a man who paid $10,000 to give up that he did
- > not want to keep?

Your comprehension is slipping again. Methinks you're in need of some sleep. I'll try smaller words:

He didn't care to keep the license. He could either post a $10,000 (Canadian) security and give up the license, or spend as much as 10 times that amount to fight to keep the license that he had no intention of ever using again. There was, however, no option for him that didn't entail either posting the security or paying attorneys to contest the matter.

And you, with your "superior intelligence" wonder why I don't question the man's judgement.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tckvdkpt87na8a@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> news:9ad2bo07fq@news2.newsguy.com...
> > "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message
> > news:tcj830hgcs1fd8@xo.supernews.co.uk...
> > It seems I've demonstrated this to your satisfaction as well, or, at > least,
> > to a level at which you no longer have a well-reasoned response.

> I don't think so!

No, I was correct. You didn't have, and still haven't made, a well-reasoned response on the legal issues. Keep trying, though. I suggest you do a citation analysis on LEMON v. KURTZMAN, and see where it leads you.

> Go ahead! I'm all agog!

Oh, please! Close your mouth. We can smell the odor all the way over here in Seattle.

> > He didn't care to keep the license. He could either post a $10,000 > > (Canadian) security and give up the license, or spend as much as 10 times > > that amount to fight to keep the license that he had no intention of ever > > using again. There was, however, no option for him that didn't entail > > either posting the security or paying attorneys to contest the matter.

> Alternatively, a "competent" attorney might have advised him to have the > hearing before his Professional body adjourned, pending resolution of the > Civil Court case in which case he needn't have paid anything and would have > recovered his legal costs. Post the Civil case there would have been no > charges of professional misconduct to answer [...]

Your point is based the assumption that the civil lawsuit had been filed before the claims against the OCPS had been resolved. However, that wouldn't be a particularly reasonable assumption to make. You see, for the folks who had filed the civil lawsuit, the matter before the OCPS costs them absolutely nothing. However, if they can get a favorable ruling from the OCPS on the matter, then they practically have an open and shut case for a civil lawsuit (the burden of proof in Administrative Law cases is higher than that for cases under common law). So, when there is an active complaint against a doctor with the relevant licensing agency, people who have a civil interest tend to not file a civil suit against the doctor until after the relevant licensing agency has made its decision.

Moreover, were there, indeed, a civil lawsuit pending on the very issues that were the substance of the complaint before the OCPS, then there's every reason to believe that the OCPS, itself, would have suspended any hearing on the matter pending the outcome of the civil lawsuit. You see, as an administrative agency, they would have to conduct a hearing into the facts of the case. Yet, if there is already a record of the facts stemming from a civil lawsuit, the agency's expenses of conducting the hearing are greatly reduced (indeed, they might not have to conduct a hearing at all).

So, there are a number of reasons, completely independant of the competence of the doctor's attorney, to believe that the civil suit wasn't filed until after the settlement of the issue before the OCPS.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
news:9af5gi$gn0$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> Hi, Rick.
> This post is ad hominem.

And your post is both redundant and selective. And, you still haven't answered either my question or those posts where I've addressed directly the issues you've raised.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Patrick Henry" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message news:tcmvv3ir35ri91@corp.supernews.com...

> "Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
> news:9af5gi$gn0$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...
> > This post is ad hominem.

> That's all His Holy Eminence knows how to write.... Notice
> he's ignoring my request to tell us who his boss is.

LOL! Fred. You owe me a new keyboard.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tckncai1ipv214@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> news:9ab9f501epv@news2.newsguy.com...
> > You're suggesting that, merely by the act of incorporation, a > > religious organization forgoes any protection that might be > > accorded to it by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution
> > [...]

> > I know of no court case that directly addresses this issue. One > > that comes close, however, is Combs v. Methodist Church [...]

> > Combs, a female Methodis Minister, sued the Methodist Church > > for sexual discrimination

> Very interesting proposition and an extremely interesting case which cites > certain relevant principles that Rickster doesn't point out because they > don't suit his POV.

Actually, I was only attempting to address the rather narrow question of whether or not the First Amendment becomes subservient to corporate law when a religion incorporates itself as a non-profit organization. I'll address the broader issue of the manner in which the establishment clause would apply to this case in a moment. First:

- > The Constitution does provide for separation; the
  - > general rule that State shall not interfere with Church. There are
  - > exceptions however. In MORMON CHURCH v. UNITED STATES, 136 U.S. 1 (1890)
- the
- > state dissolved the corporation under which the Mormon Church operated and
  - > seized its property [...]

Interesting that Mr. Ryder would cite a case that fails to address any specific issue related to either the establishment of religion or the free exercise thereof. One can search the entire decision for the words "Amendment", "establishment" or "religion" and you won't find a single instance of them in reference to the First Amendment establishment clause.

Nor can one readily find the case cited in any other case involving First Amendment establishment issues. I guess one might applaud Mr. Ryder for his creative search of U.S. Supreme Court cases, but it would seem that he might want to refrain from making even the hint of a claim that I've been disingenuous.

- > It is when we come to consider the case that Rickster cited that we find
- > rather curious dicta -

Well, it happens to be obiter dicta. Care to share with us what the meaning of the term "obiter dicta" is?

- > "The Supreme Court determined that Oregon's prohibition on all peyote use
- > did not violate the First Amendment:

That said, the NM case doesn't involve any allegations that any specific individual has violated the law. I'm beginning to question whether Mr. Ryder even grasps the fundamental issues involved. The Oregon case involved a conflict between a law prohibiting a specific action and an individual's assertion that the prohibited action was a religious ritual. No such similar claim has been made in the NM case.

- > "Protecting the authority of a church to select its own ministers free of - > government interference does not empower a member of that church, by virtue
- > of his beliefs, to become a law unto himself." not to mention -

Again, this is dicta, and, again, this case doesn't allege any circumstances where an individual member of the Local Spiritual Assembly has become a law unto himself. There is, of course, the quote under which one individual asserted that he was, "the voice of God" in that community, but, even without considering the possible factual circumstances, such a declaration remains a sectarian issue, not one for the courts.

> "In a passage now quoted by Reverend Combs, the Court stated, "When the > exercise of religion [...]"

Except that this quote refers to the exercise clause. Regarding the present case, the central issue is the establishment clause.

> There is in the NM case no interference with the internal management of the > Church, no attempt to have Government, or the law, influence or otherwise > determine matters theological; just an application to have the Court rule > that the religious body in question conduct its affairs in accordance with > generally applicable corporate law AND in accordance with its own rules > which the Court is not being asked to amend in any way.

It's rather curious that Mr. Ryder keeps raising this issue of "generally applicable corporate law", as it's not mentioned in any case that he's cited. Indeed, it's rather difficult to find any case that involves any aspect of what is generally referred to as "corporate law" and also involves either the establishment clause or the exercise clause of the First Amendment.

The courts do get involved in property disputes between churches within a religion, and these form the bulk of the cases that determine the manner in which the Court has applied the establishment clause of the First Amendment.

> There is no burden > in this other than would be borne by citizens in an entirely secular area -

The above statement clearly indicates that Mr. Ryder is arguing along the freedom of exercise clause. As we will see in a moment, however, the key clause is, indeed, the establishment clause.

> "for the men who wrote the Religion Clauses of the First Amendment the > `establishment' of a religion connoted sponsorship, financial support, and > active involvement of the sovereign in religious activity." (cited in > CORPORATION OF PRESIDING BISHOP v. AMOS, 483 U.S. 327 (1987))

One of the cases cited in LDS v. AMOS is LEMON v. KURTZMAN (403 US 602). In the latter case, we find what is generally referred to as the "three-pronged Lemon test" for whether or not a specific piece of legislation is in accord with the establishment clause of the First Amendment. The three elements of the test are that the law must serve a "secular legislative purpose", that it cannot have a "primary effect" that either advances or inhibits religion, and it cannot involve "excessive entanglement" in the affairs of a religion.

While LEMON involved declaring a law unconstitutional, successive Supreme Court decisions have applied that test to other government activities, e.g.

WIDMAR v. VINCENT applied the Lemon test to the policies of a State-run University.

The key prong of the Lemon test in the present case is "excessive entanglement", and here there are cases that predate Lemon yet clearly point to the applicability of this test to the ability of a court to address issues involving a dispute between a member of a religion and that religion's administration.

Perhaps the one that's most controlling here is SERBIAN ORTHODOX DIOCESE v.

MILIVOJEVICH (426 US 696). In that case, the Illinois Supreme Court had set aside the defrocking of a Serbian Orthodox bishop because the Illinois Supreme Court found that the church had failed to follow church rules regarding the procedure by which the bishop was defrocked.

The key in this case was a possible exception that came from Justice Brandeis in GONZALEZ v. ARCHBISHOP (280 US 1):

"In the absence of fraud, collusion, or arbitrariness, the decisions of the proper church tribunals on matters purely ecclesiastical, although affecting civil rights, are accepted in litigation before the secular courts as conclusive, because the parties in interest made them so by contract or otherwise."

In SERBIAN ORTHODOX, the court, while noting that Justice Brandeis' statement above constitutes dicta, stated that they couldn't find an "arbitrariness" exception within the context of the application of that religion's rules and procedures:

'We have concluded that whether or not there is room for "marginal civil court review" under the narrow rubrics of "fraud" or "collusion" when church tribunals act in bad faith for secular purposes, no "arbitrariness" exception - in the sense of an inquiry whether the decisions of the highest ecclesiastical tribunal of a hierarchical church complied with church laws and regulations - is consistent with the constitutional mandate that civil courts are bound to accept the decisions of the highest judicatories of a religious organization of hierarchical polity on matters of discipline, faith, internal organization, or ecclesiastical rule, custom, or law.'

Mr. Ryder might be quick to point out that SERBIAN ORTHODOX declines to rule on whether or not "fraud" constitutes an exception that might allow "marginal civil court review" of a dispute between a member of a religion and that religion's administration, it would seem doubtful that one can construct a claim of "fraud" that's based solely on the organization's failure to adhere to their own by-laws, rules and procedures any more than one could invoke the rubrik of "arbitrariness" by an examination of the organization's failure to adhere to their own by-laws, rules and procedures.

The controlling concept, then, would seem to be the extent to which a court would have to get embroiled in the internal rules of the organization in order to resolve an issue, and this strikes me as being very square with the "excessive involvement" prong of the Lemon test.

At this point, I will note that I have only applied this to the allegation regarding applause at an annual meeting. However, since almost all of this case involves a dispute between a member of the Baha'i Faith and the Local Spiritual Assembly regarding the management of the affairs of the community, there does seem to be room for tossing out nearly all of the complaint as requiring "excessive involvement" of the court in matters that are strictly internal to the Baha'i Faith.

> > The complaint doesn't allege that any law has been violated. Were we > > talking about violations of law, then this would be a criminal case not a > > civil case.

> There can be a violation of civil as well as criminal law.

At this point, I really have no idea what Mr. Ryder means by his use of the term "civil law". If he means to use it in the same way that Shoghi Effendi used the term "civil law" then there's no distinction between "civil law" and "criminal law" in this context. As Shoghi Effendi used the term "civil" he was using it to distinguish between the laws of a country and the laws of the Baha'i Faith (i.e. "civil" vs. "ecclesiastical" law).

However, if Mr. Ryder is referring to the general rubrik of _common_ law that covers _civil_ lawsuits, then to speak of a "violation of civil law" is meaningless. In general, common law involves some kind of breach of duty for which one might be liable to recompense someone who was harmed by that breach of duty, but no one ever speaks of such a breach of duty as a "violation of civil law".

> The Complaint clearly alleges breaches of corporation law as in: -

Again, we have this ill-defined notion of "corporation law". I suppose one can hide one's ignorance behind a veil of ambiguity, but that really doesn't help the discussion.

> 15. Plaintiffs' reasonable expectations that they would be able to > participate in the management and activities of their corporation, as > minority shareholders, have been thwarted since at least 1995.

> 52. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly failed to > act and continue to fail to act in a manner they reasonably believe to be > in the best interests of the corporation and its members, which failure > constitutes fraud.

Any manner of resolving either of these claims would entail the courts in a process of attempting to ascertain what, under Baha'i Law and principle, constitutes someone's "reasonable expectation that they would be able to participate" and what would be actions that one might "reasonably believe to be in the best interests" of the Baha'i Faith. I don't see how either of these could possibly pass the "excessive entanglement" prong of the Lemon test.

> > > > 17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained > > > > in an inaccurate and inequitable manner.

> > > > Not justiciable on the grounds
> > > > that plaintiff has no standing on the issue.

> As a member of a Corporation she has an interest!!!!

Repetition with _five_ exclamation points. I'm impressed. Try citing case law, for a change, and please, this time, find a case in which the Court actually addressed the issues we're discussing.

> <SNIP>
> > You might want to try to grasp the implications of what the complaint > > _doesn't_ say.

> Argumentative irrelevant speculation!

"But yer honer! He needed killin!"

Don't get too attached to that smell of napalm. Your bloodthirst is getting in the way of your ability to think clearly.

> > There is a financial fiduciary relationship between the officers of a > > corporation and the shareholders of that corporation, but that's not the > > relationship here. As you have so deftly noted, we're talking about > > _members_, not _shareholders_. Yet, the claim goes through this mental > > gymnastics, quoted above, of equating "member" with "shareholder".

> Go learn the basics about "members" of a Corporation and "shareholders" -
in > the UK the terms are synonomous. In the US I expect "shareholders" to > belong to a for-profit corporation and "members" to a non -profit one.

With the precisely significant difference being the fact that shareholders have a monetary stake in the corporation, and can, therefore, clearly demonstrate specific damages as the result of mismanagement. In a non-profit, particularly religious, organization, the prospect of damages don't go outside the realm of "emotional" damages, and it's really difficult to find a real or proximate cause. What, is she damaged because it pissed her off? I rather doubt any court would find that to constitute legitimate "emotional" damages.

[Re the extent, or lack, of any controversy on Talisman:]

> > Probably because no one there has enough knowledge to discuss the legal > > issues intelligently.

> There's at least one lawyer there

Who, quite obviously, doesn't have anyone with whom he is able to discuss these issues intelligently or otherwise.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcm77ogjfki71d@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> My word but you are a clod hopper of the first degree.

Why, thank you. Maybe now, Fred will put me at the top of his list.

> You've been suckered

> into a long, boring irrelevant discussion of legal issues surrounding the NM > case to demonstrate, yet again, your predisposition towards maintaining the > status quo of the AO rather than addressing disputations or differences that > arise, within a Bahai context.

This is almost as good as Mr. Hazini's attempt to resurrect his claim about the attorney's track record. The only thing, about me at least, that's been demonstrated by this discussion is that I have an interest in legal issues, particularly issues involving U.S. Constitutional Law. It's an interest that I've had for more almost two decades, and I can pretty well document that fact if you'd like.

> You 've persisted in this despite getting

> clear pointers that the legal situation from the POV of Bahais is of little > real concern.

I see. Because other Baha'is don't seem interested in the legal issues involved, I'm supposed to not pursue my own interest in those issues. Oh, well.

> Quite frankly I have more interest in UK law than US - it's

> the jurisdiction under which I live.

Well, so don't discuss the legal issues. I see no reason, however, for you to disparage (rubbish?) me for no reason other than the fact that I've discussed some issues that interest me.

> You haven't grasped a prime point, which Susan has, that essentially, IMO,

> this case will proceed, if at all, under the legislative rules surrounding > corporations as legal entities and the way in which they conduct their > affairs. The ecclesiastical aspects of the BF don't enter in to it - no > matters of faith are involved.

If I haven't "grasped" this point, it's because no one has offered a counter argument based on the relevant case law as decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

> You have also missed the broader long term picture.

No, sport. I haven't missed the broader, long-term picture. I just haven't discussed it with you. The fact that I haven't seems to bother you, but I don't quite understand why.

And, yes, I'm well aware that Fred's web site gets quite a few hits. That's why I will, from time to time, point out Fred's propensity for selecting only part of the facts in his discussion (indeed, even from the sources available on his own web site).

- > To smugly and blithely claim that no part
- > of the AO is amenable to law, which is essentially what you are saying,

No. That's not even a hint of what I've claimed. I've only argued that the complaint, in the present case, fails to state a claim for which relief can be granted. I've argued that point according to U.S. Supreme Court case law. What you state above is pure fiction, though I think it's a fiction you've constructed for the sake of having something to roast. It's that bloodthirst of yours getting in the way, again.

- > proffers no comfort to the niche market in which you hope(?) to gain new
- > adherents.

Sorry, but I have no interest in turning my religion into the next Amway. I'm perfectly willing to let people go their own way, as was Baha'u'llah: "Whosoever desireth, let him turn aside from this counsel and whosoever desireth let him choose the path to his Lord."

What I'm not all too amenable to is the notion that my religion should modify itself, despite what's said in clear, and authoritative texts, in order to be more palatable to the so-called "niche market". That kind of compromise is pure, unmitigated hypocrisy.

Nor, for that matter, would it be particularly fruitful to sit around getting all worked up about what might happen as a result of this case. Your advice regarding "damage limitation" wreaks of cowardice and disingenuity, and, frankly, I have little doubt that you would criticize me for precisely that if I were to engage in any kind of "damage control" discussion now.

- > Now I am aware of the "martyrdom" syndrome and the old adherence to
- > principles which you have cited. Is there anything stated in the Complaint,
- > which if proven, and were it to be rectified that is contrary to Bahai
- > principles?

I don't think the basic question is whether or not they are "rectified". The basic issue is how one goes about attempting to "rectify" problems of community functioning. There are guidelines on this. Is there some reason we should toss those guidelines out in favor of a judge presiding in a New Mexico district court?

- > Those are the real issues not your supercilious rambling about US law - on
- > which you have, and should have, more knowledge than me. Knowledge however
- > has obscured wisdom.

No, Dermot, the real issue is the maturation of Baha'i institutions. It's a process, and that's probably the only intelligent way to view this lawsuit.

Have I not stated, outright, that Spiritual Assemblies mess up, and, sometimes, mess up big? The facts I could recount for you, were I inclined to, would make your head spin. You keep suggesting that I'm operating under some kind of delusion that everything is copacetic.

> The best general on the Allied side in WW2 was Adolf Hitler. The best > advocate for the liberals is yourself, something you haven't yet realised.

Perhaps, but as Michael points out, this is ad-hominem. Most people are bright enough to figure out the implications of an ad-hominem argument when they see one.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

Mr. Shout,

Just want to thank you too....

You've helped me out so much over the years....

I know I can always count on you.

**--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcm77ogjfk71d@xo.supernews.co.uk...

**>

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9aee3b01quv@news2.newsguy.com...

**>

> My word but you are a clod hopper of the first degree. You've been suckered

> into a long, boring irrelevant discussion of legal issues surrounding the NM

> case to demonstrate, yet again, your predisposition towards maintaining
the > status quo of the AO rather than addressing disputations or differences

that

> arise, within a Bahai context. You 've persisted in this despite getting > clear pointers that the legal situation from the POV of Bahais is of little

> real concern. Quite frankly I have more interest in UK law than US - it's > the jurisdiction under which I live.

**>

> You haven't grasped a prime point, which Susan has, that essentially, IMO,

> this case will proceed, if at all, under the legislative rules surrounding > corporations as legal entities and the way in which they conduct their > affairs. The ecclesiastical aspects of the BF don't enter in to it - no

> matters of faith are involved.

>
> But in any case it's irrelevant. The Court will determine whether or not it > has jurisdiction and the right to intervene therefore. No amount of > rambling by you will alter that - I would suggest that you take your > thoughts on the subject to your bosses at Wilmette and leave the lawyers
to > hassle over it. (My thoughts on the subject are even more irrelevant as I > live outside the jurisdiction of your Courts).
>
> You have also missed the broader long term picture. The Complaint is > already up on Fred's site and I would think that he will assiduously post > any other pertinent information that comes into the public domain. If it > gets to trial you can rest assured that every witness statement and other > evidence will be posted.
>
> You have only to look at the Search engines to realise that Fred gets a lot > of hits - in and of itself, that does your AO a lot of damage in terms of > bad press, as Peter would put it. Now he is very concerned about that and > rightly so. A religion that is supposed to be in an active missionary phase > should be concerned about bad publicity. For the average enquirer the > picture the BIGS give him of a united body, with "perfect" means of amicably > settling disputes, is contradicted by what Fred has posted and, mein Gott, > there's a lot of it. NM simply adds to that picture as does your recent > series of diatribes on the issue. To smugly and blithely claim that no part > of the AO is amenable to law, which is essentially what you are saying, > proffers no comfort to the niche market in which you hope(?) to gain new > adherents. (Your niche market, BTW, is thinking liberally minded people who > reject current authoritarian sects/religions).
>
> New people (including BIGS) are coming on the Internet every day. I know
of > 2 BIGS here who have come on within the last few months who are frankly > appalled at what they have found (and others who have just started to > look) - who feel as a consequence that they have been lied to by those who > mentored them into a liberal Faith system where freedom of speech and > thought and investigation of issues pertaining to Truth were paramount.
If
> they leave, then the local community becomes depleted and consequential > damage flows - they are unlikely to recommend adherence to this sect, just > as I warn persons against even contemplating entry. (FYI I have recommended > the Bahai Teachings to many with the caveat that they avoid contact with or > entry into the AF itself and I have a 100% record there). The local > community is shrinking and due more to its own than my efforts.
>
> Win or lose if the NM case goes to trial, it will inflict further damage
on > the carefully crafted image the AO likes to present. Dissidence has a habit

> of spreading because the authorities spawn it by refusal to deal with the > issues and excommunication of the dissident. That's how Protestantism > divided Christianity. That's how and why the AF has been plagued with > schisms since its inception - White, Sohrab, Remey etc. Its preferred > method of dealing is to excommunicate the dissidents and proclaim that unity > has been maintained, because these people are NOT Bahais. The ultimate > contradiction of that is that little actually divides dissident from > mainstream - a lesson that Christianity has learned and is endeavouring to > apply.

>
> What Ms Buchhorn has demonstrated is that a Bahai can file a Complaint in > Court and that example could be catching in other dysfunctional communities.

> This could be the start of a nightmarish flood of similar cases. It has
the > potential for extreme longer term damage than you see - especially if the > response is only a "finger in the dyke" strategy.

>
> The obvious and best strategy for the AO is damage limitation - better to > get this thing settled before it goes to Court and more damaging revelations > flow - even better would be to review its procedures and initiate all > necessary amendments to ensure this doesn't happen again. I think indeed > that the Plaintiff can now sit back and await overtures from the AO - > assuming that it has the intelligence to realise this, a rather unsafe > assumption based on prior experience.

>
> Now I am aware of the "martyrdom" syndrome and the old adherence to > principles which you have cited. Is there anything stated in the Complaint,

> which if proven, and were it to be rectified that is contrary to Bahai > principles? Is any member of the community entitled to proclaim himself as > the Voice of God? Ought not elections to be conducted in a proper fashion?

> Are individuals not to be permitted to undertake teaching initiatives?
> Should there not be proper accountability in and amongst the members in > relation to the financial management? Should restrictive conditions be > placed on a member seeing the books of account? Ought not > complaints/appeals to the NSA be dealt with in a proper, courteous, > efficient and expeditious manner and not left to gather dust for months on > end?

>
> Those are the real issues not your supercilious rambling about US law - on > which you have, and should have, more knowledge than me. Knowledge however > has obscured wisdom.

>
> NM is but a battle in a long war for the heart and soul of the BF. You > might win the battle (although I doubt it) but you've already lost the war!

> In terms of that war whether NM is won or lost doesn't matter! The fallout

- > reinforces the Liberal wing for the longer struggle ahead because it
- > reinforces the broad Liberal position and further compromises marketability
- > of the AF in the niche in which lie the best prospects - the middle class
- > liberal.
- >
- > The best general on the Allied side in WW2 was Adolf Hitler. The best
- > advocate for the liberals is yourself, something you haven't yet realised.
- > Every time you miss, deliberately obfuscate, avoid or otherwise ignore the
- > central issue by concentration on maintaining the current AO incumbents and
- > their methods of remaining where they are, you strike a chord of
- > disaffection into enquirers or unindoctrinated new members; you alienate and
- > encourage withdrawals or lapses. Most people want a Faith they can be
- > comfortable with - they are not going to be comfortable with a Faith that
- > defends the indefensible, maintains or ignores corruption in its midst and
- > demands that they spy and report on their neighbour's life in the cause of a
- > false respectability.
- >
- > Keep on truckin'! You're doing a grand job!
- >
- > <ALL EXTRANEIOUS MATTER SNIPPED>
- >
- >
- >
- >
- >
- >
- >
- >
- >

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20010401000536.27129.00003216@ng-ch1.aol.com...

- > >No doubt, when it comes to a hearing,
- > >evidence will be adduced to show that "electioneering" is forbidden
- >
- >
- > Proving it is forbidden is one thing. Proving electioneering constitutes
- > "rigging" is still another. Proving that applause constitutes electioneering is
- > another thing again.

Within the AO electioneering is forbidden - there are ample quotes on that as you well know. If it is forbidden yet happens that constitutes a form of election rigging as anybody possessed of common sense would know. Any form of pressure, no matter how subtle, in an electoral system which forbids it, is an attempt to garner votes for a particular candidate or candidates and that constitutes an attempt to rig the election.

If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer the election. We shall await the outcome in particular shall we await a hearing to see whether any other evidence is brought to bear.

- > >no lawyer goes to Court
- > >without having a better than fifty per cent chance of winning.
- >
- > First off, he isn't going to court yet. He has only filed a complaint.
- Second,
- > any lawyer will go to court if you pay him enough. I expect his one isn't
- > working on contingency.

I have yet to meet a lawyer who advocated my going to Court without having a case which had a reasonable prospect of success. Most of the ones I know have a sense of professionalism and decency not to involve a client in costs save that he has a worthy case.

- > As far as the NSA goes, everyone who has ever dealt with them knows they are
- > always as slow as molasses in January.

Well maybe they ought to get their act together and warm the molasses! I wonder how long they have been sitting on this case. Of course in any half decent organisation, those who are as slow as molasses would have their asses warmed by being booted off for gross inefficiency.

- >
- > >Your comments to date have been
- > >naught but ill-informed speculation -
- >
- > And yours are better informed?

Actually yes, but I won't bore you with the details!

- >
- > >Are your puppet masters so
- > >worried that they have got to try to proffer some defence on this forum
- >
- > If I had puppet masters wouldn't they be feeding me the inside scoop?

Have they got one? Have they warmed the molasses yet - at least enough to generate some movement?

- > >Are you endeavouring to set up the faithful to view
- > >this as another bit of martyrdom inflicted by yet more of these internal
- > >enemies of the Faith?
- >
- > Have I talked about martyrdom or internal enemies of the Faith? I think this is
- > what we call projection of your own dualism.

My "dualism" - aw! shucks! now why would attribute schizophrenia to all of my other faults? (Still you never want for a friend with schizophrenia!) Actually it was just my appreciation of what I thought your aims and objectives were - damage limitation and stuff like that. To have left the warm, loving atmosphere of Bridges to again come to this hellhole must have been motivated by some perceived powerful need ... or orders!

- >
- > >note that Nima who has lived in this community has been unable
- > >to
- > >offer any information contrary
- >
- > Do you think he would if he had information to the contrary? You guys don't
- > exactly have much of a reputation for fairly presenting all sides.

I think that he has posted to the effect that this behaviour was similar to that he had seen and experienced in this community and that it had been a factor in his sensible decision to haul ass out of there. So he has no information to the contrary. I realise you don't regard that as "fair" ... but that's the way the wafer crumbles!

- > "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
- > left to start again . . "

" Of that there is no possible doubt, no possible doubt, no possible doubt whatever!"

W.S.Gilbert - "The Gondoliers"

Pip, Pip!

- > Don McLean's American Pie
- > <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
- >

- >
- >Within the AO electioneering is forbidden - there are ample quotes on that
- >as you well know.

Dear Dermod,

General quotes from the Writings won't help. The courts would have to find this stipulation written in the incorporation papers. The civil courts are not going to take it upon themselves to enforce Baha'i principles.

- >If it is forbidden yet happens that constitutes a form of
- >election rigging

I don't think the courts would be willing to label behaviour which is perfectly acceptable within the American political system as "rigging." If our religion forbids it, it is up to our religion to enforce it, not the courts. .

- >Any form
- >of pressure, no matter how subtle, in an electoral system which forbids it,
- >is an attempt to garner votes for a particular candidate or candidates and
- >that constitutes an attempt to rig the election.

Sorry, you are trying to apply Baha'i standards here. The courts are going to only be willing to apply secular standards. It is not their business to tell us how to practice our religion.

>If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to >secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer the >election.

Your "book" is irrelevant here. Once things are taken to secular courts, Baha'i principles are irrelevant as well. The only thing that matters is whether an activity is proper under US and state laws. Now if one could *prove* that the purpose of said applause was to secure votes on someone's behalf one *might* be able to argue within a Baha'i context (i.e. before Baha'i administrative bodies) that the election in question was "engineered." But in the context of US law even such engineering would not constitute "rigging."

**>
>I have yet to meet a lawyer who advocated my going to Court without having a >case which had a reasonable prospect of success.

We don't know this lawyer advocated her going to court. All we knew is that he agreed to draw up a complaint on her behalf.

> Most of the ones I know
>have a sense of professionalism

I don't see any evidence of professionalism in the wording of that complaint.

>My "dualism" - aw! shucks! now why would attribute schizophrenia to all of >my other faults? (Still you never want for a friend with schizophrenia!)

I know. I've got Nima around. :-)

>To have left the >warm, loving atmosphere of Bridges to again come to this hellhole must have >been motivated by some perceived powerful need ... or orders!

Actually, one of the folks on your side brought this to my attention and asked me what I knew about it. So when it got posted here I decided to check out the thread.

>I think that he has posted to the effect that this behaviour was similar to
>that he had seen and experienced in this community

Except neither he nor the complaint is very clear as to exactly what that behaviour is.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/Dermod>,

Let's presume for arguments sake that our articles of incorporation are similar to the UK. I'm not sure, but I'm too lazy to go check.

>"in order to preserve the spiritual >character and purpose of Bahai elections, the practice of nominations or any >other electoral method detrimental to a silent and prayerful election shall >not prevail

Applauding someone at an annual meeting constitutes neither a nomination or any other type of "electoral method."

>In Anglo Saxon law the Courts will also >force a body corporate to apply its own rules properly where the Court is >satisfied that it has not done so.

A US court could conceivably enforce whatever is in the articles of incorporation, but not the general principles of the religion itself. As for conducting its affairs "in accordance with the instructions and enactments of the Universal House of Justice" they would likely only accept a complaint from the House of Justice itself on that score.

>
>If the rules of the corporation provide that elections are to be carried out >in accordance with Bahai principles the Court will enforce those rules and >those principles.

Only if they are spelled out in the incorporation papers themselves. The courts are not going to take it upon themselves to determine for us the meaning of our religious principles.

>
>I would imagine that it lies within the professional duties of a lawyer to >advise a client as to whether or not, on the basis of the facts disclosed, >he/she has an actionable cause and one that merits being taken to Court or >not.

No doubt. That doesn't mean he can't take her money if she insists on filing anyhow. >In that >he has filed the papers in Court he is the attorney of record and it would >therefore not be unsafe to assume that he will advance any pleadings before >the Court.
>

The vast majority of complaints never make it to court and were never intended to.

>Is Nima schizophrenic too?

He's a dualist. You are the one who associated that with schizophrenia.

**>

>But you didn't have to get involved - did you? You could have had a wee >peek

I never take wee peeks, Dermot, you must have figured that out by now.

who was it

>brought it to your attention?

Won't get that out of me. ;-}

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Greetings, Susan.

Thanks for this.

So, it was applause at the election. Now, was it applause after the election or before the election? And, how extensive was it, if before, and was it set up before hand to draw attention to the candidate, etc.

M.

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

**>

> Applauding someone at an annual meeting constitutes neither a nomination or any > other type of "electorial method."

**>

**--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Greetings, Susan.

You wrote:

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

> General quotes from the Writings won't help. The courts would have to find > this stipulation written in the incorporation papers. The civil courts are not > going to take it upon themselves to enforce Baha'i principles.

Right on. You've underlined the issue. The issue is the following of Baha'i principle. It is not anything to do with personality or even the calling upon civil courts in frustration when those most responsible for following Baha'i principle are not doing so. Baha'i administrators have issued the invalid argument that they may ignore Baha'i principle because of irrelevant personality. They may do anything at all, because they are Baha'i administrators. No, they are to administrate Baha'i principle, not toss it aside.

Baha'i principle is equality of women and men, the independent investigation of truth, the harmony of reason and faith, the freedom of thought and expression, universality, broad mindedness, etc.

To Baha'i Administrators Doing Their Job,
M.

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Greetings, Dermot.

You wrote:

- > If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to
- > secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer the
- > election. We shall await the outcome in particular shall we await a hearing
- > to see whether any other evidence is brought to bear.

This is a valid argument. The context becomes important, for example, did this happen at the electoral meeting, or was the candidate also giving an election speech, did the candidate or a campaign manager arrange for more than usual applause in order to promote the candidate? The point is that applause MAY be electioneering.

Thrive,
M.

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

Greetings, Susan.

You claim:

Susan Maneck (smaneck@aol.com) writes:

- > As far as the NSA goes, everyone who has ever dealt with them knows
- > they are always as slow as molasses in January.

They are obviously not functioning well, then.

To the Future,
M

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

- >Baha'i administrators have
- >issued the invalid argument that they may ignore Baha'i principle because
- >of irrelevant personality.

Where'd they issue that?

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . ."

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20010402221242.27249.00003366@ng-ch1.aol.com...

**>
> Let's presume for arguments sake that our articles of incorporation are > similiar to the UK. I'm not sure, but I'm too lazy to go check.

They should be - the US Declaration of Trust was the one imposed throughout the world except for minor amendments as required by local circumstances.

**>
> >"in order to preserve the spiritual > >charecter and purpose of Bahai elections, the practice of nominations or any > >other electoral method detrimental to a silent and prayerful election shall > >not prevail
>
> Applauding someone at an annual meeting constitutes neither a nomination or any > other type of "electorial method."

It may depending on the context. I grant you that electoral rigging is hard to prove - even here, where the dead vote. Much will depend on the weight of evidence and, I venture, whether witnesses were to testify that they felt obligated or persuaded to vote for the person for whom the applause was called (assuming it preceded the election).

**>
> >In Anglo Saxon law the Courts will also > >force a body corporate to apply its own rules properly where the Court is > >satisfied that it has not done so.
>
> A US court could conceivably enforce whatever is in the articles of > incorporation, but not the general principles of the religion itself. As for > conducting its affairs " in accordance with the instructions and enactments of > the Universal House of > Justice" they would likely only accept a complaint from the House of Justice
> itself on that score.

I agree. the purpose of the Court in the US (from what I have seen) is to neither favour nor disfavour any religion but to ensure equal and neutral treatment. As the Mormon case I cited in another post indicates the law will enforce on any religion law which is deemed to be in the overal public good. It will not create new rules for the religious body - it will simply enforce those that are there.

Vis a vis "instructions and enactments of the Universal House of Justice" - if that proviso is in the rules, there exist relevant instructions which have been avoided and there is a complaint from a member of the corporation (as in this case) I think the Court will enforce them. It routinely enforces statute law without complaint being made to it by the legislature.

**>

**> >

> >If the rules of the corporation provide that elections are to be carried out > >in accordance with Bahai principles the Court will enforce those rules and > >those principles.

**>

> Only if they are spelled out in the incorporation papers themselves. The courts > are not going to take it upon themselves to determine for us the meaning of our > religious principles.

Certainly they will enforce the rules in the incorporation documents. Take for example the electoral business. If the rules are stated similar to those of the UK the Court might look further into Bahai Writings to determine and/or better understand some points. It will tread a fine line between interpretation of those rules and adding to them - IMO it is perfectly entitled to interpret them in a Bahai context but NOT to add to them.

**> >

> >I would imagine that it lies within the professional duties of a lawyer to > >advise a client as to whether or not, on the basis of the facts disclosed,

> >he/she has an actionable cause and one that merits being taken to Court or > >not.

**>

> No doubt. That doesn't mean he can't take her money if she insists on filing > anyhow.

Certainly but in so doing she would have no chance of a negligence suit against the attorney in the event of losing the case.

>>In that > >he has filed the papers in Court he is the attorney of record and it would

> >therefore not be unsafe to assume that he will advance any pleadings before

> >the Court.

**> >

**>

> The vast majority of complaints never make it to court and were never intended

> to.

In my experience with the Courts, which has been fairly extensive, I never took a case to Court that I wasn't prepared to take to hearing. OTOH I was always prepared to settle before going in front of the judge providing the sums were right. I never lost one of those cases and persisted in shoving one right to the Court door (much to the annoyance of the Barrister who wanted to slope away for an early liquid lunch) before getting the settlement I wanted.

>
> >Is Nima scizophrenic too?
>
> He's a dualist. You are the one who associated that with schizophrenia.

Gotta get the laughs somewhere!

>
> >
> >But you didn't have to get involved - did you? You could have had a wee > >peek
>
> I never take wee peeks, Dermot, you must have figured that out by now.

Mais oui - certainement! (That's as far as it goes!)

>
> who was it > >brought it to your attention?
>
> Won't get that out of me. ;-}

Not even under torture!

> He's a dualist. .

Actually, people who articulate things in terms of "inside the pale and outside the pale" are even bigger dualists.

cheers,
Nima

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message news:20010401170758.28041.00003366@ng-mi1.aol.com...

> >
> >Within the AO electioneering is forbidden - there are ample quotes on
that > >as you well know.

>
> General quotes from the Writings won't help. The courts would have to find > this stipulation written in the incorporation papers. The civil courts are not > going to take it upon themselves to enforce Baha'i principles.

Are you telling us that the incorporation papers do not stipulate that a Bahai corporation is run in accord with the principles and rules of the AF as well as the requirements of civil law?

The Articles of Association of the UK NSA provide that it shall "adopt for the conduct of the affairs entrusted to it ... rules of procedure ... in accordance with the instructions and enactments of the Universal House of Justice." They further provide that "in order to preserve the spiritual character and purpose of Bahai elections, the practice of nominations or any other electoral method detrimental to a silent and prayerful election shall not prevail, so that an elector may vote for none but those whom prayer and reflection have inspired him or her to uphold." has the US so departed from the directives laid down by the Guardian as to remove these provisions from the incorporation papers? Does the UHJ know? I think they should be told!

**>
> >If it is forbidden yet happens that constitutes a form of > >election rigging
>
> I don't think the courts would be willing to label behaviour which is > perfectly acceptable within the American political system as "rigging." If our > religion forbids it, it is up to our religion to enforce it, not the courts. .

See above and below!

**>
> >Any form > >of pressure, no matter how subtle, in an electoral system which forbids
it, > >is an attempt to garner votes for a particular candidate or candidates
and > >that constitutes an attempt to rig the election.
>
> Sorry, you are trying to apply Baha'i standards here. The courts are going
to > only be willing to apply secular standards. It is not their business to tell us > how to practice our religion.

God forbid that I would ever apply Bahai standards - I aspire to higher. The Courts will enforce adherence to secular law where any person or body corporate at law transgresses them. In Anglo Saxon law the Courts will also force a body corporate to apply its own rules properly where the Court is satisfied that it has not done so.

**>
> >If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to > >secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer
the > >election.
>
> Your "book" is irrelevant here. Once things are taken to secular courts, Baha'i > principles are irrelevant as well. The only thing that matters is whether an > activity is proper under US and state laws. Now if one could *prove* that the > purpose of said applause was to secure votes on someone's behalf one *might* be > able to argue within a Baha'i context (i.e. before Baha'i administrative > bodies) that the election in question was "engineered." But in the context of > US law even such engineering would not constitute "rigging."

If the rules of the corporation provide that elections are to be carried out in accordance with Bahai principles the Court will enforce those rules and those principles.

> >

> >I have yet to meet a lawyer who advocated my going to Court without having a > >case which had a reasonable prospect of success.

>

> We don't know this lawyer advocated her going to court. All we knew is that he > agreed to draw up a complaint on her behalf.

I would imagine that it lies within the professional duties of a lawyer to advise a client as to whether or not, on the basis of the facts disclosed, he/she has an actionable cause and one that merits being taken to Court or not. In a litigious society I would have thought that every lawyer would have been more than aware of this and would have acted accordingly. In that he has filed the papers in Court he is the attorney of record and it would therefore not be unsafe to assume that he will advance any pleadings before the Court.

>

> > Most of the ones I know

> >have a sense of professionalism

>

> I don't see any evidence of professionalism in the wording of that complaint.

Rick and you together - what an inspiring vision before I take myself to the pit for a folding of the arms in slumber.

>

> >My "dualism" - aw! shucks! now why would attribute schizophrenia to all of > >my other faults? (Still you never want for a friend with schizophrenia!)

>

> I know. I've got Nima around. :-)

Is Nima schizophrenic too? That makes six of us, or should that be twelve or twenty four or forty eight ... !

>

> >To have left the > >warm, loving atmosphere of Bridges to again come to this hellhole must have > >been motivated by some perceived powerful need ... or orders!

>

> Actually, one of the folks on your side brought this to my attention and asked > me what I knew about it. So when it got posted here I decided to check out the > thread.

But you didn't have to get involved - did you? You could have had a wee peek and then gone away again! Now why did you get involved and who was it brought it to your attention?

>

> >I think that he has posted to the effect that this behaviour was similar to

> >that he had seen and experienced in this community

>

> Except niether he nor the complaint is very clear as to exactly what that > behaviour is.

Well now - supposing he was going to be called as a witness, do you think he would be very specific as to what he would say here?

It's been a long but most interesting day. As my friend of yore so appropriately put it - "And so to bed!"

Dermod Ryder wrote:

> If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to > secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer the > election. We shall await the outcome in particular shall we await a hearing > to see whether any other evidence is brought to bear.

This is regularly done at regional and national bahai elections and should really be the focus of another lawsuit against the NSA for participating in it.

--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://members.nbci.com/FG/index.htm>

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tce419kqhmf2f9@xo.supernews.co.uk...

>

> "Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message

> news:20010401000536.27129.00003216@ng-ch1.aol.com...

> > >No doubt, when it comes to a hearing,

> > >evidence will be adduced to show that "electioneering" is forbidden

> >

> >
 > > Proving it is forbidden is one thing. Proving electioneering constitutes > > "rigging" is still another. Proving that applause constitutes > electioneering is > > another thing again.
 >
 > Within the AO electioneering is forbidden - there are ample quotes on that > as you well know. If it is forbidden yet happens that constitutes a form
 of > election rigging as anybody possessed of common sense would know. Any form > of pressure, no matter how subtle, in an electoral system which forbids
 it,
 > is an attempt to garner votes for a particular candidate or candidates and > that constitutes an attempt to rig the election.
 >
 > If applause is reckoned to bring attention to a candidate in an effort to > secure votes for him, in my book that constitutes an attempt to engineer
 the > election. We shall await the outcome in particular shall we await a hearing
 > to see whether any other evidence is brought to bear.
 >
 > > >no lawyer goes to Court
 > > >without having a better than fifty per cent chance of winning.
 > >
 > > First off, he isn't going to court yet. He has only filed a complaint.
 > Second,
 > > any lawyer will go to court if you pay him enough. I expect his one isn't > > working on contingency.
 >
 > I have yet to meet a lawyer who advocated my going to Court without having a > case which had a reasonable prospect of success. Most of the ones I know > have a sense of professionalism and decency not to involve a client in costs
 > save that he has a worthy case.
 >
 > > As far as the NSA goes, everyone who has ever dealt with them knows they > are > > always as slow as molasses in January.
 >
 > Well maybe they ought to get their act together and warm the molasses! I > wonder how long they have been sitting on this case. Of course in any half > decent organisation, those who are as slow as molasses would have their > asses warmed by being booted off for gross inefficiency.
 >
 > >
 > > >Your comments to date have been > > >naught but ill-informed speculation -
 > >

> > And yours are better informed?
>
> Actually yes, but I won't bore you with the details!
> >
> > >Are your puppet masters so > > >worried that they have got to try to proffer some defence on this forum
> >
> > If I had puppet masters wouldn't they be feeding me the inside scoop?
>
> Have they got one? Have they warmed the molasses yet - at least enough to > generate some movement?
>
> > >Are you endeavouring to set up the faithful to view > > >this as another bit of martyrdom inflicted by yet more of these internal > > >enemies of the Faith?
> >
> > Have I talked about martyrdom or internal enemies of the Faith? I think > this is > > what we call projection of your own dualism.
>
> My "dualism" - aw! shucks! now why would attribute schizophrenia to all of > my other faults? (Still you never want for a friend with schizophrenia!) > Actually it was just my appreciation of what I thought your aims and > objectives were - damage limitation and stuff like that. To have left
the > warm, loving atmosphere of Bridges to again come to this hellhole must have > been motivated by some perceived powerful need ... or orders!
>
> >
> > >note that Nima who has lived in this community has been unable
> > >to > > >offer any information contrary
> >
> > Do you think he would if he had information to the contrary? You guys > don't > > exactly have much of a reputation for fairly presenting all sides.
>
> I think that he has posted to the effect that this behaviour was similar
to > that he had seen and experienced in this community and that it had been a > factor in his sensible decision to haul ass out of there. So he has no > information to the contrary. I realise you don't regard that as "fair"
...
> but that's the way the wafer crumbles!
>
> > "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no > time
> > left to start again . . ."
>
> "Of that there is no possible doubt, no possible doubt, no possible doubt > whatever!"
> W.S.Gilbert - "The Gondoliers"
>

> Pip, Pip!
>
>
> > Don McLean's American Pie
> > <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
> >
>
>

>No doubt, when it comes to a hearing,
>evidence will be adduced to show that "electioneering" is forbidden

Dear Dermot,

Proving it is forbidden is one thing. Proving electioneering constitutes "rigging" is still another. Proving that applause constitutes electioneering is another thing again.

>no lawyer goes to Court
>without having a better than fifty per cent chance of winning.

First off, he isn't going to court yet. He has only filed a complaint. Second, any lawyer will go to court if you pay him enough. I expect his one isn't working on contingency.

As far as the NSA goes, everyone who has ever dealt with them knows they are always as slow as molasses in January.

>Your comments to date have been >naught but ill-informed speculation -

And yours are better informed?

>Are your puppet masters so >worried that they have got to try to proffer some defence on this forum

If I had puppet masters wouldn't they be feeding me the inside scoop?

>Are you endeavouring to set up the faithful to view
>this as another bit of martyrdom inflicted by yet more of these internal >enemies of the Faith?

Have I talked about martyrdom or internal enemies of the Faith? I think this is what we call projection of your own dualism.

>note that Nima who has lived in this community has been unable
>to >offer any information contrary

Do you think he would if he had information to the contrary? You guys don't exactly have much of a reputation for fairly presenting all sides.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
news:9afmhr0ain@news2.newsguy.com...

**>

> "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message
> news:tcm77ogjfk71d@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> > My word but you are a clod hopper of the first degree.

**>

> Why, thank you. Maybe now, Fred will put me at the top of his list.

Yeah ! I think he should! Come on Fred! Give ole Rick the position he deserves right at the top of the looney fundie association. Hold on! Fred just told me that you're already there!

> > You've been suckered

> > into a long, boring irrelevant discussion of legal issues surrounding the

> NM

> > case to demonstrate, yet again, your predisposition towards maintaining
> the > > status quo of the AO rather than addressing disputations or differences

> that

> > arise, within a Bahai context.

**>

> This is almost as good as Mr. Hazini's attempt to resurrect his claim about

> the attorney's track record. The only thing, about me at least, that's been > demonstrated by this discussion is that I have an interest in legal issues,

> particularly issues involving U.S. Constitutional Law. It's an interest > that I've had for more almost two decades, and I can pretty well document > that fact if you'd like.

Not as good as Mr Hazini's attempt - I'll just have to try harder. I think everybody should have an interest even though they're not very good at it.

**>

> > You 've persisted in this despite getting

> > clear pointers that the legal situation from the POV of Bahais is of > little

> > real concern.

**>

> I see. Because other Baha'is don't seem interested in the legal issues > involved, I'm supposed to not pursue my own interest in those issues. Oh, > well.

**>

> > Quite frankly I have more interest in UK law than US - it's

> > the jurisdiction under which I live.

**>

> Well, so don't discuss the legal issues. I see no reason, however, for

you > to disparage (rubbish?) me for no reason other than the fact that I've > discussed some issues that interest me.

>

> > You haven't grasped a prime point, which Susan has, that essentially, IMO,

> > this case will proceed, if at all, under the legislative rules surrounding > > corporations as legal entities and the way in which they conduct their > > affairs. The ecclesiastical aspects of the BF don't enter in to it - no > > matters of faith are involved.

>

> If I haven't "grasped" this point, it's because no one has offered a counter > argument based on the relevant case law as decided by the U.S. Supreme > Court.

The area of Corporation law (like most others) is governed primarily by legislation. Courts only interpret legislation in the light of the circumstances of each case. Legislation, not Court decisions, is the primary and therefore most important source of law.

> > You have also missed the broader long term picture.

>

> No, sport. I haven't missed the broader, long-term picture. I just haven't > discussed it with you. The fact that I haven't seems to bother you, but I > don't quite understand why.

And you never will! That's the ultimate proof!

>

> And, yes, I'm well aware that Fred's web site gets quite a few hits. That's > why I will, from time to time, point out Fred's propensity for selecting > only part of the facts in his discussion (indeed, even from the sources > available on his own web site).

Must have missed that! Any chance of a few examples?

>

> > To smugly and blithely claim that no part > > of the AO is amenable to law, which is essentially what you are saying,

>

> No. That's not even a hint of what I've claimed. I've only argued that the > complaint, in the present case, fails to state a claim for which relief can > be granted. I've argued that point according to U.S. Supreme Court case > law. What you state above is pure fiction, though I think it's a fiction > you've constructed for the sake of having something to roast. It's that > bloodthirst of yours getting in the way, again.

Well far be it from me to disabuse you but if I were you I'd look to the legislation first. Of course we all have our own ways of going about things - only thing I can say is that in the UK when a matter arises concerning the management of a Corporation I always look at the legislation first.

- > > proffers no comfort to the niche market in which you hope(?) to gain new
- > > adherents.
- >
- > Sorry, but I have no interest in turning my religion into the next Amway.
- > I'm perfectly willing to let people go their own way, as was Baha'u'llah:
- > "Whosoever desireth, let him turn aside from this counsel and whosoever
- > desireth let him choose the path to his Lord."

That's a lovely quote - Bahaism isn't the only way to God. There are others and chances are those other ways will remain open. Now why can't you attract those people into your system and keep them? Could the answer be that you lead them into a liberal, tolerant faith only to tell them afterwards that it isn't. Is that why they leave rather than the reasons Peter offers?

- >
- > What I'm not all too amenable to is the notion that my religion should modify
- > itself, despite what's said in clear, and authoritative texts, in order to
- > be more palatable to the so-called "niche market". That kind of compromise
- > is pure, unmitigated hypocrisy.

No need to modify your religion - just the emphasis where it belongs on the love of God and His creation not the deification of an AO which is non-essential if there are other ways to God.

- >
- > Nor, for that matter, would it be particularly fruitful to sit around
- > getting all worked up about what might happen as a result of this case.
- > Your advice regarding "damage limitation" reeks of cowardice and
- > disingenuity, and, frankly, I have little doubt that you would criticize me
- > for precisely that if I were to engage in any kind of "damage control"
- > discussion now.

You're in full damage control mode at the moment - problem is you're digging yourself deeper into a morass of innuendo which anybody can see through.

- >
- > > Now I am aware of the "martyrdom" syndrome and the old adherence to
- > > principles which you have cited. Is there anything stated in the
- > Complaint,
- > > which if proven, and were it to be rectified that is contrary to Bahai
- > > principles?
- >
- > I don't think the basic question is whether or not they are "rectified".
- > The basic issue is how one goes about attempting to "rectify" problems of - > community functioning. There are guidelines on this. Is there some reason
- > we should toss those guidelines out in favor of a judge presiding in a New
- > Mexico district court?

If there are guidelines why were they not followed after the complaint was made to the NSA? Why has it done nothing and thereby allowed this situation to fester. If you see a fire you throw a bucket of water onto it to extinguish it - you don't stand around as in the AO whistling Dixie and hoping it will go out of its own accord. You people are so used to seeing complainants as trouble makers that it never, for one moment, dawns on you that they might care enough about problems to actually go out and do something about getting them rectified whilst the AO stands pleading "embryonic".

>

> > Those are the real issues not your supercilious rambling about US law - on > > which you have, and should have, more knowledge than me. Knowledge > however > > has obscured wisdom.

>

> No, Dermod, the real issue is the maturation of Baha'i institutions. It's a > process, and that's probably the only intelligent way to view this lawsuit.

Well the rest of the world has matured and left the Bahais on the starting line. Maybe it's about time they stopped producing these idiotic excuses and did some work on the maturation process like dealing with complaints when they come in and not leave them hanging around for six months.

>

> Have I not stated, outright, that Spiritual Assemblies mess up, and, > sometimes, mess up big? The facts I could recount for you, were I inclined > to, would make your head spin. You keep suggesting that I'm operating under > some kind of delusion that everything is copacetic.

Stating that assemblies mess up is not good enough - to be able to say that assemblies that mess up are sorted out by administrative action is what is needed.

>

> > The best general on the Allied side in WW2 was Adolf Hitler. The best > > advocate for the liberals is yourself, something you haven't yet realised.

>

> Perhaps, but as Michael points out, this is ad-hominem. Most people are > bright enough to figure out the implications of an ad-hominem argument when > they see one.

No ad hominem - assessment of your contribution to the liberal cause based on the content of your messages and your methodology of innuendo and obfuscation.

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9aee3b01quv@news2.newsguy.com...

My word but you are a clod hopper of the first degree. You've been suckered into a long, boring irrelevant discussion of legal issues surrounding the NM case to demonstrate, yet again, your predisposition towards maintaining the status quo of the AO rather than addressing disputations or differences that arise, within a Bahai context. You 've persisted in this despite getting clear pointers that the legal situation from the POV of Bahais is of little real concern. Quite frankly I have more interest in UK law than US - it's the jurisdiction under which I live.

You haven't grasped a prime point, which Susan has, that essentially, IMO, this case will proceed, if at all, under the legislative rules surrounding corporations as legal entities and the way in which they conduct their affairs. The ecclesiastical aspects of the BF don't enter in to it - no matters of faith are involved.

But in any case it's irrelevant. The Court will determine whether or not it has jurisdiction and the right to intervene therefore. No amount of rambling by you will alter that - I would suggest that you take your thoughts on the subject to your bosses at Wilmette and leave the lawyers to hassle over it. (My thoughts on the subject are even more irrelevant as I live outside the jurisdiction of your Courts).

You have also missed the broader long term picture. The Complaint is already up on Fred's site and I would think that he will assiduously post any other pertinent information that comes into the public domain. If it gets to trial you can rest assured that every witness statement and other evidence will be posted.

You have only to look at the Search engines to realise that Fred gets a lot of hits - in and of itself, that does your AO a lot of damage in terms of bad press, as Peter would put it. Now he is very concerned about that and rightly so. A religion that is supposed to be in an active missionary phase should be concerned about bad publicity. For the average enquirer the picture the BIGS give him of a united body, with "perfect" means of amicably settling disputes, is contradicted by what Fred has posted and, mein Gott, there's a lot of it. NM simply adds to that picture as does your recent series of diatribes on the issue. To smugly and blithely claim that no part of the AO is amenable to law, which is essentially what you are saying, proffers no comfort to the niche market in which you hope(?) to gain new adherents. (Your niche market, BTW, is thinking liberally minded people who reject current authoritarian sects/religions).

New people (including BIGS) are coming on the Internet every day. I know of 2 BIGS here who have come on within the last few months who are frankly appalled at what they have found (and others who have just started to look) - who feel as a consequence that they have been lied to by those who mentored them into a liberal Faith system where freedom of speech and thought and investigation of issues pertaining to Truth were paramount. If they leave, then the local community becomes depleted and consequential damage flows - they are unlikely to recommend adherence to this sect, just as I warn persons against even contemplating entry. (FYI I have recommended the Bahai Teachings to many with the caveat that they avoid contact with or entry into the AF itself and I have a 100% record there). The local community is shrinking and due more to its own than my efforts.

Win or lose if the NM case goes to trial, it will inflict further damage on the carefully crafted image the AO likes to present. Dissidence has a habit of spreading because the authorities spawn it by refusal to deal with the issues and excommunication of the dissident. That's how Protestantism divided Christianity. That's how and why the AF has been plagued with schisms since its inception - White, Sohrab, Remey etc. Its preferred method of dealing is to excommunicate the dissidents and proclaim that unity has been maintained, because these people are NOT Bahais. The ultimate contradiction of that is that little actually divides dissident from mainstream - a lesson that Christianity has learned and is endeavouring to apply.

What Ms Buchhorn has demonstrated is that a Bahai can file a Complaint in Court and that example could be catching in other dysfunctional communities. This could be the start of a nightmarish flood of similar cases. It has the potential for extreme longer term damage than you see - especially if the response is only a "finger in the dyke" strategy.

The obvious and best strategy for the AO is damage limitation - better to get this thing settled before it goes to Court and more damaging revelations flow - even better would be to review its procedures and initiate all necessary amendments to ensure this doesn't happen again. I think indeed that the Plaintiff can now sit back and await overtures from the AO - assuming that it has the intelligence to realise this, a rather unsafe assumption based on prior experience.

Now I am aware of the "martyrdom" syndrome and the old adherence to principles which you have cited. Is there anything stated in the Complaint, which if proven, and were it to be rectified that is contrary to Bahai principles? Is any member of the community entitled to proclaim himself as the Voice of God? Ought not elections to be conducted in a proper fashion? Are individuals not to be permitted to undertake teaching initiatives? Should there not be proper accountability in and amongst the members in relation to the financial management? Should restrictive conditions be placed on a member seeing the books of account? Ought not complaints/appeals to the NSA be dealt with in a proper, courteous, efficient and expeditious manner and not left to gather dust for months on end?

Those are the real issues not your supercilious rambling about US law - on which you have, and should have, more knowledge than me. Knowledge however has obscured wisdom.

NM is but a battle in a long war for the heart and soul of the BF. You might win the battle (although I doubt it) but you've already lost the war! In terms of that war whether NM is won or lost doesn't matter! The fallout reinforces the Liberal wing for the longer struggle ahead because it reinforces the broad Liberal position and further compromises marketability of the AF in the niche in which lie the best prospects - the middle class liberal.

The best general on the Allied side in WW2 was Adolf Hitler. The best advocate for the liberals is yourself, something you haven't yet realised. Every time you miss, deliberately obfuscate, avoid or otherwise ignore the central issue by concentration on maintaining the current AO incumbents and their methods of remaining where they are, you strike a chord of disaffection into enquirers or unindoctrinated new members; you alienate and encourage withdrawals or lapses. Most people want a Faith they can be comfortable with - they are not going to be comfortable with a Faith that defends the indefensible, maintains or ignores corruption in its midst and demands that they spy and report on their neighbour's life in the cause of a false respectability.

Keep on truckin'! You're doing a grand job!

<ALL EXTRANEIOUS MATTER SNIPPED>

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9ab9f501epv@news2.newsguy.com...

> > > Any issue that would hinge upon the rules of > > > the religious organization would, therefore, be non-justiciable > > > matters in a US court of law.
>
> > Anything about the content of the rules of a religious organisation is > > covered by the Constitution. But where that religious organisation > > incorporates itself its behaviour as governed by corporate law comes > > within the jurisdiction of the Court.
>
> You're suggesting that, merely by the act of incorporation, a religious > organization forgoes any protection that might be accorded to it by the > First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution--namely the right to conduct its > affairs (i.e. how the organizations chooses to uphold its own by-laws) as > the organization itself sees fit. That's a novel theory, but I'd certainly > like to see that stated in some court decision before I accept it as > anything other than your own creation.
>
> I know of no court case that directly addresses this issue. One that comes > close, however, is Combs v. Methodist Church (USCA 5th Circuit, Case No.
> 98-10193). Combs, a female Methodis Minister, sued the Methodist Church
for > sexual discrimination, but the case was dismissed under the First Amendment > establishment of religion clause. Defendant church was a non-profit > corporation as well.
>
> This would lead one to believe that no court will even consider any form
of

- > injunction or relief based on a claim having to do with whether or not a
- > religious organization is adhering to its own by-laws.

Very interesting proposition and an extremely interesting case which cites certain relevant principles that Rickster doesn't point out because they don't suit his POV. The Constitution does provide for separation; the general rule that State shall not interfere with Church. There are exceptions however. In MORMON CHURCH v. UNITED STATES, 136 U.S. 1 (1890) the state dissolved the corporation under which the Mormon Church operated and seized its property - "The property is in the custody of the law, awaiting the judgment of the court as to its final disposition, in view of the illegal uses to which it is subject in the hands of the Church of Latter-Day Saints, whether incorporated or unincorporated." This was because the Mormons continued polygamy in defiance of law prohibiting it.

It is when we come to consider the case that Rickster cited that we find rather curious dicta -

"The Supreme Court determined that Oregon's prohibition on all peyote use did not violate the First Amendment: "the right of free exercise does not relieve an individual of the obligation to comply with a valid and neutral law of general applicability on the ground that the law proscribes (or prescribes) conduct that his religion prescribes (or proscribes)." Id. at 879, 110 S. Ct. at 1600 (citations and internal quotation marks omitted)." and this as well -

"Protecting the authority of a church to select its own ministers free of government interference does not empower a member of that church, by virtue of his beliefs, to become a law unto himself." not to mention -

"In a passage now quoted by Reverend Combs, the Court stated, "When the exercise of religion has been burdened in an incidental way by a law of general application, it does not follow that the persons affected have been burdened more than other citizens, let alone burdened because of their religious beliefs."

I confess to being more acquainted with UK law than US law. As a generally applicable principle I find it illogical to assume that any (especially secular) state would give carte blanche to any religion to run its affairs as it chose free of any constraint. I now find that whilst affording religion freedom to internally manage its own affairs - such management is generally subject to some restraint of law - "Protecting the authority of a church to select its own ministers free of government interference does not empower a member of that church, by virtue of his beliefs, to become a law unto himself."

Rickster has no doubt based his argument on this :-

"In short, we cannot conceive how the federal judiciary could determine whether an employment decision concerning a minister was based on legitimate or illegitimate grounds without inserting ourselves into a realm where the Constitution forbids us to tread, the internal management of a church." He omits to tell us that the case arose over the dismissal of a Minister and her contention that it was on grounds of sex and that the Church could not therefore avail itself of exemptions in the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Court in that sense quite rightly decided against Ms Combs. But as noted above there are instances of general applicability of law where Church exemptions do not hold.

There is in the NM case no interference with the internal management of the Church, no attempt to have Government, or the law, influence or otherwise determine matters theological; just an application to have the Court rule that the religious body in question conduct its affairs in accordance with generally applicable corporate law AND in accordance with its own rules which the Court is not being asked to amend in any way. There is no burden in this other than would be borne by citizens in an entirely secular area - "for the men who wrote the Religion Clauses of the First Amendment the 'establishment' of a religion connoted sponsorship, financial support, and active involvement of the sovereign in religious activity." (cited in CORPORATION OF PRESIDING BISHOP v. AMOS, 483 U.S. 327 (1987))

> > Furthermore it must abide by civil law as the > > Guardian pointed. The Constitutional safeguard is for matters of > > conscience not a license to break every other law in the book.
>
> The complaint doesn't allege that any law has been violated. Were we > talking about violations of law, then this would be a criminal case not a > civil case.

There can be a violation of civil as well as criminal law.

The Complaint clearly alleges breaches of corporation law as in: -

15. Plaintiffs' reasonable expectations that they would be able to participate in the management and activities of their corporation, as minority shareholders, have been thwarted since at least 1995.

52. The Trustees of the Local Spiritual Assembly have repeatedly failed to act and continue to fail to act in a manner they reasonably believe to be in the best interests of the corporation and its members, which failure constitutes fraud.

<LARGE BORING SNIP>

> > > > 17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained > > > > in an inaccurate and inequitable manner.
>
> > > Not justiciable on the grounds
> > > that plaintiff has no standing on the issue.

As a member of a Corporation she has an interest!!!!

<SNIP>

> You might want to try to grasp the implications of what the complaint > _doesn't_ say.

Argumentative irrelevant speculation!

<SNIP>

> They only possible way to wrangle some kind of justiciable issue out of this > would be to find some kind of fiduciary relationship between the defendants > and the Plaintiffs, but that relationship doesn't exist between the members > of a private organization and the officers of that organization. At least
I
> haven't been able to find any case law that holds this--if you can find > some, by all means, post the details.
**>
> There is a financial fiduciary relationship between the officers of a > corporation and the shareholders of that corporation, but that's not the > relationship here. As you have so deftly noted, we're talking about > _members_, not _shareholders_. Yet, the claim goes through this mental
> gymnastics, quoted above, of equating "member" with "shareholder".

Go learn the basics about "members" of a Corporation and "shareholders" - in the UK the terms are synonomous. In the US I expect "shareholders" to belong to a for-profit corporation and "members" to a non -profit one.

> > > > 18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000
> > > > discrepancy in the corporate books.
**>
> > A discrepancy of a material sum of money whether it arise from fraud,
> > incompetence or negligence is actionable at law.
**>
> But only by the party that's actually harmed by the discrepancy. If you're > a shareholder, then, yes, you have an actionable claim. If you're simply
a > member, then no (hence the mental gymnastics in paragraph 6 of the > complaint).

As a member of the Company she has an interest.

<REST OF INTERMINABLE BORING IRRELEVANT GARBAGE TRASHED AS NOT WORTH RECYCLING AS IT EMANATES FROM ONE WHO KNOW NOTHING ABOUT THE LAW OF HIS OWN JURISDICTION>

> > It has > > not excited any great controversey on Talisman for example
**>
> Probably because no one there has enough knowledge to discuss the legal > issues intelligently.

There's at least one lawyer there, which is one more than you are and what's more he's American and hasn't come out and said that the Plaitiff in this case hasn't got a pup's chance.

"Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
news:9af5gi$gn0$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> Hi, Rick.

> This post is ad hominem.

> M.

That's all His Holy Eminence knows how to write.... Notice
he's ignoring my request to tell us who his boss is.

**--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

**>

**>

> "Rick Schaut" (RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom) writes:

> > "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message

> > news:tcj830hgcs1fd8@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> > I am so glad that you have proved to your own satisfaction that the Courts

> > have no jurisdiction in matters religious.

**> >

> > It seems I've demonstrated this to your satisfaction as well, or, at least,

> > to a level at which you no longer have a well-reasoned response.

**> >

> > Does that mean we can talk about the competence of this attorney, again?

**> >

> > > Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to expend

the

> > > money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?

**> >

> > > Why question the judgement of a man who paid $10,000 to give up that he

> > did

> > > not want to keep?

**> >

> > Your comprehension is slipping again. Methinks you're in need of some > > sleep. I'll try smaller words:

**> >

> > He didn't care to keep the license. He could either post a $10,000

> > (Canadian) security and give up the license, or spend as much as 10
times

> > that amount to fight to keep the license that he had no intention of ever

> > using again. There was, however, no option for him that didn't entail

> > either posting the security or paying attorneys to contest the matter.

**> >

> > And you, with your "superior intelligence" wonder why I don't question
the

> > man's judgement.

> >
> >
> > Regards,
> > Rick Schaut
> >
> >
>
>
> --
> "My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
> (Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)
>

Hi, Rick.
This post is ad hominem.
M.

"Rick Schaut" (RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom) writes:
> "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message
> news:tcj830hgcs1fd8@xo.supernews.co.uk...
>> I am so glad that you have proved to your own satisfaction that the Courts >> have no jurisdiction in matters religious.
>
> It seems I've demonstrated this to your satisfaction as well, or, at least,
> to a level at which you no longer have a well-reasoned response.
>
> Does that mean we can talk about the competence of this attorney, again?
>
>> > Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to > expend the >> > money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?
>
>> Why question the judgement of a man who paid $10,000 to give up that he
> did >> not want to keep?
>
> Your comprehension is slipping again. Methinks you're in need of some > sleep. I'll try smaller words:
>
> He didn't care to keep the license. He could either post a $10,000
> (Canadian) security and give up the license, or spend as much as 10 times > that amount to fight to keep the license that he had no intention of ever > using again. There was, however, no option for him that didn't entail > either posting the security or paying attorneys to contest the matter.
>
> And you, with your "superior intelligence" wonder why I don't question the > man's judgement.
>
>
> Regards,
> Rick Schaut
>
>

--

"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."
(Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
news:9ad2bo07fq@news2.newsguy.com...

**>

> "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message > news:tcj830hgcs1fd8@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> > I am so glad that you have proved to your own satisfaction that the Courts

> > have no jurisdiction in matters religious.

**>

> It seems I've demonstrated this to your satisfaction as well, or, at least,

> to a level at which you no longer have a well-reasoned response.

I don't think so!

**>

> Does that mean we can talk about the competence of this attorney, again?

Go ahead! I'm all agog!

**>

> > > Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to expend
the > > > money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?

**>

> > Why question the judgement of a man who paid $10,000 to give up that he > did

> > not want to keep?

**>

> Your comprehension is slipping again. Methinks you're in need of some > sleep. I'll try smaller words:

**>

> He didn't care to keep the license. He could either post a $10,000 > (Canadian) security and give up the license, or spend as much as 10 times > that amount to fight to keep the license that he had no intention of ever > using again. There was, however, no option for him that didn't entail > either posting the security or paying attorneys to contest the matter.

Alternatively, a "competent" attorney might have advised him to have the hearing before his Professional body adjourned, pending resolution of the Civil Court case in which case he needn't have paid anything and would have recovered his legal costs. Post the Civil case there would have been no charges of professional misconduct to answer - he could have returned honourably, licence intact and a further $10,000 invested in the Pension Fund or in the ARC.

On this hypothesis of yours, methinks there's a lot more stink around this one than meets the eye. Guess I'll have to make some further investigation to acquire a fuller knowledge of the facts - must contact the family in Canada to do a little sleuthing work for me on the QT.

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9ab9f501epv@news2.newsguy.com...

**>

> <VERY LARGE SNIP, HUGE, ENORMOUS>

> Actually, I rather enjoy discussing legal issues. I find them fascinating.

> This complaint affords an opportunity to do so, despite the fact that there > seems to be no one else here who understands these issues enough to discuss > them intelligently.

I am so glad that you have proved to your own satisfaction that the Courts have no jurisdiction in matters religious. Hopefully other fundie bodies will act on this and whup three shades of **** out of the BIGS when I shall be happy to know that the Courts will afford them no protection whatsoever as they cannot intervene in matters religious.

> <ANOTHER GIGANTIC SNIP>

> Why question the judgement of someone who would choose not to expend the > money and effort to keep a license he doesn't wish to use?

Why question the judgement of a man who paid $10,000 to give up that he did not want to keep?

"Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9aa8l108e7@news2.newsguy.com...

> > > It has everything to do with the pattern of behavior under which certain

> > > individuals latch on to whatever might cast someone else in a bad light

> > > regardless of the actual substance behind it.

**>

> > Not "someone" Rick - actually it is two corporate bodies

**>

> And what does this have to do with the issue of substance, or lack thereof?

Quite a lot in connection with this case but you'll have to work that out for yourself.

> > > All I did was express an opinion. Is there some reason you have to

> > > flatulate like this every time someone expresses an opinion?

**>

> > There's that anal fixation again!

**>

> And I'm still wondering why that bothers you.

Just curious! There's another BIGS around who seems to have the same problem and I was merely speculating as to whether it was contagious or just one of those AO things.

> > I can only repeat the obvious when it is apparent that the obvious hasn't > > sunk in.

**>

> I rather strongly suspect that the reason is entirely different.

Have you worked it out yet? There are plenty of clues.

> <LARGE SNIP>

> > There is no need in a Complaint to state other than the broad grounds upon > > which one is proceeding against the defendants. The "facts" are spelled > out > > in Court.

**>

> No. The facts are proved, or not as the case may be, in court. They > should be spelled out in the complaint. If one doesn't spell out the facts > in the complaint, then one is, rather obviously, using the court as a > vehicle for a fishing expedition. Courts don't take all too kindly to that.

I suggest you take a long hard read at the Complaint and note, inter alia, citations as to corporate rules alleged to have been broken.

> > > Now, exactly which of those constitutes a justiciable issue under the > law?

> > > Under which system of law does any of those alleged facts constitute > > > either fraud or libel that would render the claim justiciable?

**>

> > Re applause - was it called for or was it spontaneous? Did it thereby > > constitute "electioneering"?

**>

> Two salient facts. 1) We're talking about a religious organization; and 2)

> The U.S. Constitution has an amendment that prohibits the government from > infringing upon the practice of a religion and or effecting the > establishment of a religion. Any issue that would hinge upon the rules of > the religious organization would, therefore, be non-justiciable matters in

a

> US court of law.

Anything about the content of the rules of a religious organisation is covered by the Constitution. But where that religious organisation incorporates itself its behaviour as governed by corporate law comes within the jurisdiction of the Court. Furthermore it must abide by civil law as the Guardian pointed. The Constitutional safeguard is for matters of conscience not a license to break every other law in the book.

We are talking about a corporation of which it is alleged that the members have failed to properly and legally abide by its rules. Religion has naught to do with it. The US Constitution provisions did not prevent the conviction of the Revd Moon on charges of Tax evasion. What a shame you weren't on his defence team.

> > 17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained in an > > inaccurate and inequitable manner.

**>
> > An allegation which shall be substantiated or not dependent on independent > > audit.

**>
> This might be negligence, but in order for the plaintiff to show damages, > one needs to go through the mental gymnastics of turning members of a > religion into shareholders of a corporation. Not justiciable on the grounds
> that plaintiff has no standing on the issue.

They are members of the corporation and she is a member of the corporation.
Read the Complaint again, amadan!

> And, again, no fraud or libel here. Indeed, the very next alleged fact > would obviate any claim of either fraud or libel in this regard:

**>
> > 18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000 discrepancy in
the > > corporate books.

**>
> > See above but this is obviously an alleged fact - another one indeed.

**>
> Yes, it's an alleged fact. But, is the fact justiciable? No. For the same > reason that #17 fails to allege a fact that would be justiciable under the > law. All this fact establishes is that any claim of fraud or libel is > specious.

A discrepancy of a material sum of money whether it arise from fraud, incompetence or negligence is actionable at law. Remember Mr Moon who possibly also had religious corporations. Remember the TV evangelists who went down the swanee over financial fraud and mismanagement.

> > 19. In a letter dated September 3, 2000, named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn > > informed the Local Spiritual Assembly that she desired to inspect their > > financial books. Defendants refused.

**>
> > A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.

**>
> That didn't parse. Are you saying that this could be an opinion based on > the evidence? If so, then I'm afraid you're still woefully confused as to > the difference between a statement of opinion and a statement of fact.

Let me put this in first grade language (seems to be all you can take). Deborah says that she asked to see the books, which, as a member of the corporation she has a right to do and the other members wouldn't let her so she is going to ask the Judge to make them let her see the books.

- > And, while this is an allegation of fact, the question still remains whether
- > it alleges a fact that's justiciable under the law. The very next
- > allegation of fact would negate any justiciable issue regarding a refusal to
- > allow the books to be inspected.

If it's contrary to Corporation law it's actionable!

- > > 20. Following mailing of the demand letter, the LSA offered to allow named
- > > Plaintiff to inspect the books and records, but under conditions that the
- > > Plaintiff deemed in bad faith.
- >
- > > A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.
- >
- > But, where's the law that would require the Local Spiritual Assembly to
- > allow the plaintiff to inspect the books on the plaintiff's terms and
- > conditions? That the plaintiff deems the terms and conditions to reflect
- > bad faith is meaningless. Why aren't those terms and conditions spelled out - > in the complaint? This is simply too vague to present an issue that would
- > be justiciable.

It's Corporation law again time and she's a member. If the defendants try to limit what she sees in the books it could be contrary to law.

- > And, above all, there's still no allegation of fact that would constitute
- > either fraud or libel.

Go and read the complaint again before stringing out garbage like this.

- > > Now are not all of the above facts, or alleged facts, actionable in a
- > Court
- > > of law, which alone shall determine the merits and render due verdict
- > > thereon?
- >
- > Yes, they're alleged facts. None of them appears to be a fact that would
- > present a justiciable issue.

Think again!

- > You seem to think than anyone can take any issue to a court of law and ask
- > that court to render an opinion on it. If so, where did you get such a
- > notion?

No, not any issue. Anal fixation is not actionable at law for example!

> And, again, I'll note that no one has made even the remotest attempt to > claim that any of these alleged facts constitutes either libel or fraud.
> Yet, the complaint itself is virtually littered with the words "fraud" and > "libel". It's as if the attorney knows that the complaint is thin on > justiciable facts, and needs to come up with some kind of smoke screen
that > would obscure just how thin those facts are.

His smokescreen is, to say the least, a lot better than yours. It seems he actually knows some law and what is/is not actionable. This could be expected - thanks to your sterling work we know he passed the Bar exams and you didn't - small wonder!

> > Ditto for your own propositions on this case.
>
> But, then, I'm not demanding that other people take my opinion to be > established fact.

That is comforting to know - in as much as your opinions are formed by half baked misconceptions of law and misreading of the Complaint, it's good to know they are not to be confused with fact. Indeed it's good to know that you know that too.

> > This complaint has been sat on for > > a much longer period than that without any indication that it was even > being > > looked at. Is this not actionable at law?
>
> If it is, then please cite the law that would make it actionable.

Go and read the LSA/NSA Declaration of Trust which is incorporated into the corporate documents of every assembly which has been incorporated according to civil law.

> > > What I had in mind is Dr. Cole's despicable practice of retaining the > > > newspaper article about Dr. Danesh without so much as a hint of the fact > > > that the entire matter was decided, by dismissal of a civil lawsuit, in
> a > > > court of law.
>
> > Nothing whatsoever to do with the NM case.
>
> It has everything to do with the practice, in this forum, of presenting only > part of the facts in order to cast aspersions on Baha'i institutions. The > behavior regarding Dr. Danesh's case is remarkably similar to the posting
of > a complaint within days of that complaint being filed in court, as if the > complaint constitutes established fact in and of itself. Is there _any_ > reason that people couldn't wait until this case had run its course before

- > people began discussing it here? Why post the complaint _before_ a court
- > has had any opportunity to address the issues it raises?

The Complaint was posted for information as it is a public document. It has not excited any great controversy on Talisman for example - probably because most posters there appreciate its significance and the fact that it is but the first step on a road. When I joined this thread it had been ongoing for sometime and being argued on grounds that posters seemed not to comprehend. You were advancing information on the competence of the attorney and rubbishing the Complaint without apparently understanding its nature or its place in the scheme of things. You seemed to want to rubbish it to death, at least to members of this forum and certainly to your own satisfaction. This matter will be dealt with between the parties. Your ramblings contribute naught but ignorance and prejudice to an already difficult situation for both parties. Indeed you are exacerbating those difficulties through your refusal or inability to comprehend that the matter is actionable despite what you think.

Whether you like it or not the lady has cause for action at law - she has a qualified attorney who has drawn up the Complaint and filed it in Court on her behalf. You have contributed nothing to this discussion but appalling ignorance of the law in your own country. If I were you (which fortunately I'm not) I'd follow the good advice of that chap who posted today and suggested that all of you good BIGS take yourselves off to some haven free from the proto covenant breakers who lurk here. You can then indulge in an orgy of self praise.

- > > In the light of what you state
- > > about a subsequent civil action (on which I have yet to see any reported
- > > facts)
- >
- > Where have you been? Dr. Maneck has reported several facts in this regard.
- > Are you claiming that she's lying?

Certainly not - as an historian she would understand why I would wish to see the original documents or press reports. She would also be the first to admit that she has not posted all of the facts.

- > > the fact still remains that Danesh negotiated to have charges against
- > > him withdrawn.
- >
- > The fact is that Dr. Danesh didn't fight to keep a license to practice
- > clinical psychiatry at a time when he had already decided to quit clinical
- > practice to pursue academic interests.

So why did he pay $10,000? Seems an expensive way to retire from medicine.

- > But, then, we've pretty much established that you wish to not be confused by
- > such details, so I suppose I should apologise for pointing them out to you.

A priest here was recently put on trial for alleged sexual assaults on a minor - he denied the charges and was acquitted at his trial. Seems the witnesses changed their evidence once too often for a jury to be convinced that they were telling the truth. If Danesh won the civil case and proved his innocence thereby why did he give the undertaking he did and pay the cash he did? These are not the actions of a man determined to prove his innocence. As I said, at the very least, his judgement has to be called into question.

Grimmer Reaper

"Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9a8t430210k@news2.newsguy.com...

>

> That I find it annoying has nothing to do with the fact that I'm a Baha'i.
> It has everything to do with the pattern of behavior under which certain > individuals latch on to whatever might cast someone else in a bad light > regardless of the actual substance behind it.

Not "someone" Rick - actually it is two corporate bodies that are being sued and as you are aware a corporation is, in law, an entity with a distinctive persona, which can be sued in its own right and is quite distinct from the persons who comprise its members.

>

> I don't recall ever saying that I should be regarded as the arbiter of this > case. All I did was express an opinion. Is there some reason you have to > flatulate like this every time someone expresses an opinion?

There's that anal fixation again!

> You haven't actually answered the question. You have an amazing > predilection for repeatedly stating the obvious. I can only conclude that > the not-so-obvious has a tendency to elude your grasp.

I can only repeat the obvious when it is apparent that the obvious hasn't sunk in.

> > The Defendants do of course under US law have the opportunity to file for > a > > motion of dismissal.

>

> Yes, they do. They likely will. It will likely succeed unless plaintiff > files an amended complaint.

Again I'll leave that up to the Court and venture no opinion on the merits or demerits of a motion to dismiss. When one works in a relative vacuum, i.e. not privy to the substance of the case and proof to be presented by either side, one ought to be circumspect about venturing opinion as to the eventual outcome. Especially is this so when one predicates action by the Plaintiff which could nullify a motion to dismiss. Has anybody heard whether or not the Defendants have filed a motion to dismiss or are going to do so?

> > Your current rubbishing of it just displays your partisanship founded and > > steeped in arrogance, ignorance, prejudice and bigotry of the first order.

**>

> It should be really easy to demonstrate this. Go through the complaint and > show us where it alleges any fact that constitutes a justiciable matter

> under the law. If you're as bright a lad as you seem to think you are, then > this should be a rather simple task.

See below.

<SNIP>

**>

> > What you did was a sneaky look > > around the Internet or wherever to get the "dirt" on the guy!

**>

> A "sneaky look around the internet"? I entered the guy's name in one of the > standard search engines. What, on earth, is so bloody "sneaky" about that?

> And, what, on earth, does the date of the guy's having passed the written portion of his bar exam have to do with "dirt"?

Why the interest in the person? What should concern you is the issues raised in the Complaint not the competence of the attorney who filed it in Court or his client or any other person. You flay me and Michael for ad hominem when you're doinfg the same thing - and as we are not Bahais we need not abide by the prohibition on backbiting.

**>

> I'm not sure what amazes me the most. The fact that you find the act of > gathering facts despicable, or the fact that you chastise me for actually > finding the facts while simultaneously claiming that someone else supplies

> me with my opinions (both of which, by the way, really are ad-hominem > arguments).

The only "facts" you gathered, of no relevance to the substantive issues, were that the attorney passed his NM bar exams 6 months prior to filing the Complaint.

> Oh, and I'll remember your comments on "dirt" the next time you bring up Dr.

> Danesh.

And I 'll bring it (and/or similar) up again the next time you and/or other AO apologists start slinging dirt and ad hominem. When the dear lady was asked about Leland Jensen she couldn't resist reprinting a triumphalist account of the reaction of one of his victims to his death; she could have simply stated that he was dead. As you know the dead cannot defend themselves - de mortuis nihil nisi bonum.

- >
- > > It is not the function of a Complaint to prove facts - its function is
- > > to state a case that the Complainant intends to address to the Court.
- >
- > Very good, Mr. Ryder. Now, care to expand on the meaning of the phrase
- > "state a case"?

See below.

- >
- > > Now
- > > from the Complant it appears that the Complainant intends to ask the Court
- > > to rule on matters which are clearly within the Competence of the Court -
- > > the allegations of fraud, libel and that this Assembly failed/refused to
- > > carry out its business in accordance with its own rules.
- >
- > Yes, the complaint manages to use the words "fraud" and "libel" rather
- > liberally, as if doing so constitutes an effective means of stating the case
- > one intends to prove. If one actually takes the time to read past all the
- > gratuitous splatterings of the words "fraud" and "libel", then one finds
- > that there are paultry few facts upon which to even base a claim.

There is no need in a Complaint to state other than the broad grounds upon which one is proceeding against the defendants. The "facts" are spelled out in Court.

- > Let's see. Some people applauded some individuals before an annual
- > election. Plaintiff was asked by the LSA to stop airing a program on the
- > Baha'i Faith. Plaintiff complained to her Auxiliary Board member and to the
- > U.S. National Spiritual Assembly, but seems to have not been satisfied with
- > the response.
- >
- > Now, exactly which of those constitutes a justiciable issue under the law?
- > Under which system of law does any of those alleged facts constitute either
- > fraud or libel that would render the claim justiciable?

Re applause - was it called for or was it spontaneous? Did it thereby constitute "electioneering"? Are there provisions in the rules of the corporation that prohibit electioneering? If so did the applause break those rules? Should any election therefore be declared null and void? Did the plaintiff actually receive an answer to her Complaint? Was the Complaint investigated in accordance with the rules of the body to which it was addressed? Did the defendants have a right, under the rules of the corporation, to ask the Plaintiff to cease and desist from broadcasting on television? These are examples of the questions that I feel will be put to the Court and questions that I would think the Court would feel bounden to rule upon. Certainly in the UK they are well within the ambit of the Court and I would assume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that US Courts would take a similar line. After all the NSA posed similar questions to the Courts vis a vis alleged breaches in the Sohrab and New Mexico cases.

The first 5 points in the Complaint are allegations. Let's examine a small bit of this Complaint in detail: -

17. The books and records of the corporation have been maintained in an inaccurate and inequitable manner.

An allegation which shall be substantiated or not dependent on independent audit.

18. The year 2000 annual meeting showed a 10%, $10,000 discrepancy in the corporate books.

See above but this is obviously an alleged fact - another one indeed.

19. In a letter dated September 3, 2000, named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn informed the Local Spiritual Assembly that she desired to inspect their financial books. Defendants refused.

A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.

20. Following mailing of the demand letter, the LSA offered to allow named Plaintiff to inspect the books and records, but under conditions that the Plaintiff deemed in bad faith.

A matter of fact or not - dependent on the evidence.

Now are not all of the above facts, or alleged facts, actionable in a Court of law, which alone shall determine the merits and render due verdict thereon?

> > No! I stand by it. FACT is that it is a disgraceful indictment that your

>

> You can repeat that opinion as many times as you'd like. It won't magically > become a fact through the mere act of repetition.

Ditto for your own propositions on this case.

<SNIP>

> > Au contraire, Rickster!! The defendants had this case within their > purview

> > for some time and did nothing about it.

>

> Thank you, dear sir, for making my point for me. It's so very kind of you > to do so.

I know how long the NSA sat on this complaint and it was an unreasonable time (IMO), considering that on several occasions in the past I have known the NSA of the UK deal expeditiously with correspondence and not sit on it. In dealing with Government here one has a right to expect acknowledgement of receipt of a complaint within three days and a substantive response within a month. On occasions the substantive response may take longer than a month, in which case, the government department must communicate that fact to the complainant. Currently I am awaiting decision on a matter I have raised with Government. When I lodged it, I was told that a decision would come within 15 weeks due to various reasons. This complaint has been sat on for a much longer period than that without any indication that it was even being looked at. Is this not actionable at law?

**>

> > What further FACTS have come to light - that YOU consider this case > flawed, > > that the lawyer passed his NM Bar exams 6 months ago?

**>

> What I had in mind is Dr. Cole's despicable practice of retaining the > newspaper article about Dr. Danesh without so much as a hint of the fact > that the entire matter was decided, by dismissal of a civil lawsuit, in a > court of law. Also, your dear friend, Mr. Hazini, made a point of wanting > to know why the Dr. chose not to defend the issue when it came to a license

> he no longer wanted to use despite the fact that a civil lawsuit has cleared > the Dr. of any wrongdoing whatsoever.

Nothing whatsoever to do with the NM case. In the light of what you state about a subsequent civil action (on which I have yet to see any reported facts) the fact still remains that Danesh negotiated to have charges against him withdrawn. It is not behaviour consistent with total innocence - if as you state, the civil case against him failed, then the "plea bargain" must call his judgment into question.

> So, Mr. Ryder, when can I expect you to chastise Dr. Cole and Mr. Hazini for > their behavior?

What behaviour - besides which neither my legs nor arms are long enough to reach them to give them a damned good thrashing, as you seem to suggest!

**>

> > What have you > > become - the arbiter of public opinion and public decency?

**>

> Hardly. I have an opinion, and I've stated it. Unlike others, however, I > haven't put up any pretense that my opinion should be regarded as fact, so > I'm not quite sure whence comes this notion of being the arbiter of public > opinion and public decency.

I leave that to the Court of public opinion.

Chin Chin! What Ho! Pip Pip! Cheerihoh!

Big D.

"Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message news:9acf8s$aem$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> Uhm, well, what's stopping the Universal House of Justice from > stepping in and resolving differences here?

Now there's a fascinating image. The Universal House of Justice coming over the ridge like the cavalry saying, "Judge Scott, you may set this case aside. We're handling the matter, now." The only thing missing is the deep voice singing, "Here I come to save the day!"

The Universal House of Justice might address, indeed it's possible they already have addressed, some of the issues that have come to light here, but I wouldn't expect to get wind of it a scant two weeks after the complaint has been filed. I rather suspect that they'd be in the process of gathering facts--a process that seems to be foreign to some of the folks who post here on a regular basis. Perhaps we can allow for some time before we start deciding what, if anything, Baha'i institutions ought to be doing about this? Just a hope.

> So, if there are differences, and, if their job is to resolve such > differences, what are they waiting for? Do they need an invitation from > the disagreeing parties?

Well, they generally have to _know_ that something's amiss before they can act on it. How are they to come to know about it unless one of the parties takes the matter to them? Or are you advancing the rather novel notion that the Universal House of Justice is omniscient?

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message news:9af5e9$glr$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...

> "Rick Schaut" (RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom) writes:

> > I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions. One > > holds that the Universal House of Justice wanted to silence her, and the > > other holds that she has had no opportunity to speak her mind. These > > positions cannot both be true.

> This is perfectly consistent if the UHJ was successful; I assume your > words do not fully correspond with what you're attempting to communicate.

Successful at what? Baha'is are as able now to read and hear her ideas as they were when she was a Baha'i.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9af5bo02b5h@news1.newsguy.com...

> > > > Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member > > > > and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues > > > > might cast this whole case in completely different light.

>
> > > > It would, except that they weren't!

>
> > > That's a speculative conclusion.

>
> > It's not speculation - I know how long the NSA sat on the complaint and
> did > > sweet doodly squat about it.

>
> You appear to be claiming access to evidence to which I'm not privy. If you > have it, then post it.

Are you telling us that your mate at Wilmette didn't tell you - that he sent you forth to this hell hole without the necessary information with which to counter the rabid ones? Did you telephone and ask him? You better clear it with him that he doesn't mind my posting the fact that they sat on this complaint for six months.

> > You can phone your friends at Wilmette to ask > > them if they want me to note this on the Internet for public appraisal or

> if > > they would prefer that I not divulge the information.

>
> But, excuse me for being amused at the suggestion that you're withholding > this evidence for the sake of saving the U.S. National Spiritual Assembly > embarrassment. Is there anything you'd like to see more than public > embarassment of Baha'i institutions? That seems to be your sole purpose
for > even being here.

There are plenty of things I'd rather see - the Kyoto Treaty adopted, a reduction of gaseous emissions in the US (I'm avoiding the obvious here - being good - for a change), Ian Paisley shaking hands with the Pope, the abolition of the Monarchy and Sharon Stone with clothes on. I'd also love to see a picture of Milissa which she promised me a long time ago! So if you're out there Milissa ...

>
> > > I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions.

>
> > Really! My what a display of logic! Of course everybody but you can > clearly > > the fallacy in this.

>
> Well, you did fail to notice that the complaint in the NM case alleges two > facts that cannot simultaneously be true.

>
> > > If she wants to know why they instructed the AZ National Spiritual > > Assembly > > > to return her membership card, then why doesn't she just ask them?
Why

> > > concoct these lame excuses for not engaging in any dialogue?
>
> > And how do you know she didn't and if she did, what reply was received?
> > Answer - you don't! I, on the other hand may do, but whether I do or not
> > I'm not going to acquaint you with the information.
>
> [Snort.] Um. You owe me a new keyboard.
>
> If you do, indeed, have such documents in your possession, the only > reasonable conclusion withholding them from public disclosure is that you > would find their contents more embarrassing than would any institution of > the Baha'i Faith.
>
> > > Bloodsports! I enjoy the kill - the smell of cordite and the whiff
of > > > napalm in the morning ... Ooops! Getting carried away there! Sorry!
>
> > > Dang. For a moment, there, I thought you might simply explode.
Course,
> > > that would make such an awful mess.
>
> > But a lot less mess than if you got a dab of semtex where the sun don't > > shine
>
> Not necessarily. My eyes are blue. What color are yours?

Your eyes are in your ass? Geez I never thought they could be so close to your brain!

>
> > - just saying that to placate your anal fixation.
>
> You seem way more fixated about it than I do.

More worried about it than fixated! But in light of the above and the problems with your keyboard I now understand. Mind you I'm still trying to figure out how you can see the keyboard whilst you're typing!

> <SNIP>
> I see. You expect me, and other members of the Baha'i Faith, to be doing > hand-stands, back-flips and maybe even an arabesque or two, whatever it > takes to keep this case from going to trial (just so long as it's not on a > legal "technicality" like the First Amendment to the U.S.
> Constitution--nasty little technicality there), regardless of what's > actually true or which would be the most just course of action. But,
then,
> I don't quite share your vehement distate for all things related to Baha'i > Institutions.

I don't care what you do - it doesn't matter whether or not it goes to a hearing before a Judge. At the end of the day it's between the parties with or without active court intervention to sort it out. It doesn't matter whether the Complaint is competently framed or not; it is of no consequence what the First Amendment is or states. If the attorney is incompetent it is of no consequence.

What is relevant is the fact that this is a dysfunctional community - so dysfunctional that a member of the Assembly has gone to a Court for redress. Your AO has failed to spot and nip this problem in the bud for which, in light of the time it had the complaint there can be no excuse. It isn't that it rendered a bad decision on the complaint made to it - it is that it took absolutely no action at all and, as we all know, a bad decision is better than no decision.

>

> > > The fact remains,

> > > however, that I haven't stated that the principle specifically applies > in > > > this case. I've merely stated a principle that could apply in this > > case, > > > depending, of course, on what further facts, if any, come to light.

>

> > Well now why didn't you say that to begin with that you were merely citing

> > general principles which might or might not be applicable?

>

> Because I had, apparently mistakenly, believed that people could see that I > was doing nothing more than stating a principle without my having to point > it out to them.

And hardly the first time you have been mistaken, apparently. You are a master in the use of innuendo to make a point which you can afterwards deny that you ever made. Still that's the whole point of innuendo.

><SNIP>

> > > Well, then I guess it's a very good thing that I haven't tried to > > > apportion any blame, isn't it?

Apart from the usual innuendo.

>

> > Really? Let's ask the folks out there for their opinion on that > > proposition!

>

> Yes, lets. Tell you what, why don't we simply suspend this discussion for a > few days, and see if anyone chimes in?

Nobody will - they've all seen through you!

>

> > > > At what point does delay in responding to an appeal cross the divide > > > between > > > > inactivity and rejection?

>

> > > Frankly, the answer would depend on the issues involved. Some appeals > > > require immediate attention. Others not so immediate.

>

> > Put a time on it - a specific time. After what period of elapsed time > would > > you expect

>
> Nope. My answer remains the same. Moreover, where this case is concerned, > the answer would be rather irrelevant. She has another recourse other than > the courts. Did she avail herself of that recourse?

Well maybe she felt that if the NSA was going to stonewall her, the House of Horrors would do the same. Fact is I don't know and care even less - after all *** months is a hell of a long time to await an answer to the first complaint.

>
> > > It would also depend on the manner in which the appeal has been made.
> The
> > > fallacy of communication is the assumption that it has taken place.
> It's
> > > not too difficult to imagine a bombastic letter of denial and dispute as > > > being someone's excuse for an appeal. Indeed, it would be precisely the > > > kind of "appeal" letter I'd expect to get from one Dermot Ryder.
>
> > Now is this another of these "general principles" or quite specific > > innuendo?
>
> Well, there's no innuendo whatsoever in the last sentence. As to whether or > not it applies in the present case, well, I believe you already know the > answer, but you'll make whatever inferences suits your bloodthirst despite > anything I might say.

You've said that there is no innuendo in the last sentence. Is there innuendo in any of the preceding sentences? You're saying that I know the answer as to whether the appeal to the NSA was "bombastic" or not. On what grounds are you saying that?

>
> > You keep telling us the the AO system is flexible. Has it therefore the > > inherent ability and flexibility to deal with such a "bombastic" > complaint?
>
> Sure. Indeed, one legitimate means would be to instruct the National > Spiritual Assembly involved to remove the author of the complaint from the > membership roles, depending, of course, upon the specific circumstances.

What an excellent solution? Pray tell us why it wasn't done in this case. Could it be that the appeal wasn't bombastic and did not give grounds therefore for the Roman solution? >

> > Complaints have to be dealt with - if a Microsoft customer lambasted you
>
> But, then, we're not talking about a business with customers. Where one's > relationship with the Baha'i Institutions are concerned, there are

attitudes

- > that are clearly spelled out in authoritative Baha'i Texts (c.f. "Baha'i Administration" and numerous letters from `Abdul-Baha). Moreover,
- however,
- > there is the explicit statement within these Writings, that Spiritual Assemb
- > lies do not answer to their constituents. They answer to their conscience.
- > You may not like this, but you cannot deny that it is an aspect of Baha'i
- > Administration.

Well we have quite safely eliminated the suggestion that the appeal was bombastic - had it been so Deborah would now "sleep with the fishes." So in light of that why was the appeal not dealt with?

The key to lodging appeals is - if you're "bombastic" you get a visit from Luca Brasi - if you have the right attitude - you get ignored. And that is the conscience of the AO!

- > So, yes, complaints have to be dealt with, but one that is sufficiently
- > bombastic may well reveal more about the complainant than the issues that
- > the complaint actually reveals.

So the complaint/appeal can be safely disposed off because the attitude of the complainant/appellant isn't right! Glad you confirmed that for us - we would never have known otherwise.

- > > All of the above is arrant dog-muck as the NSA sat on its corporate fat
- > arse
- > > and did absolutely nothing.
- >
- > Which is Mr. Ryder's way of saying that he has no counter to my remarks
- > that's based on a thorough review of Baha'i principles.

On the contrary - it's a favourable judgement of Bahai principles as corrupted by the AO.

- >
- > And, I suppose one might notice how "dog-muck" and "fat arse" could indicate
- > an anal fixation,

Well you have exhibited an "anal fixation" and I have adjudged the AO as having an "an anal fixation" so with its "anal fixation" and your "anal fixation" - what can I say except that you deserve each other and I hope you will be very happy together ...

- >but I don't think it would be necessary to point out any
- > of Mr. Ryder's fixations.

In other words you don't know what they are.

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9ad1nh06jf@news2.newsguy.com...

>

> "Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message > news:tcj82vb2amqjd7@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> > "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message > > news:9abdp901k9p@news2.newsguy.com...

> > > Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member > > > and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues > > > might cast this whole case in completely different light.

>

> > It would, except that they weren't!

>

> That's a speculative conclusion. All we do know, assuming she's telling the > truth, is that the plaintiff in the lawsuit didn't know what was being done > about the situation.

It's not speculation - I know how long the NSA sat on the complaint and did sweet doodly squat about it. You can phone your friends at Wilmette to ask them if they want me to note this on the Internet for public appraisal or if they would prefer that I not divulge the information.

>

> <SNIP>

> I'm merely noting the logical inconsistencies in the two positions. One > holds that the Universal House of Justice wanted to silence her, and the > other holds that she has had no opportunity to speak her mind. These > positions cannot both be true.

Really! My what a display of logic! Of course everybody but you can clearly the fallacy in this. Speculating again the House of Horrors wanted to silence her and did so arbitrarily without giving her the chance to speak on any charges of misconduct. As no specific charges of misconduct have been notified to her pre or post the fact of her expulsion there seems to be no basis for any appeal to the House of Horrors.

<SNIP>

>

> The Universal House of Justice has an established policy that anyone can > bring any issue directly to them, yet, despite that policy, you choose to > interpret, in the absence of any direct statement on the matter, what > they've done as indicating that this particular issue is closed. Looks more > like an excuse not to engage in dialogue than any well-reasoned conclusion > about what's going on in the minds of the members of the Universal House of > Justice.

>

> If she wants to know why they instructed the AZ National Spiritual Assembly > to return her membership card, then why doesn't she just ask them? Why > concoct these lame excuses for not engaging in any dialogue?

And how do you know she didn't and if she did, what reply was received?
Answer - you don't! I, on the other hand may do, but whether I do or not
I'm not going to acquaint you with the information.

>

> > I wouldn't speculate about the attitude or remit of the Privacy > Commission.

>

> Perhaps, but the fact remains that she has a dispute with the Universal > House of Justice but has done nothing by way of addressing that dispute with > them. Frankly, it looks like she has no real interest in resolving the > dispute, and is only looking for someone, somewhere, who will say, "Oh you > bad Universal House of Justice! Who do you think you are for enforcing > standards of Baha'i membership?"

The House of Horrors expelled her without prior notice or warning - it knows what it did. Let it in the name of Justice approach her and not vice versa!!

>

> > Bloodsports! I enjoy the kill - the smell of cordite and the whiff of > > napalm in the morning ... Oops! Getting carried away there! Sorry!

>

> Dang. For a moment, there, I thought you might simply explode. Course, > that would make such an awful mess.

But a lot less mess than if you got a dab of semtex where the sun don't shine - just saying that to placate your anal fixation.

>

> > > When it comes to Mr. Hazini, I have a great deal of justification in not > > > trusting what he attempts to pass off as fact.

>

> > So why have you formulated an opinion?

>

> Now, that's news to me. Have I stated an opinion on the merits of this > case? If so, please quote it for me.

Well let's see - you've rubbished me, the attorney, the Complaint, the Plaintiff, anybody who doesn't agree with you (apart from your pal Bart Simpson) ... anybody here not know what Rick's opinion of this case is?

<SNIP>>

> Yo, Dermot. It's _already_ in court. Plaintiff chose to take it there.
An

> d there's not a thing I can do to change that fact. I don't know why you > keep exhorting me to endeavor to change that which is beyond my power to > change.

It's not IN Court - it's awaiting the day that it does go into Court with the attorneys, Plaintiff, witnesses etc. and the Judge.

<SNIP THE WEASEL AT WORK>

> Well, we've all had a chance to read it a couple of times, now. And, for > that matter, I at least recall precisely what I wrote.

You should do - it's staring you in the face - well, it was before you snipped it so I'll just repeat it that there can be no doubt.

> > > To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave,
as > > > an individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief > > > in Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve > > > the conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

>The fact remains,
> however, that I haven't stated that the principle specifically applies in > this case. I've merely stated a principle that could apply in this case,
> depending, of course, on what further facts, if any, come to light.

Well now why didn't you say that to begin with that you were merely citing general principles which might or might not be applicable? Indeed why bring it up at all for in the context in which you used it, you invited BIGS to agree with you that this is a BAD Bahai who dares take the AO to a nasty Civil Court.

>
> > You shouldn't even try to apportion blame for the start of this conflict -
> > you have no evidence on which to do that.
>
> Well, then I guess it's a very good thing that I haven't tried to apportion > any blame, isn't it?

Really? Let's ask the folks out there for their opinion on that proposition!

>
> <ANOTHER SNIP OF GIBBERISH>
> Of course, you fail to notice this. You're more interested in constructing > straw creatures that can be burnt with a dab of napalm than you're interested > in a well-reasoned discussion of the issues.

Oh I love a well reasoned argument! Shucks! Now everybody is asking why I'm trying it with you? Good question! Fact is people, I'm trying to shed a little life into its existence! Oh I know it's difficult! But I've always been an optimist!

<SNIP>
>
> > At what point does delay in responding to an appeal cross the divide > between > > inactivity and rejection? If an appellant hears nothing pertaining to
the > > Appeal for a period of time what is he/she do about that? In other words

- > > what is a reasonable time to leave an appeal in the hands of the NSA
- > before
- > > taking further action? A week, two weeks, a month, two months, three
- > months
- >
- > Frankly, the answer would depend on the issues involved. Some appeals
- > require immediate attention. Others not so immediate.

Put a time on it - a specific time. After what period of elapsed time would you expect

- >
  - > It would also depend on the manner in which the appeal has been made.
- The
- > fallacy of communication is the assumption that it has taken place. It's
  - > not too difficult to imagine a bombastic letter of denial and dispute as
  - > being someone's excuse for an appeal. Indeed, it would be precisely the
  - > kind of "appeal" letter I'd expect to get from one Dermot Ryder.

Now is this another of these "general principles" or quite specific innuendo?

- >
  - > However, it's not entirely clear that a bombastic letter of dispute
  - > indicates any desire to review the issues from any point of view but that
- of
- > the supposed appellant. Try sending a similar writ of certiorari to a
- U.S.
- > Appeals Court, and see how far it gets you.

You keep telling us the the AO system is flexible. Has it therefore the inherent ability and flexibility to deal with such a "bombastic" complaint? Complaints have to be dealt with - if a Microsoft customer lambasted you with a bombastic complaint about one of the company's products, do you think Bill would be pleased if you told her you weren;t going to deal with the complaint because the customer had been bombastic? Get real! No matter what way a complaint is framed it has to be dealt with. Indeed the real art is in taking a complaining customer breathing spit, fire and brimstone, and through careful handling of his complaint turning him into another satisfied customer.

- >
- > > They may indeed have no obligation to keep her
- > > informed - but is that efficiency, is that courtesy, is that the Bahai
- > way?
- >
- > And, again, that depends on the nature of the issues involved. To take
- > something from this case, consider the whole issue involving the applause:
- >
- > "22. At the Annual Meeting Feast of 1999, Defendant Trustees fraudulently
- > rigged the election of Trustee Nelson Sapad by calling for applause for
- him
- > three times prior to an election of corporate officers. Plaintiff appealed
- > to the National Spiritual Assembly and Brent Poirier, who took no action."
- >
- > First of all, the immediately appropriate action is to investigate the
- > matter. Secondly, there are a number of things that the National

Spiritual

- > Assembly might do depending on the results of that investigation. On this
- > particular issue, however, since it doesn't involve a specific adverse
- > decision by an institution involving administrative sanctions against her, the
- > National Spiritual Assembly has no obligation to keep her informed.
- Indeed,
- > the principle of confidentiality precludes them from telling her everything
- > they've done.
- >
- > In addition, the National Spiritual Assembly is looking to find patterns of
- > behavior, and not necessarily isolated instances of misconduct. The issue
- > isn't so much whether or not someone is straddling Baha'i law and procedures.
- > Rather, the issue is really about a person's intent. There are known cases
- > where the Universal House of Justice has instructed a National Spiritual
- > Assembly to restore an individual's voting rights because the case involved
- > a single violation of Baha'i law, and about which the individual was
- > striving to correct his or her behavior.
- >
- > The point is that the process of applying Baha'i law is a rather lengthy
- > process. It doesn't simply consist of applying sanctions the moment the
- > Assembly has determined that someone has violated Baha'i law. Efforts are - > made to ascertain the individual's attitude regarding his or her behavior,
- > the individual's knowledge of the relevant principles involved, and the
- > extent to which that individual would be amenable to consultation on these
- > issues.
- >
- > Now, given that the most strident sanction a National Spiritual Assembly can
- > possibly apply is the prohibition on giving to the fund and attending Feast,
- > it's difficult to imagine any issue that would require a timely response due
- > to any hardship arising from any sanction that's been imposed. I suppose
- > one might argue some aspect of "emotional" damages (as are alleged in this
- > complaint), but I just have difficulty finding any sympathy for that notion.
- > Yes, the courts do recognize "emotional" damages under certain - > circumstances, but more often than not, "emotional" damages have served as
- > nothing more than an excuse for someone to extort money from deep pockets.

All of the above is arrant dog-muck as the NSA sat on its corporate fat arse and did absolutely nothing. It's the AO way! Go ring Bob and ask him and don't bother us again until you do!

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message news:9abdp901k9p@news2.newsguy.com...

> <LARGE SNIP>

> At the same time, we have no knowledge of what other facts might come out at trial. Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues might cast this whole case in completely different light.

It would, except that they weren't! That's the problem and one that the dear lady accepted as possible with her remark about molasses in January. They may be now - the molasses may have been warmed! Oops ! That last bit could be speculation but the first bit isn't!

**>

> You might want to heed your own advice, and refrain from such speculation.

Sorry about that! Of course you were doing the same!

<SNIP>

> > And who for this day has interpreted those authoritative texts such that a believer like Alison can be kicked out on her ear without a chance to justify her position.

**>

> That appears to depend on whom you ask. Some folks have alleged that the issue is free speech, in which case her expulsion would have come about because she justified her position all too well.

Was this before or after the fact? I'm certainly not aware of any comments by her post facto justifying a position - indeed to this day, so far as I am aware Haifa has never detailed her "errors" to allow of her justifying anything. The methods of the Inquisition spring to mind. When the Inquisitor asked his victim, "Tell the Truth!" - the victim would respond with "About what?" and the Inquisitor would simply say "Tell the Truth!" and the victim would then relate what he had for supper 20 years prior, not being made aware of the specifics the Inquisitor was interested in.

But if as you suggest she "justified her position all too well" - was it envy at her superior intellect that motivated her expulsion?

> But, the fact remains that she can still address her concerns to the Universal House of Justice. Let's see. She the Privacy Commission won't be able to begin their investigation for another year. By then, nearly 18 months will have passed since she received the letter from the AZ National Spiritual Assembly. If, during all that time, she's made no attempt to address her concerns directly to the Universal House of Justice, I wonder how the Privacy Commission will view her claim.

There is no appeal against the supreme body unless, of course, there is "repentance" and that's a whole different ball game. In not consulting with her beforehand the supreme body indicated that it had determined the matter absolutely.

I wouldn't speculate about the attitude or remit of the Privacy Commission.

> In any event, this too, is a case that will play itself out. Neither your > opinion nor mine will make a great deal of difference in the outcome.

Which makes one wonder why you venture an opinion at all. Nonetheless it is gratifying to see that you have accepted the fact of "expulsion" rather than "disenrollment! Progress is always possible!

**>

> > You were warned by the Guardian that your Faith could fail. It has!

**>

> Which begs the question, why are you here? You're wasting your time. Get a > life, indeed!

Bloodsports! I enjoy the kill - the smell of cordite and the whiff of napalm in the morning ... Ooops! Getting carried away there! Sorry!

> > > To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave, as > > > an individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief

> > > in Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve

> > > the conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

**>

> > You really are selective. Nima has confirmed the essentials of the type
> of

> > behaviour in this particular community (I know of others who will do the > > same) yet you ignore it in face of your own prejudice.

**>

> When it comes to Mr. Hazini, I have a great deal of justification in not > trusting what he attempts to pass off as fact. And, since I've not heard > anyone else either confirm or deny what is alleged in the complaint, I have > no further evidence upon which to formulate an opinion.

So why have you formulated an opinion? You're not going to hear any further evidence. Doubtless the parties and their witnesses have been told to button up and say nothing to further inflame the situation.

**>

> But you seem to forget. I haven't, at all, discussed the validity of the > factual claims in the complaint. On that score, I'll wait until the case is > either dismissed or there is more evidence that's been brought to light.

> What I _have_ done is discuss the legal issues surrounding the facts that > have been alleged in the complaint. Clearly, you don't like the fact that

I

> have, but you cannot accuse me of either selectively or not selectively > speculating on the accuracy of the facts alleged in the complaint. At > least, you cannot do so and also advance some claim to understanding the > meaning of the word "truth".

You can speculate on the "facts" all you want - doesn't affect the "fact" that a Complaint has been filed and that if it is not satisfactorily resolved it could wind up in Court and the AO could win or it could lose.

>
> > You are blaming the > > Plaintiff - you are practically accusing her of being the source of > conflict,
> > ignoring everything else.
>
> At which point did I claim that she is, indeed, the source of the conflict?
> I don't recall saying so. If I haven't, then how can you claim that I've > assigned any blame to anyone?

Try this bit - cited above: -

> > > To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave,
as > > > an individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief > > > in Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve > > > the conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

> All I've done is articulate a principle: i.e. to be the source of conflict, > etc. It's certainly possible that some level of that applies in this case, > but it's also possible for that principle to apply in numerous other > instances.

You shouldn't even try to apportion blame for the start of this conflict - you have no evidence on which to do that. To "articulate a principle", as above, in the context in which you did is to leave all aware of your predetermined judgement that the Plaintiff is to blame for the contention.

> > You're the hypocrite who can't even > > see that an Assembly could go wrong and that if it does go wrong the NSA > > should rectify matters and if it doesn't then someone has to!!
>
> Oh? Then please allow me to disabuse you of your misconception: Local > Spiritual Assemblies get things wrong all the time. On a daily basis.
> Sometimes rather hugely.
>
> And, yes, when things go wrong, the National Spiritual Assembly should > endeavor, to the very best of its ability, to rectify matters. I also > believe that the National Spiritual Assembly should do so while upholding > all relevant Baha'i principles, not just those principles that a few > individuals might think are relevant to the exclusion of other principles.
> And, in general, it is the National Spiritual Assembly's duty to decide
what > those applicable principles are and how they should be applied.

Within a Bahai context I would agree with you but in other matters it lies within the purview of the Courts if either party makes an appeal thereto for resolution.

>
> What I don't quite cotton to is the idea that somebody _has_ to "make things

> right" when the National Spiritual Assembly doesn't do things to their > satisfaction. There are some lines, here, that one can cross rather easily.
> That doesn't mean Ms. Buchhorn has crossed any of them. We simply don't > have sufficient information to know whether this is an instance of the > National Spiritual Assembly not responding at all to her appeals or an > instance where the National Spiritual Assembly responding in a manner that's > not suitable to her satisfaction. The one thing we can say is that they've > probably not kept her informed of what they were doing if they were doing > anything, but it's not entirely clear that they had an obligation to keep > her informed.

At what point does delay in responding to an appeal cross the divide between inactivity and rejection? If an appellant hears nothing pertaining to the Appeal for a period of time what is he/she do about that? In other words what is a reasonable time to leave an appeal in the hands of the NSA before taking further action? A week, two weeks, a month, two months, three months ... In other words how long has an appellant to await a decision and at what point, given that no decision or other communication, has been received, is an appelland driven to the inevitable conclusion that the appeal is being ignored? They may indeed have no obligation to keep her informed - but is that efficiency, is that courtesy, is that the Bahai way?

> > > > The behaviour of its apologists on this list has been less than > > helpful -
>
> > > One could say the same thing about the behavior of others in this forum.
>
> > You're an expert on the ad hominem and, like all experts in that field
you > > just hate it when somebody else comes along and plays you at your own > game.
>
> No. What I detest is when people take me to task for a behavior when they > behave exactly the same way. _That's_ hypocrisy.

No! It's sauce for the goose!

> > Nobody will ever adequately address your points because you don't come > here
> > to discuss - you come to bludgeon with your ill informed and often > > groundless opinions.
>
> Gosh, if my opinions are so groundless, then it shouldn't be necessary to > even respond to them. As for "bludgeon", well...pot, kettle, black, as they > say.
>
> > Noted - you have not contradicted me on my refutation > > of your silly so called legal assessment in your last post.
>

> Sorry, sport, but I just posted that refutation a few moments ago. Please > pardon me for taking the time to conduct a little search through U.S. case > law. Unlike other folks around here, I prefer to spend at least some time > conducting a little research here and there.
>
> > Mr Ryder plays a long game - he has already spread the news into the right > > quarters.
>
> Mr. Ryder plays many games.
>
> > And FYI this conversation and the events spawning it is being > > watched by a number of people. Who knows but that it might turn up in an > > Albuquerque Court as evidence of the malevolence
>
> Wow! Talk about the use of a bludgeon. If you can't get me to stop > exercising my right to voice an opinion by insulting me to death, perhaps > you can get me to shut up by suggesting that my comments might appear as > evidence in a court of law somewhere!
>
> Nice try, old boy. But, I'm not buying.

I don't ever wish to still your voice - basic belief that ALL are entitled to free speech, to say what they want where they want, save as provided for in law. But all actions have consequences. As for "insulting" - I come from a robust society where in badinage, insult/counter insult is the order of the day. FYI I'm not really insulting you - were I to do that, believe me, you wouldn't be standing here and you wouldn't be talking. But if you can't take the heat, don't want the "chuckle" getcher ass out. Otherwise, keep on trotting!

>
> > Time alone will tell whether the case goes to Court or is resolved between > > the parties.
>
> Actually, it's already gone to court. I believe the issue is whether or not
> it will go to trial.

Well - terminology - two nations divided by a common language. Been to Court many times and settled on the Court steps many times - quite literally too.

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tc129rkvh6abd0@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> news:9aaoh10pfq@news2.newsguy.com...
> > > I suspect that the Complaint has been filed in Court as a last resort

in > > an > > > effort to get the NSA to deal with a complaint that has been resting in > > its > > > office for a very long time.

> > If that's the case, then why does the complaint fail to mention any effort > > to bring these issues to the attention of the Universal House of Justice?

> The normal procedure is to file an appeal against a decision of the NSA to > Haifa. There is no decision in this case to appeal.

Actually, there is a provision under which an individual can take an issue to the Universal House of Justice if the individual feels that the National Spiritual Assembly isn't responding to the issues. This would be a rather thin excuse for not taking the issue to the Universal House of Justice, if, indeed, that is the case.

> There are many possible points of view on this - short answer is that I > don't speculate in public on matters such as this on which I have absolutely > no information.

Except that "speculate" is precisely what you did in the message to which I replied. Indeed, "speculate" is precisely what you're doing in the very next paragraph in this message:

> > Or, it might be an opportunity to practice a wide range of Baha'i > > principles

> I doubt that somehow - to have sworn testimony in Court that the matters > alleged in the Complaint are well founded, that a member of the corporation > declared himself to be the voice of God etc.

At the same time, we have no knowledge of what other facts might come out at trial. Perhaps additional evidence as to how the Auxiliary Board Member and the National Spiritual Assembly were dealing with the issues might cast this whole case in completely different light.

You might want to heed your own advice, and refrain from such speculation.

> > Well, adherence to principles and authoritative texts can, and often > > does, give rise to unavoidable conflicts with certain individuals.
> > We've seen a number of instances where individuals have demanded that > > a Baha'i institution take an action that is clearly outside that > > institution's sphere of legitimate authority. It's difficult to see > > how such issues would be negotiable.

> And who for this day has interpreted those authoritative texts such > that a believer like Alison can be kicked out on her ear without a > chance to justify her position.

That appears to depend on whom you ask. Some folks have alleged that the issue is free speech, in which case her expulsion would have come about because she justified her position all too well.

But, the fact remains that she can still address her concerns to the Universal House of Justice. Let's see. She the Privacy Commission won't be able to begin their investigation for another year. By then, nearly 18 months will have passed since she received the letter from the AZ National Spiritual Assembly. If, during all that time, she's made no attempt to address her concerns directly to the Universal House of Justice, I wonder how the Privacy Commission will view her claim.

In any event, this too, is a case that will play itself out. Neither your opinion nor mine will make a great deal of difference in the outcome.

> You were warned by the Guardian that your Faith could fail. It has!

Which begs the question, why are you here? You're wasting your time. Get a life, indeed!

> > To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave, as > > an individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief > > in Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve > > the conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

> You really are selective. Nima has confirmed the essentials of the type
of > behaviour in this particular community (I know of others who will do the > same) yet you ignore it in face of your own prejudice.

When it comes to Mr. Hazini, I have a great deal of justification in not trusting what he attempts to pass off as fact. And, since I've not heard anyone else either confirm or deny what is alleged in the complaint, I have no further evidence upon which to formulate an opinion.

But you seem to forget. I haven't, at all, discussed the validity of the factual claims in the complaint. On that score, I'll wait until the case is either dismissed or there is more evidence that's been brought to light. What I _have_ done is discuss the legal issues surrounding the facts that have been alleged in the complaint. Clearly, you don't like the fact that I have, but you cannot accuse me of either selectively or not selectively speculating on the accuracy of the facts alleged in the complaint. At least, you cannot do so and also advance some claim to understanding the meaning of the word "truth".

> You are blaming the > Plaintiff - you are practically accusing her of being the source of conflict,
> ignoring everything else.

At which point did I claim that she is, indeed, the source of the conflict? I don't recall saying so. If I haven't, then how can you claim that I've assigned any blame to anyone?

All I've done is articulate a principle: i.e. to be the source of conflict, etc. It's certainly possible that some level of that applies in this case, but it's also possible for that principle to apply in numerous other instances.

> You're the hypocrite who can't even > see that an Assembly could go wrong and that if it does go wrong the NSA > should rectify matters and if it doesn't then someone has to!!

Oh? Then please allow me to disabuse you of your misconception: Local Spiritual Assemblies get things wrong all the time. On a daily basis. Sometimes rather hugely.

And, yes, when things go wrong, the National Spiritual Assembly should endeavor, to the very best of its ability, to rectify matters. I also believe that the National Spiritual Assembly should do so while upholding all relevant Baha'i principles, not just those principles that a few individuals might think are relevant to the exclusion of other principles. And, in general, it is the National Spiritual Assembly's duty to decide what those applicable principles are and how they should be applied.

What I don't quite cotton to is the idea that somebody _has_ to "make things right" when the National Spiritual Assembly doesn't do things to their satisfaction. There are some lines, here, that one can cross rather easily. That doesn't mean Ms. Buchhorn has crossed any of them. We simply don't have sufficient information to know whether this is an instance of the National Spiritual Assembly not responding at all to her appeals or an instance where the National Spiritual Assembly responding in a manner that's not suitable to her satisfaction. The one thing we can say is that they've probably not kept her informed of what they were doing if they were doing anything, but it's not entirely clear that they had an obligation to keep her informed.

> > > The behaviour of its apologists on this list has been less than > helpful -

> > One could say the same thing about the behavior of others in this forum.

> You're an expert on the ad hominem and, like all experts in that field you > just hate it when somebody else comes along and plays you at your own game.

No. What I detest is when people take me to task for a behavior when they behave exactly the same way. _That's_ hypocrisy.

> Nobody will ever adequately address your points because you don't come here > to discuss - you come to bludgeon with your ill informed and often > groundless opinions.

Gosh, if my opinions are so groundless, then it shouldn't be necessary to even respond to them. As for "bludgeon", well...pot, kettle, black, as they say.

> Noted - you have not contradicted me on my refutation
> of your silly so called legal assessment in your last post.

Sorry, sport, but I just posted that refutation a few moments ago. Please pardon me for taking the time to conduct a little search through U.S. case law. Unlike other folks around here, I prefer to spend at least some time conducting a little research here and there.

> Mr Ryder plays a long game - he has already spread the news into the right > quarters.

Mr. Ryder plays many games.

> And FYI this conversation and the events spawning it is being > watched by a number of people. Who knows but that it might turn up in an > Albuquerque Court as evidence of the malevolence

Wow! Talk about the use of a bludgeon. If you can't get me to stop exercising my right to voice an opinion by insulting me to death, perhaps you can get me to shut up by suggesting that my comments might appear as evidence in a court of law somewhere!

Nice try, old boy. But, I'm not buying.

> Time alone will tell whether the case goes to Court or is resolved between > the parties.

Actually, it's already gone to court. I believe the issue is whether or not it will go to trial.

> It is most kind of you to assume the term of "egomania" to > describe your own part in the discussion on this forum.

Have I? Well, then, kindly post a quote of me saying that anyone should regard my opinion as established fact.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

Well, Susan, maybe the reason this religion is obscure is because they're quite a number of people running around in the AO claiming to be the Voice of God (by committee) and running out of it those people who would potentially help it out of its obscurity. To hold it obscure is precisely the bottom line problem. This thing wasn't supposed to be obscure! You have only yourselves and your leaders to blame for that.

cheers,
Nima

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20010402214218.27249.00003359@ng-ch1.aol.com...
> to have sworn testimony in Court that the matters
> alleged in the Complaint are well founded, that a member of the corporation > declared himself to be the voice of God etc. Evidence like that is a heaven
> sent story for the press

Dermod,

You can't be serious? Do you really think that either the courts or the press
cares that a member of an obscure religion claims to be the voice of God?.
Just turn on the television. They do it every morning at 11:00 am and what does John
Q. Public do? Turn the station, of course. This is neither news, nor an legal matter.

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
left to start again . . ."
Don McLean's American Pie
<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
news:9aaoh10pfq@news2.newsguy.com...
> > I suspect that the Complaint has been filed in Court as a last resort in > an > > effort to get the NSA to deal with a complaint that has been resting in > its > > office for a very long time.
>
> If that's the case, then why does the complaint fail to mention any effort > to bring these issues to the attention of the Universal House of Justice?
> Wouldn't it be equally reasonable to suspect that the complaint was filed
in > a New Mexico court because the plaintiff doesn't recognize the authority
of
> the Universal House of Justice to settle matters which have caused > differences among the members of the Baha'i Faith?

The normal procedure is to file an appeal against a decision of the NSA to Haifa. There is no decision in this case to appeal. Furthermore, as you are aware an appeal to Haifa is to be lodged via the NSA. Would such an appeal, if lodged, not wind up in a permanent pending tray in light of the inordinate time the NSA has already had the case? One must also consider the possibility that an appeal to Haifa has been already made and not actioned. As has been pointed out the NSA is notoriously slow in such matters.

There are many possible points of view on this - short answer is that I don't speculate in public on matters such as this on which I have absolutely no information.

**>

> > It can of course opt for an open Court case but that would be to court > > further adverse publicity.

**>

> Or, it might be an opportunity to practice a wide range of Baha'i principles > relating to truthfulness, honesty and justice regardless of whether > adherence to those principles would court adverse publicity or not.

I doubt that somehow - to have sworn testimony in Court that the matters alleged in the Complaint are well founded, that a member of the corporation declared himself to be the voice of God etc. Evidence like that is a heaven sent story for the press - it will only serve to bring the AO into disrepute. My bet is that the AO will move heaven and earth to keep this one out of the press. It really doesn't want to appear as stupid as it is - wrecks all that carefully crafted PR with the UN and the White House.

Anybody with any appreciation of Public Relations will tell you that the last thing needed in this case is further publicity.

> > In as much as I and others have long anticipated

> > (and warned of) such a case developing due to the AO's aversion to dealing

> > with dissent by such sensible means as reconciliation, conflict resolution > > and/or negotiation, it has brought this situation on itself.

**>

> Well, adherence to principles and authoritative texts can, and often does, > give rise to unavoidable conflicts with certain individuals. We've seen a > number of instances where individuals have demanded that a Baha'i

> institution take an action that is clearly outside that institution's sphere > of legitimate authority. It's difficult to see how such issues would be > negotiable.

And who for this day has interpreted those authoritative texts such that a believer like Alison can be kicked out on her ear without a chance to justify her position. Your religion is crumbling around you - a religion which has chosen as its first priority to build marble monuments to its follies in Haifa. Get a life! True religion is about the love of God and His creation - in face of that the AO crumbles in the most miniscule importance.

You were warned by the Guardian that your Faith could fail. It has! Your institutions cannot do their work for lack of money - there's a dearth of new believers and a rapid exit by the few who sign up to a liberal faith only to discover they have fallen into a maelstrom of fundamentalism. Hell is coming down on those who have wrecked this Faith - from Wilmette to Haifa and back again. Someday somebody will rediscover that it was meant to be a religion that taught the path to unity of mankind via tolerance, brotherhood, respect and acceptance of diversity of race, creed and belief. Right now those things have been negotiated away to the greater glory of corruption.

- > To be the constant source of conflict with an institution, to behave, as an - > individual, in a manner that's inconsistent with a professed belief in
- > Baha'u'llah, and then blame that institution for failing to resolve the
- > conflict would epitomize hypocrisy.

You really are selective. Nima has confirmed the essentials of the type of behaviour in this particular community (I know of others who will do the same) yet you ignore it in face of your own prejudice. You are blaming the Plaintiff - you are practically accusing her of being the source of conflict, ignoring everything else. You are blaming a person for seeking, in the only way that seems proper, justice, that best beloved of things and bringing about a proper running of her Assembly. You're the hypocrite who can't even see that an Assembly could go wrong and that if it does go wrong the NSA should rectify matters and if it doesn't then someone has to!!

- > > The behaviour of its apologists on this list has been less than helpful -

>

- > One could say the same thing about the behavior of others in this forum.
- > The posting of outright lies, getting distracted over inconsequential
- > statements while failing to adequately address the points that had been
- > raised, promoting a double-standard of conduct with regard to comments
- > relating to character, all of these have contributed nothing to the - > advancement of truth or the level-headed consideration of facts and
- > issues.

>

You're an expert on the ad hominem and, like all experts in that field you just hate it when somebody else comes along and plays you at your own game. Nobody will ever adequately address your points because you don't come here to discuss - you come to bludgeon with your ill informed and often groundless opinions. Noted - you have not contradicted me on my refutation of your silly so called legal assessment in your last post. Noted - you have no facts to offer on this case, just opinionated rambling.

- > But, more importantly, I think Mr. Ryder greatly exaggerates the importance - > of whatever happens in this little corner of the Internet. What happens
- > here has about as much impact on the rest of the world as a New York street
- > squabble has on passers-by. A few folks might stop and watch, but they all
- > go on about their business.

Mr Ryder plays a long game - he has already spread the news into the right quarters. And FYI this conversation and the events spawning it is being watched by a number of people. Who knows but that it might turn up in an Albuquerque Court as evidence of the malevolence displayed towards those whose belief in justice far outweighs their adherence to fundamentalist bigotry and as evidence suggesting that the AO just might regard itself as over and above the law! Nothing pisses a judge off more than that attitude.

> > It may be this hope of reform which motivates the Plaintiff rather than
> the
> > "egomania" which is normally attributed to "opponents" of the AO.
>
> The case will play itself out. As for "egomania", that's not a bad word > describe the attitude under which one attempts to pass one's opinions off
as > established fact.

Time alone will tell whether the case goes to Court or is resolved between the parties. It is most kind of you to assume the term of "egomania" to describe your own part in the discussion on this forum.

"Brian F. Walker" <dr.walker@fsandp.remove.com> wrote in message news:9077A8DC6drwalkerfsandpcom@202.76.4.10...
Hi Brian,

The sun is shining today - spring is in the offing ... I hope.

> Leave it to the lawyers - truth will never, ever come out of it, neither > will justice. Remember OJ. In this case, all sides lose.

This NM case is only an issue here on TRB as far as I can see. There has been little comment on Talisman and that was reticent in view of the fact that with only a Complaint to deal with, there is a real lack of knowledge of the underlying facts.

TRB has exploded after a quiet March into an orgy of so called fact finding and ill founded opinions about this case.

I suspect that the Complaint has been filed in Court as a last resort in an effort to get the NSA to deal with a complaint that has been resting in its office for a very long time. Unfortunately for the NSA thereby, the entire affair has become a matter of public interest and the potential for embarrassment is now enormous. It is, of course, not too late for the NSA to tackle the underlying causes of the legal action and do its duty - there is nothing to prevent the parties from agreeing to mediation and/or arbitration. It will of course have to do this in agreement with and under the supervision of the Plaintiff.

It can of course opt for an open Court case but that would be to court further adverse publicity. In as much as I and others have long anticipated (and warned of) such a case developing due to the AO's aversion to dealing with dissent by such sensible means as reconciliation, conflict resolution and/or negotiation, it has brought this situation on itself.

The behaviour of its apologists on this list has been less than helpful - comments about the competency, or lack thereof, of the attorney concerned do nothing to spare the potential blushes of the AO or create a situation in which the underlying conflict can be amicably resolved. Indeed these comments can only inflame the situation and, I would suggest, draw from the woodwork more disaffected persons with evidence, perhaps on Albuquerque or elsewhere. The possibility of other such cases arising can only be increased by the controversy generated here and/or elsewhere. The opining about the competency of the attorney will only, I would think, increase the determination of him and his client to bring this to a successful conclusion and thereby make a consensus solution more difficult. The apologists' ardour is backing the NSA into a corner where it either contests the case in Court with resultant risk of losing and even more adverse comment or it has to surrender in private. In such an event the only result can be sweeping reform which will, if carried out with good grace, only resound to the longer term benefit of the AO as a whole.

It may be this hope of reform which motivates the Plaintiff rather than the "egomania" which is normally attributed to "opponents" of the AO. No organisation cannot but benefit from reform and change where it seeks to avoid or settle conflict and create conditions which make the organisation more amenable to current members and more attractive for new ones.

Sadly I don't think the AO will opt for amicable and open resolution - that is a hard pill to swallow for a body marked more by its intolerance towards dissidence than accommodation. It has taken a long time for attitudes of tolerance and accommodation to emerge in Northern Ireland - they have emerged and that puts this society streets ahead of the AO. Of course it is never too late!

As ever,

Dermod.

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcffifhqjfm83@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <rsschaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9a805e0dpn@news2.newsguy.com...

> > > Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to > > > paste the detail of his case on the Internet?

> > No, but, then, we're not talking about something an attorney simply posted > > to the internet

> Indeed yes but very annoying to all of you BIGs.

That I find it annoying has nothing to do with the fact that I'm a Baha'i. It has everything to do with the pattern of behavior under which certain individuals latch on to whatever might cast someone else in a bad light regardless of the actual substance behind it.

> > I do, however, expect a competent attorney to put > > sufficient detail into a complaint filed in court to at least provide the > > court with probable cause to believe that the plaintiff has, indeed, been > > harmed in some way and that the harm is one that's addressable under civil > > law.

> Well I really think that that is a matter for the Court to decide

I don't recall ever saying that I should be regarded as the arbiter of this case. All I did was express an opinion. Is there some reason you have to flatulate like this every time someone expresses an opinion?

In the mean time, I'm still waiting for someone to point out where this particular complaint actually alleges a justiciable issue. The more you whinge at me, sport, the more it looks like my assessment of the quality of the complaint is spot-on correct.

> > Do you really think a judge is going to accept any vague claim of fraud > > or libel without a single allegation of fact that would constitute fraud or > > libel under the law?

> That's why there are things called Hearings in Court

You haven't actually answered the question. You have an amazing predilection for repeatedly stating the obvious. I can only conclude that the not-so-obvious has a tendency to elude your grasp.

> The Defendants do of course under US law have the opportunity to file for a > motion of dismissal.

Yes, they do. They likely will. It will likely succeed unless plaintiff files an amended complaint.

> Your current rubbishing of it just displays your partisanship founded and > steeped in arrogance, ignorance, prejudice and bigotry of the first order.

It should be really easy to demonstrate this. Go through the complaint and show us where it alleges any fact that constitutes a justiciable matter under the law. If you're as bright a lad as you seem to think you are, then this should be a rather simple task.

> > > As usual, Rickster, you made the ad hominem and are now trying to > > > weasel your way out by casting the blame on somebody else.

> > Ah, had I argued that the complaint is flawed because the attorney is > > incompetent, then it would have been an ad-hominem argument. In fact, I > > argued precisely the opposite: that the attorney appears to be incompetent

> > because the complaint is so obviously flawed.

> As you've already been told, the guy with a Ph.D. has obviously done more > with his head than grow hair.

Which still doesn't explain why the complaint manages to fail to allege any actual facts that would constitute a justiciable issue.

- > What you did was a sneaky look
- > around the Internet or wherever to get the "dirt" on the guy!

A "sneaky look around the internet"? I entered the guy's name in one of the standard search engines. What, on earth, is so bloody "sneaky" about that? And, what, on earth, does the date of the guy's having passed the written portion of his bar exam have to do with "dirt"?

I'm not sure what amazes me the most. The fact that you find the act of gathering facts despicable, or the fact that you chastise me for actually finding the facts while simultaneously claiming that someone else supplies me with my opinions (both of which, by the way, really are ad-hominem arguments).

Oh, and I'll remember your comments on "dirt" the next time you bring up Dr. Danesh.

- > It is not the function of a Complaint to prove facts - its function is
- > to state a case that the Complainant intends to address to the Court.

Very good, Mr. Ryder. Now, care to expand on the meaning of the phrase "state a case"?

- > Now
- > from the Complaint it appears that the Complainant intends to ask the Court
- > to rule on matters which are clearly within the Competence of the Court -
- > the allegations of fraud, libel and that this Assembly failed/refused to
- > carry out its business in accordance with its own rules.

Yes, the complaint manages to use the words "fraud" and "libel" rather liberally, as if doing so constitutes an effective means of stating the case one intends to prove. If one actually takes the time to read past all the gratuitous splatterings of the words "fraud" and "libel", then one finds that there are paucity few facts upon which to even base a claim.

Let's see. Some people applauded some individuals before an annual election. Plaintiff was asked by the LSA to stop airing a program on the Baha'i Faith. Plaintiff complained to her Auxiliary Board member and to the U.S. National Spiritual Assembly, but seems to have not been satisfied with the response.

Now, exactly which of those constitutes a justiciable issue under the law? Under which system of law does any of those alleged facts constitute either fraud or libel that would render the claim justiciable?

- > No! I stand by it. FACT is that it is a disgraceful indictment that your

You can repeat that opinion as many times as you'd like. It won't magically become a fact through the mere act of repetition.

> > But I will state an opinion on an issue where I do have sufficient facts, > > and that issue is the extent to which some people are willing to reach > > conclusions based on such collections of "facts" as the accounts one reads > > in newspapers or a poorly written complaint that's been filed in a court
> of > > law in a case for which the defendants haven't even had enough time to > file
> > a competent response to that complaint. Now _that's_ a disgrace.

> Au contraire, Rickster!! The defendants had this case within their purview > for some time and did nothing about it.

Thank you, dear sir, for making my point for me. It's so very kind of you to do so.

> What further FACTS have come to light - that YOU consider this case flawed, > that the lawyer passed his NM Bar exams 6 months ago?

What I had in mind is Dr. Cole's despicable practice of retaining the newspaper article about Dr. Danesh without so much as a hint of the fact that the entire matter was decided, by dismissal of a civil lawsuit, in a court of law. Also, your dear friend, Mr. Hazini, made a point of wanting to know why the Dr. chose not to defend the issue when it came to a license he no longer wanted to use despite the fact that a civil lawsuit has cleared the Dr. of any wrongdoing whatsoever.

So, Mr. Ryder, when can I expect you to chastise Dr. Cole and Mr. Hazini for their behavior?

> What have you
> become - the arbiter of public opinion and public decency?

Hardly. I have an opinion, and I've stated it. Unlike others, however, I haven't put up any pretense that my opinion should be regarded as fact, so I'm not quite sure whence comes this notion of being the arbiter of public opinion and public decency.

Just because you have an amazingly inflated sense of self-importance doesn't mean that everyone around you shares a similar opinion of themselves merely because they have the, shall we say, unmitigated gall to express an opinion.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Dermod Ryder" <grimreaper@freenetname.co.uk> wrote in message news:tcd8qmduvkmi1b@xo.supernews.co.uk...

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> > news:9a36ok01e7b@news1.newsguy.com...
> > Yes. And, of course, it all began when I made a side comment > > about the apparent competence of the attorney.

- > Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to
- > paste the detail of his case on the Internet?

No, but, then, we're not talking about something an attorney simply posted to the internet. We're talking about the actual complaint that he filed in court. The means by which that complaint managed to get posted to the internet, indeed the very fact that it was posted, is rather irrelevant.

- > Do you really think
- > that any lawyer is going to put more detail than he need to on the
- > Writ posted in Court to initiate proceedings knowing it to be a
- > document that will be posted on the Internet?

As noted above, whether or not the complaiing has been posted to the internet is irrelevant. I do, however, expect a competent attorney to put sufficient detail into a complaint filed in court to at least provide the court with probable cause to believe that the plaintiff has, indeed, been harmed in some way and that the harm is one that's addressable under civil law.

Do you really think a judge is going to accept any vague claim of fraud or libel without a single allegation of fact that would constitute fraud or libel under the law? If so, then you must believe that the courts look kindly on lawsuits that are filed for the purposes of conducting a fishing expedition.

- > Do you really
- > think witness statements and/or other evidence is going to be
- > disclosed for your erudition?

As a matter of fact, no. One doesn't have to prove the allegations of fact in a complaint. However, one does have to at least allege facts that would constitute an addressable issue under the law. This complaint fails to do so.

- > As usual, Rickster, you made the ad hominem and are now trying to
- > weasel your way out by casting the blame on somebody else.

Ah, had I argued that the complaint is flawed because the attorney is incompetent, then it would have been an ad-hominem argument. In fact, I argued precisely the opposite: that the attorney appears to be incompetent because the complaint is so obviously flawed.

As usual, you and Mr. McKinney are finding ad-hominems where there are none, and are failing to speak out about it when someone actually does engage in an ad-hominem argument. Of course, that would require you to chastise yourself as much as you've chastised anyone else, but I guess a little hypocrisy is allowed when one's agenda is at stake.

- > As usual Mr
- > Schaut, you delight in spreading the news that he has only recently,
- > apparently, passed the Bar exam in New Mexico and perhaps suggest
- > thereby that he's not that good and the case therefore is a mere

bagatelle,
> something for the boy to cut his teeth on.

As usual, Mr. Ryder, you have your facts somewhat confused. I had suggested that the attorney didn't seem particularly competent based on a reading of the complaint he filed. Mr. Hazini responded by pulling some facts out of his backside, and, while I admit to having a small amount of pleasure in subsequently proving that Mr. Hazini must have pulled those facts out of his backside, I have never argued that the attorney in question is incompetent merely because he only passed the New Mexico bar exam some six months ago.

> You know nothing about this lawyer;

Well, actually, I do know that he only passed the written portion of the New Mexico bar exam some six months ago. That's a little more than "nothing."

> but has it > occurred to you that a man with a PH. D has used his brain for more than > keeping his ears apart (a practice in which you are adept, perhaps).

I don't recall ever saying that I thought the man to be a complete idiot. At the same time, having a Ph.D. in biochemistry doesn't necessarily qualify one to be an attorney. Now, were I to be awed by this chap's skill as an attorney merely because he holds a Ph.D. in some unrelated field, then one might suggest that I've used my brain for little more than keeping my ears apart.

> You > know nothing about the detail of the case and, in spite of that, are > endeavouring to make little of it.

Except that you forget the reason why I know so little about this case: the complaint doesn't allege any facts that would constitute addressable issues under civil law. And, while you and Mr. McKinney have been engaging in your own form of ad-hominem argument by hypocritically taking me to task for an ad-hominem argument I haven't made, neither of you have attempted to address the issue of whether or not the complaint alleges sufficient facts for a court to find probable cause that a justiciable issue exists.

> Fact is - win or lose - it is a disgraceful indictment of your > religious organisation that one of your fellow believers has to take a > complaint to an attorney at law to endeavour to get it dealt with in a > satisfactory manner.

It's amazing, or perhaps amusing, that I should have to point that you've prefaced a statement of opinion with the words, "Fact is." And, while you're certainly entitled to hold whatever opinion suits your fancy, I generally prefer to have sufficient facts in hand before forming an opinion. In this instance, I'd rather prefer to allow the lawsuit to play itself out before I decide who, if anyone, has acted disgracefully.

But I will state an opinion on an issue where I do have sufficient facts, and that issue is the extent to which some people are willing to reach conclusions based on such collections of "facts" as the accounts one reads in newspapers or a poorly written complaint that's been filed in a court of law in a case for which the defendants haven't even had enough time to file a competent response to that complaint. Now _that's_ a disgrace.

Worse yet, some of these people seem to have inoculated themselves against revising their opinions when further facts have been brought to light. Rather than revise their opinions, they engage in a most vile form of personal attack against the individuals who have had the temerity to bring those further facts to light. That's not a disgrace. That's downright despicable.

Regards,
Rick Schaut

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message news:20010401171857.28041.00003369@ng-mi1.aol.com...

**> >

> > Somebody made it available for posting. I wonder who that was.

**>

> Probably the plaintiff who realizes she will get more mileage out of it on the > internet than she ever will in court.

I thought it was a public document that anybody could access and post wherever. Any evidence for your opinion that it was the plaintiff?

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20010331235309.27129.00003215@ng-ch1.aol.com...

> > Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to

> > paste the

> > detail of his case on the Internet?

**>

**>

> The lawyer didn't post this complaint to the internet. Somebody else posted it

> here.

Somebody made it available for posting. I wonder who that was.

**>

> > Do you really think that any

> > lawyer is > > going to put more detail than he need to on the Writ posted in Court

> > to

> > initiate proceedings

**>

> He has posted a great deal less than is necessary to get it to go anywhere. My > guess is that it won't make it past first base.

And it's no more than a guess - you're no lawyer, same as me. I also have no experience of US law which is why I have been circumspect about commenting on the merits of this Complaint. Based on mine own experience with affairs legal here (which has been substantial) there is enough in this Complaint to merit the next stage which, here, would entail discovery or revelation of documents by each side to the other. One should also not discount the possibility that it is intended not to go to hearing - the Complaint is but a measure of the complainant's intention to get this mess sorted out. Knowing that the Complaint when filed in Court was likely to find wider circulation, there exists the possibility that sufficient to present a case was detailed - the balance being retained to save AO blushes.

>
> warmest, Susan
>
>
>
> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . ."
> Don McLean's American Pie
> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message
> news:9a36ok01e7b@news1.newsguy.com...
>
> "Michael McKenny" <bn872@FreeNet.Carleton.CA> wrote in message
> news:9a2pqk$enp$1@freenet9.carleton.ca...
> > Greetings, Rick.
> > Sigh. I'm sure you'll be sad to hear I'm too busy to devote
the > > attention to this I'd like to.
> > For the record, as usual there's a lot here about WHO rather than > > WHAT.
>
> Yes. And, of course, it all began when I made a side comment about the > apparent competence of the attorney. That particular comment wasn't > intended to be probative of anything. Rather, it was based on the rather > obvious lack of any substance in the complaint that's been posted here.

Do you really think that any lawyer in his right mind, is going to paste the detail of his case on the Internet? Do you really think that any lawyer is going to put more detail than he need to on the Writ posted in Court
to initiate proceedings knowing it to be a document that will be posted on the Internet? Do you really think witness statements and/or other evidence is going to be disclosed for your erudition? If so you are a bigger "gossoon" than I allowed for.

>
> It was your friend, Mr. Hazini who, rather than address the point I had > raised (i.e. the idea that the complaint is long on allegations but short > on alleging any actual facts), chose to single out my side comment > and present > the rather unfounded thesis that the attorney is supposedly some > high-powered chap who has won several cases. If you wish to take anyone
> to > task for not addressing the issues, Mr. McKenny, I suggest you point your > Solar Guard's weapon in Mr. Hazini's direction, and not mine.

As usual, Rickster, you made the ad hominem and are now trying to weasel your way out by casting the blame on somebody else. As usual Mr Schaut, you delight in spreading the news that he has only recently, apparently, passed the Bar exam in New Mexico and perhaps suggest thereby that he's not that good and the case therefore is a mere bagatelle, something for the boy to cut his teeth on. You know nothing about this lawyer; but has it occurred to you that a man with a PH. D has used his brain for more than keeping his ears apart (a practice in which you are adept, perhaps). You know nothing about the detail of the case and, in spite of that, are endeavouring to make little of it.

Fact is - win or lose - it is a disgraceful indictment of your religious organisation that one of your fellow believers has to take a complaint to an attorney at law to endeavour to get it dealt with in a satisfactory manner.

Greetings Michael - prime that solar guard weapon and aim it at the jolly sailor boy in Seattle!

As ever,

The Trim Leaper.

> "Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
> news:20010331002616.28097.00002915@ng-mi1.aol.com...
> Dear Pat,
>
> She is not going to be able to persuade a judge that there is something > wrong with applauding someone. A judge would like find it nonsensical > that electioneering was termed "rigging." And she says nothing about the > Baha'i teaching that might make this intelligible.

>
> warmest, Susan

Dear Lady,

Are you fishing again? No doubt, when it comes to a hearing, evidence will be adduced to show that "electioneering" is forbidden in the Bahai system. Now the question that will then be posed is, in light of this ban, what actions could constitute electioneering that would be in contravention of the ban?

Now is it conceivable that behaviour that drew particular attention to one individual over and above any other in an atmosphere of quiet and prayerful consideration of the respective merits of all persons in the community, might just be construed as a subtle, but nonetheless, illegal electioneering technique? We must needs await the evidence in a hearing before coming to a conclusion.

As in most things you fundies miss the point - it is inconceivable to you that anybody would, in the name of conscience, oppose the evil fascist empire that you support. Ring out a crisis, see the "enemies of the faith" on the march and out you people come from your lairs like maggots and vultures attracted by the blood of a fresh smelling corpse?

Then the fishing starts and maggots are good bait for coarse fishing! There is information of sorts in the Complaint filed before the Court but if you start appearing critical and incredulous perhaps more information might be gleaned that you can bring back to the Gruppenfuhrers who control you and pull your strings. Sad to say there is no information out here for you to glean. Like I said Yorgos is a sharp cookie who does more with his head than keep his hat up in the air. The guy is playing it close (just enough disclosed to show that there is a case to answer) but I think he has already hoist this LSA and the NSA - after all, no lawyer goes to Court without having a better than fifty per cent chance of winning.

Of course if he is, as Rickster has suggested, a "rookie" he is all the more dangerous. "Rookies" like to win - there are reputations to be made from that. So maybe he is that bit better prepared, maybe he has taken a longer harder look at the evidence, put more hours into it than usual - maybe, if it is his first case he has decided not to take it to Court unless he has a better than 80 per cent chance of winning.

Who knows but that the LSA/NSA have screwed up the preliminaries so much that they have actually handed him a case? The Complaint notes that Ms Buchorn has complained of these matters to the NSA but it has done nothing. It invites the question - has the NSA sat on the complaint for a long time, has it ignored it and is thus caught with its trousers down when the lawyer comes on the scene? Or perhaps the NSA responded to the Complaint with a 'snow' job - the embryonic immaturity sob story that is invariably invoked under option one as a means of dealing with dissent? Been there, seen it - loads waffle!

None of your prattling on this or any other forum about this case is relevant however - like me, you're not involved. Like me you don't have even "hearsay" evidence to proffer. Your comments to date have been naught but ill-informed speculation - efforts to rubbish a case you have no hard information on. Why are you doing it? Are your puppet masters so worried that they have got to try to proffer some defence on this forum or are they already setting the scene for a pre-trial surrender or a post trial humiliation? Are you endeavouring to set up the faithful to view this as another bit of martyrdom inflicted by yet more of these internal enemies of the Faith?

What this case represents is a BIGS standing up for what she believes to be a total abomination of Bahai and civil law, in which it is alleged the NSA has knowingly colluded in failing to take steps to rectify the situation. I note that Nima who has lived in this community has been unable to offer any information contrary to the details noted in the Complaint and I assume that there is weight of evidence ready for Court, otherwise this Complaint would not have been filed in Court. Irrespective of the outcome, the fact that such a Complaint has been filed in Court is a damning indictment of the AO modus operandi.

This is nothing new of course; we have all seen it before - Alison, Michael etc etc. ad nauseam. But ponder this, dear lady: -

"The worst enemies of the Cause are in the Cause and mention the Name of God. We need not fear the enemies on the outside for such can be easily dealt with. But the enemies who call themselves friends and who persistently violate every fundamental law of love and unity, are difficult to be dealt with in this day, for the mercy of God is still great. But ere long this merciful door will be closed and such enemies will be attacked with a madness.. "

Abdul-Baha answers questions asked by Dr. E. C. Getsinger in the Holy Land: Star of the West, Vol. VI, No. 6, p. 45) - Multiple Authors: Lights of Guidance, page 93

Now what was it one the named defendants is alleged to have said? Something about the "voice of God" - is that it?

As ever,

Dermod.

>

> "Stuart Palin" <kweezil@NOSPAMukonline.co.uk> wrote in message > news:_hpx6.6631$u93.932586@news6-win.server.ntlworld.com...
> > Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message > > news:3AC6130A.13BB6207@ameritel.net...

> >

> > Welcome to usenet, TRB and ARB, Stuart,

>

Indeed yes! Stuart! Welcome to Hell on Earth! BTW how is Stroke City these days?

>

> Power corrupts. Absolute power is kind of neat.

Mein Gott! The AO speaks the secret of its failure!

>

> Perhaps Mr Glaysher,

> if you backed up your venom with facts, rather than grandiose and > unsubstantiated claims I would consider your opinions worthwhile.

As it

> is,

> from a purely objective point of view, you seem to spend most of your time

> pouring out tired posts attacking this religion. You reiterate the same > points over and over again under new header and avoid any form of > intelligent debate. Indeed, your own warning signs of fanaticism fit you > like a glove.

>

Well now, Stuart! Before you start making half cocked statements like that I suggest you take a wee trot over to Fred's site and take a long slow look because it is full of FACTS about the unmitigated corruption at the heart of the AO. No doubt Fred is a tad angry but maybe he deserves that having been treated like dirt by the obsequious venomous toads in the AO. But one thing you got to say for him - he has got his facts and the facts of others, similarly treated, well posted at that site together with links to other sites that may just be as interesting and as full of FACTS. Of course nobody expects a BIGS to be able to distinguish the fact that Fred's site is full of FACTS - it's a kind of mental block that years of adherence and subservience to the AO has accomplished.

So! Like! Use yur loaf and tak' a wee dander over there, afore ye open yur bake again, cos ye've blarged intil an area where some folks don't take kindly tae gulpins!

> I only joined this newsgroup today in the hope of some intelligent > discussion, instead I find tired arguments being trotted out for a > peanut-gallery crowd. Such a waste of time, both mine and yours. I hope

> you

> all enjoy Mr. Glaysher's spectacle, I certainly won't be staying for > another

> encore.

You sure came to the wrong place. You need the kinder moderated places like SRB where everything is kissing the ring and everybody's pals in the unmodulated self praise of those who are in the right religion and everybody else is an poor unfortunate or an "enemy of the Faith". If you want intelligent conversation you have no chance here - full of fundie bigots. Of course you might feel at home with that type of client.

Chin Chin

Dermod.

**>

**>

**>

>Apologies for crossposting, I only really meant to make a statement on ARB.
>I hadn't even started reading TRB when I posted. :**

Dear Stuart,

These are twin lists and you need not worry about cross-posting to them But be careful if you respond to anything Fred writes as it might well be crossposted to everything under the sun.

warmest, Susan

"And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time left to start again . . "

Don McLean's American Pie

<https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>

Top of the mornin to you, Stuart. Any relation to UK NSA member Ian Palin or would that be veteran Monthy Python man Michael??

cheers,

Nima

"Stuart Palin" <kweezil@NOSPAMukonline.co.uk> wrote in message
news:_hpx6.6631$u93.932586@news6-win.server.ntlworld.com...

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message
news:3AC6130A.13BB6207@ameritel.net...

> Welcome to usenet, TRB and ARB, Stuart,

Thanks :)

Apologies for crossposting, I only really meant to make a statement on ARB.
I hadn't even started reading TRB when I posted. :**

-Stuart Palin

**--

Power corrupts. Absolute power is kind of neat.

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message
news:3AC6130A.13BB6207@ameritel.net...

> Welcome to usenet, TRB and ARB, Stuart,

Thanks :)

Apologies for crossposting, I only really meant to make a statement on ARB.
I hadn't even started reading TRB when I posted. :**

-Stuart Palin

**--

Power corrupts. Absolute power is kind of neat.

Hey y'all!

Just thought I'd lay this shiny pearl before you in all its glory:

March is God's way of letting those of us who don't drink experience a hangover.

See ya down the road a bit,
Roy

**--

*********

"Behold a candle, how it gives its light. It weeps its life away drop by drop in order to give forth its flame of light."

~ 'Abdul-Baha

*********

Visit my website:

<https://www.aiconnect.com/~arhil/Welcome/>

"You'll be glad you did!"

ICQ# 92215158

-----= Posted via Newsfeeds.Com, Uncensored Usenet News =-----

<https://www.newsfeeds.com> - The #1 Newsgroup Service in the World!

-----= Over 80,000 Newsgroups - 16 Different Servers! =-----From: "Yorgos"

<nthyorgos@hotmail.com>

Subject: From the attorney

Date: Saturday, May 26, 2001 1:09 PM

Re: The lawsuit against the Albuquerque LSA and the NSA

Who are we and why did we file this lawsuit?

There is a growing group of us Baha'i attorneys who want to return the Faith into conformity with the vision of Baha'u'llah and the directives of the Universal House of Justice. The Baha'i Faith is like a tooth with cavities that need drilling and filling --- but the patient is unwilling. To "save the tooth" we have decided to act in conformity with the UHJ, which has directed the named plaintiff to "take positive action." For those of you who doubt, I suggest that you examine:

- a.. the section on the role of the individual in the letter from the Universal House of Justice titled "To the Bah=E1'=EDs of the World Ridvan 153";
- b.. the May 19, 1994 letter to the National Spiritual Assembly from the Universal House of Justice; and
- c.. Dr. Peter Kahn's taped speech on the Four-year plan.

The offenses that concern me most are when LSA's behave like the KGB. They think that the role of a spiritual assembly is to control and guide, rather than to facilitate and to follow. In addition, some older male members from Iran tend not to fully understand the "two wings of a bird" concept, believing that women should be seen and not heard. Understand this: the Baha'i Faith is meant to be a grassroots, bottom-up movement, not an elitist, top-down scam. Read the writings.

The named plaintiff in the Albuquerque case is a 51-year old widowed mother of two children, and a Baha'i of 30 years. Her 30-year old son has muscular dystrophy and has been unable to breathe without a respirator for 15 years. The named plaintiff has taken care of her son at her home all these years. She turned to her Faith for support and love, and instead has consistently received abuse, oppression and fraud.

The NSA has consistently failed to respond in a meaningful way to her appeals, and the UHJ finally told her to "take positive action." She did, and we filed this lawsuit. I might add that the named plaintiff knows the writings better than 99.99% of the Baha'i I have met, and she dedicated any monetary awards she will receive to be used for the purpose of direct teaching. The other unnamed plaintiffs have been Baha'i on an average for 30-50 years.

The LSA has recently moved to dismiss the complaint, rather than deal with their issues like grown adults. The NSA has irresponsibly chosen to ignore the summons and complaint.

If your spiritual assembly behaves like the KGB, please contact me to discuss starting a similar lawsuit in your city. We are preparing these suits all over the USA. Work with us to return the Faith to conformity with the vision of Baha'u'llah and the directives of the UHJ.

-Yorgos Marinakis, Ph.D., J.D.

Attorney-at-law

From: "Edward Smith" <ridgerunner@privacyx.com>

Subject: Outing Al Marbig

Date: Wednesday, January 03, 2001 8:52 AM

This is of particular interest to the one who calls himself the Mojo Man, but it may well be of interest to Dr Maniac, the Sugar Plum Fairy, Mogadon

Man, Prozac Pete, the Raptor Kid, Kaiser Bill's Batman, Neanderthal, Dr. Death, the Butcher Boy, the Diazepam Duck and all of the other assorted morons and cretins within the Administrative Order - Praise be lavished upon it.

As one who is well acquainted with Al Marbig under all of her various guises and in advance of the publication of the next issue of her current organ, I can assure all of you assorted morons and cretins of the AO that none of you have had a clue as to the real identity of Al Marbig. I have consulted Al about this and graciously received consent to tell the full story to the waiting world.

Al Marbig is the nom de plume de ma tante of Michael John McTavish, an nonagenarian Bahai of indeterminate administrative status who seasonally migrates between the Orkney Islands and Malta. Michael, or John, as we prefer to call him was desperately keen to write a satirical magazine. Unfortunately he just wasn't very funny but, as we are a kindly bunch of souls, we let him make the coffee and write the letter every month advertising the new edition. From this grew a reputation unparalleled in the unpublished annals of the AO which gladdened his heart enormously. Conveniently it also distracted the Thought Police - whilst they were looking for Al Marbig, the rest of us could work in peace and quiet to bring BNW to the spiritually deprived masses of the World. John, or Michael as he preferred to be called just loved being the centre of this attention. But he became very distressed by the way that the Thought Police ganged up on the most vulnerable, in true AO fashion, persisting with their illusions as they vainly thrashed about seeking to find him. We think this contributed to, indeed was the prime cause, of his recent passing.

As befits a true soldier of the cause, Michael, or John as we preferred to call him, was laid to rest in an unmarked grave. To the end he insisted that his passing be kept secret - "Fred," he said, "don't let them know I'm gone! Keep yourselves safe by having them still chase after me!" John, or Michael as he preferred to be called, used to call me Fred although my name is Edward. I think he confused me with somebody else. In that confusion he was indeed a true disciple and adherent of the AO - Praise be lavished upon it.

Quite frankly the name Al Marbig was a mistake. Michael, or John as we preferred to call him, was in one of his periodic states of delusional dementia when he signed up. It should have been Al Rabbig, which as the more perceptive of you will clearly see is a carefully crafted anagram of Big Rab - his cousin. Big Rab was a six dimensional figure, well known amongst the assorted watering holes of Glasgow. He disappeared suddenly during the Government sponsored slaughter programme to eradicate Mad Cow Disease, a condition from which he had suffered for many years and which he had successfully spread throughout the AO, where the disease still persists in its most virulent form.

Sadly I can say no more about Al at this point in time - his memoirs are currently being edited for publication by George Ronald later this year, with serialised highlights due to appear, subject to contract, in The American Bahai in an effort to boost circulation.

Armed with the memory of Al Marbig, and with the assurance of his unerring guidance from the Cyberspace Heaven to which he has ascended, I and all of the others who form the blessed assembly that brings BNW to the world believe a joke is a joke and that you leeches and bloodsuckers of the AO are the biggest joke around at the moment.

Or to put it another way Dr. Maniac, you have been conned and you, big Bully Boy Mojo Man - you've been conned too!

Tallyho! Tallyho! To the Hunt we go! Bring on the Rottweilers!

Rt. Hon. Edward Smith Bt.

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
COUNTY OF BERNALILLO
STATE OF NEW MEXICO

DEBORAH BUCHHORN, for herself )
and for MINORITY SHAREHOLDER- )
MEMBERS OF THE SPIRITUAL )
ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ) ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, )
)
Plaintiffs, )

**)
vs. ) No. CV 2001-01978

**)
)
TRUSTEES OF THE SPIRITUAL )
ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í S OF )
ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, and )
THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE )
BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, )
NEW MEXICO, a non-profit )
corporation, and the )
NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY ) OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF THE ) UNITED STATES, )
an Illinois Corporation, )
)
Defendants. )

PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT TRUSTEES MOTION TO DISMISS COME NOW Plaintiffs by and through their attorney of record Yorgos Marinakis and for their response state as follows:
INTRODUCTION

By incorporating in the United States, Defendant Trustees agreed to follow the law of the land, but it is clear from their Motion to Dismiss that they believe the law of the land places them above the law. If the Bahá'í wish to undertake such civil jurisdiction over their members, they must provide due process,<sup>1</sup> which they have failed to provide for seven years.

ALLEGED FIRST AMENDMENT ISSUES

There are simply and categorically no first amendment issues in this case. Churches are not immune from suit over issues that do not involve religious doctrines:

"[w]ithout regard to the governing structure of a particular church, a court may, where appropriate, apply neutral principles of law to determine disputed questions that do not implicate religious doctrine. Jones v. Wolf, supra, 443 U.S. 595, 99 S.Ct. 3020, 61 L.Ed.2d 775. 'Neutral principles' are wholly secular legal rules whose application to religious parties or disputes does not entail theological or doctrinal evaluations."<sup>2</sup>

It will be shown below that these "neutral principles" are well-established for religious nonprofit corporations. As a general rule, Courts can decide secular legal questions in cases involving some background issues of religious doctrine, so long as courts do not intrude into determination of doctrinal issues.<sup>3</sup> When the canons of Bahá'í law are in conflict with the law of the land, the canons must yield.<sup>4</sup>

Defendant Trustees implicitly assert (Motion to Dismiss, page 9) that this Court cannot hear this case because it involves an intangible or emotional harm to an individual committed by a church. In fact, this case involves violations of New Mexico State corporate law and U.S. corporate common law, not simply offenses to someone's sensibilities. Counts III-V allege violations of statutory duties of corporate officers, Counts VI and VII allege specific violations of filed corporate by-laws, and Counts VIII and IX allege violations of U.S. corporate common law. Count I alleges fraud and Count II alleges libel, not as individual harms but as torts by a corporation upon a minority set of member-shareholders.

Defendant Trustees assert (Defendant's Motion, Section B) that their actions are protected by the first amendment as "ecclesiastical" or "internal," simply because they are a religious entity. If that were the rule, then the Catholic Church could have claimed that a priest's decision to commit pederasty was an ecclesiastical decision and therefore not a civil matter.

Plaintiffs in actuality allege that Defendant Trustees oppressed and abused minority shareholder-member Plaintiffs, while Defendants National Spiritual Assembly failed to act upon Plaintiffs' appeals. This is simply a case of fraud and oppression on the shareholders, committed by corporate officers, which cases State Courts decide every day.<sup>5</sup> The fact that the corporation is a non-profit religious society is irrelevant, because there are no background issues of religious doctrine in this case. I will now justify that statement.

One of the allegations relates to the failure to allow inspection of the corporate books. New Mexico law of non-profit corporations clearly states that corporations must allow its members to inspect all their books and records: "All books and records of a corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time."<sup>6</sup>

In denying shareholders access to corporate books and records, the corporation has the burden to demonstrate strong and articulable reasons for denying that access, such as improper purpose.<sup>7</sup> Defendant Trustees denied Plaintiff Buchhorn access to their books and failed to demonstrate strong and articulable reasons for doing so, having merely informed Defendant Buchhorn

that they needed the guidance of the National Spiritual Assembly. Because the right to inspect books and records by members was a right at common law,<sup>8</sup> Defendants National Spiritual Assembly and knew or should have known that this action by Defendant Trustees violated the law. Named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn's purpose was proper: the "draft" Annual Report showed an admitted 10% discrepancy in the books, and she wanted to investigate it. As another example, Counts III-V allege breach of duties of corporate officers and directors. New Mexico non-profit corporation law clearly states the duties of directors:

"A director shall perform his duties as a director including his duties as a member of any committee of the board upon which the director may serve, in good faith, in a manner the director believes to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation and with such care as an ordinary prudent person would use under similar circumstances in a like position."<sup>9</sup>

These are the same duties set forth in section 8.30 of the ABA Model Nonprofit Corporation Act (herein "Model Act"). These are the "neutral principles" discussed above in the first excerpt. According to that same Model Act, nondirector officers with discretionary authority have the same general duty of care and loyalty as directors.<sup>10</sup> As delegates of the board of directors, officers are fiduciaries of the corporation and within the scope of their delegated management functions are subject to the same fiduciary duties as are directors.<sup>11</sup>

According to the Model Act, to determine whether a director or officer discharged the duty of good faith, the Court must

"look to the director's state of mind to see if it evidenced honesty and faithfulness to the director's duties and obligations, or whether there was an intent to take advantage of the corporation. A director of a religious corporation in making a good faith determination may consider what the director believes to be: (1) the religious purpose of the corporation; and (2) applicable religious tenets, canons, laws, policies and authority."<sup>12</sup> (emphasis added)

This clearly implies that the Model Act applies to religious corporations. Case law also permits the Court examine the religious purposes or applicable religious laws:

"Civil courts adjudicate ecclesiastical matters only when civil or property rights are involved, and then only when their determination is necessary and incident to the adjudication of civil or property rights...The courts will inquire only as to what are the rules and decisions of the church and its tribunals, and what parties or factions adhere to them, without questioning their wisdom or propriety[.]"<sup>13</sup>

There is, however, no need for the Court in this case to examine the religious purpose of the corporation. Defendant Trustees acted in a manner that would qualify as domestic violence.<sup>14</sup> These actions are so far opposed to the true interests of the corporation as to lead to the clear inference that no one thus acting could have been influenced by any honest desire to secure such interests, but that they must have acted with intent to subserve some ulterior purpose, regardless of the consequences to the corporation and in a manner inconsistent with its interests.

Even if this Court finds that the issues in this case involve religious doctrine, it may still hear this case, because decisions by religious entities may be the subject of civil inquiry in cases of alleged fraud:

"a civil court might be empowered to examine the propriety of such an appointment [i.e., the ecclesiastical decision of appointment to a Roman Catholic chaplaincy] if it were a product of 'fraud, collusion, or arbitrariness.'"15

This is precisely the situation in the instant case. Defendant Trustees have made numerous decisions that Plaintiff alleges were the product of fraud. Moreover, even if this Court finds that the issues in this case are purely ecclesiastical, it may still hear the case, because they may pose a substantial threat to public safety, peace and order:

"The courts may not intervene in purely ecclesiastical matters, including church disciplinary actions concerning the conformity of church members to the standards of morals required of them, unless such actions pose a substantial threat to public safety, peace or order. Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205, 92 S.Ct. 1526, 32 L.Ed.2d 15 (1972); Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398, 83 S.Ct. 1790, 10 L.Ed.2d 965 (1963); Paul v. Watchtower of New York, Inc., 819 F.2d 875 (9th Cir. 1987), cert denied, _____ U.S._____, 108 S.Ct. 289, 98 L.Ed.2d 249 (1987)."16

The Bahá'í are the world's second-most widespread religion.<sup>17</sup> Spiritual Assemblies, similar to Defendant, are located in cities across the United States. Widespread abusive and oppressive behavior by these entities is plausible and may represent a substantial threat to public safety, peace or order.<sup>18</sup>

Defendant Trustees claim that Plaintiffs' membership in the Bahá'í Faith constitutes implied consent to their government, which confers upon Defendant Trustees' decisions an internal nature deserving of judicial deference (Motion to Dismiss, page 6). However, this situation invites abuse if the Local Spiritual Assembly fails to follow its own commitment to the laws, which Plaintiff alleges they have done here. As discussed above,<sup>19</sup> this Court has the power to determine whether the Bahá'í have followed civil and their own religious law.

Defendant Trustees implicitly asserts "'religious questions permeate all of the issues in this case.'"20 The Supreme Court of New Jersey responded to such an allegation by stating that it was the Court's duty not to refer civil issues to a religious tribunal, but to hear them:

"To the contrary, as we have noted, distinct civil issues should have been reserved by the court not merely because it had the discretion to decide them, but also because it had a duty to do so."21

Plaintiff suggests that if this Court is concerned with the first amendment issues that it follows the recommendations of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and order the parties to fully brief which issues are religious and which are civil:

"It is imperative, in order to avoid unconstitutional entanglements of civil and religious issues and to preserve the right to civil adjudication of secular disputes, for a trial court to specify which issues are religious and therefore to be settled by religious authority; and which issues are civil and to be resolved by the court...Thus, when faced with cases such as this, trial courts initially should entertain full briefing and argument by the parties as to what issues are 'religious' and what are 'civil'; and as to what is the proper authority to decide 'religious' questions. By providing complete and clear rulings on such questions before referral to any religious tribunal, a trial court will provide the parties and appellate courts with a clear record for informed review of any possible first amendment issues." 22

ALLEGED PLEADING ISSUES

Plaintiffs' Complaint has complied with the New Mexico law of notice pleading, shareholder derivative suit pleading, and fraud pleading. In New Mexico, the theory of pleadings is to give the parties fair notice of the claims and defenses against them, and the grounds upon which they are based.<sup>23</sup> Notice pleading requires only sufficient detail so that the parties and the court will have a fair idea of the action about which the party is complaining and can see the basis for relief.<sup>24</sup> In a shareholder derivative action specifically, the complaint must be verified, the plaintiff must allege that she was a shareholder or member at the time of the transaction in question, and the plaintiff must allege with particularity the efforts she made to obtain the action she desires from the corporation.<sup>25</sup> In Complaints for fraud, the plaintiff must allege the circumstances constituting fraud with particularity.<sup>26</sup>

Plaintiffs complied with all these requirements. The Complaint contains numerous specific incidents and factual allegations that involve more than named Plaintiff. Named Plaintiff verified the Complaint. There is no requirement to name all minority shareholders as Defendant Trustees claims. More specifically, as to Defendant Trustees' assertion regarding the libel claim (Motion to Dismiss, Section F, page 11), Plaintiff refers Your Honor to paragraph 31 of the verified Complaint. As to Defendant Trustees' assertion regarding the literature review claim (Motion to Dismiss, Section G, page 12), Defendants' literature review policy facilitated this abusive situation by preventing shareholders from communicating with other shareholders. This policy is in violation of U.S. law:

"[t]he statutory right accorded a stockholder to communicate with other shareholders regarding matters of common interest as stockholders is much similar to freedom of speech."<sup>27</sup>

The fundamental position occupied this right can be seen by the frequency by which shareholders use it to justify their requests to inspect corporate books and records<sup>28</sup>. In addition to enabling and facilitating the jeopardization of reasonable expectations of minority shareholders, this policy also in and of itself constitutes oppressive behavior.

WHEREFORE, for these reasons, Plaintiff requests that this Court DENY Defendant Trustee's Motion to Dismiss.

Respectfully submitted,

Yorgos D. Marinakis
Attorney for Plaintiffs
P.O. Box 45923
Rio Rancho, NM 87174
505-459-4664
877-430-9550 (fax)

I hereby certify that a true
and correct copy of the foregoing
was mailed to:

Deborah D. Wells
2201 San Pedro NE, Bldg. 3, Ste. 210
Albuquerque, NM, 87110
on this ____ day of May, 2001.

---

Yorgos D. Marinakis

1 Exhibit A: "Developing Distinctive Bahá'í Communities," 15.6-7.

2 Elmora Hebrew Center, Inc., 125 N.J. at 414, 593 A.2d at 730.

3 Elmora Hebrew Center, Inc., supra, 593 A.2d 725; Bacher v. Metcalf, 611 So.2d 1030 (Ala.1992); Ohio Southeast Conference of E.U.B.CH. v. Kruger, 243 N.E.2d 781 (Ct.Common Pleas OH. 1968); Lewis v. Lake Region Conf. Of Seventh Day Adventists, 779 F.Supp. 72 (E.D. Mich. 1991), aff'd 978 F.2d 940 (6th Cir. 1992) Yaggie v. Indiana-Kentucky Synod Lutheran Church, 860 F.Supp. 1194 (W.D.Ky. 1994).

4 Hutchison v. Luddy, 606 A.2d 905 (Pa.Super. 1992), appeal discontinued 611 A.2d 712.

5 See, e.g., McCauley v. Tom McCauley & Sons, Inc., 104 N.M. 523, 724 P.2d 232 (N.M.App.1986) (defining oppression as mismanagement of corporate affairs, misapplication or waste of corporate assets, lack of full access to corporate books and records, books and records not maintained in an accurate or equitable manner, corporate assets used for personal purposes, and jeopardization of reasonable expectations of minority shareholders); Schwartzman v. Schwartzman Packing Co., 99 N.M. 436, 659 P.2d 888 (1983); Dilaconi v. New Cal Corp., 97 N.M. 782, 643 P.2d 1234 (Ct.App.N.M. 1982).

6 NMSA 1978, § 53-8-27.

7 Schein v. Northern Rio Arriba Elec. Co-op, Inc., 932 P.2d 490, 122 N.M. 800 (1997).

8 Schwartzman, supra, 659 P.2d, 99 N.M. 436.

9 NMSA 1978, § 53-8-25.1 (1999 Supp.); see also Schwartzman, supra, 659 P.2d, 99 N.M. 436; Schein, supra, 932 P.2d 490, 122 N.M. 800.

10 Exhibit B: Official Comment to Section 8.42, ABA Model Nonprofit Corporation Act.

11 Exhibit C: Fletcher Cyc Corp. § 838 (Perm. Ed.).

12 Exhibit B: Model Act, Official Comments to Section 8.30, part 5.

13 Ohio Southeast Conference of E.U.B.CH., supra, 243 N.E.2d at 785 (citing 76 C.J.S. Religious Societies § 86).

14 Complaint, paragraph 11.

15 Elmora Hebrew Center, Inc., supra, 125 N.J. at 418, 593 A.2d at 731 (citing Gonzalez v. Archbishop, 280 U.S. 1, 16, 50 S.Ct. 5, 7, 74 L.Ed. 131, 137 (1929) (The Court subsequently eliminated arbitrariness as a basis for civil court inquiry in Serbian Eastern Orthodox Church v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d 151 (1976).); accord, Presbyterian Church v. Hull Church, 393 U.S. 440, 89 S.Ct. 601, 21 L.Ed.2d 151 (1969))

16 Guinn v. Church of Christ of Collinsville, 775 P.2d at 792 (Okl. 1989) (dissenting opinion).

17 Exhibit D: "The Bahá'ís," Bahá'í Publishing Trust, 1994, pages 1, 6.

18 Exhibit E: "The Bahá'í Faith in America as Panopticon, 1963-1997."

19 Supra, footnote 15.

20 Elmora Hebrew Center, Inc., supra, 125 N.J. at 419, 593 A.2d at 732.

21 Id.

22 Elmora Hebrew Center, Inc., supra, 125 N.J. at 420, 593 A.2d at 732.

23 Schmitz v. Smentowski, 109 N.M. 386, 785 P.2d 726 (1989).

24 Id.

25 N.M.R.A. 1-023.1; N.M.S.A. § 53-11-47 (1978).

26 N.M.R.A. 1-009.

27 N V F Company v. Sharon Steel Corp., 294 F.Supp. 1091, 1094 (W.D.Penn. 1969).

28 Indeed, 15 A.L.R.2d 14 et seq. devotes a section to the purposes for inspection of corporate records, dealing implicitly with the lawful and unlawful reasons why a shareholder might want to communicate with other shareholders.

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: something Fred posted on Beliefnet
Date: Monday, September 17, 2001 9:01 PM

Dave

Your response would have been more meaningful to people if you hadn't spent the last two years attacking Fred about the BIGS claim. Those are the posts I find gratuitous, and still do. Doesn't it occur to you that Fred may enjoy getting your goat so easily?

Let's face it, two wrongs don't make a right. Just as true today as when first stated (whenever that was). Isn't the best and only way to help the faith simply to be the best Baha'i you can be?

Cheers, Randy

**--

Dave Fiorito <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0109170654.561bec43@posting.google.com...

**>
> Randy,
**>
> The only thing I have ever done to Fred in the past two years is to > point out that he is not a Baha'i in good standing as he claims to be.
> This outburst was the result of an anger that I have felt since > September 11th. Fred went too far. Maybe I went to far too, but that > does not excuse Fred.
**>
> Cheers,
**>
> Dave

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>
Subject: Re: Really Essential Reading
Date: Monday, December 18, 2000 9:04 PM

Hi Mark,

Question, do you really think that Fred is a Covenant Breaker? I don't think he is, you know, and that's quite some accusation to throw around.

Besides, if he is, you shouldn't be having anything to do with him yourself - doesn't that mean not replying to his posts?

Yup, he's annoying, I'll give you that. I visited his site, read his stuff, learned some disturbing things that I hadn't previously been aware of, but I don't think Fred is really making a push for alternative leadership. Or are you saying that he associates with CBs? Or is it just that because you think he is 'sowing dissention', that is virtually tantamount to Covenant Breaking?

I hope you don't mean the last one, because we are really in trouble if people are going to start spreading rumours about people's status, as we saw in the recent posts Nima sent to this group.

Well, just what, exactly, are you implying in these posts that merely consist of quotes of Abdu'l Baha?

Best Wishes,

Paul Hammond

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>

Subject: Re: Really Essential Reading

Date: Wednesday, December 20, 2000 9:27 AM

Mark Elderkin wrote in message <3a404346@appserver.>...

**>

>"Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk> wrote in message

>news:3a402ca2@news-uk.onetel.net.uk...>

>> Hi Mark,

**>>

**>

>Are you currently referring to yourself as an ex-Baha'i? Do you spend your >time in communication with individuals who have been declared Covenant >Breakers? I guess the point is..... Does any of what I posted >affend you? I didn't post it to do that. I think it is always good to >understand what implications lie in ones actions.

**>

**>

>Mark.

**>

**>

Hi Mark,

No, I'm not an ex-Baha'i. And, I am not personally offended by anything you posted. But, since I *do* understand how serious Covenant-Breaking is for Baha'is, I would prefer for people not to reach for, or imply things about people. Especially since reading the disturbing stuff the Nima forwarded about innuendo in the Australian Baha'i News.

In fact, I guess I go along with the second quote in one of your posts - I would prefer for people not to dwell on these negative thoughts of spiritual disease.

I understand that Abdu'l Baha, and Shoghi Effendi had a lot of difficult personal experience in dealing with people who were eventually declared CBs, many of whom were close members of their own families who wished to build some kind of following *based* on the authority they attempted to derive from their close family ties to the central figures of the faith.

Therefore, my attitude towards CBs would be to assume that the people I am talking to are **not** covenant breakers, unless some authority (Shoghi, Abdu'l Baha, the UHJ or the NSA) explicitly makes that information known.

I especially don't like the kind of thing where someone might try to imply that another person was a covenant breaker, without explicitly saying so - the sort of thing that happened to Nima, where he is not a CB, but there is a message circulating with nods and winks that leads some people to conclude that he might be. (Phrases such as 'he should be left to himself' spring to mind - since **not associating with someone** is the only thing that Baha'is are meant to do to covenant breakers, it would certainly lead people to think that there might be some truth in that rumour).

The only thing is that, IIRC, Essential Reading for Baha'is is one of the titles of Fred's many repetitive posts, so I thought your subject line 'Really Essential Reading' was a reference to Fred's post. And then, when I read a commentless post talking about Covenant Breakers... Well, I just hope that I'm putting two and two together to make five. But, since I would really prefer that you **aren't** trying to insinuate something about someone in this way, and I am confused as to what point you were making. Thought, maybe I should clear that up before I jump in with both feet and make a fool out of myself.

Because, to be honest, what would really cause me the most distress would be to realise that you might be confirming one of Fred's theses, when he writes about 'techniques of Baha'i Fundamentalists', or 'Why I don't reply to Baha'i Fundamentalists'. When, up till now, I had thought that the reason that he didn't reply was because he ran out of arguments and couldn't think of anything else to say. You don't need to justify Fred's paranoia.

Anyway, possibly I'm completely wrong, and you weren't getting at Fred at all. But, please tell me, what was it that made you think we needed to remind of Abdu'l Baha and Shoghi Effendi's comments on Covenant Breakers, and ex-Baha'is who hang around with CBs?

I think the last thing the Baha'i Faith needs is enough rumours floating around about who is and isn't a Covenant Breaker, so that people might become afraid to express any criticism lest they too have rumours or threats of Covenant Breaking circulate about them.

I should go and do something useful now, like pack some bags and go home for the Christmas holidays.

Best wishes, Mark,

Paul Hammond

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>

Subject: Re: Welcome to unmoderated NGs on BF (was: Roman Catholic ...)

Date: Wednesday, December 20, 2000 10:50 AM

Dear Rick,

Your post made a number of points that have given me pause for thought.

I put the reply away in a file, so that I could reply to it at greater length later, so I really should give it some consideration.

There are some points in my post where I haven't been entirely careful in my use of words, and you seem to have picked most of those up. I tend to be somewhat informal on usenet, so most of these faults in my message are due to some exaggeration or hyperbole on my part. I find that there is very little that I can disagree with in your post, on an intellectual level.

Yet, on an emotional level I still feel like there's something going wrong here.

So, I have to think carefully about why **that** is. Now I understand why some people here find talking to you frustrating!

There are many things you say which I agree with 100%. For example:

>Whatever problems we might see, the solution to those problems cannot >consist of individuals also acting in a manner that's inconsistent with >Baha'i ideals. Pointing this out is not the same as saying that the people >who are dissatisfied with the spiritual life in their community are the ones
>responsible for changing things.

*This** seems to be bang on the money.

You also say that there are many, many spiritual assemblies which, imperfect though they are, manage to solve the problems that arise in a satisfactory way. Of course, we never get to hear about these, because satisfied people do not go away and set up websites talking about their problems. This is undoubtedly true. Robert, for example, has posted here about the very satisfactory experiences **he** has had of his Spiritual Assembly. I hope that you are right, and that the very dysfunctional Assemblies truly are a very small percentage of the whole.

Surely, negative experiences get magnified in a forum like this, which is what started this thread off in the first place - someone new to trb had landed, and discovered only that first, negative impression of everyone arguing and squabbling, and throwing around the most un-Baha'i insults - this was my first impression too, but if you stay here for a while, you learn to find the interesting stuff.

Well, there's no way **I** can really know about the numbers - this kind of survey of the health of LSAs is, presumably, a job for committees and surveys at the NSA level. I hope that there **are** substantial efforts to support LSAs that are very vulnerable.

Let me quote the start of your last message, and then I'll try to get to grips with why I feel it's the wrong kind of response.

Rick Schaut wrote in message <91o89l0310e@news1.newsguy.com>...

>
>"Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk> wrote in message >news:3a3ebdab@news-uk.onetel.net.uk...
>> That's fine, but I don't think keeping quiet and trying to work with >> the community for 13 years, before finally getting so frustrated you >> feel like leaving is the best thing for your spiritual help fits what the >> Guardian says here.
>
>There's a substantial difference between "keeping quiet" and upholding the >decisions of our Spiritual Assemblies. Quite often, I see well-meaning >people raise their concerns in a manner that's not consistent with Baha'i >principles and ideals. They get so caught up in what they're trying to say >that they fail to notice how their own behavior runs counter to the same >Baha'i ideals that they want the Institutions to live up to.
>
>This isn't universal, but it seems there's a strong correlation between >people who've experienced severe frustration with Baha'i institutions and >their lack of understanding of some basic principles regarding the forums >and manner in which they should be raising their concerns. Why, do you >suppose, the Universal House of Justice went through the trouble to >elucidate upon these matters in the Individual Rights and Freedoms letter?
>
>By the way, I should point out that I was addressing Karen's remarks >regarding obedience to our Spiritual Assemblies. I don't recall ever saying >that the quote I cited speaks either directly or entirely to Karen's >circumstances.
>

OK - to pick you up on a point. This must mean that you think that the quote you cited had some bearing, to a partial degree on Karen's circumstances.

Now, I don't need to defend Karen, because she is much more eloquent than I am, and speaks for herself.

But, my emotional response to this is as follows:

I have read Karen's experiences on her website. It seems to me that she has a very solid understanding of the Baha'i Faith, after 13 years in the community. Her website also contains an issue based introduction to the Baha'i Faith and other Religions, for any passing seekers who chance by - and links to the official Baha'i site, as well as non-standard Baha'i sources, like Alison's site, and Juan's site.

I believe her, and I believe that she sincerely participated (not 'just kept quiet' sorry for my imprecise language) in the life of her community for 13 years, much of that time being a member of the LSA whose descisions she was upholding during that time.

The first feeling I get is a feeling of overwhelming sympathy, which is the main thing that I want to express to Karen. I feel like it's a crying shame that her experience as a registered Baha'i was so frustrating for her, finally. I don't know how this is, because I have only ever read her words, but I somehow feel the spirit behind them, and it's a spirit of a sincere person, who tried her hardest to make something work, and was disappointed when it didn't work for her. She is still striving, in some way, to make her love of Baha'u'llah work for her in her life.

Yet, in your response, I don't see a great deal of love. Well, maybe some people just annoy each other, and we just have to cope with that. It certainly isn't possible to love everyone. But, you start off by picking me up on the difference between 'keeping quiet' and 'upholding desicions' - a real difference, I admit it. Then you go on to say that people who get frustrated usually have a lack of understanding of some basic principles regarding the forums. (Yes, I know you say 'not universally', but you also say 'strong correlation', which means most of the time).

Now, this doesn't sound to me like sympathy for a person. It comes across as being more like a priest explaining the nature of a church law, or perhaps the distinction between mortal and venial sin. Possibly a very important thing in its own right, but somehow a very intellectual response. It **does** sound like you are placing the responsibility for the frustration **firmly** on the shoulders of that individual Baha'i.

It **doesn't** sound much like the sucessful approach that Robert described, where each person felt the love of the other people in the room, and no-one quoted any scripture at anyone else, or tried to persuade them to do something they didn't want to do.

>

>Look, my thesis is really simple: If people who are frustrated with their >Spiritual Assemblies behaved in a manner that's consistent with Baha'i >principles and ideals, the situation would improve more rapidly, and with >much less angst, than it has when frustrated individuals have failed to >uphold Baha'i principle in their own conduct. This thesis _presumes_ that >Spiritual Assemblies make mistakes. It also presumes that there is a very >real basis for the frustration that people feel.

>

Yes. I agree with this 100%. And yet. It still reminds me of what happens to politicians who lecture their electorate. It may well be very true that the electorate are a large part of the problem. People, after all, have this nasty habit of wanting expensive schools and hospitals, as well as low taxes. We want to drive fancy cars, and also have no global warming. But, politicians who tell it like it is that way do not win elections, and neither do they win the admiration or respect of the electorate. People don't like being lectured.

Baha'is aspire to a higher standard, and with God's help they should be able to achieve it. But Baha'i leadership, even more than secular leadership should seek to inspire and encourage, not load believers down with responsibilities they are not ready for, and then blame the believers when it goes wrong.

>Nor, for that matter, does this thesis presume that solving the issue is an >easy task. In fact, Shoghi Effendi said quite the opposite: that nothing >short of the embodiment and perfection of Baha'i ideals would be capable of >carefully and adequately balancing the conflicting requirements of a frank >and loving consultation.
>

Well, I am attempting to conduct this exchange in a more fitting manner than we often see here. There are bound to be many imperfections in my writing. But, I hope I have given your post a fair consideration.

Best Wishes,

Paul

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Response to a Fanatic
Newsgroups: news.groups
Message-Id: <857214887.14063@dejanews.com>
Reply-To: FG <FG@hotmail.com> Organization: Deja News Usenet Posting Service
X-Article-Creation-Date: Sat Mar 01 11:14:52 1997 GMT
X-Originating-IP-Addr: 199.179.42.119 ()
X-Http-User-Agent: Mozilla/3.0Gold (Win95; U)

(FORGIVE THE CAPS, BUT I DON'T KNOW HOW ELSE TO DISTINGUISH MY REMARK FROM OTHERS)

I'VE DECIDED TO POST A REPLY TO THIS MESSAGE BECAUSE IT SEEMS TO ME TO TYPIFY THE GROSS FANATICISM AND SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS OF SO MANY BAHAIS.... THIS MENTALITY, I BELIEVE, UNDERLIES MUCH OF THE OPPOSITION TO TALK.RELIGION.BAHAI OVER THE LAST WEEKS. NO HONEST MEMBER OF THE BAHAI FAITH CAN FAIL TO UNDERSTAND THE TACTIC OF INTIMIDATION USED BY SOME FANATICS TO SILENCE ANYONE WHO MIGHT DARE TO EXPRESS AN OPINION OTHER THAN THE CONVENTIONALLY ACCEPTED ONE. AS A BAHAI, FOR MORE THAN 20 YEARS, THIS TENDENCY CONCERNS ME DEEPLY. IT IS DIFFICULT FOR ME NOT TO SEE IT AS THE SAME LYING, DISTORTING, AND COERCIVE METHODS USED BY EXTREMISTS IN ALL CULTS AND PSEUDO-RELIGIONS. I BELIEVE THE MODERATORS OF SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI HAVE USED THESE SAME METHODS IN MANIPULATING, THROUGH OTHERS, THE DISCUSSION ABOUT TALK.RELIGION.BAHAI....

I DON'T BELIEVE IT'S JUSTIFIABLE ON THE BASIS OF THE BAHAI WRITINGS....

Date: Wed, 26 Feb 1997 15:55:19 -0500
From: Roger Reini <rreini@wwnet.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: Response to a Jesuit

I am replying privately because I feel it's most appropriate. You do NOT have my permission to post this to Usenet or any other forum.

THE REASON I HAVE IS GIVEN ABOVE.

In my opinion, this note of yours contained some implied criticism of the Institutions and could be construed as undermining their authority. Specifically, this quote:

>This ignores the fact that many Bahais don't accept review and believe >it's censorship....

WHAT RREINI IS INTIMATING HERE, FOR THOSE WHO DON'T PERCEIVE IT, IS THAT I'M A MISCREANT, INFIDEL, ETC....

If this was not your intent, then you might want to rephrase the concept you're trying to get across so that it's clear you're not trying to undermine the Institutions. On the other hand, if that was your intent, then that's something I prefer not to think about.

HERE IT IS AGAIN.... THE RED FLAG OF ACCUSATION, OF THE SELF-RIGHTEOUS, USED TO SILENCE AND TERRORIZE OTHERS, TO MANIPULATE AND CONTROL....
ENDING WITH HIS WRAPPING HIMSELF IN THE MANTLE OF PIETY AND PURITY OF MOTIVE....

Roger (rreini@wwnet.com)

THIS HAS BEEN THE APPROACH OF OTHERS DURING THIS DISCUSSION PERIOD.
IS THIS THE KIND OF KINGDOM OF GOD WE'RE TRYING TO CREATE ON EARTH?
THE IRANIAN REVOLUTION WORLDWIDE? IT SEEMS LIKE IT AT TIMES....

FOR OTHER EXAMPLES OF IT, ONE MIGHT LOOK BACK AT THE POSTING BY DR. STEVE BURGESS WHO AFTER MAKING HIS SHAMELESS INTIMATIONS FAILED TO HAVE THE COURAGE TO REPLY TO ME, WHEN I CONFRONTED HIM, IN PUBLIC, WITH HIS CONTEMPTIBLE INSINUATION....

I PRESENT ALL THIS AS EVIDENCE, TO FAIR-MINDED PEOPLE, THAT AN UNCONTROLLED, UNMANIPULATED, UNCENSORED TALK.RELIGION.BAHAI IS WOEFULLY NEEDED TO ENSURE THE FREEDOM OF RELIGIOUS CONSCIENCE GOD HIMSELF HAS BLESSED HUMANKIND WITH.... THERE ARE TOO MANY SELF-RIGHTEOUS FANATICS IN THE BAHAI FAITH FOR IT NOT TO EXIST....

FG
ROCHESTER HILLS, MICHIGAN USA

SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT
COUNTY OF BERNALILLO
STATE OF NEW MEXICO

DEBORAH BUCHHORN, for herself )
and for MINORITY SHAREHOLDER- )
MEMBERS OF THE SPIRITUAL ) ASSEMBLY OF THE BAH ' 'S OF ) ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, ) Plaintiffs, )
vs. ) No. CV 2001-01978
)

TRUSTEES OF THE SPIRITUAL )
ASSEMBLY OF THE BAH ' S OF ) ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, and )
THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE ) BAH ' 'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, )
NEW MEXICO, a non-profit )
corporation, and the )
NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY ) OF THE BAH ' 'S OF THE ) UNITED STATES, )
an Illinois Corporation, ) Defendants. )

PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT TRUSTEES MOTION TO DISMISS

COME NOW Plaintiffs by and through their attorney of record Yorgos Marinakis and for their response state as follows:

INTRODUCTION

By incorporating in the United States, Defendant Trustees agreed to follow the law of the land, but it is clear from their Motion to Dismiss that they believe the law of the land places them above the law. If the Bah 'i wish to undertake such civil jurisdiction over their members, they must provide due process, which they have failed to provide for seven years.

ALLEGED FIRST AMENDMENT ISSUES

There are simply and categorically no first amendment issues in this case. Churches are not immune from suit over issues that do not involve religious doctrines:

"[w]ithout regard to the governing structure of a particular church, a court may, where appropriate, apply neutral principles of law to determine disputed questions that do not implicate religious doctrine. Jones v. Wolf, supra, 443 U.S. 595, 99 S.Ct. 3020, 61 L.Ed.2d 775. 'Neutral principles' are wholly secular legal rules whose application to religious parties or disputes does not entail theological or doctrinal evaluations."

It will be shown below that these "neutral principles" are well-established for religious nonprofit corporations. As a general rule, Courts can decide secular legal questions in cases involving some background issues of religious doctrine, so long as courts do not intrude into determination of doctrinal issues. When the canons of

Bah 'i law are in conflict with the law of the land, the canons must yield.

Defendant Trustees implicitly assert (Motion to Dismiss, page 9) that this Court cannot hear this case because it involves an intangible or emotional harm to an individual committed by a church. In fact, this case involves violations of New Mexico State corporate law and U.S. corporate common law, not simply offenses to someone's sensibilities. Counts III-V allege violations of statutory duties of corporate officers, Counts VI and VII allege specific violations of filed corporate by-laws, and Counts VIII and IX allege violations of U.S. corporate common law. Count I alleges fraud and Count II alleges libel, not as individual harms but as torts by a corporation upon a minority set of member-shareholders.

Defendant Trustees assert (Defendant's Motion, Section B) that their actions are protected by the first amendment as "ecclesiastical" or "internal," simply because they are a religious entity. If that were the rule, then the Catholic Church could have claimed that a priest's decision to commit pederasty was an ecclesiastical decision and therefore not a civil matter.

Plaintiffs in actuality allege that Defendant Trustees oppressed and abused minority shareholder-member Plaintiffs, while Defendants National Spiritual Assembly failed to act upon Plaintiffs' appeals. This is simply a case of fraud and oppression on the shareholders, committed by corporate officers, which cases State Courts decide every day. The fact that the corporation is a non-profit religious society is irrelevant, because there are no background issues of religious doctrine in this case. I will now justify that statement.

One of the allegations relates to the failure to allow inspection of the corporate books. New Mexico law of non-profit corporations clearly states that corporations must allow its members to inspect all their books and records:

"All books and records of a corporation may be inspected by any member, or his agent or attorney, for any proper purpose at any reasonable time."

In denying shareholders access to corporate books and records, the corporation has the burden to demonstrate strong and articulable reasons for denying that access, such as improper purpose. Defendant Trustees denied Plaintiff Buchhorn access to their books and failed to demonstrate strong and articulable reasons for doing so, having merely informed Defendant Buchhorn that they needed the guidance of the National Spiritual Assembly. Because the right to inspect books and records by members was a right at common law, Defendants National Spiritual Assembly and knew or should have known that this action by Defendant Trustees violated the law. Named Plaintiff Deborah Buchhorn's purpose was proper: the "draft" Annual Report showed an admitted 10% discrepancy in the books, and she wanted to investigate it.

As another example, Counts III-V allege breach of duties of corporate officers and directors. New Mexico non-profit corporation law clearly states the duties of directors:

"A director shall perform his duties as a director including his duties as a member of any committee of the board upon which the director may serve, in good faith, in a manner the director believes to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation and with such care as an ordinary prudent person would use under similar circumstances in a like position."

These are the same duties set forth in section 8.30 of the ABA Model Nonprofit Corporation Act (herein "Model Act"). These are the "neutral principles" discussed above in the first excerpt. According to that same Model Act, nondirector officers with discretionary authority have the same general duty of care and loyalty as directors. As delegates of the board of directors, officers are fiduciaries of the corporation and within the scope of their delegated management functions are subject to the same fiduciary duties as are directors.

According to the Model Act, to determine whether a director or officer discharged the duty of good faith, the Court must

"look to the director's state of mind to see if it evidenced honesty and faithfulness to the director's duties and obligations, or whether there was an intent to take advantage of the corporation. A director of a religious corporation in making a good faith determination may consider what the director believes to be: (1) the religious purpose of the corporation; and (2) applicable religious tenets, canons, laws, policies and authority." (emphasis added)

This clearly implies that the Model Act applies to religious corporations. Case law also permits the Court examine the religious purposes or applicable religious laws:

"Civil courts adjudicate ecclesiastical matters only when civil or property rights are involved, and then only when their determination is necessary and incident to the adjudication of civil or property rights. The courts will inquire only as to what are the rules and decisions of the church and its tribunals, and what parties or factions adhere to them, without questioning their wisdom or propriety[.]"

There is, however, no need for the Court in this case to examine the religious purpose of the corporation. Defendant Trustees acted in a manner that would qualify as domestic violence. These actions are so far opposed to the true interests of the corporation as to lead to the clear inference that no one thus acting could have been influenced by any honest desire to secure such interests, but that they must have acted with intent to subserve some ulterior purpose, regardless of the consequences to the corporation and in a manner inconsistent with its interests.

Even if this Court finds that the issues in this case involve religious doctrine, it may still hear this case, because decisions by religious entities may be the subject of civil inquiry in cases of alleged fraud:

"a civil court might be empowered to examine the propriety of such an appointment [i.e., the ecclesiastical decision of appointment to a Roman Catholic chaplaincy] if it were a product of 'fraud, collusion, or arbitrariness.'"

This is precisely the situation in the instant case. Defendant Trustees have made numerous decisions that Plaintiff alleges were the product of fraud.

Moreover, even if this Court finds that the issues in this case are purely ecclesiastical, it may still hear the case, because they may pose a substantial threat to public safety, peace and order:

"The courts may not intervene in purely ecclesiastical matters, including church disciplinary actions concerning the conformity of church members to the standards of morals required of them, unless such actions pose a substantial threat to public safety, peace or order. Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205, 92 S.Ct. 1526, 32 L.Ed.2d 15 (1972); Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398, 83 S.Ct. 1790, 10 L.Ed.2d 965 (1963); Paul v. Watchtower of New York, Inc., 819 F.2d 875 (9th Cir.

1987), cert denied, _____ U.S._____, 108 S.Ct. 289, 98 L.Ed.2d 249 (1987)."

The Bah 'i are the world's second-most widespread religion. Spiritual Assemblies, similar to Defendant, are located in cities across the United States.

Widespread abusive and oppressive behavior by these entities is plausible and may represent a substantial threat to public safety, peace or order.

Defendant Trustees claim that Plaintiffs' membership in the Bah 'i Faith constitutes implied consent to their government, which confers upon Defendant Trustees' decisions an internal nature deserving of judicial deference (Motion to Dismiss, page 6).

However, this situation invites abuse if the Local Spiritual Assembly fails to follow its own commitment to the laws, which Plaintiff alleges they have done here. As discussed above, this Court has the power to determine whether the Bah 'i have followed civil and their own religious law.

Defendant Trustees implicitly asserts "'religious questions permeate all of the issues in this case.'" The Supreme Court of New Jersey responded to such an allegation by stating that it was the Court's duty not to refer civil issues to a religious tribunal, but to hear them:

"To the contrary, as we have noted, distinct civil issues should have been reserved by the court not merely because it had the discretion to decide them, but also because it had a duty to do so."

Plaintiff suggests that if this Court is concerned with the first amendment issues that it follows the recommendations of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and order the parties to fully brief which issues are religious and which are civil:

"It is imperative, in order to avoid unconstitutional entanglements of civil and religious issues and to preserve the right to civil adjudication of secular disputes, for a trial court to specify which issues are religious and therefore to be settled by religious authority; and which issues are civil and to be resolved by the court Thus, when faced with cases such as this, trial courts initially should entertain full briefing and argument by the parties as to what issues are 'religious' and what are 'civil'; and as to what is the proper authority to decide 'religious' questions. By providing complete and clear rulings on such questions before referral to any religious tribunal, a trial court will provide the parties and appellate courts with a clear record for informed review of any possible first amendment issues."

ALLEGED PLEADING ISSUES

Plaintiffs' Complaint has complied with the New Mexico law of notice pleading, shareholder derivative suit pleading, and fraud pleading. In New Mexico, the theory of pleadings is to give the parties fair notice of the claims and defenses against them, and the grounds upon which they are based.

Notice pleading requires only sufficient detail so that the parties and the court will have a fair idea of the action about which the party is complaining and can see the basis for relief.

In a shareholder derivative action specifically, the complaint must be verified, the plaintiff must allege that she was a shareholder or member at the time of the transaction in question, and the plaintiff must allege with particularity the efforts she made to obtain the action she desires from the corporation.

In Complaints for fraud, the plaintiff must allege the circumstances constituting fraud with particularity.

Plaintiffs complied with all these requirements. The Complaint contains numerous specific incidents and factual allegations that involve more than named

Plaintiff. Named Plaintiff verified the Complaint. There is no requirement to name all minority shareholders as Defendant Trustees claims. More specifically, as to Defendant

Trustees' assertion regarding the libel claim (Motion to Dismiss, Section F, page 11), Plaintiff refers Your Honor to paragraph 31 of the verified Complaint. As to Defendant Trustees' assertion regarding the literature review claim (Motion to Dismiss, Section G, page 12), Defendants' literature review policy facilitated this abusive situation by preventing shareholders from communicating with other shareholders. This policy is in violation of U.S. law:

"[t]he statutory right accorded a stockholder to communicate with other shareholders regarding matters of common interest as stockholders is much similar to freedom of speech."

The fundamental position occupied this right can be seen by the frequency by which shareholders use it to justify their requests to inspect corporate books and records

. In addition to enabling and facilitating the jeopardization of reasonable expectations of minority shareholders, this policy also in and of itself constitutes oppressive behavior.

WHEREFORE, for these reasons, Plaintiff requests that this Court DENY Defendant Trustee's Motion to Dismiss.

Respectfully submitted,

Yorgos D. Marinakis
Attorney for Plaintiffs
P.O. Box 45923
Rio Rancho, NM 87174
505-459-4664
877-430-9550 (fax)

I hereby certify that a true
and correct copy of the foregoing
was mailed to:
Deborah D. Wells
on this ____ day of May, 2001.

Yorgos D. Marinakis Summary of Hearing on Defendants' Motions to Dismiss in the case of DEBORAH BUCHHORN, for herself) and for MINORITY MEMBERS OF THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, Plaintiffs, vs. TRUSTEES OF THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, and THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, a non-profit corporation, and the NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF THE UNITED STATES, an Illinois Corporation, Defendants. Case No. CV 2001-01978

July 18, 2001, 10:30 AM Judge Scott in Albuquerque, NM

The Local Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Albuquerque and The National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States are the DEFENDANTS. Deborah Buchhorn is the Plaintiff.

The Plaintiff filed a complaint against the Defendants for various wrongs committed against her as a member of the Baha'i Faith by the local and national institutions.

The Defendants filed a Motion to Dismiss the Complaint based upon subject matter jurisdiction and failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. In addition the NSA brought a separate Motion to Dismiss challenging the Court's personal jurisdiction of the NSA, a non-citizen of New Mexico.

The Defendants' attorney argued first.

She said that the complaint was barred on First Amendment grounds, that all of the plaintiffs (minority shareholder/members of the LSA community) were not named as required by the Rules, that it was a corporate derivative suit that was not appropriate, that it pleads fraud but fails to plead with particularity as required by the Rules, that the defamation action was barred by admissions of the Plaintiff, and that it claimed an unspecified right to communicate that does not exist.

The Defendants argued that the free exercise clause of the First Amendment bars the claim. The relief requested in the complaint that: 1) seeks to remove the Trustees of the LSA from serving in that capacity for 19 years, 2) enjoin the NSA an LSA from enforcing its literature review policy; 3) seeks determination that Defendants' secrecy practices violated the law; and 4) enjoin the Defendants from following their secrecy practices. These claims for relief demonstrate that the complaint involves a religious controversy.

The US Supreme Court has ruled (in a number of cases cited in the briefs) that civil courts must abstain from religious controversies. The long line of US Supreme Court cases state that church government must not be interfered with by civil courts, and there can be no review or entanglement of the courts with religious affairs.

In the Baha'i Teachings, the Baha'is must obey the Institutions and may not engage in backbiting or questioning of the decisions of the LSA or NSA, for the sake of unity and harmony. The Teaching of 'Abdul-Baha was that God would right any wrong as long as the Baha'is remain united in obedience to the Institutions. These are the religious teachings of the Baha'i Faith and the secular courts must not entangle themselves in it.

The Defendants next argued that the complaint is brought on behalf of un-named minority shareholders of the LSA of Albuquerque. The court rules of procedure require that they all be named, and for that reason the complaint should be dismissed.

Next, the Defendants argued that the complaint is improperly plead as a derivative suit. An appropriate derivative suit is where a member of a corporation seeks to exercise a right that the corporation has (but has failed to exercise that right on its own). In this complaint, the Plaintiff seeks redress for alleged wrongdoing against her --- not wrongdoing against the corporation. Thus, a derivative action is not appropriate.

The next argument was that the complaint failed to plead fraud with particularity. That is, it must state facts showing the time, place, and contents of the fraudulent communication, the identity of the person making it, and what he obtained through the fraud. The complaint therefore fails to state a claim for fraud.

As for the defamation claim, paragraph 13 of the Plaintiff's complaint admits that the Defendants did not defame her.

As for the alleged right to communicate, the Defendants argued that it was vague and not specified as to what right this is. The Defendants know of no such legal right.

The Plaintiff's attorney argued next.

The Plaintiff argued that for many years she was oppressed, defrauded, and abused in the manner of the Soviet KGB by Baha'i leaders. She appealed repeatedly to the NSA but received no relief. Plaintiff argued that Baha'is have the belief that the Universal House of Justice is infallible, but that they have misunderstood the Arabic word used by 'Abdul-Baha which translates into "morally immaculate" rather than infallible in the Papal sense.

American Baha'is view their Institutions as divinely guided and therefore they are particularly susceptible to authoritarian control techniques utilized by their leaders. Most of the Baha'is view the victims of these authoritarian control techniques as being sources of disunity in the community.

The Plaintiff next argued against the NSA's attempt to avoid personal jurisdiction of the court. She argued that the NSA and LSA are a single entity. The NSA asserts exclusive jurisdiction and authority over the LSA, tells the LSA what their bylaws are to be, and states in its own publications that the LSA is subject absolutely to NSA authority and jurisdiction, and that the LSA must obey and sustain the NSA.

As for the First Amendment issue, the Plaintiff argues that the assertion of a religious privilege should be raised by a motion for summary judgment instead of as an attack on the pleadings. It is a substantive defense and does not prevent a cause of action from being stated.

The First Amendment protects the spiritual aspect of religious teaching, except in cases of fraud (and this complaint is for fraud).

As for the temporal duties of the Baha'i leadership, the First Amendment does not protect them. If the court accepted the Defendants arguments, then religions would not be accountable to any court or anyone or anything else except their own religious laws. The complaint deals with elections, inspection of books and records, and fraudulent activity in operating the corporation --- these are not religious issues.

The First Amendment does not protect fraud.

The Plaintiff's attorney said that he has a tape recording of Defendants attempting to extract confessions out of Baha'is. The Defendants carry tape recorders.

He said the complaint details oppression by the Baha'i leadership against the Plaintiff and that religious law must yield to violations of state law against oppression.

As for the shareholder derivative suit, Plaintiff argued that it was properly plead. The LSA has multiple causes of action against the NSA that the LSA has failed to assert.

The NSA ignored all appeals. There is no rule that all of the plaintiffs be named in a derivative suit.

As for fraud, NM law says that only the circumstances of fraud must be plead with particularity -- not the evidence.

The Defendants next argued rebuttal.

There is no rational way to interpret the allegations of the complaint and the request for relief other than that she is a Baha'i that requires obedience to the LSA and NSA, and that resort to the secular courts is not appropriate. Religious dispute would entangle the courts.

Defendant NSA next argued the NSA's personal jurisdiction question. There is a 3 part test. Plaintiff has burden of showing that NSA committed an act to submit itself to jurisdiction of NM court, Plaintiff's cause of action arouse out of that act, and that the NSA had sufficient minimal contacts with NM. Act complained of in complaint is how the NSA handled appeals and its literature review policy. NSA has offices in Illinois. The acts complained of occurred in Illinois. The NSA has no office, bank account, phone, no address in New Mexico. None of the NSA members are residents of New Mexico. There is no registered agent and no meetings of the NSA in New Mexico. The only thing plaintiff could identify that NSA did in New Mexico was pay for media advertising to introduce public to the Baha'i Faith. That is not an act under NM law that subjects the NSA to jurisdiction here. There is nothing to show that Plaintiff's cause of action arouse of that act (advertising). And there were no minimal contacts to satisfy due process concerns.

Judge Scott remarked that it appeared the NSA filed a general appearance (suggesting that the NSA had waived its personal jurisdiction challenge by failing to file special appearance).

Judge Scott took the case under advisement. He will rule by mail.

This reporter will follow up in a month to see if the order is on file.

Jeffrey Goldberg

From: <Wanderer@Gulfcoast.com>

Subject: This is Bahai?

Date: Wednesday, September 19, 2001 7:24 PM

Let me begin by stateing up front that I am not Bahai. I was introduced to the Bahai faith several years ago by a couple I found very admirable and devout Bahai. From them I learned much about the principles and beliefs of the Bahai and though I chose not to join I gained great respect and admiration for the group. Since losing contact with these fine people I have not had any further exposure to the Bahai except learning of the persecution that happened in Iran.

This news group was my rediscovery. I am shocked ! Never have I seen so much hate, vindictiveness and viciousness in a group since alt.society.afganistan. I am amazed, these are not the people I came to respect and admire.

There seems to be major power struggles going on within the Bahai faith. It appears members are being ex communicated for disagreeing with church leaders. It seems there are continuous lawsuits over Bahai assets.

Is this what has happened to the Bahai faith? This is nothing at all like I saw and learned a few years ago. What has happened and what is going on?

From: "Charles" <lmno@mindspring.com>

Subject: Re: > bahai < - LAWSUIT - $10,000 STOLEN - FRAUD & LIBEL in New Mexico

Date: Wednesday, April 04, 2001 3:29 PM

who me? naaah... I'm a nobody.

but who sells real estate by a code of ethics in Rochester Hills, Michigan?

what do the numbers 62035 and Feb 9, 1954 have in common? and what's your job title? and who's your boss?

and no, I am NOT a decent Baha'i. I just am tired of your cross-posting and spams.

Patrick Henry wrote:

> Let's try it again:

>

> Tell us, if you're an honest person, a decent bahai, a model of virtue, > an exemplar for others, who do you work for in the bahai administration?

>

> It's a well known fact that Maniac works for Gharidian. Who's your boss?
> And what's your job title? Assistant what?

>

> --

> FG

> www.FG.com

> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

> <https://members.nbc.com/FG/index.htm>

>

> "Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@home.NOSPAMcom> wrote in message

> news:9afn090b3i@news2.newsguy.com...

> >

> > "Patrick Henry" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message

> > news:tcml1esqbsv2q19@corp.supernews.com...

> > > Oh you make me laugh!

> >

> > So long as you don't demand that I buy you a new keyboard, then we've > > accomplished something positive. That's good.

> >

> > > Your attempting to turn that into EVIDENCE of my manipulating the > > > Complaint is so laughable....

> >

> > I didn't manipulate the complaint at all. All I did was quote a paragraph > > you left out of your post.

> >

> > > Tell us, if you're an honest person, a decent bahai, a model of virtue, > > > an exemplar for others, who do you work for in the bahai administration?

> >

> > Well, as Mr. McKenny has pointed out, the implications of your attempt to > > discredit me as a person are rather clear. Thank you.

> >

> >

> > Regards,

> > Rick Schaut

> >

> >

March 21, 1999

The Local Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Arlington. Massachusetts

My dear Baha'i friends,

I hope this year's Fast found you happy and healthy. This special season, which seems to arrive

sooner every year, always makes us slow down and reflect upon spiritual matters -- why we go through this physically exhausting fasting process, what we expect from it, and what we believe about God's laws and our obligation to follow them. The Fast is a test, but it's also a time of spiritual rejuvenation, and I have always looked forward to it.

But this year was different for me. I was not fasting with the rest of you. This year, I am

observing Lent instead; and at the end of it, I will celebrate Easter, for the first time in my entire adult life.

You see, I've been going through a crisis of faith over the past several months.

The problem is this: I love the Baha'i Faith dearly, but there are some doctrinal and spiritual issues in it that I can no longer accept. Since I began attending an Episcopal church last year, many of those issues have been thrown into sharp relief. Seeing them "from the outside" has helped me understand the latent problems I've had with being a Baha'i all these years.

What it ultimately comes down to is that, now, I feel closer to God and to my fellow human beings than I did while I was an active Baha'i. That's the only factor that really counts, I think.

Everything else either contributes to it, or is secondary to it.

I think I should explain some of my reasons for making this rather unusual move (I don't personally know of anyone who has gone from being a Baha'i to being a Christian, let alone an

Episcopalian). This letter is my apologetic. I hope that it will also help some Baha'is and Baha'i

communities understand some of the factors that I think are causing them

problems, at least in the United States; some of these points, while controversial, should at least spark some good discussion or soul-searching.

* * *

1. Our Feasts are not spiritually nourishing. They must be for some Baha'is, but for me, they don't even come close to a good church service, or a private meditation, or even a walk in the woods.

The big problem is the content. It's limited to readings and prayers from the Baha'i Writings (which truly are a wonderful source of wisdom), and sometimes instrumental music or singing.

Nothing else. There's no spontaneous prayer, or personal reflections, or creative praise. There's no ritual, either; even though the Writings don't actually rule out the creation of new rituals for short-term use, they discourage ritual use over the long term (such for Feasts and for marriage ceremonies), and Baha'is as a rule stay away from ritual altogether.

I think that's a sad loss. Ritual is a "door to the sacred" -- the familiar repetition of a ritual, combined with one's periodic reinterpretation of the traditions and symbolic meanings attached to it, really do help open one's mind and heart to God. It lends focus and framework to our worship, gives rhythm to our spiritual lives, connects us to our history, and constantly reminds us of what's important in our chosen faith. Yes, it has the potential to mechanize worship (I'm sure many churchgoers have this problem) and to distract us from our core beliefs, but that's something each person can learn to rise above. Besides, Baha'is already have individual rituals such as the 95 repetitions of the Greatest Name. Why are community rituals so much worse?

(Incidentally, I didn't understand these truths about ritual when I was growing up in the Christian faith. At the time, it just seemed repetitive and boring. I readily believed what Baha'is told me about ritual -- that it calcifies the faith of a community, and becomes an end in itself, supplanting a living and creative worship. This is not at all true in the church I now attend, which is as vital and creative a faith community as I've ever been in. Maybe I needed to be deprived of the blessings of ritual for a while to appreciate it!)

Another problem is that I need music when I worship, and Baha'is do not have a strong musical tradition yet. There are a few well-known songs here in the United States -- other countries may have more -- but not nearly enough to provide a source deep enough to dip into at every Feast. Of course, it's not fair to expect that a 150-year-old religion will have a musical tradition as large as the 2000-year-old church! But the Faith is culturally so diverse. It has so much talent in its ranks. Baha'is all know each other and travel everywhere. Countless wonderful songs should be flowing all over the Baha'i world by now! Where are they? And lacking those, why don't Baha'is reach into the musical traditions of other faiths more often?

Finally, I am saddened by the exclusion of non-Baha'is from Feasts. I understand that people who have not chosen to be a member of the Baha'i Faith shouldn't take part in the business-meeting part of the Feast, but why can't they merely observe? And why should they be excluded from the worship aspect of the Feast? I'm sure it must be discouraging for people looking into the Faith, who want to experience how we worship. Their presence may enhance the Feast in unexpected ways, too. I will have more to say about this exclusion later.

In short, it seems like different people simply have different needs with regard to worship. Many people I know (including some Christians) honestly don't like church services. Some need different kinds of rituals, some need private meditation, some need to get out into the woods and mountains. To each their own. Unfortunately, the Baha'i Faith doesn't allow much choice in how to conduct Feasts, and what it does allow doesn't work for me.

2. There's no clergy. I find this issue difficult to discuss because it's a core doctrine of the Baha'i Faith, but I really think the Faith has "thrown the baby out with the bathwater" -- there are good reasons to have clergy, and the lack of clergy causes problems for individual believers and for the community.

It's my understanding that the Baha'i Faith does not have a priesthood partially to avoid the trouble that an overly-powerful clerical class can cause (witness the history of the Faith in Iran), and partially to drive home the point that each one of us is responsible for our own spiritual life, with no intercessors necessary between us and God. Both are valid arguments. However, many Protestant denominations (among other groups) have solved both problems, through theology and church structures that have evolved over time. They do fine. I think it's healthier to meet such problems head-on than to do away with the priesthood altogether. I've also sensed a naivete on the part of some lifelong Baha'is about what clergy actually do, especially Christian clergy. In mainline Protestant churches, which is all I have any real experience with, a priest's or rector's job includes these roles:

- Facilitator for worship. They act as sort of a "living center" for sacred rituals, or they preach, or they are simply responsible for planning and executing the regular worship services. This is not a bad thing, and Baha'is might do well to have knowledgeable people responsible for planning and carrying out Feasts, for instance.
- Teacher. They've spent years learning about history, theology, other faiths, and so on. In sermons, in Bible studies, in Sunday school classes, and in private conversations, they teach us all this.
- Spiritual advisor. Since priests are trained in theology, and sometimes also in such things as psychotherapy, marriage counseling, or conflict resolution, they are people you know you can go to when you need guidance. In fact, that's their job. Thus, there's a higher level of responsibility that you can't get from volunteers or from random members of a Baha'i community. (Just before I got married, I really needed someone like this to talk to. I did not find such within the Baha'i communities that I knew, and since I wasn't living in a town that had an LSA, I didn't "have" an institution available to talk to either. It was a terribly lonely time, at a point when I feel like I should have had loving support from a religious organization.)
- Community leader. Each church has its own personality, and some of it (though not by any means all of it) comes from its priest. They are partially responsible for the health of a community, and again, that's part of their job. No one in a Baha'i community has its health and happiness as their primary concern, day in and day out. Of course, Baha'is have their Local Spiritual Assemblies to take care of administrative and spiritual matters. But it's much harder to run things effectively with a committee. And you know what? If I have a real crisis, I don't want to talk to a nine-member LSA, even if it does have God's blessings. I want to talk to a single human being. I want to talk to someone one-on-one, someone who has experience and knowledge that may help, someone with whom I have an ongoing personal relationship, someone whom I know will find time for me. Yes, I know no priest is perfect. But I'll take my chances with a trained priest who has chosen to make serving God his or her life's work, rather than go before an LSA with its nine volunteer members, all of whom I know socially and are probably tired, pressed for time, distracted by their "real" jobs, and woefully untrained in difficult personal issues.

As much as I love my fellow LSA members, I have never felt comfortable going before them with anything personal. It wasn't their fault; nine people is just too many, and their time was always in such short supply that I didn't want to add one more thing to their agenda. Even while I was on the LSA, I never felt we were fully qualified to deal with other people's problems that came before us, even though our ranks did include professional therapists! In general, I'm hard-pressed to believe that the Baha'i Faith can throw out a role as old as the oldest religions, and not suffer the consequences. The role of priest / elder / shaman / teacher probably exists for good social and psychological reasons (not to mention spiritual ones), and it's present in every other religion that I know. It does not have to be incompatible with the Baha'i tenets of personal spiritual responsibility, the independent investigation of the truth, or anything else.

3. Chronic community fatigue and "burnout." The Baha'i Faith seems to attract more than its share of responsible, intelligent overachievers. This is wonderful, up to a point -- the Faith's small numbers in the Boston area belies the huge amount of activity that goes on! But this takes an enormous toll on people. I think the typical active Baha'i works a 50-hour week (either in a job or at home), serves on at least two committees or an LSA, gets lots of Faith-related email every day, goes to talks and deepenings and Feasts, and maybe somehow finds time for daily prayers in the midst of it all. Then they're asked to host a talk or a party or something. Or to make something for a potluck. Or to serve on one more committee. And they cannot say "no" to the Faith they want to serve, until they are just too tired to say "yes" anymore. After all, the Faith's needs are so great; who are we to decline the opportunity for service? I've thought about this issue for a long time. I now believe that the Baha'i Faith in the United States is simply too demanding of its active members. Except in the really big urban areas, everything is done by volunteers, who all have their own lives to deal with. (Hired administrators and secretaries and such would help, but there's never enough money for such luxuries.) Furthermore, service to the Faith is implicitly expected of its members -- and active teaching is explicitly expected. There's always so much that we're being asked to do, to fulfill teaching plans and meet fund-raising goals. Plans are made by LSAs, Regional Councils, National Spiritual Assemblies, the World Center, the Universal House of Justice, and so on and so on. We constantly overreach ourselves, often fall short of our goal, then set the next goal higher. Sometimes victories are won, but at a high human cost: people who were once enthusiastic "burn out," or just get too discouraged to keep going. I think a religion should allow for more balance. We should all have time for contemplation and reflection. Time to be with our families, time to do our jobs really well without being tired, time to allow spontaneous things to happen like talking to a friend or taking a walk. Can we be spiritually whole without that? When we're so busy serving and running around, we can't hear the "still small voice" of God whispering into the ears of our souls. And that's so important. Why do we have an endless conflict between taking the time we personally need, and giving the Faith the time and energy it needs? Faith and sacrifice go hand in hand, but does God want us to sacrifice our spiritual well-being for the immediate needs of the Faith? I just can't believe that.

4. The pressure to teach. This is directly linked to the burnout problem: if we had more people, the work would be spread out more, but at the same time, teaching is the reason we spend so much time and effort and money in the first place! Sometimes it seems that the Baha'i Faith's whole purpose is to spread itself. In fact, this is probably a sound theological point -- if the Faith's only ultimate purpose is to bring about the Kingdom of God on earth, then growth to a "critical mass" is exactly what it should be trying to do. But is this what religion is all about? No, of course not. A religion is also about an individual's relationship with God and the rest of humanity. It's about seeking truth, and it's about learning how to love other people beyond love for one's self. The Christian denominations that I grew up in keep these things paramount; growth is secondary (though it's certainly wonderful when it happens). That comes closer to matching what I know, deep in my soul, to be true. Now, if I truly believed that the Baha'i Faith is the right answer for everyone else, then teaching it would come naturally. But I don't. I know that many of my closest friends and family are spiritually content where they are; or maybe they're not interested in religious topics, and would be bored or put off by my constantly mentioning the Faith. Love and consideration for the people in my life should take precedence over teaching them. In a more sinister vein, the Faith sometimes encourages us to use friendship as a means to the end of teaching. A recent letter from the Regional Council for the Northeastern States recommends that we choose a single seeker to take under our wing, and make friends with them -

- with the express purpose of opening their heart through kindness and friendship, so that they will be more receptive to the Faith. Isn't this putting the horse before the cart?

If I were that seeker, I would be offended if I found out that such a "friendship" was built on the other person's drive to teach, not on a genuine liking and respect for each other. Finally, I think the emphasis on teaching pulls energy and resources away from non-teaching-oriented service and charity efforts. Perhaps if Baha'is were less focused on teaching, and less overwhelmed by the weight of all their other activities, they could do more in the way of community service, which they are enjoined to do by the Writings. Then again, maybe what's really needed is a change of heart -- away from growth as a primary goal, and towards love and compassion for all people regardless of their beliefs. (Mind you, individual Baha'is are among the most loving and compassionate people I've ever met; here I'm talking about the Baha'i Faith as an institution.)

5. An uncomfortable split between Baha'is and non-Baha'is. We talk about unity this and unity that, but we still use that declaration card to draw a sharp dividing line between who can attend Feast and who can't, who can read certain letters and who can't, who can give money and who can't, and so on. It creeps into our language -- "I'm inviting a non-Baha'i to this deepening, is that OK?" "We had six non-Baha'is and ten Baha'is come to this event." It affects our social lives -- we draw a cozy circle around "us Baha'is" and occasionally widen it to include a new declarant or an enthusiastic seeker. It subtly alters the way we view humanity, so that we no longer see one world, but two: Baha'i and non-Baha'i. This is a particularly thorny problem for those of us who have spouses who are not Baha'is. For instance, if there's a special event coming up that my husband and I want to go to, I have to ask if we can both go, or if only I can go. Yet we both enjoy the company of our beloved Baha'i friends (not to mention each other's company), so tension is the result. Another side of this issue came up a few months ago, when I told a Baha'i group that I was willing to loan or give them a large amount of money, but I had to discuss it with my husband first to make sure it was financially feasible at that point in time. Even though it would ultimately have been my own money, I was turned down flat, because he was not a Baha'i and shouldn't be involved with giving money to the Faith!

In contrast, the church we now attend welcomed us right from the beginning, regardless of where we were in our spiritual journeys. Nothing was barred to us before officially becoming members, except for voting rights in the annual meeting. In fact, we didn't even know there was such a thing as officially signing up, until just before that annual meeting. No one made a big deal out of it. Even Vestry meetings (the Vestry being the lay governing committee of an Episcopal church, roughly the equivalent to the administrative aspect of an LSA) are open to anyone who wants to observe. Overall, I felt much more welcome there than I probably would have if I had visited Baha'i events as a non-Baha'i.

Isn't this Revelation for everyone? What are Baha'is afraid of? Why can't we welcome people into our events and lives with open arms and no prejudices based on whether or not they've signed a card? Maybe in some countries there's a security issue, but here in the United States, there's no political reason to fear outsiders! Are we afraid people will laugh at us, or that they'll think we're foolish or naive? Are we afraid they won't approve of us if they see how we talk to each other or conduct our community business? Surely the Faith is stronger than that.

This kind of insularity can only hurt the Faith. Worse, it undermines our belief in unity, and borders on hypocritical. I can't imagine Abdul-Baha' making a big deal out of whether or not someone has signed a declaration card; on the contrary, I think he would welcome everyone, without even pausing to ask whether they were technically Baha'is or not.

6. An uncertain intellectual foundation. I've been fighting against this one for years, afraid to look too hard at some of the belief structures given to us in the Writings. I still can't force myself to study some of the more pedantic works, like "Some Answered Questions," because I can't reconcile myself to believing what's in them.

For example, the unity of all religions is a wonderful idea, and for ten years, I truly wanted to believe it. Guided by the Baha'i Writings, I tried my best to make myself believe in it. There are some assertions in the Writings about other faiths that I never could believe, though. One is about the resurrection of Christ being strictly symbolic. Yes, a physical resurrection is hard to understand and accept, but isn't that the whole point of the ends of the Gospels? Over and over again (in three of them, anyway), they emphasize that he really did physically return, wounds and all, to the shock of his friends and disciples; the letters in the rest of the New Testament keep coming back to that point. It's so fundamental to Christian doctrine that to reinterpret it as "only symbolic" is to dismiss nearly the entire history of Christian theology, not to mention the obvious meaning of the Gospels. In my opinion, it's intellectually dishonest for Baha'is to claim unity with a theological construct that most Christians never believed in the first place. But that isn't the half of it; that doesn't address the central core of beliefs that the Baha'i Faith says is common among all the revealed religions, like a belief in a monotheistic God. Buddhism does not necessarily teach this belief. Some individual Buddhists do believe in God, which may be OK within the tenets of some Buddhist schools (I don't know this for sure), but the earliest Buddhist writings we have -- the Pali texts -- apparently indicate that Buddha himself did not teach monotheism at all! Yet Abdul-Baha' claims he did. Again: how can Baha'is honestly claim unity with this religion whose doctrine they have changed to be something different from what was historically taught, and against all evidence found by historians and scholars? The Baha'i counterargument I have heard most often is that Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha' had direct knowledge from God about these other religions, and therefore we should believe them and not what the other religions currently teach. That may be so; we can't prove or disprove such a claim, at least not in this world. But in a sense, this is a false unity -- the theological sleight-of-hand may help Baha'is feel like they're standing on a firmer foundation, but it does nothing to help them find genuine common ground with modern-day Christians and Buddhists and others. If anything, it hinders any such efforts, because it tends to put people of other faiths on the defensive by essentially telling them they've been wrong all this time. I've seen that happen on the Net, and it's not pretty. Besides, at some point, our own common sense has to kick in and decide whether or not a revelation is correct, or else we'd be blindly following every nut case who claims direct revelation from God. We chose to believe in Baha'u'llah not just because he told us to, but because his teachings resonated with us at some level; either logically or intuitively, we already believed most of what we heard him teaching. Now if Abdul-Baha' had seriously told us that the moon was made of green cheese, and that in the year 2000 we'd all follow the cow in jumping over it in order to bring about the lesser peace, wouldn't a rational person begin to question the fundamental correctness of the Writings? At some point, credibility vanishes and one ceases taking everything on faith. I have reached that point.

7. A lack of open intellectual discussion. This isn't entirely true, of course; since the spark of truth comes from the clash of differing opinions, open discourse is fine, as long as it stays within certain bounds. But those bounds have felt awfully constricting lately. Personally, I haven't wanted to be accused of not being "firm in the Covenant," so I have avoided certain topics that I'd really have liked to talk openly about. This includes many of the issues I've brought up in this letter. (Even if my dear Baha'i friends didn't explicitly accuse me of anything, I know they would still be saddened and disturbed to hear me bring up these topics, and they would probably feel torn between their friendship with me and their loyalty to the Faith. I'd hate to put them through that.)

I did a Web search a few months ago and ended up on FG's Web site. While exploring there, I found an article called "A Modest Proposal," written by a handful of Baha'is in 1987 for the now-defunct "Dialogue" magazine. It was an excellent article, well-written, insightful, and full of courageous and loving suggestions for revitalizing the Baha'i Faith in the United States. But the National Spiritual Assembly did not allow its publication. Personally, I could see nothing in it that might be considered blasphemous, or disrespectful of the Covenant, or even disunifying; to this day, I have no idea why its publication was prevented.

That got me wondering why it's still necessary to review articles written by Baha'is before publication. Is it really just to make sure the Faith is presented in a dignified manner, and to guarantee factual accuracy? If so, why wasn't the Dialogue article corrected and then published? Or is it because certain ideas are considered dangerous, even when they don't directly conflict with the Writings? That frightens me. If the Faith is true and from God, it should be strong enough to remain standing in spite of all our questions and reinterpretations. Eternal truth is like that. If all serious Baha'i discourse has to be vetted for intellectual acceptability before publication, that belies a deep insecurity on the part of the Baha'i institutions. In relation to this incident, the Talisman email list incident, and other things, I have heard many anecdotes that indicate that academics engaged in Baha'i studies feel ignored, belittled, or distrusted because of their work. Add to this the May 1997 correspondence between the Universal House of Justice and Susan Maneck, and I'm almost certain there's an anti-academic undercurrent running through the Faith, in America and elsewhere. (This letter implied that traditional, non-religious methods of analyzing religious texts and histories by Baha'is are less worthy than a faith-based approach, in which the basic tenets of the Faith are already accepted as truth by the investigator.) Again, one wonders what the UHJ is afraid of. Shouldn't we be eager to learn more about the historical context of our Faith, regardless of the source of the knowledge? Why would a dispassionate analysis of the Faith, done by methods widely accepted by the world at large, be worth less than those done from the perspective of faith? It seems to me that we need both, for balance. Finally, there's the matter of Covenant-breakers. We're not supposed to talk with them, nor read what they write. Why not? We're adults, not children; for the most part, we're not so fragile that we can't hear bad things about our Faith and not be seduced into believing them. We might believe on an individual basis that we're not prepared to read such stuff, or that we just don't want to, but that should be a personal decision, not one imposed upon us. For the most part, I bet their arguments against the Covenant couldn't stand up to logical analysis or spiritual wisdom. (The few I've read aren't worth the electrons they're printed on!) If they can, well, maybe it's good for us to argue against them, up to a point -- we could learn from the experience, and grow spiritually and intellectually. Maybe we could even bridge the chasm between us, and view them as human beings deserving of respect and empathy. But sticking our heads in the sand gets us nowhere. Once again, it indicates a fundamental insecurity about the truth of the Faith -- or, even worse, a lack of trust in the faith of individual Baha'is. Either way, it's very authoritarian, and I can't bring myself to agree with it anymore.

8. An overemphasis on unity as an ultimate good. Unity is wonderful, of course, but odd things happen when it becomes the highest ideal that we try to attain. I'm not sure that it ought to be. When I began looking into the Episcopal Church a few months ago, they had just held the Lambeth Conference, a worldwide bishop's conference which happens every ten years. I read the news stories. Boy, did they have unity problems! There were conservative factions, and liberal factions, and harsh words, and behind-the-scenes politicking, and a near meltdown of the Anglican Communion -- all over the single issue of the Scriptural acceptability of homosexual behavior. I found myself thinking, "How awful. This would never, ever happen in the Baha'i Faith."

Later I thought, "Maybe it should."

Look at what brought about the conflicts at Lambeth: many different interpretations of Scripture, to be sure (which Baha'is aren't supposed to have), but also a love for God, for the truth, and for the Church's spiritual direction. And, importantly, a knowledge that they could express their opinions freely, even if those opinions were unpopular with other bishops or were a break with the past. Now wouldn't it be wonderful if they ever do find unity, given these circumstances?

That would be a hard-won, genuine unity. That would be a unity based not on an order that

"Thou shalt be unified!", but on care and respect, forged in the furnace of real conflict. On love, not on law.

I think this "difficult unity" is ultimately better and stronger than one that tends to subsume the search for truth in the name of unity. This happens among Baha'is, like during LSA meetings -- for instance, someone may want to keep discussing a point they know is right, but according to consultation rules, shuts up in the name of unity. It also happens in public discourse, as I discussed above -- if someone has an interpretation of some aspect of the Writings that differs from the standard one, they may feel discouraged from talking about it, for fear of causing strife and disunity (or, horror of horrors, being seen as a schismatic).

Instead of resolving such conflicts honestly, Baha'is tend to bury them, lest those conflicts fester and cause disunity. It seems a little cowardly to me now.

Also, there's a little logic problem in Baha'i doctrine that has bothered me for a while. Baha'is believe that the Faith has never been split into sects (lasting ones, anyway), and will in fact remain basically undivided. But those groups that do separate from the mainstream of the Faith are declared non-Baha'is, simply because they separated. It's a semantic trick, no more. I'm sorry, but there are other Baha'i groups that do not consider the Universal House of Justice an authority. They do believe in Baha'u'llah (though not in the Covenant as we understand it, hence the term "Covenant-breakers"), so the rest of the world would consider them Baha'is. They consider themselves Baha'is too. Only mainstream Baha'is don't, and they have a powerful psychological motive for not doing so: the bedrock of their faith would be shaken if these breakaway groups were acknowledged as Baha'is. This is very shaky ground for the claim that this faith is superior to Christianity and Islam, with respect to a lack of internal division. It also causes mainstream Baha'is to actively shun the company and opinions of certain other people who believe in Baha'u'llah; my soul tells me this is neither healthy nor just, and paradoxically, it makes the Faith less tolerant of diversity than many other religions. And at some levels, what's really wrong with division, as long as it doesn't cause hatred or unloving behavior? I can choose to worship in a progressive church and still love conservative parishioners who leave to go someplace more suited to their beliefs. I can be an Episcopalian and still love my Unitarian and Catholic friends. (And my Muslim friends, and my Baha'i friends, and my Pagan friends, and so on!) I can even play Democrat to my Republican friends, or vice versa. It may be a little harder to understand where they're coming from, since I don't share their beliefs, but tests such as these are opportunities for intellectual and spiritual growth, not an indication that we need enforced uniformity of beliefs. I think what the world really needs is not a ban on divisions, but a spiritual discipline that prevents those divisions from causing hatred and prejudice.

9. Too many answers, not enough mystery. The Baha'i Writings are vast. In my ten years as a Baha'i, I'm sure I haven't read even half of all the English works, and of course I don't stand a chance at reading all the untranslated Arabic and Persian works. Between the writings of the Central Figures and the decisions of the Universal House of Justice, there's probably something authoritative written on almost any topic of spiritual significance! It really does make life easier, having such an extensive set of laws and beliefs that I can subscribe to as a body. It means I don't have to think all the time. I can just say, "Sorry, I don't drink," rather than having to decide how much alcohol is too much. It means I can believe in the ultimate unity of the religions and then shape my observations to that belief, rather than doing the hard work of forming hypotheses based on what I observe. It means I don't have to have any doubts about the humanity's future, since we pretty much know what's eventually going to happen. It means I have a perfectly good explanation of Christ's Resurrection; no need to keep going back to it year after year, looking for new layers of meaning. It means that there are very few unanswered questions left.

And this is supposed to help me grow spiritually? It seems to me that all my real spiritual growth has come during periods of doubt, when I was unconvinced that the answers offered by the Christian or Baha'i doctrines were true. (This is one of those periods.) During those times, I have to go looking for my own answers; those that are given free, without the search, somehow lack the same weight. I feel like I have to use the mind that God gave me, even -- especially -- in religious matters, and to do otherwise would be something less than human. I take the independent investigation of truth very seriously.

The Baha'i Faith tells us that humanity has finally outgrown its adolescence and reached adulthood. Why, then, are we given yet more laws and answers than before? To me, it just doesn't seem to fit.

Furthermore, the set of Baha'i beliefs and laws can only grow over time, as the Universal House of Justice issues more infallible interpretations over the years. They certainly don't seem to be in the business of abrogating anything that the Central Figures have said, nor what they themselves have said in the past. Therefore, the amount of authoritative "stuff" in the Faith cannot shrink; it can only grow. If it continues this way, it seems to me that the Faith will calcify -- with so many unchangeable answers, it will gradually lose its ability to adapt, even if it must do so in order to fulfill its divine station.

There is one non-religious idea that I've concluded is a fundamental truth about the world: the concept of incremental change, of slow adaptation to changing conditions while retaining an unchangeable core of individuality or "self." It's required for anything to thrive, whether it be an organism, a species, a personality, a building, a city, a software artifact, even a belief system.

Christianity tried for centuries to resist change, only to be rocked by periodic upheavals like the Reformation. Now many denominations have learned to adapt to a changing world and an advancing understanding of morality, and they work pretty well. The Episcopal Church, at least, offers a relatively simple Gospel-based core doctrine, but its non-core beliefs change with the times. The changes are done thoughtfully, not according to whims or fads, but slowly -- just enough to maintain a certain aliveness. The Church once condoned the subordination of women; now it doesn't. It may once have been silent on the issues of slavery and racism in America; it certainly isn't anymore. The institution learns and adapts. (Ironically, the Baha'i Faith explicitly teaches incremental change, in the form of progressive revelation -- each religion teaches a core of unchangeable truths, but with a set of beliefs and laws that change from one revelation to another. But the time scale is all wrong; will we really be living with all these same early-twentieth-century interpretations for a thousand years? I find that hard to believe.) Christianity in general seems to fit this incremental-change model particularly well. There are many Gospels, and none of them are guaranteed to have accurately recorded the exact words and deeds of Christ. Their authors had certain audiences, certain agendas. They contradict each other sometimes, in fact. But because of these loving yet human retellings, the story of Christ's life takes on a mythic status, more so than a historical one. And here the importance of mystery arises: because the Christ story is myth-like, its meaning shifts and deepens throughout a person's life (or a culture's). How can there be any one interpretation to something as profoundly simple as the Last Supper? It's a holy mystery. Different interpretations are appropriate for different people, or at different stages of a person's life, or in different cultures. No one can force a certain interpretation on me, nor should they -- it would lose its mystery, and ruin any chance that I can get other meanings out of it later. Nailing down a single interpretation would damage the myth beyond repair, by stripping it of its mysterious aspect. I'm convinced that this is why Christianity has lasted so long, and is still growing, in spite of its fragmentation. Its mythic basis allows for changing interpretations, while still remaining firm on the fundamental Christian truths (those pronounced uniformly by all the Gospels). It permits a diversity of denominations, for people with different needs and values. And above all, it offers an infinitely deep pool of spiritual truth, never running dry, no matter how many times a person goes back to it during his or her lifetime. In contrast, the Baha'i Faith offers a pool which is large, but necessarily finite; definitive answers are always there for the asking.

* * *

As you can see, I seem to have irreconcilable differences with the Baha'i Faith. The question remaining to me is: am I still a Baha'i? If I believe in Baha'u'llah as the Manifestation of God for this day, then I would still be a Baha'i. That's the only test that counts. The answer is, I just don't know anymore. I no longer have the certitude I once had. I know I'll find out if He is or not in the next world, but until then, I just can't make myself believe it. Because of the solidity, coherence, and authority of its teachings, the Baha'i Faith is not a religion in which one can just pick and choose what to believe or not believe. My soul is still moved by Baha'u'llah's writings, and probably will always be; their beauty is simply incomparable. I'm sure they're divinely inspired (though I'm no longer sure exactly how). But most of the issues I've described here come from later interpretations, not from His own pen. Therein lies the problem. With the Covenant, Baha'u'llah made it very clear that Abdul-Baha' was his successor, and that what he said was authoritative; and then it passed to the Guardian, and so on down to the Universal House of Justice. To believe in the authority of some of these institutions and not others is to break the Covenant, which is emotionally impossible for me. It's also illogical. I don't see how I can believe that Baha'u'llah was who He said He was, and yet discount what He clearly said about the succession of His authority. That leaves two choices: I accept all of it, or I accept none of it. Now you know what I have to do. Since I can't make myself accept all of it anymore, I feel like I have no choice but to resign my membership in the Baha'i Faith. Please understand that this was not an easy decision for me to make. It took months. It's still deeply painful, and it will remain so for a very long time; I have been a Baha'i for my entire adult life, and it is part of my identity. Its teachings are deeply entwined with my personal value system, to the point where I don't know sometimes where my own beliefs end and the Baha'i doctrines begin. I still have a great love for my Baha'i friends, and I'm acutely aware of how much pain this will cause them. To spare them this pain, I considered quietly "going inactive," but I don't think that would be intellectually honest, especially since I plan to be active in the church that we're attending. I also need closure to this whole matter, and leaving it open-ended like that just prolongs it unnecessarily. And besides, every new beginning requires an ending! I hope that the Baha'is that I know and love can understand why I am doing this. I don't think the Faith is entirely wrong -- I'm just not sure it's entirely right, that's all. It's definitely not right for me, at this point in my life. I know that many of my Baha'i friends do know it's right for them; may they continue growing happily in the Faith! My prayers will always be with them. And the Faith will be right for many seekers. I do think that growth will come, in time; the Faith offers so many wonderful solutions for the problems of this world.

But I also hope that if "entry by troops" does not happen in the way that Baha'is expect it to, that they may better understand why the Faith is not right for many seekers. I tried my best to make it right for me, but couldn't do it -- and I was a deepened Baha'i with a strong incentive to stay with it! One of the ways I think the Faith must adapt is to accept its place as one of many, many diverse religions in the world, not as a tiny religion which assumes that it will eventually claim the majority of the world's people. It will not appeal to all those people, because many people's spiritual needs will not be fulfilled by the Faith. If this letter can help the Baha'is understand that better, then that's really the best I can hope for.
I read a book recently called "Things Seen and Unseen." It's an autobiographical work by an Episcopalian woman who describes her slow transition into a church community as being "pushed by God" -- as though there was an invisible hand at her back, gently pushing her in the direction that she needs to go to achieve spiritual maturity. That's what I've been feeling for the last six months. When you feel the hand of God, you go with it. I don't know where I'm going.
But I trust that it will be where God wants me to be.
I love you all dearly, and I pray that God may walk with you through all your journeys.

Jenifer Tidwell

www.mit.edu/~jtidwell/letter\_1sa.html

From: "Karen Bacquet" <karenbacquet@hotmail.com>
Subject: UHJ letter on withdrawals (for Don)
Date: Saturday, October 06, 2001 2:28 PM

4 April 2001

To all National Spiritual Assemblies

Dear Baha'i Friends,

The International Teaching Centre has sought elucidation of issues concerning the attitude of Baha'is and Baha'i institutions towards those who have withdrawn from the Faith.

In response, we have provided the following comments, which are being sent to you for your information and guidance. You are free to share this letter with the believers under your jurisdiction as you wish.

One's beliefs are an internal and personal matter; no person or institution has the right to exert compulsion in matters of belief. Since there is a wide range of meanings in the Sacred Scriptures, there are bound to be different ways in which individuals understand many of the Baha'i teachings. Nevertheless, it is necessary for the viability of the Baha'i community that its members share a common understanding of essentials. This implies a commitment by each member to function within the framework established by such an understanding.

This framework includes, for example, cognizance of the existence of a Divine Revelation brought by Baha'u'llah, the Manifestation of God for this age, and acceptance of the two primary duties prescribed by God, as expressed in the Kitab i Aqdas, the Most Holy Book of the Baha'i Revelation. These are: "recognition of Him Who is the Dayspring of His Revelation and the Fountain of His laws," and observance of "every ordinance of Him Who is the Desire of the world. These twin duties," the Aqdas firmly states, "are inseparable. Neither is acceptable without the other."

'Abdu'l Baha, Whom Baha'u'llah appointed as the Interpreter of His writings, reaffirms these fundamentals of Baha'i belief. In His Will and Testament He writes: "This is the foundation of the belief of the people of Baha (may my life be offered up for them): 'His Holiness, the Exalted One (the Bab), is the Manifestation of the Unity and Oneness of God and the Forerunner of the Ancient Beauty. His Holiness the Abha Beauty (may my life be a sacrifice for His steadfast friends) is the Supreme Manifestation of God and the Dayspring of His Most Divine Essence. All others are servants unto Him and do His bidding.'"

It is within the context of these statements of basic belief and practice that membership in the Baha'i Faith is determined. Acknowledging that the matter of ascertaining the qualification of a true believer is a delicate and complex question, Shoghi Effendi, the appointee of 'Abdu'l Baha as Guardian of the Cause and authorized interpreter of its teachings, set down for Spiritual Assemblies the principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded as a true believer or not: "Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Baha'i Cause, as set forth in 'Abdu'l Baha's Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Baha'i administration throughout the world...."

Viewed in the light of these texts, a statement that one wishes to withdraw from the Baha'i community, but not from the Faith, is seen to be self contradictory. The Baha'i community must be seen in its proper light. The necessity for its existence as an inseparable element of the Faith itself is explained by the stated purpose of the Revelation of Bahá'u'lláh: to bring about a Divine Civilization. The embodiment of that purpose and of the spirit breathed by Bahá'u'lláh into the world is the Order He has ordained, to which He refers in the Most Holy Book in asserting: "The world's equilibrium hath been upset through the vibrating influence of this most great, this new World Order. Mankind's ordered life hath been revolutionized through the agency of this unique, this wondrous System the like of which mortal eyes have never witnessed."

Normally, a Spiritual Assembly is called upon to make a decision in such matters only as the result of an action by an individual, either in declaring his belief in Bahá'u'lláh, or in stating that he wishes to withdraw from the Faith, or, very rarely, in persistently promoting concepts which are clearly inconsistent with the essentials of membership outlined above.

Acceptance of the Faith is the voluntary act of an individual and is registered by the appropriate Baha'i institution unless it has good reason not to do so. Likewise, a Baha'i is free to leave the Faith voluntarily. When a member of the community informs the Assembly of his wish to withdraw, it would try to help him overcome whatever problems seem to be the cause of his desiring to take such a step. If he persists in his intention, the Assembly would normally accept the withdrawal unless there were grounds for suspecting that he is acting insincerely out of some ulterior motive, such as to violate a Baha'i law with impunity.

In spite of loving encouragement given by their Assemblies, not all Baha'is are active in the work of the community. This does not, of course, necessarily indicate withdrawal. An Assembly should carefully distinguish between those who are not active but still identify themselves with the Faith, and those whose inactivity indicates complete lack of interest and a wish to have nothing more to do with the Cause.

Once a person's resignation from the Faith has been accepted, his status is that of a non Baha'i and except as noted below his relationship with Baha'i institutions and individual believers is the same as that of any other non Baha'i. As in all human relationships, the closeness of this connection, and the warmth of friendship, depend upon personal factors.

Sometimes, after a person's withdrawal from the Cause has been accepted, it becomes evident that his statements were insincere and were made merely in order to evade Baha'i law. The Assembly need not take any overt action in such a case, but would note the matter in its records. In other words, it would have to be cautious about accepting a subsequent declaration of belief from this individual until satisfied that it is made in good faith. Also, depending upon the circumstances, the Assembly might require him to rectify the action, taken in violation of Baha'i law, which was the motive for his withdrawing from the Faith.

An analogous situation arises when a person who is engaged in some activity which he suspects would result in his being declared a Covenant breaker withdraws from the Faith under the impression that this step would prevent such an outcome. The Universal House of Justice may conclude that the withdrawal provides adequate protection of the community from the individual in question. However, if he persists, following his withdrawal, in trying to undermine the Covenant or joins forces with Covenant breakers, he may be judged to have broken the Covenant, and the friends would be told to have no association with him. Each such case would be considered in the context of its specific circumstances.

There is one other condition which should be mentioned. There are certain former Baha'is whose actions do not necessarily constitute Covenant breaking, but are seriously destructive. Where such people have shown that they are impervious to explanations or exhortations from the Baha'i institutions, continued association with them can be burdensome and can exert a spiritually corrosive effect on the faith of believers. In such cases the Head of the Faith may simply advise the Baha'is to leave them to their own devices.

Thus, there are exceptional cases in which a former believer's spiritual attitude to the Faith may, to various degrees, create an estrangement between him and the Baha'is. In general, however, a person who has withdrawn from the Faith is regarded as being among the generality of humankind with whom the Baha'is are enjoined to associate "in joy and fragrance".

With loving Baha'i greetings,

cc: International Teaching Centre Continental Boards of Counsellors Counsellors

**--

"The essence of all that We have revealed for thee is Justice . . ." --

Baha'u'llah

PART I

From the Universal House of Justice to all National Spiritual Assemblies

April 4, 2001

Dear Baha'i Friends:

The international teaching Centre has sought elucidation of issues concerning the attitude of Baha'is and Baha'i institutions towards those who have withdrawn from the Faith. In response, we have provided the following comments, which are being sent to you for your information and guidance. You are free to share this letter with the believers under your jurisdiction as you wish.

One's beliefs are an internal and personal matter; no person or institution has the right to exert compulsion in matters of belief. Since there is a wide range of meanings in the Sacred Scriptures, there are bound to be different ways in which individuals understand many of the Baha'i teachings. Nevertheless, it is necessary for the viability of the Baha'i community that its members share a common understanding of essentials. This implies a commitment by each member to function within the framework established by such an understanding.

The framework includes, for example, cognizance of the existence of a Divine Revelation brought by Baha'u'llah, the Manifestation of God for this age, and acceptance of the two primary duties prescribed by God, as expressed in the Kitab-I-Aqdas, the Most Holy Book of the Baha'i Revelation. These are: "recognition of Him Who is the Dayspring of His Revelation and the Fountain of His laws," and observance of every ordinance of Him Who is the Desire of the world. These twin duties," the Aqdas firmly states, "are inseparable. Neither is acceptable without the other."

Abdul-Baha, Whom Baha'u'llah appointed as the Interpreter of His writings, reaffirms these fundamentals of Baha'i belief. In His Will and Testament He Writes: "This is the foundation of the belief of the people of Baha (may my life be offered up for them): 'His Holiness, the Exalted One (the Bab), is the Manifestation of the Unity and Oneness of God and the Forerunner of the Ancient Beauty. His Holiness the Abha Beauty may my life be a sacrifice for His steadfast friends) is the Supreme Manifestation of God and the Dayspring of His Most Divine Essence. All others are servants unto Him and do His bidding.'"

It is within the context of these statements of basic belief and practice that membership in the Baha'i Faith is determined. Acknowledging that the matter of ascertaining and qualification of a true believer is a delicate and complex question, Shoghi Effendi, the appointee of Abdul-Baha as Guardian of the Cause and authorized interpreter of its teachings, set down for Spiritual Assemblies the principal factors that must be taken into consideration before deciding whether a person may be regarded as a true believer or not: "Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Baha'i Cause, as set forth in Abdul-Baha's Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Baha'i administration throughout the world ."

Viewed in the light of these texts, a statement that one wishes to withdraw from the Baha'i community, but not from the Faith, is seen to be self-contradictory. The Baha'i community must be seen in its proper light. The necessity for its existence as an inseparable element of the Faith itself is explained by the stated purpose of the Revelation of Baha'u'llah: to bring about a Divine Civilization. The embodiment of that purpose and the spirit breathed by Baha'u'llah into the world is the Order He has ordained, to which He refers in the Most Holy Book in asserting: "The world's equilibrium hath been upset through the vibrating influence of this most great, this new World Order. Mankind's ordered life hath been revolutionized through the agency of this unique, this wondrous System the like of which mortal eyes have never witnessed."

PART II -- Continued

Normally, a Spiritual Assembly is called upon to make a decision in such matters only as the result of an action by an individual, either in declaring his belief in Baha'u'llah, or in stating that he wishes to withdraw from the Faith, or, very rarely, in persistently promoting concepts which are clearly inconsistent with the essentials of membership outlined above.

Acceptance of the Faith is the voluntary act of an individual and is registered by the appropriate Baha'i institution unless it has good reason not to do so. Likewise, a Baha'i is free to leave the Faith voluntarily. When a member of the community informs the Assembly of his wish to withdraw, it would try to help him overcome whatever problem seems to be the cause of his desiring to take such a step. If he persists in his intention, the Assembly would normally accept the withdrawal unless there were grounds for suspecting that he is acting insincerely out of some ulterior motive, such as to violate a Baha'i law with impunity.

In spite of loving encouragement given by their Assemblies, not all Baha'is are active in the work of the community. This does not, of course, necessarily indicate withdrawal. An Assembly should carefully distinguish between those who are not active but still identify themselves with the Faith, and those whose inactivity indicates complete lack of interest and a wish to have nothing more to do with the Cause.

Sometimes, after a person's withdrawal from the Cause has been accepted, it becomes evident that his statements were insincere and were made merely in order to evade Baha'i law. The Assembly need not take any overt action in such a case, but would note the matter in its records. In other words, it would have to be cautious about accepting a subsequent declaration of belief from the individual until satisfied that it is made in good faith. Also, depending upon the circumstances, the Assembly might require him to rectify the action, taken in violation of Baha'i law, which was the motive for his withdrawing from the Cause.

An analogous situation arises when a person when a person who is engaged in some activity which he suspects would result in his being declared a Covenant-breaker withdraws from the Faith under the impression that this step would prevent such an outcome. The Universal House of Justice may conclude that the withdrawal provides adequate protection of the community from the person in question. However, if he persists, following his withdrawal, in trying to undermine the Covenant or joins forces with Covenant-breakers, he may be judged to have broken the Covenant, and the friends would be told to have no association with him. Each such case would be considered in the context of its specific circumstances.

There is one other condition which should be mentioned. There are certain former Baha'is whose actions do not necessarily constitute Covenant-breaking, but are seriously destructive. Where such people have shown that they are impervious to explanations or exhortations from the Baha'i institutions, continued association with them can be burdensome and can exert a spiritually corrosive effect on the faith of believers. In such cases the Head of the Faith may simply advise the Baha'is to leave them to their own devices.

Thus, there are exceptional cases in which a former believer's spiritual attitude to the Faith may, to various degrees, create an estrangement between him and the Baha'is. In general, however, a person who has withdrawn from the Faith is regarded as being among the generality of humankind with whom the Baha'is are enjoined to associate "in joy and fragrance".

The Universal House of Justice

[Four footnotes]

From: "BIGS - Bahai In *Perfectly* Good Standing"
<patrick_henry@liberty.com>
Subject: Why I Crosspost to Three Newsgroups
Date: Friday, April 27, 2001 7:16 AM

In addition to below, be sure to see FULL TEXT:
New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL 3/2/2001
https://members.nbc.com/\_XMCM/FG/NMLawsuit.htm

-----
My crossposts to soc.culture.israel, soc.culture.iranian, and talk.religion.misc are entirely within the acceptable parameters for crossposting to newsgroups related to the subject at hand:

The bahai faith *began* in Iran in 1844, the major bahai religious sites and institutions are *located* in *Israel*, *all* religions may join discussion on talk.religion.misc.

The unsuspecting public ought to be informed and have the opportunity to judge and decide the facts for itself.

It should be evident to any intelligent person that bahai fundamentalists have a hidden agenda and their self-interest in mind when they malign me and many, many other people on talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, AOL, and elsewhere.

Since fundamentalists among my fellow bahais have always relied on their ability to operate one way in one country and another elsewhere and the Internet now no longer makes that possible, as dramatically demonstrated with the former USSR and China, the universal house of "justice," like other totalitarian regimes, will have to confront and answer for the consequences of their own hypocrisy. Their slandering me for "spamming" also won't prevent perceptive people from realizing what's really going on....

Those interested in judging independently for themselves my background and whether I'm "unbalanced," as bahai fundamentalist struggle to portray me, may do so by reading my Biographical Note: <https://fglaysher.com/bio.htm>

I believe it is my duty, bahai and otherwise, to inform my fellow citizens, local and global, of the appalling and incessant hypocrisy that lies behind the deceptive, progressive facade that the uhj so often fobs off on the unsuspecting public....

**--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

https://members.nbci.com/\_XMCM/FG/index.htm

From: "BIGS - Bahai In *Perfectly* Good Standing"

<patrick_henry@liberty.com>

Subject: Why I Don't Respond to Fundamentalists

Date: Saturday, April 28, 2001 6:26 AM

In addition to below, be sure to see FULL TEXT:

New Mexico LAWSUIT against bahai institutions for FRAUD & LIBEL 3/2/2001

https://members.nbci.com/\_XMCM/FG/NMLawsuit.htm

After over four years of observing the tactics of bahai fundamentalists, I've learnt a few things about the way they operate:

- 1. Always smear and attack the individual.
- 2. Lure into supposed discussion then cut the jugular.
- 3. Work together to create the perception for non-bahais that the individual is unbalanced, aberrant, etc....

4. Change or ignore the subject.

5. Shift to the past and argue over who said what, when, where, how, etc....

As long as the uhj uses "review" to suppress all free thought and discussion and encourages such unseemly tactics, attempting to disucss anything with them is simply a waste of time and energy.

I have many interests in life. Documenting bahai fundamentalism is only one of them. Many people other than myself have noted "The Baha'i Technique":

<https://members.nbci.com/FG/technique.htm>

Nobody has to read my reposts who has done so already. My Message Rules are full of fundamentalists. Others may use the same technology to filter out my reposts.They're intended for the uninformed.... And they will be staying on the newsgroups I choose as long as bahai censorship and deceit continue. It should be evident to informed people that fundamentalists desire to suppress all knowledge of their suppression and coercion of bahais and non-bahais over the last decade or more now.

I am only interested in preserving the record of what bahai fundamentalists have done. Others may read it and decide for themselves.

Anyone interested in my views may read them in my archives or glean them from my reposts, which, in my view, preserve the historical record of how low bahai fanatics have been willing to go....

I can only hope by serving humbly, as the self-appointed archivist/historian for talk.religion.bahai and for all the many victims of the "universal" house of "justice," that someday someone will come along who will dig deep enough into the record that the truth will begin to surface.

Impartial nonbahai observers might wish to compare and decide for themselves whether the picture fundamentalists labor so hard to paint of me is accurate or not:

<https://fglaysher.com/bio.htm>

And then ask yourself why would they go to such extremes? What is it they don't want you to know? I submit the answers may be found on my bahai webpages....

It is my hope that the distortions of the uhj will begin to be purged, it will gradually reform itself, acknowledging the broad and liberal Teachings of Baha'u'llah that it has suppressed now for so long.....

**--

FG

www.FG.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>
Subject: Re: bahai - TERRORISM 5 - Testimonies re US bahai community
Date: Saturday, October 27, 2001 4:42 PM

Dave Fiorito <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0110261156.6340fd16@posting.google.com...

>
>
> > And whose "image" is accurate, Dave? There are a myriad ways to look at
the > > Revelation -- not just one simplistic "official" way.
>
> I agree. I agree. I agree. That is why "review" is temporary.
>

What is it now? 60 years and counting? When *did* review start?

Sounds to me like it's worse than those "temporary" internment rules the British government brought in to deal with its terrorist problem which somehow hung around for ever until they were forced to change them by later events (a useful point to bear in mind in the present times of fear)

> The AO is a dynamic organization that will > change to meet the character of the community because we are the ones > that elect them.
>

Hmm. I *was* just giggling at the first phrase, but then I realised that there is a serious point to be made about the last part. No-one is ever voted off the higher assemblies. Whatever Shoghi Effendi attended to achieve by this system, dynamism is *not* one of the outcomes. ISTR that this is a situation that worries Susan enough that she has talked here before about options for voting reform.

Paul

From: "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: bahai - TERRORISM 5 - Testimonies re US bahai community
Date: Saturday, October 27, 2001 9:00 PM

"Dave Fiorito" <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0110261156.6340fd16@posting.google.com...

Dave,

> Yes there are - you cannot express heartfelt support for the Nth > Living Gaurdian. You cannot lay claim to a Revelation from God ere > the expiration of a thousand years, and one cannot express one's > interpretations as authoritative.

The only Bahai law regarding expression is that it does not claim to be authoritative. And nobody around here or most other places claims to be authoritative so the AO should just butt out and go do something useful for a change.

There are ABMS for Protection - what do they do? What do they protect? Why are they not here protecting the Faith for us "spiritually corrosive" types? Because they are too busy protecting the AO from any form of internal criticism!

>
> > Penalties in this country cannot be imposed ex post > > facto, even in criminal law. This guy was just participating in an email > > discussion, shared a personal experience, then Wham! he's on the carpet for > > it.

>
> And I agree that the incident was not handled with the right kind of > tact or wisdom.

Or in short it was a real TARFU!

> > > Karen - they have stopped. Its been what - nearly 2 years?
> >
> > About a year and a half. I'm not convinced they've stopped.
After all, it > > was nearly three years between the disenrollments of Mike and Alison. It's > > a positive sign, but I'm not ready to breathe a sigh of relief just yet.
>
> Remember, between Mike and Alison was Fred. I think the pattern has > been broken.

I don't agree that they have stopped! Certainly the Great Covenant Breaker Circus here a few months ago clearly got the message across that any more antics would bring down retaliation. And let's not forget the message from the Ethereal Plateau that Nima was to be "left to his own devices" - lucky Nima!

I feel that the thinking caps are on in Haifa to devise some new way of eviscerating external and internal opposition. I don't think that all of this effort will come up with anything effective but I'm looking forward with eager anticipation to the next set of jolly japes to confound the critics. Might I suggest large bribes in larger brown envelopes that just might interest the "financially challenged" amongst the critics (I could use a new car - Hint!) - I understand that despite all of the current strictures, it is still possible to proffer suggestions to Mount Olympus!

> > > > However, if they take action against anyone else, everything
from
> > > > Dialogue onward will be regurgitated again and again.
> > >
> > > Why open up old wounds like that? What is the point?>>
> >
> > Because it's all related. It's a pattern of behavior.
>
> The US NSA has a bunch of different members, the UHJ has changed as > well, although not quite as much. At a certain point past behavior > becomes less and less relevant.

"Let all the poisons that lurk in the mud hatch out!" - Old King Log!

> > > First of all they are not censors. I object to that characterization.>>
> >
> > When someone in authority says "No, you can't say that", it's censorship.
> > Let's call a spade a spade here.
>
> Then we are all censors because we never say exactly what we want.
> Calling someone a censor has specific political connotations.

The laws on libel and sedition limit the exercise of speech as a means of expressing opinion. But in secular society ideas can be expressed - Paul and I as citizens of the UK are quite free to call for the abolition of the Monarchy without being regarded as traitors.
When the expression of ideas is suppressed or controlled, that is censorship with all of its nasty political connotations. It is the practice of the AO!

> > > Pre-publication review was a policy introduced by Abdul-Baha
and > > > endorsed by Shoghi Effendi. It is a temporary measure and is not even > > > applicable to all media since the Internet is exempt. It helps us all > > > to present an accurate image of the Baha'i Faith.>>
> >
> > And whose "image" is accurate, Dave? There are a myriad ways to look at the > > Revelation -- not just one simplistic "official" way.

>

> I agree. I agree. I agree. That is why "review" is temporary.

But how temporary? And why is it used to suppress viewpoints rather than correct errors of fact when free expression of ideas is expressly permitted and supposedly encouraged within the BF?

<SNIP>

>

> Well you can add my voice to that choir. I have tried the Ruhi method > and I found it to be overly simplified with too much emphasis on rote learning. I have told that to lots of people. I still get invites

to > give talks and conduct deepening in spite of that less than popular > opinion. The main reason is that I do recognize that some folks enjoy > it and really learn from it. Furthermore I see the need for > systematic learning in our communities. I just don't like the Ruhi > method.

How can you have systematic learning by rote in a Faith that supposedly allows of free independent investigation of truth, freedom to interpret for oneself, and freedom to express oneself? Madrasa Rule -OK!

> > It's frightening, Dave. They don't want people who think -- they > > just want a bunch of trained clones like out of some dystopian nightmare.

> > The title "Brave New World" for Baha'i satire is more accurate than I > > thought.

>

> That is why I do not like Ruhi. I have noticed, however, that some > folks who take it gain a passion for reading Baha'u'llah and begin to > read more of the writings on their own. You might be surprised at how > many new Baha'is do not read Baha'u'llah.

Yeah! They read with the official meaning already implanted in their minds. Let's face it - Bahai scholarship is learning the right quotations (and their citations) by heart to fling in the face of critics and worse. Net result is the chorus on Beliefnet of appalling and unmitigated cultic bigotry. Like it or not, Dave, this is the Bahai Faith for the foreseeable future and if you don't start to stop worrying and love Ruhi, then you, my friend, will be liable to a midnight call along the lines Juan had!

<SNIP>

> > Dave, you were basically saying that because someone has a Ph.d, that > > anything they say about the Faith implicitly claims to be authoritative.

> > Sure, it's public space, and lots of people say lots of things about the > > Faith, but I don't see anywhere explicitly claiming to have the > > authoritative viewpoint. Yet this charge is leveled at the people who got > > into trouble with Talisman. Why? Because they are intelligent and > > articulate and have credibility. So they don't even have to claim > > authority -- they are suspected of doing so just by virtue of who they are.

> > That isn't right.

>

> Bingo - they have credibility. Credibility provides a vehicle for > influence. Influence can be helpful or harmful. Perhaps the AO has > overreacted in these cases but I refuse to believe that their motives

> were anything but good.

Credibility is not authority although it can be useful for authority to have credibility. I don't dispute that the motives of the AO were good ... for the AO. Do you realise that if these silly ideas in Modest Proposal were implemented, some careerists in the AO might be made redundant? Now we can't have that - can we?

>
> > > Whoso interpreteth what hath been sent down from the heaven of > > > Revelation, and altereth its evident meaning, he, verily, is of them > > > that have perverted the Sublime Word of God, and is of the lost ones
> > > in the Lucid Book.>>
> >
> > "It's meaning can never be exhausted". Take your pick.
>
> Yes, I agree. But in a unified community how can you incorporate > diverse opinion unless you have an arbiter? The AO is the arbiter.
> Yes the meaning of the writings can never be exhausted because life
is > constantly changing. The AO is a dynamic organization that will > change to meet the character of the community because we are the ones
> that elect them.

You don't need an arbiter - you let the opinion diffuse throughout the community. If it resonates it will remain alive so it is probably of worth, should be closely examined and perhaps incorporated into current praxis. If it's worthless it will die of its own accord!

The AO, by your own explanation will never change. It has suppressed or expelled all the dynamic forces and put the community on an interminably bland diet of "exciting" meetings to choose the name for a cluster of communities!

Pass the sick bag, Bob!

--

As ever,

Dermod.

"In God We Trust - All others pay Cash!"

From: "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: Attn Dermod - Re Haifa's "monitors"
Date: Friday, October 26, 2001 8:15 AM

"BIGS - Bahai in *Perfectly* Good Standing" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message
news:9rbgej$sspua$1@ID-75545.news.dfncis.de...
> Dermod Ryder wrote:
> They read the newsgroups - there are three people at Haifa tasked
with > monitoring TRB/ARB (What aboutcha, people? I constantly think of you > checking on each other!)
> --
>
> Who are they? Have any names?

Sorry Fred - no names! They are the unsung heroes, the Rangers/SAS/Delta Force/SEALS of the Adminocentric Faith for they disappear into the bunker to do their duty and are never heard of more. For them is sung this anthem: -

Go ye heroes, go to glory,
Though you die in combat gory,
Ye shall live in song and story,
Go to immortality!
Go to death and go to slaughter:
Die, and every Bahai daughter
With her tears your grave shall water.
Go to monitor TRB!

(With apologies to W.S. Gilbert)

>
> --
> FG
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> <https://members.fortunecity.com/bahaicensorship>
>
>
>
>

From: "Dermody Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: Attn Dermody - Re Haifa's "monitors"
Date: Friday, October 26, 2001 5:13 PM

"BIGS - Bahai in *Perfectly* Good Standing" <patrick_henry@liberty.com> wrote in message news:9rckn0$sjbmq$2@ID-75545.news.dfncis.de...
> "Dermody Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com> wrote in message > news:9rbr91$sa5qr$1@ID-84503.news.dfncis.de...
> >
> > Sorry Fred - no names!
>
> Well, any guesses? Anybody we know around here?

My understanding is that they are in a bunker buried deep under Mount Carmel near Haifa and they live in constant fear of attack. The bunkers are designed to resist a dead hit by a rocket propelled Fred Glaysheer - a variant that is considered more deadly than the Fred Glaysheer Mk 1 Master of Spam.

To protect these valued assets who serve a daily report on the activities on TRB to the House members over breakfast - an event that makes breakfast the worst meal of the day - counter-Glaysheer weapons have been deployed across the Internet. These include the Fiorito Close In Weapons System, the Medium Range Kohli and the Rolling Articulated Matt Menge.

We can't provide the names of the monitors for security reasons - that and the fact that they are regularly rotated for the strain of having to listen to the absolute filth and drivel on TRB is considered too hazardous - and that's just the guy who monitors the fundies. Word has it that several have died from boredom, as well - something we can all empathise with.

The ones in charge of the others, those faced with daily exposure to the "covenantally challenging" infection, for which there is no known cure, are a particularly sad case. A number have gone over the hill, having succumbed to the infection; others are reported to have ended their days in strait jackets. I tell you, Fred, you gotta take your hat off to these guys.

Due to their courage and devotion to duty, the Bahai World is a safer place for your kids to be brought up as fundamentalists!!

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Saturday, October 27, 2001 4:34 PM

Dave Fiorito <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0110261030.2ad0a65d@posting.google.com...
> >
> > 1. The NZ NSA lied about Alison Marshall being 'counselled', and the UHJ > > has, culpably and dishonestly, never corrected the lie.
>
> In their view she was counselled. They were wrong in that assumption > but that was not their perception.
>

And, the mighty UHJ never corrected that misconception, apologised to Alison, and acted immediately to correct their mistake by re-instating her because?

In criminal law, if they was something dodgy about the trial process, the wrongly convicted person is immediately released, *even* if it was just an unfortunate procedural cock-up and everyone is certain of the guilt of the person who didn't get the fair trial they were entitled to.

>
> > 2. There are widespread problems in the Baha'i administration in the > > USA, and a great many heavy-handed outrages contrary to the fundamental > > principles of unity have occurred, such as the denunciation of the > > Dialogue magazine and the inquisition of Juan Cole. The UHJ is curiously > > inactive in ever bringing any of this activity to heel.
>
> The events you mention are old news. The past is past - time to move > on.
>

But, there has been no closure on them because the wrongdoers insist on their correctness and demand apologies from their victims.

>
> > 3. By heavy-handed authoritarian tactics, the UHJ has brought continuing > > criticism upon itself that is surely much worse than the original > > problems; I am thinking of the various carpetings and, worse, the > > expulsions from the Faith for such trivial reasons as Michael thinking > > (like most Baha'is, incidentally, but saying so just a bit more > > vociferously) that women should serve on the UHJ.
>
> He did more than say it - he campaigned for it and then refused to > ever obey the UHJ. That is a line Baha'is cannot cross without > consequences. That's just the way it is.
>

You mean, by strongly saying that you believe an injustice is being done, and carefully explaining the reasons why you think so you deserve to be expelled? That's nonsense.

He refused to obey the UHJ about women on the house? How did he do that? As far as I know, it actually isn't within his power to put a woman on the house.

> > 4. The scope of freedom of thought, belief, and expression within the > > Baha'i Faith has been narrowed tragically from the wide, generous > > horizons envisioned by Baha'u'llah, until the modern typical believer is > > scared of his own shadow, always careful to 'vet' every comment in case > > it offends some dictum from on high. The very notion that others' > > comments have to conform to some standard that the AO is authorised to > > lay down as to 'tone' and 'methods of expression' is contrary to > > Baha'u'llah's clear teachings regarding freedom of speech. Yes, > > Baha'u'llah gives us a lot of guidance as to how to speak wisely, but > > that guidance does not constitute a right for _someone else_ to vet the > > contents or style of any person's speech.
>
> I completely disagree - crossing the bounds of moderation can lead to > breaking Baha'i law. If Baha'i law is broken then consequences will > follow. Freedom of speech, even here in the US, has limits. If you > don't like the limits - so be it. Just understand that if the limit > is crossed then there are consequences.
>

What are the rules? What are the limits? Surely we should be told!

Even that horribly materialistic society, the USA, has the limits on freedom of speech carefully and legally described, and a big part of, say, libel trials is to actually establish the facts that a libel has in fact been committed - the injured feelings of the plaintiff alone are not enough.

>
> > Therefore you fall back on inspecting people's 'tone of > > voice', or their 'method of expression', or some such irrelevancy.
>
> I see it as completely relevant.
>

What are the rules of tone? How can they be framed in such a way as to avoid the injustice of Iranian cultural imperialism which would find Dermot's casual swearing offensive, and yet lying about your true intentions as to your desire for tea and cakes is the height of polite behaviour?

I think there is immense room for confusion here, and not enough care is being taken to establish the truth before excommunicating people.

> > That
> > sidetrack will only take you so far, and one day you will have to face > > the actual problem.
>
> What problem? That some folks want the Baha'i Faith to behave as if > the US Constitution was our guiding document rather than the Writings?
>

And, what is wrong with the US constitution? It's a damn sight better than the make it up as you go along rules the UHJ play by, and it's meant to be vice versa isn't it?

Alternatively, my own country manages quite well without a written constitution, but things are still not made up as the whim of the British government dictates - vested interests will always cry foul as they feel their traditional rights are being infringed.

Paul

From: "Dermot Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Saturday, October 27, 2001 10:11 PM

Hi Pat,

"Pat Kohli" <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message news:3BDB685C.5A5CED76@ameritel.net...

>
>
> Ron House wrote:
>
> > Dave Fiorito wrote:
> > >
> > > Opinions are not banned. Methods of expressing an opinion that cause
> > > disunity or the undermining of the AO is the problem.
> >
> > I am sorry Dave, but it is not necessary, as others seem to be doing, to > > defend whether they are on one side or the other of some imaginary line.
> > It is _you_ and the unreflective persons in the administrative order, > > who "just don't get it": If you don't like what someone says, _that is > > just too bad_! Go and say some prayers until you learn the skills > > necessary to deal with living in the human race. "From the clash
of > > differing opinions" comes the spark of truth. From the stimulation
of > > hearing others of differing views trying to convince us - Yes!
Trying to > > convince us they are right! - it is from that challenge that we > > ourselves hone our own thinking, discover our own oversights, and come > > to a better understanding of reality.
> >
> > Now, your big, big problem in the various questions discussed commonly > > here is, to put it bluntly, that the UHJ is wrong and its critics > > (excepting one particular person) are mostly right - to the nearest > > one-sentence approximation.
>
> To put it bluntly, when I hear or read, "your problem is", I anticipate some big > bullshit about to splat. Thanks for the warning, Ron.

Will somebody warn me about the bullshit - BEFOREHAND? I'm looking carefully but I haven't found it yet.

> > Therefore any reasonable attempt to provide > > evidence in support of any of the usual criticisms will naturally sound > > like an overwhelming argument and, if one has a religious mind-block > > that prevents one accepting the clear consequences of the evidence, then > > it will of course sound like 'disunity' and 'undermining'.
>
> Yeah, I suspect that any evidence which might diminish your tale, will be brushed > off as so much dandruff.

But the tale has been treated with HEAD AND SHOULDERS - clears up the dandruff and sorts out various monsters!

> > The truth is > > the truth, though, so the more you push this barrow the sooner the > > wheels will fall off.
> >
>
> Aye!

There they go!

> > In case you are wondering what I mean by 'the critics are right', here > > is a short list of some points that come to mind as I write this over a > > quick tea break. I regard the following as proven beyond reasonable > > doubt:
> >
> > 1. The NZ NSA lied about Alison Marshall being 'counselled', and the UHJ > > has, culpably and dishonestly, never corrected the lie.
> >
>
> Perhaps.

I actually think it's the other way around - the UHJ lied and the NSA did what it was told!

> > 2. There are widespread problems in the Baha'i administration in the > > USA, and a great many heavy-handed outrages contrary to the fundamental > > principles of unity have occurred, such as the denunciation of the > > Dialogue magazine and the inquisition of Juan Cole. The UHJ is curiously > > inactive in ever bringing any of this activity to heel.
> >
>
> I doubt it there are widespread problem in the USA. Juan overstates things. You > really don't know the extent of the UHJ's involvement with the US NSA, nor are you > in any position to make such an assessment. I must suppose that the thinner the ice > is, the more energetic the figure skating will be.

I heard a tale the other day of a LSA that ignored the law totally in fund raising but of course that's not culpable thanks to the First Amendment, just as Albuquerque got off the hook. These may be only two stories but I reckon there are a lot more out there. In any case two is two too many and compounded by the failure of the AO to deal with and rectify them.

> > 3. By heavy-handed authoritarian tactics, the UHJ has brought continuing > > criticism upon itself that is surely much worse than the original > > problems; I am thinking of the various carpetings and, worse, the > > expulsions from the Faith for such trivial reasons as Michael thinking > > (like most Baha'is, incidentally, but saying so just a bit more > > vociferously) that women should serve on the UHJ.

> >
>
> A nice bit of deceptive propaganda! Michael wrote the UHJ as if they were the Nazi > party of the Third Reich. Then he got disenrolled.

So you're not allowed to express opinion. All of those who referred to the President of the United States of America as "Dubya" in a gratuitous attempt to take the piss, will now leave the room for punishment!

> > 4. The scope of freedom of thought, belief, and expression within
the > > Baha'i Faith has been narrowed tragically from the wide, generous > > horizons envisioned by Baha'u'llah, until the modern typical believer is > > scared of his own shadow, always careful to 'vet' every comment in case
> > it offends some dictum from on high.
>
> Bullshit.

Let's see - criticism of the Ruhi Madrasas is not very popular in certain quarters, electoral reform has been excluded as is discussion of Women in the House (quite rightly too - we need these male bastions), "review" is non-negotiable, "negative" criticism is off the menu (whatever negative criticism is), reference to electioneering are denied (even though everybody knows it goes on), spying is not a function of the ABM or his Assistants (somebody else is instructed or understands he/she is to perform the task by "voluntarily" supplying private E-mails) ... yup! I can see that great big pile of bullshit winging its way across the Internet all the way from Mount Olympus (Home of the Gods for the benefit of those who didn't have a classical education - but now relocated to the big white edifice in Haifa!)

--
As ever,

Dermot.

"In God We Trust - All others pay Cash!"

From: "BIGS - Bahai in *Perfectly* Good Standing" <patrick_henry@liberty.com>
Subject: Re: An Apology to Fred
Date: Wednesday, September 19, 2001 6:24 AM

You're a deceitful liar. And basically a bahai terrorist, at that.... Every person on trb can be subpoenaed and required to testify that you have been harassing, hounding, and stalking me for years.... Now that you have been unequivocally caught at it you want to hide the evidence....

--
FG
The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://www.angelfire.com/mi3/bahai/>

-----
Little Better Than the Terrorists

FG
9/14/01 7:51 AM 1 out of 2

Sad fact, sad fact.... Having betrayed the moderation articulated in the Writings....

FG

-----
Path:
uni-berlin.de!fu-berlin.de!headwall.stanford.edu!newsfeed.stanford.edu!postn ews1.google.com!not-for-mail
From: bighappymonkey@yahoo.com (Dave Fiorito)
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.bahai
Subject: something Fred posted on Beliefnet
Date: 14 Sep 2001 11:01:38 -0700
Organization: https://groups.google.com/
Lines: 43
Message-ID: <f0853486.0109141001.2fd2b8c@posting.google.com>
NNTP-Posting-Host: 205.145.1.40
Content-Type: text/plain; charset=ISO-8859-1
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 8bit
X-Trace: posting.google.com 1000490499 26370 127.0.0.1 (14 Sep 2001 18:01:39 GMT)
X-Complaints-To: groups-abuse@google.com
NNTP-Posting-Date: 14 Sep 2001 18:01:39 GMT
Xref: uni-berlin.de alt.religion.bahai:7159 talk.religion.bahai:27665

To: Fred
From: the white hot ball of anger in my gut.

In the past you were just a pain. I welcomed your voice as proof that the First Amendment works. I never did agree with you but that is the way of this world. I never wanted you to go away. You are the negative to the Baha'i positive.

Not now. Not after that comment above. You are a fucking asshole. You are a egomaniacal sociopathic shit head of the highest order. This is not character assassination because you have no character to assassinate. You are worthless.

How dare you compare people who are at this moment gathering their resources to help rescue their fellow world citizens from the twited wreckage left in the wake of that horrifically evil deed. Baha'is in NYC and in New Jersey have gone to Manhatten to volunteer. Others are gathering goods and money for the tough task of recovery. Baha'is are working to heal the wounds.

All you want to do is inflict more pain.

You are evil.

You are a fucking coward.

You make me sick.

"Dave Fiorito" <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0109181316.7ce32ad1@posting.google.com...
> Fred,
>
> I apologized because my conscience was not at rest. I spoke in anger > and that bothered me.
>
> So how am I like a terrorist if I apologize for the use of harsh > language?
>
> Sheesh,
>
> Dave

From: "Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Sunday, October 28, 2001 9:36 PM

Michael McKenny wrote:

>
> Greetings, Pat.

> You are wrong that I thought the UHJ were Nazis.
> You are wrong that I called them Nazis to their face.
> You are wrong in saying the service of Women Paper was not censored.
> You are wrong that even were I one so thinking and so calling that > this would justify a tyrannical response on their part.

> To A Better Future,
> Michael

Bravo Michael. Your final line is the central point. The administrative mindset of many in the Baha'i Faith is incapable of grasping this fundamental issue: You can assert what you like. Yes, Baha'u'llah has given us much guidance in how to do it properly, but His guidance is not a licence to administrators to set up tests of one's toadying skills as hurdles to free speech.

--

Ron House house@usq.edu.au
https://www.sci.usq.edu.au/staff/houseFrom: "Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Tuesday, October 30, 2001 8:37 PM

Dave Fiorito wrote:

>
> Randy,
>
> > > And who are you to judge? If you don't like what I say - too bad.
> >
> > That's a wonderfully reasoned reply.
>
> You are right I was snipped at and I snipped back. I should not have > acted emotionally. I apologize for that.
>
> Ron said that if I did not like what he said then too bad - as if I > can't speak _my_ mind when I disagree with _him_, only the critics are > allowed to speak their minds.

Let's look at this a bit closer. But first, I didn't mention myself; I said:

>> If you don't like what someone says, _that is just too bad_!

Now of course, my use of "you" was the standard English colloquial equivalent for "one", but Dave might have misunderstood that, so let's take it he understood this to mean:

>> If Dave doesn't like what someone says, _that is just too bad_!

Now, I ask: what can the general principle be of which this is a specific case? Is it:

(a) If one doesn't like what someone says, _that is just too bad_!

or

(b) Dave and those who agree with him are not allowed to speak their minds.

Clearly Dave has taken it to be the latter. However, there is at least one unspoken assumption involved in getting from my remark to conclusion (b). I don't know exactly what it is in Dave's specific case, but the sort of thing that might cover it would be a proposition like:

(P) There is only room in the world for one spoken viewpoint.

Now clearly, if we accept (P), my speaking my mind will preclude Dave's speaking his. It seems to me that propositions akin to (P) are central to the fundamentalist mindset, and without understanding their underlying presence, nothing the fundamentalists do will ever make sense to those of a more liberal thought pattern. The correct response to fundamentalism, then, is not to continue to argue the basic issues: they have been proved beyond doubt in any case. Rather, find every occasion to show how people of differing views and backgrounds can live together in harmony, provided all accept the basic proposition that expressing a view is not the same as launching an attack. The spark of truth arises from the clash of differing opinions. Be glad those opinions are there, take them on and argue about them. Friends can respect each other without necessarily agreeing on every proposition; they can even put up their opinions vociferously and try to persuade their friends to change theirs. Differing opinions are not attacks.

--

Ron House    house@usq.edu.au

<https://www.sci.usq.edu.au/staff/house>From: "Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>

Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!

Date: Tuesday, October 30, 2001 8:59 PM

Dave Fiorito wrote:

> "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk> wrote in message news:<3bdb3ee2@212.67.96.135>...

> > Dave Fiorito <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message

> > news:f0853486.0110261030.2ad0a65d@posting.google.com...

> > >

> > > 1. The NZ NSA lied about Alison Marshall being 'counselled', and the UHJ > > > has, culpably and dishonestly, never corrected the lie.

> > >

> > > In their view she was counselled. The were wrong in that assumption > > > but that was not their perception.

> > >

> > >

> > > And, the mighty UHJ never corrected that misconception, apologised > > > to Alison, and acted immediately to correct their mistake by re-instating > > > her because?

> > >

> > > If they were told by the NZ NSA that she was counselled then why > > > should they believe otherwise?

How about: Because they monitor these newsgroups and email lists like Talisman, ample time has now elapsed, and they now know perfectly well that they have committed an injustice. That's a fact: they NOW KNOW IT. And they have, in contradiction to their charge to be "the guardians appointed of God for all who dwell on Earth", deliberately committed an injustice by failing to correct their erroneous allegation in all the time that has now elapsed.

>...

> > Even that horribly materialistic society, the USA, has the limits on > > freedom of speech carefully and legally described, and a big part > > of, say, libel trials is to actually establish the facts that a libel has > > in fact been committed - the injured feelings of the plaintiff alone > > are not enough.

> >

> > ... and US law is the result of how many years of legal evolution?

> > Hundreds? Some would argue thousands? The Baha'i community has not > > yet established the exact procedures for due process. It is probably > > time to do that. Until then we must a) carefully study the Writings > > and guidance and b) obey our elected institutions and consult with > > them about these issues.

The various historical issues you would like us to all forget demonstrate, in conjunction with ongoing new injustices such as their false allegations about Alison, that there simply isn't any coherent system in the Baha'i administration for delivering justice to the individual or for stopping or even correcting institutional failures. This is a critical point! The UHJ offered, some decades ago, the Baha'i community to the world as a model for study. Well, I am studying it and I find it to be hopelessly flawed. These faults are endemic, not the occasional accident. When you are trying to construct a new and better system for the operation of the world society, you cannot build a malfunctioning system and then claim, in the face of specific identifiable faults such as the lack of checks and balances, "Well, one day, when this thing is big enough, it will somehow work properly (even though we don't know how or why) and it will solve all the world's problems." No, you must get it working now, while it is small, and show now that it can solve the problem of injustice for the small numbers who have agreed to place themselves within the system, now.

If it can't work NOW for a small community, it won't work later for a big one.

For some years now I have been trying to see on these channels whether the faults can be rectified. To that end I have defended the UHJ's legitimate authority and I have argued against the unjust criticisms of them that I have seen some posters making here. But in the end the UHJ has proved by its continuing actions that it is incapable of making Baha'u'llah's system work. That is my conclusion from accepting their offer of studying the Baha'i community.

--

Ron House    house@usq.edu.au

<https://www.sci.usq.edu.au/staff/house>From: "Freethought110" <lotusapt@wxc.com.au>

Subject: Re: Amazement

Date: Wednesday, October 31, 2001 6:11 AM

Absolute lies? I think not. All of us saw how you published Fred's phone number and home address all over the internet.

Been walking the dog lately?? ;-)

Freethought

"Mark Elderkin" <elley@intercoast.com.au> wrote in message news:3bdf61c@news.rivernet.com.au...

> I still find it amazing that someone of Fred's caliber can afford the time > that it takes to mass-produce the absolute trash that he has filled both his > website, this newsgroup and to many others websites worth mentioning. I > have had first hand experience with Fred and his manipulation of facts
> and am still well mentioned in his website as someone who has threatened > him. Absolute lies and clearly a fantasy that this retired author must have > created within his realms of mental creativity. Just think what positive > things might have existed had Fred only managed to use his skills in some > positive and meaningful way. Fred has not been a Baha'i for years and this > fact alone must stand as the reason for his continuous onslaught of the > facts. Thank God for his mercies for some will have greater needs of this > than others.
>
>

From: "Freethought110" <freethought110@bohemian.org>

Subject: Re: Amazement

Date: Thursday, November 01, 2001 2:29 AM

Then don't be accusing people of lying when you yourself admit to making threats.

--

Freethought110

"Mark Elderkin" <elley@intercoast.com.au> wrote in message news:3be1076c@news.rivernet.com.au...

> Bloody well right I did.....It was the best thing that could have > happened. Fred ignores all the rules, cross-posts and completely ignores
the > rest of the participants here. Having his name out there was the best way > for people to let him know what an absolute idiot he acts like. I really > hope he enjoyed the phone calls.
> And as a by-the-way..... the dog is healthy and loves her walks.
She > is also considering writing some full length poetry. Could be interesting.
> M
>
>

From: "John R MacLeod" <jrmacleod@consultant.com>

Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!

Date: Wednesday, October 31, 2001 2:57 PM

Pat,

I don't follow your thinking here. If the UHJ threw Michael out for advocating women serve on the UHJ it was at least a substantive issue which they could at least argue represents direct opposition to the decisions of the elected body. I wouldn't personally have thought that justified expulsion but I can at least understand the issues. However you seem to be suggesting he was expelled for losing his cool enough to offer a vulgar insult to the UHJ. That idea would terrify me. I don't think you are right but if you are we are all in deep trouble. Rulers who react to insults are trouble in spades. Have you any evidence for thinking the central issue was this trivia?

From: "Karen Bacquet" <karenbacquet@hotmail.com>

Subject: Re: WARNING - Fundamentalist Deception runs rife on trb & arb

Date: Wednesday, October 31, 2001 1:50 PM

> Yes, but that does not mean that the parties to a consultation must > compromise. One party might be 100% correct. The key to consultation > is not compromise. It is a commitment to the objective examination of > the facts.
>
> > > personal conscience is every individual person's method of determining > > > right and wrong - apart from persuasion, I don't see how this can > > > be changed. I didn't believe that Baha'u'llah wanted robots, and > > > with 70-odd meanings to the word of God (as the Word of God > > > itself says) there *must* be a certain amount of wiggle room in > > > there.
> >
> > Oh, Paul, you ought to know by know the only accurate way a Baha'i can tell > > right from wrong is to have the UHJ tell him what it is. One is expected to > > abandon personal conscience, and accept the UHJ interpretation if you are to > > be really firm in the Covenant. The only moral rule the conservatives have > > got is "The House is always right.", and an individual has a "spiritual > > problem" if they disagree with that.
>
> Karen - that is overly simplistic and - frankly - quite insulting.
> The Word of God is the Infallible Guide. The UHJ has been assured of > God's Guidance in its deliberations - that is in the Word of God. We > are told to obey the UHJ - that is in the Word of God. We are told > that we are free to express our views while we consult - that is in > the Word of God. Once a consultation has reached a conclusion by > consensus or majority vote we must support the decision without > hesitation - that is in the Word of God. Liberty is allowed in some > instances and sanctioned in others - that is in the Word of God.
>
> Yes - the UHJ is always right. That is what Baha'u'llah promised.
> Where does he say otherwise?

If that's really your position, Dave, then why do you find my saying so insulting? If the UHJ can never be wrong, no matter what apparent wrong it commits, then the believer is supposed to abandon his individual conscience about the matter, correct? We are not allowed to adhere to our own standards of right and wrong, but must accept the UHJ's definition instead, no matter how much mind-twisting that requires of us.

The only person that is "always right" is the Manifestation -- the UHJ was always envisioned as a legislative body i.e. that passes actual laws. It currently functions largely as an executive committee and judiciary, very rarely passing legislation. To say that it is always right, in all its capacities is to grant it a share of the Most Great Infallibility, which is "joining partners" with the Manifestation. The difference between "essential infallibility" and "conferred infallibility" is that the latter's sphere is limited. To say it is not limited is to put the UHJ on a level with Baha'u'llah, something I don't think is warranted by the Writings.

Karen

From: "Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Thursday, November 01, 2001 9:18 PM

> > What's "ongoing". Alison's case is cold. Old news.

Randy Burns wrote:

>
> > Not to her it isn't. I don't know why you think you have to say that.
>
> Randy

Hi Randy, that point was well worth making. In the cold breasts of those who have abandoned true empathy in favour of strident fake spirituality, the idea that there are real individuals at the other end of each outrage by these administrators is an alien concept.

"Thus you will know them by their fruits. "Not every one who says to me,
'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven. On that day many will say to me, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many mighty works in your name?' And then will I declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from me, you evildoers.'"

--

Ron House    house@usq.edu.au

<https://www.sci.usq.edu.au/staff/house>From: "Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>

Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!

Date: Thursday, November 01, 2001 9:07 PM

Dave Fiorito wrote:

> Ron,

>

> > How about: Because they monitor these newsgroups and email lists like > > Talisman, ample time has now elapsed, and they now know perfectly well > > that they have committed an injustice. That's a fact: they NOW KNOW IT.

>

> Maybe they don't monitor this space? Maybe they don't know anything > of the dialogues here. You and I just don't know.

Tell us another one. They don't know Alison has launched legal action in NZ, and this is the substance of the complaint? They certainly spy on Talisman, and the issue has been discussed there. We know this because when poor Hooper Dunbar left his office on holiday, his email responder posted apologies to the list. Not only a spy, but a blockheaded one.

> > The various historical issues you would like us to all forget > > demonstrate, in conjunction with ongoing new injustices such as their > > false allegations about Alison, ...

>

> What's "ongoing". Alison's case is cold. Old news.

Oh?? Just a minute ago you told us the UHJ wasn't abreast of the fact that their own NZ NSA's statements were false. Make up your mind.

But apart from that, I find the entire mindset behind that remark to be odious. Alison was lied about to the entire Baha'i population of her country by her own NSA, and nothing has ever been done to correct it. But that's "Old news"; after someone has been harmed long enough, we just let 'em rot with the slander uncorrected, unrepented, unatoned, is that it? Disgusting.

> Again, what "continuing actions"? The case is damn near 2 years old > and there has not been a peep from the UHJ since. So? Time to move > on. If you are so concerned about the actions of the UHJ why not > consult with them to clarify the situation. You can do that if you > want to.

No, you don't get to 'move on'. The UHJ has collaborated in a libel against a true and dear follower of Baha'u'llah and never corrected the slate. Let them correct the libel; then I'll "move on".

In truth, Alison is a better Baha'i than the whole dishonest, unjust lot of them.

--

Ron House    house@usq.edu.au

<https://www.sci.usq.edu.au/staff/house>From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>

Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!

Date: Friday, November 02, 2001 4:09 AM bighappymonkey@yahoo.com (Dave Fiorito) wrote in message news:

<f0853486.0111011203.5684420d@posting.google.com>...

> Ron,

>

> <snip>

>

> What's "ongoing". Alison's case is cold. Old news.

>

> <snip>

>

> Again, what "continuing actions"? The case is damn near 2 years old > and there has not been a peep from the UHJ since. So? Time to move > on. If you are so concerned about the actions of the UHJ why not > consult with them to clarify the situation. You can do that if you > want to.

>

It takes about that long for the legal wheels to get in motion in most legal system - in France it takes even longer.

Alison believes that the UHJ and NSA have told lies about her, and her case comes up for review this year. The fact that some of the information she has on her on expulsion is, as it were, sub judice is one of the reasons why she has not published all the material relating to it on her website.

Don't worry about Alison, she **has** moved on. She still feels however that it is a point of principle that she use legal means to correct the untruths that have been told about her to the Baha'i community, when she found that asking them nicely to tell the truth wouldn't work.

PaulFrom: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: That's right: Opinions are not banned!
Date: Monday, November 05, 2001 11:36 AM

Dave,

Since it has been ongoing for over 20 years, I would have to assume that it continues today. Unlike you I have watched this develop since the late 70's. A review of the evidence presented on Fred's website would reveal to an impartial witness that there has been a continual assault against certain viewpoints in the Faith for at least that amount of time.

You see each episode as an isolated incident, which, when over, will never happen again (according to you), at least until the next time. And when there is a next time, it will be just another isolated incident, completely unconnected to the last incident, and the next time and the next time. All completely unconnected I'm sure.

Remember there is no proof of anything ongoing, no proof that there isn't something ongoing either. I think we can call your theory the "Unconnected Incident Theory" of physics. All events that occur are entirely unconnected to all other events. Sounds very modern.

Cheers, Randy

--

Dave Fiorito <bighappymonkey@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:f0853486.0111050901.6ce41b73@posting.google.com...

> Randy,
>
> > How well inform are you of what the UHJ is doing now, or as to what is > > ongoing? Your statements below cannot be verified by you or me in any > > manner, and you know it.
>
> ... and neither can the statement that they are engaged in some kind > of ongoing campaign of oppression be verified in any way.
>
> My point stands.
>
> Cheers,
>
> Dave

From: "DW Suiter" <dwsuiter@toast.net>
Subject: Re: Why I Don't Respond to bahai Fundamentalists
Date: Monday, November 12, 2001 6:57 PM

I have found FG's posts to be very informative. I certainly do not see him as Self appointed..... self regulated.....and self manipulated. He, as with any individual, has a right to speak on any matter he desires. What I see, is what he has stated. Attempts of others to censure, control, oppress, and quiet his voice.

The question all persons should ask is; "Is what he says true?" This same questions should be asked in regards to what any one says.

Instead of attempting to degrade or demonize a person, the word of the person should be addressed by principle. The tactics many use are indeed as he says and epitomize the mind and spirit that persecuted the man Jesus of Nazareth.

DW Suiter

"Mark Elderkin" <elley@intercoast.com.au> wrote in message news:3bf03a6f@news.rivernet.com.au...

>
> > I can only hope by serving humbly, as the self-appointed > > archivist/historian for talk.religion.bahai and for all the many victims > > of the "universal" house of "justice," that someday someone will come > > along who will dig deep enough into the record so that the truth will > > begin to surface.
>
> Self appointed..... self regulated.....and self manipulated. Do you > really believe that anyone has ever excepted you in this self appointed > position. Do you really think anyone here thinks you have any such > qualifications? You wouldn't know justice if it bit you in the arse.
Since > your retirement, you have become more and more bitter about these things
and > it is just not a pretty site. Get some hobbies to keep your mind busy.
Maybe
> read some poetry. IF you ask nicely..... I'll send you a book of rhyming > words to help.
> M
>
>

---

Posted Via Binaries.net = SPEED+RETENTION+COMPLETION = <https://www.binaries.net>From: "K. Paul Johnson" <kpauljohnson@yahoo.com>
Subject: Re: soc.religion.bahai CENSORSHIP
Date: Thursday, December 06, 2001 12:35 PM

Kimo@volcanomail.com (Kimo Kumalaa) wrote:

> dialouge with him (till he started attacking personalities again). It > is very difficult for a demi-god who wields power to reject thoughtful > arguments on SRB at will to reduce himself to humble discussions with > the public sector over a sustained period of time. The baha'i faith > encouraged him and has given him free reign 'to defend the Faith' even > if it means creating enemies within and without. The actions are like > that of a hired hit man

When I first read this message I thought how much this person sounded like Bill Hyman, and remembered my own horror story with srb "moderation"-- which was anything but. Upon further reading it became clear that he was indeed the abusive moderator in question, so for the record, I'll share my story. I found a quote from `Abdu'l Baha about the unification of all religions in "this century" (20th), posted by a Baha'i on srb, in the late 90s, and wrote it down at the time. Some weeks later I reposted this quote to srb (some time after its first appearance) with the comment that it was extremely unlikely to be fulfilled, and that this reflected on Baha'i belief in the infallibility of AB. Hyman immediately rejected my post, saying the quote wasn't "authenticated" because I didn't cite the original source. Which of course I didn't know as I'd just seen it posted without a citation. So I wrote back saying that this had been accepted as a legitimate quote and discussed on his very own list, but I had no way of identifying the publication since it had not been cited. Moreover adding that on a daily basis Baha'is quoted the Central Figures without citing chapter and verse, and asking why this new criterion was being invented just for me. At this point he escalated the rude and abusive tone, and I gave up. Except a few weeks later I learned about a search engine that would enable one to find any quote from `Abdu'l Baha (among others). Using the phrase "this century" I went straight to it. Then tried to post again, *with* the proper citation, and with a complaint about being made to jump through hoops no one else had to jump through. That time he didn't even have the courtesy to tell me of the rejection; it was just thrown away.

A memorably unpleasant experience with a memorably unpleasant character that tends to support the characterization which has emerged in this thread.

PJFrom: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Saturday, December 08, 2001 5:35 PM

I think what Dermod is implying is this:

if National feels able to delete names from it's list without any notification at all at the time of occurrence then how do we know they are not also adding names willy nilly as the urge suits them to replace names of people who may have left, therefore insuring that our American numbers never fall below last years numbers. (maybe like the Mormons they are even converting the dead).

Cheers, Randy

--

Susan Maneck <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20011208103652.02564.00002151@mb-dh.aol.com...
> >A strange thought comes to me - if National hasn't told Fred he is not > >on the list, could it possibly be that it also (and conversely) > >maintain a number of "ghosts" or "ringers" on the list just to keep > >the old numbers up.
>
> Your logic is quite astounding, Dermod. There is no line between point A
and > point B.
>
> >
> >An even stranger thought - suppose they made me a CB and didn't tell > >me or anybody else.
>
> We might find it very difficult to shun you.
>
>
> Susan Maneck
> Associate Professor of History
> Jackson State University
>
> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . ."
> Don McLean's American Pie
> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Saturday, December 08, 2001 10:50 PM

If they were honoring his demand not to be contacted then they would neither affirm nor deny his membership to inquirers as to his status without his express consent (other than legal purposes such as police, FBI and the like). If he is no longer on the roles, then something must have happened other than simply not contacting him.

Cheers, Randy

--

Susan Maneck <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message
news:20011208175428.02597.00002071@mb-dh.aol.com...
> >
> >if National feels able to delete names from it's list without any > >notification at all at the time of occurrence then how do we know they are > >not also adding names willy nilly as the urge suits them
>
> Dear Randy,

>
> They did not remove Fred 'willy nilly' without notifying him. They had honored > his own demand not to be contacted, that is all. But you guys can invent > whatever fantasies you want about National.
>
> warmest,
> Susan Maneck
> Associate Professor of History
> Jackson State University
>
> "And we were gathered in one place, a generation lost in space, with no time
> left to start again . . ."
> Don McLean's American Pie
> <https://bahaistudies.net/susanmaneck/>
>

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Sunday, December 09, 2001 12:27 AM

You are still ignoring the difference between a Baha'i Institution and any particular individual who might happen to inquire. If someone well known happens to be a Baha'i, is National free to give out such things and difficulties with say a divorce proceeding to anyone who might happen to call.

"Yes that's right, National Enquirer, Joe Star has had his administrative rights removed for adultery. Any other questions?"

No wonder some people have a problem with trust!

Pat Kohli <kohli@ameritel.net> wrote in message news:3C12E777.AAEB0496@ameritel.net...

>
>
> Hmmmm, nice try, but he's not a nuclear weapon on a Navy ship bound for New Zealand, or something like that. If folks present themselves to Baha'is, in the > US, there are methods of establishing their membership status. It involves > contacting the national center where they _do_ confirm or deny, as the case may > be.
>
> Blessings!
> - Pat
> kohli@ameritel.net
>

From: "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Sunday, December 09, 2001 6:31 AM

"Susan Maneck " <smaneck@aol.com> wrote in message news:20011209011021.11254.00002484@mb-fi.aol.com...

> >
> > If they were honoring his demand not to be contacted then they would neither > > affirm nor deny his membership to inquirers as to his status without his > > express consent
>
> Dear Randy,
>
> That has nothing to do with being contacted. Membership and Records will answer > anyone's request to know the membership of anyone. If you write them asking if > Bill Clinton is a Baha'i they will say no to that too.
>
> > If he is no longer on the rolls, then something must have happened > > other than simply not contacting him.
>
> Yes, Randy. They took him off the rolls. But because of he said he would > consider any contact from them to be harassment, they saw no reason to inform > him of this fact.

But not, presumably, anybody else who enquired! We have now established a further precedent in AO jurisprudence. Not only does one not have the right to see or hear evidence against one or proffer defence of one's actions - the judicial body determining the matter doesn't even have to tell one of its decision.

Ah! Brave New World!

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>
Subject: Re: "Shunning is the marker of a cult . . . note that these Date: Friday, December 07, 2001 9:31 PM

Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message news:IW%P7.20519$Ws6.3135898@typhoon.socal.rr.com...
> You misunderstood my first question: I was not asking for a description of > the term.
>
> As I recall:
> You complained about my citing Baha'u'llah. I said that this is a newsgroup
> that is devoted to discussion of the history and teachings of Baha'u'llah.
> Unsaid is that it is also one where the charter clearly calls for > participants to observe Baha'i standards in their posts. I concluded that > you are free to find another newsgroup more to your liking. Nothing passive > about that that I can see. Nothing hostile in my meaning or intent either.
I
> treated you like an adult, not as a child. "You don't like to observe the > charter of this newsgroup, go to another" is what I recall.
>

You made a comment regarding me finding a newsgroup "more suited to my nature".

What exactly did you mean to say about my nature?

AIUI, this is a newsgroup for the discussion of the Baha'i Faith, Baha'u'llah and so on. In this particular case, we were talking about cults in general, and how far the Baha'i Faith could be said to possess those traits.

Now, when I wanted to imply something about your nature, I called you a sanctimonious git. I wish you'd do me the courtesy of being similarly up front if you have something to say about "my nature" in future.

I don't object to your quotations of Baha'u'llah, but you seem to be unable to actually make remarks that are germane to the topic in any way for much of the time, beyond vaguely implying that perhaps Dermot might be behaving in an "un-Baha'i" fashion.

> Why is it permissible for those who dislike Baha'is and their Faith to > violate virtually every Baha'i tenet, attack and malign the integrity and > intelligence and actions of Baha'is - on a Baha'i newsgroup?
>

This may be a newsgroup whose subject is the Baha'i Faith, but I've got news for you Robert, you don't own this one. The downside to that is that there is more noise - the upside, it's a much livelier place than srb ("can we swallow toothpaste during the fast? Puh-leeze!")

> Why is it not permissible for Baha'is to quote Baha'i writings now and then?
>

Who says this is not permissible? Certainly not me! I said you were a sanctimonious git. I didn't say anything about that being because you use quotes from the Writings. It is the *purpose* for which you use them that offends!

> Why is it not permissible for Baha'is to attempt to control the tone and > content of their newsgroup?
>

I've got news for you pal - this is **not** **your** newsgroup. After all the effort Fred put into getting the vote through in the teeth of opposition from people like you, I would say **he** had more right to lay claim to it than virtually anyone - but it is in the nature of the net that unmoderated newsgroups do not, in fact, belong to anyone.

In Usenet, no-one knows you're a dogmatic materialist!

> Thinking about "passive-aggressive" some more, I'd have to say that it is > very hard for a Baha'i to even visit this newsgroup, much less post > regularly on it. In the approx. four years I have been posting on arb and > trb, I have tried to find a middle way that allowed me to get down in the > mud here, without getting muddy. I am not so sure that it can be done, not > so sure it is worth trying. At the moment, I have little patience with > people who are eager to attack, reluctant to consult.
>

Well, you know, sometimes it's a fight around here, but imv, even **with** the "shock troops" like Dermot, Nima, Fred, Rick and Mark around here, it still has a better tone than many Usenet warzones.

I discount Mahdi as being mostly irrelevant, although it is noticeable that he is the only poster who can provoke unity amongst virtually everyone else here!

Whether you stay here or not is not for me to comment on - perhaps you can (or do) do as Karen does, and give yourself a break from the net every now and then. But, as food for thought, didn't Abdu'l Baha mention "the CLASH of differing opinions" in glowing terms?

(Speaking for myself, the sound of passionate argument is much better than the sound of silence, or reluctant obedience)

> Since I know almost nothing about you, or what is in your heart, I find it > difficult to know how to respond. As most of the people here are so quick
to > attack, and so slow to discuss, I may be responding to the statistical > probability rather than the ever-so-rare genuine question.
>

Well, of course **that** adds to the statistical probability that you'll add to the noise, rather than the sense!

Anyway, I had a momentary flash of anger at you which I expressed, but has now passed.. Truce?

Paul

>
> "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk> wrote in message > news:c977f97b.0112060532.4b818916@posting.google.com...
> > "Robert Little" <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message > news:<f9AP7.18457$Ws6.2655121@typhoon.socal.rr.com>...
> > > What was passive about my post?
> > >
> > > What were you saying about parental authority, Paul?
> > >
> > > Robert A. Little
> > >
> > >
> > Err, right. "Passive-aggressive" is a psychological term. AIUI, it > > refers to people who are controlling, but not apparently bossy or > > angry - they get their own way without being overtly aggressive, but > > their anger is displayed covertly. This is what I see you doing to > > me here, and I don't like it.
> > >
> > For instance, what exactly were you trying to imply about "my nature" > > in your previous post?
> > >
> > And what are you trying to imply by your reference above to > > "parental authority"? The parental thing was an analogy which > > **you** developed - I dispute its relevance here, and in fact have asked

1%2540nnrp1.dejanews.com

>

> .. and newsgroup charters!

>

<https://groups.google.com/groups?selm=7gp8mk%24mtc%241%40remarQ.com&output=plain>

>

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>

Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."

Date: Tuesday, December 11, 2001 4:49 PM

Moderators Note:

>This forum is for disseminating Baha'i teachings. If anyone want to know >what Baha'is believe this is the right forum. If anyone wants to know >what Buddhists believe this is not the forum. This thread may be closed

>again shortly

SRB is not for open discussion, it is for disseminating Baha'i teachings.

It's easy to hid behind this facade to take swipes at Buddhism and not have to face an answer, you just hide behind the moderators.

Randy

Excerpts from Paul Saunders-Priem

I do not agree with your historical theory but I do think that the Four Noble Truths and the Eightfold Path are more than enough to guide Buddhists to lead a great and holy life. The question I put you is that why over historical periods in mankind development since the death of Buddha have Buddhists not done that. Is such a wide variety of expression and interpretation of religious belief a good or a bad thing from your point of view

Even if the Original Buddhist texts existed a lot of Buddhist would still have acted badly because there would have been no democratically elected institutions such as the Baha'i Administration to further and protect the community

Sorry mate my facts were right Shinto is based on Buddhism

Etc.

--

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message news:3C16792C.446FDBAC@ameritel.net...

> Randy Burns wrote:

>

> > SRB will allow a Baha'i to trash talk Buddhism

>

> Please cite some examples. Is this an example of what you are referring to?

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980701-980831/0338.html>

>

> > but will not let a Buddhist > > respond to this trash talk

>

> A Buddhist certainly does get to respond, and respond and respond, ...

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980701-980831/0339.html>

>

> and even start threads to start new discussions and expand old ones.

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980901-981031/0342.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980901-981031/0409.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/981101-981231/0151.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/990901-991031/0650.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/991101-991231/0086.html>

> .

> .

> .

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/010701-010831/0219.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/011101-011231/0222.html>

> <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/011101-011231/0226.html>

>

>

>
 >
 > > because it would be talking about Buddhism and > > not Baha'i and therefore irrelevant.
 >
 > Strictly, "yes", but when Bruce can put his Buddhism sermons into Baha'i > wrappers, and avoid repeating his previous messages, and otherwise abide > by the > charter, it does seem that his messages go through, and go through and go > through. Looking through the archives, it appears that he has been one of > th > emore prolific contributors since 1998, certainly more productive than > MrMahdi.
 >
 > > I personally have no use for SRB and > > if it ceased to exist tomorrow I would not notice.
 >
 > So, please take just enough notice to find this example of trash talk. I > do > occasionally post there and I'd be happy to correct some misconception > left at > SRB.
 >
 > Blessings!
 > - Pat
 > kohli@ameritel.net
 >

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
 Subject: Re: Just 'Cause we vote doesn't make it democratic Date: Monday, December 17, 2001 1:50 PM

Karen

I don't think Shoghi Effendi would like the Baha'i election process characterized as being "democratic" anyway.

The system promoted by Shoghi Effendi, which is only provisional, allows for candidates with the highest vote totals to be elected, but there is no assurance that any candidate will actually have a simple majority of votes cast at that election.

Shoghi also says this, from page 70 of the Principles of Baha'i Administration:

"The administrative order which lies embedded in the Teaching of Baha'u'llah, and which the believers have championed and are now establishing, should, under no circumstances, be identified with the principles underlying present-day democracies."

So I think the idea of saying "democratically-elected" everytime you mentioned the Baha'i administration would not be too pleasing to Shoghi.

Shoghi thought this system was superior to other forms of election processes but I still find it very subject to manipulation. The nice thing about these new regional boards is that we now have a nice "short list" of candidates for the NSA!

Cheers, Randy

--

Karen Bacquet <karenbacquet@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:u1qlj8aarpun74@corp.supernews.com...

> Dear Randy, Pat, and friends,
 >
 > I've been talking a lot lately about this whole "democratically-elected" > business; both because of my talks with Paul on uk.r.i. and because > there's > a relatively new Baha'i on my list who is *really* bugged by the way that > Baha'i elections are conducted. He is also bugged by how Baha'is go > around > bragging about how superior their system is to American democracy, and > says
 > he doesn't want his children brought up to disdain American freedoms.
 >

> I don't think my vote had any impact on anything whatsoever other than > locally, where my choices were pretty darn limited. The Chairman of the > convention almost invariably was elected -- the two times this one guy
from > my community was elected were exactly the two times when convention was held > here. He was up there running the show when people walked in, looked like he > knew what he was doing, and lo! he was elected. The last time I went to > Convention the man was an elderly Knight of Baha'u'llah who also happened
to > live in our community. I was a teller that year, and saw the votes -- a > great many of the votes cast for this person were simply written as "Kathy > X's father". That is, they didn't even know his name -- all they knew was > that he was a "big-deal" Baha'i. I didn't vote for him, since I knew him > rather better. But he was elected. Then, I once saw a report on the > National Convention, and four of the nine didn't even get a majority of
the > delegates' votes -- since we put in the nine top vote-getters whether they > get a majority or not. The votes are spread so thin that just being a > little bit better known than someone else tips the scale. Voting for a > delegate entirely by reputation, who in turn will vote largely on > impressions that he gets at Wilmette when he's there isn't democracy at all.
> Democracy runs on free expression and discussion of issues. In the Baha'i > system, you might as well put names on a corkboard and throw a dart, for all > the difference it makes.
>
> Love, Karen
>
> --
> <https://www.angelfire.com/ca3/bigquestions/Bacquet.html>
> Karen Bacquet <karenbacquet@hotmail.com> wrote in message > news:u1qiugh82qg602@corp.supernews.com...
> >
> >
> > > Note the bit about "some of my mails were rejected!"
> > >
> > > By the way now many times can someone write democratically elected in a > > > single email, have you found out yet?
> >
> > LOL!! In fact, Paul has been calling me anti-democratic because I don't > > support the "democratically elected" institutions right to punish people
> and > > push them out of the Faith for their opinions. It is an incredible leap
> of > > logic that make freedom of speech "anti-democratic", but I've heard > Baha'is
> > say weirder things.
> >
> > Love, Karen
> >
> > >
> > > Good luck in your discussions, Randy
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> >
> >
>
>

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Monday, December 17, 2001 1:08 PM

My point is that someone is deliberately putting down Buddhism on SRB knowing that a Buddhist spokesperson can't respond fully on that forum, they have to put up with censorship and getting postings sent back by the Moderators!

That is not Baha'i-like behavior. If someone wants to discuss the Baha'i slant on Buddhism they should be prepared to put up with a full discussion of the same coming from Buddhists.

Cheers, Randy

--

Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message
news:KuiT7.7032$37.1235589@typhoon.socal.rr.com...

> There is a charter which regulates discussion on soc.religion.bahai to the > Baha'i Faith, its teachings and its history. Any other subject is offtopic > and not allowed by the charter, which the moderators are required to > enforce.

>
> The subject of Buddhism is manifestly off topic unless the poster relates
it > to the Baha'i Faith, which frequently doesn't happen, forcing the moderators
> to bounce the post back, or kill the entire thread.

>
> The consequences of your approach are that the Baha'is would not have > freedom to have a newsgroup dedicated to discussion of the Baha'i Faith.

>
> Weird form of freedom.

>
> Robert A. Little

>
> "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com> wrote in message > news:9vd6h8$esvup$5@ID-84503.news.dfncis.de...

> > "Robert Little" <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message > > news:cWcS7.150$37.121111@typhoon.socal.rr.com...
> > > You may have a point, but see Susan's post just upstream. This is a > > > continually difficult thing for the moderators I think.

> >
> > So when the Moderators inhibit free expression - get rid of them > > entirely or reduce their power to one of avoiding flames, spam and > > obscene language.

> >
> > What is there to fear from freedom of expression?

> >
> > Dermod.

> >
> > >
> > > Robert A. Little

> > >
> > > "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net> wrote in message > > > news:UZ5S7.521$IC2.238690@paloalto-snr1.gtei.net...

> > > >
> > > > I find fault with the moderators who refuse to post the answers to > > > Paul's

> > > > questions and statements. It isn't what Paul is saying that > > > bothers me

> > > > but
> > > > the refusal to post answers does.

> > > >
> > > > Randy

> > > >
> > > > --

> > > >
> > > > Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message > > > > news:DT%R7.7986$Ha.1992021@typhoon.socal.rr.com...

> > > > > Do you not wish a "clash of differing opinions?"

> > > > >
> > > > > Paul asked a question whose roots are based in the writings of > > > > > Baha'u'llah,
> > > > > i.e., that divine Religion has seasons, and that winter has > > > > inevitably > > > > > descended upon every dispensation of the past, including > > > > Buddhism.

> > > > >
> > > > > Do you find fault with his question, or with the tone of his > > > > question,

> > > > > or
> > > > > both, or something else?

> > > > >
> > > > > Robert A. Little

> > > > >
> > > > > "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net> wrote in message > > > > > news:HbvR7.1025$a%5.229085@dfiatx1-snr1.gtei.net...

> > > > > > Moderators Note:
> > > > > >

> > > > > This forum is for disseminating Baha'i teachings. If anyone > > want to > > > know > > > > > what Baha'is believe this is the right forum. If anyone wants > > to know > > > > > what Buddhists believe this is not the forum. This thread may > > be > > > closed
 > > > > > again shortly
 > > > > >
 > > > > > SRB is not for open discussion, it is for disseminating Baha'i > > > teachings.
 > > > > > It's easy to hid behind this facade to take swipes at Buddhism > > and not > > > > have > > > > to face an answer, you just hide behind the moderators.
 > > > >
 > > > > Randy
 > > > >
 > > > > Excerpts from Paul Saunders-Priem
 > > > >
 > > > > I do not agree with your historical theory but I do think that
 > > the > > > Four
 > > > > > Noble Truths and the Eightfold Path are more than enough to > > guide > > > > Buddhists > > > > to lead a great and holy life. The question I put you is that > > why
 > > > over > > > > historical periods in mankind development since the death of > > Buddha
 > > > have > > > > > Buddhists not done that. Is such a wide variety of expression
 > > and > > > > > interpretation of religious belief a good or a bad thing from > > your > > > point
 > > > > of > > > > view
 > > > >
 > > > > > Even if the Original Buddhist texts existed a lot of Buddhist > > would > > > > still > > > > > have acted badly because there would have been no > > democratically > > > elected > > > > > institutions such as the Baha'i Administration to further and > > protect
 > > > the > > > > community
 > > > >
 > > > > > Sorry mate my facts were right Shinto is based on Buddhism
 > > > > >
 > > > > > Etc.
 > > > > >
 > > > > > --
 > > > > >
 > > > > > Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message > > > > > news:3C16792C.446FDBAC@ameritel.net...
 > > > > > Randy Burns wrote:
 > > > > >
 > > > > > > > SRB will allow a Baha'i to trash talk Buddhism
 > > > > > >
 > > > > > > Please cite some examples. Is this an example of what you > > are > > > > referring
 > > > > > to?
 > > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980701-980831/0338.html>
 > > > > > >
 > > > > > > > but will not let a Buddhist > > > > > > > respond to this trash talk
 > > > > > >
 > > > > > > > A Buddhist certainly does get to respond, and respond and > > respond,
 > > ...
 > > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980701-980831/0339.html>

> > > > > >
> > > > > > and even start threads to start new discussions and expand > > old ones.
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980901-981031/0342.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/980901-981031/0409.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/981101-981231/0151.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/990901-991031/0650.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/991101-991231/0086.html>
> > > > > > .
> > > > > > .
> > > > > > .
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/010701-010831/0219.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/011101-011231/0222.html>
> > > > > > <https://bounty.bcca.org/srb/archive/011101-011231/0226.html>
> > > > > >
> > > > > >
> > > > > >
> > > > > >
> > > > > > > because it would be talking about Buddhism and > > > > > > > not Baha'i and therefore irrelevant.
> > > > > >
> > > > > > Strictly, "yes", but when Bruce can put his Buddhism sermons > > into > > > Baha'i
> > > > > > wrappers, and avoid repeating his previous messages, and > > otherwise > > > abide > > > > by the > > > > > charter, it does seem that his messages go through, and go > > through > > and > > > go > > > > > through. Looking through the archives, it appears that he > > has been > > > one
> > > > of
> > > > > th
> > > > > > emore prolific contributors since 1998, certainly more > > productive
> > > than
> > > > > MrMahdi.
> > > > > >
> > > > > > > I personally have no use for SRB and > > > > > > > > if it ceased to exist tomorrow I would not notice.
> > > > > >
> > > > > > So, please take just enough notice to find this example of > > trash > > talk.
> > > > I
> > > > > do
> > > > > > occasionally post there and I'd be happy to correct some > > misconception > > > > > left at
> > > > > > SRB.
> > > > > >
> > > > > > Blessings!
> > > > > > - Pat
> > > > > > kohli@ameritel.net
> > > > > >
> > > > >
> > > > >
> > > > >
> > > >
> > >
> >
> >
>
>

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>
Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Tuesday, December 18, 2001 1:26 PM

Robert

>Also, can you please try to illustrate where the line is between "clash of > conflicting opinions" and "putting down Buddhism?"
>

The only point is to have a full and free exchange of ideas without the threat of censorship and without having posts returned by the moderator. That is censorship and treating people of other religions with disdain. Nothing wrong with having a full discussion on Buddhism and Baha'i as long as there is no censorship or refusal to post messages that aren't obscene and disruptive.

Cheers, Randy

--

Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message
news:ehBT7.7439$37.1485937@typhoon.socal.rr.com...

> Hi Randy

>

> I have not seen any example of "putting down Buddhism", although I have not > read all the posts.

>

> I can understand a Baha'i writing about Buddhism, whose sole source of > knowledge is the Baha'i writings, and as a result not getting it right,
from > the standpoint of Buddhists who see things quite differently than Baha'is.

I

> have seen that happen on srb in these latest series of postings. However, > have also seen in every case, a Buddhist response that explained the > Buddhist understandings. Frankly, the conversation there has been pretty > informative, without any apparent hurt feelings.

I

>

SNIP

From: "Randy Burns" <randy.burns4@gte.net>

Subject: Re: bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."

Date: Wednesday, December 19, 2001 1:36 PM

Robert said:

> Additionally, I am interested in hearing opinions about the very issue of > whether or not it is permissible for a Baha'i to state that Buddha was a > Manifestation of God. 'Abdul-Baha'i stated that He is, Buddhists state

that

> He is not. What does a Baha'i do, in your opinion?

Unfortunately I don't have any references here of Abdul-Baha's. Can you reproduce his quote on the Buddha?

Here's something I said earlier which received no comments here:

My impression of Abdul-Baha's comments on Buddhism is that they were off the cuffs remarks intended for a western audience and not authoritative Baha'i scripture. I think that AB relied mostly on western attempts to examine Buddhism and thus his comments have to be seen relative to what was current in western thought at that time about that particular religion..

Of course there were Baha'is in southeast Asia at that time and perhaps they also relayed information on the current status of Buddhism to Abdul-Baha, but did these individuals have the background and training to thoroughly investigate and understand Buddhism? I seriously doubt it.

Thus I personally wouldn't take seriously any of AB's comments on Buddhism, I don't think they represent either the reality of Buddhism or official and mature Baha'i thought about Buddhism.

That is the reason I wanted Robert to differentiate what Central figure made comments about Buddhism. Is there any known comment by Baha'u'llah on Buddhism?

Cheers, Randy

--

Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message
news:I%QT7.7961$37.1678955@typhoon.socal.rr.com...
> Additionally, I am interested in hearing opinions about the very issue of > whether or not it is permissible for a Baha'i to state that Buddha was a > Manifestation of God. 'Abdul-Baha'i stated that He is, Buddhists state
that
> He is not. What does a Baha'i do, in your opinion?
>
> Robert A. Little
>
>

From: "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk>
Subject: Re: bahaï - talk.religion.bahai - "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
Date: Friday, December 14, 2001 7:26 AM

"Robert Little" <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message news: <NLCs7.144$37.119049@typhoon.socal.rr.com>...
> "Paul Hammond" <pahammond@onetel.net.uk> wrote in message > news:3c18fac7@212.67.96.135...
> >
> > Robert Little <rlittle1@socal.rr.com> wrote in message
> > news:u4%R7.7978$Ha.1981935@typhoon.socal.rr.com...
> > > I never heard one single comment, never received any correspondence, > > either > > > verbal or written, concerning the supposed campaign you refer to. It is > > > clear, however, that many internet-savvy Baha'is did talk to each other,
> > and > > > the overwhelming majority of them came to the same conclusion, one that > > you > > > are in opposition with.
> > >
> > > As to your percentage, perhaps you are aware that the vast majority of > > > Baha'is live in poor, rural or less-than-rural circumstances, and do not > > > have computers or access to the internet. You may either extrapolate
> > from > > > the percentages of pro-con votes, or you can make an attempt to > > determine
> > in > > > some other way just how those Baha'is would feel about the spiritual > > > atmosphere found on this newgroup.
> > >
> > >
> > No, there is a third way - you can refuse to draw *any* conclusion > > whatsoever about the opinions of "the vast majority of the Baha'i > > Community" on such a ludicrously small and self-selected sample.
> > >
> > It's the only scientific thing to do.
>
> It is not the Baha'is who have raised the issue and drawn the collusion > conclusion. However, if 900 or 600 Baha'is did vote against (hard to figure > out how either figure was arrived at)

I imagine the vote was recorded somewhere, and an independently verifiable record might still be accessible somewhere - you'd have to ask around (probably) news.groups if you were interested.

, I would conclude that this represents > a very striking unity of belief, and a clear statement from those Baha'is > who do participate on the internet that they want to protect the name of > Baha'u'llah.
>

Or evidence that Mark Towfiq spent considerable efforts sending an email around telling people that it was virtually their Baha'i duty to send a NO vote to the appropriate address.

Considering the amount of CB material that surfaces around the net these days, I should say that the better way for Baha'is to protect the name of Baha'u'llah on the net would be to conduct themselves in such a way as to make him proud, and not behave like a censoring fundamentalist! (this comment not directed at you personally)

>
> > Considering the facts you mention about the small proportion of the > > Baha'is who even **have** internet access, it is better to say that > > there just **is** no such thing as a "Baha'i community" view on the > > existence of this forum.
>
> Well, yes and no. According to Mr. Glaysher, there was a clear Baha'i view.
> In my opinion, it is probable that the majority of Baha'is the world over > are not aware of this unmoderated newsgroup.
>

That is most likely. And, by the same token, most non-Baha'is have never heard of the Baha'i Faith either.

> >
> > If you want to make ridiculous statements about "that vast majority > > of the Baha'i community think thus and so" on the basis of 900 > > usenet votes, expect to be called on it when you make such a > > laughable statement.
>
> What laughable statement is that? That Baha'is colluded against this > newsgroup? Not my statement.
>

The laughable statement that 900 votes against a usenet forum shows something about "the overwhelming view of the Baha'i community".

>
> > > Care to guess?
> > >
> > >
> > No, I'd rather not guess, and if you are going to make mathematically > > supported statements, you'd better make sure that your statements > > **have** some kind of basis, else I shall point out any ludicrous > > errors.
>
> Rereading my comments to you, I find no statement of mine stating that the > vast majority of Baha'is believe "thus and so".
>

You said that by continuing to try to set up an unmoderated Baha'i discussion forum, Fred was going against "the overwhelming view of the Baha'i community". Perhaps it was **not** your intention to suggest that most Baha'is would disapprove of this forum, and that therefore this forum should not exist.

>
> > If these 900, 600 or whatever people did **anything** other than > > follow the instructions on a circulated email to "send a NO vote > > to the address below", then why weren't these concerned > > Baha'is equally concerned a couple of months later?
>
> If there was an email that circulated amongst Baha'is, please reproduce it.

I've seen an email from Mark Towfiq which attempts to persuade the reader to go vote No against trb, yes, on Fred's website - but I haven't been there in ages.

Anyway, the circumstantial evidence (techies notice something is wierd, since most newsgroup votes don't get such high numbers except in the case of some orchestrated campaign pro or con) is strong.

I hear that some techies voted **yes** in the second round, on pure principle, having worked out that something fishy was afoot. One could say that **this** impression of the Faith was not good for Baha'u'llah's name, in fact.

I think it unlikely that any such people recieved a copy of the original email from Mark Towfiq, but I wouldn't say that their reasoning that some such letter existed was unsound. You presumably would.

[insert cliché about ducks that quack here]

> I've never seen nor heard of one, although, as I said, it would be > remarkable if Baha'is did not write to each other. One can conclude that the > internet savvy Baha'is were consulting with each other, as seems likely but > not proven, or one can conclude, as at least one individual has, that that > Baha'is have obeyed an order from their fundamentalist masters. This flies > in the face of the statement made by the Universal House of Justice > concerning Baha'i participation on the internet newsgroups. Don't speculate, > demonstrate.

>

I like speculating. Now, Dermod and Susan were talking about this earlier on - perhaps Susan, being the expert, can tell me whether this speculation is wild or tame?

I doubt that there is anything like such an organised conspiracy as Fred sees around every corner, but I am reasonably certain that some such campaign **did** take place. Probably, it was just that one guy, Mark, who took it as his Baha'i duty to make disinterested techies see the Baha'is as "just another fundie cult", but that doesn't mean it didn't happen.

Oh, btw, do you think it is less like backbiting if you write "at least one individual" rather than "Fred"? (Clearly, nothing said here is said behind **Fred's** back)

> > As Michael has already explained, it is not usual for people who > > have no real interest in a proposed new usenet forum to vote > > in such a way as to prevent others who **do** have an interest in > > that forum from forming it. This 600 votes, it appears, was > > wierd enough to make the non-Baha'i techies smell a rat.
> >
>
> What techies?
>

The ones who came in to vote YES in the second round, because the huge NO vote in the first round pissed them off.

PaulFrom: "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com> Subject: Re: Notice: Mild Usenet annoyance, Fred "Baha'i in **Perfectly** Good Standing" Gleysher, STILL at
it!
Date: Saturday, December 29, 2001 1:06 PM

"NightShadow" <seals_jay@nospam.hotmail.com> wrote in message news:3c2de2a1.17191808@news...
> Thpppppppppttt!!!
>
> >:-)
>
> Dateline: Somewhere in Cyberia, December 29, 2001

Actually the Gulag operated by the ABM Corps for Protection - a poor misguided prisoner is offered a chance for freedom OR is it a guard seeking preferment? Who can tell?

>
> After more than three years of taking up the mantle to apaise and > alert non-Baha'is to the so-called (by Mr. Gleysher) "terrorist" > organization known as the esteemed Baha'i Faith, Mr. Gleysher has > staunchly continued his efforts to inform, MISinform and generally > annoy Usenet.

Indeed yes! Even though you have spelt his name incorrectly!

> Facts relating to the validity, sincerity, patience, unity, tolerance,
> kindness, growth, developing maturity and cohesion of the Baha'i Faith

Facts? Where are they? If anybody can find these "facts" kindly inform the management - it has been in hope of finding some for quite a long time now.

> seem to have no effect on Mr. Gleysher's attempts to discredit, defame
> and dismantle it. His continued diatribe and drivel, hearsay and rife

> complaints against the Faith have gone on, largely unchecked, for > going on three years.

Largely because the A Onions have no answer to his diatribe etc.

> Through crossposts to unrelated newsgroups on > Usenet, ad hominem arguments and personal attacks of individual > Baha'is on Usenet,

Aw! Large sobs for the poor wee Bahais who have been so mercilessly trounced by Big Bad Fred and all on his own too! What about the rest of us? Don't we get a mention here? Or is Big Bad Fred going to get all the credit?

> Mr. Gleysher repeatedly and consistently attempts > to undercut the noble virtues of the Baha'i Faith by pointing out ONLY > its failures without tempering his posts regarding its successes-
all > in the name of justice. Where, in this, is the justice of his actions?
> Where is the balance of truth and wisdom?

Big Fred has never attacked the BAHAI FAITH - he has attacked those who, being in charge, have perverted it to their own narrow vision.

> This man is to be commended for his dedication to his goal. Such > determination shows a strength and temerity rarely seen in human > beings.

And most assuredly not to be found in the AO or its Onions.

<SNIP>

> Some basic tenets of the Baha'i Faith:

Some basic tenets of the Administrative Faith:

> Religion must go hand-in-hand with science.

Unless that involves the usage of materialistic academic methodologies such as are not approved by the junta in Haifa.

> Both men and women are equal

Except when it comes to membership of the supreme administrative institution.

> The abolition of war and slavery amongst Humanity

Specifically excluding "volunteers" who work for the advancement of the Haifan interests around the world for no pay!!!

> There is to be no division of the "races" within Humanity

Especially as Covenant Breakers are sub-human and don't count therefore as a part of humanity.

> The independent investigation of Truth

So long as it leads to Haifa.

> Baha'u'llah, the Faith's founder, is the promised one for this Day > and Age.

So long as he is in agreement with the enunciations of the Supreme Institution.

> The advent of single World Government.

Based at Haifa

> The advent of single World Currency/Economy

Based at Haifa.

> The advent of single World Auxilliary Language

Called Bahaispeak

> No one religion is greater than another; all religions are equal > and unified through the Baha'i Faith.

But the Bahai Faith is more equal and united than the rest!

> Mr. Gleysher contends that anyone who questions his views on the > Baha'i Faith, its Administrative Order and its growth is a "fundie."

**>

> Question:

> Considering the items listed above, who in their right mind would > want to take on such ideals as fundamental to their way of thinking?
NOT

Me!

**>

> Find out more about the Baha'i Faith at:

> <https://www.bahai.org> OR

<https://members.fortunecity.com/bahaicensorship>

> Learn for yourself, with discerning eyes, which claim is true.

**>

> The Baha'i Faith's Administrative Order has not ONCE, as an > authoritative entity, come out to publicly criticise or defame Mr.

> Gleysher- yet he persists in attacking it, its followers and its child

> organizations.

No! It has just expelled him and not bothered to tell him!

> Note: This message brought to you by an individual believer of the > Baha'i Faith and NOT a member of its administrative organization.

Feel

> free to contact me at seals\_jay@hotmail.com for further questions > regarding the Baha'i Faith and its writings.

CORRECTION - the message was brought to you by a member of the Bahai Faith and a de facto member of its administrative organisation - the guy has the vote.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: "Dermod Ryder" <Grim_Reaper_Mk2@btinternet.com>
Subject: Re: Disgraceful bahai speak
Date: Wednesday, February 05, 2003 3:13 AM

"Seegar" <sendithereifyoulike@hotmail.com> wrote in message news:fd8v3v8h82o0mdva3d624m6re0p8hj78qf@4ax.com...
> I would agree with you were it not for the threatened legal action > factor, which throws your argument up ended.

The threatened legal action is a non-starter. His only ground for such would be harrassment which, by definition, would be more than one contact. A letter confirming he had been removed from the mailing list would not be grounds for legal action as it would only be acknowledging that his expressed wish had been carried out.

Similarly a letter from the AO informing him that he had been disenrolled would not constitute harrassment and would not be grounds for legal action in that area. Most people would accept third party information to the effect that they had been disenrolled and move on - but not Fred, to his everlasting credit. The AO altered the relationship twixt it and him - it has a moral, if not legal obligation, to inform him of that alteration. Until it does he still remains a BIGS.

> Calling yourself a monster is not good for your self esteem.

Who are you kidding?

> Buck up > me lad, maybe you'll find a princess and she'll grace you with a > transformational kiss.

I have my little princess, more commonly known as the Doodlebug.

> >Hold on - you're the baddie but I didn't treat you unfairly!
>
> Says you and didn't say you did

True!

Dermod.

From: FG (BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM)
Subject: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 05:06:10 PST

October 6, 2003

Farewell Friends,

A number of changes have taken place in my life during the last several months that necessitate I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's respect for free speech and conscience, at least as an active online participant. Since many might well imagine the rumors and libel that would circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace, I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.

Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and slander, on and offline since 1996, I little expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally encouraging are the many voices of conscience that have arisen to champion the sanctity of the individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience will remain online for those who find it a useful resource and archive. Should any major document or incident take place or come to light, I would be happy to make it available and preserve it for the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow Abdul-Baha's clear and unequivocal Teaching, and for my fellow citizens, less they be deceived with impunity.

Those who have stood and fought for the rights of the individual, in the face of a wholly corrupted administrative order, have my undying respect. May God grant you the inner strength and resources to carry on....

I may be reached at bhaicensorship@FG.com via the Contact link on my website.

FG

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://fglaysher.com/bhaicensorship/>

Interested persons and newcomers may glean my personal story at

To the Universal House of Justice - March 31, 1997
<https://fglaysher.com/bhaicensorship/To-UHJ1.htm>

"Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
<https://fglaysher.com/bhaicensorship/nsa1996.htm>

Why I Don't Respond to Fundamentalists among my Fellow Baha'is
<https://fglaysher.com/bhaicensorship/Why1.htm>
Post a follow-up to this message

Message 2 in thread
From: John R MacLeod (jrmacleod@consultant.com)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 05:40:56 PST

Goodbye and good luck with whatever you do.

"FG" <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message
news:blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de...
> October 6, 2003

>
> Farewell Friends,
>
> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's > respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would > circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.
>
> Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and > slander, on and offline since 1996, I little > expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other > pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave > heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands > of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists
> among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts > of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally > encouraging are the many voices of conscience that > have arisen to champion the sanctity of the > individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> will remain online for those who find it a useful > resource and archive. Should any major document > or incident take place or come to light, I would > be happy to make it available and preserve it for > the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow > Abdul-Baha's clear and unequivocal Teaching, and > for my fellow citizens, less they be deceived > with impunity.
>
> Those who have stood and fought for the rights > of the individual, in the face of a wholly corrupted
> administrative order, have my undying respect.
> May God grant you the inner strength and resources > to carry on....
>
> I may be reached at bahaicensorship@FG.com
> via the Contact link on my website.
>

Read the rest of this message... (23 more lines)

Post a follow-up to this message

Message 3 in thread

From: Eric Stetson (ericstetson@yahoo.com)

Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only

Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai

Date: 2003-10-06 10:51:23 PST

"FG" <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message news:
<blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de>...

> October 6, 2003

>

> Farewell Friends,

Fred, may God bless you for the excellent and courageous work you have done to expose the problems in the Baha'i Faith and defend free speech and religious freedom of conscience.

Best,
Eric

Eric Stetson

Ex-Baha'i Christian Testimony

<https://www.bahai-faith.com>

Ex-Baha'i Discussion & Debate

<https://groups.yahoo.com/group/ex-bahai>

Post a follow-up to this message

Message 4 in thread

From: Randy Burns (randy.burns4@gte.net)

Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only

Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai

Date: 2003-10-06 11:20:02 PST

Good luck, Fred. Thanks for TRB!

Cheers, Randy

--

"FG" <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message
news:blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de...

> October 6, 2003

>

> Farewell Friends,

>
> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's
> respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would
> circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.
Post a follow-up to this message

Message 5 in thread
From: Steve Marshall (asmارش@es.co.nz)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 14:17:19 PST

On Mon, 6 Oct 2003 08:05:30 -0400, "FG"
>Farewell Friends,

All the best, Fred. I know we haven't seen eye-to-eye, but I do hope things go well for you.

kia kaha,
Steve
Post a follow-up to this message

Message 6 in thread
From: Freethought110 (freethought110@yahoo.com)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 23:24:09 PST

Steve Marshall <asmارش@es.co.nz> wrote in message news:
<e5n3ovs73aibjb3elr0f9splgh1hkrs8bu@4ax.com>...
> On Mon, 6 Oct 2003 08:05:30 -0400, "FG"
> >Farewell Friends,
>
> All the best, Fred. I know we haven't seen eye-to-eye, but I do hope
> things go well for you.

Funny, you have never managed to see eye-to-eye with any real dissident, but rather your eyes always somehow manage to meet those who are servants of this cult, such as Pat Kohli, Susan Maniac, etc.
You rarely even saw eye-to-eye with Juan.

> kia kaha,

kuni kaka

> Steve

Post a follow-up to this message

Message 7 in thread
From: Starr* (starrjo99@yahoo.com)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 15:29:56 PST

"FG" <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message news:
<blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de>...
> October 6, 2003

Dear Fred,

Having been with you since your struggle to establish TRB, it's inception and your fight for 'continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's respect for free speech and conscience' I can only congratulate you for a job well done of upholding this fundamental principle. Indeed without it all other principles fade in meaning. May your work further contribute to this principle permeating the global village. Thanking you, missing you, and wishing you a joyous journey in all your pursuits.

With kind and loving regards
In the Spirit of Tahirih
Starr* Saffa

>
> Farewell Friends,
>
> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's
> respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would
> circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.
>
> Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and > slander, on and offline since 1996, I little > expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other > pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave > heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands > of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists
> among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts > of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally > encouraging are the many voices of conscience that > have arisen to champion the sanctity of the > individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> will remain online for those who find it a useful > resource and archive. Should any major document > or incident take place or come to light, I would > be happy to make it available and preserve it for > the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow
> Abdul-Baha's clear and unequivocal Teaching, and

Read the rest of this message... (27 more lines)

Post a follow-up to this message

Message 8 in thread

From: Pat Kohli (kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net)

Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only

Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai

Date: 2003-10-06 17:03:45 PST

FG wrote:

> October 6, 2003

>
> Farewell Friends,
>

Farewell, FG!

- Pat
kohli at ameritel.net
Post a follow-up to this message

Message 9 in thread
From: Freethought110 (freethought110@yahoo.com)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 22:56:56 PST

Pat Kohli <kohliCUT_THE_CAPS@ameritel.net> wrote in message news:<3F820466.B8DEAA4@ameritel.net>...

> FG wrote:
>
> > October 6, 2003
> >
> > Farewell Friends,
> >
>
> Farewell, FG!

Of course, the day to really rejoice is when it is farewell for good to you and your lot, dipshit cultist!
Post a follow-up to this message

Message 10 in thread
From: Freethought110 (freethought110@yahoo.com)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 17:25:19 PST

Don't go, Fred. You, your presence and website are a mine rich in the gems of inestimable truth. Don't throw in the towel, yet!

"FG" <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message news:
<blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de>...
> October 6, 2003
>
> Farewell Friends,
>
> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's
> respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would
> circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.
>
> Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and > slander, on and offline since 1996, I little > expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other > pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave > heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands > of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists
> among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts > of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally > encouraging are the many voices of conscience that > have arisen to champion the sanctity of the > individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> will remain online for those who find it a useful > resource and archive. Should any major document > or incident take place or come to light, I would > be happy to make it available and preserve it for > the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow > Abdul-Baha's clear and unequivocal Teaching, and
> for my fellow citizens, less they be deceived > with impunity.
>
> Those who have stood and fought for the rights > of the individual, in the face of a wholly corrupted
> administrative order, have my undying respect.
> May God grant you the inner strength and resources
> to carry on....
>
> I may be reached at bahaicensorship@FG.com
> via the Contact link on my website.
>
> FG
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/>
>

>
> Interested persons and newcomers may glean my personal story at
>
> To the Universal House of Justice - March 31, 1997
> <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/To-UHJ1.htm>
>
> "Please remove my name and address from your mailing list."
> <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/nsa1996.htm>
>
> Why I Don't Respond to Fundamentalists among my Fellow Baha'is
> <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Why1.htm>

Post a follow-up to this message

-----
-----
Next 2
Jump to [ End of thread ]

From: Rod (kashani@tpg.com.au)
Subject: Re: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-06 17:51:20 PST

"I think over again my small adventures
My fears
Those small ones that seemed so big
For all the vital things
I had to get and to reach
And yet there is only one great thing
The only thing
To live to see the great day that dawns
And the light that fills the world"
Old Inuit Song

All the best and many thanks Fred

Rod Wicks, fellow Associate Member- Changi Literary Society

FG <BI*P*GS@LIBERTY.COM> wrote in message

news:blrlrg$afpli$1@ID-75545.news.uni-berlin.de...
> October 6, 2003
>
> Farewell Friends,
>
> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's
> respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would
> circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.
>
> Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and > slander, on and offline since 1996, I little > expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other > pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave > heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands > of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists
> among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts > of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally > encouraging are the many voices of conscience that > have arisen to champion the sanctity of the > individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> will remain online for those who find it a useful > resource and archive. Should any major document > or incident take place or come to light, I would > be happy to make it available and preserve it for > the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow

Read the rest of this message... (36 more lines)

Post a follow-up to this message

Message 12 in thread
From: Martin (esperanto@excite.com)
Subject: Farewell Friends

View this article only
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.bahai
Date: 2003-10-07 06:46:10 PST

Dear FG,

Sometimes we have obligations that impede us to do everything we would like, your participation in the forums was quite interesting and the greatest legacy you leave us is arb and trb, where different ideas were able to circulate in spite of the efforts of some fanatical heterodox Baha'is. Thanks a bunch for those places of free discussion!

Sincerely,

Martin

<https://bahai-guardian.com/>

> October 6, 2003

>

> Farewell Friends,

>

> A number of changes have taken place in my life
> during the last several months that necessitate
> I forgo my continuing defense of Abdul-Baha's
> respect for free speech and conscience, at least > as an active online participant. Since many might > well imagine the rumors and libel that would
> circulate, should I just disappear from cyberspace,
> I feel it necessary to post this farewell note.

>

> Having witnessed and suffered bahai tyranny and > slander, on and offline since 1996, I little > expect it to diminish with my withdrawal to other > pursuits and responsibilities. However, I leave > heartened by the knowledge that so many thousands > of people now know the truth about the fundamentalists
> among my fellow bahais and their many shameful acts > of tyranny, oppression, and injustice. Equally > encouraging are the many voices of conscience that > have arisen to champion the sanctity of the > individual soul throughout bahai cyberspace.

>

> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
> will remain online for those who find it a useful > resource and archive. Should any major document > or incident take place or come to light, I would > be happy to make it available and preserve it for > the benefit of my fellow bahais, who follow > Abdul-Baha's clear and unequivocal Teaching, and
> for my fellow citizens, less they be deceived > with impunity.

>

> Those who have stood and fought for the rights

Read the rest of this message... (23 more lines)

Post a follow-up to this message

-----
-----

Response from:

Jim46

10/7/03 11:56 AM 2 out of 2

To better appreciate the value of Fred's work, consider this:

In addition to the wealth of guidance in the Bahá'í teachings applying to situations of domestic violence, we wish to acknowledge that such a thorough treatment of the subject would not have been possible without the contributions and sacrifices of the multitude of individuals and organizations who are carrying forward programs of research, prevention, intervention, legislation, and remediation, often impelled by courageous individuals who have spoken out about abuse, by stories of those who have suffered the consequences and by aware individuals seeking to change society for the benefit of present and future generations.

- National Spiritual Assembly, "Guidelines for Spiritual Assemblies on Domestic Violence."

The above refers to abuse within homes and families, but I think it applies just as well to abuse within the Baha'i family.

Jim

From: "Rod" <kashani@tpg.com.au>

Subject: Believer Beware- Turf War

Date: Saturday, November 15, 2003 10:31 PM

The Baha'i cyberspace Turf War is no different to any other conflict over ideological territory. Each side attempts to capture the moral/ethical/intellectual high ground.

What distinguishes this conflict is the absence of any mutually agreed code of conduct and the absence of any preparedness to consider or establish same.

Any conflict conducted without agreed limits, boundaries and defined code rapidly degenerates into a no holds barred dangerous anarchic free for all.

Here are the street fighting tactics employed to date by the 'Baha'i Apologists' (a group who present themselves as the true representatives and true defenders of the Faith)-

1/ The 'Feint'- the appearance of standing toe to toe to discuss the point while actually employing a range of evasive devices- ( The straw man, the peripheral or non issue, the misrepresentation, the red herring or furphy).

2/ The 'Play Dead' or 'Blind Eye'- an escalation of the 'Feint'- to ignore the issue and/or the post/thread completely and/or to subsequently attack the issue in another thread or via 'Drive By' (see below).

The 'Play Dead' is often accompanied by its variant- the unjustified and/or unexplained killfile.

(See Susan for details)

A further variant is the 'Wise Monkeys' (?) or 'I See No Shits' blind eye turned to seriously abusive Behaviors. (See Pat for details)

3/ The 'Drive By' or 'Drive By Lie'- the crap flung in passing (misses more often than not) from a post that has no intention of stopping to defend the lie/allegation. Usually contains innuendo, misrepresentation, lie.

You can tell a 'Drive By' from a clean jab by the failure of the poster to stop/stick around to meet the challenge.

The 'Drive by' is usually a miniscule 'blipvert' bit of bollocks that cannot stand scrutiny (Susans favorite) or may be lengthier with oblique references and innuendo that will be supported by no further clarification (Pat's favorite).

'Rank Magic'- involves the guts (or entirety) of what you have put forward simply disappearing in the response.

Comment, point, issue, pertinent question are all simply cut and vanish. in their place stands something entirely different (and often incomprehensible). Rank Magic is often the precursor to the 'Straw man'. (See Jerry for details).

'Gun in the Ring' or 'Knife at a Knuckle Fight'- is the most common, reprehensible, repugnant, cowardly and vile of all Baha'i

Apologist tactics. It has long been documented and some have called it
the
'Baha'i Technique'.
This is a misnomer...though it occurs frequently within the Baha'i
Community there is nothing 'Baha'i', civil or ethical about it.

'Gun in the Ring' represents the desperate measures employed by Baha's Apologists seeking to slander, libel, lie regarding a fellow Baha'is relationship to their Faith.
Short of theft or criminal assault it is the worst kind of offense one Baha'i can commit against another. No..worse than these..it is a morally and ethically repugnant act..an unwarranted and unsubstantiated attack on another's core values and beliefs.

Bald faced lies accusing Baha'is of having "attacked the UHJ" or "attacked the whole Faith" are stock in trade for the Baha'i Apologists. Unable to conduct a clean argument they reach for and deploy the dirtiest weapon they can manufacture.
(See Jerry, see Effy/Pith, see Dust, see Susan, see Nightshadow
, see Beliefnet, see TRB, see Baha'i cyberspace, see Baha'i community....see the 'Wise Monkeys')

'Wise Monkeys'- See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil.
they sit in lurkers gallery or participate on the boards but 'know nothing' of the evil that transpires around them.
This behavior- the turning away from and ignoring abusive behaviors is the most common collective feature of the 'Baha'i Community Culture of Denial'. It is a perfect reflection of what Community Builder M Scott Peck describes as- "The hole in the mind"..the absence of collective responsibility and awareness.

It is the very antithesis of 'spiritual'.

Rod.

From: "Rod" <kashani@tpg.com.au>
Subject: Re: CENSORSHIP - soc.religion.bahai - CENSORSHIP
-

Date: Sunday, November 16, 2003 11:39 PM

smaneck@aol.com (Susan Maneck ) wrote in message news:
<20031116121945.05353.00000274@mb-m21.aol.com>...

> <sigh>
> It couldn't last.

You have laid such solid foundations it should last forever-

El Baquiano to Susan M-

"Either prove these allegations or apologize. This is the third time that you have made such remarks. I have pointed them out two previous times. And you have not responded to either of them."

"I am shocked to read your words. Where have I "challenged the way they (House of Justice) is investing"? Where have I said that "the House was exercising less than proper stewardship"?"

"But I strongly object to the way that you are twisting and perverting my intentions and words."

"I will answer your question of 'why' but once again, you skirt around the fact that you have attributed disgusting lies and ugly motivations to me without any proof whatsoever."

"Since I prize the Baha'i Faith, words that insult it are vile. And since I never uttered nothing resembling them, I say that you are falsely attribute them to me. You continuously imply that my motivations are suspect and nefarious and that I am attacking the Faith and its institutions. Yet in the face of irreproachable proof to the contrary, you continue to add to your mound of lies."

"You, Madam, are devoid of propriety, dignity and morality."

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Sen McGlinn & FG - A 1996 Conversation, Censored....

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Sen%20McGlinn.htm>

Also see Juan Cole on Sen McGlinn, Takfir, Excommunicated

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Cole,neworthodoxy.htm>

Review of Church and State: A Postmodern Political Theology. Sen McGlinn. University of Leiden, 2005.

<https://fglaysher.com/TheGlobe/2011/06/16/church-and-state-sen-mcglinn/>

While I don't have the time at the moment to respond fully to Sen McGlinn's mistaken attempt to discredit Dr. C. Ainsworth Mitchell's Report, I will point out briefly the key fact:

What's purported to be Abdul-Baha's will and testament has never been probated or authenticated independently of those who were and are its beneficiaries.

All of McGlinn's arguments are variations of the same old calumnies that the Haifans have always used to smear Dr. Mitchell and Ruth White, following Shoghi Effendi's despicable example. They are not any more convincing coming from a supposedly excommunicated Haifan trying to redeem himself with his masters than when Mirza Sohrab essentially did the same thing, though with more subtlety.

McGlinn concedes in his attack on Mitchell that "I am not a forensic handwriting expert" and knowing a language is irrelevant to forensic experts. His assumptions about what Mitchell did are merely that.

McGlinn's other tactics are unseemly and entirely in keeping with those widely used by members of the Haifan denomination based on the fraudulent will and testament.

Bahai regards,

FG

The Reform Bahai Faith
www.ReformBahai.org

Sen McGlinn & FG - A 1996 Conversation, Censored....

[The soc.religion.bahai moderator intervened to censor and break off discussion, pretending technical problems]

Message from discussion politics & religion (was review etc.)

From: "Sen McGlinn" <S.Mc_Gl...@ThuisNet.LeidenUniv.NL>

Subject: politics & religion (was review etc.)

Date: 1996/11/14

Message-ID: <"15KJV.A.JjE.Ys5iy"@bounty>

X-Deja-AN: 196519781

distribution: world

priority: normal

organization: Leiden University

reply-to: S.Mc_Gl...@ThuisNet.LeidenUniv.NL

newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

Excuse me butting in - but this thread that started with review and moved on to politics and religion sounds interesting! Unfortunately in the form I got it it is not quite clear which post comes from whom, - the moderator tells me it is FG & John Haukness, but I have the name [deleted] on my copy. Anyway, from the digest as I got it I reconstruct the conversation as follows:

John wrote "it will take some time, for Western academic secularism, and existentialism to accept the non-separation between religion and state." To which Frederick replied "Your conclusions don't appear to me to be supported by the Baha'i Writings. / Given modern religious history, since the 1600s really, Western secularism has quite rightly [found?] that the separation of religion from the state is in everyone's best interest." And John said that "The writings of the Guardian make it clear to me that the american separation of Church and state is based on fear and will fade away." Apologies if I have attributed words to the wrong person. Let's suppose that the names are arbitrary labels, and discuss these as two points of view:

1) I agree with them both. More of this later.

2) Both refer to 'the Baha'i Writings' and 'the writings of the Guardian' without giving a reference at all. In a Faith as text-based as the Baha'i Faith, this is not very helpful. In Frederick's case a 'reference' would be difficult to find, since he is saying essentially that there is **not** anything in the Writings to support the non-separation of church and state - and so far as I know he is correct. I've never seen anything to support that position. It's hard to prove a negative, but you can always frame the question in a positive way - what are the texts which **support** the separation of church & state? - and then a reference can be found:

... your Lord hath committed the world and the cities thereof to the care of the kings of the earth, and made them the emblems of His own power, by virtue of the sovereignty He hath chosen to bestow upon them.

He hath refused to reserve for Himself any share whatever of this world's dominion. To this He Who is Himself the Eternal Truth will testify. The things He hath reserved for Himself are the cities of men's hearts ... (Gleanings, CXXIX, p. 304. See also Proclamation of Baha'u'llah, p. 13; Gleanings, CXV, p. 206; Aqdas paras 83, 95, The World Order of Baha'u'llah p. 66....)

This puts the onus on anyone arguing the opposite point of view to find texts at least as weighty as these, or, more accurately, to come up with a wider understanding which takes these into account. The aim should be a synthesis which accounts for all the evidence rather than an arm-wrestling match with the two parties trying to find texts that are sufficiently muscular (persuasive and authoritative) to overwhelm the opposition. John did provide one interesting quote which he attributes to Shoghi Effendi, but without a source. I ran it through the REFER programme and turned up nothing, so it is very unlikely that this is any of the published works of Shoghi Effendi. It also contains far more grammatical errors than one would expect of a text from Shoghi Effendi. However there is a lot of material published in The American Baha'i which is not included in the REFER programme, so who knows? John also referred to the Hatchers, apparently in support, but does not say what it is the Hatchers might have said or where, so this again adds nothing. The ratio of light to heat produced in discussions will probably be improved if the elementary discipline of citing texts and giving sources is observed.

3a) as I said, I agree with both John and Frederick. First Frederick: "Western secularism has quite rightly that the separation of religion from the state is in everyone's best interest." I think this is indisputable as a matter of history, although it is perhaps not as modern or western as one might think. There have been very few societies which have ever had a genuine melding of the religious and civil orders. Most of these have been very short-lived experiments, in some cases due to unique temporary circumstances (Muhammad at Medina), in other cases because the society collapsed or developed de facto or de jure separate institutions. Theocracy, in general, doesn't work.

Only one exception comes to mind: Egypt under the God/Kings - that one became **too** stable. I think there were not too many prophets denouncing Pharaoh's iniquities and generally keeping the social conscience alive in ancient Egypt (one prominent Exception comes to mind, and He was obliged to vacate double-quick), and perhaps this contributed to the social stasis. Other relatively stable theocracies (Mayans?) have also been states in which the state absorbed the religion rather than vice versa. Can anyone suggest an instance of a society in which the religious order assumed the task of civil government which did not end in quick and messy disaster?

The lesson thus far can be learned from history - we didn't need a Manifestation to tell us that. What the Baha'i revelation adds to this is in providing a *religious* justification for the existence and work of the state. Christianity and Islam have not really provided this. Confucianism did I think, but it will hardly help us in the 20th century. The Christian justification for the state is based on Romans 13: 1-3, which I will quote in the form Baha'u'llah cites it, so as to make two points with one quote:

In the Epistle to the Romans Saint Paul hath written: "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God; the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God." And further: "For he is the minister of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil." He saith that the appearance of the kings, and their majesty and power are of God.

Moreover, in the traditions of old, references have been made which the divines have seen and heard. We beseech God--blessed and glorified be He--to aid thee, O Shaykh, to lay fast hold on that which hath been sent down from the heaven of the bounty of God, the Lord of the worlds. The divines must needs unite with His Majesty, the Shah, and cleave unto that which will insure the protection, the security, the welfare and prosperity of men. A just king enjoyeth nearer access unto God than anyone.

(Epistle to the Son of the Wolf, pp. 91-92.)

You can see here the Christian justification for the existence of the worldly 'powers' - which is pretty thin, since Caesar's only function is to execute wrath, as a sort of divinely justified hangman. We also see Baha'u'llah's reinterpretation, which is much stronger: Kingship in His interpretation of this text becomes a reflection of the attributes of God. The religious order and the civil order are to work together, and this is possible because the king has a revealed religious mandate - just as the Baha'i institutions have. They can therefore *work together* for the good of humanity on equal terms. The kings and rulers (civil government) are every bit as much divinely ordained as the religious institutions! This is not the separation of the church and state as it is understood in America, but it is "formal and complete separation of Church and State" (Unfolding Destiny, p. 76; Baha'i Administration, p. 149.) in one sense. They are separated *so that* they can work together as 'two forces' (Will and Testament of `Abdul-Baha, pp 14 - 15). [BTW - note that science and religion are also referred to as the 'two forces' in 'the promise of World Peace']. I think this theological justification for the separation (differentiation is a better term) is significant. *If* the religious order accepts that the civil order has a right to exist and a dignity before God which is equal to its own, and *if* the civil order recognizes the vital role of religion in achieving the goals of the civil order (security and human development), there is the foundation for a close working relationship that can go far beyond the situation in which church and state live alongside one-another, each pretending that the other does not exist. Behind this again is something rather metaphysical, but in the long term of great practical importance. The creation, in Baha'i theology, is conceived of as a structure of pairs:

...the union of created things doth ever yield most laudable results. From the pairing of even the smallest particles in the world of being are the grace and bounty of God made manifest; and the higher the degree, the more momentous is the union. 'Glory be to Him Who hath created all the pairs, of such things as earth produceth, and out of men themselves, and of things beyond their ken.' (Selections from the Writings of 'Abdul-Baha, p. 119. The quotation is from the Qur'an 36:36)

The pairing of these diverse elements is beautiful and gives Glory to God. Their diversity reflects the different names of God, and these should sing together in harmony. This is unity-in-diversity. One of the besetting sins of the 19th and 20th centuries has been to attempt to achieve unity through uniformity or by subjecting one order of society to another - for instance by subjecting arts & commerce to the demands of the political order (Communism & Fascism) or by subjecting morality and politics to economic theory (utilitarian capitalism). Obviously this doesn't work as a matter of practical experience - the various orders (organs) of society have to know their own limitations and learn to know and respect the capacities of the other orders. Structural pluralism in short. But these 20th-century attempts at monolithic unity are more than (murderous) practical blunders: if the orders of society reflect the names & attributes of God (science reflects the name 'the all-knowing' and the attribute 'knowledge', for instance), then these attempts are blasphemous: either one is ranking the attributes of God one above the other, or even worse, trying to create a monolithic oneness (beyond different attributes) which can exist only in the Godhead itself. Hubris. The unity which we can achieve is a harmony of diverse notes in one chord, not and never a unity of being, which is proper only to Godself. This is why we should emphasise that the unity which Baha'u'llah speaks is an organic unity - not resembling in any way these revolting 20th-century attempts to combine all-in-one:

Regard ye the world as a man's body, which is afflicted with divers ailments, and the recovery of which dependeth upon the *harmonizing of all of its component elements.*
(Proclamation of Baha'u'llah, p. 22.)

With this sort of metaphysical equipment, it is obvious that the Baha'i Faith is right at home in modern societies. I think in fact that it is 'tailor-made' for such societies - by the Divine Tailor. Here I part company with John Hatcher, in The Law of Love Enshrined p.180, where he envisages a Baha'i society as "a commonwealth of autonomous and closely knit communities, much like tribal communities in the collaboration and close association among their members". I think the Faith is suited for, and will create, a cosmopolitan society based on overlapping and mutually interdependent matrix structures. Modern at the very least, presumably post-modern, certainly not a return to the unity of the tribe. Hatcher's assumption (he provides neither text nor argument) that the Baha'i society would be theocratic (p. 176) is I think due to his neo-tribal idea, and even then I don't think many tribes have actually had theocratic structures. The differentiation between the medicine-man/woman and the chief is rather widespread.

3b) now I promised to agree with the point of view I have tentatively labelled as 'John', and I will, even if you might suspect that my heart is not in it :-)

First of all, "the american separation of Church and state is based on fear and will fade away." Yay. To be replaced by something more mature, a harmony of diverse elements. For the present, the fear has some justification and the present form of separation needs to be defended as an interim protection. But fear is a damn poor basis for a developing society. I have shown (I think) why, when the Baha'i teachings are accepted, especially by the Baha'is, that fear may eventually become redundant, and a harmony based on love and respect may become possible. To calm the fear, we should be shouting the essential texts regarding this Baha'i principle from the rooftops, putting them in newspaper advertisements, memorising them in summerschools, making them the subject of public talks, etc:

Theirs is not the purpose, ... to allow the machinery of their administration to supersede the government of their respective countries. (The World Order of Baha'u'llah, p 66)

The message is: "Don't worry, good people. We're not coming to stage a takeover. God wouldn't let us do it if you asked us too. Relax...". Might take a few generations and a lot of repetition to get through I'm afraid.

I also thoroughly agree with John (and `Abdul-Baha) about the integration of 'holy teachings' in education. I don't follow the line of reasoning which then leads him to suppose that religion and science should therefore be 'inseparable' in education - it seems to me that a 'barrier' between them (see Qur'an 55:19-22) is vital to both:

Glory be unto Him who hath produced growth in the adjoining fields of various natures!
Glory be unto Him who irrigated them with the same waters gushing forth from that Fountain! (Tablets of 'Abdul-Baha, p 398.)

The wouldn't be 'two fields' or at least their 'various natures' would not remain distinct, without the wall of separation between them. If science and religion are not kept quite separate in our minds, there is a high likelihood of muddled thinking which will eventually become blasphemous in one way another.

John, I am intrigued by the 'existentialism' in the reference to "Western academic secularism, and existentialism" in your posting. Is that western academic existentialism, or is the existentialism something quite separate (not academic or not western), and in either case what is it doing here?

Sen.

PS don't forget to send me a copy! Otherwise I have to browse the bulletin boards every night! And the postings do get gloriously mixed up in my system.

---

Sen McGlinn

Sen.McGl...@Bahai.NL

***

When, however, thou dost contemplate the innermost essence of things, and the individuality of each,
thou wilt behold the signs of thy Lord's mercy . . ."

---

Message from discussion politics & religion (was review etc.)

From: FG <[delete].Glays...@moa.net>

Subject: Re: politics & religion (was review etc.)

Date: 1996/11/15

Message-ID: <"un1XEB.A.u9F.YwJjy"@bounty> #1/1

X-Deja-AN: 196679879

distribution: world

organization: Oakland University, Rochester, Michigan, U.S.A.

newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

Sen McGlinn wrote:

>

[clip]

> institutions have. They can therefore *work together* for the good of > humanity on equal terms. The kings and rulers (civil government) are > every bit as much divinely ordained as the religious institutions!

> This is not the separation of the church and state as it is > understood in America, but it is "formal and complete separation of > Church and State" (Unfolding Destiny, p. 76; Baha'i Administration, > p. 149.) in one sense. They are separated *so that* they can work > together as 'two forces' (Will and Testament of `Abdul-Baha, pp 14 - > 15). [BTW - note that science and religion are also referred to as > the 'two forces' in 'the promise of World Peace']. I think this > theological justification for the separation (differentiation is a > better term) is significant.

An interesting way of looking at it. Do you think in practice this will actually happen?

*If* the religious order accepts that > the civil order has a right to exist and a dignity before God which > is equal to its own, and *if* the civil order recognizes the vital > role of religion in achieving the goals of the civil order (security > and human development), there is the foundation for a close working > relationship that can go far beyond the situation in which church and > state live alongside one-another, each pretending that the other does > not exist. Behind this again is something rather metaphysical, but in > the long term of great practical importance. The creation, in Baha'i > theology, is conceived of as a structure of pairs:
>

A very big "if." History seems to show, at best, a volatile tension;
a conflict, if you will, that energizes both sides, without ever resolving the issue.

[clip]

> itself. Hubris. The unity which we can achieve is a harmony of > diverse notes in one chord, not and never a unity of being, which is > proper only to Godself. This is why we should emphasise that the unity > which Baha'u'llah speaks is an organic unity - not resembling in any > way these revolting 20th-century attempts to combine all-in-one:
>

"Attempts to combine all-in-one" are and have been revolting--and bloody.
The Baha'i Faith will never become such an attempt? Given the fanaticism of some in the Baha'i Faith, seemingly encouraged by some in authority, I'm not so confident.

> -----
> Sen McGlinn Sen.McGl...@Bahai.NL
> ***

--
FG
Rochester, Michigan USA

Message from discussion politics & religion (was review etc.)

View parsed - Show only message text from: "Sen McGlinn"

<S.Mc\_Gl...@ThuisNet.LeidenUniv.NL>

Subject: Re: politics & religion (was review etc.)

Date: 1996/11/19

Message-ID: <56slri\$min@nnrp1.news.primenet.com>

X-Deja-AN: 197451002

distribution: world

organization: Rijksuniversiteit Leiden

x-posted-by: rdetw...@206.165.5.108 (rdetweil)

newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

I referred to the religious and civil orders (church and state) as separated and cooperating. Frederick asked if I thought this would in practice happen.

Yes and No. That the religious and civil orders in a Baha'i society would remain separated is clear, if only because the Faith has a clear authority structure and is text-oriented. The Guardian, who was the authorized interpreter of the Baha'i Writings said that the Baha'is should not "under any circumstances"..."allow the machinery of their administration to supersede the government of their respective countries." (in World Order of Baha'u'llah, p. 66). Since the line of the guardians has ended, there is no-one with the authority to cancel or re-interpret this. Thus even if my reading of Baha'u'llah's writings (ie that He advocates permanent formal separation of church & state *and* cooperation between elected representatives, hereditary monarchs, religious authorities and other social interests) - even if this view of the ultimate aim is not accepted and some Baha'is or some Baha'i institutions think that a theocratic state is ultimately desirable, there is just no way we can get there from here.

If separation is permanent, then some sort of accomodation and patterns of working together will be worked out in practice in every society. And this will probably seldom attain an ideal of harmony & synergy - this is the real world, and perfection remains only an ultimate goal. There is a similar pair-relationship within the Baha'i administrative order between elected institutions (Spiritual Assemblies or Houses of Justice) and appointed institutions (Counsellors, their auxilliary boards, and *their* local assistants). Does it work in practice? well it works a lot better than having only one hierarchical structure would - there is at the least an alternative line of communication and action if the institutions on one side are gridlocked. And it doesn't work perfectly - the elected institutions have been known to be jealous of the freedom of the appointed institutions to set and pursue their own agendas (which may have little relationship to the Plan (with a mental capital P) which the elected institutions are pursuing. And appointed people have been known to step outside their role and start administering things. Each side has to really understand the other for the cooperation to work, and I think this understanding is growing, gradually. But it is already 'working in practice' to some extent.

Likewise the church-state relation: I don't expect it ever to be perfectly resolved. Next to the relationship between men & women, this is the most fundamental social differentiation. It is an issue in one way or other in every society I know of. If someone proposes one solution as permanent and complete (whether that be theocracy or separation in hermetic compartments), I know they haven't grasped the issue. Body & soul, faith and knowledge, male & female, church & state, and should I start with peanut butter or jam. Some issues are meant to be lived with, not resolved.

PS: just to complicate things: I have talked about the relationship between the state and Baha'i institutions with the implication that the Baha'i institutions concerned would be the elected (ie administrative) institutions. But from the quote in my tagline regarding the Mashriqu'l-adhkar and the reference to the appointed institutions above, you can see that the Baha'i Faith has a rather complex internal structure. Maybe it makes more sense to think about the relationship between the state (eg the local government) and the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar (house of worship, or 'church' in the NT sense of a body of people worshipping together rather than a church organisation). After all the Mashriq is the crowning institution of the community, and is also the institution most open to the world, it is "God's universal House of Worship", a home for all peoples, rather than a club for the true believers. And the institutions where church-state is a Big Question - such as schools - are dependencies of the Mashriqu'l-adhkar rather than extensions of the elected institutions. So this may be the place where a good working relationship with the state institutions matters most.

Sen

---

Sen McGlinn

Sen.McGl...@Bahai.NL

***

Let the friends recall and ever bear in mind the repeated exhortations and glowing promises of our beloved Master with reference to the Mashriqu'l-Adhkar, the crowning institution in every Baha'i community.

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shoot the Messenger, Character Assassination, ETC

<https://fglaysher.com/bahacensorship/Shoot%20the%20Messenger.htm>

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahacensorship/Shunning.htm>

"The Bahai Technique" - Slander & Shunning

<https://fglaysher.com/bahacensorship/technique.htm>

"I do think it's convenient for some to focus on the messenger—why?—it conveniently deflects attention from the message." —Bernard Goldberg, Bias

"The ideas that rebels expound tend not to be attacked by those in power. The latter are inclined rather to kill the messenger by character assassination. For example, one rebel was said to be a womanizer... bitter... disloyal... and even, in the words of one accuser, dangerously mentally ill." —C. Tarvis, social psychologist

"Check for yourselves: during the last ten, twenty or thirty years, has rational argument ever been used against any dissident? No, never, because no such arguments exist. They always reply with curses and slander. Such was the "answer" to Sakharov. And just as empty was the "answer" to Heinrich Boll. But most often total silence has been the answer... (The Oak and the Calf), Solzhenitsyn

Excerpts from Interview of David Horowitz:

<https://www.frontpagemag.com/Articles/Read.aspx?GUID=DB423593-A180-46C6-9EBE-102927308E3B>

"Glazov: How much personal abuse have you suffered for your efforts? Why does the Left always attack the opponent as a human being, rather than simply just debate the opponent with dehumanizing and demonizing him?

David Horowitz: Because the Left is based on a fantasy of redemption -- which requires that its opponents are damned. It is also a reactionary force that has learned nothing from its crimes, and therefore cannot handle a debate on the issues or over the facts. Therefore it really has only one weapon, which is slander, defamation, which it will resort to at the least provocation. ....

David Horowitz: ....The extravagant goal of redeeming humanity justifies uncompromising means. Social redeemers regard themselves as an "army of the saints," and their opponents as belonging to the party of Satan. They do not view their conservative opponents as supporters of alternative means for improving the lot of women, minorities and the poor, but as enemies of women, minorities and the poor.

Progressive agendas cannot be opposed, therefore, on grounds that are principled or practical or compassionate. Opponents of "progressives" are defined as "reactionaries" -- advocates of racism and sexism, practitioners of "McCarthyism," and other incarnations of social evil. To be demonized by progressives, then, is not a personal matter, but is an ineluctable consequence of opposing their agendas. These agendas are of necessity uncompromising. Since theirs is always a battle between good and evil they have to be constantly on guard against contamination by the reality they are seeking to overcome. Consequently they are always on the hunt for the impure among them, for witches and others who have danced with the devil."

Compare The Baha'i Cadre System - Randy Burns

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/cadre.htm>

Bunnin and Beren (Writer's Legal Companion), "A truth statement, no matter how damaging, can't be libelous."

"Constitutional lawyers French, Lukianoff and Silverglate (FIRE's guide to Free Speech on Campus) note that "The concept of defamation includes both libel (usually, written defamation) and slander (spoken defamation), although the two are frequently confused and lumped together. [...] If you are accused of libel, don't panic. Although defamation is one of the most frequently made claims in law, it is also one of the most frequently dismissed. [...] If a statement is true it is not defamatory. [...] A statement of opinion, by itself, cannot be defamation. [...] In other words, defamation is about objective harm, not about subjective hurt."

The poet should possess the courage to "go upright and vital, and speak the rude truth in all ways" (Emerson)

"Commitment does not exist as an abstraction; it exists in action. This is what it is about: Everything we do is either functioning within the system as it exists, or challenging the system. It is as simple as that. So when one examines literature, or when one creates literature, one is either following an established order and functioning within it, or one is bucking that order, challenging it, questioning it. [...] The question which naturally arises in some minds is: "What is the relationship between the writers who function within the system and the writers who challenge the system?" [...] There is almost no dialogue at all, no communication at all—with negligible exceptions—between these two groups of writers." —Dennis Brutus, "Literature and Commitment in South Africa"

"What, in effect, would it (art and literature) speak about today? If it conforms to what is demanded by our society on the whole, it will serve as diversion without consequence. If it blindly refuses society, it will express nothing other than refusal. This double nihilism has touched a huge part of modern literary creation produced by entertainers and rhetoricians of forme, but which in both cases ends up in an art cut off from real life." - Albert Camus

"What was good about Rabelais was that he risked his own skin." —Louis-Ferdinand Céline

"You know the real thing is that the sense of sacrifice and risk is one of the greatest stimuli in the world. And you take that all out of it—take that away from it so that there's no risk in being a poet, I bet you'd lose a lot of the pious spirits. They're in it for the—hell of it." — Robert Frost

"Finally, for those who are not interested in principled arguments, remind them that history shows us that the censors of one generation are the censored of the next. [...] You are part of the community; do not let the administration that it must censor speech to please the community. The idea that there is a conflict between free speech and the academic community fundamentally misunderstands both the goals of higher education and the nature and role of free speech." —George Orwell

"Literature was not promulgated by a pale and emasculated critical priesthood singing their litanies in empty churches—nor is it a game for the cloistered elect, the tinhorn mendicants of low calorie despair. The ancient commission of the writer has not changed. He is charged with exposing our many grievous faults and failures, with dredging up to the light our dark and dangerous dreams for the purpose of improvement." —John Steinbeck, Nobel banquet speech

"I am ashamed to think how easily we capitulate to badges and names, to large societies and dead institutions." —Ralph Waldo Emerson

"Criticism, like charity, starts at home." —Wole Soyinka

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

---

From: Juan R. I. Cole <jrcole@umich.edu>
To: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: New Zealand shunning of non-Baha'i
Date: Sunday, February 08, 1998 7:23 PM

You mean I never shared this with the Talismanians?

Here it is in all its glory:

cheers Juan

-----

>National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of New Zealand
>P O Box 21551 (180 Candia Road)
>Henderson Auckland 1231
>New Zealand
>
>Telephone: (09) 837-4866
>Facsimile: (09) 837-4896
>Email: natbahaiofnz@attmail.com
>
>16 December, 1996
>Ref 1695/96
>
>To the Baha'is of New Zealand
>
>Dear Baha'i Friends
>
>          Lamentable Situation Calls for Loyal Response
>
>With heavy hearts, the National Spiritual Assembly announces to the Baha'i >community that Ms Pauline Smith, of Masterton, has broken the Covenant and >been expelled from the Faith by the Universal House of Justice. Ms Smith has >unfortunately not heeded the guidance and warnings she has been given over a >period of some months, and has decided to maintain contact and association >with known Covenant-breakers, who are some of the relatives of Shoghi >Effendi, and in particular, Ms Parvine Afnan Shahid.
>
>Ms Smith, who had known about the Faith for some years in New Zealand, went >to the United Kingdom where she continued learning about the Faith from >believers she met there. While in England she also happened to meet the >family of Covenant-breakers and became friends with them. Ms Smith later >became a Baha'i in England and, soon afterwards, returned to New Zealand (in >1995). Since then, there have been attempts by the institutions of the Faith >to counsel Ms Smith about her association with Ms Shahid, who intends to >come to live in Masterton from early 1997. The Universal House of Justice says:
>

> "It has been determined that Parvine Shahid, who is the granddaughter > of the notorious Covenant-breaker Nayyir Afnan, is infected with the > spirit of Covenant-breaking and should be treated as a > Covenant-breaker."(1)
>
>Friends wishing to know more about the history of Ms Shahid's family should >refer to a book by Mr Adib Taherzadeh, entitled *The Covenant of >Baha'u'llah* which provides full information about this matter. A four page >summary of relevant details is being sent to all Local Spiritual Assemblies >and groups, and is available from the National Office on request.
>
>A fundamental principle of the Faith is that no believer can have any >contact or association with a believer who has been deemed by the Head of >the Faith to break the Covenant, whether by correspondence, telephone, or in >person. Strict adherence to this rule is obligatory. The essential reason >for this is to preserve the unity of the Baha'i Faith. It is because of >division within themselves that the religions of the past have not fulfilled >their purpose to unify mankind. For a further elaboration of this principle >please see the attached extracts from a letter of the Universal House of >Justice dated 9 December 1996, to a believer in Masterton [not supplied].
>
>Over the next few months the National Spiritual Assembly will implement, in >collaboration with the Arm of the Learned and working through the Local >Spiritual Assemblies and assistants, a systematic deepening programme on the >Covenant aimed at every believer in New Zealand. In the meantime, the >friends are urged to rededicate themselves to study of 'Abdul-Baha's Will >and Testament, and to familiarise themselves with guidance regarding >firmness in the Covenant, which is found in such publications as *Lights of >Guidance*. All communities were recently sent a copy of a publication >entitled *The Power of the Covenant* which consists of a set of three >booklets. This provides further reference material for any questions you may >have about this matter. Audio cassette tapes on the subject of the Covenant >are also available from the Audio-Visual Unit. The National Spiritual >Assembly urges you to make a concerted effort to study deeply the subject of >the Covenant, individually and in groups.
>
>Meeting this challenge represents a new stage in the growth of the Faith in >New Zealand. These words of a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi >provide reassurance of the progress that comes from a crisis:
>
> "He urges you not to be discouraged or depressed, but rest assured > that Baha'u'llah will assist you. Every set-back this Cause receives > is invariably a means of ensuring a future victory, for God will > never permit His Faith to be put out or uprooted."(2)
>
>As the believers strengthen their understanding of the Covenant and more >faithfully adhere to its provisions, such firmness will not only increase >their own understanding of Baha'u'llah's Revelation and provide protection >for our national community, but will also give additional impetus to >deepening our commitment to achieving the purpose and goals of God's plan.
>
>We are fully conscious of the distress and shock that many believers will go >through as a result of this severe test and we do not underestimate the >severe challenge this poses.
>
>The Universal House of Justice says:
>
> "We are confident that the dearly loved New Zealand believers will > not allow this lamentable situation to deflect them from their > meritorious endeavours to further develop their Baha'i community and > to maintain its unity."(3)
>
>Be assured of the ardent prayers of this institution for your reassurance, >comfort and strength of faith.
>

>Warmest Baha'i love
>NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY
>
>Suzanne Mahon
>Secretary
>
>enc: Extract from a letter of the Universal House of Justice to an >individual believer, 9 December 1996
>
>
>1. From a letter dated 12 December 1996 from the Department of the > Secretariat, Universal House of Justice, to the National Spiritual > Assembly of the Baha'is of New Zealand[.]
>
>2. From a letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, dated 26 January > 1950 to the Local Spiritual Assembly of Panama, quoted in The > Compilation of Compilations: Volume 1, #323.
>
>3. From a letter of the Universal House of Justice dated 12 December > 1996 to the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of New > Zealand.
>
> ----- letter ends, fax begins -----
>
>
>Universal House of Justice
>Baha'i World Centre
>12 December 1996
>
>Transmitted by fax: 64-9-8374898
>The National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of New Zealand
>
>Dear Baha'i friends,
>
>We regret to have to advise you of the determination which has been made, in >consultation with the Hands of the Cause of God, that Pauline Smith of >Masterton has broken the Covenant. You are now requested to convey this >information to the Local Spiritual Assembly of Masterton and to the Baha'is >within your jurisdiction, and to provide them with the necessary guidance.
>
>Before this determination was made, Pauline Smith had been counselled over >an extended period in an attempt to assist her to understand the nature of >the spiritual obligations undertaken by one who chooses to become a member >of the Baha'i community. When the efforts had proven fruitless, she was >warned of the consequences of her conduct in allying herself with those who >have endeavoured for decades to undermine the unity of the Faith, at which >time she submitted a resignation from the Faith in an apparent attempt to >avoid being designated as a Covenant-breaker.
>
>We are confident that the dearly loved New Zealand believers will not allow >this lamentable situation to deflect them from their meritorious endeavours >to further develop their Baha'i community and to maintain its unity.
>
>With loving Baha'i greetings
>The Universal House of Justice
>
>cc: Hands of the Cause of God > International Teaching Centre
> Board of Counsellors in Australasia (by fax)
> Counsellors David Chittleborough, Violette Haake, Bruce > Saunders, and Heather Simpson (all by fax)

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Juan R. I. Cole <jrcole@umich.edu>
To: Mark A. Foster <owner@sociologist.com>; Talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Cc: SManeck@berry.edu <SManeck@berry.edu>
Subject: Re: Shunning and religious tolerance
Date: Sunday, February 08, 1998 7:10 PM

The problem with Mark's statement of the situation is that Baha'is do not only shun "insiders." In New Zealand late in 1996, the universal house of justice declared a woman a non-Baha'i even though she had already resigned from the Baha'i faith, because she was in contact with a woman who had never been a registered Baha'i but was descended from Shoghi Effendi.

In the instance of the descendent of Shoghi Effendi, covenant-breaking appears now to be considered to run in blood lines and to be hereditary!

So in New Zealand, at the order of the Baha'i authorities (and I read the letter truly to relish all this in a way that struck me as sadistic), *two* non-Baha'is are being shunned by the Baha'i community. Actually, I believe this shunning may be in contravention of Anglo-Saxon libel law, and that the Baha'i authorities might well be open to a lawsuit from the non-Baha'is they have declared shunned.

But, as Milissa says, even if only "insiders" were shunned, there is no obvious difference between that and Sunnis shunning Shi'ite Muslims or Catholics shunning Protestants. This shunning business is in fact a major contradiction within the Baha'i faith, which has such high and universalistic ideals on the outside but such weird practices on the inside. And I believe it is contrary to everything Baha'u'llah himself stood for. The Aqdas incidentally says that *all* human beings are ritually pure. The language of disease, used in referring to covenant breakers, suggests the opposite, that they are ritually impure.

I think we may conclude that the Baha'i faith as a movement is multi-faceted and self-contradictory. It proclaims universalism but in some respects acts very narrowly; it proclaims universal love but in fact instills hatred toward some human beings; it proclaims the unity of science and religion but in fact insists on scriptural fundamentalism; it proclaims the value of political liberty and the advent of Reason among the people, but in fact is run like a one-party state.

The trick is to keep in view both sides of the story simultaneously. It wouldn't be fair to say that Baha'is "don't really" believe in human unity. Plenty do. It wouldn't be fair to say all Baha'is are narrow-minded, though some key leaders are. It is a complex movement with many sides to it.

And what else should we expect from the offshoot of Twelver Shi'ism via esoteric Shaykhism and messianic Babism, a religion born at the interstices of Shi'ite gnosticism and 19th century modernity? Of a religion that for most adherents in Iran became a sort of closed ethnic group? Of a religion that was for most of the 20th century practiced by only a few thousand Americans, many of them a little wacky, who established traditions of cult-like authoritarianism? The real question is whether the contradictions will strangle the religion in its cradle, or whether it can outgrow them and achieve its potential as a world religion. As long as its leaders ride roughshod over human rights, I see little chance of the latter.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

---

From: Juan R. I. Cole <jrcole@umich.edu>
To: Mark A. Foster <owner@sociologist.com>; Talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Cc: SManeck@berry.edu <SManeck@berry.edu>
Subject: Re: Shunning and religious tolerance
Date: Sunday, February 08, 1998 7:10 PM

The problem with Mark's statement of the situation is that Baha'is do not only shun "insiders." In New Zealand late in 1996, the universal house of justice declared a woman a non-Baha'i even though she had already resigned from the Baha'i faith, because she was in contact with a woman who had never been a registered Baha'i but was descended from Shoghi Effendi.

In the instance of the descendent of Shoghi Effendi, covenant-breaking appears now to be considered to run in blood lines and to be hereditary!

So in New Zealand, at the order of the Baha'i authorities (and I read the letter truly to relish all this in a way that struck me as sadistic), *two* non-Baha'is are being shunned by the Baha'i community. Actually, I believe this shunning may be in contravention of Anglo-Saxon libel law, and that the Baha'i authorities might well be open to a lawsuit from the non-Baha'is they have declared shunned.

But, as Milissa says, even if only "insiders" were shunned, there is no obvious difference between that and Sunnis shunning Shi'ite Muslims or Catholics shunning Protestants. This shunning business is in fact a major contradiction within the Baha'i faith, which has such high and universalistic ideals on the outside but such weird practices on the inside. And I believe it is contrary to everything Baha'u'llah himself stood for. The Aqdas incidentally says that *all* human beings are ritually pure. The language of disease, used in referring to covenant breakers, suggests the opposite, that they are ritually impure.

I think we may conclude that the Baha'i faith as a movement is multi-faceted and self-contradictory. It proclaims universalism but in some respects acts very narrowly; it proclaims universal love but in fact instills hatred toward some human beings; it proclaims the unity of science and religion but in fact insists on scriptural fundamentalism; it proclaims the value of political liberty and the advent of Reason among the people, but in fact is run like a one-party state.

The trick is to keep in view both sides of the story simultaneously. It wouldn't be fair to say that Baha'is "don't really" believe in human unity. Plenty do. It wouldn't be fair to say all Baha'is are narrow-minded, though some key leaders are. It is a complex movement with many sides to it.

And what else should we expect from the offshoot of Twelver Shi'ism via esoteric Shaykhism and messianic Babism, a religion born at the interstices of Shi'ite gnosticism and 19th century modernity? Of a religion that for most adherents in Iran became a sort of closed ethnic group? Of a religion that was for most of the 20th century practiced by only a few thousand Americans, many of them a little wacky, who established traditions of cult-like authoritarianism? The real question is whether the contradictions will strangle the religion in its cradle, or whether it can outgrow them and achieve its potential as a world religion. As long as its leaders ride roughshod over human rights, I see little chance of the latter.

cheers    Juan

---

Homepage

---

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

---

From talisman-errors@umich.edu Sun Feb 8 19:41:50 1998
Received: (from root@localhost)
by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with X.500 id WAA11499; Sun, 8 Feb 1998 22:41:46 -0500 (EST)
Received: (from root@localhost)
by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with X.500 id WAA11497 for talisman-members@umich.edu; Sun, 8 Feb 1998 22:41:46 -0500 (EST) Received: from gimantis.rs.itd.umich.edu (gimantis.rs.itd.umich.edu [141.211.83.25]) by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with SMTP id WAA11489 for <talisman@umich.edu>; Sun, 8 Feb 1998 22:41:45 -0500 (EST) Received: from pm115-18.dialip.mich.net (pm115-18.dialip.mich.net [141.211.4.88])
by gimantis.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.5/2.4) with SMTP id WAA27250; Sun, 8 Feb 1998 22:41:20 -0500 (EST)
Message-Id: <199802090341.WAA27250@gimantis.rs.itd.umich.edu>
X-Sender: jrcole@j.imap.itd.umich.edu
X-Mailer: Windows Eudora Version 1.4.4
Mime-Version: 1.0
Content-Type: text/plain; charset="us-ascii"
Date: Sun, 08 Feb 1998 22:41:54 -0500
To: Dean Betts <fdbetts@mindspring.com>
From: jrcole@umich.edu (Juan R. I. Cole)
Subject: Re: New Zealand shunning of non-Baha'i
Cc: talisman@umich.edu

That's right from the point of view of the Baha'i authorities. However, there is U.S. case law on shunning, and it is not my impression that the courts would look kindly on a religious body having a non-adherent shunned, since it is probably a form of libel as traditionally defined in Anglo-Saxon law.

I'm afraid we are, on this terrain, a very, very long way away from Baha'u'llah's ideals of universal love and openness to all and the unity of humanity. My guess is that non-Baha'i institutions, both governmental and civil society, will eventually force the religion's leaders to start behaving in a civilized fashion if the religion ever becomes big and important enough for them to care one way or another. It is a sad thing that the impulse for open-mindedness and love and justice does not come from within the religion's leadership itself. It is even more sad that persons who engage in such invidious activities are now the primary ambassadors of Baha'u'llah to the world, giving the world a most unfortunate and inaccurate picture of the sort of ideals the latter preached.

cheers Juan

At 07:20 PM 2/8/98 -0500, Dean Betts wrote:
>So resigning from the Faith will not *necessarily* prevent one from being >declared a CB.
>
>>>We regret to have to advise you of the determination which has been made, in >>>consultation with the Hands of the Cause of God, that Pauline Smith of >>>Masterton has broken the Covenant.
>
>>> she submitted a resignation from the Faith in an apparent attempt to >>>avoid being designated as a Covenant-breaker.
>>>
>>
>
>
>*****
> Verily, He is the Merciful, the Compassionate. Praise be to God, the >Lord of all the worlds.
>
> - Baha'u'llah
>*****
>
>
>

>
>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

Compare "The Bahai Technique" - Slander & Shunning

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/technique.htm>

Shoot the Messenger, Character Assassination, ETC

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shoot%20the%20Messenger.htm>

Questions? CONTACT ME HERE > https://en.allexperts.com/q/Bah-2728/indexExp\_113873.htm

"Men never do evil so completely and cheerfully as when they do it from religious conviction." Pascal, Penses #894.

"Unmeasured vituperation employed on the side of the prevailing opinion really does deter people from professing contrary opinions and from listening to those who profess them." --John Stuart Mill, On Liberty (51-52).

Steve Scholl on shunning family

Jeffrey Goldberg's poignant story. I hope others will take the time to read and reflect on it.

"My wife and I were declared to be covenant-breakers." Golberg was the lawyer representing the Orthodox Baha'i denominations in the NSA lawsuit of 2006 to 2008.

Compare LaAeterna's "publicly denounce my family as heretics"

David Langness "cultlike practice of shunning and casting out any dissidents"

Ruletherod "shunning mentality"

Michael McKenny, "removed your name from our membership rolls."

Alison Marshall, "removed your name from the rolls."

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 1 uhj denounces New Zealander as a covenant breaker, Ms Pauline Smith

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 2 "non-Baha'is are being shunned by the Baha'i community"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 3 "a form of libel as traditionally defined"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 4 "Shunning is the marker of a cult."

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 5 "institutionalization of shunning as a feature of everyday life"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 6 "Baha'is are always on heresy trial"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 7 "shunning is threatened or imposed"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 8 "sentenced to the "social death" of shunning"

Juan Cole on Baha'i Shunning 9 Does not "go back to Baha'u'llah .... [now] more widely used and more Draconian"

Larry Rowe - Hypocrisy of Bahai Shunning December, 2005

Larry Rowe - 2006 Extensive comments on shunning and slander

religioustolerance.org "shunning or expelling non-conforming adherents"

On talk.religion.bahai, a Bahai using the name of Nosrat relates his story:

"I am not angry about what they did to me and my family, although it was very horrific. I do not disclose how much I was hurt and how much emotional and financial damage they imposed on me and my family, and I do not want my unveiling of the occurrence contribute to the fear strategy of the bogus UHJ among the Baha'is.

"In my last meeting with the so called continental counsellor when I had finished my talk, she asked my wife, do you share your husband's belief? My wife fearfully and nervously answered: No, No, then she turned to me and asked don't you think and care about your wife, your children, your mother and the rest of the family? Surely you know what will happen to you. At that moment I remembered that a similar question was asked from the martyrs of the Faith before their execution, I calmly answered, I love my wife and my children and my family very much and they know this themselves but I love God and Baha'u'llah more than them. . . "

<https://groups.google.com.au/group/talk.religion.bahai/msg/f13ee981d52e0537?dmode=source&hl=en>

"Baha'is have been declared covenant-breakers for other reasons, however, such as refusing to shun relatives that have been excommunicated" in footnote #7. Karen Bacquet in "When Principle and Authority Collide: Baha'i Responses to the Exclusion of Women from the Universal House of Justice"

"A Dangerous Doctrine. In considering the problem of fear, let us for a while study the writings of Shoghi Effendi, the Guardian of the Cause, and see how he handles this vital subject.... The three published volumes of Shoghi Effendi are *Baha'i Administration, The World Order of Baha'u'llah* and *The Advent of Divine Justice*, which works consist of the letters which he has addressed to the National Spiritual Assembly in the course of the last 20 years. Now, I have read these three books and find that the words *enemies* and *adversaries* are greatly featured. Baha'u'llah has said: *Consort with all men with joy and fragrance, yet Shoghi Effendi, in his very first letter, dated January 21, 1992, written after his assumption of the guardianship, recommends *the absolute shunning of whomsoever we feel to be an enemy of the Cause. (*Bahai Administration, page 16.) Now, I cannot bring myself to the point of believing that *absolute shunning* of whomsoever we *feel* to be the enemy of the Cause is a principle of Baha'u'llah. Is every one going to let his *feelings* guide him in the matter? Can we not take for granted that frail human beings as we are, a great deal of personal caprice and spite may enter into our calculations as to *who* is the enemy of the Bahai Cause? This is a very dangerous doctrine, and yet one finds it in different forms throughout Shoghi Effendi's communications. He practically never mentions the names of the *enemies* or *adversaries* to whom he constantly refers. He simply creates ogres and bogey men, and fills the hearts of the Bahais with apprehension and fear. In this way, the fountain-head of free and open comradeship is dried up and the flowers of loving-kindness wither away" (409-410). Excerpt from Mirza Ahmad Sohrab's Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom. New York: Universal Publishing, 1942. Reprinted. H-Bahai: Lansing, Michigan, 2004.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/SohrabEx.htm>

Search Google Groups Talk.Religion.Bahai for Shunning

Wikipedia on Shunning (All information about the Baha'i Faith on Wikipedia is controlled and dominated by fundamentalists, including that regarding Baha'i shunning and other Bahai denominations. The Baha'i morality tale of Wikipedia's shunning page appears to be everyone else is doing it, so why shouldn't Baha'i?)

For examples of how individual baha'is use slander and shunning to control and manipulate fellow members, see
Susan Maneck - DRIVING people out of the Bahai Faith
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Maneck9.htm>

Compare: Shunning - "A Part of the Faith of Jehovah's Witnesses"

Jim Jone's People's Temple, Jonestown, Guyana, 1978:

"One of the powerful things that Jim used to keep us, to not think, we were never really allowed to speak to one other. I'd look around and think am I the only one who feels this way. I learned eventually not to say anything to anyone." --Grace Stoen PBS American Experience website for Jonestown

" ... It occurred to me as I'm sitting there that if this had been in the Middle Ages, if these men had not only the ecclesiastical power but if they had the power of the state, where they could give a physical punishment to me, I realized in this moment that they would have burned me at the stake. And they would have done it smiling, thinking that they were saving my soul. This is why at the end they can shake my hand and say, "Oh, you're such a lovely person," at the same moment that they're saying, "We've condemned you," that you now are cut off from the church and the kingdom of God and everything else. " --Margaret Toscano.

PBS Frontline special on The Mormon Church and Dissent

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

See also Larry Rowe - Observations regarding the tactics of slander, shunning, and so on. No particular order below.

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

Hypocrisy of Bahai Shunning from talk.religion.bahai, December, 2005:

<https://groups.google.com/group/talk.religion.bahai/msg/389454772e9ba8b1?dmode=source&hl=en>

From: "Heather Carr-Rowe" <rowe@northwestel.net>

Subject: Re: Baha'u'llah said

Date: Saturday, December 31, 2005 5:53 PM

Howdy Brendan,

It is Baha'u'llah's own words which are contradictory Brendan words such as the following:

Whatsoever hath led the children of men to shun one another, and hath caused dissensions and divisions amongst them, hath, through the revelation of these words, been nullified and abolished

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 94)

He preached these words to all of mankind but failed to apply them in his own life and ended up shunning his own half brother and his family members, Abdul-Baha' followed his example and ended up shunning his half brother and family as well, Shoghi followed suit and ended up shunning his entire family, all in contradiction of the teaching: "Whatsoever hath led the children of men to shun one another, and hath caused dissensions and divisions amongst them, hath, through the revelation of these words, been nullified and abolished."

When you nullify and abolish a practice for the rest of mankind you had better be willing to refrain from that practice yourself if you want to be taken seriously by thinking people.

As well Baha'u'llah lambastes Shiah Muslims for: "the shunning of the followers of other religions."***

Thing is if the Babi Revelation was an independent Revelation as it is maintained in Baha'i teachings it stands to reason that it was an independent religion as well. So to shun Babis who didn't accept Baha'u'llah's claim over what was clearly stated in the Bab's W&T itself is the height of hypocrisy for a man who calls Shiah Muslims to task for "the shunning of the followers of other religions."

This is the root cause of the dysfunctioning in the Baha'i Faith Brendan and that it is the root cause is as evident as the sun at high noon. If people chose to remain in the dark not much can be done to illumine them.

It is ignorance which has ever been the true spiritual enemy of humanity. When people target people of other religions and other religious interpretations as their spiritual enemies it is a sign of the work of ignorance. Such ignorance has been at work in the Baha'i Faith since day one. Why? Because Baha'u'llah failed to practice what he preached, it's as simply as that.

Yours Larry

*The unbelievers and the faithless have set their minds on four things: first, the shedding of blood; second, the burning of books; third, the shunning of the followers of other religions; fourth, the extermination of other communities and groups. Now however, through the strengthening grace and potency of the Word of God these four barriers have been demolished, these clear injunctions have been obliterated from the Tablet and brutal dispositions have been transmuted into spiritual attributes. Exalted is His purpose; glorified is His power; magnified is His dominion! Now let us beseech God -- praised be His glory -- to graciously guide aright the followers of the Shi'ih sect and to purge them of unseemly conduct. From the lips of the members of this sect foul imprecations fall unceasingly, while they invoke the word 'Mal'un' (accursed) -- uttered with a guttural sound of the letter ayn -- as their daily relish.

(Baha'u'llah, Tablets of Baha'u'llah, p. 91)

'That's only one of the many incidents that Shoghi lists as being punishments for God's enemies.

It's an attitude of mind I can't share.'

It's more than an attitude John it's Baha'i dogma. Attitudes can change, Baha'i dogma can't change because of the myth of infallibility.

Because Baha'u'llah shunned his half-brother Azal, Abdul-Baha' shunned his half-brother, and Shoghi shunned his entire family it has to be OK to shun because they couldn't make mistakes, they were infallible after all. This mental aberration has carried over until the present day with the U.H.J.. When you mention any questionable action of the U.H.J. to the majority of Baha'is they don't even begin to examine that action they simply state: "well they must have deserved to be excommunicated." , "well they must deserve to be shunned", "well the U.H.J. must know what it's doing". After all if you're infallible you can never make a mistake and this is exactly the reason that the Baha'i Faith is stuck in the past, it can never learn from the mistakes of its Founder, of the Master, of the Guardian, of the Universal House of Justice.

The Baha'i Faith is forever stuck in the past because of its inability to learn from mistakes because of the myth of infallibility. How sad!

Yours Larry

Howdy John,

One has only to look at what the reason for such a mindset is to see that it has nothing whatsoever to do with spirituality at all.

Take John Carre for an example. In my Baha'i Canada a year or two ago I read a warning from the Universal House of Justice about John and the fact that they consider him to be a covenant breaker and thus shunnable. The mental illness of this shunning is even more evident with the fact that this shunning extends to John children and even their children.

Any person who is aware of this mental aberration in the Baha'i Faith but remains within the religious community which perpetuates this mental aberration is a true blue cultist. People who could even be incited to murder through hatred of those they see as enemies of their faith.

Yours Larry

Howdy Susan,

"Whatsoever hath led the children of men to shun one another, and hath caused dissensions and divisions amongst them, hath, through the revelation of these words, been nullified and abolished."

(Baha'u'llah, Gleanings from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, p. 95)

'Whatsoever' Susan; not just religion, but race, ethnicity, nationality, politics as well as religious interpretations.

'Nullified' and 'abolished' Susan. problem is that Baha'u'llah, as well as Abdul-Baha and Shoghi Effendi in Baha'u'llah's stead, had just as much difficulty putting this teaching into practice in their own lives as the present day Baha'i administrative order and especially the Universal House of Justice have putting this teaching into practice.

From my forty five years as a Baha'i child, youth, and adult my experience was, and continues to be, that the greater majority of Baha'is actually have a difficulty in understanding that the Universal teachings of the Baha'i faith apply to them as well as the rest of humanity. I attribute this inability to the inability of Baha'u'llah, Abdul-Baha' and Shoghi Effendi to apply the non-shunning, oneness of humanity teaching, in their own lives as well.

Just as Baha'u'llah, Abdul-Baha' and Shoghi dellusionally believed that they could espouse the oneness of humanity but not apply this principle in their own lives, Baha'is are following in their footsteps.

The hypocrisy of calling on humanity to see the sense of the oneness of humanity while at the same time advocating the shunning of those who have been cast as spiritually contagious simply because their religious interpretations differ from Baha'i dogmatism is not lost on those who see with their own eyes and understand with their own hearts and minds.

The way that Ian Kludge deals with this glaring hypocrisy and the contradiction in the lives of Baha'u'llah, Abdul-Baha', Shoghi Effendi, and today in the Universal House of Justice, is to write off all Baha'i Universal teachings as mere 'councils of perfection'. Of course once you've written off the Universal teachings of the Baha'i Faith what are you left with? A religion that is indistinguishable from all the religions which preceded it. This is the present state of the Baha'i Faith and it is traceable to Baha'u'llah himself and his inability to apply his own teachings of the oneness of humanity even within his own family, that Abdul-Baha' Shoghi Effendi followed in Baha'u'llah's dysfunctional footsteps doesn't come as any real surprise.

To preach the oneness of humanity is a good thing, to believe that somehow you are exempt from applying it in your own life but that the rest of humanity should fall into line is delusional.

Yours Larry

Howdy John,

Bayanis accounts of Ustad's and Baha'u'llah's pre-murder encounter has Ustad asking Baha'u'llah if it would be O.K. for him and some Baha'i pals to bump off those pesky Azalis at the gate. In that account Baha'u'llah gives his O.K., not verbally but with a smile which gives Ustad the perfect understanding that it is A O.K. with him. Which account is true who really knows, the fact that Ustad approached Baha'u'llah before the murders took place and put the question to him is not in question at all. Taherzadah simply claims that Baha'u'llah advised Ustad against murdering the Bayanis.

There is not enough evidence to prove that Baha'u'llah actually condoned the murders but the fact that he continued to dis Siyyid Muhammad long after the man had his throat slit by fanatical Baha'is leads me to believe that he believed that Siyyid Muhammad got what he deserved. It is not only in bad taste, it is spiteful to continue to dis someone even after they were murdered by followers of the person doing the dissing. You'd have thought that Baha'u'llah would have let go of his hatred of Siyyid Muhammad after he was murdered at the hands of fanatical Baha'is, his own followers.

Yours Larry

- > This applies to all extremes, excessive suppression of freedom, as well
- > as to excessive licence, excessive refusal by the Universal House of
- > Justice to legislate and excessive legislating, excessive disregard of
- > the legislation of the Universal House of Justice, and excessive
- > obedience of the Universal House of Justice.

Figuring out just what and were the original source of all those excess' and extremes is important as well Michael.

When we take an average, inspired, human being and elevate him to super human status it leads to all sorts of extremes and excess because to defend this unreal picture takes extreme measures; even murder and shunning of family members, even shunning the children and grandchildren of those shunned.

The Baha'i edifice is tainted with this mental illness right from its foundation through to its administrative order and the religious zealots who enforce this mental illness.

It is mental illness to cast a fellow human being as spiritually corrupt simply because they refuse to quit a job, simply because they chose to go on a trip to America, simply because they refuse to disassociate with others who have been mistreated by those with that mental illness. Shoghi Effendi suffered from this mental illness and even his own parents were not spared.

This mental illness of shunning is directly traceable to Baha'u'llah himself and it undoes any good that Baha'u'llah's Universal teachings may have done.

The mental illness of shunning is a contagion that renders the Baha'i Faith as a negative spiritual influence in the world.

The sooner the world is rid of such mental illness the better.

Yours Larry

Howdy Brendan,

Deprogramming requires that you get to the heart of the programming.

Deprogramming is an uncomfortable process at times because it dispels illusions which are fondly as well as habitually held on to.

The present dysfunctioning in the Baha'is Faith which is centered around It's administrative order and the Universal House of Justice in particular has it's precedents.

I have personally, over the thirty five years that I was a Baha'i, traced these precedents to the glaringly contradictory Baha'i teachings of "shun no man" and "shun these men". You can't have your cake and eat it to Brendan; you can't have God's Universality of "shun no man" as well as the earthly limitation of "shun these men", even if your a supposed Manifestation of God. These two directly opposing teachings that Baha'u'llah gave voice to, which Abdul-Baha', Shoghi Effendi followed and the U.H.J. follows in Baha'u'llah's stead, negate each other. The cognitive dissonance of trying to reconcile the irreconcilable is what is causing the Baha'i Faith to come apart at it's seams. Baha'u'llah's tent is dilapidated, worn, threadbare, patched and ready for the refuse or compost heap. The Baha'i Faith doesn't have the structural integrity to be whole because its foundation is built on the contradictory teachings of "shun no man" and "shun these men".

To vilify and castigate fellow religionists, Babis, because their personal religious interpretations differ is contrary to the teaching of the oneness of humanity and the reconciliation of religion. This is the root cause of the Baha'i Faith's present day dysfunction and it started with Baha'u'llah himself.

Letting go of myths and supernatural thinking is the hardest thing for religionists to do when their world view is built on those myths and supernatural explanations for natural events. It is far past time that religionists began to deconstruct all the illusory walls that they have put up to defend their precious illusions. This includes Baha'is as well as Muslims, Jews, Christians, Hindus, all religionists who use their religious beliefs as an excuse to shun any man, to denigrate any fellow human being as spiritually corrosive, as expendable simply because their interpretations differ.

Humanities survival depends on it; which to my mind makes the dispelling of such religious illusions timely, appropriate.

Yours Larry

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

While I have a different view from either the Haifan branch or the Orthodox Baha'i Faith, I also found Jeffrey Goldberg's personal story poignant and hope others will take the time to read and reflect on it, especially paragraphs 26 through 33. They reveal a great deal about what the Haifan denomination has become.

Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury of Jeffrey Alan Goldberg

EXCERPT:

"26. On May 27, 1997, my wife and I were declared to be covenant-breakers and all of my friends in the Faith were instructed to shun me entirely and never to have any contact with me or face the same expulsion themselves. A true and correct copy of the NSA's letter of May 27, 1997, and the front page of The American Bahá'í for June 24, 1997, are attached as Exhibit 5).

27. My wife did not join the OBF at that time but she was also expelled and shunned because she refused to take my children and divorce me as they had insisted she must.

28. The NSA organization claims that shunning us as covenant-breakers is required to maintain the unity of the Faith. The OBF believe, on the other hand, that unity in the Faith is achieved and maintained by obedience to the Center of the Cause, the living Guardian, and that a covenant-breaker is one who rejects the authority of the Guardian.

29. Only one member of my former community, the Bahá'ís of Barrington, Illinois, was willing to speak with me (Janice Franco). At first, I was reluctant to tell Ms. Franco what I had learned because I did not want her to face the same dilemma that I now faced. She insisted, however, that I explain to her what I discovered. I then carefully explained the situation using only materials officially accepted by the NSA to show her my belief that the Hands wrongfully usurped authority and that their Universal House of Justice should have the Guardian as its head. Ms. Franco was declared to be a covenant-breaker and shunned after she dared to share these arguments with the rest of the community. The other community members rejected these arguments after they were threatened by a representative of the NSA's organization that they too would be shunned and cut off forever from many of their friends and family unless they rejected these ideas and shunned my family and I, and Ms. Franco.

30. Just before I had declared my acceptance of the Guardianship, my brother, who was not a Bahá'í at all, coincidentally became engaged to marry a believer under the NSA's organization.

31. I was not permitted to attend my brother's wedding, and my family thereafter had to hold separate family functions so that I would not be present at the same time as brother's wife who literally held the belief that I was satanic and my breath was poisonous so that mere contact with me would be dangerous.

32. After the birth of my nephew, I was not allowed to see him at all, nor does he even know of the existence of his uncle and the rest of my family.

33. My story is by no means unique. Many of my fellow believers within the OBF report similar experiences. Juan Cole, a professor of modern Middle East and Southeastern Asian history for the History department of the University of Michigan has written about the fanatical shunning behavior exhibited by the NSA and its organization, characterizing it as "cultlike." Attached as Exhibit 6 are emails written by Dr. Cole. Attached as Exhibit 7 is an article by Dr Cole detailing the shunning practices."

<https://www.truebahai.com/court/> Related documents regarding nsa lawsuit in 2007 against the Orthodox Baha'i Faith

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Signposts of a Journey

---

Letters from the American Desert: 1989
to 1994

---

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

See also Mirza Ahmad Sohrab

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/SohrabEx.htm>

---

Excerpts from Mirza Ahmad Sohrab's *Broken Silence. The Story of Today's Struggle

for Religious Freedom. New York: Universal Publishing, 1942. Reprinted. H-Bahai: Lansing, Michigan, 2004.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/SohrabEx.htm>

<https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/Broken.htm>

(PLEASE NOTE THAT IN ITS USE OF THE TACTIC OF FUNDAMENTALIST "SLANDEROUS VILIFICATION," THE HEADNOTE ON H-NET VIOLATES THE NEH, MSU, AND H-NET'S OWN DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES REGARDING SCHOLARLY AND ACADEMIC DEBATE AND DISCUSSION. THE ASSOCIATED LINKS AND ATTEMPTS TO DISCREDIT SOHRAB WITH BOGUS LEGAL OPINIONS FURTHER SUBSTANTIATE FANATICAL BAHAI'S ABUSE AND UNDERMINING OF THE DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES THAT SUPPORT H-NET, YET ANOTHER INDICATION OF THE METHODS OF FANATICAL BAHAI'S.)

Sohrab's entire book may be downloaded in one click. 21 megabytes.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabBrokenSilence.pdf>

---

Other works by Sohrab:

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Abdul Baha in Egypt. New York: J. H. Sears & Co. for The New History Foundation, 1929.

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Abdul Baha's Grandson: Story of a Twentieth Century Excommunication.

https://reformbahai.org/images/Ahmad Sohrab Abdul-Baha's Grandson.pdf

Excommunication New York: Universal Publishing for The New History Foundation, 1943. <https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/ABG.htm>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. My Bahai Pilgrimage. Autobiography from Childhood to Middle Age. New York: New History Foundation, 1959.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabMBP.pdf>

Sohrab, Mirza Ahmad. The Story of the Divine Plan. Taking Place during, and immediately following World War I. New York: The New History Foundation, 1947. Digitally republished, East Lansing, Mi.: H-Bahai, 2004.

<https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/SDP.htm>

Excerpts at bottom: Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha, An Analysis. New York: Universal Publishing, 1944.

Selective Bibliography, Sohrab:

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. I Heard Him Say. Words of Abdul Baha as Recorded by his Secretary.

New York: The New History Foundation, 1937.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabIHHS.pdf>

Ahmad Sohrab's Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1942.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabBrokenSilence.pdf>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Abdul Baha's Grandson: Story of a Twentieth Century

Excommunication New York: Universal Publishing for The New History Foundation, 1943. <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/ABG.htm>
HTTPS://WWW.H-NET.ORG/~BAHAI/DIGLIB/BOOKS/P-T/S/SOHRAB/ABG.HTM

Excerpts at bottom: Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha, An Analysis.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1944.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabWTAB.pdf>

Sohrab, Mirza Ahmad. The Story of the Divine Plan. Taking Place during, and immediately following World War I. New York: The New History Foundation, 1947. Digitally republished, East Lansing, Mi.: H-Bahai, 2004.

<https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/SDP.htm>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. My Bahai Pilgrimage. Autobiography from Childhood to Middle Age.

New York: New History Foundation, 1959.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabMBP.pdf>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab (1893 - 1958) Biography by Will Johnson, Professional Genealogist

https://www.countyhistorian.com/cecilweb/index.php/Ahmad\_Sohrab

---

Also see US District Court of Northern Illinois rules against Haifan Baha'is - April 23, 2008

Amici curiae, Reform Bahai Faith

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/USDistrictCourt07.htm>

McDaniel v. Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, 27 NYS 2d 525 - 1941

---

See also Mirza Ahmad Sohrab

https://www.reformbahai.org/Mirza\_Ahmad\_Sohrab.html

H-Net Bahai has deleted the dozen books it has had online for years by Ruth White and Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Most of their books are still available on this website.

Scholarship worthy of the name cannot be done without confronting the history to which they testify.

From a 1941 Bahai book:

121, December 1938, pp. 10-11, "Annual Report, Iran"; also Bahai Administration, pp. 84, 94, 111, 123, 124.)

A Shrine in Bagdad

Second: A certain property in Iraq has, for many years, been an object of litigation between the Bahais and the Mohammedan Community.

When, after his exile from Persia in 1852, Baha-O-Llah arrived in Bagdad, he established himself and his family in a group of dwelling-houses belonging to one of his disciples, which houses he later acquired. Here he lived for eleven years until a second exile drove him on to Adrianople.

Now, Baha-O-Llah had never revealed his ownership of these dwelling-houses, which to all appearances remained the property of the disciple; but, after his departure they continued vacant, owing to the sacred character which the long residence of the Prophet had imposed upon them.

So, for many years, the Bahais watched over this property very quietly, concealing from the authorities the importance that they attached to it, for religious persecution was rampant in those days.

Matters remained in this condition until, with the establishment of the British Mandate, liberty of conscience and religion, proclaimed in the Covenant of the League of Nations, was confirmed in Iraq by the Treaty of 1922 with Great Britain, and later by the Organic Law of Iraq. Then, taking advantage of a security and freedom which they had never before known, the Bahais, under the direction of Shoghi Effendi, set about to putting into repair these dwellings, which, the Guardian describes, to outward seeming, appeared only as a cluster of humble and decrepit buildings lost amid the obscure and tortuous lanes of old Bagdad.

Presently, the Bahais tried to take possession of the houses, and it was at this juncture that definite opposition set in. The case was carried from court to court with no decision in favor of the Bahais until, through the efforts of the Bahai Assembly of Bagdad with the assistance of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada, Mr. Mountfort Mills, a lawyer and a most prominent Bahai, was enabled to bring the question before the Permanent Mandates Commission held in Geneva, Switzerland, from October 26th to November 13, 1928. The conclusion was as follows: The Permanent Mandates Commission, recognizing the justice of the complaint made by the Bahai Spiritual Assembly of Bagdad, has recommended to the Council of the League such action as it thinks proper to redress the wrong suffered by the petitioners.

I regret that I do not find any record in the literature of the Bahai Administration that is in my possession whether the Council of the League made any recommendation regarding the actual return of the property to the Bahais; or whether the return was ever accomplished. I certainly hope so.

Inconsistency

My object in giving the details of this transaction is to show that, in support of their claims, the Bahai Community repeatedly appealed to the principle of the liberty

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/SohrabEx.htm>

McDaniel v. Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, 27 NYS 2d 525 - 1941

See also Sohrab page

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Sohrab.htm>

Most of the books of Ruth White and Mirza Ahmad Sohrab are available on this website. Scholarship worthy of the name cannot be done without confronting the history to which Ruth White and Mirza Ahmad Sohrab testify. Excerpts and bibliography below.

---

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab's Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom. New York: Universal Publishing, 1942. Entire book:

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabBrokenSilence.pdf>

Excerpts regarding the 1941 New York Supreme Court Case before Judge Valente:

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/BrokenSilence,CourtCase.pdf>

Ahmad Sohrab, who was Abdul-Baha's secretary for eight years, mistakenly chose to support an organizational structure under a "guardian," though he was well aware that, as he subtly acknowledged, "Abdul Baha had never in speech or writing given the slightest indication that there would be a successor to himself. On the contrary, a number of addresses delivered by him on various occasions had made the opposite impression." The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha (61).

Many of Sohrab's comments and books should be read in the light of his attempting to make amends with, or influence, Shoghi Effendi, who "excommunicated" him, as Shoghi Effendi had done with his own entire family. Ruth White and Dr. C. Ainsworth Mitchell went much deeper into what had gone wrong after Abdul-Baha's death, but Sohrab throws light upon various Bahai problems of the time, such as freedom of religious conscience, of which many such problems continue today for other Bahai denominations based upon the fraudulent will and testament of 1921.

Given subsequent Bahai history, it is clear Sohrab also failed to understand the wisdom and very profound change in religious form and conduct that Abdul-Baha taught when he repeatedly stated the Bahai Movement could not be organized. Abdul-Baha's Teaching runs entirely contrary to what people usually think of as "religion," and is still today a profoundly challenging paradox for many seekers and Bahais.

Scholarship worthy of the name cannot be done without confronting the Bahai history to which Ruth White, Julie Chanler, and Mirza Ahmad Sohrab testify.

Please note that in its use of the tactic of what Sohrab called "slandorous vilification," the headnote links on H-net Baha'i on Broken Silence and The Will and Testament of Abdul-Baha violate the NEH, MSU, and H-Net's own democratic principles regarding scholarly and academic debate and discussion. The associated links, for these two works, and attempts to discredit Sohrab with bogus legal opinions, further demonstrate fanatical Baha'i abuse and undermining of the democratic principles that support H-Net, yet another indication of the extent to which Baha'is are willing to go to maintain their stranglehold and bias people against opinions they oppose. In these books, Sohrab presents a view of Bahai life in America during the early 20th Century very different from what the deceptive headnotes suggest. (White and Sohrab's books were entirely deleted from H-Net Bahai on apparently June 9, 2007, only restored after a number of complaints from at least two different people.) <https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/Broken.htm>

Questions? CONTACT ME HERE >

https://en.allexperts.com/q/Bah-2728/indexExp\_113873.htm

---

Selective Bibliography, Sohrab:

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Abdul Baha in Egypt. New York: J. H. Sears & Co. for The New History Foundation, 1929.

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. I Heard Him Say. Words of Abdul Baha as Recorded by his Secretary.

New York: The New History Foundation, 1937.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabIHHS.pdf>

Ahmad Sohrab's Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1942.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabBrokenSilence.pdf>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Abdul Baha's Grandson: Story of a Twentieth Century Excommunication New York: Universal Publishing for The New History Foundation,

1943. <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/ABG.htm>

HTTPS://WWW.H-NET.ORG/~BAHAI/DIGLIB/BOOKS/P-T/S/SOHRAB/ABG.HTM

Excerpts at bottom: Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha, An Analysis.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1944.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabWTAB.pdf>

Sohrab, Mirza Ahmad. The Story of the Divine Plan. Taking Place during, and immediately following World War I. New York: The New History Foundation, 1947. Digitally republished, East Lansing, Mi.: H-Bahai, 2004.

<https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/SDP.htm>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. My Bahai Pilgrimage. Autobiography from Childhood to Middle Age.

New York: New History Foundation, 1959.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/SohrabMBP.pdf>

Mirza Ahmad Sohrab (1893 - 1958) Biography by Will Johnson, Professional Genealogist

https://www.countyhistorian.com/cecilweb/index.php/Ahmad\_Sohrab

---

EXCERPTS: Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. Broken Silence. The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom. New York: Universal Publishing, 1942.

Pages 83, 85, 131, and 206 are missing from the scanned H-Net version of Broken Silence:

"The love of religious liberty is a stronger sentiment than an attachment to civil or political freedom. That freedom which the conscience demands and which men feel bound by their hopes of salvation to contend for, can hardly fail to be attained. Conscience in the cause of religion, and the worship of Deity, prepares the mind to act and suffer beyond almost all other causes.... History instructs us that this love of religious liberty, a compound sentiment in the breast of men, made up of the dearest sense of right and the highest conviction of duty, is able to look the sternest despotism in the face" (12). -- Daniel Webster

Praise be to God! You are living upon the great continent of the West enjoying perfect liberty, security and peace of this just government . . . for in this human world there is no greater blessing than liberty. You do not know. I who for forty years have been a prisoner, do know. I do know the value and blessing of liberty. For you have been and are now living in freedom and you have no fear of anybody. Is there a greater blessing than this? Freedom! Liberty! Security! These are the great bestowals of God. Therefore praise ye God! --Abdul-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, Vol. I, page 49. Address before the Metropolitan African Methodist Church, Washington, D.C. April 23, 1912.

"Here, I wish to affirm my conviction that the Will of Abdul Baha is valid and that his appointment of Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian of the Bahai Cause is unchallengeable. Nevertheless, I take exception to certain policies and methods initiated by Shoghi Effendi and the Bahai Administration established under his leadership" (26).

"The teachings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha are liberal to the nth degree, and broad beyond the outposts of human thought. It was the intention of the Founders to establish an unorganized movement, so all-inclusive and free as to be immune to the natural proclivities of men to restrict and limit. The fact that restriction and limitation have already set in and are fast gaining ground, at this date, only twenty years after the removal from our midst of Abdul Baha, is a matter of profound concern to all those who, labels apart, believe in promoting Universal Religion" (26-27).

"The Bahai Cause, as founded by Baha'u'llah nearly a century ago and as interpreted by his son Abdul Baha, was and still is a UNIVERSAL RELIGION. Its principles were intended to safeguard the conscience of man from interference by any hierarchical organization; to spiritualize society and to socialize religion; to unify the fundamental ideals of the World Faiths; to bestow upon every child of God the precious gift of liberty and to harmonize the conflicting interests of nations, races and peoples of the earth with the power of spirit. However, the present day Bahai Administration under the title of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada has, through its dogmas and creeds, frustrated the aims of the Founders of the Bahai Faith."

"The authenticity of this document is beyond the shadow of doubt" (47).

An Old Accusation

"Practically, from the departure of the Master from this life until today, it has been charged against me by the Bahai Organization and by the members of the Community that I deny the Will of Abdul Baha and refuse to accept Shoghi Effendi as Guardian. Therefore, I take this opportunity to make a plain and unequivocal statement: Never in thought, word or writing have I questioned the authenticity of the Will, nor denied the validity of the appointment of Shoghi Effendi. Let us now hope that, once and for all time, this fact has been made clear and manifest" (49).

"After the ascension of Abdul Baha in 1921, certain reactionary and dogmatic forces began to make their appearance in the Cause. Almost unnoticeable at first, they, little by little, gained ground until at present, this movement, which was the most universal and liberal of all movements, past and present, has been reduced to a sect, while its spirit is all but extinguished. The principles of Baha'u'llah are forgotten and in their stead we see nothing but a mass of rules and regulations that duplicate, to say the least, the ecclesiastical paraphernalia of previous organized religions" (51).

"If, in the course of my writing, I have occasionally disagreed with the policies of Shoghi Effendi, it is not because I, in the least, contest the genuineness of the Will of Abdul Baha or question the appointment of Shoghi Effendi to the Guardianship, but because, as a Bahai, I maintain my freedom of conscience and hold to the injunction of Baha'u'llah: *Independent investigation of Truth.* Citizens of the United States feel themselves at liberty to freely discuss, to agree or disagree with the policies of the President. This does not imply that they question his right to occupy the White House, nor that they are planning to overthrow the government. On the contrary, it is an expression of their love for this country and of their desire to contribute toward its safety and betterment" (52-53).

"I will show from the writings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha that the Cause that they envisaged and for which they suffered is quite different and totally at variance with the one that is being taught today. One is divine revelation, the other is human authority; one is universal and all-inclusive, the other is restricted and separative; one is dignity and freedom of conscience, the other is subserviency and blind loyalty; one is wings outstretched, the other is feet enchained" (53).

"I do not claim to be a leader. I do not seek followers. I have no wish that my name should be even remembered. I am simply a voice in the wilderness. Lastly, farthest of all from my thoughts is the idea of being destructive, for my aim is to re-discover the original spiritual teachings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha, which were and are for the establishment of a divine civilization" (54).

"The Local Assembly of this city wished to supervise our activities. I, on the other hand, owing to long experience with the Assemblies, was convinced that such supervision implied a complete domination and would lead to the total destruction of the work itself. We looked upon The New History Society as an independent effort to teach the principles of the Cause, and we needed freedom in so doing. Afterwards, when the initial interest had been created, we were ready to guide our new found friends to the Center, to arrange classes under the direction of its own Bahai teachers and to strive in every way toward the co-operation of the two groups" (75).

"It was repeatedly required of me that I should appear before the Local Assembly of New York and the National Spiritual Assembly, but I looked on these bodies as Religious Tribunals . . . and believed that I would be trapped into making admissions, regarding my opinion of the organization, which would be used against me. Consequently, while I was at all times willing to discuss any and all matters with individual members of the Assemblies, I consistently refused to appear before their official groups (77).

"Now, Mrs. Chanler knew that *co-operation* meant supervision of our programs and of everything that was said on our platform. It implied endless discussions and certain interruptions of the work. We felt that we could not risk... (82). [83 missing]

Recruiting Station

"By this time, large numbers of the members of the Bahai organization had actually joined The New History Society. This membership with us in no wise affected their loyalty to the Center, for all of us looked on the new movement as a sort of recruiting station, and we often termed it as such" (93).

Voting season

"The New History Society, from time to time, opening its flood-gates and allowing a stream of immature Bahais to filter into the precincts of the Assembly. So far so good; but how about the voting season? Would it not be likely that these fresh, untrammelled minds would pick out some *new* officers to represent them, and that within a few years a large part of the administrative personnel would be changed? This supposition brings up a serious point, applying to both National and Local Assemblies, the former having been functioning since time out of mind with practically no change of officers" (95).

"I have to thank Ruhi Effendi for so concisely summing up my characteristics in the above statement. I could not have done it better myself. An almost religious belief in freedom for all men, and a dislike for the red tape that applies to organizations (especially supposedly spiritual ones) are strongly developed in my consciousness. On this basis, I have always functioned and always will" (114).

"For ourselves, we shall continue along the path that we have chosen so deliberately; we shall teach freedom of conscience, respect for the convictions of others and cooperation between men and women of all systems of thought tending toward a true comradeship of human beings, born and unborn. Then, shall we teach religious liberty? To ask the question is to answer it. The aspiration toward religious liberty has always existed in the consciousness of mankind. It lives in Hindu hearts, in Jewish hearts, in Christian hearts, in Islamic hearts and, after its long leap from the heart of *The Most Great Prisoner in Acca*, it lives in the hearts of people everywhere. This is a cardinal principle of the New World Order" (120).

"Let me state that during the last eleven years this body of men and women have set themselves to oppose the work of The New History Society, to attribute to its founders and members all sorts of unworthy motives; to publish in *Bahai News* articles of a most crude character and to countenance stories and rumors that have no foundation in fact and no relation to reality. In taking this attitude and in systematically following a course of enmity and persecution, the members of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada have been free and untrammelled; one may assert that they have used (or in my opinion have abused) their constitutional right of free press, free speech and free assembly (124-125).

"In 1939, The New History Society exhibited its works and literature in [the] Science and Education Building at the New York World's Fair, and during these months an idea came to the mind of Mrs. Frederick Allien, one of the first Bahais in this country, who had been called *Berthalin* by Abdul Baha and who has used this name ever since. The idea was that it would be a valuable service to the Cause if, after the closing of the Fair, our exhibit could be transported to the city. After some consultation, it was decided to take this step as a purely temporary activity, and on November 7th, 1939, *Bahai Bookshop* was opened at 828 Lexington Avenue, a lease having been signed for the duration of six months. I admit that we were fully conscious that, in all probability, the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada would resent this further heralding of the Bahai name and teachings. However, we were prepared, as in the past, to meet opposition in silence (126).

"Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha lived in prison, suffered and gave their teachings *free* for the religious unification of mankind in order that, in 1928, these spiritual heavenly teachings be monopolized, and sold under trade-mark to an unsuspecting public as so much *goods*, similar to *Blue Sunoco, G. Washington coffee, Twenty Mule Team Boraxo* or *the new, blended with Havana, White Owl Cigar* (it's milder)!" (132).

"The Bahai organization is not a religion, nor a spiritual renaissance, nor the spirit of the age, but is a full-fledged corporation which, while it engages itself in marketing the principles of Baha'u'llah for the establishment of Universal Peace, through its various branches in the United States, Canada and in other parts of the world, has protected these goods by taking out a trade-mark on the very name which more than twenty thousand Persian men and women claimed at the price of their lives" (133).

"I will point out one peculiar aspect of *Bahai News*. Every copy, in recent times [1940s], carries on its front page the inscription: *For Bahais Only.* Why for Bahais only, if the Bahai Cause is intended for the whole world? Why for Bahais only, if there is nothing to hide? Why for Bahais only, if this periodical is a credit to those who prepare it? Abdul Baha on many occasions said that in the Bahai Cause there is no secret doctrine, and that there should be no secret society nor secret meetings. He never thought of specifying the point that there should be no secret publication: *For men only, For members of the Klan only, For Bahais Only* (136).

"The insidious adversaries are those who hold office in the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada. They are the ones who, through their legalistic verbiage, have stopped the circulation of the blood of life through the arteries of mankind; they are the ones who have banished love from their midst and enthroned the Veiled Hatred which is more dreadful than the unveiled one; they are the ones who have spread the pall of subtle fear and suspicion over the Bahai Community, exiling confidence and self-respect; they are the ones who, through political manipulations before and during annual Bahai Conventions, are re-elected to the same offices year after year--thus, keeping a stranglehold on the activities of the Cause and directing those activities according to their own good-pleasure" (137).

"The writer of the article in *Bahai News reaches the height of his slandorous vilification when he likens Mr. and Mrs. Chanler and their Bahai friends *to those enemies that preceded them: Subhi-Ezel, Mohamet Ali, Kheirella and their like" (138).

"The Bahai Movement is not an organization. You cannot organize the Bahai Movement. The Bahai Movement is the spirit of the age. It is the essence of all the highest ideals of this century. The Bahai Cause is an inclusive movement. The teachings of all religions and societies are found here. Christians, Jews, Buddhists, Mohammadans, Zoroastrians, Theosophists, Freemasons, Spiritualists, etc., find their highest aims in this Cause, Socialists and philosophers find their theories fully developed in this movement" --Abdul-Baha (141).

"Registered Aug. 7, 1928 Trade-Mark 254,271 United States Patent Office National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada of New York, N. Y. Application filed March 10, 1928. Serial No. 262,923. BAHAI STATEMENT To the Commissioner of Patents: National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada, a common-law corporation, organized and operated under the declaration of trust and doing business at...

As we read and re-read the statement, we are lost in a sea of amazement. We rub our eyes, we fidget, we feel restless; we wonder whether all this is not a nightmare--impossible, incredible. We stagger, and search in our consciousness for an explanation; then, completely baffled, we look up into the face of Mr. Horace Holley. Maybe he will tell us what this means! He smiles, triumphantly pointing to the signature, and we read: National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States and Canada by Horace Holley, Secretary.... There is a stake on the *source* of the Bahai Cause and its owner-proprietor is the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada. The *password* given to mankind by Baha'u'llah, to be used for the regeneration of nations, is in the possession of the Bahai administrators" (145-146).

"No one on the face of the earth can fathom the *mystery* latent in the name *Bahai* except these interpreters of the law, these esteemed members of the all-powerful Bahai hierarchy. The *jewel with many facets* is boxed and locked, and the key is in the velvet pocket of Mr. Horace Holley.... The *set of principles necessary for the peace of the world, for economic stability, for the true progress of sciences and arts are registered and trade-marked, and woe unto those who dare to speak or write on these subjects!" (147).

"The remedy given by the Great Physician for the healing of the sick body of the world has been made up into a patent medicine, and no one is allowed to avail himself of its restorative powers except by permission of these parochial pharmacologists. We, the members of the Bahai Organization, have a priority right on *the ideals of fellowship and service irrespective of race, creed, nationality and class,* and those who put these principles into practice are our *insidious enemies* (147).

"In the light of the above rules, it is not difficult to picture the kind of society that would be ours if the Bahai community becomes widespread under the aegis of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada. Any dictator who might arise in this country, of whatsoever political hue, red, brown, black or yellow, would take to his heart and cherish these deaf, dumb and blind subjects, utterly servile and subservient, who would never oppose him nor resist his most cruel laws or indeed his slightest whim. The citizenry of these proud United States would become a race of automata, a chain-gang; and our fair democracy would have been converted into a nightmare, more gruesome and frightful than could be imagined by any H. G. Wells in his most despondent mood" (156-157).

"My personal opinion is that if some effectual means be not presently adopted to disperse this sacrosanct hierarchy, to nullify its power and destroy its authority, it will ere long reduce the Bahai Cause to the status of a sect, seeing that it has now waxed so exceedingly puffed up with pride as to attack anyone who, before the face of his Maker, calls himself a Bahai. If a method be not devised to check the inordinate ambitions of these administrators of the Bahai Cause, they will, for the establishment of their own un-American, un-democratic ideology, so limit the spiritual potency of the words of Baha'u'llah that the effect of these words on the hearts of men will be reduced to a whisper" (157).

"If this group is left to continue in its course of every day devising a new lock, of forging a new chain, of fashioning a new whip for application of the fair body of the Cause, then, I swear by the Almighty that Baha'u'llah himself will arise in his Supreme Power and shatter these fetters to a thousand pieces, thus freeing his Message and setting it again to flow, like a tumultuous cyclone, through the wide avenues of life! (159).

"What Is the Bahai Cause? The Bahai Cause is a free spiritual Revelation. Baha'u'llah, as its Founder, prayed that all men may partake of the inestimable blessings of his Message. This Message, in its essence, belongs to humanity, and no individual, no group of individuals, no church, no state, no organization, no administration can lay an exclusive claim to it. It cannot be trade-marked, and it cannot be patented.... *The words of God are independent* of the sponsorship of a corporation" (159).

"The Complaint, served on April 25th; the Amended Complaint, presented on June 7th; the Supplemental Bill of Particulars, added on October 30th, and the final Memorandum, submitted to the Court on December 27, 1940 . . . display a shifting of attitude very perplexing to the student of these documents. The lawsuit started out on the basis of the trade-mark held on the word *Bahai*, but this definite claim was dropped in the *Amended* Complaint and in all subsequent Papers. The same process of elimination on other claims is followed, more or less regularly, in the series of briefs, showing that the plaintiffs were laboring under confusion of thought and purpose. Baseless assertions and fantastic allegations were advanced as facts; but no proofs were offered.... yet hundreds of New York's public, knowing the situation but slightly, would have been willing to go on record, stating that some of these charges were obviously not true. At any rate, according to the Court *no facts* were ever produced and no *good cause of action* was ever advanced" (171-172).

"As one studies these documents, one comes to the realization that the plaintiffs are obsessed with a single thought and purpose, namely: that Baha'u'llah came to earth to form an organization and that his teachings are to be monopolized by them. This line of argument, like the ominous undertone of a Greek tragedy, runs throughout all their demands. They believe that our *unlawful* public teaching of the Bahai Cause is *trespassing* upon their rights and privileges and works to their *damage and injury*; and they consider that, if we are permitted to *continue* in these *unlawful acts*, the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada and the Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the City of New York *will suffer irreparable injury*" (172).

"During the eleven years of the existence of The New History Society . . . Mr. and Mrs. Chanler have poured in their money freely, joyously, as grist to the mill of their endeavor. Small contributions to the work came in now and then, from our members, some books were sold and the proceeds added to the budget, but ninety-nine and three-quarters percent of the total expended on the maintenance of the work came from the one source--Mr. and Mrs. Chanler. Everybody knows this; and yet the plaintiffs *claim that we have made profits, and diverted to ourselves contributions to the Bahai Cause* which otherwise would have been received by them. All these allegations were under oath. Here, one cannot help wonder at the mental processes which make such claims and oaths possible.... So, the Court did not confer upon the plaintiffs a spiritual and material monopoly on the Bahai Teachings" (174-174).

"A most incomprehensible aspect of the design of the National Spiritual Assembly was utter confidence in the justice of its plan and complete assurance of victory. One reason for this apparent confidence was, I suspect, the small weight which its members placed on the guarantee of religious liberty in this country as set forth in the Bill of Rights, together with a minimizing of the effect which this law of tolerance had had on the consciousness of the American people" (175).

"The decision handed down in the Supreme Court of New York by Justice Louis A. Valente on April 1, 1941, is an epoch-making document for . . . its contents have universal application. Eloquently and definitely, Judge Valente has reaffirmed the validity of the Bill of Rights. In the case under review, he denies . . . a monopoly on the word *Bahai*, thus constituting, in the name of the latest revealed religion, a charter of freedom which shall stand as long as this nation retains the character conferred upon it by its founders. I think that will be *always*--in spite of the perils that menace liberty in these sad times. Thus, from now on, any sincere seeker after truth, who has realized his highest aspirations in the Bahai Cause, can term himself a follower of Baha'u'llah and use his name without let or hindrance. No one can molest him or try to undermine his service in the movement" (182).

"The Most Important Point. Justice Valente ruled that *the plaintiffs have no right to a monopoly of the name of a religion. The defendants, who purport to be members of the same religion, have an equal right to use the name of the religion in connection with their own meetings, lectures, classes and other activities. This is the most important point in question; for, henceforth the National Spiritual Assembly cannot claim, as it has up to this time, that it is the sole representative of all the Bahais in the land. There are now, and will be in increasing numbers, Bahais who would not think it appropriate to be represented by the National Spiritual Assembly, and whom the National Spiritual Assembly would not think it appropriate to represent. The laws of this nation will be the practical guarantee of such Bahais, who will turn their hearts to God in the service of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha, without benefit of clergy (187-188).

Not a Religion

"In studying the Complaint, the Amended Complaint, the Bill of Particulars, the Supplemental Bill of Particulars and the final Memorandum, one comes to the conclusion that the plaintiffs are solely preoccupied with the consolidation of their privileges as a *corporation*. They are deeply concerned over the possible diversion from them of contributions and the making, by others, of profits which might have accrued to their budget. They enlarge on the subjects of unfair competition, pecuniary advantages and injury to business, and let loose shafts of accusation on charges of trespassing. It is clear the the Bahai Administration is not a religion, but a great corporation, having *more than one hundred* subsidiary corporations operating in various parts of the United States and Canada. Before the Court, it announces that it is the trustee and custodian of a variety of properties, including a temple under construction at Wilmette, Illinois, upon which more than a million dollars has been expended, to date. Likewise, there is a trust fund under its control as well as a publishing concern. All these material advantages are possessed by the Bahai Administration, and no competition shall be allowed in the Bahai name and teachings which are the source of its wealth! No, the Bahai Administration is not a religion. The Bahai Cause, from which it derives, was such; but that was long ago" (191).

"By no stretch of imagination can we invest the members of the National Spiritual Assembly with the same innocence.... Then, why did they allow themselves to perpetrate the unethical act of concealing from the Commissioner of the United States Patent Office the fact that the word Bahai was derived from the name *Baha*, and that *Baha* was a person, and more, that he was the founder of a Universal Religion? The answer is of course plain. In such a case, they would have been refused the trade-mark!"

(211).

"Hence, the trade-mark on the symbol of the *MOST GREAT NAME*, the application for which was signed by Mr. Horace Holley, Secretary, constitutes the rock-bottom of infidelity in the annals of the Bahai Administration. No further act, however black, can rival this one" (218).

"The National Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada has two faces--liberal and orthodox; democratic and totalitarian; and these faces are mirrored on the pages of their twin publications, entitled *World Order* and *Bahai News*. The former, which is intended for the public, reflects broad modern ideas; the latter, published for *Bahais Only*, presents articles and news designed to bolster up and maintain a despotic and illogical system" (223). ["The American Baha'i" now serves the role of the latter.]

"Here we see that, while the National Spiritual Assembly asserts that religious controversy is not a quality of America, it allows itself the very un-American action of dragging its fellow-believers into the law-courts over nothing more nor less than a *religious controversy*. While it states that in this country a varied population has been assured freedom of conscience and the individual right to worship God according to any practice, it exerts itself to deprive the members of The New History Society and all liberal Bahais of this very *individual right to worship* God according to their convictions and beliefs. While it speaks of the *climate of tolerance*, it disseminates among its communities the poison of theological controversy and, without mercy or let-up, persecutes the liberal elements within its own ranks. But then, this piece of writing is for the public, while the actual doctrines of the Bahai Administration may be studied by the elect within the pages of the *Bahai News*" (224).

"It is true that the National Spiritual Assembly, once in a while before its own membership, pretends to value the assets conferred by these United States. In a letter dated February 15, 1941, and addressed to *Bahai Friends*, it questions mournfully: 'In our favored country we are still in possession of our freedom, our possessions, our liberty of thought--how long will they last?' Indeed, not long if this institution has its way! The present day Bahai organization is the model upon which an alleged world order is to be fashioned; and what a world order it will be, judging from the pattern! The individual is not allowed to use his conscience, but must adhere to the rulings of his superiors without regard to modern social issues or humanitarian inclinations; above all, without regard to the Bahai teachings. Under these conditions, the better elements in the group are forced to maintain a painful silence, leaving the conduct of affairs to those of less sensitive fibre. It is largely for this reason that the Bahais keep themselves aloof from current affairs. They function on a basis that is untenable; consequently, they cannot look the world eye to eye. I have heard more than one of their leaders speaking on public platforms in Geneva, Switzerland, at times when that city was the hub of advanced thought, and these outstanding Bahais could not bring themselves to the point of pronouncing the name of Baha'u'llah. Why this? Simply because the Bahai Administration has produced a complex among its advocates. The Guardian himself never ventures into the public" (225).

[The nsa regarding its lawsuit against Sohrab]: "The community of believers at any given time represents many different stages of development, and the hostility of the betrayer and the foe comes as a necessary and helpful test of the individual believer's understanding and firmness. That is all, except for the further consideration that the Faith acquires public influence and esteem through the dramatization of its vital principles under onslaught or denial" (227).

"My opinion is that, at whatsoever door the agitation may justly be laid, a law court is at no time a fit place for controversy among the followers of Abdul-Baha" (229).

"The outcome of this charge was the same as that of all the other charges: it fell to the ground because it was totally unsubstantiated. All this is funny, in a sense; and yet actually, it is not funny that those who signed this document should so lend themselves to deception and untruth" (242).

"Creeds and articles of faith were formulated by succeeding generations of theologians, men who had lost the vision of the Prophets and were wandering in the waste desert of metaphysical speculations. This is what happened to Christianity. It is happening to the Bahai Cause today--with only a difference of terminology: The Bahai theologians call themselves Administrators" (259).

Regarding the Apostle's Creed

"Precautions taken by the Founders. It was too much to expect that the Bahai Cause would be immune to this process of stratification, but both Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha did their very best to avoid such a calamity. Through continuous explanations, they made vivid this danger in order that the Bahai Movement might be fore-armed and protected from the errors of the previous religions. They were most emphatic on the points that this Cause is universal and all-inclusive; that it does not lead itself to the creation of an hierarchical order; that its fundamental basis is unity and not ecclesiastical distinctions; that it is essentially a spiritual fellowship and not a sectarian corporation with exclusive privileges; that its charter is freedom from worldly and material constitutions, and that its greatness depends upon non-crystallization and open portals.... The above shows the emphasis that Baha'u'llah placed on conduct, and on activity in the path of God. Morality and not creeds, deeds and not words; service and not articles of faith" (261).

"It took almost two centuries for Christian theologians to formulate *The Old Roman Creed* and thus insert in the pure Faith a yard-stick and a bludgeon. In this instance, however, it took only a few years for *Bahai theologians*, under the more modern title of *Bahai Administrators*, to set up *The Bahai Creed* which, reducing the Cause from spirit to matter, has already become more authoritative and binding than *all* the teachings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha" (263).

"Thus, within the narrow limits of less than six years after the departure of Abdul Baha, a few American Bahais wrote the Declaration of Trust and By-Laws, submitted them to Shoghi Effendi and received his sanction. In this manner, the young Cause, so lately deprived of its great Protector, was, without loss of time, shoved into an institution--a mere waif, the latest one to enter the dark edifice of Religious Organization" (263).

"The above articles of Bahai Creed and Confession demonstrate that, notwithstanding the warnings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha, their Cause is today as handicapped and circumscribed as are any of the institutionalized religions" (268-269).

Bahai Obscurantism

"These articles of the Bahai Creed are the harbingers to an era of obscurantism in this glorious movement. They are compounded of bigotry in all its gruesome forms and pave the way to moral darkness. This desire for concentrated authority is in direct opposition to inquiry and enlightenment. It is a mediaevalizing tendency. In the Middle Ages we had dry scholasticism; in the Bahai Cause we have arid administrative legalism. The Bahai Administration is the progeny of religious intolerance, obviously injurious to spiritual freedom and ethical emancipation. The Articles of Creed as quoted are implements of torture in the hands of a Bahai Administrative Obscurantist. According to his standard, the Bahai Cause is to be run, not by the fresh springs of inspiration, but by the elixir distilled from the withered flowers of administrative theology" (270).

"The impulse to Bahai Obscurantism, or to any other form of obscurantism, arises from a deeply rooted, if not an inherent, tendency in human nature to distrust free inquiry. This tendency becomes aggravated when it operates in the sphere of religion. An uneasy suspicion of knowledge and its results; a dislike for a liberal and inquisitive mind, and a feeling of fear in regard to independent investigation of the truth as for something not wholly good for any one--these sentiments have contributed to the evolution of Bahai Obscurantism, which is the herald of professional or class exclusiveness in the Cause as exemplified by the National Spiritual Assembly, and the local assemblies" (271).

"One observes the distortion of truth on the part of the Bahai Obscurantists by their unwholesome preference for that which is secondary and derivative, as contrasted with that which is primary and fundamental; by their leanings toward the accretions and embellishments of administration, as contrasted with the sources of inspiration; toward the peculiarities of theories and creeds, as contrasted with the Bahai obligations which are universally binding.

The dislike of the sophisticated, intellectualized Americans, like some of the Bahai administrators, for those common, simple, universal realities of the Bahai Cause, which are the very soul of this movement, has taken practical effect in the substitution of mechanistic, legalistic, administrative and organized authority for the seeing eye and illumined heart--and the result has been a gradual diminishing of reliance on the spiritual teachings of the Cause and a total absence of enthusiasm on its behalf" (272).

"The Bahai message is a call to religious unity and not an invitation to a new religion, not a new path to immortality. God forbid! It is the ancient path cleared of the debris of imaginations and superstitions of men, of the debris of strife and misunderstanding, and is again made a clear path to the sincere seeker, that he may enter therein in assurance and find that the word of God is one word, though the speakers were many" (275).

"If we throw away the shell--organization--at the very core we shall find the kernel--Love--in all its splendor and simplicity--and that Love will make us free! Throughout his life, Abdul Baha was most emphatic on this subject: No organization, no ecclesiasticism and theology, no limitations and restrictions in the Bahai Cause. On this tree, all the birds are invited to build their nests and raise their broods. Toward this heaven, they all can soar and flood the earth with their golden songs. In order to engrave the vital principle of non-organization upon the minds of the Bahais, East and West, North and South, Abdul Baha often spoke on this subject, with power and authority" (277).

"The above clear and emphatic words of Abdul Baha were used in the course of public addresses as one of the most characteristic teachings of the Cause. They were quoted over and over again in numerous articles and sundry publications. Abdul Baha had sounded the clarion call: No Organization in the Bahai Cause; and the echo of this order reverberated through the corridors of the minds and spirits, for a time--and then it died away" (277-278).

"It remains a tragic commentary on the undeveloped nature of the American Bahais that the institution of the Mashreq-ul-Azkar, the erection of which was intended to create centers of divine emotions, actually became the mainspring for the organizing of a spiritual cause and was the origin of the reduction of this movement to the status of an ecclesiastical order" (283).

"The tendency toward organization had, from the very beginning, existed among the American Bahais, but it remained for Mr. Holley to develop it, to officialize it, to make it obligatory and to place the details of Bahai housekeeping (and not very good housekeeping at that) on a level with the Teachings of the Revelator of the Modern Age" (291).

"The spirituality that one could somehow feel in the two previous constitutions is utterly missing in this portentous and formidable Declaration of Trust [1926]. It is an ice-bound, juridical document. Its articles are like hailstones that pierce and cut into the heart of the reader; its phrases are so wind-laden that they transform the balmy atmosphere of the Paradise of Abha into the frigid immensities of Nova Zembla; it is the apotheosis of an inflexible organization, the hypostasis of the machine; it is the Bastille of Paris, the Tower of London and the Concentration Camp of the Third Reich all rolled into one, and striking terror into the soul of a most hardy champion of freedom of conscience!" (305).

"The point that I want to establish and which I believe is already proven beyond the shadow of a doubt, is that the *Declaration of Trust* and *By-laws* originated in the brain of an American, or in the brains of Americans and that the Bab, Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha had nothing to do with it" (308).

"The officials now began to soft-pedal the phrase: *The Bahai Cause is not an organization*, and to remove it, little by little, from conspicuous places in their literature; yet, to their discomfiture, the words remained engraven on the minds of the people" (318).

"Thus, the campaign developed, increasing in momentum and presently *all* reports, programs, lectures, publicity, radio broadcasts, annual Conventions, youth activities, membership, elections became *colored* with expressions becoming to the Administration; until finally in 1928, a book containing the early letters of Shoghi Effendi was published under the title *Bahai Administration*. This book, with the authority back of it, crystallized the plan and made the name permanent" (319).

"Only the old Bahais can appreciate what the writer means by *the elimination of any non-Bahai views* It was no gentle elimination, but actually a Hitlerian purge conducted with full present-day Nazi efficiency. And as to *re-education*! That is where the *give-away* comes in; for in that period, which the writer frankly designates as dating from the departure of the Master, the poor simple Bahais were educated along totally different lines from those which they knew and loved, and which they believed to be the *Cause*" (320).

"Here then, in plain language, we have nine Hitlers, or nine Mussolinis, or nine Stalins, all rolled into one; or probably we have a few of each species, combining their authority over, not 80 million Germans and more than 100 million conquered peoples, 45 million Italians and 175 million Russians, but over the conscience and activities of 2584 plain, simple, folksy, democratic Americans. With such paraphernalia to hold them in order, these American Bahais must indeed be the most unruly and rebellious people on the face of the earth!" (323).

"Adbul Baha told his followers that the Bahai Cause was not a *new* religion, and that it was their mission to carry the leaven of tolerance into all circles, thus little by little, demolishing sectarian lines of demarcation; yet the Administration has adopted a policy of complete RELIGIOUS ISOLATION, raising such iron-clad frontiers around their constituents that none of them can overstep them or presume to adhere to the injunction of Baha'u'llah: *Associate with the people of all religions with joy and fragrance*" (325).

"In this manner has the Administration adopted a policy of SOCIAL ISOLATION, impossible to reconcile with the contents of most of the addresses delivered by Abdul Baha in Europe and America, for these deal with the abolition of political boundaries, the eradication of social limitations, the ensuring of the economic prosperity of mankind and the establishment of a new commonwealth of humanity based on freedom, justice and peace. And again, as our minds dwell on the Teachings, now so completely obscured, we come with a shock on the words of Baha'u'llah: *Oh people . . . be intent on the betterment of the world and the training of nations*" (327).

"This is the building up of a theocratic order, so intransigent, so frightful, that nothing hitherto imagined can match it. Shoghi Effendi is indeed correct in saying that his system is unique and has no parallel in all the annals of history!" (333).

"An integral part of an organization is *funds* and *fund raising*, and from this dreary aspect of concerted effort the Bahai Administration is not exempt; in fact, the National Spiritual Assembly has so accentuated the subject of contributions that *money* ranks alongside of *authority* as the second feature in italics of the Cause as it stands today" (333).

"Everybody who accepts the Faith at the hands of the Administration places himself or herself under the severe obligation of contributing funds to the movement, while those who acquire the Teachings through other channels undergo no taxation whatsoever. It is evident that the Administration, having in mind the dream of world dominion (which dream seems to include one of universal taxation), would consider such independent individuals or groups as a menace to its plan for temporal power, and this undoubtedly explains, in part, the disfavor in which The New History Society is held" (336).

"My Object. I have herein outlined the circumstances which led to the founding, development and establishment of the Bahai Administration, an institution which by this time has so identified itself with the Cause that the large majority of Bahais feel that this universal movement, born in Persia, is unauthentic without the trade-mark: *Made in the United States*. Like an octopus, this sinister organism has wound itself about its victim, while the *faithful*, ever obedient to authority and power, stifle whatsoever instincts of responsibility that yet remain in their hearts. Now, I do not flatter myself with the hope of making even a dent on the consciousness of those who follow the Administration; such is not my object in writing this book. I merely wish to set down, as a record for the future, a few notes of historic importance, believing that no one else is possessed of the knowledge, the documentation and the *will* to do so. In addition, I am inserting the views of an individual who loves the Cause devotedly and who believes that he understands, in some measure, the liberal and lofty intentions of Abdul Baha. Perhaps, some day, when mankind has learned much through suffering, a few scholars will look through these pages and gain a new impression of the movement. But, this is for the future and what the future holds, no man knows"(337).

"For the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. Now, the Lord is that spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." Epistle of Paul, II Corinthians, Chapter 3, Verses 6 and 17. Quoted (353).

"Baha'u'llah was a champion of religious liberty, an apostle of intellectual freedom and the advocate of man's emancipation from the fetters of dogmas and creeds. His teachings inaugurated an era of human brotherhood on a logical foundation, and made a royal circle of universal understanding among the religions, nations and races. Consequently, the Bahai Cause stands for equality, and this equality of course can have no meaning except equal rights for *all*; nor can there be a functioning of equal rights unless the individual is allowed liberty to act according to his best judgment and the dictates of his conscience" (357).

"In the words of Baha'u'llah which I have repeatedly quoted throughout the preceding paragraphs, we plainly see that the supreme mission of this Prophet has been to confer upon the population of the entire earth the inalienable rights of liberty of religion, of speech and of the press. Evidently, emancipation of mind and spirit is a fundamental doctrine of the Bahai Cause, even as it is an elementary law of the United States. It originates in the liberation of a moral personality, working towards the Highest Good--the *Supreme Concourse*, or in Christian terminology, the Kingdom of Heaven" (362-363).

"According to Hitler's policy makers, the Nazi regime of dictatorship is set at one thousand years; but, to the National Spiritual Assembly such a period is but a short and fleeting moment. Its vision is far more grandiose; indeed, it envisaged a *perpetual* dictatorship to be imposed on every aspect of spiritual life, backed by the laws of the United States" (370).

"Yet, the while I ask these questions, I know very well that our supposed sins are far greater than these, and more serious: We do not surrender our religious liberty nor submit to the corporate and ecclesiastical authority of the National Spiritual Assembly. We turn to Baha'u'llah without asking permission. We carry the name of Abdul Baha in our hearts and on our lips. We spread the ideals of peace and brotherhood as taught by these, our beloved Masters. We hold meetings and deliver lectures on spiritual subjects relative to the Bahai Cause. We write and publish leaflets, pamphlets and books on the Bahai Movement. Yes, we perpetrate all these actions, in love happiness and freedom; we have stepped out into the open spaces of service, unmindful of obligations imposed on us to remain on perpetual parole and on perpetual probation; and these crimes have been committed in broad daylight, unblushingly and with no tremors of fear. Indeed, we are fully aware of the fact that few Bahais would have acted as we have" (371).

"Now, the National Spiritual Assembly turns the key, opening toward Baghdad and pours reproaches upon the officials of that city because, in their dealings with the Bahais, they do not put into practice *the principle of liberty of conscience and religion* as embodied in their Organic Law. Then, this same Assembly turns the key opening toward New York and pours reproaches, even more vehement, upon a group of Bahais in The New History Society, because they have allowed themselves to put into practice *the principle of the liberty of conscience and religion* as taught by Baha'u'llah and Adbul Baha, and as embodied in the Bill of Rights" (376).

"Now, the point which I again wish to call to the attention of the reader is the contradictory attitude of the National Spiritual Assembly which, on the one hand, puts forward such a stupendous amount of time, energy and money to lift the ban on entry of Bahai literature in *Persia*, on the basis of *the power of religious freedom and international communication customary in modern times*; while, on the other hand, it spends a very appreciable amount of time, energy and money to place a ban on this same literature in the *United States* (380).

"To my mind, the major tenor of Bahai life is the process of the transmutation of authority into liberty; of tradition into freedom of thought and action; it is the ceaseless renovation of habits and customs and the incoming and outgoing of the spirit of truth to and from the heart of a Bahai. No individual or group should have dictatorial rights over other individuals or groups, and everyone should be allowed to function as a Bahai according to the dictates of his conscience.

In our striving after freedom of conscience and liberty, we have been accused by the National Spiritual Assembly of a tendency to break away from the divine government; of a destructive effort to atomize the distinctive teachings of the Cause; of planning to bring about dissolution of discipline and order. But the National Spiritual Assembly has lost sight of the important fact that a human Bahai personality must possess the moral privilege of expressing itself in thought and action, and that it is entitled, through divine right, to emancipation which in itself is the essence of discipline and the substratum of the divine order.

A moral Bahai personality has two aspects. The first is the universal aspect, which I call the religious or the spiritual, in virtue of which every Bahai ought to have complete and unchallenged right to idealistic and ethical self-expression. Here, freedom of conscience holds court with no rival; here, we enjoy liberty of thought, undivided and whole. Then, there is the individual aspect, to which I ascribe legal or state obligations. Here, the individual Bahai, as a member of society, is called upon to observe the laws of the State and realize the fact that, although he is free to break any of these laws, he is at the same time liable to be hauled into court and punished for his infractions.

Today, in the civilized world, there is **no** religious tribunal that can **compel** a man to appear before it on account of his so-called heresies or unbeliefs in the doctrines of the church. In the moral sphere, there is no judge to condemn a person. The religious authorities may excommunicate him, but such an act will not be legal in any state court and will simply be regarded as the decision of a group of ecclesiastical disciplinarians.

In brief, the relation subsisting between an individual Bahai and his group must be conditioned by the incontrovertible postulate that, as a moral personality, he shall have all rights to think and act spontaneously and consistently according to his own spiritual insight" (381-382).

"Independent Investigation. A fundamental law of religion and philosophy is freedom of inquiry and investigation, together with the inalienable right of each individual to express the result of his search without any external control or official supervision. **Censorship** as applied to the fruits of the spirit is the negation of the spirit itself" (385).

"On his visit to this country, Abdul Baha was asked: What is the greatest thing you have seen in America? and he answered: **The greatest thing I have seen in America is its freedom**" (386).

"A Dramatic Change. This attitude of religious liberalism and freedom of conscience; this **idealization** of the **liberty of thought and right of speech**; this **right of unrestricted individual belief** came to an end with the departure of Abdul Baha from this life, in 1921. Immediately, a sudden and dramatic change of principle and policy was inaugurated, for Shoghi Effendi, the Guardian of the Bahai Cause, in a letter dated March 5, 1922, created a censorship to be applied not only to all Bahai writings and books, but to all other matters as well.... This desire to control the thoughts and actions of the Bahai community, this drive toward the centralization of authority, this creation of a board of censorship, this plan of bringing under the full jurisdiction of the National Spiritual Assembly *all* matters pertaining to the Bahai Cause is, to say the least, in strange and incomprehensible contrast to the broad tolerance and liberality of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha" (387-389).

"With such intensive control exercised over every department of the Bahai Cause, the believers become mere automata, having no will of their own, no incentive and no initiative to start any original undertaking; for, they are at all times conscious that, at any moment, the heavy hand of the National Spiritual Assembly may fall upon them and destroy their labors" (391).

"What a system! Apparently we are a lot of wayward children. Every word, spoken or written, must be scrutinized; every action must be controlled. We are, indeed, according to these extraordinary orders, as dead men in the hands of an undertaker. Why, in heaven's name, become Bahais? What benefits do we receive from this spiritual totalitarianism?" (391-392).

"This Reviewing Committee or Board of Censorship is patterned on the church authorities of the Middle Ages whose function it was to suppress the expression of free thought" (392).

"If in any realm more than any other we need freedom, it is in the domain of religion. History has shown us that censorship may deprive a nation of its best leadings and inspirations. Again, I assert that no man or body of men is wise enough or tolerant enough to be entrusted with power controlling the expression of thought, either in the Catholic Church or outside of it. The right of free speech and free press is the most precious possession of man, and there is no authority on the face of the earth which has the right to withhold it" (394).

"Having placed all kinds of iron fences around the Kingdom of Bahai thought, closing the *Way of Freedom* that Baha'u'llah had *opened* and sealing *the Fountain of Knowledge* which was intended to flood the earth with its salubrious waters, the legislator of the Reviewing Committee solemnly affirms:--

The purpose of this statement is to assure proper protection of the interests of the bahai faith, while providing sufficient freedom of action to individual believers under all circumstances.

In reading the above *statement* one cannot help wondering what are the particular *interests of the Bahai Faith* which need *proper protection!* Does God and His Truth stand in need of the protecting arm of the National Spiritual Assembly? Or, is it the people who are to be protected from contamination through the Love of God; and are we to combine in a union to bar the common run of humanity from access to the life-giving words of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha?

Yet, in regard to the clause which provides *sufficient freedom to individual believers*, probably, it is appropriate to offer a vote of thanks to the National Spiritual Assembly for this largesse on their part, so royally meted out. *Sufficient freedom?* Of course! It is a superfluity, even beyond our deserts. Why should we be grasping? As intellectual and spiritual bondsmen to the National Spiritual Assembly, we must accept our lowly station, and in all obsequiousness stoop to pick up the crumbs that fall from the table of our Administrative masters! Who are we, and what are we that we should dare to even *think* of more freedom? The members of the National Spiritual Assembly are all-wise, and they say that it is sufficient. So, sufficient it is and sufficient it must be! We should ask no questions. As model slaves, it is fitting that we obliterate ourselves before our superiors. We should pray that we be characterized with the qualities of meekness, deference, compliance and subserviency. We should, in all humility, present our allegiance to these shepherds who have assembled us under the overhanging rock of their salvation and who, in solicitude for us, have set aside appropriate and *sufficient* pasture-land, where in we may graze and offer them our thanksgiving at dawn and at sunset" (397-398).

"A Divine Legacy. Just the same, there are some who cannot blot out the memory of the Bahai Cause as it was taught once upon a time and who, in spite of prevailing conditions, yet hold to the teachings of Baha'u'llah and the universal expositions of them as dispensed by Abdul Baha. Man's reason contains a truth which has existed since the dawn of human history: his spirit is enveloped with a light which was enkindled by God at the very foundation of creation. This is no other than a divine legacy reserved for us by the Maker of the Universe. The Prophets appeared upon the earth to remind us of these preternatural truths, which so consistently have been defaced by spiritual charlatans and perverted by superstitious organizations. In our own times, Baha'u'llah came to restore these lost truths through the free exercise of rational and celestial faculties; and now, while powerful influences, actually *within* the established Faiths, have arisen to assist mankind in this process of emancipation, the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada, pitifully claiming to represent the foremost liberal element in religion, has formed another set of dogmas wherewith to throttle free thought and subvert the essential liberty of human expression in all its diversified manifestations. Censorship, in the social domain, is an outmoded tyranny; in the spiritual realm, it is unwholesome and impracticable. Censorship is not wanted anywhere, especially in the Bahai Cause; and if we allow it to retain the upper hand in the great movement that has been entrusted to us, we will set ourselves up before the world and in the face of history as false trustees, and as men and women unworthy and unfit to call ourselves Bahais" (398-399).

"The leaders of the Bahai Administration in America have for years been carrying on an ideological flirtation with the totalitarian religious systems of the past, copying their methods and procedures, and manifesting the while a pride and satisfaction as if they had discovered an entirely new system. Nevertheless, the incomparable worth of Baha'u'llah's genius lies in the fact that he has constructed for the children of this generation a spiritual fortress which shall protect the rights of man against the encroachment of all religious dictators, whether in the Bahai Administration or outside of it" (401).

"A Dangerous Doctrine. In considering the problem of fear, let us for a while study the writings of Shoghi Effendi, the Guardian of the Cause, and see how he handles this vital subject.... The three published volumes of Shoghi Effendi are *Baha'i Administration, The World Order of Baha'u'llah* and *The Advent of Divine Justice*, which works consist of the letters which he has addressed to the National Spiritual Assembly in the course of the last 20 years. Now, I have read these three books and find that the words *enemies* and *adversaries* are greatly featured. Baha'u'llah has said: *Consort with all men with joy and fragrance, yet Shoghi Effendi, in his very first letter, dated January 21, 1922, written after his assumption of the guardianship, recommends *the absolute shunning of whomsoever we feel to be an enemy of the Cause. (*Bahai Administration, page 16.) Now, I cannot bring myself to the point of believing that *absolute shunning* of whomsoever we *feel* to be the enemy of the Cause is a principle of Baha'u'llah. Is every one going to let his *feelings* guide him in the matter? Can we not take for granted that frail human beings as we are, a great deal of personal caprice and spite may enter into our calculations as to *who* is the enemy of the Bahai Cause? This is a very dangerous doctrine, and yet one finds it in different forms throughout Shoghi Effendi's communications. He practically never mentions the names of the *enemies* or *adversaries* to whom he constantly refers. He simply creates ogres and bogey men, and fills the hearts of the Bahais with apprehension and fear. In this way, the fountain-head of free and open comradeship is dried up and the flowers of loving-kindness wither away" (409-410).

"Fear Complex. Through the publication and wide distribution of these instructions, the National Spiritual Assembly and its followers have come down with an acute attack of ecclesiastical goose-flesh and much energy is spent in locating these *enemies* and in unearthing their *plots*. Gossip becomes fact, and facts assume distorted proportions. Consequently, a chain of correspondence is established among the various Spiritual Assemblies, the object of which is to hunt down the enemies and expose them. Meanwhile, hatred is engendered and the spirit of tolerance, mercy and forgiveness is trampled underfoot" (418-419).

"In regard to being an *enemy of the Faith*, to this I definitely make objection; nor do I allow this statement to pass without making flat denial. If the upholding of the freedom of the Cause, is enmity to the Cause; if the teaching of the Bahai principles, is *instilling* poison into the minds of the hearers, then I assert, and without reserve, that Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha were enemies of the Cause, *par excellence*, and that their words were the essence of poison upon poison" (425).

"Thus, it is made most difficult for Eastern people of all faiths and creeds to come in contact with American Bahais and to learn of the Cause; and then to cap this gorgeous structure of exclusiveness and intolerance, a bar is made, preventing even the American Bahais, travelling from one city to another, from visiting local Assemblies or having a chat with individual believers, if these travelers happen to be unarmed with the proper *credentials*.... Segregation! Thy name, is indeed, Bahai Organization!" (429).

"Thus, we can see that Shoghi Effendi and the National Spiritual Assembly throughout these years have built a segregated community--a community, the members of which are taught to suspect the motives and actions of the most innocent--an isolated, self-centered, self-satisfied community, living behind the iron walls of a prison which Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha thought to destroy" (431).

"Now, I deny the temporal and spiritual right of excommunication as exercised in the past by the ecclesiastical institutions; and I reject claims to the same prerogatives which are maintained today by those who hold themselves as the shepherds of the flocks. Long enough has religion been defaced by this inhuman contraption, operated by so-called *holy* men! Long enough have these far-from-holy-men manipulated the conscience of mankind through their demoniacal devices and, terming themselves the Vice-Gerents of the Most High, imposed their anti-spiritual and anti-social dogmas on a defenseless and innocent humanity! The people of the world must awaken to the realization that God, who is the fountain-head of all blessings, was not, is not and will never be an excommunicator. He is no God of wrath and vengeance, but a God of understanding and compassion. All those who sat on the thrones of authority, expelling and anathematizing the *dissenters*, did not themselves know what faith meant and had no share in the truth that they pretended to promulgate. The greatest service that could be rendered to religion is to lift from its brow the dark curse of excommunication and to demand, nay to insist, that this law be struck out from the creeds of all faiths. As long as it retains its place, even theoretically, in the Articles of the Confessions of various sects and denominations, the establishment of the principles of a Universal Religion and a Univesal God will remain an impossibility. Therefore we, the people of the world, must eradicate from the pages of our spiritual consciousness the language of hate and denunciation, and obliterate from our religious books the rules of expulsion and anathema" (434-435).

"The Bahais are therefore called upon, by the Revelator himself, to speak in the language of love and to protect themselves from the dust of lies; and the greatest lie of all the ages is that a compassionate God is the excommunicator of His own children or that He approves excommunication in His Name" (436).

"Bahai Administration Follows Suit. The few quotations from the writings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that their central aim was the abolition of all exclusive acts and of every sectarian tendency. This one all-embracing spirit distinguishes their cause from all the past religions. Yet, *alas, this limitation, this expulsion, this excommunication*, which Baha'u'llah and Abdul Baha entreated their followers to renounce and cast away, these evil spirits of a by-gone age, these gibbering goblins of a lost generation have been taken up by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada and incorporated in the fundamental laws of their ecclesiastical organization. The pity of it is that Shoghi Effendi falls in line with their medieval orthodoxy, with the result that today the Bahai world is witnessing religious persecution, heresy-hunting and excommunication according to standard pattern. In addition to this, the National Spiritual Assembly does not permit its *recognized* followers to join any organization, political or religious, and the Bahais are required to cancel any membership they may have in such bodies. Thus, it seems to me that this is not at all *the New World Order of Baha'u'llah* but the very old world order of intolerance, fanaticism, exclusion and spiritual isolation which Baha'u'llah came to destroy. Thanks to the labor and ingenuity of the National Spiritual Assembly and Shoghi Effendi, these liabilities of the dark ages have been recaptured and embodied bag and baggage in this modern and one-time healthy movement" (441-442).

"Now, do we want to bring into the Bahai Cause these relics of barbarism, these inventions of the devil? One may legitimately argue that such conditions will never return to our world. Yet I answer: So long as a single man claims this power and the right to exercise it, and a subservient group yields to his authority, the potential danger of a return to the practices of the Middle Ages *exists*.... On the other hand, it is not difficult to picture the establishment of a type of spiritual cruelty which would not necessitate the burning of heretics at the stake. This is the 20th Century, in spite of the European nightmare, and it is probable that we will content ourselves with more refined methods of persecution. We are able to propagate, by subtle and *civilized* methods, rumors that in time will destroy the character of those whom we are pleased to point out as enemies. Just keep hammering at it, persistently, unremittingly, and, in time, men will be ready to call white black, and day night" (446-447).

"Every soul, in accepting the Bahai Cause, makes a covenant with Baha'u'llah, and that Covenant, neither Shoghi Effendi nor the National or Local Assemblies can ever break. Its foundation is in the depths of consciousness, and God alone knows its dwelling-place" (448).

"As a result of the doctrine of excommunication propounded by Shoghi Effendi and upheld by the National Spiritual Assembly, the Bahai Cause has taken up all the characteristics of the Church of Rome and, unless this doctrine is publicly repudiated, it will be subject to the same spiritual diseases, with gradual corruption and disintegration" (451).

"The Black Plague. The doctrine of excommunication, appropriated by Shoghi Effendi, is peculiarly the weapon of the Dark Ages of intolerance and ignorance. No other dogma is so distinctly the creation of an irreligious era. It is the black plague in the realm of the mind; it is religious assassination and spiritual murder; it is an abomination unto the Lord of Mercy and Truth. The spiritual and cultural manifestations of the Renaissance as well as the courage and sacrifice of thousands of lovers of freedom contributed to wrest (to all intents and purposes) the power of excommunication from the hands of the Roman Catholic Church and to establish in Europe and America the age of the liberty of Religion. Does it then seem credible that Shoghi Effendi is so unmindful of the history of the past that he has brought himself to believe that he can bring back into the Western world the doctrine of excommunication? Are the members of the National Spiritual Assembly so blind to the significant events in the United States during the last hundred and fifty years that they hope to succeed in establishing on these shores a religious tribunal, with authority to expel from the Cause those believers whom they are unable to brow-beat into submission?" (453).

"If the Bahai Cause aspires to spread its teachings far and wide and gain the respect and devotion of mankind, now or in the future, it must purge itself of *all* the religious limitations of the past. It must submit to a process of complete self-purification and then dedicate itself to the progressive, spiritual, social and intellectual interests of our fellowmen.

The doctrine of excommunication has *not one* good thing in its favor. It has set men against men and class against class. It has made the leaders of religions suspicious and revengeful, leaving behind an accursed memory. It is beyond my comprehension why Shoghi Effendi, the Guardian of a Universal Movement, wishes to revive this practically lifeless corpse and so inflict a mortal injury upon the Cause!

In the face of this overriding danger, which is embodied in Shoghi Effendi's claim that as the supreme head of the Cause he has the power to excommunicate or expel the believers, thereby depriving them of their spiritual heritage, no other choice is left to me but to sound the alarm. I have been impelled by motives beyond my control to present this problem before the Bahai world, before the public in general, and before the conscience of an awakening society which, little by little, is becoming aware of the mission of Baha'u'llah (454)."

"Herewith I appeal to Shoghi Effendi, as the Guardian designated by the Master, to preserve the democracy of the Bahai Cause, to protect the vital dignity of man, to obliterate all the traces of negation, to herald the universality of the Message of Abdul Baha, and, in so doing, to *expel* expulsion and *excommunicate* excommunication. Such an excommunication would, indeed, be worthwhile!" (455).

**Independent investigation!* The least that can be said of this principle of Baha'u'llah is that the very mention of it has, by this time, become *heresy*" (509).

"Shoghi Effendi expresses *his abhorrence* of political affairs. There is the point! The Guardian, living thousands of miles away, unfamiliar with the democratic processes of the New World, finds them distasteful, chooses to *abhor* them, and then expects all his followers to alter their palates so that they also may abhor them. I myself cannot help questioning the method of bringing personal taste into the problem at all" (508).

"Yes, my gentle reader! Although I admit that it is almost too quaint to be true; for the punishment meted out by Shoghi Effendi to the Bahais who do not accept his ruling of non-participation in the political affairs of the United States is--believe it, if you can--non-participation in the political affairs of the Bahai movement. Actually, the recalcitrant Bahais, who persist in co-operating with their government for the progress of the Democracy which their forefathers established on these shores, are deprived of membership in the Bahai political machine, an institution which has incorporated within itself all the stratagems, tricks and juggleries of Tammany Hall in its most flourishing days. Thus, the recalcitrant Bahai can no longer attend the Annual Bahai Conventions and sit behind closed doors in its secret sessions; he can no longer apply himself to electioneering, possibly for Tenth or Fifteenth Term candidates; he can no longer go to the Bahai polling booths nor take advantage of the Bahai absentee vote; he can no longer share in the little privileges that are allowed to members in good standing nor bask in the sunlight that is shed upon the humble by those who sit in High Places. Alas! He must resign himself to non-participation in Bahai political affairs, now and for evermore, as the price for being a self-respecting citizen of the United States, and for having tried to make his country a better place to live in" (512-513).

"An **organized religion** is hard, dour, rigid, iron-handed and iron-hearted; it is stern, arrogant, coercive and merciless. An **administered religion** has been, is and ever shall remain an **arrested religion**; for the premise that a few individuals or a network of individuals are able to organize or administer the spiritual realities of God, is an assumption as false as it is impertinent, and as outlandish as it is sacrilegious. Here is the test of the true religion: Does it unite the minds and hearts of the people in the task of developing a stable society and a humane civilization? Does it make us more tolerant, more sympathetic, more compassionate, more joyous, more sincere, more loving? If it accomplishes these things, then it is religion, indeed, and it comes straight from the Creator of the Universe" (519).

Excerpts from Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. *Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1942. Reprinted. H-Bahai: Lansing, Michigan, 2004.

Sohrab's entire book may be downloaded in one click. 29 megabytes.

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorsip/archives/SohrabBrokenSilence.pdf>

<https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/Broken.htm>

(Please note that in its use of the tactic of fundamentalist "slanderous vilification," the headnote on H-net violates the NEH, MSU, and H-Net's own democratic principles regarding scholarly and academic debate and discussion. The associated links and attempts to discredit Sohrab with bogus legal opinions further substantiate fanatical Baha'i abuse and undermining of the democratic principles that support H-Net, yet another indication of the methods of fanatical baha'is.)

---

Also excerpted from Mirza Ahmad Sohrab. *The Will and Testament of Abdul Baha, An Analysis.

New York: Universal Publishing, 1944. Reprinted. H-Bahai: Lansing, Michigan, 2004.

Entire book may be downloaded in one click:

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorsip/archives/SohrabWTAB.pdf>

"In **Section 3**, Abdul Baha enjoins his followers to implicitly obey Shoghi Effendi as the Guardian of the Cause, and, to all intents and purposes, to accept him as an infallible leader. The matter of obedience is accentuated to such a degree that it apparently reduces the status of the believers to the level of intellectual and spiritual serfdom. If one takes Abdul Baha's injunctions literally (and the present-day Bahais are super-literalists), agreeing that to obey Shoghi Effendi is to obey God and to oppose him is to oppose God, there is no escaping the conclusion that the Master asks of us the surrender of our wills, minds and reason to the Guardian--a surrender which is fraught with far-reaching consequences for it implies a betrayal of the very Bahai ideals which the Master himself spent his life sharing with the world. Doubtless, the deepest and the most searching desire of every enlightened Bahai is to obey God and Abdul Baha; but are we really honest with ourselves, are we sincere in our faith in Abdul Baha, if we believe and teach that he deliberately wished to divest us of all our reasoning faculties and turn us into a community of fawning, cringing, snivelling, mealy-mouthed sycophants, flatterers and flunkies before the awesome throne of the Guardian? To interpret this section of the Will in such a literal sense, is, to say the least, utterly short-sighted and a complete subversion of all the glorious teachings of the Bahai Cause" (53).

"Now, it is to be hoped that we understand Abdul Baha's purpose when he enjoins us in his Will to obey the Guardian at all times, and at all costs. I know that he did not mean us to divest ourselves of the rights and prerogatives of our God-given reason. I am certain that he did not desire us to turn into abject creatures in order that the sadistically-minded might enjoy the sight of our mental misery and spiritual poverty. I am confident that it was not his intention that we look upon the Guardian as the incarnation of an infallible God; and I naturally would expect that the Guardian himself would be the very last person to impose on his followers such inhuman servitude. It would seem clear that he is much more in need of wide-awake, independent and resourceful cooperators than of timorous serfs, deprived of self-respect and of the respect of their fellows.

It is my considered opinion, arrived at in all sincerity, that Abdul Baha wished the Bahais to gather, most loyally and devotedly, around Shoghi Effendi to serve the Cause of Baha'u'llah as he himself had served it; and although there is apparent contradiction between this section of the Will and his lifelong teachings, we would, if we could but master the prophetic nomenclature and phraseology, realize that they are the two aspects of the same questions, worded differently, but to be understood in the one spirit (56).

Loyalty to the Group or Loyalty to God. Besides, a very important point is this one: The appointment of Shoghi Effendi to the guardianship automatically cancelled the provision for succession as specified by Baha'u'llah in his Will. The situation was extraordinary; therefore, extraordinary and unequivocal terms must have seemed necessary in order that, after the Master's departure, the believers should not be left in a state of uncertainty which might lead to their breaking into two camps.

I am fully conscious of the fact that what I have here written is pure and unadulterated blasphemy in the eyes of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Bahais of the United States and Canada, which has abrogated all the universal teachings of the Cause and placed in their stead blind and unquestioned obedience to Shoghi Effendi and, through his authority, to themselves. This attitude of subservience and servility among the believers has been studiously cultivated by Mr. Horace Holley who, in an article . . . writes: **The individual conscience must be subordinated to the decisions of a duly elected Spiritual Assembly**. Now, it happens that Abdul Baha thought otherwise, as can be seen in **A Traveller's Narrative**, written as far back as 1874. After referring to a number of historical cases in which organized groups, official and non-official, have tried in the past to interfere with **the conscience of man**, he writes:

'These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of creation, and manifestation of the hidden verities of the contingent world. Moreover, if interrogation of conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection? Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants.' --A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

With this divine exposition before them, which states that the *soul and conscience are between the fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of His servants*, how do the members of the National Spiritual Assembly in general and Mr. Horace Holley in particular dare to *subordinate* conscience to *the decisions* of *any* Spiritual Assembly, elected or otherwise? do they think that the public is willing to overlook the teachings of the Master? Abdul Baha's words remain in black and white, and neither the Administration nor its followers can tear these pages from the volumes of immortal literature.

I myself hold to the individual conscience. I believe that it is the *still, small voice* which has been placed in our hearts to guide us aright. I consider that the crimes of the nations and religions are perpetrated because of the fact that the people place loyalty to the *group* above loyalty to God; and I know that Baha'u'llah came to awaken the individual, and through him to save the world. Therefore, I do not propose to condone injustice, wherever it appears; nor to appease, nor to stand aside and let affairs take their course. I am a Bahai, responsible to my Maker and to Abdul Baha, and I do not yield one jot nor one jota of my love and reverence for my Master in studying out his Will to the best of my ability and in drawing my sincere conclusions" (56-58).

The bewilderment which I feel on this subject was at first experienced by many of the older Bahais when the contents of the will became known. This temporary mental disturbance and confusion was not on account of the appointment of Shoghi Effendi as Guardian, but because of the fact that Abdul Baha had never in speech or writing given the slightest indication that there would be a successor to himself. On the contrary, a number of addresses delivered by him on various occasions had made the opposite impression. Consequently, it took several years before a section of the Bahais could adjust themselves to the new situation (61).

"In earnestly investigating these issues with mind and conscience, even as Bahais are commanded to investigate all things, I can arrive at no plausible answer, except it be that the plan of Abdul Baha was a draft made on broad lines to be carried out with the elasticity required by the times. I explain some of the knotty points as follows:--

Should the Bahai Cause be actually operated along universal lines, as was intended by the Founders, it is logical that it should spread to all parts and inspire the leaders in every department of practical thought and action. Abdul Baha said that a man who lives his life according to the teachings of Baha-O-Llah is already a Bahai; he did not say that a man who writes his name on the dotted line, prepared by the Bahai organization, is a Bahai. According to this concept, the plans of Baha-O-Llah and Abdul Baha in regard to the election of the members of the House of Justice by *universal suffrage*, or by *universal suffrage, that is by the believers*, merge into one.

Again: according to Abdul Baha, the members of the House of Justice *are under the unerring guidance of God*, and themselves are freed from error; while the Guardian (to whom he ascribes a yet higher station) is simply *under the unerring guidance of God*--even as we all are, for the word unerring, applies in this instance to God, not to the Guardian. Then, how can a member of the House of Justice who is *freed from error* be considered unfit and expelled by the Guardian, concerning whom no such claim has been made?

This cannot be explained; therefore, I believe that Abdul Baha was giving an ideal picture of the Members, showing what they should be; and, by the same token, in exalting the Guardian, he was depicting the type of guardian that he so much desired and hoped for.

Meanwhile, much depends upon the *first* Guardian of the Cause. Should he use his position to act as a servant of humanity, even as the Master did, striving ever to maintain the democracy in the Bahai movement that is its fundamental principle..." (98-99).

For years, the h-net version of Sohrab's Broken Silence suppresses four very important pages from the original that are presented here below. These pages were obviously not left out by oversight but reveal how the Baha'i administration operates and uses individual "scholars" and publicly funded institutions to suppress, revise, and distort understanding of its own history to suit its designs.

Mrs. Chanler emphasizes liberty and the universal and non-exclusive nature of Baha'u'llah's Teachings.

Ideals for those who wished to subscribe to them, and who would in this way bind themselves together and so prevent a scattering during the summer. I am sending you the Plan which Ahmad drew up. We called it "The New History Society."

Just as from the lectures of the Park Lane a cream arose to the surface which enrolled in "The New History Society," so, a cream will rise to the surface of this society which will become Bahais. . . .

Tonight, twenty-eight people enrolled and some asked time to think it over and to enroll later. Ahmad had given a talk about the disciples of Christ, and those who wished to, went into the other room and signed their names and then came back and shook hands with all those who had already signed. It was pouring outside, thunder and lightning, and something was happening in the room,—I believe something wonderful. You see, a very few of us knew each other, because the meetings have been large, and it is hard to remember faces and names, but in that handclasp something was broken down and, after a short prayer, the rain stopped and LOVE appeared in the room. I have never in all my life seen such happy, moved faces and I believe all those people went home on wings. Many of them seemed to think that they had joined the Bahai Cause and came to me with plans for spreading it. A man from Cornell College, who had come only to one meeting before tonight, said to me that he had found what he had been looking for, and that he knew many to whom he would offer what he had found. Another man "has been looking everywhere, but has now found the Highest." Many women said things of the same kind. Mr. Senitha, who has been with us almost from the start, said: "This ball

Describes the declarations of twenty-eight people to the Bahai Cause.

We regret that our letter of December 21st did not make our client's position entirely clear.

It is our opinion that "Bahai" is a descriptive word for aptly describing a follower of the Bahai teachings and, furthermore, that the word "Bahai", whether or not used as a trade-mark, if it is applied on Bahai literature is descriptive of that literature. If your client is in the general publishing business and applies the word "Bahai" to books and periodicals having nothing to do with Bahai teachings, then the mark would not be descriptive of such books and periodicals.

Our client uses the word "Bahai" in the title of its Bahai Bookshop in a descriptive sense to identify it as a book shop specializing in Bahai literature.

Our client denies that the use of the trade name "Bahai Bookshop" is either a misrepresentation or a deceptive use. As stated, the Bahai Bookshop represents that it specializes in Bahai literature and, as a matter of fact, Mrs. Chanler is herself a Bahai.

Our client further denies that the use of the trade name "Bahai Bookshop" gives any erroneous impression that the shop is operated or sponsored by your client, since your client, in our judgment, has no exclusive right to the name "Bahai" to describe a follower of the Bahai teachings or to identify those teachings in book form or otherwise.

We must therefore repeat that, in our opinion, our client is not infringing any rights of your client and is not unfairly competing with your client.

Yours very truly,

Mitchell & Bechert.

B/S

Mrs. Chanler and Sohrab's lawyers refute the claims of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States. The New York Supreme Court later also upheld Mrs. Chanler and Sohrab's right to use the name Bahai.

HON. LEWIS STUYVESANT CHANLER
As Lieutenant-Governor of New York State, in 1906.

Hon. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, as Lieutenant-Governor of New York State, in 1906. H-Net, a tax supported Internet system, for scholarly study, also funded by Michigan State University, a publicly-funded institution, is being used by fundamentalist Baha'is to suppress the fact that a former Lieutenant-Governor was the husband of Mrs. Chanler, and supported her and Sohrab, morally and financially, in their decades-long battle to preserve their human right to freedom of speech and conscience.

See H-Net Bahai's "slanderous vilification" at <https://www.h-net.org/~bahai/diglib/books/P-T/S/sohrab/Broken.htm>

---

Shunning > Menu
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

Compare Sohrab to Baha'i faith and Its Teachings by William McElwee Miller

---

COMPARE:

Dr. C. (Charles) Ainsworth Mitchell - Certified Copy from the Library of Congress
Report on the Writing Shown on the Photographs of the Alleged Will of Abdul-Baha. 1930.
https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/CAMitchell\_Report.htm

Ruth White, Excerpts, Bibliography
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Ruth%20White.htm>

Ruth White Collection, Library of Congress, 1930
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/RWhiteLibC.htm>

Also see US District Court of Northern Illinois rules against Haifan Baha'is - April 23, 2008
Amici curiae, Reform Bahai Faith
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/USDistrictCourt07.htm>

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Soulpancake, Baha'i google search ...a popular group partly begun by a comedian, apparently aimed at recruiting young and vulnerable people into the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i denomination, pulling them in off TV.

For further discussion of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant, see Interfaith Forum Bahai UK

https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Interfaith\_Forums\_UK.html

Questions from Soulpancake Baha'i discussion forum

https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/soulpancake\_bahai.html

Questions? CONTACT ME HERE > https://en.allexperts.com/q/Bah-2728/indexExp\_113873.htm

Are you a Baha'i? 135 RESPONSES

By brainwashing the ordinary Western Baha'i into blind obedience, taqlid, betraying Abdul-Baha's promise of "independent investigation of truth," Shoghi Effendi and the Haifan Baha'is concocted a deceitfully oppressive Shiite "world order" upon the pernicious foundation of a fraudulent will and testament.

Slandering the smaller Bahai denominations hasn't made them go away after 80 years for very good reasons. The Haifans don't have the truth. Deceived and brainwashed believers, of any denomination, Eric Hoffer's "true believers," don't change a thing.

Evading Ruth White's charge confirmed it. Shoghi Effendi's "evidence" for the authenticity of the purported will and testament was and is the weakest link in the chain of lies, distortions, and half-truths advanced by him and subsequently deceived and brainwashed Baha'is. Ruth White, others, and I have always maintained that it was quite possibly that initially the forgery was the work of his family. Either way, the spurious document is nothing like the teachings of Abdul-Baha, whether in public or private.

NOTE WELL, What's purported to be Abdul-Baha's will and testament has never been probated or authenticated independently of those who were and are its beneficiaries.

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Again, most of the Haifan Baha'is have been completely deceived and brainwashed into believing an entirely false version of the early Bahai events during Abdul-Baha's lifetime, so that many Baha'is are well meaning but in the dark, without knowing it. The entire "covenant breaking" mentality that has been inculcated into them prevents them from seeking the truth of their own tradition. Instead, unsuspectingly, they accept the half-truths and distortions concocted by Shoghi Effendi and others who benefited monetarily and otherwise from the forged document.

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

What do people on Soulpancake think of the recent US 7th District Court ruling for the third time against Wilmette Baha'is?

52 responses. They were seeking to destroy several other Bahai denominations...

Lawyer Jeffery Goldberg: Decision is final! ...The deadline for the NSA to file a petition ...with the US Supreme Court was March 29th, [2011] the NSA did not file anything with the Supreme Court. Therefore the decision of the Court of Appeals is final..

I would say much coercion applies, more than you and most American and Western Bahais realize...

Coercion with a happy face is difficult to see through. As Shakespeare so wisely phrased it, "One may smile and smile and be a villain." Modern culture and the Haifan Baha'i interpretation has lost that too often that realization, disarming the young especially...

Well, you're right about that. It's not incumbent on anyone else in the USA to listen to or respect fundamentalist Christians. I concede I was expressing my own opinion. I enjoy listening to and learning from views not my own, including yours, I might add, and thank you for sharing your views and participating.

"when someone shows up at my door, claiming I /legally/ have to follow a particular religion by whatever name or else, then there is a problem. until that time, its a non-issue for me."

Here's what history shows: If you wait that long, it's too late...

Think of Christianity, since you mention it. Is there only ONE denomination? No. Catholic, Protestant, Baptist, etc.... Haifan Baha'is claim to be "the truth," and then have sued in the New York Supreme Court in 1941, other US courts in 1966, and the 7th US Federal Court of Northern Illinois in 2006 to 2010, to DEPRIVE people of their Constitutional rights, receiving a corrupt judgment in 1966 that actually led to one Baha'i denomination's demise. That's a radically different and more serious scenario that you suggest. Far from not happening, it did happen.

Further, the suppression of free speech and conscience has taken place wherever on the Internet the Haifan Baha'is, following the Shiite Islamic doctrines re-introduced into it by Shoghi Effendi, that it has had effectively control of the forum in its hands. There's a decades-long database of these incidents available, again, at

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship>

Have you read Orthodox Baha'i Jeffery Goldberg's Personal Reflections on the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i lawsuits in US Federal Courts from 2006 to 2011?

<https://www.truebahai.com/2011/04/personal-reflections.html>

"it is fair to say they are nice people ( at least to me)."

They want to convert you, but while doing so, they're not about to tell you the actual history of what happened in the United States of America, mostly, during the crucial decades of Bahai development, because they themselves don't know it.... They're been lied to and brainwashed into a Shiite Iranian schism, while thinking they have the "truth."

As analogy, many Catholics burning Englishmen at the stake in the 1500s were otherwise "nice" people; so were Marxists sending millions to their death in the Soviet gulag, Cambodia aparatchiks... etc. Hence, freedom of speech and conscience are important for the cause of truth and the stability of a civilization worthy of the name. The internal affairs of all such organizations are therefore important for the whole society.

"Fundamentalist Christians" are our fellow citizens and have the right to their conscience as well. If we are not to stigmatize and dismiss, depriving them of their rights, it is incumbent upon us also to respect them, listen to them, and try to understand them too, as with all opinions.

I did ask a big question. The Orthodox Baha'i page I referred you to demonstrates just how important and "big" my question actually is. I invite you again to read it and reflect on what the "nice people" you think well of are **actually** doing to your fellow US citizens behind your back...

I welcome your questions, respect, and have tried my best to help you understand that there are several Bahai denominations. You apparently only know what one of them wants you to know.

Now what you need to do is really understand the first three volumes, up to Abdul-Baha's death in November of 1921.

What the Haifan Baha'is have always concealed from you through slander and distortions of history, can be found in brief at

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant
<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant
https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Dr. C. (Charles) Ainsworth Mitchell. Report on the Writing Shown on the Photographs of the Alleged Will of Abdul-Baha. 1930. Certified Copy from the Library of Congress.
https://www.reformbahai.org/CAMitchell\_Report.html

Ruth White in the 1920s, along with hundreds of Bahais, realized the will and testament was forgery. Her books are especially important for documenting beyond Star of the West what really happened when Abdul-Baha died:
https://www.reformbahai.org/Ruth\_White.html

Ruth White, Bahai Leads Out of the Labyrinth.
Universal Publishing Company, 1944. 259 pages.
<https://www.reformbahai.org/WhiteBLLOL.pdf>

Ruth White. Abdul Baha's Questioned Will and Testament.
Beverly Hills: White, 1946.
<https://www.reformbahai.org/WhiteABQWT.pdf>

You ask fair questions and so first I'll ask you one and then answer:

Have you read Orthodox Baha'i Jeffery Goldberg's Personal Reflections on the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i lawsuits in US Federal Courts from 2006 to 2011? The Baha'is you refer to as "so happy, and nice"?
<https://www.truebahai.com/2011/04/personal-reflections.html>

I urge you to consider who and what the people you think of as "Baha'is" really are and who is provoking whom.

The Reform Bahai message in brief is available at About the Reform Bahai Faith
<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

"it's called the independent investigation of truth and for those who have decided to try for dialogue with me here, remember, you are violating your own covenant by trying!"

Quintessential hypocrisy... since Haifan Baha'is don't practice "independent investigation of truth," but smug self-righteousness and sanctimony, as noted in this thread by others, and all over the Internet, richly documented at The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship>

If you or any other brainwashed Haifan Bahai "don't want dialogue," I suggest you try not insulting other American citizens with your fanaticism and stupidity.

If you decide you want to actually independently investigate the truth, I suggest you read the three volumes of Star of the West available online at Google, from 1910 to 1921. They clearly show that you and other Haifans are following a false document.

Unlike you and your fellow cult members, Reform Bahais follow Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant
<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

I suggest you read if you can de-program yourself long enough to do so...

Trying to practice the virtue of humility and the associated quality of being able to laugh at one's self, I think it's funny. It might be like some Jewish or Polish jokes, it helps if you're one.

I respect the allusion to silence.

I'll help you out, since one comes to mind and you volunteered several for other religions and Bahai, kindly meant, as yours doubtlessly were. Thinking of other comments of yours on Quakerism, & short:

The Inner Light has turned to shit...

Equally applicable to other forms of "liberalism," I would say, some more so than others.

For those who missed the context, posted by flashbanding at <https://www.soulpancake.com/question/59229/what-do-people-on-soulpancake-think-of-the-recent-us-7th-district-court-ruling-for-the-third-time-against-wilmette-bahais.html>

Some Religious Truths

TAOISM: Shit happens

ZEN BUDDHISM: What is the sound of shit happening?

PROTESTANTISM: Let shit happen to someone else

ATHEISTS: Shit happens for no apparent reason

HARE KRISHNA: Shit happens/ Shit happens/ Happens, happens/ Shit happens

CONFUCIANISM: Confucius says: "Shit happens"

HINDUISM: This shit happened before

CATHOLICISM: If shit happens you deserve it

AGNOSTICS: Facts happen

EVANGELISTS: Send me £8 million or shit will happen to you

BUDDHISM: If shit happens, it isn't really shit

ISLAM: If shit happens it is the will of Allah

JUDAISM: Why does shit always happen to us?

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS: Only good shit happens

JEHOVA'S WITNESSES: Let us in and we will tell you why shit happens and BAHAI'S: All the shit happeneth in unpoetic scriptural harmony

"I'm glad you recognize this about Islam. Do you also recognize that EVERY version of the Baha'i faith views the Qu'ran (Islam's book) as having been inspired by God? Therefore, aren't Baha'is who follow the "thinking of Islam" just following their religion?"

Thanks for commenting. I think you're asking some excellent questions. All of the 9 to 10 Bahai denominations do indeed recognize the Quran as "inspired by God." The crucial point I would make is that Baha'u'llah, as a later prophet or Manifestation after Muhammad, had *removed from the Book* all of the Islamic teachings that lead to misunderstanding and violence, which still obviously lead to our current world problems. Similarly, Abdul-Baha had affirmed his father's teaching, moving further away from the Islamic heritage of the Bahai Faith, during his travels and talks, as well as writings from about 1910 until his death in 1921.

Unfortunately, Shoghi Effendi and his power-hungry family forged a false will and testament for Abdul-Baha, which gave them control of the material assets of the faith and turned the main body of Bahais who followed them like sheep back to the Iranian Shiite branch of Islam. That criminal act of forgery is what has hamstrung the Bahai Faith, corrupting the pristine interpretation of Abdul-Baha, which was a wide embrace, open, and universal. Many Bahais have seen this experience as analogous to the Donation of Constantine in Christianity, even way back in the 1920s.

Here are the relevant words of Baha'u'llah:

XXXI

It is sanctioned that all the nations of the world consort with each other with joy and fragrance. Consort ye, O people, with the people of all religions with joy and fragrance. We have said—and our saying is truth—Consort with all the people of religions with joy and fragrance. Through this Utterance whatever was the cause of foreignness, discord and disunion has been removed.

LXXII

The deniers and contradictors hold to four words:

First: Destroying men's lives.

Second: Burning the books.

Third : Shunning other nations.

Fourth: Exterminating other nations.

Now, by the Grace and Authority of the Word of God, these four great barriers have been demolished. These four manifest decrees have been effaced from the Book, and God hath changed brutal manners into spiritual qualities."

(FROM The Universal Principles of the Reform Bahai Faith. Baha'u'llah & Abdul-Baha 148 pages. Ebook Edition 2010 ePub, Kindle The Reform Bahai Press

https://www.reformbahai.org/Reform\_Bahai\_Press.html

So to return to your question, I would say the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is, and the 5 denominations that follow the fraudulent will and testament of 1921, most of them without knowing it, are indeed following the teachings of the Quran, as you suggest, and I have I clarified--i.e., the worst teachings, the ones that Baha'u'llah Himself had "effaced," "removed" from the Book, i.e., the Quran! By analogy from the entire corpus of the Bahai Writings...

The Haifans following that type of fanatical thing out of Islam have wrought all of the abominations of lawsuits, coercion of conscience, censorship, and so forth as documented online. Google "Baha'i censorship" for details.

Hope this helps.

Incidentally, I was willing to laugh at myself and all things Bahai after your "shit" jokes on another thread, but you still haven't answered my request for how you'd describe your fellow Quakers. Does your sense of humor only run in one direction, over the rainbow?

I wrote:

LOLz... You left one out... REFORM BAHAI FAITH: Shit happened in the past; wake up and smell what you're sitting in.. It occurs to me you left out another one... Please share with us your version for your fellow QUAKERS...

<https://www.soulpancake.com/question/59229/what-do-people-on-soulpancake-think-of-the-recent-us-7th-district-court-ruling-for-the-third-time-against-wilmette-bahais.html>

wrote "@Your_Fellow_Felon what a sad little person you are"

That type of personal attack and derision is very typically of Wilmette Baha'is who often conceal their hypocrisy from the general American public. The evidence is all over the Internet, much of it archived for those who want to read and decide for themselves on

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship>

My "patronising approach," as you phrase it, was what John Milton called "righteous indignation," if memory serves, against a tyrannical popery that crushed the English people. The Wilmette-Haifan cult has done exactly that for decades, as the Orthodox Baha'i lawyer Jeffery Goldberg makes clear in his Personal Reflections, <https://www.truebahai.com/2011/04/personal-reflections.html>

Mell exuded the derision and contempt that Haifans regularly use against any dissenting voice, and, indeed, have done so for decades. Anyone wishing to confirm my allegation can so easily by merely skimming the many incidents over the decades that are documented on The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship>

Interesting that you're playing good cop, bad cop...

That's uncalled for and below the belt. Attacking people, instead of ideas, is known as ad hominem, "against the person."

Instead of exhibiting the manner in which the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i organization teaches its members to treat people with different opinions, please rise above it, especially if you're American who ought to extend respect and tolerance to other citizens.

Let me add that "Your_Fellow_Felon" is only noticing what others have on Soulpancake, and elsewhere for that matter, about many Baha'is--a tendency to a very legalistic mindset that tends to sanctimony, a trait long thought by many religions to one that leads spiritual sterility. "Your_Fellow_Felon" has as much to his opinion as you do to yours.

Well, you make a lot of good points and in general I fully agree with you. The problem for all of the several Bahai denominations that now exist is that the Wilmette Baha'is think they have the exclusive truth or interpretation to the point that commit actions that run counter to the Constitutional rights of other Bahais who happen to be citizens of the United States of America.

"So, is the NSA trying to make it /law/ that everybody has to believe the same way?"

Yes, is the short answer. That's exactly what the Wilmette nsa was trying to do in the 7th District US Federal Court of Northern Illinois. It sued three different Baha'i denominations that believe they, individually, are the rightful successors to Shoghi Effendi, who died in 1957.

In 1966, the Wilmette Baha'is had actually succeeded in getting a US judge in making it illegal for the Orthodox Baha'i Faith under a man named Mason Remey from practicing in the United States. Fortunately, the recent Court just overturned that judgment, protecting the religious freedom of all the various Bahai denominations. The Orthodox Baha'i lawyers describes it all better than my brief description on his blog, if interested: <https://www.truebahai.com/2011/04/personal-reflections.html>

I believe he's right, though, in realizing it won't end there. The Wilmette Baha'is have been heavily indoctrinated for decades into a very cult-like mentality that isolates Baha'is from other opinions, whether other Baha'is or friends and family. Historically speaking, part of the problem is that in 1921 the Baha'i Faith at the time was taken over by Shoghi Effendi who turned it back towards the Iranian Shiite thinking of Islam, which is very fanatical and intolerant. Most American Wilmette Baha'i converts don't even know about those developments and are isolated from finding out by many reprehensible control tactics.

So, the problem is a very serious one even for the United States, broadly, as the US Federal Courts realized, I think. What people in the US tend to think of as "Baha'i" has two very different faces and realities, the worst side carefully hidden from the public and converts.

@Your Fellow Felon The lawyer for the three Baha'i denominations that was sued by the Wilmette Baha'is, which was trying to destroy them, doesn't use your exact words but seems to basically agree with you...

Jeffery Goldberg, Personal Reflections on the Baha'i lawsuits in US Federal Courts from 2006 to 2011. April 29, 2011

<https://www.truebahai.com/2011/04/personal-reflections.html>

Why do you think what you do?

Why does Baha'i feel like a cult?

Flippantly, I would say, because it is... more seriously, rather, because the *denomination* that most people think of as the "Baha'i Faith" is based on a fraudulent will and testament that was passed off in 1921 as having been written by Abdul-Baha. The forged document was used by Shoghi Effendi and other power-hungry Baha'is of the time to completely change the entire tenor and direction of the Bahai Movement as clearly taught by Abdul-Baha during his entire lifetime and travels throughout Europe and the United States, even right up to his death in 1921.

After his publicly recorded speeches and addresses, the Star of the West the best record of what Abdul-Baha's actually taught. His Address Upon the Covenant of 1912 was, and still is, for the Reform Bahai Faith, the Authentic Covenant, which was the one universally recognized by the early Bahais until 1921. You can read it for yourself at

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

And see An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Hope this helps.

Quaker or Baha'i?

As recorded in Abdul-Baha in London, it is up to the individual to define his or her relationship to the Bahai Cause. Abdul-Baha himself had said, "You can be a Bahai-Christian, a Bahai-Freemason, a Bahai-Jew, a Bahai-Muhammadan. The number nine contains eight, and seven, and all the other numbers, and does not deny any of them. Do not distress or deny anyone by saying 'He is not a Bahai!' He will be known by his deeds" (98).

The other Bahai denominations have suppressed this and other public statements by Abdul-Baha to serve their more authoritarian interpretations of his vision of Baha'u'llah's Faith for the modern world. Reform Bahais don't believe they meant to recreate a medieval Catholic Church or other such tyranny.

"Christian-Bahai" worked for Abdul-Baha. Who is qualified to second guess your own conscience?

About the Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

So, SP Crew... Is this a Baha'i site, or isn't it?

Since Alison mentions the Reform Bahai Faith, let me say that anyone interested in know more about it might find the following pages helpful:

About the Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

Abdu'l-Baha's Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Bahai regards.

Baha'i's of Baha'u'llah!

"Rainn Wilson is only one of many makers and contributors to this site - as many who are involved have already testified - it was never intended to be any such thing as a Baha'i site.

you can't really even claim an exclusive thread - that's just not the way any of these open membership types of chat board sites work..."

I believe that's an accurate statement about Soulpancake. The exclusivism that Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is often claim here on it, though, seems highly revealing to me. I've noticed other people have remarked on this kind of thing on Soulpancake, for example, Alison at

<https://www.soulpancake.com/question/27402/so-sp-crew-is-this-a-bahai-site-or-isnt-it.html>

What is a Baha'i's view on Caputo's View of Religion?

I haven't read Caputo's On Religion, but I'll make a note of his work. Might be something worth checking out. Thanks. On the level of unity, Unity, I would say I agree with you, regarding Sai Baba and other spiritual teachers. It's more on the level, levels, of the claims made by Baha'ullah and Abdul-Baha that distinguishes the Bahai Teachings from someone like Sai Baha, the global scope of teachings appropriate for a spiritual life in modern society, in its plenitude.

What's a good book regarding Baha'i to sink into ?

I recommend The Universal Principles of the Reform Bahai Faith - Hardcover, Soft, & Kindle Edition - (Dec. 14, 2007) by Baha'u'llah, Abdu'l-

Baha https://www.amazon.com/s/ref=nb\_sb\_noss?url=search-alias%3Daps&field-keywords=universal+principles+of+the+reform+bahai+faith

The Universal Principles of the Reform Bahai Faith collects many of the early writings of Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l-Baha, published in the West, seeking to restore and preserve their vision of the oneness of God, humanity, and all religions. In addition to all of the 1912 Universal Principles of the Bahai Movement, the book includes Baha'u'llah's Hidden Words, selections known as the Spirit of the Age, an address by Abdu'l-Baha at the Friends' Meeting House in London in 1913, and many Bahai prayers for community and individual worship and meditation. Though beginning in 2004, the Reform Bahai Faith traces its origin to the early Bahais Ruth White, Mirza Ahmad Sohrab, and Julie Chanler, who sought to preserve the Teachings of Abdu'l-Baha after his passing in 1921. They and other early American Bahais understood the Bahai Faith was being turned into an oppressive organization, under what the British Museum document expert Dr. C. Ainsworth Mitchell judged to be a fraudulent will and testament. Baha'u'llah, the Founder of the Bahai Faith, believed in and taught a moderate, universal religion, grounded in a separation of church and state, not a theocracy, and members of the Reform Bahai Faith seek to recover and renew that saving vision for all humanity. The newcomer to the Bahai Teachings will find here a brief but eloquent and inspiring introduction to the Faith of Baha'u'llah, while people already familiar with it will find a refreshing breeze has returned to revivify and uplift the spirit. This book marks the first publication of the Reform Bahai Press, which will publish several more titles during the next few years.

What is the Baha'i Faith?

In principle I agree with you, and then think of the many authoritarian organizations, political and otherwise, like the former USSR and China today. Are or were they "civilized human beings"? Imprisoning and murdering millions?

Many millions have had bitter experience with such organizations. To me, the moral then, is what is the thinking and teachings of any organization? I don't believe they should be taken at face value without rigorous thought and examination.

Oh, I want to ask too, how does that kind of fanaticism make it a "Very peaceful religion"?

"It is based on the spiritual unity of all people. Very peaceful religion."

Does that include Bahais of the several other Bahai denominations? The ones that Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is have been suing in the US Federal Courts during the last three or four years? The lawsuits that the Federal Courts have rejected THREE TIMES?

Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals
Public Access to Oral Argument recordings,
Opinions, Unpublished Orders, and other selected case materials
<https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306>

Furhter details about the lawsuits at

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/>

Baha'i, a bad thing?

I've had several experiences where people respond that the Baha'i Faith is a cult when I tell them I'm a member of the Reform Bahai Faith, even though Reform Bahais don't believe in the 1921 forged will of Abdul-Baha, following his authentic 1912 Covenant.

So I think it's "a bad thing" that the Wilmette Haifan Bahais conceal and suppress the actual history of Abdul-Baha's speaking in the United States, as well as the publication of the 1912 Covenant in the Star of the West, the early Bahai magazine.

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Are you a Baha'i?

Non-Bahais who would like the historical background to the discussion of this thread might find the following website helpful, especially some of the articles marked "Essential Readings":

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship>

I would urge anyone seeking to understand any of the several Bahai denominations to reflect on the experience of the early Bahais Ruth White, Mirza Ahamd Sohrab, Julie Chanler, and the work of the British Museum document expert Dr. Ainsworth Mitchell, who judged in 1930 the purported will and testament of Abdul-Baha forgery.

The relevant links are

About the Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

Abdu'l-Baha's Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Again, none of that is to dwell on the negative; it's to recognize the inescapable importance of an accurate understanding of the events of the past, the buried and suppressed past of the Bahai Movement, which the vast majority of its members are woefully unaware of, kept unaware of.

Only then can one begin to understand the phenomenon of a denomination that has several times sued in court members of other Bahai denominations since the early 1940s. Only then can one begin to recover the actual Interpretation of Abdul-Baha, in and for the modern world.

The problem for Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is really goes back to the Shiite Islamic thinking that Shoghi Effendi reinstituted, despite Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha repudiating it, in my opinion. The US Court of Appeals has rejected it THREE times, yet Haifans continue to pretend they have the soul truth of all of Bahai history, human history, even...

Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha respected the freedom of conscience of the soul that God bestowed on the individual. It's clear which Baha'i denomination seeks to deprive its followers of that, a fact which all the recent lawsuits of the corrupted Haifan administration also proclaims to the entire population of the United States of America, and, indeed, the world. How right those Courts were to utterly reject their attempts to destroy other Bahai denominations! THREE TIMES!!!

Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals

Public Access to Oral Argument recordings,

Opinions, Unpublished Orders, and other selected case materials

<https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306>

Bahai regards.

The Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.ReformBahai.org>

I respect your conscience. I can only say I don't share it. And state candidly what my own views are and why. I have done that extensively... I understand and acknowledge people of good will can think other than I do. As a Bahai since 1976, I doubt I'm unfamiliar with the wide variety of allegations, from various viewpoints, on the figures of the Faith.

Chained? Presupposes an exclusive Truth. I don't believe that's what Abdul-Baha was really about...

I am not one who has advocated "revenge." What would it be? No, only the "truth shall set you free." It's that perspective that the Reform Bahai Faith is about. Skim around our website for a better sense.

The Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.ReformBahai.org>

With eyes open? I suppose you're thinking of independent investigation of truth? Definitely. Abdul-Baha never taught that one should stop search for truth once one becomes a Baha'i, quite the opposite, unlike what the Haifans have come to accept under Shoghi Effendi's fascist imposition of "obedience."

My certainty is one of belief, but one based on actual documents. The Haifan will and testament was NEVER probated or authenticated. Abdul-Baha's 1912 Covenant was delivered in public in New York City, and republished in Star of the West at least four times prior to 1921 and in a separate pamphlet edition that all early Bahais knew of and read. Dr. Mitchell was one of the leading document experts of the first half of the 20th Century. His original Report is available through the Library of Congress. A PDF of it is available on the Reform Bahai Faith website under Early Reform Bahais, etc., etc...

Respectfully, with brotherly love.

Well, with human beings involved, history is always a test for the individual and collective soul/souls... It seems the Divine Being wants it that way.

"This persistent schism demeans your beautiful faith."

The irony is that the perpetrators of schism were actually, as irrefutably documented historical fact, Shoghi Effendi and his corrupt, materialistic family. They who have demeaned Abdul-Baha's open, liberal, universal Interpretation of Baha'u'llah's Teachings, bringing them in line with the modern 20th Century and especially the Western world, has actually been the Wilmette, Haifan Baha'is, though deceived and brainwashed into thinking otherwise.

Religious history is rife with such ironies.

Thanks for responding. I would say the future and present cannot be confronted without an understanding of the past, one based on actual events, history. Distorted history, secular or religious, produces sundry felonies and crimes... I am far from the first human being to confront such abysmal realities.

I would like to think I have written extensively, and suggested as much in this thread. The following links quite fully, and in detail, the actual history that took place during Abdul-Baha's last decade, thoroughly documented in the Star of the West, which the Haifans have always tried to sweep under the carpet.

The relevant links are

About the Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

Abdu'l-Baha's Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Beyond all of that, I would urge anyone seeking to understand any of the several Bahai denominations to reflect on the experience of the early Bahais Ruth White, Mirza Ahamd Sohrab, Julie Chanler, and the work of the British Museum document expert Dr. Ainsworth Mitchell, who judged in 1930 the purported will and testament of Abdul-Baha forgery.

Again, none of that is to dwell on the negative; it's to recognize the inescapable importance of an accurate understanding of the events of the past, the buried and suppressed past of the Bahai Movement, which the vast majority of its members are woefully unaware of, kept unaware of.

Only then can one begin to understand the phenomenon of a denomination that has several times sued in court members of other Bahai denominations since the early 1940s. Only then can one begin to recover the actual Interpretation of Abdul-Baha, in and for the modern world.

Thanks for saying so. As you probably understand, many non-Bahais looking in on this thread wouldn't be able to see through some of negative intimations made by some Haifan Bahais here.

Sad, to see fellow Americans doing this kind of thing... sort of like the Puritans chasing Roger Williams and others into the wilderness. Many of them felt they **were** Puritans.

The problem for Haifan Baha'is really goes back to the Shiite Islamic thinking that Shoghi Effendi reinstituted, despite Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha repudiating it, in my opinion. The US Court of Appeals has rejected it THREE times, yet Haifans continue to pretend they have the soul truth of all of Bahai history, human history, even...

Abdul-Baha's authentic 1912 Covenant should not be confused, if you don't mind my making the distinction, with the so-called will and testament of 1921.

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

You seem to imply you're the only one on earth entitled to be "sad" and that somehow puts you in the right or in possession of the truth. I feel sad that fellow American citizens are so deceived and brainwashed by the Haifan machine fraudulently created and imposed by Shoghi Effendi and his corrupt family, in 1921, that still after all these decades, like some followers of other religions and various denominations, they blindly and unquestioningly follow the fanatical distortions that depart from the Interpretation that Abdul-Baha clearly gave the early Bahais of the West, as recorded and documented in the Star of the West, for all truth seekers to read and evaluate for themselves. Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha respected the freedom of conscience of the soul that God bestowed on the individual. It's clear which Baha'i denomination seeks to deprive its followers of that, a fact which all the recent lawsuits of the corrupted Haifan administration also proclaims to the entire population of the United States of America, and, indeed, the world. What a pathetic spectacle that the Haifans have dragged the Name of the Blessed Beauty through the mud of the US Federal Courts! How right those Courts were to utterly reject their attempts to destroy other Bahai denominations! THREE TIMES!!! Bahais of other denominations have as much right as any other US citizen to participate in this forum online and share their conscience and views with other Bahais and non-Bahais. It should be clear to any objective citizen reading the actual history of the practices and behavior of Wilmette and Haifan Baha'is here on Soul Pancake and elsewhere online what their methods have actually been. That's the wonderful thing about freedom of conscience and democracy, which both Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha approved of. As I've mentioned, the Courts have repeatedly upheld such principles, while the Haifans seek to impose a very corrupted interpretation of the Faith upon its unfortunate followers, the vast majority of whom are kept in the Dark... Slandering and maligning people as "covenant breakers" doesn't conceal who the real breakers and betrayers of Adul-Baha's liberal and open Interpretation of His Father's Faith really are. Reform Bahais and other fellow Bahais have as much right to post links elucidating their understanding of the Bahai Teachings as the Wilmette Baha'is, who attempt to characterize the fact as some egregious sin in order to smear and discredit people holding different views. Their tactics are obvious to thoughtful people. Further details on the actual history of the Bahai Faith may be found at The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/> Bahai regards. The Reform Bahai Faith <https://www.ReformBahai.org>

"If you really believe in IIOT (Independ.... of truth) then read the Authentic Covenant of Abdul Baha that is being presented to you by Dear Fredrick." It can be found at Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

On Soulpancake, and elsewhere, I am one more sinned against, than sinning, by your fellow Wilmette, Haifan Baha'is... as are many other Bahais of conscience... the record clearly demonstrates the fact, as does the *three* judgments by the US Federal courts. See The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship> Your suggestion to "forgive" is therefore erroneous. I've done nothing nor said anything here on Soulpancake that requires "forgiveness." As a citizen and a Bahai I've merely shared my opinions and belief. Despite the fact that I made every effort at civility and politeness, it should be evident to any fair-minded observer that a number of Wilmette Baha'is self-righteously chose to treat me in a reprehensible manner and casted aspersions of "covenant breaker" and so forth upon me. So I don't have anything to apologize for. I am the one owe a number of apologies, since you bring it up. Bahai regards.

Again, the irony is that they who are so quick to denounce their fellow citizens and Bahais as "Covenant Breakers" are actually the real covenant breakers, or I should say the deceived and brainwashed... It is characteristic of all fundamentalists interpretations, of various religions, that narrow definitions and behaviors become substitutes for the Spirit, brotherly love, respect, and so on, leading to smug self-righteousness and sanctimony on the part of adherents. Bahai regards.

As a fellow US citizen and Bahai, I respect your conscience.

It sad to witness American Baha'is, violating not only the teachings of Baha'ullah and Abdul-Baha, but the most basic tenets of the experience of the United States civic and cultural history. Fortunately, the US Federal Courts understand what a threat the spurious will and testament of Shoghi Effendi actually is, utterly rejecting the bogus Wilmette nsa's deluded claims THREE TIMES. "The Reform Bahai Faith submits to the Court that the NSA of Wilmette, while publicly hiding behind a facade of liberalism, is essentially practicing Islamic "takfir," in the words of the scholar of Islam Bernard Lewis, "recognizing and denouncing apostasy," labeling people "kafir" or infidels, and issuing "fatwas" or decrees, denying the very existence of other Bahais and denominations, all indicative of the worst in the Shiite Islamic heritage of the Bahai Faith-practices Baha'u'llah specifically rejected, teaching tolerance of different religious views congruent with modern Western custom and practice. Nothing could be more diametrically opposed to the democracy of our civic and legal order. The NSA of Wilmette is essentially seeking to use the Court in a type of jihad." Amici curiae, Reform Bahai Faith <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/USDistrictCourt07.htm>

Incidentally, here's a link to a menu of other Bahai denominations and some of the US federal courtroom documents: 9 Bahai Denominations <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/ninedenominations.htm> Also see US District Court of

Northern Illinois rules against Haifan Baha'is - April 23, 2008 Amici curiae, Reform Bahai Faith
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/USDistrictCourt07.htm>

Funny how you choose to misrepresent the pages that are printed in black and white in the Star of the West. That's entirely in line with the way the Wilmette nsa behaved in the court of Judge Amy St Eve, US District Court of Northern Illinois, and Judge Sykes of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Honest researchers who want to may also verify the Google copies with the originals that Google scanned from major US university libraries. The irony is that the real "Covenant Breakers" are the so-called "mainstream" Baha'is of Wilmette and Haifa, who forged a will and testament to acquire power, relying on slander, abuse, and court room harassment to establish their "infallibility." Reform Bahais don't follow a "second" or "third" guardian, as the Orthodox Bahais and the other Baha'i denominations that frivolously sued by your "infallible uhj," all of whom have been unfortunately deceived by the criminal acts of Shoghi Effendi and his family, the family that was so corrupt that he ended up "excommunicating" them as well as anyone else he couldn't control and manipulate. Your tactics are blatantly the same.

Here are both Star of the West volumes on Google Books: Star of the West

https://books.google.com/books?

id=rw4YAAAAYAAJ&printsec=frontcover&dq=editions:LCCN2001221986

https://books.google.com/books?

id=2A8YAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA16&dq=star+of+the+west+baha+date:0-

1923&lr=&as\_brr=1&as\_pt=ALLTYPES#PPA1,M1 Again, the relevant pages: Abdul-Baha's Address Upon the Covenant was first published in Star of the West, November 23, 1912, 9-10; again, a mere year later in Star of the West, November 23, 1913, p. 234-9; and just before his death, emphasizing the importance of the 1912 Covenant exactly when Bahais needed to recall Abul-Baha's guidance the most, in Star of the West November 23, 1921. The reader may corroborate independently this publishing history of the Address Upon the Covenant since the entire 1912 to 1913 and 1920 to 1921 volumes of Star of the West can be download directly from Google Books. For the full 1912 Authentic Covenant and analysis: Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html> An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html Star of the West https://books.google.com/books?

id=rw4YAAAAYAAJ&printsec=frontcover&dq=editions:LCCN2001221986

https://books.google.com/books?

id=2A8YAAAAYAAJ&pg=PA16&dq=star+of+the+west+baha+date:0-

1923&lr=&as\_brr=1&as\_pt=ALLTYPES#PPA1,M1 For the original pamphlet publication of the 1912 Covenant, see Bahai Teaching, 1912 Address Upon the Covenant

https://fglaysher.com/reformbahai/images/Bahai\_Teaching.pdf

The citations from Star of the West can easily be corroborated by anyone seeking the truth. Google Books has scanned the majority of the old volumes and has them online. Abdul-Baha's Address Upon the Covenant was first published in Star of the West, November 23, 1912, 9-10; again, a mere year later in Star of the West, November 23, 1913, p. 234-9; and just before his death, emphasizing the importance of the 1912 Covenant exactly when Bahais needed to recall Abul-Baha's guidance the most, in Star of the West November 23, 1921. The reader may corroborate independently this publishing history of the Address Upon the Covenant since the entire 1912 to 1913 and 1920 to 1921 volumes of Star of the West can be download directly from Google Books. https://fglaysher.com/reformbahai/images/Star\_of\_the\_West\_1912\_231-232.pdf https://fglaysher.com/reformbahai/images/Star\_of\_the\_West\_1913\_523-529.pdf https://fglaysher.com/reformbahai/images/Star\_of\_the\_West\_Nov\_23-1921.pdf https://books.google.com/books?

id=rw4YAAAAYAAJ&printsec=frontcover&dq=editions:0kRTYJKkYea-uBuZ8EC Why would you make such false allegations? As many Bahais have testified to, the tactics Wilmette and Haifan Bahais use are reprehensible. Documentation of the actual practice and behavior of Haifan Baha'is, instead of propaganda, can be found at The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/> A false will and testament, *forged*, never probated or authenticated, is NOT guidance. It's a crime. That people are brainwashed into believing in it doesn't change the fact. Nor does the deriding of other Bahai denominations by the Haifans, nor trying to destroy them through lawsuits in Federal courts. The Federal judges were NOT deceived.... Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals

<https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306>

Here's a review of Udo Schaefer's book by Denis MacEoin, an outstanding British scholar: Reviewed by Denis MacEoin, Dursley, Newcastle. June 2001: Udo Schaefer, Nicola Towfigh, and Ulrich Gollmer (contribs.), Making the Crooked Straight: A Contribution to Bahá'í Apologetics, trans. from German by Dr. Geraldine Schuckelt, 2000, George Ronald, Oxford, 863 pp. <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/MacEoinRev.htm>

"Making the Crooked Straight": A false and bogus reading... Here are the citations: Abdul-Baha's Address Upon the Covenant was first published in Star of the West, November 23, 1912, 9-10; again, a mere year later in Star of the West, November 23, 1913, p. 234-9; and just before his death, emphasizing the importance of the 1912 Covenant exactly when Bahais needed to recall Abul-Baha's guidance the most, in Star of the West November 23, 1921. The reader may corroborate independently this publishing history of the Address Upon the Covenant since the entire 1912 to 1913 and 1920 to 1921 volumes of Star of the West can be download directly from Google Books. <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

Actually, the old lie that has been promulgated is that of the purported will and testament of 1921. Ruth White and other early Bahais heard for themselves what Abdul-Baha repeatedly said in public and what WAS repeatedly published in the pages of the Star of the West prior to 1921. I invite people to read and decide for themselves, either through Google Books or the Reform Bahai Faith website: <https://www.ReformBahai.org> The Britannica statistics are bogus, as has been widely realized by many Bahais and others. For those interested in corroborating the fact for themselves see, False Membership Statistics for US Baha'i community & elsewhere <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/FalseStats.htm> or Ontario Consultants on Religious Tolerance <https://www.religioustolerance.org/>

Not at all mistaken. Your grandmother was apparently deceived like many early Bahais. All of the exact citations and copies of the original pages are available at this link: An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html Again, too, is the publication of his Address Upon the Covenant: Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant was published repeatedly in the Star of the West between 1912 and 1921. It was universally acknowledged by the early Bahais. Only with the fraudulent will and testament of Shoghi Effendi was it shunted aside, leading to a thousand to two thousand Bahais leaving during the 1920s and '30s. Many knew Abdul-Baha, heard him deliver his Address Upon the Covenant in public, and that his Interpretation of Baha'u'llah's Teachings was being corrupted by Shoghi Effendi and his cabal. A copy may be found at the following link: Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html> Ruth White's books document and discuss those events: Abdul Baha's Questioned Will and Testament. Beverly Hills: White, 1946. https://www.reformbahai.org/Ruth\_White.html Bahai regards.

I invite you to read all of the Star of the West prior to Abdul-Baha's passing in 1921, with an independently open, truth-searching mind. For details, see, An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Since the putative will and testament of Abdul-Baha of 1921 was never probated or authenticated, the ideas you express are actually based on blind, unquestioning belief, not historical fact. I invite you and other Baha'is who think like you to consider: Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant <https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html> An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html Please note that much of the thinking you advance as the truth has been expressly rejected by the US Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, Case No. 08-2306: Opinion, Judge Sykes, p 14-15: "Considered in light of these First Amendment limitations on the court's authority, certain aspects of the 1966 injunction are troubling. The decree declares that "there is only one Baha'i

Faith," that Shoghi Effendi was its last Guardian and none has come since, and the National Spiritual Assembly was its representative and "highest authority" in the United States and was "entitled to exclusive use of the marks and symbols of the Faith," including the exclusive use of the word "Bahá'í." Declarations of this sort push the boundaries of the court's authority under Kedroff and Presbyterian Church. In church property disputes (trademark suits obviously qualify), the First Amendment limits the sphere in which civil courts may operate. When a district judge takes sides in a religious schism, purports to decide matters of spiritual succession, and excludes dissenters from using the name, symbols, and marks of the faith (as distinct from the name and marks of a church), the First Amendment line appears to have been crossed" (boldface added). <https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306> The people causing the dissension are the ones who created a fraudulent will and testament and then brainwashed Americans and others for decades into believing in it. Bahai regards.

What is this Baha'i stuff that's all over this site?

"I must confess that I know almost nothing about the Baha'i religion & it's tenants but they seem pretty peaceful and tolerant"

Thank you for saying you know "almost nothing" about the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is. Let me share with you some of the educational details that the Wilmette seek to suppress, on and off the Internet:

The US Federal Courts know a great deal about that particular Bahai denomination since the Court has rejected THREE TIMES its lawsuits against several other Bahai denominations. See the Court documents and recording at <https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306>

See the Chicago Tribune article:
Federal appeals court rules in favor of splinter Baha'i group Orthodox believers can keep calling themselves Baha'i, court says. November 25, 2010 By Manya A. Brachear, Chicago Tribune reporter.
<https://archive.chicagobreakingnews.com/2010/11/federal-appeals-court-rules-in-favor-of-splinter-bahai-group.html>

Extensive court documents available at and via
The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/>

Let me know what you think.

You're probably referring to the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i cult. It's based on a fraudulent will and testament that many early Bahais objected to, realizing it was a forgery and utterly changing the nature of the Bahai Teachings from a universal, open religion to basically an oppressive, highly hierarchical religion largely modeled on the Catholic Church.

See details at About the Reform Bahai Faith
<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant
<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant
https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

Hope this helps answer your question.

World Unity Baha'i Style

"<https://bic.org/statements-and-reports/bic-statements/09-0204.htm>

Reclaiming Freedom of Conscience, Religion or Belief to Promote Social Integration

Bahá'í International Community's Statement to the 47th Session of the United Nations Commission for Social Development

4 February 2009?New York, New York"

The fact is that the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i Faith does NOT respect "Freedom of Conscience," let alone even know what it means...

For instance, since 2006, it has repeatedly harassed and sued THREE other Baha'i denominations in US Federal Courts, seeking to deprive them of their Constitutional rights and destroy them:

Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals

Public Access to Oral Argument recordings, Opinions,

<https://www.ca7.uscourts.gov/fdocs/docs.fwx?caseno=08-2306&submit=showdkt&yr=08&num=2306>

Opinion of US 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, Case No. 08-2306 - November 23, 2010

https://fglaysheer.com/bahaicensorship/US\_7th\_Circuit\_Court\_of\_Appeals\_11-23-2010.html

Baha'i Faith & 7th Circuit Court of Appeals

<https://bahaifaith7thcircuitcourtofappeals.blogspot.com>

Most Baha'is are probably unaware of the extent to which the "administration" that runs the Haifan denomination practices censorship and a fascist "world order," and has done so for decades...

For more details, see The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysheer.com/bahaicensorship/>

Your_Fellow_Felon, I think Baha'is are a fucking pain in the ass to tell you the truth.

Bahai Faith on South Park

They'd explore how gullible Americans and other people came to believe in a will and testament that was declared fraudulent by the leading document expert of the British Museum in 1930, causing them repudiate the most basic democratic experience of their own nation and much of human civilization in favor of an oppressive would-be utopia... Lot of room for humor in that!!!

Dr. C. (Charles) Ainsworth Mitchell. Report on the Writing Shown on the Photographs of the Alleged Will of Abdul-Baha. 1930. Certified Copy from the Library of Congress.

https://www.reformbahai.org/CAMitchell\_Report.html

Why isn't the Baha'i and Unitarian Universalist Faiths more popular?

"Baha'ullah was quite clear in His Tablet of the Holy Mariner that His Faith would suffer division" Is there a link to this that I could add to my record for future discussion? thanks"

It's a highly poetic work, not a treatise: Tablet of the Holy Marine

www.omphaloskepsis.com/ebooks/pdf/mariner.pdf

"i've also approached a discussion asking Haifan Bahai's on their view on these division however they imperviously insist that ONLY they are Bahai and no other."

See my A Response to Takfir

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/apostates.htm>

& then 9 Bahai Denominations

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/ninedenominations.htm>

"My pointy was that all accept Bahau'llah as the founder yet you deny them. Their reply: I should believe what I want and that they go with what UJ prescribes and they also mentioned that those who do not accept Shoghi Affendi has broken the covenant. Its sad to see that people are that petty in there answers when the whole idea is about global unity."

Blind faith is like that. Baha'u'llah and Adul-Baha has repeatedly urge independent investigation of truth, but the spurious Haifan will and testament basically reversed their teachings and returned to Shiite fanaticism, "Takfir," the naming and denouncing of "infidels," which is a very convenient interpretation or spin when one has falsified a document in order to acquire power wealth.

Not interested in Youtube.

Hope this helps.

Acutally, you say, "Bahai claims no denominations or divisions or splits," but ONLY the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'i denomination makes that claim. All of the several Bahai denominations think otherwise. Baha'ullah was quite clear in His Tablet of the Holy Mariner that His Faith would suffer division but would eventually recover. Reform Bahais believe they are that recovery, and are representing Abdul-Baha's publicly delivered Interpretation of his Father's Teachings, unlike the Haifans who seek to scare people away from the relevant documents through fear, slander, and forgery.

Since you ask, see Reform Bahai Declarations

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Declare.html>

Hope this helps.

"Are you saying that the Bahai Faith and the Universal House of Justice is not what was intended?"

Yes, not intended by Abdul-Baha who was appointed by Baha'u'llah as his Interpreter and the Center of the Covenant. Abdul-Baha brought the Bahai teachings into the modern, Western world, so his interpretation is essential since he adapted his father's teachings, adjusting them here and there, *universalizing* them in many ways, leaving significantly behind some of the culturally bound Islamic overtones. It was the fraudulent will and testament after his death that actually even reverted back past Baha'u'llah himself to much of the worst in the Shiite tradition. Much of the trouble with the Haifan Baha'i Faith is due to that these facts, which they've bent every effort for decades to suppress.

Abdul-Baha paradoxically emphasized on a number of occasions that the Bahai Faith cannot be organized, while discussing and explaining how on a moderate level it could, largely what he called "spiritual democracy," with separation of church and state, largely local control, not an over-arching imitation of the Catholic Church structure. The early Bahais of the 1920s were all shocked when the Haifans started going off in that direction because they had heard him speak for more than a decade about a very different social religious form.

You're quite right that Mason Remey and other early Bahais are often the victims of "name calling," "covenant breaker" allegations, etc., basic slander techniques to discredit them. The irony it is actually the Haifan Baha'is who broke Abdul-Baha's very simple, open 1912 Covenant, which he delivered in public and which was widely recognized for nearly a decade prior to his death. Under Early Reform Bahais are a number of people who understood much of this was taking place too.

Most American Haifan Baha'is have simply been deceived and brainwashed into believing the Haifan version and accepting the fanaticism of "covenant breaking" and so on. In my view, the Orthodox Baha'i Faith and the other denominations that believe there was a successor to Shoghi Effendi, whom the Haifans think of as a "guardian," right out of Shiism's imamate tradition, are unfortunately also impacted by the forged document of 1921.

Best wishes,

Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.ReformBahai.org>

"But for me to understand Unity I would need to understand what caused/causes disunity. My find (like millions out there) has led me to the root cause...organized religion. Is the statement (above) of Bahaulla not saying the same thing?"

Abdul-Baha, Baha'u'llah's son and appointed interpreter, emphasized that the Bahai Movement was not about organization:

"The Bahai Movement is not an organization. You cannot organize the Bahai Movement. The Bahai Movement is the spirit of the age. It is the essence of all the highest ideals of this century. The Bahai Cause is an inclusive movement. The teachings of all religions and societies are found here. Christians, Jews, Buddhists, Mohammadans, Zoroastrians, Theosophists, Freemasons, Spiritualists, etc., find their highest aims in this Cause. Socialists and philosophers find their theories fully developed in this movement."

Abdul-Baha placed the emphasis on spiritual cultivation of an "attitude" toward life. After his death in 1921, members of his family forged a supposed will and testament that in fact dramatically changed the whole nature and focus of what has become known as the "Baha'i Faith." From the very beginning after his death, there were Bahais who recognized what was taking place and spoke out and wrote about it.

Here are some pages that discuss Abdul-Baha's 1912 Covenant, delivered in public, not supposedly buried and hidden underground for years as with what the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is.

Abdu'l-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

<https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant.html>

An Analysis of Abdul-Baha's 1912 Authentic Covenant

https://www.reformbahai.org/Covenant\_comments.html

To followers of the Baha'i faith: What did the founder of this faith do that makes him the one that we all were waiting for?

Those seeking the truth about the Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is might also want to take into account the Opinion of the US Federal Court of the 7TH District:

Opinion of US 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, Case No. 08-2306 - November 23, 2010

https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorsip/US\_7th\_Circuit\_Court\_of\_Appeals\_11-23-2010.html

Baha'i Faith & 7th Circuit Court of Appeals

<https://bahaifaith7thcircuitcourtofappeals.blogspot.com>

"What I am truly wondering though is that if he was the universal prophet or teacher, why did he not travel further to spread his teachings? Also if he is what the prophecies are fulfilling, then how long do you think it will take for the major religions to adopt this? I mean Hinduism still accepts Buddha as an incarnation of God, but does not see Jesus as one."

He was repeatedly imprisoned and exiled but travel itself was much more difficult in the 19th Century. Baha'u'llah communicated with followers in many countries through epistles, essentially letters and his books and writings.

The history of all of the major religions demonstrate that it often took two or three centuries for the teachings of the founder to reach or evolve to a point that they began to influence the entire civilization. The process has been complicated for the Bahai teachings because of the fraudulent will and testament created by Shoghi Effendi's family in 1921. Most American Baha'is simply accept its "authenticity" on blind faith, having been deceived and brainwashed by the organization built on its distortions of what Abdul-Baha actually taught. Whenever similar distortions have happened in the past, the truth of the vision of the teacher or prophet eventually won out, sweeping the lies aside, its purity restored, reaching the people in the end.

Reform Bahais believe that the moderate, open, spiritual Interpretation of Abdul-Baha, as exhibited in the Star of the West, is happening now, and, sustained by Baha'u'llah, will continue the efflorescence of its global vision.

Many Hindus do accept Jesus as an avatar or spiritual teacher. Like all things, Hinduism can vary greatly, depending on individual understanding. Baha'u'llah promised and taught that his vision is universal, embracing and unfolding what is universal at the core of all the great religions, and was the will of God Himself for this day and age. In the view of Bahais of most of the various Bahai denominations, there is largely agreement, I think it is fair to say, that his teachings have largely in effect already become the accepted values of much of modern society.

See Some Vital Bahai Principles

https://www.reformbahai.org/Some\_Vital\_Bahai\_Principles.html

Hope this helps. Bahai regards.

About the Reform Bahai Faith

<https://www.reformbahai.org/about.html>

You're welcome. It occurs to me too that all the Bahai denominations also share the belief that Baha'u'llah taught all the great religions and traditions taught, in one form or another, that there would be a universal spiritual prophet or teacher. So Baha'u'llah is the fulfillment, to Bahais, of Biblical and Christian prophecies, as well as Buddhist, Hindu, etc.

" I am not of the Baha'i faith, but am curious as to why you feel the need for a "third testament". Also, Jesus is not just the King of the Jews. We are called /Christ/ians for a reason. :-)"

It seems to me no one has addressed your question. Attempting to draw you off into a Baha'i fireside demonstrates that the Wilmette-Haifan Bahais use Soulpancake to proselytize, basically drawing people off TV or wherever, isolating them from the nearly dozen other Bahai denominations that hold views other than their own.

I believe Baha'u'llah, the founder of the Bahai faith, teaches that humanity needs a "third testament," in a sense, because it is the will of God, not humankind. The Bible and Christian New Testament teaches a Promise One would eventually come to mankind, bringing Teachings that usher in a new age of spiritual and human development. In that sense, Baha'u'llah is the Return of Christ.

Members of the Reform Bahai Faith believe that Abdul-Baha, Baha'ullah's son, Interpreted the Teachings of his father for the modern age.

Does anyone here practice/study baha'i faith?

To answer your question, I've been a member of the Reform Bahai Faith since 1976, having known of it for a few years during which I read nearly every Bahai book that had been published up until then, along with some of the older books of Abdul-Baha's time. The latter fact helped me to realize years later that something was profoundly wrong with the Wilmette-Haifan interpretation versus Abdul-Baha's own as delivered in public all over Europe and North America.

So, when you imply "Baha'i religion," I have to say, which Bahai denomination? Google bahai denominations, if interested for more details.

"Has it helped?" It has helped me, changing for the better my entire vision of life. One of my books is actually about such things, if interested. https://books.google.com/ebooks?id=jt6vBBfmUHwC&dq=%22frederick%20glaysher%22&as\_brr=5&source=webstore\_bookcard

"It's not every day you bump into a religion that tries to heal the hatred between the muslims, jews, and christians."

It's important to realize that there are several different Bahai denominations. The Wilmette-Haifan Baha'is have in fact been expressing plenty of "hatred" toward other Bahais for many decades, suing and harassing them in the attempt to deprive them of their Constitutional rights of religious freedom and conscience:

Opinion of US 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, Case No. 08-2306 - November 23, 2010
https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/US\_7th\_Circuit\_Court\_of\_Appeals\_11-23-2010.html

Baha'i Faith & 7th Circuit Court of Appeals
<https://bahaifaith7thcircuitcourtofappeals.blogspot.com>

Why should someone convert to Baha'i?

Baha'u'llah claimed to be the Manifestation of God for this day and age. If one believes that is true, one is a Bahai.

The word "convert" is problematical to me, in a sense. It's laden with the Christian past, to my taste; nuances like that linger around it. That's all. Best.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Brief Comments on soc.religion.bahai - on Usenet

---

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:

"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."

srb84.htm

Kent Johnson:

"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."

srb61.htm

Ron House:

"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai."

srb53.htm

Timothy Mulligan:

"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."

srb59.htm

RobertNik:

"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."

srb54.htm

Bruce Burrill:

"What are Baha'i afraid of?"

srb60.htm

Zute flute:

"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."

srb50.htm

YU ZIR:

"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."

srb46.htm

Matthew Cromer:

"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with...."

srb47.htm

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:

"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."

srb77.htm

Melissa Boyer Kafes:

"For me, I have posted a couple of times on soc.religion.bahai and have gotten a couple of nasty emails...."

srb44.htm

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:

"Sorry to hear that you've been suppressed on srb. Your comments were always very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."

Ex7.htm

Harold Shinsato:

"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."

srb33.htm

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:

"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."

srb79.htm

Laeterna:

"To say I was flabberghasted at this type of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."

censored2.htm

Robin Peters:

"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."

srb43.htm

jgoldberg:

"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "

srb57.htm

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:

"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."

srb76.htm

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.

srb.htm

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

index.htm

On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Baha'i Censorship & Soc.Religion.Bahai

---

Apparently, defunct as of October, 2010. See

<https://groups.google.com/group/soc.religion.bahai/topics?hl=en&lnk=rgh>

It's not clear why the Haifans pulled the plug on soc.religion.bahai after more than a dozen years online. It's archives, however, especially the early years, suggests how fanatical Haifan Baha'is can be, which becomes all the clearer when compared to the archives for talk.religion.bahai from its creation in 1997 onward.

<https://groups.google.com/group/talk.religion.bahai/topics>

---

See also: Voices of Conscience

Larry Rowe 2006 Extensive comments on slander and shunning

Nima Hazini

K. Paul Johnson

Michael McKenny

Dermod Ryder

---

Brief Quotations from many people regarding censorship on soc.religion.bahai

---

2003

Beyond these few messages, I recommend searching Google's newsgroup server for current and archived discussion:

<https://groups.google.com/groups?hl=en&group=talk.religion.bahai>

Selected Messages for 2003

---

2002

Selected Messages for 2002

2001

Selected Messages for 2001 Prior to October

Selected Messages for 2001 Part 2 October through December

---

2000

Selected Messages for 2000

See also Selected Messages on Alison Marshall's "expulsion."

---

1999

Re: Bahai Fireside, CHRISTIAN response and rebuttal Dale Grider 8/6/99

Re: Letter of resignation Steve Marshall 7/26/99

Re: Letter of resignation pdodenhoff 7/25/99

Re: Letter of resignation pdodenhoff 7/26/99

Re: Letter of resignation Berekiah 7/26/99 & re Majnun

Re: Letter of resignation Steve Marshall 7/26/99

Help \(from a new Bahai\) 7/7/99

Re: Another Inquiring Mind pdodenhoff 6/29/99

Re: Another Inquiring Mind pdodenhoff 6/29/99

Re: Letter of resignation pdodenhoff 6/29/99

Re: Resignation Ron stephens 5/5/99

SRB censorship 3/26/99

Censored e-mail to srb 3/6/99

Re: Quote from Ruhiyyih Khanum censored by SRB Ron House 3/3/99

Re: Interesting Conversations... Robin Peters 2/24/99

Re: An apology to Fred Alison Marshall 2/10/99

Re: Universal Declaration of Human Rights and Freedom of Conscience

Milissa Boyer Kafes 2/10/99

Scent of the Bahji Rose 1/24/99

BAHAI METHODS 1/4/99

---

1998

Re: Action Alert - Easy Reward from Allah\(SWT\), EnshaAllah S. Shambashi 12/18/98

O MUSLIM! Do your duty! Afshin Afrashteh 12/17/98

Re: Why can't you....? Ruletherod 12/9/98

Re: I would post on srb but they have been censoring me since May 1998 Pease 12/5/98

Re: Reply to moderator of soc.religion.bahai Soltani 12/9/98

Re: Reply to moderator of soc.religion.bahai Soltani 12/9/98

Re: REPOST - alt.religion.bahai - FAQ Soltani 12/4/98
censorship Tomljenovic 12/3/98
Warning: soc.religion.Bahai Censures and is Biased against Muslims
Soltani 11/28/98
How Soc.Religion.Bahai Censures the truth about Bahai activities....
Soltani 11/28/98
A suggestion for a folder: Bahai Censorship Ruletherod 11/17/98 Re: fw Gibro28W Remember the function of this site. Albert Verbrugh, srb moderator 10/16/98
Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman rejects the "neutral, technical" RFD Bill Hyman, srb moderator 10/14/98
Re: The Baha'i Technique Gibro28W 10/15/98
Re: The General Idea \(is correct\) Gibro28W 10/15/98
Re: Faith doesn't harbor big egos? What's to prevent it? Gibro28W
10/14/98
Remember the function of this site. Gibro28W 10/12/98
Re: Doubt \(has different meanings to different people\). Gibro28W
10/12/98
Re: soc.religion.bahai Signatures Chess Hazlett 10/7/98
Re: Fwd: Barthaman Re Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints
LaAeterna 10/5/98
Fwd: Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints at Talisman
Barthaman on Bahai dissenters - wounded souls 10/4/98
[Re Moonies & Bahais/ \[method of silencing opponents\]](#) 10/2/98
LaAeterna
Re: Unpopular voices getting equal time.... Barthaman 10/1/98 Moderator's Notice 9/14/98 Bill Hyman? Soc.religion.bahai bans all signature files and URLs
Re: the censorship that wasn't 9/12/98 Kent Johnson
Re: fw Ron House Re: 2nd ROUGH DRAFT - RFD - talk.religion.bahai
9/7/98 Kent Johnson
Re: Fran Baker page added to web site 9/4/98 Kent Johnson
Re: The Baha'i Technique 8/29/98 Kent Johnson
[\[bahai-faith\] Another rejection by soc.religion.bahai](#) 8/21/98 Ron House
Re: Why I returned... 8/21/98 Timothy Mulligan
Re: Why I left \(expanded version\) 8/17/98 Timothy Mulligan
A Baha'i Technique 7/30/98 FG
Re: censorship RobertNik 7/30/98
Re: censorship 7/29/98 RobertNik
SRB censored msg? 7/24/98 Bruce Burrill little round with SRB moderators 7/16/98 Fran Baker
SRB censorship 7/14/98 Zutetflute
[\[bahai-faith\] Bill Hyman's specious reasoning and excuses for censorship](#)
6/27/98
Re: Freedom of Choice 6/26/98 YU ZIR
Re: soc.religion.bahai - RFD/CFV 6/24/98 Matthew Cromer
Re: Freedom of Choice 6/23/98 YU ZIR
Re: "Bahai Hate Mail" page added PRIVATE MSG 6/22/98 Milissa Boyer Kafes
adjectives and anger 6/15/98 Alison and Steve Marshall
Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED 6/11/98 Matthew Cromer

Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED 6/11/98 Matthew Cromer
Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED 6/11/98 Matthew Cromer
Bill Hyman on Bahai censorship 6/9/98 Vows in August of 1997 to censor F. Glaysher's "future postings" from srb.
Re: "Investigation" of Withdrawals \(was Leaving Faith\) 6/8/98 S. Michele Smith
Re: "Investigation" of Withdrawals \(was Leaving Faith\) 6/8/98 Rick Boatright
Re: censorship 6/8/98 Rick Boatright
Re: Ad hominem attacks? 6/8/98 Matthew Cromer
[Re: \[bahai-faith\] 1200+ hits: on "Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" in 1 month](#) 6/8/98 Harold Shinsato
Re: Bahai "art"/hate mail #2 7/8/97 webmaster@iranvision.com censored from s.r.b also on Sat, 6 Jun 1998 6/7/98 Bill Hyman Censored from S.R.B 6 Jun 1998 6/7/98 Bill Hyman
Re: SRB Forgery of my signature file 6/5/98 M_Iman@my-dejanews.com
Re: SRB censored 5-25-98 6/2/98 Maryam Butson
FW: SRB censored 5-25-98 5/31/98 Bill Hyman censors my signature file
[Re: \[bahai-faith\] SRB censored 5-25-98](#) 5/27/98
[Re: \[bahai-faith\] SRB censored 5-25-98](#) 5/27/98
Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" 5/26/98
SRB censored #2: 5-11-98 5/19/98 (Regarding William Collins' "Religious Freedom of Conscience; Liberal/Conservative")
Re: Leaving Faith 5/18/98 S. Michele Smith
SRB censored: 5-11-98 5/17/98 Rick Boatright
SRB censored #3: 5-11-98 5/11/98 Teri Rhan
Re: Leaving Faith 5/11/98 Teri Rhan
[Re: \[bahai-faith\] Leaving Faith \(fwd\)](#) 5/8/98 George & Marlena [\[bahai-faith\] Fw: Defrming to "cultural mores" \(fwd\)](#) 5/7/98 George & Marlena
[\[bahai faith\] moderators vs censors](#) 5/3/98 LaAeterna
Re: third RFD on talk.religion.bahai 1/5/98 Robin M Peters Fw: 3rd RFD sent to David Lawrence 1/4/98 Robin Peters

---

1997

Catch-22 in Faith 12/22/97 hart@lycosemail.com
Re: SRB censored: 11-21-97 11/25/97 Notarius
SRB censored: 11-21-97 11/22/97
Re: Traffic on alt.religion.bahai versus 10/30/97 Ron House
Re: Traffic on alt.religion.bahai versus 10/29/97 Ron House
Re: MY ESPERANTO MESSAGES NEVER POSTED ? THIS IS CALLED 10/17/97 john markovitch
SRB Censored: 8-22-97 \(Bern\) 8/22/97
More Bahai censorship - moderators 8/20/97
SRB Censored: 8-14-97 8/14/97
SRB Censored: 8-13-97 8/13/97
Re censorship \(from SRB\) 8/12/97 Self-censorship: SRB 7-13-97 7/14/97 (A particularly blatant example of the way srb works.)

SRB Censored: 6-12-97 6/12/97

SRB Censored: 5-22-97 5/23/97

Re: SRB Censored: 3-31-97 Open Letter to UHJ 4/4/97

SRB Censored: 4-23-97: Boatright 4/23/97

I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai 2/16/97 jgoldberg at megsinet.net

---

Since the the moderators of soc.religion.bahai banned any messages from me that contain my signature file (May 25, 1998) pointing to this web site, I have been directly emailing every new poster to srb.

Several have emailed me back: srb posters express thanks

---

Prior to 1998, there were at least thirty to forty other messages posted to alt.religion.bahai, by people other than myself, stating that they believed they had been censored by srb, often with accompanying evidence. Since I've lost track of those messages among the massive 30,000+ postings, I'd appreciate it if people would forward me copies of them should anyone stumble upon them or have a copy.

---

For what Bahais call "hikmat" or wisdom or dissimulation, see Susan Maneck's :"Wisdom and Dissimulation: The Use and Meaning of Hikmat in the Baha'i Writings and History."

For a Muslim perspective on Bahai dissimulation, see Amir Butler on "Taqaiya"

On H-Bahai: The Practice of Taqiyyah \(Dissimulation\) in the Babi and Bahai Religions by Sepehr Manuchehri

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 8-22-97 (Bern)
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/08/22
Message-ID: <33FD8392.67AC@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,soc.rights.human,news.admin.censorship,news.admin.misc
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

NO SUCH QUESTIONS ALLOWED....

bern wrote:

>
> I thought you may be interested in the reply I just received from my > posting today. What timing you would believe!
>
> Would you know why this posting which was also directed to > soc.culture.iranian has yet to appear on that newsgroup?
>
> Also, where are issues of newsgroup moderation and control discussed on the > usenet? This must be a hot topic.

On news.admin.censorship,news.admin.misc, and related newsgroups.

>
> BTW my ISP does not receive alt.religion.bahai

Ask them to add it.... Many will....

>
> -----
> > From: S. Michele Smith <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
> > To: bern <bern@planeteer.com>
> > Cc: Baha'i SRB Moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
> > Subject: Re: censorship moderators
> > Date: Thursday, August 21, 1997 8:55 AM
> >
> > Dear bern,
> >
> > Thank you for your submission to soc.religion.bahai.
> >
> > I am returning it to you uposted as this thread has been discontinued as
> > of > > yesterday.
> >
> > Thank you for your participation.
> >
> > Sincerely,
> > S. Michele Smith
> > co-moderator
> > soc.religion.bahai
> >
> > -----
> > From: bern <bern@planeteer.com>
> > To: soc-religion-bahai@ncren.net
> > Subject: Re: censorship moderators
> > Date: Thursday, August 21, 1997 3:14 AM
> >

> > There has been serious allegations made as to the impropriety of the > > voting that resulted in the closing of soc.religion.bahai to free > > discussion, and > > the subsequent institution of a moderator. Would the moderator care to > > comment:
> >
> > 1. What is the nature of such allegations and what response is offered?
> > Has the votes of "157" individuals been discarded?
> >
> > 2. How is the moderator appointed, and when does his/her term expire?
> >
> > 3. Would the moderator agree to set up a newsgroup containing only the > > deleted postings so that interested parties may have the opportunity to > > follow the discussions in an uncensored format, scrutinize the actions
> > and > > decisions of the moderator, and form their own opinion of the moderated > > format? May I suggest soc.religion.bahai.deleted?
> >
> > This posting may not have direct relevance to the stated topic of > > soc.religion.bahai. However, as much as the moderator's reply will > > provide answers to the above questions, it can also illuminate > > the position of the Bahai faith to some real questions facing > > contemporary civil democratic society.

--

FG

UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

Ask your ISP to add it; also available on

www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Steve Marshall <forumbahai@es.co.nz>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Friday, July 23, 1999 2:00 AM

>They obviously had Juan in mind.
>Susan Stiles Maneck
>History, Stetson University

Thanks, Susan, for having the courage to give us your opinion on who one of the people is. And the other names are...?

Do the counsellors you talk to on the phone share this opinion? I guess I can't expect you to answer that one.

If the Universal House of Justice's April 7 letter is about Juan, then it needs to come up with some pretty good evidence for the accusations contained in it. Currently the House seems largely reliant on descriptions of Talisman and its discussions that are sent to it by disaffected Talismanians.

As far as I'm concerned, Juan's ideas are a breath of fresh air, and I've seen no evidence of him using his "position" (what position is that, anyway?) in any underhand way. If individually expressed ideas can undermine the Covenant, then we might as well all go home.

These silly witch-hunts aren't doing anybody any good, and I applaud people for resigning, and for taking whatever protest actions their consciences tell them to take. You too, Susan. If you're following your conscience on this one, then good on you.

ka kite,
Steve

-----
Alison & Steve Marshall, Aotearoa | "Fanaticism consists in redoubling
forumbahai@es.co.nz (New Zealand) | your efforts when you have forgotten
Try: <https://www.rightwords.co.nz/> | your aim." - George Santayana

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Ron stephens <rdsteph@ibm.net>
Subject: Re: Resignation
Date: Wednesday, May 05, 1999 11:37 PM

Dear Dr. Maneck

I have not visited any of these newsgroups in about a year, since I joined the List, I think. Now, I come here and, try as I might, It's hard not to be affected by what I read tonight. Do you have any knowledge about what happened with the dismissal of Mr. Nelson? I also made the mistake of reading some of what Juan Cole has written about this incident, and unfortunately clicked on the some things he now says about you too. While nothing could shake my faith in you in any way, it does make me wonder what is going on at high levels. Why doesn't the National Assembly tell us what really happened? This air of total secrecy is alarming to me.

I know Juan must be very very bitter about all that has happened, and it colors everything he says now. Still, I find that what he says specifically about the need to reform our electoral process to be very convincing. More importantly, I feel that secrecy and the powerful force that fear instills in people could pretty much kill any chances for reforms of any kind ever in the administration of the faith. Don't high level administrators of the faith owe it to us, and to Baha'u'llah, to uphold the highest standards and try to fix things when they get even a little out off kilter?

Listening to Juan's diatribes about spies on email lists and such cause me to recall that Dr Iskander made a post recetnly tpo the Bahai Studies List that strongly implied that my recent very immoderate posts on the Baha'i Studies List (which I admit were a little extreme) would definitely provoke a response from unknown (to me) listeners. What is an ABM for protection? Are all ABM's for "protection" or just certain ones. Is this sort of like an inquisition?

I think I'll stay away from these newsgroups . I'm gone for two weeks anyway after this friday. I know you are busy but a short reply to this note before then would be nice. I'm not really all that upset about anything too much..but you got to admit sometimes that this much smoke sure *seems* to indicate a fire, at least a small one. Wasn't Dr Iskander comments a not so subtle threat to me? And wouldn't you say than Juan Cole is not down on Glayesher's level (no one is) but although bitter Juan probably makes a few good points? And how can a National Asembly memeber be guilty of gross misconduct? Do you really thnk that [t]he letter Juan posted is false?

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Milissa Boyer Kafes <mbkafes@bestweb.net>
Subject: Re: Universal Declaration of Human Rights and Freedom of Conscience
Date: Wednesday, February 10, 1999 3:28 PM

Hi Vinson, Michael and Susan--

I am glad you are discussing this issue of voluntary association, as it is something I am trying to grapple with.

Susan wrote:

>Religion, on the other hand is a voluntary organization, both on the part of >the adherents and on the part of those in authority. You are free to join or >resign and they are free to accept or deny your membership. My understanding >of 'Abdul-Baha's statements regarding freedom of conscience is that this >will continue to be the case even if in the far distant future Baha'is are >able to exercise political power.

The problem I see is that, with the Baha'i Faith, it really isn't voluntary in the sense of being truly free to join or resign and vice versa. I am thinking of the NZ [New Zealand] case here, of course. A Baha'i is declared a CB for hanging out with someone who was never a Baha'i.

I don't want to discuss whether or not she should have been declared a CB, since we've already done that. What concerns me is that she was. Unlike most voluntary organizations, the UHJ believes it has the authority to declare someone a CB even after they have voluntarily left of their own accord. In other words, you may very well be free to resign, but the institution does not have the complementary obligation to relinquish its authority. They can, if they want, still regard themselves as your authority and punish you according to rules that you thought you had voluntarily relinquished along with your membership! Again, I am just pointing out that the UHJ has the power to do this, whether they should or not in a particular case is a separate issue.

On top of this, the UHJ felt it had the power to make an infallible declaration about the state of a non-Baha'i's soul....they said she was "infected" with the "spirit" of CBing. Where in the Writings are they given the authority to make such pronouncements? These actions really disturb me....how can Baha'is guarantee non-Baha'is freedom of speech in a Baha'i world when the Baha'i authorities, with one cable, can have all of your neighbors shun you if you say something contrary to the Covenant.....a Covenant you did not volunteer to follow.

Peace
Milissa Boyer Kafes
mbkafes@bestweb.net

-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: Scent of the Bahji Rose
Date: Sunday, January 24, 1999 4:53 AM

-----
In article <78egu6$98k$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>, jrc@umich.edu wrote:

> His intent clearly was to establish a religious liberty that would match the > political liberty he so admired in the United States. Obviously, any system > of liberty must be a system of the rule of law, and officers of the court may > not blithely disregard the precedents and rulings of the highest judicial > body in the system. But ordinary believers may in `Abdul-Baha's view put > forth their beliefs and conscience without fear or trepidation. Nor can this > vision, so attractive, so liberal, so unlike any existing religion with the > possible exception of Unitarian Universalism, forever be distorted or > prevented from coming to fruition.

So where do we go from here?

We have, on the one hand, a Baha'i religious hierarchy that has rejected its own, cast away its scholars, made its thinkers depart, and assumed a moral rigidity that has made countless more leave.

On the other hand, we have the sweet words of Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha and such shining examples among some of the other believers so as to make hearts weep with joy and sadness at a world so indifferent to their melody.

We have stalwart moral intellectuals like Juan, the Waldbridges, and others, who have been silenced or driven from the faith. Others were driven from the faith by assemblies that decided to prosecute moral choices.

I speak for myself when I say that I cannot leave Baha'i behind. I can't "get past it". Nor can I associate myself with the witch-hunts, spiritual pogroms, or the moneylenders in the temple who enrich themselves in marble halls with the gold of the credulous. Where are the people like me to go?

I know Juan is finding some degree of compatibility with UU. But my parents became Baha'is when I was two years old, I grew in the crucible of Baha'i culture, sang Baha'i songs, saw the unity, heard the chants.

Something draws me forward, something keeps me irrevocably away.

Can there be a faith that is Baha'i without a ministry of the orthodox telling us all how to think, how we must live our lives, upon pain of excommunication for any questioning of authority? Is there a spirit that is Baha'i that is inclusive, that embraces us all with our varying beliefs, that does not require dogma and doctrine but allows all of us to call ourselves Baha'i because we find something so Beautiful in the tales of the Prince of Persia? Not that I can ever again believe the exclusivity doctrine, or the belief that every word must never be questioned, regardless if it came from that Blessed Beauty or someone else. My mind and heart tell me that belief ends up in a wasteland.

I don't know. But I do know that I love something deep about this faith, I miss something about this faith. And I loathe what they have done to it, the mockery they have made of it. The commanders of the army of inclusion has chosen excommunication, character assassination, vilification, censorship, and all manner of evil deeds to perform against their own people in pursuit of that which cannot last. But I cannot forget the scent of Bahji Rose, I cannot leave behind the tapestry of life hung upon the walls,

I still taste the Pilgrim's tea, remember the pomegranate freshly plucked from a tree so near that blessed spot.

And this is but one dance among many, but one way to the Source, but it was my way. One does not forget the walls and halls of childhood, they guide the mind, they are the framework of every thought and dream and hope. And my childhood was Baha'i, I learned to love God by loving the _Baha'i_ God, and this cannot be undone, the cloth is woven, and ne'er shall be undone. And yet I stand outside the garden now, in the winter land of ice and snow. And the gate is barred by human hand--an army of occupation. No, that is not correct--this army is instead a misery-infested bunch of turncoats who have seized the gates and barred them shut to those who wish to enter, and cast from within any who question their actions. Oh Tablet of the Holy Mariner!

So I stand outside, the doors are closed, the walls insurmountable. But I will honor the Gardener, and remember the fruits, and speak kindly of the Planter, even if his successors deserve none of it.

I am not a Baha'i, and they are. I do not believe in infallibility, or giving one's will to another person, regardless of how Holy He may be. And they do. And they are the Baha'is, and I am not. A tear glistens in the corner of the eye.

Matthew Cromer

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: afshin.afrashteh@utoronto.ca <afshin.afrashteh@utoronto.ca>

Subject: SRB censorship

Date: Friday, March 26, 1999 4:35 PM

Peace be upon those that receive true guidance,

Not that it is any surprise, soc.religion.bahai moderators allowed Darricks original attack on Islam but disallowed my reply (which is posted on this newsgroup as a reply to the seal of prophets post by Darrick. You read it yourself and see where in Heaven's name that post could possibly have problems.

The moderator, Bill Hyman replied that my reply was a "personal" response to Darrick with nothing to do with the baha'i faith. Excuse me? Darricks post consisted of nothing but attacks on muslim scholars and faith and attempted to argue from an Islamic perspective. My reply consisted of hadeeths (sayings) of the Prophet Muhammad PBUH. Bill the Hypocrite Hyman should know that he can't play the grandfather role on soc.religion.bahai for long. After all, in this modern day of the internet age, you can't possibly think you can hide divine guidance from people for long. The readership of soc.religion.bahai should feel insulted that Bill the Hypocrite Hyman thinks so low of their faith and intelligence that he feels he needs to shield them from the "outside" world.

May God have mercy on his soul.

Answering Baha'u'llah

<https://www.geocities.com/pentagon/3016/main.htm>

----- Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network -----

<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: MY ESPERANTO MESSAGES NEVER POSTED ? THIS IS CALLED BAHAI FACISM?

From: john markovitch <esperantomyhope@hotmail.com>

Date: 1997/10/17

Message-ID: <3447B7CE.1098@hotmail.com>

Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai

[More Headers]

[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Chris wrote:

```
> In a message which I read on alt.religion.bahai, john markovitch > <esperantomyhope@hotmail.com> wrote
> >I John a member of Bahai Esperanto League is very fed up with Bahai > >Facism and Censored my Esperanto part 2-9 and a response to a Esperanto > >postings. I do call for further reataltion against Bahai .Moderators > >which they are nothing bucnh of rednekks Bahais .I call for > >Soc.Religion.Bahai to be closed .Please support CLOSURE of soc.religion.
> >Bahai . We ask send e-mails to soc.religion.Bahai to NSA to support > >freedom of speech and closure of soc.religion.Bahai for the reasons > >of Bahai Facism on the NET.
> >John.M
```

```
>
> Dear John,
>
> Instead of railing about SRB, which has to operate within its charter, > why not post your Esperanto messages 1 to 9 to this group? Even though, > technically, they would be off topic I'm sure no-one would mind. Then > we can judge for ourselves.
```

```
>
> As a side comment, I would suggest that posting about Esperanto to SRB > is probably off-topic anyway. True, many Baha'is support Esperanto, > including one of my friends here in the UK, but it would also be true to > say that Baha'is also support many other things that would be off topic > on a newsgroup whose existence is primarily for discussion of teh Baha'i > Faith.
```

```
> While you're at it, you had better call for the closure of EVERY > moderated group, not to mention most newspapers, women's magazines etc., > as I am sure none of them would be publishing your letters either? And, > bear in mind that, although 'Abdul-Baha gave His support to Esperanto, > it is only one contender as an international language and, in the end, > it is not the Baha'is that will choose this language, it is the > governments of the world. Just to take one quote (there are others, > probably betterI have no time to look now) --
```

```
>      Baha'u'llah enjoins the adoption of a universal language and > script. His Writings envisage two stages in this process. The first > stage is to consist of the selection of an existing language or an > invented one which would then be taught in all the schools of the world > as an auxiliary to the mother tongues. The governments of the world
> ^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^
> through their parliaments are called upon to effect this momentous
> ^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^
> enactment. The second stage, in the distant future, would be the > eventual adoption of one single language and common script for all on > earth.
> ^^^^^^^^^
```

> (Baha'u'llah: Aqdas: Notes, page 250)
>
>
> Chris Manvell, Isle of Skye, Scotland. Tel.:+44+(0)1471-822317
> --
> NEWSGROUP READERS: Please remove SPAMGUARD from address before e-mailing.
> Verily, Jesus said: "Come ye after Me, and I will make you to become > fishers of men." In this day, however, We say: "Come ye after Me, that > We may make you to become quickeners of mankind." [Baha'u'llah]
> For more info goto: <<https://www.fragrant.demon.co.uk/bahai.html>>
> <<https://www.miracles.win-uk.net/Bahai>>, or <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk>>
Dear Chris bahaullah Never Imposed was supporter of Censorships impose dof Bahai
New World ORder. Soc.religion.Bahai we had this problems for several years now we are taking our matters to all newsgroups if is what bunch of rednekks
,Bill,
Michelle and other moderators are desires. Yet You say Esperanto is OFF
TOPIC>
How dare are you talking to say that. You are another unfair Bahai whom scared of Esperanto International Language also. Off topic what else is off topic
also?Can you tell me also?Esperanto is part OF bahai and Bahai Faith part of Esperanto.
Esperanto estas la dua lingvo por chui.
John M <https://www.esperanto.net>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Traffic on alt.religion.bahai versus soc.religion.bahai
From: Ron House <house@usq.edu.au>
Date: 1997/10/30
Message-ID: <345818C3.71157EBE@usq.edu.au>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,news.groups
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Sharon Bouchard wrote:

>

> On Wed, 29 Oct 1997 16:47:45 +1000, Ron House <house@usq.edu.au>
> wrote:

> Why do we need a 2nd forum about the faith? Is something wrong with > the one we already have?

Definitely. See my other post.

> Is there a real need for an unmoderated
> forum?

A moderated forum is good for people who want to avoid lots of irrelevancy, noise, spam, etc. There's a place for it, but ONLY if it is accompanied by an unmoderated forum where I can, if I wish, read ANYTHING anyone wants to say to me. I for one have little interest in sanitised discussions. If I post an opinion I want to hear ALL the objections (and I thank you for your vehement objections to my slip-ups in earlier posts here.) As Abdul-Baha says, only by the clash of differing opinions is the spark of truth revealed. I don't want to think that someone had something useful to say to me, except that some well-meaning moderator sent it back because the poster called me an idiot or something. I'd much rather hear the opinion.

> But I do not think it's unreasonable to expect someone who has a > complaint about "censorship" to at least attempt to show some evidence > of some sort to back it up.

A covenant breaker can't post to SRB, ARB is not universal, ARM sends the message to millions who are not interested, and that's that. This is why it's censorship. Now it might be censorship you happen to agree with, but that's another issue.

> Some people who claim censorship have a valid complaint.
> Unfortunately, my experience is that most who complain about it do not > have (imo) a valid complaint.

As I understand it, your experience concerns mailing lists? That is quite another matter; a mailing list is run from YOUR server using YOUR resources, and if you only want dwarfs with pink nose to post, that's your business. But the big 8 are carried gratis by government, university, and company facilities the world over, and are a public resource.

> Whether the complaints about s.r.b. are valid or not, I'm not very > able to guess, because I haven't seen much that's too concrete to > support the complaints, nor have I been actively posting to s.r.b.
> under the current moderators long enough to have any ideas about this > from my own experience. What little I have seen, well, doesn't look > like censorship to me, but just moderating people for being off topic > and the like. That's not censorship.

Yes it is if you remember the difference between mailing lists and the big 8, UNLESS you h=give the rejected posters an alternative REASONABLE channel.

> >> Those non-Baha'is who fall into a newsgroup where there's nothing > >> going on but a couple of peoples' complaints about moderation of > >> s.r.b., trolls from s.c.i., and the inevitable "anti cult tracts" that > >> will show up in time, might well mistake the content of such a group > >> for being representative of what the Baha'i Faith teaches.

Which is just too bad. The internet wasn't set up as a free system for teaching the faith. It was set up to propagate information, and that includes the information you like (SRB) and information that you may or may not like (or at least it should).

> If someone wanted to create a sig called talk.sharon.bouchard, I might > vote against that too. So what? You can still say what you like > about me elsewhere, and I wouldn't lift an ESC key to stop you from > doing so.

This is an important point. NO!!! I would NOT vote against talk.sharon.bouchard; I would abstain. Your group would fail through lack of 100 voters wanting to discuss the subject, but NOT through my disapproval.

> >> The other question I have about the creation of t.r.b. is whether that > >> would siphon off the participation in the existing s.r.b., and by > >> doing so, harm the existing group. We all have only so much time on > >> our hands. To split things off may dilute our efforts more than its > >> worth.

> >
> >>Who cares what happens to your censored group? I'll post there
>
> Since I'm a user of that group *I* care.

Fine. But you shouldn't try to force me to use it so the traffic is high enough for you to have a good time.

> If I think creating a new group would harm participation in an > existing group that I participate on, why should I help anyone do it?

You need not do so; that's why people abstain. The question is simple: assuming there are no technical problems with TRB, are there 100 people in the world who want to use it? If so, they should be allowed to. Stopping them by force (i.e. using your numbers to outvote them) smacks of confrontation and everything the Baha'i Faith is NOT supposed to stand for, IMHO.

> If you have a problem with this concept, that is, er, well, your > problem. Sorry, I can't think of what else to say to explain it any > clearer.

I have a problem with defending something you like by preventing me having something I like.

> The only thing that seems to have stopped you thus far is the fact > that you seem not to have explored the existing talk.* hierarchy very > carefully, in which case, afaic, you stopped yourself. I had nothing > to do with that, nor did anyone else.

As I said elsewhere, when I write a post, I want to know that lots of the people who might be interested would read it. Enquirers after the Baha'i faith will subscribe to SRB certainly, and TR.misc maybe - I'd guess a 5 or 10% maybe. You prevent me talking to the other 90-odd %. If TRB existed these people would likely read it. Remember, just being able to put a message in a repository is not communicating unless there is some reasonable chance the message will be read by INTERESTED recipients.

> So thus far I conclude, from the evidence I have to hand, if there's > an "organization" anywhere they sure are freakin' *DISorganized* about > it, because I've posted prominently here since the RFD was issued, but > no one's said squat to me about "joining" any "effort" to do anything.

Sorry, that last remark was censored by the moderator for bad language. :-)

--

Ron House

house@usq.edu.au

An age is called Dark not because the light fails to shine, but because people refuse to see it. -- James Michener, "Space"

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Traffic on alt.religion.bahai versus soc.religion.bahai
From: Ron House <house@usq.edu.au>
Date: 1997/10/29
Message-ID: <3456DC11.AE4254A@usq.edu.au>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,news.groups
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Sharon Bouchard wrote:

> If there were some role that t.r.b. would fulfill that the existing > s.r.b. doesn't already, then this would be a no-brained yes vote for > me. The problem is, I can't see anything going on on a.r.b. recently > that would justify bothering to set up a separate group.

I for one can't read alt.religion.bahai because some carrier between here and the US doesn't transmit it. Many people can't read some alt groups. Also a new newsgroup is **CHEAP**, so cheap you probably couldn't measure it. How much justification is needed for something that some people want a lot and that costs so little you can't measure?

> And whatever Usenet voting *guidelines* are, there are Baha'i > guidelines to take into account as well. I'm not averse to seeing > attacks against the Baha'i Faith online -- people should have their > say, and I view the opportunity to respond as a good thing, though it > does get tedious sometimes. But why create an unmoderated platform > that includes the name of the faith in it?

Because it is about the faith and if you call it talk .religion.unicorns people won't know that.

> Those non-Baha'is who fall into a newsgroup where there's nothing > going on but a couple of peoples' complaints about moderation of > s.r.b., trolls from s.c.i., and the inevitable "anti cult tracts" that > will show up in time, might well mistake the content of such a group > for being representative of what the Baha'i Faith teaches.

Too bad. This newsgroup isn't being set up for the benefit of the Baha'i Faith. It is being set up so that there is a forum for uncensored discussions by anyone at all ABOUT the Baha'i Faith. And this fact does not give Baha'is the right to vote against the newsgroup. You don't have the moral right to oppose a newsgroup just because you might not like what will be said there.

> So my second "con" at the moment concerns the potential for this > misunderstanding, and is it worth the risk?

> No one who wants to attack the Baha'i Faith is currently prevented > from doing so, nor imo should they be prevented. There are plenty of > other forums for those who want to express their strong anti- views to > speak out. What's the point of having another?

Yes they are. I can't post to arb nor read what others say there, nor will the moderatoras of srb accept all of my postings. Besides, it is public money supporting this system, not Baha'i money, so why do Baha'is imagine they have the right to stop me discussing anything I want here?

> Surely Usenet users who want to attack the Baha'i Faith are not so > stupid that they have not noticed the existence of religion-related > ngs where they can post their tracts? Sheesh, if I were one of those, > I'd be insulted that anyone thought I was too stupid to find > someplace to upload my tracts.

So I should post comments on the Baha'i Faith in soc.religion.christian, maybe?

> The other question I have about the creation of t.r.b. is whether that > would siphon off the participation in the existing s.r.b., and by > doing so, harm the existing group. We all have only so much time on > our hands. To split things off may dilute our efforts more than its > worth.

Who cares what happens to your censored group? I'll post there if the moderators let me, but if they don't, I want the right to express my opinions where some small minded traditionalist can't cut me off whenever I offend his sensibilities. You have no moral right to stop me, but you might still have the practical ability to stop me if you can organise another of your unprincipled block 'no' votes.

--

Ron House

house@usq.edu.au

An age is called Dark not because the light fails to shine, but because people refuse to see it.                   -- James Michener, "Space"

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Self-censorship: SRB 7-13-97
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/07/14
Message-ID: <33CA1EC1.3E58@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

[I don't have time to play all the games soc.religion.bahai is given to.... Judge for yourself. I believe they've used trivial pretexts here to prevent me from responding properly to messages posted on srb. It should also be noted Bohnoff apparently self-censored what she emailed to me, or srb hacked away at her original message to me which was emailed to srb simultaneously and from which I responded sending it to srb.... If you can't beat me, wear 'em down seems to be the approach.]

Subject: Re: Resubmission: Bahai "art"
Date: Fri, 11 Jul 1997 22:50:45 -0500
From: smsmith@cybertrails.com (S. Michele Smith)
To: <FG@hotmail.com>
CC: "Baha'i SRB Moderators" <srb-mods@bccca.org>

Dear Mr. Glaysheer,

I am returning this resubmission to you unposted as it still contains materials that were deleted by the author from the post to which you are responding. The post that appeared on srb had the last paragraph deleted.

As I do not have a "backlog of submissions to censor my way through" it took no time to review the week's postings and verify that the entirety of the original message was not, in fact, posted. Perhaps you have mistakenly confused your private e-mail with that of srb. What you and Ms. Bohnoff say to each other privately does not always appear in full on srb.

Therefore, I am requesting that you edit your response accordingly. Below you will find a copy of the entire message as it was posted to srb. If you will check it against what you have submitted, you will see the difference.

Thank you for your understanding in this matter.

Sincerely,

S. Michele Smith, co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai
srb-mods@bccca.org

-----Begin posted message-----

From: Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff <syntax@oro.net>
To: S. Michele Smith <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
Subject: Re: Baha'i Arts Forum
Date: Wednesday, July 09, 1997 7:11 PM

>
> FG wrote:
>
> > There is no art allowed in the Bahai Faith.... only propaganda....
> > what passes for "art" is really only the crudest banalities > > permitted....
> >
> > --
> > FG
> > UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
> Freddie,

As a musician and a writer, I must take exception to your diatribe.

The Faith has done nothing but free me as an artist rather than circumscribe. It has allowed me to approach old subjects with new viewpoint and vigor and has brought a passion to my work that often surprises even me.

While I have had individual Baha'is tell me that my rock oriented music wasn't Baha'i or that one shouldn't sing of Baha'u'llah in the terms one usually reserves for a lover, or that the characters in my stories shouldn't use profanity because Baha'is shouldn't use profanity, I am bright enough to understand that those were individual opinions, like yours, and are not expressive of Baha'i doctrine. Besides, we all know what they say about opinions, don't we? Like certain anatomical features, everybody has one.

Abdul-Baha says our thought is our reality. Your thought and your reality are apparently very bitter. You have my sympathy. But don't thrust your reality at me and expect me to accept it as mine or accept it without argument. Indeed, I have to ask why you find it necessary to impose your anger and angst on others at all.

The art that comes out of true faith is not propaganda, but an exploration of possibilities. I will explore the possibilities for myself and mankind in general as my faith dictates and neither you, with your cynical bluster, nor those who kindly offer the opinion that there is a "form" for Baha'i art will stop that exploration.

+-----+
| Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff syntax@oro.net |
+-----+
| "Nothing have I seen but that I |
| perceived God within it, God before it,|
| and God after it." - the Imam Husayn |
+-----+

--

+-----+
| Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff syntax@oro.net |
+-----+
| "Nothing have I seen but that I |
| perceived God within it, God before it,|
| and God after it." - the Imam Husayn |
+-----+

-----
> From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> To: srb-mods@bccca.org
> Cc: FG@hotmail.com
> Subject: Resubmission: Bahai "art"
> Date: Friday, July 11, 1997 5:54 AM
>
> ubject:
>       Re: More Bahai "art"
>   Date:
>       Thu, 10 Jul 1997 23:39:27 -0500
>   From:
>       smsmith@cybertrails.com (S. Michele Smith)
>   To:
>       <FG@hotmail.com>
>   CC:
>       "Baha'i SRB Moderators" <srb-mods@bccca.org>
>
>
> Dear Mr. Glaysher,
>
> Thank you for your submission to soc.religion.bahai. However, it is > being > returned to you unposted as it is obviously a response to a private > message, the entire contents of which were not posted to this newsgroup.
> In > future, if you would take the time to read what is and is not posted to
> the > newsgroup and respond accordingly, it would be appreciated.
>
> I JUST READ THIS MESSAGE ONLINE. I'M ASSUMING YOU'RE CONFUSED
> BY THE BACKLOG OF SUBMISSIONS YOU HAVE TO CENSOR YOUR WAY > THROUGH.... I WOULD APPRECIATE IF YOU'D ALLOW ME THE > COURTESY OF A RESPONSE.
>
> Sincerely,
> S. Michele Smith, co-moderator
> soc.religion.bahai
> srb-mods@bccca.org
>
> -----
> From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> To: srb@bccca.org
> Cc: FG@hotmail.com
> Subject: More Bahai "art"
> Date: Thursday, July 10, 1997 6:17 AM
>
>
> BEGIN POSTING:-----
>
> Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff wrote:
> >
> > FG wrote:
> >
> > > There is no art allowed in the Bahai Faith.... only propaganda....
> > > what passes for "art" is really only the crudest banalities > > > permitted....
> > >
> > > --
> > > FG
> > > UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
> >
> > Freddie,
> > As a musician and a writer, I must take exception to your > > diatribe.

> >
> > The Faith has done nothing but free me as an artist rather > > than circumscribe. It has allowed me to approach old > > subjects with new viewpoint and vigor and has brought a > > passion to my work that often surprises even me.
> >
> > While I have had individual Baha'is tell me that my rock oriented > > music wasn't Baha'i or that one shouldn't sing of Baha'u'llah > > in the terms one usually reserves for a lover, or that the > > characters in my stories shouldn't use profanity because > > Baha'is shouldn't use profanity, I am bright enough to understand > > that those were individual opinions, like yours, and are not > > expressive of Baha'i doctrine. Besides, we all know what they > > say about opinions, don't we? Like certain anatomical > > features, everybody has one.
> >
> > Abdul-Baha says our thought is our reality. Your thought and > > your reality are apparently very bitter. You have my sympathy.
> > But don't thrust your reality at me and expect me to accept it > > as mine or accept it without argument. Indeed, I have to ask why > > you find it necessary to impose your anger and angst on others > > at all.
>
> The idea that our thought is our reality is a very old one, > preceding Abdul-Baha by several centuries at least.... Found, > for instance, in medieval Xian theology.... It's precisely this > idea that concerns me. Your characterization of my "reality" is > unfortunately colored by your own.... I certainly neither expect > you nor anyone else to accept anything "without argument" or the > free assent of your own conscience....
>
> >
> > The art that comes out of true faith is not propaganda, but an > > exploration of possibilities. I will explore the possibilities > > for myself and mankind in general as my faith dictates and > > neither you, with your cynical bluster, nor those who kindly > > offer the opinion that there is a "form" for Baha'i art > > will stop that exploration.
>
> You're not as "free" in your exploration as you imagine....
>
> >
> > BTW, I suppose it's too much to hope that you found it significant > > that your mean-spirited comment was actually published on this > > supposedly censored newsgroup.
>
> (soc.religion.bahai) which has yet to publish either....
>
> >
> > +-----+
> > | Maya Kaathryn Bohnhoff syntax@oro.net |
> > +-----+
> > | "Nothing have I seen but that I |
> > | perceived God within it, God before it, |
> > | and God after it." - the Imam Husayn |
> > +-----+
>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
>
>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

--

FG

UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

available on www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com, or ask your ISP to add it.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB censored: 11-21-97
From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/11/22
Message-ID: <656k9j$401@news2.zippo.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,news.groups
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Please consider the following message from a moderator of soc.religion.bahai in your consultation on censorship and the BCCA.

In this message, the moderators are actually censoring the very Words of Baha'u'llah Himself!

Permit me to say I've used the signature file below for at least a month or two. Many Bahais and non-Bahais have such signature files that refer to databases or websites reflecting their interests. I consider it an unconscionable act of censorship to prevent my posting to soc.religion.bahai, part of the "country" of Internet, merely on such a basis.

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----begin message posted to SRB:

Dear Mr. Glaysher:

Many thanks for your quotation but I saw no point to it except to advertize the RFD for trb.

The moderators have decided that srb is not the place to discuss this issue and a moderators' posting will be made shortly explaining the reasons. If you would like to resubmit the quotation in support of your views on the Bahai Faith, without the reference to the RFD to trb, I will be happy to post it.

Bill Hyman
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai

-----

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
To: "SRB" <bahai-faith@bccca.org> Subject: Government

Date: Thu, 20 Nov 1997 07:59:05 -0500

Tablets of Bahá'u'lláh revealed after the Kitáb-i-Aqdas, pp. 22-23:
"In every country where any of this people reside, they must behave towards the government of that country with loyalty, honesty and truthfulness. This is that which hath been revealed at the behest of Him Who is the Ordainer, the Ancient of Days."

--

FG

UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Not content that I'm censored by Teri Rhan, Rick Boatright adds insult to injury....

---

-----Original Message-----

From: Rick Boatright <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bounty.bcca.org <srb-mods@bounty.bcca.org>
Date: Sunday, May 17, 1998 9:33 PM
Subject: Re: SRB censored: 5-11-98

So fredrick, we're starting this up again. Arrrrgh.

Rick

>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
> To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bcca.org>
> Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 12:37 AM
> Subject: Re: Leaving the Faith
>
>
> >Dear Fred,
> >I'mre returning this to you unposted to soc.religion.bahai as I feel it is > >comes off as being disrespectful to Bob and to our readers.
> >Thanks
> >Teri Rhan
> >trhan@serv.net
> >Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai
> >
> >On Sat, 9 May 1998, FG wrote:
> >
> >>
> >> Bobcharnes wrote in message <"VHDezB.A.1TD.Z1yU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
> >>
> >> But in the > >> >meantime, many are hovering on the fringes of community life, wondering > >> what to > >> >do with their feelings and thoughts, after trying seemingly everything > >> possible
> >> >to make people aware of certain difficult but important truths.
> >>
> >> The answer is clear: Keep them to yourselves!
> >>
> >> FG
> >> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

---

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: SRB <bahai-faith@bcca.org>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: SRB censored: 5-11-98
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 6:35 AM

-----Original Message-----

From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>

Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 12:37 AM
Subject: Re: Leaving the Faith

>Dear Fred,
>I'mre returning this to you unposted to soc.religion.bahai as I feel it is >comes off as being disrespectful to Bob and to our readers.
>Thanks
>Teri Rhan
>trhan@serv.net
>Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai
>
>On Sat, 9 May 1998, FG wrote:
>
>>
>> Bobcharnes wrote in message <"VHDezB.A.1TD.Z1yU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>>
>> But in the >> >meantime, many are hovering on the fringes of community life, wondering
>> what to >> >do with their feelings and thoughts, after trying seemingly everything >> possible
>> >to make people aware of certain difficult but important truths.
>>
>> The answer is clear: Keep them to yourselves!
>>
>> FG
>> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: SRB Censored: 3-31-97 Open Letter to UHJ talk.religion.bahai
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/04/04
Message-ID: <860151456.2991@dejanews.com>
Newsgroups: soc.culture.iranian,news.groups,alt.religion.bahai
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to soc.culture.iranian]

Subject: Re: SRB Censored: 3-31-97 Open Letter to UHJ
talk.religion.bahai From: hallaj@online.com (Hallaj)
Date: 1997/04/03
Message-Id: <33451e13.28773281@news.online.no>
Newsgroups: soc.culture.iranian,alt.religion.islam [More Headers]

On 2 Apr 1997 13:35:11 GMT, FG@hotmail.com wrote:

>
>
>From: "Rick Boatright" <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
>
>To: FG@hotmail.com
>
>Date: Mon, 31 Mar 1997 11:43:54 -0600
>
>Subject: Re: Open Letter: UHJ (Universal House of Justice): talk.religion
>
>CC: srb-mods@bccca.org
>

Dear sir,

I see you have posted this note to soc.culture.iranian and alt.religion.islam. Do you think the moderators of SRB would refuse to publish this post there?

THEY HAVE REFUSED TO POST THIS MESSAGE ON
SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI
IN DEFIANCE OF THEIR CENSORSHIP, I HAVE THEREFORE POSTED THIS MESSAGE ON NEWS.GROUPS AND A FEW OTHER PLACES.

Anyway, I am sorry that one cannot discuss freely there. Once they censored my post too !

THANK YOU FOR SAYING SO, HALLAJ.... YOU ARE NOW AT LEAST ABOUT THE FIFTEENTH TO TWENTIETH PERSON WHO HAS STATED THEY HAVE BEEN CENSORED
BY SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI IN THE PAST, SO THE "MODERATORS" CONTINUE TO DENY IT....

Regards

Hallaj

**>

**>

>Dear Frederick,

**>

**>

**>

>I have forwarded your letter to the secretariat at the world center,

**>

>and to Dr. Hoda Mahmoud since your note replies in part to his email.

**>

**>

**>

>I explicitly deny that the moderators of soc.religion.bahai have

**>

>participated in any program to block the formation of

**>

>talk.religion.bahai. While we have never acted as advocates of the

**>

>proposal, the moderators have publicly expressed their dismay at the

**>

>number of votes from individuals who clearly are not usenet users. I

**>

>will also point out that the moderators where the first to point out

>

>the irregularities of Mark Towfiq's note, and other posts about TRB.

>

>

>

>At no time have the moderators participated in "back channel >communications" to block the formation of TRB.

>

>

>

>

>As I said, I have forwarded your note to the House, and I an >returning it to you unposted on SRB. The moderators are of the >opinion that the proper forum for the discussion of moderation >practices in a usenet newsgroup is in news.groups. The moderators >participate there, and will continue the discussion as long as you >need.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>As an individual, I am brought to ask you another question. How is >the request for a meeting and discussion from Dr Mahmoudi

>

>

>"threatening and coercive"? It looked a LOT like a request for a >discssion to me. Further, I am forced to ask how your publishing his >private emails to you without his permission is an appropriate >action?

>

>

>

>

>

Catholic and

**>

>> poet, I was deeply moved by the beauty and profundity of the

**>

>> Bahai Writings. As a young person, I spent two months travel

**>

>> teaching throughout Michigan with several other youthful,

**>

>> innocent Bahais. Like many, I have sacrificed financially to

**>

>> contribute to the Bahai Faith. I pioneered for a year and a

**>

>> half in Japan, for two years on an American Indian reservation,

**>

>> and have travel taught in China. The spiritual profundity of

**>

>> the Bahai vision, as reflected in the work of the

**>

>> African-American poet Robert Hayden, inspired me to study at

**>

>> the University of Michigan under him and to spend considerable

**>

>> time and labor editing his collected poems and prose for

**>

>> Liveright and the University of Michigan Press. I have

**>

>> published two essays in the Bahai magazine World Order and

**>

>> spent more time than I can remember at Bahai summer camps,

**>

>> workshops, and deepenings. Throughout all my varied Bahai

**>

>> experience, I have loved the Figures and Teachings of the Faith

**>

>> even as the conviction has grown that all information and

>
>> discussion in the Bahai Faith is subtly manipulated, controlled,
>
>> and distorted for the "good of the Faith." There seems to be a
>
>> pervasive, rigid control of all thought, ideas, and information
>
>> that calls into question the motives of the individuals in
>
>> power in the Bahai Administration.
>
>>
>
>> As a published writer and former college and university
>
>> instructor of rhetoric and literature for over ten years, I
>
>> believe the whole process of "review" has become a complete
>
>> farce and disgrace to the Bahai Faith and is suggestive of the
>
>> worst censorship under the most repressive regimes, religious
>
>> or secular, of historical experience. If one truly wishes to
>
>> understand why many Bahais, both highly educated and others,
>
>> leave the Bahai Faith or become "inactive" and withdraw into
>
>> silence and uninvolvedness with the religion, one need only to
>
>> look objectively at what seems to be the oppressive
and
>
>> coercive methods of people in the Bahai Administration itself
>
>> to find the answer.

>
>>
>
>> My experiencing of these same methods of censorship and
>
>> distortion on soc.religion.bahai proved to be the last
>
>> intolerable straw. My attempt to form an unmoderated newsgroup
>
>> on the Internet that no one could manipulate and censor has a
>
>> long experience of Bahai tyranny in the background. The
>
>> resorting to deceit and back-channel communication by the
>
>> moderators of soc.religion.bahai and others naively believing
>
>> they're working for the benefit of the Bahai Faith by
>
>> campaigning for 691 unethical NO votes on talk.religion.bahai
>
>> further proves the pervasive acceptance of disreputable tactics
>
>> by Bahais in their attempt to maintain a stranglehold over all
>
>> thought and discussion.
>
>>
>
>> Recently, more than ever, I've often recalled the words to me
>
>> in private several times of Robert Hayden, the only Bahai to
>
>> be appointed Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress:
>
>> "Why I continue to have anything to do with the Bahai Faith, I

>
>> do not know, I do not know." I myself no longer know.
>
>>
>
>> I suppose I hope that the oppressive, coercive methods that
>
>> have come to be accepted and justified in the Bahai
>
>> Administration, demonstrated for instance in the crushing of
>
>> the magazine Dialogue, the incidents surrounding the Bahai
>
>> Encyclopedia, the listserv Talisman I, and the continuingly
>
>> crude, unreadable propoganda vehicle of the American Bahai,
>
>> might yet be put aside in favor of the beautiful vision of
>
>> Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha for freedom of religious conscience >> and belief and a humane, tolerant universalism. I fear that all
>
>
>> too often the religious totalitarianism of Baha'u'llah's
>
>> fanatical homeland has seeped into every nook and cranny of
>
>> His religion, smothering out the free light of the human soul
>
>> and hamstringing His Administration.
>
>>
>
>> It was with the bitterest of feelings that I observed some >> time ago the Bahai exhibition, a deceitful propaganda event
>
>

>> really, on freedom of religious conscience and belief sponsored >> by the National Spiritual Assembly in the rotunda of the
>
>
>> Capitol in Washington, D.C., so far in reality from the truth
>
>> was it, so misled, trusting, and uninformed were the
>
>> Congressmen of my country....
>
>>
>
>> If censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith, I would like to >> know what passages of the Bahai Writings support it and what >> are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship. It seems to >> me that censorship pervades the Bahai Faith so thoroughly that
>
>
>
>
>> some Bahais regularly use it as a method of intimidation and
>
>> silencing of anyone with an unconventional opinion by accusing >> the individual of being a covenant breaker. This tactic was
>
>
>> used against me by at least three Bahais during the discussion
>
>> period for talk.religion.bahai and tacitly condoned by the
>
>> moderators and others.
>
>>
>
>> I include, at the end, a threatening, coercive email message I
>
>> received on March 27, 1997, from Mr. Hoda

Mahmoudi,

**>

>> Auxiliary Board Member for Michigan, at a crucial juncture of

**>

>> the discussion and voting for talk.religion.bahai and would like

**>

>> an explanation of his motives.

**>

**>>

**>

>> I, and perhaps the rest of the world, would greatly appreciate

**>

>> evidence that there are not now nine ayatollahs residing in

**>

>> Israel on Mt Carmel.

**>

**>>

**>

>> Respectfully,

**>

**>>

**>

>> FG

**>

**>>

**>>

**>

**>> -----

**>

>> >Date: Thu, 27 Mar 1997 15:45:46 -0500

**>

>> >To: FG@hotmail.com

**>

>> >From: Hoda Mahmoudi <hmahmoudi@olivetnet.edu>

**>

**>>

**>

>> >Dear Mr. Glaysher:

**>

**>> >

**>

>> >I have been reading your e-mail postings recently. I would like to speak

**>

>> >with you by phone about some of your thoughts and opinions regarding

>
>> >matters relevant to the Baha'i Faith. As an Auxiliary Board members for
>
>> >Michigan, I am always interested in issues which relate to individual
>
>> >spiritual responsibility and the Baha'i Faith's principle of unity. My
>
>> >phone number is 616/789-0590.
>
>> >
>
>> >Hope to hear from you soon.
>
>> >
>
>> >Hoda
>
>> >
>
>> >
>

FG

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 5-22-97
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/05/23
Message-ID: <3385765B.15E8@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,misc.misc,talk.religion.misc
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

[Censored by soc.religion.bahai 5-22-97.]

From trhan@itchy.serv.net Thu May 22 19:59:05 1997
Received: from localhost (trhan@localhost) by itchy.serv.net (8.8.5/8.8.5) with SMTP id TAA05147;
Thu, 22 May 1997 19:59:14 -0700 (PDT)
Date: Thu, 22 May 1997 19:59:14 -0700 (PDT)
From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: FG@hotmail.com
cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: Recent extremism about freedom (fwd)
Message-ID: <Pine.BSI.3.95.970522194847.4959A-100000@itchy.serv.net>
MIME-Version: 1.0
Content-Type: TEXT/PLAIN; charset=US-ASCII

I am returning your submittal unposted to soc.religion.bahai and respectfully request that it be resubmitted without labling Baha'is as this type or that type. For example you may consider changing Shiite Baha'is to "some Baha'is". Use of such a term is derogatory to Baha'is and probably the Shiite's as well. I would also like to remind you that our charter does not allow ad-homineum attacks but instead perhaps mentioning that it is your opinion that some Baha'is manifest the things you're speaking of is fine. I just want to emphasize that I am not asking you to change your opinions, just the way you express them:-)
Thank you for your participation,

Teri Rhan
trhan@serv.net
Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai

----- Forwarded message -----
Date: Sat, 17 May 1997 08:08:14 -0400
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bccca.org
Subject: Re: Recent extremism about freedom
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc

Bruce Limber wrote:

>
> > > I have seen much posted about backbiting but very little about > > > calumny.
>

FG wrote:

> > Upon further reflection, it seems to me that this view is > > fundamentally a Shiite interpretation of the Bahai Writings--a > > common one, indeed....
>
> And therefore?

And therefore I think it's worth considering where the "script" that's often repeated comes from....

>
> Even if this is true, so what? Is this guilt by association, or what?

It's intellectual history, if you will.... Usually considered helpful in understanding the background to various ideas, religious or otherwise.

>
> > > Might I add a few more quotes to ... more accurately balance the > > > Baha'i concept of free speech with a few more quotes concerning > > > limitations on the content of free speech?
>
> > I'm also further struck by the lack of "balance" in this point of > > view and how predictable it is in its dismissal of the Writings when > > they clearly support respectable, civilized values....
>
> Fine.
>
> Then list's dispense with interpretations _entirely_--"Shiite" or > otherwise. Let's stick to the Writings, and see what the _Most Holy > Book_ itself has to say about what these values _are_:

It's not possible.... Even to quote a passage as you do is to offer an interpretation based on your choice of what you believe is relevant to the topic at hand. Human beings cannot escape the burden and responsibility of interpretation.

>
> Consider the pettiness of men's minds. They ask > for that which injureth them, and cast away the thing > that profiteth them. They are, indeed, of those that are > far astray. We find some men desiring liberty, and > priding themselves therein. Such men are in the depths > of ignorance.

A significant passage, one Juan Cole has insightful commented on in his article published some years ago.... Your interpretation here, implied by your quoting it, is flawed.... "Liberty" here is more in the sense of "license." Elsewhere, and indisputably, Abdul-Baha speaks highly of liberty without such connotation....

>
> Liberty must, in the end, lead to sedition, whose > flames none can quench. Thus warneth you He Who is > the Reckoner, the All-Knowing. Know ye that the > embodiment of liberty and its symbol is the animal.
> That which beseemeth man is submission unto such > restraints as will protect him from his own ignorance, > and guard him against the harm of the mischief-maker.
> Liberty causeth man to overstep the bounds of > propriety, and to infringe on the dignity of his station.
> It debaseth him to the level of extreme depravity and > wickedness.

The Shiite interpretation of the Bahai Writings delights in this passage.... It reveals a brilliant insight into modern culture, East as well as West, I might add, having lived in Japan and traveled extensively in China.... This insight in the Writings does not gainsay the value of proper liberty and responsibility....

>
> Regard men as a flock of sheep that need a > shepherd for their protection. This, verily, is the truth, > the certain truth. We approve of liberty in certain > circumstances, and refuse to sanction it in others. We, > verily, are the All-Knowing.

Here is a point Shiite Bahais often neglect.... "We approve of liberty in certain circumstances...." They leaped over that weighty statement, given perhaps their own cultural background at times, and relish the last phrase....

>
> Say: True liberty consisteth in man's submission > unto My commandments, little as ye know it. Were > men to observe that which We have sent down unto > them from the Heaven of Revelation, they would, of a > certainty, attain unto perfect liberty. Happy is the man > that hath apprehended the Purpose of God in whatever > He hath revealed from the Heaven of His Will that > pervadeth all created things. Say: The liberty that > profiteth you is to be found nowhere except in complete > servitude unto God, the Eternal Truth. Whoso hath > tasted of its sweetness will refuse to barter it for all the > dominion of earth and heaven.
> (_The Kitab-i-Aqdas_, pages 63-64)
>
> This is no "interpretation." So how any Baha'i has can ignore, > belittle, or "dismiss" it is beyond me.

Your quoting it is certainly an interpretation since you advance it as evidence shoring up your views.... Influenced by Shiite Bahaism in my view.... which has suppressed or failed to give proper regard to much that is also in the Bahai Writings....

--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 6-12-97
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/06/12
Message-ID: <339FC9A8.3E4F@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

[I'll let you figure out what the offending comment was....]

Subject:
Re: Bahai terrorism
Date:
Thu, 12 Jun 1997 00:26:21 -0500
From:
smsmith@cybertrails.com (S. Michele Smith)
To:
<FG@hotmail.com>
CC:
"Baha'i SRB Moderators" <srb-mods@bccca.org>

Dear Mr. Glaysher,

Thank you for your submission to soc.religion.bahai. I am returning it to you unposted as your comment is not in keeping with the charter of srb. Specifically, your comment is derogatory in tone and an invitation to further inflammatory comments.

Thank you for your participation.

Sincerely,
S. Michele Smith, co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai
srb-mods@bccca.org

-----
> From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> To: srb@bccca.org

> Cc: FG@hotmail.com
> Subject: Re: Bahai terrorism
> Date: Tuesday, June 10, 1997 5:56 AM
>
> Bill & Jane Hyman wrote:
> >
> > Fred Glaysher wrote of Baha'is who are reluctant to post to Baha'i > > forums for fear of negative responses which he suggests approach
> > "terrorism".
> >
> > I post to soc.religion.bahai because I know it is moderated and like the security that if I write anything too much off the wall it is unlikely > > to be sent out.
>
> This sounds to me like the Jews kissing Hitler's hand....
>
> >
> > I have not yet posted to alt.religion.bahai for several reasons. First,
> > I am satisfied with the challenges and information
I experience posting > > to soc.religion.bahai. Second, I consider that alt.religion.bahai
(which I did not vote for) is a manifestation of the American concept of > > "Freedom", rather than the Bahai concept of "moderation". Too much > > freedom promotes chaos and terrorism.
> >
> > Baha'u'llah states: (Bahai World Faith P136)
> >
> > "Consider the pettiness of mens minds. They ask for that which injureth them, and cast away the thing that profiteth them. They are, indeed, of > > those that are far astray. We find some men desiring liberty, and > > priding themselves therein. Such men are in the depth of ignorance.
> > Liberty must, in the end, lead to sedition, whose flames none can > > quench. Thus warneth you He Who is the Reckoner, the All-Knowing. Know > > ye that the embodiment of liberty and its symbol is the animal. That > > which beseemeth man is submission unto such restraints as will protect > > him from his own ignorance, and guard him against the harm of the > > mischief-maker. Liberty causeth man to overstep the bounds of propriety, and to infringe on the dignity of his station."

>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 8-13-97
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/08/13
Message-ID: <33F1A676.775B@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,soc.rights.human,soc.culture.iranian,soc.culture.israel
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Another excellent example of censorship on soc.religion.bahai. All three of the reasons given below are bogus, in my opinion. This message does address the crucial existence of censorship in the Baha'i Faith; it adds to and states ideas not found in the other three messages (by my count); AND please someone point out to me WHERE in my message there is "abusive language."
-----

Subject: Re: censorship - moderators
Date: Wed, 13 Aug 1997 02:14:21 -0600
From: "Rick Boatright" <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
Organization: Topeka Business Computers
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>,
FG@hotmail.com,
CC: srb-mods@bccca.org

Frederick.

This one is coming back to you. It's your fifth message tonight on the same subject saying the same thing. I let you accuse Dick and myself of being liars, censors, I let you accuse us of being unwilling to listen to suggestion and being hopelessly inconsistent. But just for the record, I am returning this one on the following grounds:

- 1) Does not address the beliefs and teachings of the Baha'i Faith
- 2) Repetative, does not move the discussion forward, fifth message tonight by the poster on the same subject.
- 3) abusive language

Rick Boatright
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai

> To: srb@bccca.org
> From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> Subject: Re: censorship - moderators
> Date: Tue, 12 Aug 1997 08:35:10 -0400
> Organization: None
> Reply-to: FG@hotmail.com
> Cc: FG@hotmail.com

> dmcadam wrote:

> >
> > [Note: Followups should address the Baha'i Faith. -- Mods]
> >
> > In answer to your last message :
> >

> > Dear friend-

> >

> > I can only speak from an individual point of view as a long time

> > Baha'i and my experience is that most folks today simply cannot > > handle a wide open, no holds barred, let it all hang out type of > > discussion. These open forums tend to be hostile and > > attack/defend type things where one has great trouble achieving > > unity and discovering truth.

>

> "Achieving unity and discovering truth": Usually means > thinking the same as the moderators who know how others > should regard any given subject....

>

> >

> > In time I feel we will be developed enough to be self regulating.

>

> Self-censoring is how I read that....

>

> > Personally the moderators are not trying to censor anyone, just > > keep things in perspective by applying principles of full, frank > > and honest opinions, tempered with courtesy, tact and wisdom. I > > really appreciate the wonderful job they do. I too have had > > submissions refused but they always kindly and lovingly give their > > reason and most of the times I feel it is valid. Course they and > > I both know that none of us is perfect.

>

> You too have been censored by them? "Most of the times" (note the > plural) you think it's "valid"? "Not trying to censor anyone"? It > appears to me there is much confused thinking here....

>

> >

> > We Baha'is know how suppressing it can be for a soul to want to > > find the truth and not be able to because of negative emotions > > clouding issues so we want to create a safe and secure, loving > > atmosphere where freedom of speech can be enjoyed in such a way > > that it will not distress anyone.

>

> A very frightening rationale, which horrible historical > precedents....

>

> >

> > My children are not allowed to use foul language, attack one > > another, use put downs, categorize things by labelling people or > > showing racist or other forms of divisiveness that impede soul > > relations. I feel to a great extent we are all kind of like > > spiritual children and do need some detached moderation.

>

> > We have all sorts of wonderful teachings about speech and how we > > must conduct ourselves in term of fulfilling our overall goal of > > love and unity in the world and they all fit scientific findings.

> > However not everyone has read these or tried them on for size and > > we lapse back into speech patterns that do not reflect our reality > > and cause disunity.

>

> "Scientific findings"? Ahhhmmmm.... Can you quote those for > us?

>

> >

> > In addition we join this list knowing that it is moderated and we > > mostly all agree that it should be. So our part of the agreement > > is to follow these list guidelines and cooperate to make the world > > a better place.

>

> Or off with your head....

>

> >
> > I believe it might be a good idea for the Moderators to post the > > List guidelines. If you don't agree with them then say why and I > > am sure they will listen.
>
> I am not so sure.
>
> >
> > with all due respect, > > doug
>
> [clip]
>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
> Ask your ISP to add it; also available on > www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.
--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
Ask your ISP to add it; also available on www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 8-14-97
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/08/14
Message-ID: <33F31C27.1468@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,news.admin.censorship,news.admin.net-abuse.misc,news.admin.misc,soc.rights.human
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

CENSORED BY SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI:

-----

Subject: Re: censorship - moderators
Date: Wed, 13 Aug 1997 16:19:46 -0600
From: "Rick Boatright" <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
Organization: Topeka Business Computers
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
CC: srb-mods@bccca.org

Frederick,

I am sure you expected that I would bounce this one to. It appears that you especially constructed it just so that I would have to. So here you are. An official rejection note. Have fun with it.

I DIDN'T EXPECT ANYTHING OF THE SORT. I DON'T CONSIDER IT "FUN" TO HAVE TO POST CENSORED MESSAGES TO ALT.RELIGION.BAHAI AND ELSEWHERE. IN FACT, I FEEL IT'S A DISGRACE TO THE BAHAI FAITH THAT I HAVE TO IN ORDER TO PRESERVE THE FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE THE BAHAI WRITINGS INDISPUTABLY STATED I HAVE A RIGHT TO....

It's kind of pointless to argue with you about your baseless conspiracy theories about the NSA somehow majically controlling the SRB mods, and the suspicious nature of the poor distribution of ARB, so I won't bother.

SINCE YOU WRAP YOURSELVES IN THE ROBES OF ORTHODOXY, IT IS DIFFICULT TO BELIEVE YOU CAN CONTINUOUSLY DO THAT WITHOUT SOME ENCOURAGEMENT FROM SOMEWHERE.... THERE ARE MESSAGES EXTANT ON WWW.DEJANEWS.COM WHEREIN YOU AND OTHERS STATE YOU HAVE MET WITH A SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY IN THE PAST FOR GUIDANCE AND ADVICE. YOU KNOW QUITE WELL MOST BAHAI'S TAKE SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI AS GOD'S HOLY WORD WRIT LARGE....

AGAIN, YOU SEEM TO WANT TO CHARACTERIZE ME AS AN ABERRANT INDIVIDUAL. THAT'S AN OLD TIRESOME PLOY, ALL THE MORE SO NOW WHEN SO MANY HAVE FOUND THE COURAGE TO STATE THE TRUTH ABOUT THE CENSORIOUS PRACTICES OF SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI.

Rick Boatright

> Isaac freeman wrote:
> >
> > [Moderators Note: While the moderators allowed the original post, > > and will allow reasonable replys, please note that the subject of the > > newsgroup as stated in the monthly introduction posting is "the > > beliefs and teachings of the Baha'i Faith. Followups to this > > article should address the beliefs and teachings of the faith, or be > > directed to talk.religion.misc, alt.religion.bahai or news.groups.
>
> How about the beliefs and teachings of the Bahai Faith ON > censorship? I think that's a valid topic for discussion, > not suppression as the above note intimates in my > opinion. Using the charter as a means of silencing is not > a legitimate use of it. "Reasonable replys [sic]" is a > very suspicious construction in this context....
>
> >
> > -- The Moderators]
> >
> > On 10 Aug 1997 00:29:34 shahin nikjoo wrote about "Re: censorship - > > moderator":
> >
> > > I would like to question the wisdom of having moderators on this > > > usenet.
> >
> > It's a subject worth discussing. Note that the moderators of > > soc.religion.bahai haven't vetoed this post.
>
> They just vetoed a posting of mine in response to shahin nikjoo!
> I'll post on alt.religion.bahai titled "SRB Censored: 7-13-97" > and cc shahin nikjoo in case he/she doesn't have access (for > reasons we all know) to alt.religion.bahai.
>
> >
> > > My own post was not accepted on thi usenet because it was seen as a > > > 'joke' (It was a serious joke).
> >
> > Perhaps you could rewrite, and resubmit it.
> > Was it a joke that might have caused offense (even if you didn't mean > > it to)? That might explain it. The moderators are also expected to > > veto posts that don't discuss the Baha'i Faith.
>
> It seems to me this "principle" is highly abused....
>
> >
> > > I've had a number of non-Bahais who were q. upset that their > > > comments were not posted on this usenet, and have become very > > > hostile to the group as a result.
> >
> > I've read their posts.
>
> How if they were suppressed?
>
> >
> > > Is the 'moderator' policy asked for by the NSA??
> >
> > There's no official status to soc.religion.bahai - it has no > > connection with the Baha'i administration.
>
> It operates as though it does, many believe it does, > and one cannot help wondering whether there might > not be a connection of some sort.... It seems to > me that the long-term and consistent censorship > imposed by the moderators sullies the reputation of > the Bahai Faith and the institutions.... WHY is that > being tolerated, if not supported?

>
> >
> > > Is there an unmoderated Bahai usenet?
> >
> > There is now. A Baha'i who became frustrated at not getting his > > messages posted has started the alt.religion.bahai newsgroup, to be > > used for general unmoderated discussion about the Baha'i Faith. So > > far, it doesn't propagate very far, but we can expect to see it > > carried by more and more servers over time.
> >
> > Another option is talk.religion.misc.
> >
> > > I think censorship decreases the regard non-bahais have for the > > > faith & irritates to the extreme Bahais who gets censored.
> > >
> > > I also don't think Bahais have anything to be afraid of w.r.t.
> > > questions posed - surely there are Bahai scholars well versed in > > > Laws etc.?
> >
> > Personally, I think there's a difference between the tone of a message > > and its content. If the content of messages was being vetoed by the > > moderators, that would constitute censorship. Some people claim this > > is happening, but I have yet to see any evidence I found convincing.
> > Many posts make it onto soc.religion.bahai that strongly challenge the > > Baha'i Faith - they're welcomed.
>
> For vetoed CONTENT see my censored message mentioned above > on alt.religion.bahai. Permit me to add you might find my > censored message on the United Nations, currently reposted > to alt.religion.bahai of interest in this regard. And MANY > do not....
>
> >
> > On the other hand, I don't think it's censorship if people are > > required to write their messages in a polite tone, and not to give > > undue offense. That's what the moderators are expected to do, and I > > find it makes soc.religion.bahai very good reading.
> >
> > Isaac Freeman
>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
> Ask your ISP to add it; also available on
> www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.
>

--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
Ask your ISP to add it; also available on www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: SRB Censored: 4-23-97: Boatright
From: FG@hotmail.com
Date: 1997/04/23
Message-ID: <5jl689$ami$1@bilbo.reference.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,talk.religion.newage
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

Subject: Re: SRB Censored: 3-20-97
Date: Wed, 23 Apr 1997 02:11:49 -0600
From: "Rick Boatright" <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
Organization: Topeka Business Computers
To: FG@hotmail.com
CC: srb-mods@bccca.org

Rick Boatright wrote:

>
> Oh Please!!!! Stalin killed millions. Dick D. returned a mail > message. Hardly comparable. You remind me of the High School > debators I judge from time to time who try to convince me that a > change in the sentencing guidelines for juveniles in New York will > lead to a nuclear war with China. Get some perspective Frederick.

You fail here to confront the tyranny of his act. Hyperbole on my part? Yes. Does that justify denying myself and other Bahais a hearing? No.... Your high school comparison is cute Mr. Boatright, but I assure you I am not in high school nor playing a trivial forensic game....

>
> Oh yeah, I presume you'll cross post this everywhere too. Here, I'll > make it official:

Osborn posted the United Nations statement on Bahais everywhere. Why should I not post my opinion in the same places? Are you and he now in control elsewhere too? Or want to be? God save us....

>
> I am returning the below to you due to it being off charter, and it > will not be posted to soc.religion.bahai

You are hiding behind your charter and using it again to justify shameful suppression of opinions you don't want to hear. It's precisely this type of thing that led me to state on alt.religion.bahai in the day or two that Mr. Osborn's suggestion of a "charter" were merely another attempt to control the speech and the consciences of others. Your intolerance and hypocrisy are blatant....

>
> Rick Boatright
> co-moderator and Jack Booted Thug

As they say, if the shoe fits, wear it....

> soc.religion.bahai
>
> > To: srb@bccca.org

> > From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> > Subject: SRB Censored: 3-20-97
> > Date: Mon, 21 Apr 1997 08:03:26 -0400
> > Organization: None
> > Reply-to: FG@hotmail.com
>
> > [Sure, no censorship at soc.religion.bahai.... Mr. Detweiler is only > > doing his holy duty of "protecting" other Bahais from my "fractured > > logic".... It seems to me that while destroying millions, Stalin > > thought he was doing about the same thing....] --
> >
> > Subject: Re: Situation of Bahais in Iran (UN)
> > Date: Sun, 20 Apr 1997 07:27:42 -0600 (MDT)
> > From: "Richard C. Detweiler" <rdetweil@primenet.com>
> > To: FG@hotmail.com
> > CC: srb-mods@bccca.org
> >
> >
> > Fred,
> >
> > Equating the systematic denial of basic human rights to a group of > > people by a government simply because of their religious beliefs > > with the practice of Baha'i review and your personal experience with > > the moderators of this group is completely beyond the pale.
> >
> > You are not being denied access to work, your children are not being > > denied an education, you are not being denied your inheritance, your > > marriage is not being annulled, you are not being threatened with > > imprisonment, your home is not being destroyed and you are not being > > sentenced to death nor executed simply for your convictions.
> >
> > Posting the fractured logic below would only lead to a lot of pain > > and rancor. It is pointlessly provocative. While browsing the > > newsgroups, I noticed this note was crossposted to many newsgroups > > so your point has been made. This is being returned to you unposted > > to soc.religion.bahai.
> >
> > Dick Detweiler
> > co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai
> >
> >
> > > From news@reference.com Sun Apr 20 04:31:45 1997
> > > Received: from bcca.org (root@bounty.bcca.org [208.133.44.40])
> > > by primenet.com (8.8.5/8.8.5) with SMTP id EAA25359 > > > for <rdetweil@primenet.com>; Sun, 20 Apr 1997 04:31:43 -0700 > > > (MST)
> > > Received: from hekla.switch.ch by bcca.org with smtp > > > (Smail3.1.29.1 #3) id m0wIuqE-0003kuC; Sun, 20 Apr 97 07:31
> > > EDT
> > > Received: from bilbo.reference.com by hekla.switch.ch with SMTP > > > (PP); Sun, 20 Apr 1997 13:31:21 +0200 Received: (from > > > news@localhost)
> > > by bilbo.reference.com (8.8.5/8.8.4)
> > > id EAA19068; Sun, 20 Apr 1997 04:31:08 -0700 (PDT)
> > > To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
> > > Path: not-for-mail
> > > From: FG@hotmail.com
> > > Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai,alt.religion.bahai
> > > Subject: Re: Situation of Bahais in Iran (UN)
> > > Date: 20 Apr 1997 11:31:08 GMT
> > > Organization: Reference.Com Posting Service
> > > Lines: 145
> > > Message-ID: <5jcup$ijn$1@bilbo.reference.com>
> > > NNTP-Posting-Host: shadowfax.reference.com
> > > Originator: panuser@reference.com ()

> > > Content-Length: 7609
> > >
> > > [I tried to crosspost this to soc.religion.bahai a few days ago > > > but I may have made a mistake in the header that prevented it from > > > reaching you.]
> > >
> > > Subject: Re: Situation of Baha'is in Iran (from report to the UN > > > Commission on > > > Human Rights, 11 Feb. 97)
> > > Date: Thu, 17 Apr 1997 08:50:50 -0400
> > > From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> > >
> > >
> > > As a Bahai, I fail to see why I should be so terribly concerned > > > about oppression of Bahais in Iran, while I'm supposed to condone > > > it here in the "evil, decadent" United States.... It has often > > > seemed to me contradictory that Bahais use the free speech and > > > human rights provided for in international instruments to curry > > > favor from the government of the United States, and the United > > > Nations, while depriving their own members those same rights in > > > the West and elsewhere. It can't be both ways....
> > >

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Maryam Butson <maryam@netlink.com.au>
To: srb-mods@bcca.org <srb-mods@bcca.org>; billh@samoatelco.com <billh@samoatelco.com>; FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: SRB censored 5-25-98
Date: Tuesday, June 02, 1998 11:05 AM

Hmmm I re-read this in another area - and whilst this whole thing may seem rather petty - I can see where Fred is coming from (and believe me, anyone who searches the archives will see that Fred and I have occasionally had our "moments" - I am not his greatest fan (sorry Fred)). The thing that concerns me is this:

>>Mr. Glaysher:

>>

>>This submission will not be posted to srb as we do not accept cross posting.

AFAIK I've cross-posted before and gotten away with it, I was not aware this was a "rule". (Must admit Fred, sometimes it's a bit much to see the same post on every newsgroup I try to read), but notwithstanding that, this seems rather flimsy as I have seen SRB posters cross-post, and I've done it myself from time to time.

I can understand rules against someone spamming every newsgroup under the sun, but I don't think Fred has quite reached THAT level yet.

>>I considered advertising maillist.com to the srb readership against our charter as it has been posting CB material.

Firstly, there is nothing in Fred's sig. file that mentions CB material. If THAT were a genuine excuse all Baha'is should be banned from the internet because CB material exists on it! The fact that on an open list CB material *can* be posted is hardly a valid reason for snipping an entire sig. file that merely mentions the list - *not* the CB material. One might as well ban any header that says AOL because some CBers have AOL accounts.

Not to mention that this one is WAY out there for another reason. I've never seen *other* SRB posters have their signature files snipped left right and centre, not to mention that Fred's sig. file is hardly a huge advertisement. Bill you are giving Fred fuel for his fire. I used to think Fred was paranoid - now I am not so sure! Justice *is* the Best Beloved of all things remember, regardless if it means you have to occasionally allow Fred to post to SRB.

You may not like what Fred has to say, but purposefully snipping his sig.file to try and make it as difficult as possible for people to *hear* what he has to say, comes across at best, petty ... at worst, confirmation of his accusations.

Anyway here is Fred's file:

FG

Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com

List Archive & Subscription:

<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

Now lets look at some other SRB poster's sig. files:

Trisha Rainsford's:

TeeCee

TeeCee Publishing

P. O. Box 9110

Hamilton

New Zealand

Ph/Fax: 64-7-846-7484

email: tricia@glonet.co.nz

Graham Sorenson's (who happens to be a very good friend of mine - and I like all his sig.files *G*)

<https://www.fragrant.demon.co.uk/bahai.html> -- <https://www.bahai.org>

<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk> -- <https://www.onecountry.org>

<https://www.bcca.org/~glittle> -- <https://www.bcca.org/~cvooget>

"The Baha'is". A magazine format, Wonderful introduction to the Faith.

<https://oneworld.wa.com/bahai/magazine/cover.html>

and Chris Manvell's

Chris Manvell, Isle of Skye, Scotland.

Tel.: +44(0)1471-822317--

Newsgroup readers: Please remove SPAMGUARD from address before e-mailing.

Verily, Jesus said: "Come ye after Me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." In this day, however, We say: "Come ye after Me, that We may make you to become quickeners of mankind." [Baha'u'llah]

For more info goto: <<https://www.fragrant.demon.co.uk/bahai.html>>
<<https://www.miracles.win-uk.net/Bahai>>, or <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk>>

All of whom as much advertising as Fred.

>>Your web page address has >>already been posted, and due to negative comments from srb readers I will >>not be posting it again.

I'd be interested in seeing what these complaints are. I must admit I find it difficult to believe that SRB readers *specifically* objected to Fred posting his signature file because they didn't like his web page.

>>
>>All your submissions, which meet the standards of our charter will be >>posted, but your advertising will not.
>>
>>Was the real purpose of your submission to srb to advertise your e-mail >>addresses, or to submit a quotation of Abdul-Baha? If the latter, your >goal >>was attained - so why are you complaining?
>>

I am starting to understand *why* Fred is paranoid.

>>Bill Hyman
>>co-moderator
>>soc.religion.bahai

For my two cents Bill, and I normally have a fairly high regard for SRB moderation, the more you try and silence Fred, the more he will object, struggle, and a larger issue will be made. If he really has nothing of import to say - then air it and let it dissolve - this suppression only feeds fuel to the fire and makes people like *me* sympathetic to what he has to say about SRB.

Regards as always Maryam

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bccca.org <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: FW: SRB censored 5-25-98
Date: Sunday, May 31, 1998 8:31 PM

Mr. Glaysher:

This submission will not be posted to srb as we do not accept cross posting. I considered advertising maillist.com to the srb readership against our charter as it has been posting CB material. Your web page address has already been posted, and due to negative comments from srb readers I will not be posting it again.

All your submissions, which meet the standards of our charter will be posted, but your advertising will not.

Was the real purpose of your submission to srb to advertise your e-mail addresses, or to submit a quotation of Abdul-Baha? If the latter, your goal was attained - so why are you complaining?

Bill Hyman
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai

-----
From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
To: "SRB" <bahai-faith@bccca.org>,"bahai-faith @ makelist.com" <bahai-faith@makelist.com>,"talisman" <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Re: SRB censored 5-25-98
Date: Wed, 27 May 1998 08:27:25 -0400

Maryam Butson wrote in message <896225055.167484@kermit.netlink.com.au>...
>Hmmm...I am generally *for* the SRB moderators, but even *I* can see this >looks nothing LIKE a mere "personal note".

>
>Maryam
>
>>>As this appears to be a personal note I have not posted it to srb.
>
>

Here's another instance of srb censoring in a subtle way. I post this to srb on the 18th. They only posted after I emailed them as I explain in another current thread you might read here. What they finally actually posted to srb clips my signature file, everything below alt.religion.bahai. See the current version on srb for yourself. Please note that while doing that the "moderator" added back in the right arrow symbol, ">," concealing his changes from unsuspecting readers of srb....

-----Original Message-----
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 6:45 AM

Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"

>Roger Borseth wrote in message <"DRnaXC.A.mAG.10vX1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>>
>>
>>Say: True liberty consisteth....
>
>"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is >sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening >of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of >the secrets of the contingent world. Moreover, if interrogation of >conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and >the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for >man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection?
>Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the >King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the >fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants."
>
>Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.
>
>
>FG
>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>
>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
>List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
>The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>
>
>
>
>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: SRB <bahai-faith@bccca.org>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>; talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Re: [bahai-faith] SRB censored 5-25-98
Date: Wednesday, May 27, 1998 8:27 AM

Maryam Butson wrote in message <896225055.167484@kermit.netlink.com.au>...
>Hmmm...I am generally *for* the SRB moderators, but even *I* can see this >looks nothing LIKE a mere "personal note".

>
>Maryam
>
>>>As this appears to be a personal note I have not posted it to srb.
>
>

Here's another instance of srb censoring in a subtle way. I post this to srb on the 18th. They only posted after I emailed them as I explain in another current thread you might read here. What they finally actually posted to srb clips my signature file, everything below alt.religion.bahai. See the current version on srb for yourself. Please note that while doing that the "moderator" added back in the right arrow symbol, ">," concealing his changes from unsuspecting readers of srb....

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 6:45 AM
Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"

>Roger Borseth wrote in message <"DRnaXC.A.mAG.10vX1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>>
>>
>>Say: True liberty consisteth...
>
>"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is >sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening >of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of >the secrets of the contingent world. Moreover, if interrogation of >conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and >the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for >man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection?
>Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the >King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the >fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants."

>
>Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.
>
>
>FG
>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>
>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
>List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
>The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>
>
>
>
>

----
List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com

--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: talisman <talisman@umich.edu>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: Re: [bahai-faith] SRB censored 5-25-98
Date: Wednesday, May 27, 1998 7:56 AM

Maryam Butson wrote in message <896225055.167484@kermit.netlink.com.au>...
>Hmmm...I am generally *for* the SRB moderators, but even *I* can see this >looks nothing LIKE a mere "personal note".
>
>Maryam
>
>>>As this appears to be a personal note I have not posted it to srb.

Here's a recent example of srb pretending a message has "fallen through the cracks," been lost, etc., as a means of dispensing with it.... They conveniently manage to post many other messages on the same thread without losing them during the 8 days I waited for them to post mine....

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" Date: Tuesday, May 26, 1998 1:41 AM

Fred:

This one must have slipped through the cracks. I cannot quite see your point, quoting 4 words from Roger then answering with a quote from Abdu'l Baha, but maybe others will. I have posted it. I'd hate to be accused of censorship.

Bill Hyman
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai
-----

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
To: "SRB" <bahai-faith@bcc.org>
Subject: Fw: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"
Date: Tue, 26 May 1998 07:53:26 -0400

I submitted this message to you on the 18th. I have not yet seen it on srb nor have received a rejection notice.

If you're going to censor it, please notify me to that effect....

FG
Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

-----Original Message-----
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 6:45 AM
Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"

>Roger Borseth wrote in message <"DRnaXC.A.mAG.10vX1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>>
>>
>>Say: True liberty consisteth....
>
>"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is >sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening >of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of >the secrets of the contingent world. Moreover, if interrogation of >conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and >the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for >man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection?
>Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the >King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the >fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants."
>
>Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.
>
>
>FG
>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>
>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
>List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
>The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>
>
>
>
>

I

-----
List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

My first and second attempts to respond to William Collins on srb are given below. His original message appears at the end. I leave it to the reader to decide regarding the excuses given for suppressing my messages, that they are "personal responses" or "pure flame bait."

---

From: S. Michele Smith <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: Baha'i SRB Moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: Religious Freedom of Conscience; Liberal/Conservative
Date: Tuesday, May 19, 1998 2:31 PM

Dear Mr. Glaysher,

Thank you for your submission to soc-religion-bahai. However, as it is a personal response, it is being returned to you unposted.

Sincerely,
S. Michele Smith
co-moderator
soc-religion-bahai
-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org
<soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org>
Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 5:57 AM
Subject: Re: Religious Freedom of Conscience; Liberal/Conservative

>
>William Collins wrote in message <"kLZ6vB.A.UZG.4WLV1"@bounty.bccca.org>...
>
>I'd like to respond to your statement but given the "moderators" >suppressing of my last message to you a week or so ago, as >they have done in the past, doubt any real discussion or exchange >on such serious issues can take place on srb.
>
>If you're sincere let me suggest you repost your message to >alt.religion.bahai, bahai-faith@makelist.com, or talk.religion.misc, >where there are no "moderators" to interfere, allowing only your >voice or opinion to be heard....
>
>FG
>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

---

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: SRB <bahai-faith@bccca.org>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: SRB censored #2: 5-11-98
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 6:39 AM

-----Original Message-----
From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 12:47 AM
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith

>Dear Fred,
>This is nothing more than pure flame bait. Please leave the broad >generalizations and criticisms out, and stick with the charter. This >newsgroup is for the discussion of the Baha'i Faith and it's teachings in >a consultative and respectful manner, not a grievance forum. Provide some >real facts and back them up with the Writings.

>Thanks
 >Teri Rhan
 >trhan@serv.net
 >Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai
 >
 >
 >On Sat, 9 May 1998, FG wrote:
 >
 >>
 >> William Collins wrote in message
 <"ti6gJB.A.JhD.IVzU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
 >>
 >> This is no less true
 >> >of those who find their meaning in endless criticism of Baha'i >> >institutions and of committed believers.
 >>
 >> The context within which you set any kind of criticism or opinion >> other than what you think justifiable and appropriate obscures >> the issues that cause the criticism in the first place. An approach >> employed by many Bahais....
 >>
 >> And if those who hold to >> >extremes are committed to continuing in those >> >directions, the end results are retarded growth of the community, and/or >> >the withdrawal of individuals or application of >> >sanctions to them.
 >>
 >>
 >> As is your blaming the individuals or victims....
 >>
 >> >It appears to me to be an unhealthy pattern in anyone's life to fix upon >> >discontent, and then to be consumed with communicating >> >that discontent to others - especially to those with whom one is willing >> >to be continually angry.
 >>
 >> Abdul-Baha himself said that angry can serve the good.... There >> is such a phrase in English, "righteous anger," for wrongs suffered >> unjustly, wrongs that those who care about the Bahai Teachings >> ought to want to see corrected if they have any sense of justice....
 >>
 >> If the Baha'i community, its >> >institutions, and the believers are as hypocritical, fanatical, >> >ungenerous, misguided and critical as portrayed by many of those >> >who post here, then why waste the precious days of your short lives >> >mired in lashing out at the them? Why not find something >> >else more fulfilling?
 >>
 >> Again, the typical Bahai approach.... Drive out or banish anyone >> who doesn't conform or agree with prevailing opinion.... This >> opinion also fails to perceive that there is much of importance >> the Bahai Faith needs to learn from many of its critics or voices >> of conscience....
 >>
 >> The only other alternative is to arise and model >> >for others the kind of Baha'i life you think Baha'is should >> >lead, rather than telling the Baha'is how bad they are. Being >> >constantly possessed of a critical spirit is self-destructive.
 >>
 >> The Voice in the Wilderness is usually the one humankind needs
 >> the most.... The Bahai Faith is no different....
 >>
 >> >
 >> >In the cyberworld that has opened up the possibility for people to put >> >all of their immediate and unprocessed feelings up in >> >print, it might also prove useful for those who post in response to the >> >naysayers to ponder a few things. Does the person who >> >blames the Baha'i institutions, community and believers for various >> >failures actually want a dialogue, or simply a confirmation >> >that he's right? Perhaps the best response to the angry words and >> >criticism is no written response at all, but a continued >> >demonstration of wisdom, and a willingness to follow the lived example >> >of 'Abdul-Baha, who loved everyone but did not >> >legitimize everyone's actions and words.
 >>

>> The answer of many Bahais: ostracism...
>>
>> >
>> >Since the founding of various internet discussion groups a few years >> >ago, I have observed them carefully, both in the Baha'i >> >context, and in the context of other religions and disciplines. Except >> >for very tightly controlled discussion groups (and >> >soc-religion.bahai is not so tightly controlled),
>>
>> In my opinion, it is tightly controlled. See my new web site, >> alt.religion.bahai, or bahai-faith@makelist.com for evidence and >> discussion to that effect....
>>
>> there is always a >> >significant percentage of participants whose purpose is criticism, >> >argumentation, negation and the expression of discontent.
>>
>> I would have to say that among Bahais there are always individuals >> willing to justify the most shameful abuse of the Teachings and >> ethics as long as they think it will further the growth of the Faith....
>>
>> FG
>> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

---

-----Original Message-----

From: William Collins <wcol@loc.gov>

Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

Date: Saturday, May 09, 1998 3:59 PM

Subject: Re: Religious Freedom of Conscience; Liberal/Conservative

>There have now been several discussions of the "reality" of the >existence of "liberals" and "conservatives" in the Faith, while >accusations are made that many Baha'is are opposed to the principles of >religious freedom advocated by 'Abdul-Baha.
>

>I know no Baha'is opposed to the religious freedom commended by >'Abdul-Baha. I know many Baha'is who are loyal to Baha'u'llah's >covenant, who turn to the central authorities of the Faith for guidance, >and who sustain the Faith through their participation on its >institutions, processes and promulgation.
>

>I also know that such loyalty and steadfastness are not admired by >people who have personal needs that they believe are somehow not being >met within the Baha'i Faith, but who find it difficult to move on to >something more fulfilling or to emulate spiritual behavior through >example. The Baha'i Faith is not going to be made over into the image >of any individual or group of individuals who have trouble accepting the >entire range of the teachings of Baha'u'llah (whether one has trouble >with the more flexible parts or the less flexible parts of those >teachings), or who place themselves in opposition to the considered >decisions and guidance of the Universal House of Justice and the other >institutions created by Baha'u'llah and His legitimate and authorized >successors.
>

>If you are now going to divide the Baha'i community into liberal and >conservative camps, and own another of our culture's insidious >dichotomies, then may God truly help those who buy into it. My fear is >not for the Baha'i Faith, which will grow from strength to strength >among those who can summon the courage to remain teachable and humble.
>My fear, rather, is for those who, through ignorance or lack of profound >contemplation, will let people of denial set the agenda for discussion >of the Baha'i Faith and thus find their spirit consumed in the fire of >conflict and contention. The struggle to triumph over our own worst >tendencies, and to overcome evil in ourselves, requires the utmost >commitment. It is not a game in which to indulge the basest of human >characteristics.
>

>Several well-known names reappear here and elsewhere, touted as >representatives of liberation who are engaged in a crusade to tear down >the battlements of an imagined "fundamentalism" in the Baha'i community.
>This "fundamentalism" (a term never fully defined) is implicitly and >explicitly represented by: (1) Baha'i institutional structure; (2) >Shoghi Effendi's interpretations (and by implication, 'Abdul-Baha's >judgment in appointing Shoghi Effendi as Guardian in His will); and (3) >any Baha'i who is unwilling to throw aside parts of the writings that >are defined by the attackers as "conservative," "fundamentalist," >"particularist" (sectarian), "non-democratic" or otherwise not in accord >with their views. It is most dramatically represented in the attempt to >create what amounts to a kind of "back-to-Baha'u'llah" intellectual >movement to rethink the entire range of Baha'i development after the >passing of 'Abdul-Baha and the propagation of His will. To all intents >and purposes, it is pointed implicitly but directly at the Guardianship >and the Universal House of Justice to call the legitimacy of their >decisions and actions into question, and to characterize them as >anti-intellectual, anti-democratic, dictatorial, patriarchal and >illiberal.

>

>There are spiritual consequences to covenantal commitment, as well as to >the denial of that commitment. Baha'u'llah would call upon us to see >Him before our faces. 'Abdul-Baha would plead with us to abandon this >willingness to attack faithfulness and to characterize the sincere with >labels drawn from the vicious and sickening political in-fighting of a >corrupted culture.

>

>Baha'u'llah stated it best in the Kitab-i-Aqdas:

>

>"This is not a Cause which may be made a plaything for your idle >fancies, nor is it a field for the foolish and the faint of heart. By >God, this is the arena of insight and detachment, of vision and >upliftment, where none may spur on their charges save the valiant >horsemen of the All-Merciful, who have severed all attachment to the >world of being. These, truly, are they that render God victorious on >earth, and are the dawning-places of His sovereign might amidst >mankind."

>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Here's an example of a soc.religion.bahai moderator pretending a message is "personal" in order to suppress it.

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bccca.org <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: Letter from the Universal House of Justice about internet
Date: Monday, May 25, 1998 6:29 PM

As this appears to be a personal note I have not posted it to srb.
Bill Hyman
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai
-----

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
Subject: Re: Letter from the Universal House of Justice about internet
Date: Tue, 26 May 1998 07:58:17 -0400

Suzanne Gerstner wrote in message <"q0DKy.A.NAH.CsFZ1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>

>Dear Friends,

>
>The following extracts from letters from the Universal House of Justice >throw some light on the House's attitude to e-mail discussions and how >it expects us to behave in them.

I don't see any proof at all that these "extracts" are actually from the Universal House of Justice.... It seems to me such messages should be given in full so that the entire context can be discerned as well as corroborating evidence of authorship....

FG

Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com

List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" Date: Tuesday, May 26, 1998 1:41 AM

Fred:

This one must have slipped through the cracks. I cannot quite see your point, quoting 4 words from Roger then answering with a quote from Abdu'l Baha, but maybe others will. I have posted it. I'd hate to be accused of censorship.

Bill Hyman
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai
-----

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
To: "SRB" <bahai-faith@bcca.org>
Subject: Fw: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"
Date: Tue, 26 May 1998 07:53:26 -0400

I submitted this message to you on the 18th. I have not yet seen it on srb nor have received a rejection notice.

If you're going to censor it, please notify me to that effect....

FG
Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 6:45 AM
Subject: Re: New site: "The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"

>Roger Borseth wrote in message <"DRnaXC.A.mAG.10vX1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>>

>>

>>Say: True liberty consisteth....

>

>"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is >sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening >of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of >the secrets of the contingent world. Moreover, if interrogation of >conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and >the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for >man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection?
>Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the >King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the >fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants."

>
>Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.
>
>
>FG
>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>
>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
>List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
>The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Alison and Steve Marshall <forumbahai@es.co.nz>
To: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: adjectives and anger
Date: Monday, June 15, 1998 7:19 AM

I've been reading this book called Surplus Powerlessness by Michael Lerner, which Eric P recommends. In it, Lerner argues that anger has a bad reputation in our society because it is a threat to "those who have power ... because it could be directed against them." He argues that it is an emotion that leads "people to feel strong" and to struggle against situations that are not right for them. He says that those in control "always supported an approach to culture that saw anger as ugly and destructive."

He goes on: "Creating an anti-anger bias in the culture is not a matter of giving good arguments against anger, but rather of indoctrinating people with feelings of guilt and shame about the anger they felt, and associating anger with everything that is repulsive and disgusting. It is more a matter of getting people to internalize a sense that 'good manners' requires the suppression of anger..." (p. 174)

As soon as I read this, I immediately thought about how we are trained to write letters to the AO. As I understand it, there is a right way and a wrong way to write to the institutions. It is better to write in a courtly style, and include open statements of obedience and respect. The more one moves away from this style, the more likely it is that your communications will be seen as an affront to what is assumed (as opposed to deserved) to be the mana of the institution, and the less likely you'll get a direct response to the issue you raise, and the more likely it is that you will be told to change your attitude. I read the correspondence relating to the removal of the voting rights of David Langness, and the only 'crime' I could see that he had committed was to have a 'bad attitude'.

The expectation that one should not express one's constructive criticism and emotions (and this includes not questioning too much) is all pervasive in Baha'i culture. It's a great clobbering machine that makes sure nothing ever changes. The other day, I was at a meeting and got angry and said that I was very unhappy that here we were listening to what a counsellor had said at convention as though it was gospel, when he was expressing ideas that had been expressed locally on many occasions before but no one had listened to them, and that this disempowering behaviour was never going to get us anywhere. One person eye-balled me and said, "You seem very angry, what's your problem." So you see, I *personally* had a problem; not, I give a damn about the mess our faith is in and am expressing that.

I agree whole heartedly that we go in for relentless cheerleading and that anyone who dares to say that the emperor has no clothes is crushed - most effectively by other Baha'is who can't bear it when someone breaks ranks and points out what we could all see, should we just choose to repeat the gaze.

Alison

-----
Alison & Steve Marshall, Aotearoa | "Fanaticism consists in redoubling
forumbahai@es.co.nz (New Zealand) | your efforts when you have forgotten
Try: <https://www.rightwords.co.nz/> | your aim." - George Santayana

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <fglaysh@hotmail.com>
To: talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Bill Hyman on Bahai censorship
Date: Tuesday, June 09, 1998 6:43 AM

Note that this was posted by the then future and now present srb moderator last August 1997:

Subject: Bahai "art"/hate mail #2
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/07/08
Message-ID: <33C23917.1614@hotmail.com> Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,soc.rights.human,soc.culture.israel,so c.culture.iranian
[More Headers][Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]
Bill & Jane Hyman wrote:
>
> I did not think much of F. Glaysher's posting to soc.religion.bahai on
> "art". It did not portray the loving spirit which most of us have come > to expect in this forum. I would like to volunteer to censor his future > postings. Bill Hyman
hymanfam@samoatelco.com

No fascism here.... Hitler felt the same way about his "art."

--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: George & Marlana <geomar@ctaz.com>
To: bahai-faith@makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: [bahai-faith] Fw: Defrring to "cultural mores" (fwd)
Date: Thursday, May 07, 1998 7:54 PM

Dear Frederick,
In an effort to give a real example of the "censorship" on another newsgroup, I enclose this example. It was mine but you may use it (or not) if you want.
George

-----Original Message-----

From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: geomar <geomar>
Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods>
Date: Tuesday, May 05, 1998 8:47 PM
Subject: Re: Defrring to "cultural mores" (fwd)

>Dear George,
>I'm returning your submittal unposted to soc.religion.bahai as the tone >appears to be somewhat condescending, particularly the last sentence. If >you would care to revise it and resubmit, I would be happy to reconsider >it for posting.

>Thanks
>Teri Rhan
>trhan@serv.net
>Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai

>

>

>----- Forwarded message -----
>Date: 5 May 1998 06:37:01 GMT
>From: George & Marlana <geomar@ctaz.com>
>To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
>Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
>Subject: Re: Defrring to "cultural mores"
>

>Dear Nancy,
>While not trying to post against your post, I would like to remind you that >the Baha'i faith is growing in just about every country in the world. This >only shows the diversity of people the Faith attracts. Every person who >becomes a Baha'i, comes from a background that may or may not be even close >to the teaching of the Baha'i faith. The diversity of culture, the >diversity of spiritual growth is astronomical to think about. We, as >Baha'is have the writings for guidance, but what if we can not read, or >don't have a book? Becoming a Baha'i(on paper) doesn't make us a Baha'i in >anything but name.

>Also your post makes reference to "some" Baha'is that "may" still >practice.....

>While I agree completely with your point of view, I lack your passion. Get >the facts and try to do something positive about what you find.

>Regards,

>George

>

>

----

List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com

--

Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: Censored from S.R.B 6 Jun 1998
Date: Sunday, June 07, 1998 12:37 PM

Dear Mr. Cromer,

I am returning your submission to you unposted as it falls outside the charter of soc-religion-bahai. Mainly, you level accusations at specific individuals, institutions, as well as bringing up the names of other individuals and their experiences. This is not to say what you have stated is not true. It is, however, outside the charter of this newsgroup to post submissions of this nature.

If you would care to revise your submission, leaving out specific individuals and institutions, we can reconsider posting it.

Sincerely,
S. Michele Smith
co-moderator
srb

-----Original Message-----

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
<soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net>
Date: Friday, June 05, 1998 1:27 PM
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith

In article <"xv2A1B.A.Y8C._02d1"@bounty.bcca.org> , rlittle33@my-dejanews.com writes:

Only after the individual demonstrates an unwillingness to >abide by these few basic laws would some action be taken, such as withdrawal >of administrative privileges. The aim is always to lovingly assist that >person to more closely align him/herself with the Laws of God.

Except that we are talking about people who choose to _leave_ the Baha'i religion, _then_ being investigated, not someone who chooses to stay and believes in and chooses to abide by the institutions.

You are referring to investigations of behavior of an individual identifying himself as a Baha'i.

>> In article <"6a5-SC.A.huF.Pgub1"@bounty.bcca.org> Kent Johnson, >> compx2k@javanet.com writes:
>> >I believe National >> >investigates everyone who wants to withdraw from the Faith. We recently >> had >> >a woman resign from our spiritual assembly to lead a lesbian lifestyle and >> >National needed confirmation from members of the Assembly that it was not a >> >frivolous or spite induced resignation.

Here is the original quote--you can see that it refers to people who tell the National Baha'i Assembly they are not Baha'is anymore, then being "investigated" in some manner to "confirm" that the resignation was not "frivolous or spite-induced".

I withdrew from the Baha'i faith myself in March timeframe of 1994, and was harassed by the Local Baha'i Assembly of Chapel Hill, NC, who refused to recognise my statement of withdrawal.

I decided to get married and my mentally-disturbed mother withdrew consent. I decided that the teachings no longer made sense--my doubts turned into disbelief in the whole package. I still believe in many individual truths I found in the Faith but not in the entire package as an entire truth which must be believed in every jot and tittle, and from which all deviation is naught but error.

It was a difficult time for me, but the fact that the Chapel Hill (NC) Baha'i Assembly continued to harass me, sending me carbon copies of mail sent to the National Assembly complaining about my "immoral" behavior with regards to my wife, and complaining about my getting married, and petitioned to have my voting rights removed after I clearly mailed them demanding they remove my names from the rolls, left a bad taste in my mouth.

So I have first hand knowlege of what kinds of "investigation" go on and if I had not frankly written both the National Assembly and the Chapel Hill Baha'i Assembly stating my withdrawal in the clearest terms and stating my demand that they accept my withdrawal at face value, I am certain I would have had my "voting rights" removed as a non-Baha'i. I guess the symbolic punishment of the "heretic", the desire to inflict retribution, runs deep in some Baha'is.

I hope my experience was an aberration, and that Baha'is in general desire to maintain their image of acceptance with the non-Baha'i community and not to persecute their "apostates", but after hearing about more "investigations" of everyone who withdraws I am finding it easy to believe otherwise.

Certainly the entire episode with Juan Cole, the Waldbridges, and the Talisman list would seem to indicate a religious organization intent on thought-control, suppression of dissent, non-freedom of thought, conformity, and spiritual decay. Although my experience in the faith was generally very positive and my encounters with this kind of fanaticism were few in number, perhaps that is no longer the case in these days of turmoil before the advent of the millenium. Perhaps the Baha'is whose lives are dominated by the desire to control and command the thoughts and beliefs of others have gained ascendancy and now rule the roost. Certainly the rampant censorship of numerous Baha'is on the internet by the Baha'i organization which has been reported would indicate such a sad trend. In a world of increasing openness and a place where everyone can now find a voice on the internet, the Baha'is have chosen to place themselves with such as the North Koreas of the world, with only officially sanctioned viewpoints allowed to speak.

I now find myself in the sad spectacle of seeing a faith that once taught so much love and understanding and compassion becoming now a muzzle stuffed in the mouths of those some would care not to hear, and now have the power to silence through their eccleastical offices.

Matthew Cromer

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: censored from s.r.b also on Sat, 6 Jun 1998
Date: Sunday, June 07, 1998 12:37 PM

Dear Mr. Cromer,

Thank you for your submission. I am returning it to you unposted as it appears to be more of a personal comment and does not elaborate on the current discussion nor does it have any link to the Baha'i Faith, which leaves it outside the charter of srb.

Sincerely,
S. Michele Smith
co-moderator
srb

-----Original Message-----

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
<soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net>
Date: Friday, June 05, 1998 1:41 PM
Subject: Re: why choose bahai faith?

In article <"kSDVmC.A._6C.N02d1"@bounty.bcca.org> Kent Johnson, compx2k@javanet.com writes:
>The trouble I have is that there are so few advantages now days offered by >the Faith. Those of us who grew up Baha'i in my day had some wonderful >examples to try to live up to. But these days the Baha'i pool has, it seems >to me, been diluted. I can't go to a Baha'i meeting any more and pick out >anyone at random and say I want my children to be like them.

If you look around you and all you see are people you don't admire and respect, perhaps you are in the wrong place.

Matthew Cromer

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Bahai "art"/hate mail #2
From: webmaster@iranvision.com
Date: 1997/07/08
Message-ID: <868398783.31710@dejanews.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,soc.rights.human,soc.culture.israel,soc.culture.iranian
[More Headers][Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]
In article <33C23917.1614@hotmail.com>,
FG@hotmail.com wrote:

>
> Bill & Jane Hyman wrote:
> >
> > I did not think much of F. Glaysher's posting to soc.religion.bahai on
> > "art". It did not portray the loving spirit which most of us have come > > to expect in this forum. I would like to volunteer to censor his future
> > postings. Bill Hyman
hymanfam@samoatelco.com
>
> No fascism here.... Hitler felt the same way about his "art."
>
> --
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

Censorship is the essence of Bahaism. As Bahauallah himself said those who oppose us are ignorant. Over and over my postings have been censored for sco.religion.bahai. They have spammed soc.culture.iranian with propaganda trash and yet censored every legitimate articles from poeple questioning their validity. I have also noticed all the anti-Bahai publications in my local library have gone missing. I would not be surprised if at some point they start to conduct book burning rituals to protect the faith.

"Thou shall flush the toilette at all times, after use, unless short of water"

Webmaster`u`llah

webmaster@iranvision.com

-----
Iran Culture and Information Center
<https://www.IranVision.com> Established January 1997
-----

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Harold Shinsato <shinsato@inxight.com>
To: bahai-faith@makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: Re: [bahai-faith] 1200+ hits: on "Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" in 1 month
Date: Monday, June 08, 1998 4:44 PM

Frederick,

I'm a newcomer to the Baha'i faith.

I've been reading your distribution list, about the censorship in the Baha'i Faith that is accepted by the House. And I can't help but wonder if there's something amiss in the state of Denmark.

The messages from Juan Cole are particularly condemning. What is the state of the Covenant? I've heard rumors that the writings predict a tribulation would come over the Baha'i Faith, and it certainly seems that is what is going on.

How could the House of Justice in anyway shape or form condone a restriction of independent spiritual investigation? I mean, to restrict a message because some of the words were in all capitals? To restrict a message about Esperanto simply because someone had written something about it before, even though the person was answering an inquiry.

There appears to be a near impregnable case for allowing Women on the UHJ. It's very suspicious that the Talisman list would be shut down because free inquiry demonstrated this to be so. From Juan Cole's description,

Abdul-Baha's disallowing of women on the UHJ was to address the contingencies of the time. If anything, it is extremely embarrassing in this day and age that women would not be allowed on the UHJ. What the heck is going on?

It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith, or this would have been ironed out long ago. And I think this is why there is so much interest in your website. If there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith, then the next step is to see if the interest in your website doesn't cause you to be branded a Covenant Breaker if you don't shut down the website or sanitize its content. If there isn't an oppression, then SRB should be opened up, and some dynamic free inquiry would be allowed, as the writings demand!

Thank you for doing what you are doing.

Harold Shinsato

FG wrote:

- >
- > I'm a little surprised by the amount of interest on my web site
- > during the last month.... It seems to be filling a real need among
- > Bahais and non-Bahais....
- >
- > Any suggestions?
- >
- > I just recently added several links to the UN and other organizations
- > interested in religious freedom and conscience and hope to
- > add a few more....
- >
- > Soon too I hope to be able to upload 15k+ of back email on
- > alt.religion.bahai and general discussion for talk.religion.bahai.
- > Much of it is available on dejanews.com but there's no telling
- > how long they'll preserve it and every effort should be made > to ensure it survives for study by future Bahai scholars....

>
> I suppose other scholars might find some of it interesting too....
>
> Well, anyway, those are at least a few things in the works, > so to speak.
>
> FG
> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc
>
> Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
> List Archive & Subscription:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
> Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>
> ----
> List Archive:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
> To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
> To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
> --
> Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !
----
List Archive:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at
<https://www.MakeList.com> !

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
To: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Re: Ad hominem attacks?
Date: Monday, June 08, 1998 5:23 PM

>Fred G. has asserted in many posts that the Soc.Religion.Bahai list >is moderated with a strong filter that blocks many of his messages, >and has responded with setting up his own list and web pages. OK, >that said, can we stop saying it and move on to what the original >point was, two years ago?

>

. . .

>

>I feel bad that Fred feels blocked, but, there are more important >problems in the world that need addressing, and interpersonal >attacks seem to me to simply hinder and distract the more important >processes of reaching agreement and consensus on the things we >DO agree with each other on. (syntax notwithstanding.)
>

Fred is of course, not the only person who is censored from posting to S.R.B.

I have had numerous posts of mine rejected from S.R.B. for what appears to be no other reason except that the censors do not want my point of view raised.

Matthew Cromer

Matthew Cromer
matthew_cromer@iname.com

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Rick Boatright <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bccca.org <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: censorship
Date: Monday, June 08, 1998 11:19 AM

Bounce: 1) No content which discusses the beliefs and teachings of the Baha'i Faith
2) Your web site still links to and advertises covenant breaker material.

Rick

[someone had posted on srb suggesting censorship might not be in the best interest of the bahai faith.]

**>
>
> It already exists and has for a very long time.... See my web site for > extensive documentation.... I would say more but it would only surely > be censored then. This brief note in itself will probably never see the > light of day on srb....
>
> FG
> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc
>
> Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
> List Archive & Subscription:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
> Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

> index.htm
>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: SRB <bahai-faith@bccca.org>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: SRB censored #3: 5-11-98
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 6:41 AM

-----Original Message-----

From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 12:40 AM
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith

>Dear Fred,
>I'm returning this to you unposted to soc.religion.bahai for once again >coming off as disrespectful.
>Thanks
>Teri Rhan
>trhan@serv.net
>Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai
>
>On Sat, 9 May 1998, FG wrote:
>
>>
>> Suzanne Gerstner wrote in message
>> <"JSgW1D.A.3MD.kryU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>>
>> I wrote:
>> >>The Baha'i faith is a beautiful dream on paper....
>> >
>> >
>> >The Baha'i Faith isn't just "a beautiful dream", it is the Faith of God >> >renewed for this new Age. As such, its forward march is unstoppable.
>>
>> That's the claim or theory but I don't see it as a reality.... Bahais >> have done a very effective job of stopping its forward march....
>>
>> >According to Shoghi Effendi, the only influence that its detractors can >> >have, ultimately, is a positive one -- that of purifying the Faith of >> >unwholesome elements and of kindling the fire of faith in the hearts of >> >its ardent supporters:
>>
>>
>> This interpretation is part of the problem, i.e., anyone who says >> anything other than the most predictable and mundane must be >> a miscreant....
>>
>> FG
>> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: S. Michele Smith <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: Baha'i SRB Moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: "Investigation" of Withdrawals (was Leaving Faith)
Date: Monday, June 08, 1998 2:03 AM

Dear Mr. Glaysher,

At the present time, it is the decision of the moderators of soc-religion-bahai not to include your URL signature. This decision has been made after much discussion and after having visited the site. While, as you state, you are not *responsible* for the contents of what gets posted to the two lists, or what others might say in the links included in your site, they do *in fact* contain materials or pointers to known Covenant Breakers. This is not allowable within the charter of soc-religion-bahai. Not one of the moderators of srb is insinuating anything, nor are we casting judgment on you. You are not being singled out, as there have been many other submissions which have been declined for similar reasons.

Your reference to the fact that there are any number of links that exist out there on the Internet that lead to CB material is a point well taken. However, please keep in mind that the charter of srb, and by default, the moderators, will make every effort to not publish any materials or possible links to those materials. In deleting your signature file, Mr. Hyman was, in fact, following the charter of srb, and not attempting to forge anything. That is his responsibility as a moderator. In future, we will, rather than deleting the sig file, return the submission to you unposted with the request that you edit it yourself. Mr. Hyman was simply trying to follow the charter while at the same time getting your submission posted in a timely fashion.

Please consider that any future submissions from you will not be posted if they contain the sig file. If you wish to include it, then we will return them to you for editing.

Sincerely,
S. Michele Smith
co-moderator
soc-religion-bahai

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org
<soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org>
Date: Sunday, June 07, 1998 7:24 PM
Subject: Re: "Investigation" of Withdrawals (was Leaving Faith)

Bill Collins wrote in message <"IrytsD.A.mxB.wCYe1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>
>I continue to be amazed at the paranoia that seems to possess so many people >in this age.

There's no paranoia, only observation of the way many Bahais operate in the Baha'i Faith.... Your last response here to a message of mine and the refusal of srb moderators to post my reply, now available on my web site, is the precisely the type of thing that leads many Bahais to realize how controlled and contrived much discussion and information is....

FG
Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com

List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Rick Boatright <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb-mods@bccca.org <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: "Investigation" of Withdrawals (was Leaving Faith)
Date: Monday, June 08, 1998 11:20 AM

Ditto

> Bill Collins wrote in message <"IrytsD.A.mxB.wCYe1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
> >
> >I continue to be amazed at the paranoia that seems to possess so many > people
> >in this age.
>
> There's no paranoia, only observation of the way many Bahais operate > in the Bahai Faith.... Your last response here to a message of mine > and the refusal of srb moderators to post my reply, now available on > my web site, is the precisely the type of thing that leads many Bahais > to realize how controlled and contrived much discussion and > information is....
>
> FG
> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc
>
> Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
> List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
> Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm
>
>
>
>
>
>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: M_Iman@my-dejanews.com <M_Iman@my-dejanews.com>
Subject: Re: SRB Forgery of my signature file
Date: Friday, June 05, 1998 9:02 PM

Roger wrote:

> You do make a good point about long signatures being accepted from > other individuals. IMHO, it would be best if there were a firm limit > on the length of signatures, with any exceeding that length to be > truncated or rejected for posting.
>
> Roger (rreini@wwnet.net)
> <https://fp-www.wwnet.net/~rreini/>
>

Dear Roger et al,

I don't think the issue for moderators has ever really been the length of sig. files despite the claims being tallied back and forth. I posted a couple of regular posters' longer sig. files to show that length of four or five lines of text isn't a consideration when moderating posts.

From memory Bill never mentioned the length of the sig. file being a problem, it was always because he felt it contravened his SRB moderator's code of ethics because it had a pointer to a mailing list that posted CB material. I feel this is a poor excuse however; because of a mere reference to a mailing list on the bottom of a sig. file that has the *opportunity* for CBs to post their material, I don't feel is a reasonable excuse for banning a pointer to the mailing list. Any CB can post to talk.religion.misc, alt.religion.bahai, MCD (a mailing list I used to belong to), they can fork out money and buy an ad in the Sunday Times if they want to - and no one would think of removing reference to these groups or forms of media. Not to mention Fred's mailing list is not set up for the sole purpose of propagating CB material, he simply doesn't disallow them avenue to speak on it AND it should be remembered that Baha'is are NOT forbidden from reading CB material, they are strongly discouraged! So this is, in my very humble opinion, a smokescreen.

Whatever the reasons for clipping Fred's sig. file, all these excuses I think are not valid, they are excuses put forth in hindsight because Fred made a fuss.

I don't think Fred will get an apology or a re-post, so for my mind, the iss> <input type=

-----= Posted via Deja News, The Leader in Internet Discussion =====
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Now offering spam-free web-based newsreading

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED
Date: Thursday, June 11, 1998 7:57 AM

In article
<7E5C1E324C494E80.0CD84DA21B4C4F45.DAA44BB59B25097B@library-proxy.airne
s.net> John Noland, dno543@airmail.net writes:
>Nobody is forced to become a Baha'i, and nobody is forced to remain a Baha'i.

And with the present downward trend towards censorship, denigration of free discourse, and the like, it is no surprise that in the enlightened countries of the world where intellectual freedom is well understood many people are leaving the faith because of this issue and many more are never joining at all.

The >leadership of the Baha'i Faith is elected, they didn't seize their positions.

I won't go into the long off-topic morass of a debate of whether or not an "election" justifies anything.

Suffice it to say that this elected body which advocates censorship, which attacks free discourse, and which excommunicates all critics is creating a credibility problem for the Baha'is in the eyes of the world. This is the kind of religious organization we expect from the Scientologists, not the Baha'is.

There are >administrative channels to properly handle any Baha'i's concerns or complaints.

So you say. I guess the question is what is "proper" handling.

Yes, the Baha'i religion has avoided schism for the most part. However, the Baha'i religion has also avoided growth, dynamism, and has increasingly driven away its most intellectual, its most creative, and its most dynamic members because of the issue of a refusal to allow frank consultation of the issues, censorship, using the "covenant breaker" threat, usually whispered behind the back, as a thought control technique, and other sins against the developed conscience.

>AFAIK, the >UHJ is purely a legislative body and will never have any power to persecute people.

Except Baha'is. Spiritual persecution is still a form of persecution in my opinion.

I compared the ideas of censorship to those of the totalitarians. Obviously the totalitarians are far worse because there is no escaping their wrath by voluntary withdrawal. However, the "virtues" of censorship are espoused by both--a fact that ought to be acknowledged.

In a world where free and open discourse are the watchwords of all progress, it ought to bother people when a body advocates the exact opposite approach as an ideal to be implemented. Especially when the Baha'i scriptures themselves advocate honest open frank consultation.

>

>Every Baha'i has both rights AND responsibilities. One of those responsibilities is to be >faithful to the Covenant. This includes not questioning or criticizing the decisions of >the Universal House of Justice. The UHJ is a divinely appointed institution and is >promised by Baha'u'llah to be guided by God and free from all error.

I'd like to see a reference for that.

As someone who is not a Baha'i any longer and is looking to judge institutions by their fruits rather than by claims of infallibility, I see some serious problems with the Baha'i leadership today.

Unfortunately if you are a Baha'i you cannot discuss this, you are not allowed to think for yourself, you are forced to espouse the party line. Censorship is truth. War is Peace.

Basically, if a >Baha'i questions the UHJ, then they are questioning God.

I question God all the time and sometimes I tell God I think her decisions stink. So far the heavens haven't been cleft asunder nor have any lightening bolts fallen.

I think that God is willing to work with people and listen to their complaints, unlike the UHJ apparently.

BTW, did you know that you are not supposed to say "UHJ", the censors have decreed that saying "UHJ" is not properly respectful. I'd suggest you refrain from doing so any longer before someone in an official capacity lets you know.

I think all Baha'is are aware of >this and feel that the statement above from the UHJ is perfectly appropriate.

And the myriad who do have a problem with it have, of course, left the Baha'i religion or never joined because they don't believe in thought control.

>

>I don't know what motivated you to compare the UHJ to North Korea or Cuba or Nazi Germany >(of all things).

The comparison of those who praise censorship as having positive and healthy results is obvious. I am only comparing the advocacy of censorship here, and suggesting that when the only others except for the Baha'i leadership who will stand up for a principle are the scum of the earth, perhaps the principle is, shall we say, flawed. Not that in other ways the leadership is equal to dictators.

As a Baha'i, I believe the UHJ will always act in the best interest of >the Faith and not in the personal interests of its members.

Of course you believe that, if you ever express doubts you risk getting drummed right out of the Baha'i religion.

Your entire spiritual experience which includes the Baha'i component you have identified with absolute belief in the orthodoxy of the Baha'i religion, as I once did. The idea that certain teachings of the Baha'i orthodoxy are in fact wrong is unthinkable to you--it threatens everything you value in your spiritual life and your relationship with God. Therefore you cannot judge anything which comes to you from the UHJ on its merits--you must applaud every act in every metaphoric play, you must cheerlead every censorship, every ruling is divinely ordained, every critic must be cast out, every disagreement must be squelched, the emperor is wearing fabulous luxuriant fabrics, silks, and gold, he is not naked, even if you think you see bare flesh it is in fact that you misunderstand, that is not really bare flesh, you just have to have more faith and if you were a truly spiritual person you would see the luxurious flowing purple robes. Censorship is good. Yeah. Right.

I'm sorry you feel >differently. I wish you well in resolving any bitterness you feel toward the Faith.

I am not bitter about the faith. I am pissed off that I am not allowed to post to S.R.B. because the "moderators" do not want my viewpoint represented. Therefore I am essentially banned from electronic dialogue with Baha'is because most of them do not read alt.religion.bahai. I am saddened at the fact that thinking Baha'is are leaving in droves because they can no longer stomach the gut-wrenching contradictions of, on the one hand, a scripture which advocates truthfulness, honesty, and frank consultation, and on the other hand a religious leadership which will brook no dissent nor critical dialogue whatsoever. Baha'u'llah has a lot to teach the world but appearantly the Baha'i leadership hasn't learned much of it yet.

Matthew

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: George & Marlana <geomar@ctaz.com>
To: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
Cc: baha-faith@makelist.com <baha-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: Re: [baha-faith] Leaving Faith (fwd)
Date: Friday, May 08, 1998 1:29 AM

Dear Teri,

If you would take the time to read Fred's entire message including the last line which says: "The Baha'i faith is a beautiful dream on paper..." you would see that he ended his statement with (...) which indicates to me and uncompleted thought. This uncompleted thought has relevance to the subject under discussion ie. leaving the Baha'i faith. Fred's further explaining would (I feel) indeed further the discussion.

George

-----Original Message-----

From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: geomar <geomar>
Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods>
Date: Thursday, May 07, 1998 9:59 PM
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith (fwd)

>Dear George,

>I'm returning your message to you unposted to soc.religion.bahai as it appears more as personal email and does not further the discussion on this topic. You can contact Fred directly at FG@hotmail.com.

>Thank you for participating,

>Teri Rhan

>trhan@serv.net

>Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai

>

>----- Forwarded message -----

>Date: Thu, 7 May 1998 14:33:56 -0700

>From: George & Marlana <geomar@ctaz.com>

>To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net

>Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai

>Subject: Re: Leaving Faith

>

>Dear Frederick,

>Would you please continue with your thought? I am interested in hearing your >comments further. You seemed to stop before you were finished. Please go on.

>george

>

>FG wrote in message

<"q9z-ED.A.t6.0BdU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>>

>>CHRISTOPHER ERIK NASON wrote in message

>><"lyIdyC.A.3d.o0nT1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>>

>>> I also have to say good-bye to the Baha'i Faith, as I can no longer >>>stand the supremacist attitudes of many of the members, the >>>evangelicism and hypocrisy.

>>

>>

>>You're probably making the best decision.... I believe your >>evaluation of the attitudes of many Bahais today is quite >>accurate, though few will admit it....
>>
>>What you call evangelicism, I would call fanaticism and >>extremism. I agree with you that there's plenty of hypocrisy, >>so much it's appalling....
>>
>>The Bahai faith is a beautiful dream on paper....
>>
>>FG
>>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
>>List Archive & Subscription:
https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/
>>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>>
>>
>>
>
>
>
>

----
List Archive: https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at https://www.MakeList.com !

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED
Date: Thursday, June 11, 1998 8:21 PM

In article
<BE87A0AFA64C1267.6F4EF5227DE466FF.B8B456E26E1FAEB2@library-proxy.airne s.net> Tapioca, seemo@cyberremp.net writes:
>Howdy Matthew,
>
>I wrote,
>
>>>Every Baha'i has both rights AND responsibilities. One of those >>>responsibilities is to be faithful to the Covenant. This includes not >>>questioning or criticizing the decisions of the Universal House of >>>Justice. The UHJ is a divinely appointed institution and is promised by >>>Baha'u'llah to be guided by God and free from all error.
>
>You responded,
>
>>I'd like to see a reference for that.
>
>>As someone who is not a Baha'i any longer and is looking to judge >>institutions by their fruits rather than by claims of infallibility, I >>see some serious problems with the Baha'i leadership today.
>
>Here is the reference from the Will and Testament of `Abdul-Baha,
>
>The sacred and youthful branch, the guardian of the Cause of God as well as the Universal >House of Justice, to be universally elected and established, are both under the care and >protection of the Abha Beauty, under the shelter and unerring guidance of His Holiness, >the Exalted One (may my life be offered up for them both). Whatsoever they decide is of >God (page 11).
>
>...and now, concerning the House of Justice which God hath ordained as the source of all >good and freed from all error, it must be elected by universal suffrage, that is, by the >believers.

You see your quote about the House of Justice comes from Abdul-Baha' and not Baha'u'llah, although this is a quibble.

Frankly, I don't see Abdul-Baha' nor Baha'u'llah as infallible, and therefore I believe the imposition of a theocracy as a mistake. But that is neither here nor there.

>>BTW, did you know that you are not supposed to say "UHJ", the censors >>have decreed that saying "UHJ" is not properly respectful. I'd suggest >>you refrain from doing so any longer before someone in an official >>capacity lets you know.
>
>There aren't any censors on alt.religion.bahai. Unlike SRB it is unmoderated and doesn't >abide by a charter. But you're right, it is disrespectful. :)

However rest assured the Baha'i censors can and will see your posts here.

>
>I've snipped most of your text simply to shorten the reply. You've made some good points.
>In your original letter, I thought the comparisons you made were far too extreme, to say >the least. I don't have any personal experience with most of these things. I've never had >my opinion censored and I've never been the victim of any clandestine character >assinations and I've never been wrongly accused of being a covenant breaker. Had I >experienced these things, I would probably be able to at least empathize.

I never had these things happen to me, they did happen to other people I know. I had less terrible things happen to me--minor persecution by comparison.

>
>I'll briefly give my opinion on each of these issues. The censorship on SRB at >the present >time appears excessive and seems to go beyond just sticking to the charter. I believe the >complaints being voiced about the moderators are legitimate. I don't see this as an >unsolvable problem, but the different parties involved need to talk to each other in a >productive manner, not just trade barbs back and forth. No problem has ever >been solved in >such a manner, and the status quo almost always prevails by default. In this case, that >would be the SRB moderators.

I disagree with the entire principle of having soc.religion.bahai be moderated for content. I feel that it is a grave mistake to do so. However I cannot argue--the fundamentalist Baha'is own that newsgroup and they have the right to censor it as they see fit.

On the unmoderated newsgroups the word gets out however, and that word is not flattering to the censors.

I will probably start posting to the talk.religion.misc about the kinds of censorship that Baha'is practice on soc.religion.bahai and in the larger Baha'i orthodoxy.

It would also be helpful if the moderators took the >initiative to post an FAQ and a copy of the charter on a regular basis.

I don't have the time to deal with the content censors--I am not going to reword my posts, send them in again, ask the censors what happens to my posts that never get a response nor get approved, etc. I have zero faith in their good intentions to promote frank consultation on that group--I have better things to do with my time than write articles that the censors are going to throw into the trash heap.

>
>The second issue is far more serious and demands far more community-wide >attention than it >is currently getting. We all know how the Writings portray back-biting and calumny.
>They're really, really bad. I think it's high time the administration got serious about >doing something about this. No individual Baha'i has the right to defame another Baha'i.
>And accusing another Baha'i of covenant breaking is most serious. Administration should >first warn and then impose sanctions against Baha'is guilty of such abhorrent behaviour.

Except that many of those engaging in this practice are members of the administration, which is about what one would expect. People who seek out positions of power and authority over others, whether in religious or political circles, are typically the worst of men in character, not the best.

>If members of administrative bodies are doing these things themselves, this is >information >that needs to be disseminated and acted upon either by the Universal House of Justice or >individual Baha'is at election time. Keeping in mind, of course, that accusation without >proof is nothing more than gossip.

When high-ranking members of the Baha'i religious authority such as councillors, National members, and the like start making accusations about someone's firmness in the covenant, you can expect the rank and file Baha'is to treat said member as if she was sprayed from head to toe with skunk juice.

>
>Now back to censorship in the Faith as a whole. I don't think anybody sees >censorship as a >virtue. I believe we should all be able to openly and fully discuss issues concerning the >Faith. I believe this can be done without openly criticizing the people serving on >National Spiritual Assemblies or the Universal House of Justice or those institutions >themselves. There is a boundary there that we should all willingly respect.

Since Juan is no longer a Baha'i, he no longer feels the duty to claim that a wolf in the Baha'i administration who fell upon him and his friends with gaping jaws of enmity is anything but a savage predator, nor does he feel inclined to pass over the sins of that man in dealing with them.

Don't get me >wrong, I mean this boundary to apply strictly to matters concerning legislation >within the >scope of the Faith itself and I think the administration's affairs should be carried out >in full view with no secrecy. I don't think these people should be able to hide behind >their positions if their personal behaviour isn't up to the standards we >expect. If people >are being punished or hurt in some way for behaviour that falls within these boundaries, >then I think we have a definite problem that needs to be addressed.

>
>Another thing that seems to me to be relevant is that the administrative bodies should be >able to deal with Baha'is that are putting forth misinformation about the Faith. This >seems to be an issue of putting the Faith's best interest above the individual Baha'is >interest. Here, the line is not so clear. The case of Talisman comes to mind, as I have >great difficulty determining if there are clear-cut examples of wrong-doing on >either side >of this issue. There were people who obviously crossed the line by calling other Baha'is >covenant breakers and on the other side people wantonly criticized the Universal House of >Justice. IMO, that sort of behaviour is inexcusable.

The problem which I know you believe is not a problem, is that if a body sets itself up as the voice of God, believes itself to be the voice of God, infallible, and the like, and calls all criticism as unfaith and the voice of wrong, that body can find itself wandering astray in the morass of error and unable to see its way out because it refuses to listen to those who can see the predicament. The wholehearted adoption of censorship as a strategy by the Baha'i Administration, enforced by expulsion, is a spiritual dead-end IMHO and the Baha'i community is feeling the effects of this spiritual decay, again IMO.

I believe both sides were in the >right to some extent and both were wrong to some extent. But, both sides also appeared to >earnestly believe they were acting in the best interest of the Faith. I believe the >biggest problem was that both sides displayed a great deal of ego and very little >humility.

Why should the representatives of absolute truth, freed from all error, act humbly? They literally have a spiritual license to refuse to listen, and to demand obedience from all.

I wish Baha'u'llah and Abdu'l Baha had realized the fatal flaws of creating a theocratic succession after their deaths. Yes it has avoided schism but at what cost?

>As I said before, I have no personal experience with these things to draw upon. I try to >empathize as best I can from what I read around the Internet, but it's difficult. The >Baha'i Faith is my religion and my life, I can't imagine voluntarily withdrawing from it >no matter how dire the circumstances.

I couldn't imagine it either, but I found that, in the final analysis, the words "Baha'i Faith" were cheaper than my very real life and very real soul and very real relationship with the absolute.

When truth demands I give up my most precious beliefs, I eventually gave it up, kicking and screaming on the way.

I try my best to understand your point of view, but >I always naturally return to the opinion that the answer to our problems is each of us >striving to live our lives as true Baha'is.

For me, the words and concepts of "Baha'i" or "non-Baha'i", "Believer" and "infidel" are a veil between myself and the divine.

Matthew Cromer

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>

Subject: Re: Where LIBERTY is LIMITED

Date: Thursday, June 11, 1998 10:12 PM

In article <6lq13s$nj9$1@news.eli.net> George & Marlana, geomar@ctaz.com writes:

>Matthew Cromer wrote in message <6logmo$37s$1@samsara0.mindspring.com>...

>>In article

>><7E5C1E324C494E80.0CD84DA21B4C4F45.DAA44BB59B25097B@library-proxy.airne

>>s.net> John Noland, dno543@airmail.net writes:

>>>Nobody is forced to become a Baha'i, and nobody is forced to remain a >Baha'i.

>>

>>And with the present downward trend towards censorship, denigration of >>free discourse, and the like, it is no surprise that in the enlightened >>countries of the world where intellectual freedom is well understood many >>people are leaving the faith because of this issue and many more are >>never joining at all.

>

>

>Would you please list the statistical sources for this statement?

>

>(snip)

Juan posted that there are 60K Baha'is in the United States that identify themselves as Baha'is. This is no increase from 10 years ago, nor from 20 years ago for that matter.

>

>

>

>>Yes, the Baha'i religion has avoided schism for the most part. However, >>the Baha'i religion has also avoided growth, dynamism, and has >>increasingly driven away its most intellectual, its most creative, and >>its most dynamic members because of the issue of a refusal to allow frank >>consultation of the issues, censorship, using the "covenant breaker" >>threat, usually whispered behind the back, as a thought control >>technique, and other sins against the developed conscience.

>

>

>Would you please list the statistical sources for the above statement?

Of course I cannot give statistics on the number of dynamic, intellectual members who have left or been driven out, but I will name a few names:

K. Paul Johnson (author)

Juan Cole

Linda Waldbridge

Matthew Cromer (myself), certainly an intellectual, although I won't flatter myself my claiming to be in the same class with the previous three.

I can name dozens of "inactive" Baha'is who don't want anything to do with the Baha'i community who have become inactive for the same kinds of reasons.

I'm sure others here can come up with more people who have withdrawn--Juan Linda and myself left/were driven out in the last few years.

>
>(snip)
>
>>In a world where free and open discourse are the watchwords of all >>progress, it ought to bother people when a body advocates the exact >>opposite approach as an ideal to be implemented. Especially when the >>Baha'i scriptures themselves advocate honest open frank consultation.
>
>
>Sorry, I can't seem to find the quotes you used from the Universal House of >Justice that would show this conflict.

The quote is at the very beginning of this thread. To wit:

"In the Kitab-i-Aqdas Baha'u'llah states: "We approve of liberty in certain circumstances, and refuse to sanction it in other." One area in which LIBERTY is LIMITED in the Baha'i community is that governing methods and channels for the expression of CRITICISM..."

-The Universal House of Justice, letter dated 2 July 1996 to an individual believer

This quote obviously displays a misunderstanding of the principle of honest and frank consultation.

>
>(snip)
>
>>Unfortunately if you are a Baha'i you cannot discuss this, you are not >>allowed to think for yourself, you are forced to espouse the party line.
>>Censorship is truth. War is Peace.
>
>
>
>I never knew that. Could you tell me where that is written?

Simple. If you repeatedly question the established Baha'i authorities on an issue, you are quite likely to get thrown out of the faith or be declared a covenant breaker, unless you resign. Ask Juan Cole, he has personal experience with this.

Also, Baha'is are not allowed to publish anything about the faith without having their works vetted by the "proper" authorities. Ask Juan Cole about this if you have any questions.

>
>(snip)
>
>Thanks for your help.
>George

You are most welcome.

Matthew Cromer
>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: SRB <bahai-faith@bccca.org>; bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: [bahai-faith] Bill Hyman's specious reasoning and excuses for censorship
Date: Saturday, June 27, 1998 9:44 PM

Your unjust actions against me are clearly intended to prevent others from even hearing about the existence of my web site and preventing them, as srb has done in the past, from knowing about the interest polls for talk.religion.bahai.

I shall therefore continue emailing every single new poster to soc.religion.bahai until I am permitted to post to srb using the signature file of my choice. Since you and the other "moderators" have hardened your hearts, obstinately clinging to your censorious ways, seeking always new devices to justify your infamy, I see no alternative but to resist and circumvent your tyranny....

"If he exercises his anger and wrath against the bloodthirsty tyrants who are like ferocious beasts, it is very praiseworthy...."
Abdul-Baha, SAQ, 215

FG
Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

-----Original Message-----

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: bahai-faith@makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Cc: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Sunday, June 28, 1998 5:13 PM
Subject: [bahai-faith] Glaysersham

Dear Mr. Glaysher:
You were informed by one of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai that your submissions would be accepted if they conformed to its charter. It was considered against the charter to advertise your web-site which points to another web-site which has pointers to Covenant Breaker material. This was checked and confirmed by the srb moderating team. The bahai-faith@makelist.com address, which was also in your latest signature, has posted Covenant Breaker material so advertising this address was also considered to be against the charter. All you have to do is change your present "signature" and your submissions to soc.religion.bahai will be assessed, as are all submissions, to confirm that they meet the requirements of the charter.

I hope that if you do get TRB approved that you are able to find a way to prevent CB material being posted. I will vote against it unless this is guaranteed. Give me that guarantee, and I will vote for it.
Bill Hyman

Date: Sat, 27 Jun 1998 09:56:39 -0400
From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com> Add to Address Book Subject: [bahai-faith] "Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience"
To: "bahai-faith @ makelist.com"
<bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Reply To: bahai-faith@makelist.com

[The following message has been sent this morning to 75 people who have posted to soc.religion.bahai since Bill Hyman imposed his censorship on my signature file, thereby effectively banning me from srb and isolating these Bahais in a cult-like manner.]

I am emailing you directly because the moderators of soc.religion.bahai have censored my signature file, effectively banning me from srb, in an apparent effort to prevent you from hearing about the existence of my web site and the approaching third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai after August 28th.

More information about their decision can be found at

srb22.htm

Permit me to mention for those who might be interested that my web site "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience" focuses on the opposition of many Bahais to the religious freedom commended by Abdul-Baha. The site also includes extensive material relating to the two Usenet interest polls for talk.religion.bahai and censorship at
soc.religion.bahai:

index.htm

A mailing list has also been created for those without access to the alt.* hierarchy: bahai-faith@makelist.com

--
FG
Usenet: alt.religion.bahai & talk.religion.misc

Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com

List Archive & Subscription:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm

----
List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com

--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

©1995-1998 WhoWhere? Inc. All Rights Reserved.

Get your FREE, private e-mail account at <https://www.mailcity.com>

----
List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

----
List Archive: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
To Subscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
To Unsubscribe: e-mail to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com
--
Start Your Own Free Mailing List at <https://www.MakeList.com> !

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Fw: 3rd RFD sent to David Lawrence
Date: Friday, June 19, 1998 11:03 AM

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: musman1@aol.com <musman1@aol.com>
Date: Sunday, January 04, 1998 11:42 AM
Subject: Fw: 3rd RFD sent to David Lawrence

>Here's your message to me. I never saw it posted to news.groups so I >suppose it was strictly private email. I think it would help a lot for >others, >Bahais and non-Bahais, to hear your views.... Too often I'm the lone >voice with only an occasional person sharing their experiences with >the Baha'i Faith.....

>
>FG
>UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
>The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, >news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>
>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: MusMan1 <musman1@aol.com>
>Newsgroups: news.groups
>To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
>Date: Saturday, December 27, 1997 12:41 PM
>Subject: Re: 3rd RFD sent to David Lawrence
>

>
>>Thanks for putting an RFD for talk.religion.bahai in.
>>I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of >consistent >>censorship.
>>One of the reasons why I left the faith is that there was consistent peer >>pressure to do as we were told. I can understand being told outright to do >>something; once it's out in the open, I can accept or reject that without >>feeling like an immature baby. People understand that perhaps obeying open >>orders might violate one's conscience. But subtle peer pressure to >conform - >>when you don't even know you're being pressured to do so - is what gives me
>the >>willies. I am afraid that mainstream Baha'is might be subtly coerced to >violate >>their consciences (not to mention unwritten Internet policy, which is >actually >>written explicitly in many Internet books for newbies) and "stack the deck"
>or
>>"vote Chicago style - early and often" against talk.religion.bahai.
>>Thanks again.
>>Robin Peters
>>
>>
>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Milissa Boyer Kafes <mbkafes@bestweb.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: "Bahai Hate Mail" page added PRIVATE MSG
Date: Monday, June 22, 1998 10:13 PM

Hi Fred--

sure you can post it if you really think it would help anything.

Peace

MBK

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: Milissa Boyer Kafes <mbkafes@bestweb.net>
Date: Monday, June 22, 1998 7:04 AM
Subject: Re: "Bahai Hate Mail" page added PRIVATE MSG

>May I repost your message for the benefit of >others? I believe it could help both Bahais and non-Bahais >a lot....

>

>

>-----Original Message-----

>From: Milissa Boyer Kafes <mbkafes@bestweb.net>
>To: FG <fglaysh@hotmail.com>
>Date: Thursday, June 18, 1998 7:58 PM
>Subject: Re: "Bahai Hate Mail" page added PRIVATE MSG

>

>

>>Hi Frederick--

>>

>>you must have the thickest skin in the universe!

>>

>>Anyway, I don't know why you bother. For me, I have posted a couple of >>times on soc.religion.bahai and have gotten a couple of nasty emails and it

>>just ruins my whole day! If I were you I would have given up.

>>

>>Don't you think you would be happier as a non-Baha'i? I mean you just seem >>so hurt and angry all the time. I can relate to that. It just hurts me

to >>witness.

>>

>>Btw, are you officially still a Baha'i? If you are, I worry that your >>webpage could get you into trouble. I don't want to see you declared a CB.

>>Maybe its time to move on.

>>

>>Just some thoughts from a sympathetic Baha'i

>>

>>Love

>>Milissa

>>

>>*****

>>* ".....who could imagine.....

>>*

>>* that you would freak out, somewhere in Kansas....." *

>>*

```
>>*
>>*
>>*
>>**
>>
>>
>>
>
```

--Frank Zappa

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: YU ZIR <YUZIR@webtv.net>
Subject: Re: Freedom of Choice
Date: Tuesday, June 23, 1998 7:26 PM

I agree with George that SRB should not have to post anything its moderators don't wish to post. I'll go even farther. They should not even be asked to do so.

But SRB should be honest about its policies. If they don't wish to publish material from (or even relating to) CBs, or whomever else, they should just say so, in their policy, their charter, or whatever.

In my case, I was left feeling that I had been jerked around. I was asked to "re-word" my submission on what I felt were specious grounds, when in fact it was my defense of St Paul against unjust accusations (I had seen posted in SRB) that was the real problem.

In the few interchanges I had with Bill H, I found him to possess a politically correct humorlessness (IMHO), with which I could not establish any rapport despite my best efforts. Lighten up, Bill!

I must say that SRB is the nicest NG I've ever been kicked out of. I just wish they had done it without jerking me around first.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: YU ZIR <YUZIR@webtv.net>
Subject: Re: Freedom of Choice
Date: Friday, June 26, 1998 6:25 PM

Bill Brewer's confidence in the Baha'i institutions is all well and fine. As I said in a previous post, SRB is the nicest NG I've ever been thrown out of.

But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address. The moderators at SRB probably do a generally good job in most instances. Their efforts and hard work will be appreciated by anyone who has never run afoul of them. We might liken this to most people's attitude toward the police. We all love them, until (may this never happen to you) we encounter that rare cop who abuses his authority. Suddenly, the entire institution of the law takes up for the bad cop, since no one in that institution wishes to believe that cops can go bad (even though they know in the abstract that it happens). This subjects the abused, loyal citizen to extreme stress.

In Fred's case I speculate, (since it happened to me), the milk went sour early on in the interchanges with SRB, and particularly with Bill H. In my case, my attempts to ameliorate the hostility that I sensed from Bill H were, as I perceived it, rebuffed by him. No problem for me. My response was simple and effective: to walk away from SRB and post on ARB.

Fred Glaysher's situation may be more difficult since he regards himself as one of the faithful, and therefore feels more keenly the sting of injustice. Or maybe not, I'm just guessing.

My personal impression of SRB is that it is in the hands of cadre loyalists who can be adequately defended on the technical letter of the law, but who really do as much as they can get away with to discourage those of us who make cogent arguments they don't like. That would cause me discomfort if an organization I belong to did that.

If you're comfortable with SRB, support it. Just don't cross them.

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Matthew Cromer <matthew_cromer@iname.com>
Subject: Re: soc.religion.bahai - RFD/CFV
Date: Wednesday, June 24, 1998 9:19 PM

In article
<35395B99B5D83D99.95966FF9CE1223C2.E2AA0742210EDEF4@library-proxy.airne
s.net> John Noland, dno543@airmail.net writes:
>The newsgroup would be subject to standards of Baha'i consultation, a >decision-making process whose salient features include frank yet >respectful statement of views and the concerted, open-minded search >for truth. In practice, the moderators would reject personal attacks >(flames) directed at individual posters, similarly inflammatory >attacks directed at religious institutions, and articles which use >offensive language. These guidelines are intended to regulate only >the tone of the discussions, and not their contents.

The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with or which they feel they can present or respond to in a positive light, rejecting posts they feel put the faith in a bad light. No open-minded search for truth.

Matthew Cromer

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: Robin M Peters <tx200@juno.com>
Subject: Re: third RFD on talk.religion.bahai
Date: Monday, January 05, 1998 7:53 AM

Post this to news.groups and alt.religion.bahai, if you have access to the alt.* hierarchy....

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>

-----Original Message-----

From: Robin M Peters <tx200@juno.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, January 05, 1998 1:10 AM
Subject: Re: third RFD on talk.religion.bahai

>I'm replying to your recent email to MusMan1@aol.com, using my Juno >account for a change (just because I feel like it).
>You have a point; although many Baha'is are sincere in their beliefs, I >find the vast majority of my former Baha'i compadres to be somewhat >easily led by the NSA and worry about them for that reason. I mean, the >NSA could tell them that the moon is made of green cheese, and they'd >believe it. I don't mean to backbite - I'm sorry if it comes off that way >(I don't like to spread rumors any more than the next person, any more >than I like being the subject of false rumors) - but it seems to me >almost a fact of the universe that many Baha'is give up their critical >thinking skills when it comes time to examine the holy writings of their >faith or the dictates of their relevant NSA. That's why I think >talk.religion.bahai is so valuable. And that's why I decided to say what >I did about bringing out the vote, Chicago style (believe me, I am a >native of suburban Chicago - a lifelong native at that - and I feel I >know whereof I speak!).
>Robin Peters
>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: hart@lycosemail.com <hart@lycosemail.com>
To: Talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Catch-22 in Faith
Date: Monday, December 22, 1997 6:18 PM

Hello Talisman,

I was a Baha'i for about 21 years and have since gone on to other things in my independent investigation of the truth. I still have much good will toward the Faith and I would like to make an observation:

I feel the Baha'i Faith is in a Catch-22 situation, certainly in the United States, and possibly in other countries as well. By this I mean that the very fact that the 'real' membership in the Faith in the U. S. is so low (anywhere from about 30,000 to 80,000 depending on the source of the statistics) hampers its growth. From my experience, most people who are in the market for a new religion are looking for a lot more than religious 'truth' and challenging dogma when they choose a religion. Many are looking for a religious community where they can feel security, companionship, as well as explore spiritual matters. Many can overlook various problems they may have with what they perceive as the 'truth' of a religion (or lack thereof) and the dogma, as long as the above qualities are present. Often potential converts to the Faith, when they learn of the extremely low numbers, decide that they do not want to be, in essence, 'pioneers'. They want companionship, a certain degree of security, and a candid and open-minded atmosphere where they can discuss things freely.

During my time as a Baha'i, I saw potential converts lied to by Baha'is regarding the membership of the Faith. The Baha'is, especially the Baha'i leadership, have always grossly inflated the 'official' numbers in order to present an inaccurate picture to the world (as well as to individuals considering conversion) and to make the Faith seem much more successful and influential than it really is. The Faith is really a 'footnote' religion, in my view, and all the peace/race unity statements and p. r. in the world will not change this.

I do not know how to solve the above problem, except to be completely honest and open to the public and to people who may be interested in the Faith. It does little good to 'hide' things regarding the Faith that may be unpleasant or misunderstood, intending to reveal these things later when the new Baha'i has been in the Faith for a few years. If people feel that they've had the wool pulled over their eyes, they will leave or become disenchanted. Believe me, I observed this phenomenon over and over during my years as a Baha'i.

These are just some friendly observations from someone who is familiar with Baha'i matters. Wishing everyone the best. Shalom. Scott

---

Get FREE personalized email at <https://www.lycosemail.com>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Teri Rhan <trhan@serv.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: srb moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith
Date: Monday, May 11, 1998 12:47 AM

Dear Fred,

This is nothing more than pure flame bait. Please leave the broad generalizations and criticisms out, and stick with the charter. This newsgroup is for the discussion of the Baha'i Faith and it's teachings in a consultative and respectful manner, not a grievence forum. Provide some real facts and back them up with the Writings.

Thanks

Teri Rhan

trhan@serv.net

Co-moderator, soc.religion.bahai

On Sat, 9 May 1998, FG wrote:

>
> William Collins wrote in message <"ti6gJB.A.JhD.IVzU1"@bounty.bcca.org>...
>
> This is no less true
> >of those who find their meaning in endless criticism of Baha'i > >institutions and of committed believers.
>
> The context within which you set any kind of criticism or opinion
> other than what you think justifiable and appropriate obscures
> the issues that cause the criticism in the first place. An approach > employed by many Bahais....
>
> And if those who hold to > >extremes are committed to continuing in those > >directions, the end results are retarded growth of the community, and/or > >the withdrawal of individuals or application of > >sanctions to them.
>
>
> As is your blaming the individuals or victims....
>
> >It appears to me to be an unhealthy pattern in anyone's life to fix upon > >discontent, and then to be consumed with communicating > >that discontent to others - especially to those with whom one is willing > >to be continually angry.
>
> Abdul-Baha himself said that angry can serve the good.... There > is such a phrase in English, "righteous anger," for wrongs suffered > unjustly, wrongs that those who care about the Bahai Teachings > ought to want to see corrected if they have any sense of justice....
>
> If the Baha'i community, its > >institutions, and the believers are as hypocritical, fanatical, > >ungenerous, misguided and critical as portrayed by many of those > >who post here, then why waste the precious days of your short lives > >mired in lashing out at the them? Why not find something > >else more fulfilling?

>
> Again, the typical Bahai approach.... Drive out or banish anyone > who doesn't conform or agree with prevailing opinion.... This > opinion also fails to perceive that there is much of importance
> the Bahai Faith needs to learn from many of its critics or voices > of conscience....
>
> The only other alternative is to arise and model > >for others the kind of Baha'i life you think Baha'is should > >lead, rather than telling the Baha'is how bad they are. Being > >constantly possessed of a critical spirit is self-destructive.
>
> The Voice in the Wilderness is usually the one humankind needs
> the most.... The Bahai Faith is no different....
>
> >
> >In the cyberworld that has opened up the possibility for people to put > >all of their immediate and unprocessed feelings up in > >print, it might also prove useful for those who post in response to the > >naysayers to ponder a few things. Does the person who > >blames the Baha'i institutions, community and believers for various > >failures actually want a dialogue, or simply a confirmation > >that he's right? Perhaps the best response to the angry words and > >criticism is no written response at all, but a continued > >demonstration of wisdom, and a willingness to follow the lived example > >of 'Abdul-Baha, who loved everyone but did not > >legitimize everyone's actions and words.
>
> The answer of many Bahais: ostracism....
>
> >
> >Since the founding of various internet discussion groups a few years > >ago, I have observed them carefully, both in the Baha'i > >context, and in the context of other religions and disciplines. Except > >for very tightly controlled discussion groups (and > >soc-religion.bahai is not so tightly controlled),
>
> In my opinion, it is tightly controlled. See my new web site, > alt.religion.bahai, or bahai-faith@makelist.com for evidence and > discussion to that effect....
>
> there is always a > >significant percentage of participants whose purpose is criticism, > >argumentation, negation and the expression of discontent.
>
> I would have to say that among Bahais there are always individuals > willing to justify the most shameful abuse of the Teachings and > ethics as long as they think it will further the growth of the Faith....
>
> FG
> Usenet: alt.religion.bahai
>
> Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com
> List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>
> Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com
>
> The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> bahai.htm
>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Zutetflute@aol.com <Zutetflute@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: SRB censorship
Date: Tuesday, July 14, 1998 9:28 PM

Hi Fred

I found this letter from Mr. Boatright in my files and thought it might be something you could put in the SRB censorship section of your webpage. Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i.

Andree

Subj: Re: Beginning of 1000 years
Date: 97-12-22 18:11:17 EST
From: boatright@cjnetworks.com (Rick Boatright)
Reply-to: boatright@cjnetworks.com
To: zutetflute@aol.com (Zutetflute)

Dear Andree,

Are you a Baha'i? The councellors and the protection board are asking the moderators to be very very careful on this subject. Remeber that this is the one and only place in the writings where an interpretation _other_ than the clear, evident, literal meaning is excluded in the writings themselves. Normally, I would not hesitate to post this, but I am _asking_ you to include the 1000 year quote along with this, and perhaps explain how you can justify _any_ reading other than the clear, evident, stupid simple literal meaning.

Rick Boatright
co-moderator
soc.religion.bahai

>
> "It is evident unto thee that the Birds of Heaven and Doves of Eternity speak > a two-fold language. One language, the outward language, is devoid of > allusions and unveiled, that it may be a guiding light and a beaconing light > whereby wayfarers may advance into the realm of eternal reunion. Such are the > unveiled traditions and evident verses already mentioned. The other language > is veiled and concealed, so that whatever lies hidden in the heart of the > malevolent may be made manifest and their innermost being to be disclosed.
> Thus hath Sadiq, son of Muhammad, spoken:"God will verily test and sift them."
> This is the divine standard, this is the Touchstone of god, wherewith He > proveth His servants. None apprehendeth the meaning of these utterances except > them whose hearts are assured, whose souls have found favour with God, and > whose minds are detached from all else save Him. In such utterances, the > literal meaning, AS GENERALLY UNDERSTOOD BY THE PEOPLE, is not what what hath > been intended." Kitab-i-Iqan,m pp 254-255.
>
> I think it behooves us to keep an open mind in all matters, and to see with our > own eyes, and not through the eyes of others.

>
> Andree
>
> >Thanks for the information. What I was referring to was the tendency for > >folks to interpret the verse about a 1,000 years as being anything but > >literal. In other words, to me, Baha'u'llah has not given us this verse > >with a hidden meaning for it appears obvious that it is to be taken > >literally.
> >
> >regards, > >doug
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >

----- Headers -----
Return-Path: <boatright@topeka.cjnetworks.com> Received: from relay07.mail.aol.com (relay07.mail.aol.com [172.31.109.7]) by air16.mail.aol.com (v37.8) with SMTP; Mon, 22 Dec 1997 18:11:16 -0500 Received: from topeka.cjnetworks.com (topeka.cjnetworks.com [206.52.158.250])
by relay07.mail.aol.com (8.8.5/8.8.5/AOL-4.0.0) with ESMTP id QAA00475 for <zutetflute@aol.com>; Mon, 22 Dec 1997 16:35:56 -0500 (EST)
Received: from rick.cjnetworks (Port13.cjnetworks.com [206.52.158.23])
by topeka.cjnetworks.com (8.8.5/8.8.5) with SMTP id PAA08552 for <zutetflute@aol.com>; Mon, 22 Dec 1997 15:35:59 -0600 (CST) Message-Id: <199712222135.PAA08552@topeka.cjnetworks.com>
Comments: Authenticated sender is <boatright@mail.cjnetworks.com>
From: "Rick Boatright" <boatright@cjnetworks.com>
Organization: Topeka Business Computers
To: zutetflute@aol.com (Zutetflute)
Date: Mon, 22 Dec 1997 15:36:49 -0600
MIME-Version: 1.0
Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
Content-transfer-encoding: 7BIT
Subject: Re: Beginning of 1000 years
Reply-to: boatright@cjnetworks.com
Priority: normal
In-reply-to: <19971222161401.LAA16236@ladder01.news.aol.com>
X-mailer: Pegasus Mail for Win32 (v2.54)

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu <fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu>
Subject: little round with SRB moderators
Date: Thursday, July 16, 1998 12:12 PM

Hi Fred,

Here's a little annotated email exchange I thought might interest you. Just FYI. You can reuse it if that's of any use.

--Fran

=====
I sent something I'd like to post to SRB to Rick Boatright, because I know he's a moderator. Rick replied to send to another address.
=====

From boatright@topeka.cjnetworks.com Mon Jul 13 10:45:42 1998
Organization: Topeka Business Computers
To: fran@crhc.uiuc.edu (Fran Baker)
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 1998 10:52:04 -0600

Send your replys to bahai-faith@bccca.org, which is the general in-box for the moderators.

Rick Boatright

=====
I did so.
=====

From fran@crhc.uiuc.edu Mon Jul 13 11:44:39 1998
>From fran Mon Jul 13 11:44:40 1998
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 1998 11:48:12 -0500
From: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
To: bahai-faith@bccca.org
CC: fran
Subject: When standard responses fail

Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
Subject: Re: standard message
References: <"R50HhD.A.R3D.LBCq1"@bounty.bcca.org>

Herbigjoe@aol.com writes:

>Dear Star, I think you are giving the people that ask you about the above >things mis-information:

>1. No one say that women cannot serve on the UHJ. 'Abdul-Baha explains
>that >women are exempt from serving (IMO by the Grace of God), and as promised,
>the >reason for this provision will be "clear as the noon day" in the future.

>2. The prayers are in English, not in gender oversensitive new American.
>When one uses "he", this is considered gender neutral in English.

>3. There are no inheritance laws per se, only when one neglets to make a >will, Baha'u'llah addresses intestacy in the Aqdas.

>All of the 3 points above have been discussed on this srb in great detail.

>IMHO, it is important to present the facts of the Faith as accurately as >possible.

>Regards, Joe.....

Dear Joe,

It is a mistake to think that if you have an answer to an objection you have a good answer to that objection. Sometimes a pat or standard answer is just a way of *failing to listen*. These answers may deflect the objections in your own mind, but if they fail to satisfy the person raising them you might learn something by making the effort to understand why this is so.

I am assuming here that you are interested in having a genuine discussion (which is ideally approached with an open mind) and not just a teaching conversation (which driven by the missionary agenda).

Sincerely,
Fran

"Freedom is the freedom to say that two plus two is four." Orwell

=====
I got this response. Bogus? I don't really know.
I'm pretty sure I've seen lots of posting that don't mention the Baha'i teachings per se.
=====

From smsmith@cybertrails.com Tue Jul 14 14:19:18 1998
From: "S. Michele Smith" <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
To: "Fran Baker" <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
Cc: "Baha'i SRB Moderators" <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: When standard responses fail
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 1998 12:12:49 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
Content-Type: text/plain;
charset="iso-8859-1"
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 4.72.2106.4
X-Mimeole: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V4.72.2106.4
X-Mozilla-Status: 0011
Content-Length: 2194

Dear Fran,

Your submission is being returned with the request that you make mention of the Baha'i Teachings somewhere in your response as per charter. That way it can be posted. As it is now, it appears to be simply a personal message to Joe.

Thank you for your understanding.

Sincerely,
Michele Smith
co-moderator
soc-religion-bahai
-----Original Message----- [deleted]

=====
I tried again.
=====

From - Tue Jul 14 14:58:11 1998
Message-ID: <35ABB853.36D8@crhc.uiuc.edu>
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 1998 14:58:11 -0500
From: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
To: "S. Michele Smith" <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
CC: Baha'i SRB Moderators fran <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: When standard responses fail

Dear Michelle,

This is the best I can do. Hope it is good enough. I at least tried to make it less personal to Joe. I think it is relevant to Baha'is and refers in a very general way to your scriptures, of which I am largely ignorant. I am interested in the nature of discourse about beliefs in general.

Thanks for your consideration,
Fran

S. Michele Smith wrote:

>
> Dear Fran,
>
> Your submission is being returned with the request that you make mention of the > Baha'i Teachings somewhere in your response as per charter. That way it can be > posted. As it is now, it appears to be simply a personal message to Joe.
>
> Thank you for your understanding.

>
> Sincerely,
> Michele Smith
> co-moderator
> soc-religion-bahai
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
> To: bahai-faith@bccca.org <bahai-faith@bccca.org>
> Cc: fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu <fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu>
> Date: Monday, July 13, 1998 11:47 AM
> Subject: When standard responses fail

>
> Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
> Subject: Re: standard message
> References: <"R50HhD.A.R3D.LBCq1"@bounty.bcca.org>

> Herbigjoe@aol.com writes:

>
> >Dear Star, I think you are giving the people that ask you about the above > >things mis-information:

>
> >1. No one say that women cannot serve on the UHJ. 'Abdul-Baha explains
> >that > >women are exempt from serving (IMO by the Grace of God), and as promised,
> >the > >reason for this provision will be "clear as the noon day" in the future.

>
> >2. The prayers are in English, not in gender oversensitive new American.
> >When one uses "he", this is considered gender neutral in English.

>
> >3. There are no inheritance laws per se, only when one neglects to make a > >will, Baha'u'llah addresses intestacy in the Aqdas.

>
> >All of the 3 points above have been discussed on this srb in great detail.

>
> >IMHO, it is important to present the facts of the Faith as accurately as > >possible.

>
> >Regards, Joe.....

>
> Dear Joe,

>
> It is a mistake to think that if you have an answer to an objection you > have a good answer to that objection. Sometimes a pat or standard > answer is just a way of *failing to listen*. These answers may deflect > the objections in your own mind, but if they fail to satisfy the person > raising them you might learn something by making the effort to > understand why this is so.

>
> I am assuming here that you are interested in having a genuine > discussion (which is ideally approached with an open mind) and not just > a teaching conversation (which driven by the missionary agenda).
This is something I think all Bahai's who engage in teaching conversations would benefit from keeping in mind. Many people are quick to tune you out the minute they sense that the conversation is not "for real" but for the sole purpose of converting them, i.e., that you are not really willing to examine your own beliefs as you ask them to examine theirs. Sorry, I can't make reference to Baha'i scripture, but it interests me that often missionaries (of whatever group) don't realize why they are not more effective, and I am suggesting one reason they fail. This might be of interest to people wishing to be more effective. It is important, though, not to pretend to be open minded, but to really strive to be. I admit I have seen conflicting evidence from people citing Baha'i scripture as to whether this is something Baha'is are supposed to do in general (be open-minded about religious matters). Perhaps being unable to doubt your position is a hallmark of a religious as opposed to a philosophical viewpoint.

>

> Sincerely,

> Fran

>

> "Freedom is the freedom to say that two plus two is four." Orwell

=====

So far, nothing, and of course the discussion is long gone.

=====

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: S. Michele Smith <smsmith@cybertrails.com>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: Baha'i SRB Moderators <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith
Date: Tuesday, May 19, 1998 2:31 PM

Dear Mr. Glaysheer,

I am returning this submission to you unposted. It is inflammatory, rude, and untrue. Every person who participates on srb is requested to follow the charter. Nothing more, nothing less. The accusations you are making are ungrounded and false. The moderators simply follow the charter. Nothing more, nothing less.

-----Original Message-----

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org
<soc-religion-bahai@moderators.isc.org>
Date: Monday, May 18, 1998 1:34 PM
Subject: Re: Leaving Faith

>RMckin6046 wrote in message <"71i_z.A.vXE.VphW1"@bounty.bcca.org>...

>

>>In Christopher Nason's original posting on this topic he decried the >>"evangelicism" of the Baha'is... along with our hypocrisy and supremacist >>attitudes.

>

>

>I believe he was criticizing the kind of thing so often found by Bahais and >non-Bahais when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai: The confusion >of teaching the Faith with distorting truth and freely held conscience or >suppressing it, so often done by the "moderators," not to mention their >hypocrisy, pretending they don't know what it is they're doing, etc....

>

>FG

>Usenet: alt.religion.bahai

>

>Listserv: bahai-faith@makelist.com

>List Archive & Subscription: <https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

>Email subscription: bahai-faith-subscribe@makelist.com

>

>The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

> index.htm

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From:

Subject: A Baha'i Technique

Date: Thursday, July 30, 1998 7:01 AM

Ron House observes in a message available on my web site at House2.htm that

"I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over."

I hope new comers to alt.religion.bahai will be able to see through this technique. It is the common one often noted as in the FAQ:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today."

The same techniques are obviously being used again by Bahais on alt.religion.bahai and bahai-faith@makelist.com to demonize me and ignore the fact that several different people, apparently all members of the Bahai Faith, unbeknownst to each other, apparently all thought of the same fearful thing: that the murder of Dr. Daniel Jordan may have possibly been by another Bahai, or ordered by one, or, God forbid, by a member of a the Bahai administration or a body of it....

These are the inevitable thoughts and consequences of censorship and suppression of free speech and conscience at every turn within the Bahai Faith. When people aren't permitted to express their freely arrived at thoughts and feelings, they inevitably begin to wonder why and what motives those suppressing others really have.

The storm of Bahai denial and attempts to portray me in a negative light speak for themselves. Notice that at no time have I accused Michael Kafes of knowing or committing anything in this regard. I have merely posted his message that reveals the fearful, distrustful, frightening environment that Bahais live in.... Instead of being concerned that someone might actually be able to solve a despicable crime, they have rushed to conceal it and to attack and accuse me personally....

Enough of this technique.... It would be best if talk.religion.bahai
were created with the help of Bahais, but, if need be, it can be created without them.... Using this threat against talk.religion.bahai
at this time is in itself quite revealing....

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
index.htm See alt.religion.bahai, talk.religion.misc, or bahai-faith@makelist.com (accepts all "cc" posts)
Subscription & archive:
<https://www.findmail.com/listsaver/bahai-faith/>

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Ron House <house@usq.edu.au>
To: bahai-faith@makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: [bahai-faith] Another rejection by soc.religion.bahai
Date: Friday, August 21, 1998 2:30 AM

I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai. The following is my response to the rejection slip.

Ron House wrote:

>
> Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) wrote:
> >
> > Dear Ron:
> > You may have some good points, but you need to back up your accusations. If > > you can add some precise instances which give you the *opinion* that there > > has been intentional suppression of Baha'i history I will post your > > submission.
> > The only instance you referred to was Balyuzi's book on Baha'u'llah and the > > mention of His wives. This was a very thin book, and many things could not > > be included.
> > Regards
> > Bill Hyman
> > co-moderator
> > soc.religion.bahai
>
> As I have pointed out to you in the past, your job > is to post any article that meets the criteria of > the charter for this newsgroup. It is not to decide > whether you think the evidence provided is flimsy, > nor is it to impose (as you do) a higher standard > of proof on those with whom you disagree. Please > post the message as sent, as it most certainly passes > the test of the newsgroup charter. I remind you > that it is not a Baha'i quality to be any less than > impeccably proper in your dealings.
>
> > -----
> > From: Ron House <house@usq.edu.au>
> > To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
> > Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
> > Subject: Re: finding and leaving the Baha'i Faith
> > Date: Fri, 21 Aug 1998 14:30:32 +1000
> >
> > Scott McKEE wrote:
> > >
> > > In response to this posting, I must say I am left scratching my head.
> > > When I investigated the Baha'i Faith I was repeatedly told "not to > > > believe anything we tell you" and that it was my responsibility to > > > investigate for myself. This, being the Baha'i principle of > > > 'independent investigation of truth'. Having done so, there is no one > > > else that I can blame if I am not happy with some aspect of the > > > faith.
> > >
> > > Okay, take a read - no, take an in-depth study - of, say, > > > Balyuzi's history book about Baha'u'llah. Now tell me how > > > many wives he had. Do the same with any other major > > > historical book about Baha'u'llah. It's simply a plain > > > fact that uncomfortable information is carefully > > > suppressed by so many eminent Baha'is who pretend to > > be historians but are in reality propagandists.

> > Having taken upon themselves the right (contrary to > > Baha'u'llah's teaching which you mention) to deny > > others the access to the information they need in > > order to see with their own eyes, those who hide > > information have corrupted the Baha'i Faith. Those who > > thought before they joined that they were being given full > > information in good faith can hardly be blamed for changing > > their minds when they discover this was not the case.

> >

> > --

> > Ron House                    house@usq.edu.au

> >

> > Speed bumps are installed in the belief that if a road is > > unsafe at 50, we should make it unsafe at 30.

>

> --

> Ron House                    house@usq.edu.au

>

> Speed bumps are installed in the belief that if a road is > unsafe at 50, we should make it unsafe at 30.

--

Ron House                    house@usq.edu.au

Speed bumps are installed in the belief that if a road is unsafe at 50, we should make it unsafe at 30.

---

List Site: <https://www.findmail.com/list/bahai-faith/>
To unsubscribe, send to bahai-faith-unsubscribe@makelist.com

FREE group e-mail lists at <https://www.findmail.com>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: RobertNik@aol.com <RobertNik@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: censorship
Date: Thursday, July 30, 1998 8:20 AM

hi
Ive just made posts to talk.religion.bahai.
It does exist apparently ??

BTW - So do I presume that Soc.religion.bahai is personal property of Mr. Hymen and colleagues?

Ill forward you his post. You can post it so long as you delete my name from it - these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO.

In any case I dont particularly care. This is just a hobby, but I am very irritated.

regards

Robert

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Timothy Mulligan <tmulligan@central.uh.edu>
To: darricke@hotmail.com <darricke@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: Why I left (expanded version)
Date: Monday, August 17, 1998 6:34 PM

darricke@hotmail.com wrote:

> Dear Timothy,
> I'd like to reply to some of your comments:
>
> In article <35D30CCE.59BC2E38@central.uh.edu>, > Timothy Mulligan <tmulligan@central.uh.edu>
wrote:
> > Well, it's been a year since I left the Baha'i Faith after having > > been a member for only several months. I thought I would commemorate > > the return of my membership card by recounting why I left.
> >
> > First, let me say that, with hindsight, I can't imagine why I ever > > joined the faith. I had sworn off religion, but something in the > > advance literature (the pamphlets, the introductory books) seemed to > > superficially allay concerns I had that the multiplicity of religions > > signaled their invalidity. I thought to myself, "Here at last is a > > tolerant religion that reconciles the differences.
They say they don't > > proselytize, and they affirm the truth of all the great religions." I > > had some lingering doubts, especially regarding the inclusion of Buddha, > > a man who refused to discuss metaphysics and who described Brahman as > > deluded about his divinity, as a Manifestation of God. Also, the Baha'i > > exegesis of the New Testament was tortured to say the least. But I > > jumped in anyway.

>
 > Darrick: Buddha discussed the existence of God many times, but He called Him
 > "Truth", "The Uncreated", and like terms. You may say He was a metaphysical > "purist"; a good thing in a time when Hinduism was overly metaphysical, and > described millions of gods and goddesses in the forms of humans, monkeys, > rats, and elephants. Buddha once gave a sermon which He said that Brahman > thought He created the Universe, but He was mistaken; because the Universe > had already existed, but had merely come from one form to another. Buddha was > refuting the Hindu Brahma; the Creator deity of the Hindu Trimurti of Brahma, > Vishnu, Shiva. While Brahma is a figment of the imagination of some > polytheistic Hindu priest--who invented him thousands of years ago-- Buddha > _did_ acknowledge the existence of BRAHMA: the One Supreme Being. Vaishnavist > Hindus (worshippers of Vishnu) believe that Vishnu is Brahma, and Brahma > Vishnu. The Bhagavad Gita confirms this. This is also a Baha'i belief. Brahm > is Jehovah, or Vishnu, or Allah. He has many names. Buddha never refuted Him, > but only false Hindu conceptions of Brahman (an anthropomorphic creator-deity > who false thinks he is the highest god and who--in Hindu mythology--rapes his > own daughter).

Darrick, I think you may be correct in your analysis. I stand corrected. But I should correct you on one point: Brahman is the "uncreated," and Brahma is the deluded, anthropomorphic deity. I confused that in my post, and I think you confuse it here also.

> > When I got to participate in actual feasts as a declared Baha'i, the > > picture changed. There was almost zero attention paid to the spiritual > > formation of members, especially new members. The unrelenting focus was > > on getting new members.
 >

> Darrick: This is true! Actually, almost zero emphasis is put on moral or > religious teaching, and almost 100% of social teachings. The fact that you > saw people discuss entry-by-troops all the time is only because it has > recently been emphasized. But instead of leaving, you should have become a > change-agent. It is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness.

Contrary to what many have been surmising in response to my original post, it wasn't just the local Baha'i community and LSA that turned me off. It was also the emphasis of the U.S. NSA and the UHJ on gaining converts and contributing to the Baha'i Funds. It wasn't simply that I didn't receive spiritual nourishment.

Of course, as others have suggested, I could have buried my head in the "ocean" of Baha'u'llah's words and ignored the emphasis of the institutional Baha'i Faith.

What I objected to was the apparently general disregard for spiritual substance.

Of course, it's possible that on the Isle of Skye in Scotland or in Papua New Guinea, the community is very nurturing, spiritually, and doesn't manifest the rapacity that I encountered in Houston, Texas and in the messages of the NSA and the UHJ.

> The hackneyed phrase "entry by troops" was > > mindlessly and continuously repeated like a mantra. A goal was set by > > my state's Bahai's on the number of firesides to be held by > > Baha'u'llah's birthday. This rapacious attitude turned my stomach, > > reminding me of Jehovah's Witnesses. I thought the Baha'i Faith was > > tolerant toward other religions. Didn't this push for conversions imply > > intolerance?

**>
> Darrick: Who told you the Baha'i Faith was tolerant of other religions? You > were misinformed. The true Baha'i teaching is that the Faith has the greatest > Truth, and all must conform to this truth. The Faith is not Unitarianism. If > you wanted a religion that teaches that "all religions are true" then you > should become a Unitarian. The Faith actually teaches that "all religions > _began_ true, but were corrupted, and the Faith is the latest Revelation of > the One True Religion--uncorrupted". God has only one Truth. Jehovah's

> Witnesses believe they have it, but Baha'is believe they do. NO! Both don't > cancel each other out. It is equally as probably that one is in fact True, > while the other is less true. If Baha'u'llah was Who He said He was, then the > Faith is the fulness of Truth; not the exclusiveness of Truth.

Yes, indeed. Here is just one more example of the way in which the real Baha'i

Faith differs from the version presented to prospective Baha'is.

> > For this reason, I looked forward to my first attendance at a

> > "deepening." I thought, "Now at last I'll find some spiritual > > substance." What did I find at the deepening? A videotape of a Baha'i

> > National Spiritual Assembly meeting, where every speaker to a man went > > on and on about getting new members.

**>

> Darrick: Again, the Baha'is in this country don't yet know _HOW_ to > spiritually feed new Believers. But _this will change_, and is changing. The > Faith is still in it's pioneer phase. The Faith in the U.S. has been very > secularized and watered-down because it was invaded by tens of thousands of > social-reform activists during the 30s to late 70s. These people tended to > ignore the moral and religious teachings, and to overemphasize--again and > again and again--the social teachings. Now, the need for converts is > beginning to drown-out the overemphasis on social teachings. You _still_ > could have been spiritually fed in this Faith; but you need to "feed > yourself" (get the Writings and study yourself).

Some Baha'is today recognize > that the Faith in this country is too "social-activist" and not enough
> "spirituality". This is changing, and you should have stayed and helped.

See the above. I purchased and read a virtual library of Baha'i writings, included all four volumes of "The Revelation of Baha'u'llah." I even bought a book of selections from the Bab's writings. Boy did that set me back a few bucks! So I can say that I got a thorough soaking in the "ocean" of Baha'i literature. But I didn't see the point in staying, because it was clear to me that the rapacity I mention above is now an integral part of the Faith. Let me make a prediction here. As "entry by troops" becomes more and more remote as a possibility, the institutions of the Baha'i Faith will become more desperate and frantic in their recruiting efforts, thereby driving even more people away.

> > Oh, how could I forget those memorable feasts where a tape recorded > > message would be played, usually, of course, on the subject either of > > getting new members or contributing to the Baha'i Funds. I felt like I > > was one of Charlie's Angels. (Can't you just imagine Bob Henderson, > > lounging by the pool, sipping a (non-alcoholic) drink and dictating to > > the tape recorder?)
>
> Darrick: The Mission of Baha'u'llah was to Unite Mankind. Why? Because the > human race will end if it is not united. Thus, He becomes the Savior of the > Human Species. But this collective salvation cannot be accomplished without > the help of every Baha'i, and this means sacrifice; in time and money. For > now, your own spiritual education and growth must be a personal private > affair. All forces in the Faith are geared toward growth. Because if the > Faith doesn't grow, then it can't conquer the world.

Hopefully, some day > soon, the Faith will emphasize the moral and spiritual principles in the > meetings. In fact, plans have been drawn to do this, but won't be implemented > until _after_ the 4-year Plan (i.e. 2001 at the earliest).

See my prediction above. 2001 will come and go without entry by troops. The revolving door effect (experienced by yours truly) will continue to operate. The more the Baha'i Faith tries to "conquer the world," the less palatable and the less tolerant and therefore the less inherently consistent it will seem. Proselytism and tolerance don't mix. (I'm using the English definition of proselytism, not the superfluous Bahai-speak definition.)

> > I thought to myself: Are these people crazy? How in the world can > > they expect to keep the new members that they do recruit if all that the > > new members will encounter upon joining is an incessant demand to > > "teach" and get new members?
>
> Darrick: Good point! You should have been spiritually fed. You should have > been taught that you needed a spiritual conversion to Baha'u'llah; instead of > joining just because you agreed with some of the Principles. Those who are > not spiritually converted ("born-again") will not stand.

I was originally drawn to the Faith when I read the Hidden Words. I was much more interested in the person and writings of Baha'u'llah than in the social principles. Let me say something about the latter. You know, almost all of those principles are generally accepted now. In fact, they're rather passe. That makes the Baha'i Faith appear like a fellow-traveler—it looks like a big case of "me too"-ism. We all know racism is bad. Some Baha'is walk around telling people this as if it's a big revelation. When I detected flaws in the Baha'i institutions and their actions, I had to revisit my initial assessment of Baha'u'llah. And I changed my mind about him.

> Oh, and that's another thing. I have to > > laugh when I think back to what the "advance" literature said about > > Baha'is not proselytizing. I discovered, alas too late, that there is a > > particular and peculiar Baha'i definition of "proselytize," which means > > "to convert by force or threats." Oh, I see. So the happy-talk about > > not proselytizing meant, "Hey folks! We don't convert by force!" Wow.
> > What an enticement. I found out that instead, Baha'is "teach." That's > > like saying, "I didn't abort my child. I terminated a pregnancy."
>
> Darrick: If the Baha'is told you that we don't proselyte, they were using > Shoghi Effendi's definition of the term. He defined it as "using coercion, > threat, or force in teaching". Of course Baha'is seek converts. They want to > convert the entire world. You should have known this.

There's a big difference between wanting the whole world to convert and converting the whole world.

> > In short, I found that the Baha'i Faith was the religious equivalent > > of AmWay.
>
> Darrick: Actually, Scientology is the religious equivalent of AmWay. Baha'is > don't expect personal gains by their sacrifices, but to help save the World > from destruction; spiritually and physically.

What's that about "teaching" being the greatest deed? I think a kind of spiritual greed can come into play here. I recommend to you the book, Cutting through Spiritual Materialism, by Chogyam Trungpa, as well as anything by Jiddu Krishnamurti.

> > Then of course I found that lots of little omissions had been made > > in introductory literature. They don't tell you how many wives > > Baha'u'llah had. Or that he was a midget (see my other post dated > > today). Okay, that's not fair (although it's true -- didn't you know > > that you were praying to a midget?).
 >
 > Darrick: Introductory literature is for the purpose of attracting souls. What > does the fact that Baha'u'llah had three wives to do with attracting souls?
 > Baha'is don't try to deny it, but it is something that has nothing to do with > a person's salvation, or the salvation of mankind.
 The fact that Baha'u'llah > was short (not a midget nor a dwarf) should make short people feel happy! It > should make tall people feel humble (for a change).
 What does one's height > have to do with one's spiritual stations anyway?

Height has nothing to do with Baha'u'llah's claims, and everything to do with my warped sense of humor. The number of Baha'u'llah's wives, on the other hand, is very disturbing to Western "seekers," and I think most Baha'is know this. It should be disclosed up front, to avoid disillusionment later. Another poster here has pointed out that the Baha'i Faith teaches that Mohammed "really" taught that one couldn't have more than one wife. How, then, was Baha'u'llah acting in accordance with Islamic law? I know, I know:
 because he was perfect. Still, that's not a very good example to set. I guess it's just another one of those "veils."

> One "teaching" book by Gary > > Matthews lauds the perspicacity of Baha'u'llah in writing that "every > > star hath its planets," omitting that he says immediately thereafter
 > > "and every planet its creatures." Stuff like that began to burn my ass > > big time.
 >

> Darrick: Every planet does have it's creature; sooner or later. Venus was once > inhabited, and some day the Earth will look like Venus. Someday Mars will > resemble the Earth. Billions of years from now, when the Sun expands, then the > outer planets will congeal into Earth-like planets. Every star will have it's > planets; but not all at the same time.
 >
 > > Contradictions began to emerge. I compared the "Tablet of the True > > Seeker" in the Kitab-i-Iqan, which enjoins the independent investigation > > of truth, with the dire, shrill threats hurled at unbelievers in the > > Kitab-i-Aqdas and could only shake my head in wonder.
 >
 > Darrick: You are confusing "independent investigation of truth" with "every > religion is true". This is not what Baha'u'llah taught. He taught that > everyone should seek Truth regardless of their parentage, their geographical > location, etc. But not everything is "Truth". For those who reject the > Truth--after they have independently discovered it--then YES, there are > eternal negative consequences.

Uh oh!

> There was so much > > explaining and back-filling in Baha'i propaganda. For example, in the > > Kitab-i-Aqdas, Baha'u'llah says that men can have two wives. Later, > > Abdul Baha says that this meant men could only have one wife. Let the > > mind games begin!
 >
 > Darrick: Baha'u'llah actually wrote "do not go beyond two". Now, did He mean:
 > 1) You can marry no more than two women at the same time? 2) You can only > marry twice (i.e. can only marry another women after the first is dead or > divorced from you). 3) You can marry a second wife if the first one is > incapacitated (i.e. crazy, or a total invalid). 4) You can have two wives, > and as many concubines as you wish? 5) You can have two wives, but only if > you treat them equally, and since you can't do it-- because you are mere > mortals--then you can only have one. His statement can be interpreted in any > of the above ways. Since 'Abdul-Baha was His Interpreter, then He knew what > Baha'u'llah meant. I personally believe (just my opinion) that Baha'u'llah > allowed the marriage of a second wife if the first was infertile, or became > incapacitated. A Baha'i husband is not allowed to put his seed into a > surrogate; even by artificial insemination. But, again, this is only my > opinion. This verse troubled me too. But, I can see the wisdom in it.

Whew. This is all too complicated for me.

> > Anyway, it quickly dawned on me that this religion was going nowhere > > fast. Its stated objective of becoming a world religion and > > establishing a world Baha'i government is ludicrous. It will never > > happen.
>
> Darrick: Obviously, you signed the Declaration Card knowing _very_ little > about the Faith!!! The _entire mission_ of Baha'u'llah was to form a World > Commonwealth; so that mankind can avoid self-destruction. Why in the "world" > did you join this religion? The Baha'is in this country teach people a few > social-principles, and then have them sign a card and expect them to obey and > understand Baha'u'llah. WHEN WILL THEY EVER LEARN?
>
> The early Christians expected Jesus (the real Jesus, not > > Baha'u'llah-as-Jesus) to come back during their lifetimes; they were > > wrong, and they're still waiting.
>
> Darrick: Jesus DID return in their own lifetimes! I suggest you look at the > Preterist view of Christian history. I suggest you go to search engines on > the Internet and type in "Preterist". Jesus returned in 70 A.D.; not in His > physical body, but in His ethereal form; which can only be seen in visions.

Now you're getting weird on me. Stop that!

> Baha'u'llah is not the return of Jesus, but the return of "Christ"; the Holy > Spirit Who embodied Jesus from His baptism until His crucifixion.

That's the party line.

> Now the Bahai's are waiting for entry > > by troops, the collapse of world civilization, and the triumphant > > takeover of the world by Bahai's. It's not happening.
>
> Darrick: Many people doubted that the Soviet Union would fall for hundreds of > years, if ever. This World System _will fall_. This may be only an economic > collapse; which we may now be seeing the beginning of. It will fall; because > God has says it will. When that happens, mankind will be humbled, and seek a > divine system instead of a Humanist one.
>
> I don't care how > > many times Abdul Baha appears. In any case, he's got lots of > > competition from the Virgin Mary, the Ascended Masters, and little gray > > aliens.
>
> Darrick: How do you know the Virgin Mary has not appeared? How do you know > that Ascended Masters have not appeared? How do you know creatures from other > systems have not visited here? Each has a purpose; not all of them divine.

You misread me here. I believe they do appear. That's the point. The spiritual world is a zoo. Actually, I know this from my own experience, but I won't go into that here, because y'all already think I'm crazy.

> > That brings me to a little metaphysical speculation. I'm sure there > > have been apparitions of Abdul Baha, as well as amazing synchronicities > > that Baha'is call "confirmations." But, folks, phenomena like this are > > reported in all religions and spiritual paths.
>
> Darrick: I've never heard of Unitarians having them! There are Seers and > visions in every major religion, and many of them have prophesied of > Baha'u'llah.

Huh? Examples please. And I hope you've got more than that loony guy who founded the Seventh Day Adventists.

> The world is awash in > > reports of these types of things. Moreover, there has been a gang of > > self-proclaimed god-men even in this century, from Reverend Moon to Adi > > Da, each with their fanatical followers willing to follow the leader all > > the way to martyrdom. This world, and the spiritual world, is a very > > complicated and diverse place. In ways that we don't fully understand, > > human beings can tap into spiritual realities and develop very real > > psychic powers. In Hinduism, these are called "siddhis," and they've > > been documented for several thousand years. They are not proof that > > those possessed of them are worthy of worship. In fact, the spiritual > > literature warns about the ego-inflation that can result from their > > exercise. It seems to me that Baha'u'llah didn't heed that warning.
>
> Darrick: 'Abdul-Baha actually preached again "psychic powers", and never > claimed to have them. All He had was the Holy Spirit to guide His > interpretations of what His Father wrote. 'Abdul-Baha was so humble, that He > refused to have people bow to Him. Baha'u'llah never practice Yoga or any > Hindu practices. He did, however, miraculously heal people, but the Baha'is > don't offer these things as proofs; since they are only proofs to those that > witness them.

Yes, that's a sensible position. It originally was one of the things that attracted me to the Faith.

> > Anyway, I finally decided that I had to return my membership card to > > Bob Henderson. Bob, if you're reading this, I wish you all the best. I > > assure you that I will continue to wash my feet every day, not only in > > the summer, but all year round. And don't forget:
ENTRY BY TROOPS!
> > ENTRY BY TROOPS!
> >
> > Tim Mulligan
> > tmulligan@central.uh.edu
>
> Darrick: Tim, I am sorry that the Baha'is in this country had you sign a card > not knowing what you were getting into, and not having a testimony of > Baha'u'llah. It was wrong and foolish of them, but you can't judge the Faith > by it's stupid members, but by Baha'u'llah. I hope you will get to know Him, > and His son, and not rely on what foolish Baha'is have told you (or failed to > tell you). You have not rejected the Faith--you've never known it! All you > have done is rejected what some ignorant and foolish Baha'is have told you. I > hope you will reexamine the Faith; this time from the Sources, and not from > the mouths of the American Believers.

Darrick, don't pick on the people I encountered in the Faith. They were all kind to me. (Except for a certain bigoted Pakistani psychiatrist who shall remain nameless.) You see, I contacted them after reading about the Faith. And then they kindly invited me to a fireside. At the fireside, I asked a lot of tough questions, especially about evolution. During the evening, they marveled at the extent of my knowledge about the faith, given that I had never even been to a fireside before. You see, Darrick, I'm a librarian. I know how to find information for myself. This shocked a lot of the Baha'is I met subsequent to declaring, who would ask me, "Who brought you into the Faith?" and I would answer,

"Baha'u'llah." It's just that the introductory literature available in libraries presents a more holistic picture of a religion than I actually encountered. The one I encountered after attending feasts—and as you know, I could not attend a feast until after I declared—was rapacious and vacuous.

> Darrick Evenson

>

> -----== Posted via Deja News, The Leader in Internet Discussion ==-----

> https://www.dejanews.com/rg\_mkgrp.xp Create
Your Own Free Member Forum

Thanks for your remarks.
Tim Mulligan
tmulligan@central.uh.edu

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Email:franber@arrakis.es

Date:1997/02/16

Forums:news.groups, alt.config

<jgoldberg@megsinet.net> wrote:

>I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and >mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. The >discussion is so controlled that no self-respecting Baha'i or anyone >else should post there. I don't understand the newsgroup creation >process, but I support you in your quest for an unmoderated newsgroup.
>

I suggest create the group alt.talk.religion.bahai , because I prefer the alt hierarchy . There is more freedom there .

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: RobertNik@aol.com <RobertNik@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: censorship
Date: Wednesday, July 29, 1998 7:01 PM

Hi,
the SRB mod have succeeded in making me very irritated.
Next time you want a vote on a free NG - contact me Ill vote yes.

BTW who elects these guys?

regards

Robert

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Timothy Mulligan <tmulligan@central.uh.edu>
To: Timothy Mulligan <tmulligan@central.uh.edu>
Subject: Re: Why I returned...
Date: Friday, August 21, 1998 9:49 AM

FYI, this post of mine was bounced by soc.religion.bahai because I was disrespectful toward Esperanto.

(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators. I tried to be very measured and moderate in this post. Seems I can't win with Baha'is.

Tim Mulligan
tmulligan@central.uh.edu

Timothy Mulligan wrote:

> Chris,
>
> Thank you for your refreshingly thoughtful and intellectually honest post.
>
> In many respects, I think you hit the nail on the head. What's lacking in > the Baha'i Faith is mysticism -- the direct experience of God. But you must see > that a religion that emphasizes the mediation of a "manifestation" between God > and humanity will naturally eschew mysticism. (Indeed, Christian mystics > throughout the ages have often come under fire, e.g., by the Inquisition, for > sharing their experience of God, as in the case of St. John of the Cross, as > "pure nothingness," without mentioning the humanity of Christ [which St. Theresa > of Avila insisted upon always remembering, perhaps to immunize her own mysticism > against charges of heresy]). Instead, we find in the Baha'i Faith what the > Bhagavad Gita calls "bhakti," or devotional religion, with Baha'u'llah as the > object of devotion.
>
> As you may have noticed, in several of my many posts over the past week, > I've recommended The Perennial Philosophy by Aldous Huxley, at title with > which I'm sure you are familiar. In that book, Huxley presents the kernel of > all great religious traditions as being an essentially mystical experience. The > exoteric features of religions, Huxley points out, are ultimately hindrances in > realizing the Divine. They may not even be particularly good at *preparing* > souls for the mystical journey. I think the Baha'i Faith bears witness to this > truth as much as any religion. Its extreme focus on evangelization, > proselytism, "teaching," gaining converts, call it what you will, shifts the > energy of its adherents toward pure exotericism, i.e., the outward features of > the religion. Even the existence of scriptures like The Four Valleys and the > Seven Valleys doesn't compensate for this focus -- it simply exists as a kind > of non sequitur.
>
> Many have argued, as you argue, that religions are necessary for an orderly > civilization. For instance, from the secular world, F.A. Hayek, the great > economist, in his book The Fatal Conceit: The Errors of Socialism, goes to > great lengths to point out that moral and religious systems evolve much like > language evolves, and that they evolve as they do because they serve a real > human need. They cannot, Hayek says, be dismantled without severe societal > consequences. Hayek makes this argument while insisting that he is an agnostic.
>
> Actually, the Baha'i Faith violates Hayek's principles, because it > constitutes a kind of "social engineering." Although some evolution of its > institutions is envisioned, still, the form of the future "World Order" is > supposedly set out by the Central Figures. That's the kind of thing (in the > form of socialism and central planning) that Hayek was arguing against. It is > as futile as developing a language out of whole cloth (e.g., Esperanto -- where > the heck is *that* going??), although here, I would make an exception for > American Sign Language.

>
> So while I agree with you, Chris, that organized religion serves an > important societal purpose, I can't agree that the Baha'i Faith even succeeds, > or will succeed, on that level. As von Hayek might have said, it's too > "engineered," too "pre-fabricated." Moreover, given its exoteric emphasis, the > spiritual experience of its members is more a type of "bhakti," or even less > than that -- an emotionalism -- that merely reinforces the ego, the false self, > instead of dismantling it in preparation for Divine Union in this life.

>
> As a student of mysticism, I'm sure you know that the true goal of human > life is to "lose the self," and to allow God to live in us. There are many > insidious ways in which the ego, the self, perpetuates itself. One of these is > through grasping an identity ("I am a Baha'i"), and even through "doing good."
> This is a very subtle matter, difficult to explain in a Usenet post. I > certainly don't understand it myself, let alone live it (as you can tell from my > nasty Usenet posts).

>
> So my position, to sum up, is this: (1) organized religion *is* necessary > to civilization, or else it would not have evolved; (2) the Baha'i Faith, to the > extent that it is already "engineered" and pre-fabricated, may not even serve > the traditional civilizing role of the "evolved" and, hence, integrated, > religions; (3) my personal spiritual growth can only really occur through a > mystical path, not exoteric religion, and is probably not consistent with the > needs of society at large.

>
> I welcome further dialog on this issue.

>
> Tim Mulligan
> tmulligan@central.uh.edu

>
> Chris L. Donaldson wrote:

>
> > Hello Everyone:

> > First of all, let me apologize up front for the length of this message.

> > Also, if you're a brand new Baha'i, read no further and might I suggest you > > unsubscribe from your Baha'i related news groups for at least a year...and > > deepen as best you can within your local community.

> > I left the Baha'i Faith officially a little over a year ago. I returned last > > month. When I left, I had no desire to publicly renounce and dispute the > > Faith on the news groups. It was a personal decision that I did not wish to > > air. Be that as it may, I would have agreed with many of Tim Mulligan's > > comments ( though Baha'u'llah's stature never really was an issue with me).

> >
> > Although I left quietly, I did instigate a discussion string addressing > > similar subjects as Tim's regarding "Baha'i Mysticism" and the apparent lack > > of communal Baha'i spirituality see

> > <https://www.bcca.org/services/srb/archive/950721-951020/0599.html>

> > <<https://www.bcca.org/services/srb/archive/950721-951020/0599.html>> I only > > bring this up because some of the responses I received then are relevant > > here. A number of the responses suggested that my feelings and observations, > > though they certainly were valid, reflected an emptiness within myself and > > at the very least, indicated a personal responsibility for me to make > > positive change in that direction within my local Baha'i community. At the > > time, I thought these responses callous and diversionary, but the last year > > or so has played them out. In that time, I returned to Christianity only to > > find what I thought were "Baha'i shortcomings" followed me no matter what > > church community I joined. The historical inconsistencies continued to > > plague my intellect and the spiritual void returned with all its loneliness > > and isolation. Hummm...

> > Over the year, I found myself "lurking" in the Baha'i new groups again (I > > see a few other ex-Baha'is are doing the same), hitting every "why I am a > > Muslim and not a Baha'i" web page I could find, and getting strangely > > excited every time something of the Baha'is appeared in the media. To make a > > long story a little shorter, I never really left the Baha'i Faith in my > > heart. I only separated myself from what I then thought was a superficial > > and tedious community. I wrote the NSA and got my card back. Enough said on
> > that.

> > Now, lest you think I'm basking in my newly found Baha'ihood, let me share > > with you a few observations I bring with me from the deserts of religious > > nomadism. I realize that the majority of you, being devout Baha'is, will not > > agree with many or most of my points, but I'm not talking to you right now.
> > Go to the next message quickly before the seeds of doubt are planted. For > > the rest of the lurkers, ex-Baha'is and dogma cynics, consider that:

> > The existence of a personal God maybe up for debate, but Man's > > insatiable search for the meaning of self-consciousness and a collective > > ground to give direction is not. It is a part of our history.

> > - The god that can be explained with words, or pointed to by religion, or > > imaged in mind or print is not God. It comes from our own limited > > understanding of reality and does not transcend Man as it must. The sooner > > we move past the simplistic notion of a creator god moving around > > souls/cities/ nations and building religions as interpreted in the > > Judeo-Christian era the better

> > - Religion is a creation of Man, for Man to understand and draw nearer to > > this collective ground and to provide structure and community for our > > personal search. Period. Mankind has achieved many great things throughout > > history; the many religious vehicles for our spirituality being among them.
> > The best of what we have become and created could be "of God" but is not by > > God. Because these religions are culturally driven created man-made > > structures, under minute scrutiny the cracks and flaws invariably appear, > > the Baha'i Faith included.

> > - These religious structures do seem to be necessary for the majority of > > Mankind to progress spiritually (morally, ethically?). Without them, Man is > > reduced to a maelstrom of "isms", whether it be nihilism, narcissism, etc.
> > Regardless, over time the end result is spiritual stagnation and moral > > degradation. Tim, we need religious community to grow!

> > - So, we need religion. The manifestations and siants, as we recognize the > > stations, build them for us. Life moves on and civilization, hopefully, > > moves forward.

> > - These manifestations (and institutions), though highly polished mirrors, > > are fallible; take a close look at any mirror! Writings contradict one > > another, stations are assumed by more than one person, Guardians die before > > appointing new ones. In the meantime the hungry starve, the poor suffer, the > > oppressed languish and die.

> > - A few poor and hungry souls might figure out that religious structures > > have very little to do with the reality of God. These individuals stop > > talking and reading and fighting and reforming and arguing...and they start > > listening. They cultivate the silence in their own mind and hearts so that > > the truths that may have been present there all along can be heard, > > experienced and to a limited degree shared. This is the life-giving pulse of > > any religion and is the one facet of the Baha'i Faith I have found most > > lacking.

> > - Strangely, the Baha'i literature is seeped in and demands this mystical > > relationship with God. I think the Americanization if the Baha'i Faith, > > though doing much to progress the cause by numbers and organization, has > > come at a great cost.

> > Can a Baha'i think like this? To sum things up, I think so. What's more, > > we need the Tims of the Faith not to leave but to be recognized and > > encouraged to stay and provide a rational and critical spingboard from which > > to grow our religion. We have inherited allot of baggage from our Jewish, > > Christian, and Muslim brothers and sisters. Baggage that they are going to > > have to deal with if they are going to survive into the 21st century, see > > Bishop Spong's call for christian reformation at > > <https://www.intac.com/~rollins/jsspong/reform.html>

> > <<https://www.intac.com/~rollins/jsspong/reform.html>> . But the Baha'is are > > not immune. We may have a really up-to-date list of "equalities" to get us > > into the new era, but the spiritual maturity of our people remains an issue > > with which every Baha'i institution from the Universal House of Justice on > > down will have to > > recognize and respond.
> > Thanks for your patience ...Allah'u'abha > > Chris

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Bruce Burrill <brburl@mailbag.com>
Subject: SRB censored msg?
Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 7:15 AM

The following was posted to SRB in response to a question about the book mentioned. Looks like it never made it to the list. What are Baha'i afraid of?

As for MAITREYA, THE FUTURE BUDDHA, ed. by Alan Sponberg and Helen Hardacre, pub by Cambridge University Press, 1988, it might be useful for Baha'is in showing them their claim that Baha'u'llah is Maitreya is really not supported by the Buddhist prophetic texts.

Despite the contortions of Jamshed Fozdar and Moojan Momen in their writings on the subject, when you let the texts speak for themselves, the conditions for the Maitreya's decent to earth has not come to pass. You can find Fozdar/Momen's take on this on Joel Smith's prophecy website. Be warned that this site is full of inaccurate and very misleading information. In instance quoting a text as being a Buddhist text that is not. This has been carefully spelled to Joel Smith, but he has opted not to change it.

The earliest such text, and the only one that can even be remotely attributed to the Buddha, is found in the Pali Canon, Digha Nikaya (Long Discourses) 24. A lengthy study of this and related material, from a traditional point of view by Sayagyi U Chit Tin who has done a thorough survey of the Pali, can be found on line at

<https://www.webcom.com/~imcuk/welcome.html>

The Baha'i claim that Baha'u'llah is the supposed 5th Buddha rests on very shaky ground.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kent Johnson <comp2k@javanet.com>
Subject: Re: The Baha'i Technique
Date: Saturday, August 29, 1998 6:00 PM

As a Baha'i who has experienced and observed these things you talk about, I find it sad. The Baha'i Faith is not living up to its destiny in this regard. I have seen them do all the things you mention, and more. It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust. I have pointed it out to some of the moderators and they are in an Us Vs Them mindset. I can only apologize for them.

--Kent

FG wrote in message <6s94hd$6f4@news1.newsguy.com>...
>During the last year and a half, a number of observers have noted >several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues >or discredit people who hold other opinions than their own...

["The Baha'i Technique" followed]

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kent Johnson <comp2k@javanet.com>
Subject: Re: Fran Baker page added to web site Date: Friday, September 04, 1998 7:50 PM

rlittle@nils.com wrote in message <6sk0qv$2tm$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>Dear Friends:

>

>Let me put it this way: You live in a home. From time to time you invite >people into your home, but you control who enters, and you place limits on >their behavior. It is your home, you have the right and the obligation to do >so. SRB is like a home, and ARB is like a public park...

The trouble is that the SRB publicly claims to be a Baha'i home and that the rules it follows are fair. I dispute both assertions: the former on the grounds that the latter is not true. Baha'u'llah said "Best beloved of all things in My sight is justice..." Those who commit partisanship in His name should be challenged by those who believe His Word. But they do not allow their partisanship to be challenged....

Hence, we would be better off without such a partisan SRB which claims to be Baha'i.

--Kent

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kent Johnson <comp2k@javanet.com>
Subject: Re: the censorship that wasn't Date: Saturday, September 12, 1998 9:57 PM

If you are interested in real evidence of censorship for no good reason, I have some. I see no reason to put it here publicly, but it happened and there is plenty of evidence, at least where it concerns me.

Warm Baha'i Love. --Kent

rlittle@nils.com wrote in message <6tceu5$nr$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>Dear friends:
>
>There has been discussion recently concerning a plot or conspiracy to >cancel
>email messages to alt.religion.bahai in an attempt to censor vocal critics
>of >either the Baha'i Faith or some adjunct or agency of that Faith. Some few >individuals expressed the opinion in very strong and unmistakable language >that they believed these canceled posts to be the work of Baha'is.
>
>Inasmuch as one of the alleged victims of this "plot" has publicly come >forward...
>The source of the cancelled emails was not an individual Baha'i, or a >group of Baha'is, nor was it any agency or arm of the Baha'i Faith.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kent Johnson <comp2k@javanet.com>
Subject: Re: fw Ron House Re: 2nd ROUGH DRAFT - RFD - talk.religion.bahai
Date: Monday, September 07, 1998 10:10 PM

Donald Zhang Osborn wrote in message <35EDA739.41A7@pilot.msuNOSPAM.edu>...

>Anyway, as I understand it, a Covenant-breaker or Fred *can* post anything relating to the Baha'i teachings that doesn't include Covenant-breaking material (or links to it). One may or may not agree with the moderation policy, but moderation does not affect the accessibility of a newsgroup.<

If that were true none of us would have a complaint. The trouble, according to my experience, is the partisanship. They can easily make a rule "no covenant breaking links or sentiments" and no one would have a complaint. That is their prerogative. But they don't allow talk about how or why they should or shouldn't allow or disallow covenant breaker material. Or why they do, did, didn't or don't. And they claim to be open to such discussions, but they are not.

If you have ever been allowed to take part in their discussions you cannot know who answered you because, most likely, their answers were disallowed for any number or reasons. And those reasons cannot be discussed. They won't allow it.

We are better off without the srb. They serve no good purpose.

Allah'u'Abha. --Kent

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: LaAeterna <laaeterna@aol.com>

Subject: Re: Moonies & Bahais

Date: Friday, October 02, 1998 9:02 AM

Rick asks what should one do when one is confronted with false allegations etc.

I am not referring to a serious debate, where point and counter point are offered, in a mature, intelligent and respectful manner. I am talking about the mud slinging, the character assassination and name calling that goes on here. Whatever one may feel about what someone has said, I don't think it's appropriate to dig out one's foulest vocabulary to characterize that person.

Good grief.

And, to tell you the truth, I think the Bab must be obeyed, period. It's not that hard to figure out what a "modest and polite" reply is, afterall. Maybe we can re-read our posts before we hit that "send" button.

And--by the way--this was not aimed at any one person, so please don't feel as though I am singling anyone out. I often don't even read the sender's name. I just get a sick feeling in my stomach when I read some of that verbal violence, because in my youth, alot of that was aimed at me by alot of Baha'is, for not agreeing with their views and interpretations. I developed a real antipathy towards that method of silencing opponents.
Nancy

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subj: Fwd: Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints at Talisman
Date: 10/4/1998 8:56:37 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Barthaman
To: FG
CC: Barthaman

Fred, this was an earlier posting--for your records.

-----
Forwarded Message:

Subj: Re: Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints at Talisman
Date: 9/14/1998 3:36:58 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Barthaman@aol.com
To: crollins@webtv.net
CC: Talisman@umich.edu

Yes, Cal--and Burl--you're "off base" from where I'm sitting. Is this posting site just a mirror for our own views, to merely find self-validation and vindication--a security-blanket in the cold winds of reality? I can expect a certain amount of opposition to my views because they stray from the party-line. I'm sorry our differences have to defeat our attempts at communication--the reason I subscribed to Talisman in the first place. I'm sure you're here for the same reason--to learn what others think and try to put ourselves in each others shoes.

You've both proved the point that FG was trying to make regarding the deaf ears of Baha'i apologists (people who are defensive or indifferent to opposing viewpoints). Come on, it's O.K. for Baha'is to be open-minded to dissenting views. We didn't all grow up with the same father and not all children sing the same praises for their father (maybe he treated each of them differently or unfairly). Why do Baha'is, like Christians and Muslims, always have this knee-jerk reaction to circle the wagons whenever someone doesn't quack like a duck?

Burl, I wasn't born yesterday--you don't need to remind me about what the writings say and how Baha'is are expected to behave. While you're getting up on your soap box to pontificate to me about the Universal House of Justice--you may be impressing your friends, but you're not really "listening" to me. Obviously, my experiences with the House and the rest of the administration has been dramatically different than yours. Does this make me a less honest and worthwhile person than yourself, aside from any assumed notions we have about God, Baha'u'llah, or the UHJ. No one has a monopoly on truth--not in my experience anyway. I think you're deluding yourselves to think someone's wrong about something simply because they sound disrespectful. Was the Bab wrong for disrespecting the authorities of Shiah Islam? Relax.

Reversely, you'll recall the story about Abdul-Baha. A Muslim man hated Abdul-Baha for what he stood for, and would spit at him whenever he approached. When Abdul-Baha later heard this man was sick, he went to him and nursed him back to health. Afterward, the disbelieving man asked the Master why he was so good to him after his disrespectful behavior. Abdul-Baha said, "Because you were sincere." You needn't quote me here (the story is from memory) but the spirit of the story speaks volumes about how we mustn't judge another by our own agendas, not having walked in their shoes.

Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend.

----- Headers -----
Return-Path: <talisman-errors@umich.edu>
Received: from rly-zb04.mx.aol.com (rly-zb04.mail.aol.com [172.31.41.4]) by air-zb05.mail.aol.com (v49.1) with SMTP; Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:36:58 -0400
Received: from twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (twins.rs.itd.umich.edu [141.211.83.39]) by rly-zb04.mx.aol.com (8.8.8/8.8.5/AOL-4.0.0)
with ESMTP id PAA11798;
Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:36:55 -0400 (EDT)
Received: (from root@localhost)
by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with X.500 id PAA08057; Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:30:50 -0400 (EDT)
Received: (from root@localhost)
by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with X.500 id PAA08055 for talisman-members@umich.edu; Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:30:50 -0400 (EDT) Received: from imo13.mx.aol.com (imo13.mx.aol.com [198.81.17.3]) by twins.rs.itd.umich.edu (8.8.6/2.5) with ESMTP id PAA08022 for <Talisman@umich.edu>; Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:30:48 -0400 (EDT)
From: Barthaman@aol.com
Received: from Barthaman@aol.com by imo13.mx.aol.com (IMOV16.1) id 7JCW25245;
Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:30:24 -0400 (EDT)
Message-ID: <3a17bf55.35fd6ed0@aol.com>
Date: Mon, 14 Sep 1998 15:30:24 EDT
To: crollins@webtv.net
Cc: Talisman@umich.edu
Mime-Version: 1.0
Subject: Re: Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints at Talisman
Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
Content-transfer-encoding: 7bit
X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 214

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

It should be noted that Ron House has been posting for a number of years in many Bahais forums, including on soc.religion.bahai, and is known to be a Bahai and not what Bahais call a covenant breaker. The issue of CB material was specifically addressed in the early draft of the RFD by quoting the UHJ's support of civil rights for covenant breakers and unmoderated forums. Mr. Hyman's message here appears to me to be an attempt to cloud the waters after apparent agreement regarding the "neutral" RFD.

---

-----Original Message-----

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>

To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>

Date: Wednesday, October 14, 1998 5:53 PM

Subject: Talk.religion.bahai

>Dear Mr. Glaysher:

>I seem to recall that Mr. Ron House is not a Baha'i and I would like to >enquire why you would be interested in helping him to set up a forum for >Baha'i discussion which would have no control over CB material. My >understanding of our directives is that we should not engage in discussion >with Covenant Breakers, but I would be interested in your views and >interpretation.
>Bill Hyman

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

---

From: LaAeterna@aol.com <LaAeterna@aol.com>
To: bahai-faith@egroups.com <bahai-faith@egroups.com>
Subject: [bahai-faith] Re: Fwd: Barthaman Re Cal and Burl's dismissal of opposing viewpoints
Date: Monday, October 05, 1998 9:25 AM

Barthaman's point about dissenters being lost youth banging at the door brought back to me my own experience with the wonderful Auxiliary Board member who told me that in order to belong to the group-at-large, I would have to publicly denounce my family as heretics (or words to that effect), liars and fools. Then, I would have to shun them.

Needless to say, I chose to leave the organization that asked this of me. This is too much to ask of anyone. I saw the "door" slam shut and have been on the outside ever since.

Actually, the view out here is pretty nice. One can actually see the forest, when one's view is not obstructed by all the huge, vine covered, oppressively shady trees. Just step back a little :-)

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Doubt (has different meanings to different people).
Date: 10/12/1998 6:59 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Gibro28W
Message-id: <19981012185925.22197.00000323@ng109.aol.com>

BRaynor781 writes:> The disease we are concerned with is spiritual, not intellectual and >therefore the remedy is probably best prescribed by by the One in whom we >have chosen fo follow.

Raynor, you're not getting it. The doctor's prescription for the so-called "disease" has made his practice suspect. How can anyone with intelligence accept this kind of dogma on blind faith? When is doubt or the sincere questioning of authoritarian abuses a spiritual disease? Was Baha'u'llah a victim of this pseudo-disease as well when he condemned the hypocrisies of each of the religious establishments of his day?

Again, you say:>The objective is unity. Intellectual freedom of expression may be a luxury on >this road.

Since when do the Baha'i writings (collectively) say that intellectual freedom is a "luxury"? Without it you simply have "a broken-winged bird" that's too crippled to get off the ground. Is that what you prefer?

Finally, you say:>It seems the ego is best expressed through intellect and not spirit.

What turned me off to the Baha'i Faith (after two and a half decades as a member), were the egotistical "spiritual" leaders who had often abandoned all logic and reason (intellect) in their enforcement of absurd policies and dogmas (contrary to hard science). If you're going to have one (spirit), you must have the other (intellect). I may have an immortal soul, but I know I have a brain-mind that I can call my intellect. Please don't ask me to put my faith in the unprovable--not the second time around.

Thank you for your sincere suggestions all the same, RaynorShine.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: More Bahai censorship - moderators

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>

Date: 1997/08/20

Message-ID: <33FAFDF9.3161@hotmail.com>

Newsgroups:

alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc,soc.rights.human,soc.culture.israel,soc.culture.iranian,news.admin.censorship,news.admin.misc,news.admin.net-abuse.misc,news.admin.net-abuse.usenet

[More Headers]

[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

POSTED TO SOC.RELIGION.BAHAI ON 8-20-97:

Mac0000013 wrote:

[clip]

> Greetings;

>

> Whoever this F. Glaysher is, he makes some assumptions which appear not to > be proven.

>

> He appears to claim, without evidence, that there is censorship in > regards to talk.religion.bahai ---- he then claims that the majority of > the Baha'i's are intolerant, as when he claims that "...both were crushed > by the intolerant Baha'i majority."

I and others have posted numerous censored messages to alt.religion.bahai as evidence. They may be found on www.dejanews.com by searching for "SRB Censored" from January 1, 1997 to the present under talk.religion.bahai and alt.religion.bahai. Well over 30 other people have stated they have been censored and their messages too may be found on www.dejanews.com.

In terms of an "intolerant Bahai majority," I am clearly referring to the 691 majority who voted NO for an unmoderated talk.religion.bahai--in clear excess of what usually takes place on UseNet where technical NO votes are the only legitimate ones....

>

> Before addressing some other issues, if I remember correctly, the > moderators have explained the policy of the newsgroup. If one wishes to > engage in the flame wars, the catcalling, the ad homin. attacks far too > prevalent in other newsgroups, then one's posting is returned with a > comment as to where one may wish to employ some degree of courtesy. One > is then free to resubmit the posting: a posting that should be on topic, > address the issues, and not make personal attacks.

This neglects that many people have stated their posts were innocuous and relevant to discussion. An unmoderated Big 8 newsgroup on the Bahai Faith would provide a place where people can discuss it with confidence that no one is suppressing their opinions. Soc.religion.bahai has lost its credibility for good reasons.

>

> ALSO, I believe that there was this particular individual quite loudly > declaring that there was "trouble in RiverCity" and demanding a vote be > taken. The vote was taken. The proposal was defeated: I believe that > under two hundred voted for it and more than five or six hundred voted > against it... Rather than abide by the decision and accept the outcome, > within a short time, a newsgroup was formed by this same person.

All of the above is based on misperception and misunderstanding of the UseNet voting guidelines. First of all it's an interest poll. If 100+ people are interested in forming a newsgroup, they should be allowed to do so on any topic they choose. No ideological reasons are valid. NO votes should only be cast for technical reasons, i.e., the proposed group is in the wrong hierarchy of UseNet, which was not a problem with talk.religion.bahai, it was definitely in the right one, the talk.* hierarchy. I did not form alt.religion.bahai. A member of the UseNet Volunteer Votetakers did. I believe he did because he perceived the manifest injustice of what Bahais did....

>
> Perhaps I am mistaken by there was a vote, the vote went against the > person, and the person then implemented a Newsgroup meeting the parameters > of his particular wishes and that Newsgroup was not, to my limited > knowledge, opposed by any one of the establishment.

Alt.religion.bahai does not meet the parameters of what 157 YES votes wanted: a Big 8 unmoderated newsgroup, open and highly accessible by all....

>
> And now this individual claims that there is censorship when he is still > touting his statements publicly upon his own little Newsgroup and in this > newsgroup?

I am not the only person making that claim. I am surprised, somewhat, that you and others are still claiming that to be the case. Please read the record via www.dejanews.com where you'll find many people saying so....

>
> At the same time this person now claims that 157 people were suppressed
> --- not, I hope, as has been done in Cambodia, or in parts of South > America---- and he now claims that there was fraud but in re-reading that > particular post I was unable to read of any specific evidence documenting > such an assertion.

Using www.dejanews.com you can find many postings under "NO vote campaign" that I believe will document my accusation of voter fraud....

>
> With all due respect to all concerned, it would appear that this > particular individual is demanding that everyone halt all activities and > heed his declarations, his opinions and accord him wondrous status of > knowledge and that we accept his statement of censorship (self-defined) > and fraud and intolerance.

You, like others, continue to attempt to present me as an isolated, aberrant individual with an unjust axe to grind. I believe that is tantamount to character assassination and very old and tiresome strategem for anyone who has followed the discussion all along these several months. I am not alone in believing censorship exists on soc.religion.bahai.

Why do you and others continue to insist otherwise?

>
> I must apologize that I haven't been in his particular country for as many > years as he has, nor do I have the bounty of his vast education and > attainments, HOWEVER, many of the Baha'i's I have met in this country and > others have not been intolerant nor do they claim others are when a vote > goes against them.

I find it interesting that the moderators permit you to sarcastically attack and insult me in very personal terms but routinely reject much milder posts from myself and other Bahais and non-Bahais. I believe it is unfair and inconsistent of them and that they owe me an apology, as you do, and the decency of this response....

I respond above to the "intolerant" allegation.

>
> Over the years I have met many Baha'i's who strive to submerge the ego > that they might serve others... for some it is an easier contest than for > others. Few wish to be so embroiled in battles and contests as to have > little energy for personal transformation that will help their > communities. THUS, I find myself at a loss to understand the statement > that, even in this alleged instance, so many Baha'i's were intolerant --- > as defined by F. Glaysher within the parameters of a proposal being > defeated.

Again, with all respect, you are ignoring what UseNet voting guidelines are and that they were ignored and abused by many Bahais.... Instead, you are in the above passage, I believe, blaming the victim of injustice and censorship and you seem to be intimating I'm a megalomaniac in the maw of my ego.... Unfair, I believe.

>
> I lack the vast experience F. Glaysher must have so I can not make the > comments he has regarding others, but perhaps we might all practice > something I learned from two wonderful Baha'i ladies in Columbus, Ohio ( > Olivia Kelsey and Emily Chavez ) who stated that if I managed to keep my > mouth shut and my eyes open and my ears attentive, then perhaps I might > learn something --- and especially, learn how good others are.

Your opening sentence seems quite derisive to me. The rest of the passage is irrelevant to the censorship issue.

>
> There is not a day that goes by that I surely could take that injunction > to heart more and more: and especially when trying to learn some of the > foundations of patience and courtesy and submerging ego to serve others so > I might learn something of the Baha'i Faith.

Does the Bahai Faith support, stand for, and encourage censorship? That is the question.... Many have said YES. Many have experienced it. The first vote for talk.religion.bahai proved for most fair-minded observers. The next vote approaches come late September. You and other Bahais will have the opportunity once again to live up to the high ideals of the Bahai Writings on liberty and freedom of religious conscience....

--
FG

UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
Ask your ISP to add it; also available on
www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Faith doesn't harbor big egos? What's to prevent it?
Date: 10/14/1998 10:31 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Gibro28W
Message-id: <19981014223124.15319.00000776@ng-fa2.aol.com>

> "I remember one Baha'i author, whose father knew Baha'u'llah and who is now >serving on the Universal House of Justice, saying that the Baha'i Faith >doesn't harbor people with big egos."

One would expect a member of the House of Justice to say this. This is an authoritarian statement that is really a wish. But the Faith harbors lots of big egos (everyone has one). You won't notice them until there is a major disagreement. Having a sin-covered eye will not prevent the existence of backbiting and prejudice by those in the community doing it. It just means one is not looking hard enough to notice. It will always be there, though, like ego.

Again: >"the Baha'i Faith doesn't harbor people with big egos. They end up either >losing their egos or losing their faith."

Sounds simple enough, but it's deceiving. This is true for some people. But I've witnessed huge egos in the Baha'i Faith that received the VIP treatment because of their relationship to famous Baha'is who knew Baha'u'llah. Part of the reason I'm no longer a Baha'i is because of this hypocrisy. These particular people were, in my direct observation of them, a great cause of disunity. For instance, one "big ego" (who was good at feigning humility) that I knew personally--he was Iranian--divided my whole community for ten years. The Iranians all sided with him because of his big-shot family name. He was far more destructive (backbiting, slander and litigation) than any "covenant-breaker." The UHJ and the Assemblies were not successful in containing the problem because they were routinely misinformed. And today, the same Mr. Big-Shot is still very a respectable member of the Faith. It was my encounters with these kinds of sweet-talking, learned, deeply devout Baha'is (who privately were tyrants) that sickened me enough to lose much of my faith when I had it. To this day, because of him and his Iranian supporters, families are still bitterly divided.

> "Some people don't want to believe this, or are just too hung up on their own >opinions and desires to be able to see the bigger picture."

The same can be said of the Baha'is who refuse to believe I'm telling the truth. It's relative.

> "We can pray for them..."
Why bother? The hypocrites I've referred to above are always in a state of prayer (when not quoting the writings from memory).

Wendy, you mean well, I'm sure, but you don't know the whole story. I hope you never have to experience what I did in your love for Baha'u'llah. I once loved the Faith as much as you did. But your understanding about why people leave the Faith is inaccurate and incomplete. This is why you're hearing my side out here in cyberworld.

Best wishes.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: The Baha'i Technique
Date: 10/15/1998 7:02 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Gibro28W
Message-id: <19981015190244.15122.00001165@ng40.aol.com>

Frederick to Gibro:

>What you're seeing demonstrated here is merely "The Baha'i Technique":
>
>technique.htm

I just read "The Baha'i Technique" and I couldn't agree more with its statements.
Because a number of the Baha'is who visit here may not check it out due to distrust, let me quote one section (1992) here for those open-minded enough to read it:

"The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on."

"Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

That's it in a nutshell, Fred. It's clear to me why the Baha'is are afraid of you. You're telling it like it is. And you always have, despite the kinds of words you've used to get your messages across. It's a shame they've dismissed you all this time.

What's funny is knowing that most Baha'is will apply "The Baha'i Technique" in their reading of this technique. That they're that predictable (once you understand this aspect of human nature), never seems to phase them in their determination. (By the same token, they've come to see us as predictable too :-)

They might understand our position, but they don't want to believe it's true. They'd have to give up something in return.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: The General Idea (is correct)
Date: 10/16/1998 3:39 AM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Gibro28W
Message-id: <19981016033917.14732.00001261@ng104.aol.com>

In response to Susan:

>What you and Fred are calling the "Baha'i Technique" has nothing particularly >Baha'i about it, nor does it constitute a "technique."--Susan

How can you miss the obvious, Susan? Fred means it's a "Baha'i" defense "technique" in the face of critical opposition. It's just that simple. And it's a true statement nevertheless.

>You are simply witnessing the rather typical human reactions people have when >you criticize thier religion. If you go out of your way to do this, you >shouldn't be surprised at the response you receive. --Susan

You're quite correct. I think most people on both sides of the issue understand the basic psychology involved here; we know each other well in this regard. But the big question is: What can we do, sincerely and constructively, to help each other without seriously compromising our primary positions? Must mutual respect remain a futile proposition? If so, then we do not deserve for ourselves what we refuse to give others.

Divisive Baha'i talk, condoned in the writings and appearing in postings here, about "covenant-breakers" and "enemies of the Faith," etc., is only baiting the opposition. There are no boogie-men involved here--just imperfect, complex people--all of us. It irritates me when I see that the Baha'i leadership refuses to admit that they're a central part of this problem--because they set the global and national agendas that ultimately decide how Baha'is collectively behave. Finally, it would be unfair to put all the blame on the UHJ when their every move depends on the Baha'i writings, however flawed or perfect in their conception.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Remember the function of this site.
Date: 10/12/1998 6:11 PM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Gibro28W
Message-id:
<19981012181129.12347.00000282@ng28.aol.com>

Susan,

You wrote:>Dr. Cole's >scholarship in general. His article entitled "Behold the Man" which describes >Baha'u'llah's treatment of Christ and appeared in the Journal of the >American Academy of Religion about a year ago was magnificent.

Thank you for pointing that out. This is the useful information that Baha'is need to hear from people like yourself.

You also said: > I would not have criticized Dr. Cole on this forum at all had it not been >for his intemperate condemnation of the Institutions which was forwarded to >this list.

The discriptive heading of this particular forum (folder) states: "for non-Baha'is to discuss why they left or never converted to the faith." What Dr. Cole has said critically about the Institutions (as others like myself have)--why he left the Baha'i Faith--is quite appropriate for this forum section. This is not the "Happy Thoughts" section. Baha'is lurking here, especially, should expect that.

If you feel the need to counter Dr. Cole by defending the UHJ, O.K. But by the same token, you should respect his right to criticize it for what he feels its members hurtfully did to him and others.

People need to know about the pros and cons in order to get a broader picture. Let it go at that.

The Bahai Faith, scripturally and institutionally, however beautiful to its believers, is not perfect. If it was, we wouldn't be communicating under these polarized circumstances.

None of the former members of this religion want to see it destroyed. What we would like to see exposed are the divisive dogmas and the abuses of administrative power that stunt its growth. If the Baha'i Faith has been somehow corrupted, then this needs to be discussed openly and objectively to remedy the problem. Yours should not merely be a public relations campaign to put the best spin on compromising revelations.

Surely you have to admit that these arguments haven't been foisted upon the Baha'i community by deluded malcontents. And simply denying our arguments won't make them go away. There will always be people after us who will continue this debate--until the issues are honestly and faithfully confronted to find the fairest resolution. With the present, unaccountable (off-the-hook "infallibility") mindset of the UHJ, however, this won't happen any time soon. Nor will I wait around that long. As Candy so well reminded me, there are better ways to spend one's life than beating a dead horse.

In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them.
When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name

of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place.

So, Susan, it's like you're telling Dr. Cole: "I would not have questioned your integrity had it not been for your complaints about Daddy after he chased you out of our house for not calling him All-Knowing, Loving King." Isn't that really what your definition of loyalty to Baha'u'llah and the Covenant mean?

P.S.--I'm only trying to reason with you, Susan. I'm not trying to put you down.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Chess Hazlett <ChessHazlett@msn.com> Subject: Re: soc.religion.bahai Signatures
Date: Wednesday, October 07, 1998 2:50 PM

>Fred Glaysher wrote:
>If that's it, then I can only say it's sophistry, >clear and simple....

Fred, you have a point here.

If the SRB moderators want to prevent one person from posting, then they shouldn't mince words about it; they should just do it. AFAIK, that's within their scope of authority as moderators (correct me if I'm wrong).

It's quite another thing to make a blanket ruling about sig files under the guise of advertising and then to enforce it selectively. The rule, as I remember, said "no links to anything other than emails...any website links will be deleted." Or words to that effect.

They made the rule...they should follow it. Anything else has a rather hypocritical ring to it, at least to me.
Sinc ChessH

--

"And the crowd waved and cheered wildly, for, while they didn't care at all about anyone arriving, they were always very pleased to see someone go."
--Norton Juster

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Gibro28W was the author of the words attributed to me.

The reader

should note that Albert Verbrugh is a moderator at soc.religion.bahai.

One might want to compare this message to "The Baha'i Technique":

technique.htm since this provides,

I believe, some valuable insight into the thinking current at srb.

Please note the date: October 16, 1998, well after the "neutral" RFD

had been widely accepted and apparently agreed on by many Bahais formerly opposed to talk.religion.bahai.

---

From: Albert Verbrugh <verbrugh@pionet.net>
Cc: talk.religion.misc@pionet.net <talk.religion.misc@pionet.net>
Subject: Re: fw Gibro28W Remember the function of this site.
Date: Friday, October 16, 1998 4:29 PM

FG wrote:

.....

> In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, > is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as > "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish > attitude is very stupid. ....

Some thoughts on "criticism" from one infinitely more in tune with reality than you or I.

"When criticism and harsh words arise within a Bahá'í community, there is no remedy except to put the past behind one, and persuade all concerned to turn over a new leaf, and for the sake of God and His Faith refrain from mentioning the subjects which have led to misunderstanding and inharmony.

The more the friends argue back and forth and maintain, each side, that their point of view is the right one, the worse the whole situation becomes.

-- Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 17

...Vicious criticism is indeed a calamity. But its root is lack of faith in the system of Bahá'u'lláh, i.e., the Administrative Order--and lack of obedience to Him--for He has forbidden it! If the Bahá'ís would follow the Bahá'í laws in voting, in electing, in serving and in abiding by Assembly decisions, all this waste of strength through criticizing others could be diverted into cöoperation and achieving the Plan..."

-- Shoghi Effendi, Directives from the Guardian, p. 17

Let them call to mind, fearlessly and determinedly, the example and conduct of `Abdu'l-Bahá while in their midst. Let them remember His courage, His genuine love, His informal and indiscriminating fellowship, His contempt for and impatience of criticism, tempered by His tact and wisdom. Let them revive and perpetuate the memory of those unforgettable and historic episodes and occasions on which He so strikingly demonstrated His keen sense of justice, His spontaneous sympathy for the downtrodden, His ever-abiding sense of the oneness of the human race, His overflowing love for its members, and His displeasure with those who dared to flout His wishes, to deride His methods, to challenge His principles, or to nullify His acts.

-- Shoghi Effendi, The Advent of Divine Justice, p. 34-35

>"...With the present, unaccountable >(off-the-hook "infallibility") mindset of the UHJ, however, this won't >happen any time soon...."

Am I further more, right in assuming you no longer see yourself as an upholder of the Covenant? If, your answer is affirmative than I would beg the question, why are you so eager to establish a new news group called 'talk.religion.bahai'. Why not call it 'talk.religion.general'?
Is it, to soothe a bruised ego.

"The first condition is firmness in the Covenant of God. For the power of the Covenant will protect the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh from the doubts of the people of error. It is the fortified fortress of the Cause of God and the firm pillar of the religion of God. Today no power can conserve the oneness of the Bahá'í world save the Covenant of God; otherwise differences like unto a most great tempest will encompass the Bahá'í world. It is evident that the axis of the oneness of the world of humanity is the power of the Covenant and nothing else. Had the Covenant not come to pass, had it not been revealed from the Supreme Pen and had not the Book of the Covenant, like unto the ray of the Sun of Reality, illuminated the world, the forces of the Cause of God would have been utterly scattered and certain souls who were the prisoners of their own passions and lusts would have taken into their hands an axe, cutting the root of this Blessed Tree. Every person would have pushed forward his own desire and every individual aired his own opinion! Notwithstanding this great Covenant, a few negligent souls galloped with their chargers into the battlefield, thinking perchance they might be able to weaken the foundation of the Cause of God: but praise be to God all of them were afflicted with regret and loss, and ere long they shall see themselves in poignant despair. Therefore, in the beginning the believers must make their steps firm in the Covenant so that the confirmations of Bahá'u'lláh may encircle them from all sides, the cohorts of the Supreme Concourse may become their supporters and helpers, and the exhortations and advices of `Abdu'l-Bahá, like unto the pictures engraved on stone, may remain permanent and ineffaceable in the tablets of all hearts.

-- `Abdu'l-Bahá, Tablets of the Divine Plan, p. 51-52

Regards,

Albert Verbrugh

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: folders
Date: 11/17/1998 2:58 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: Ruletherod
Message-id: <19981117145812.10010.00001884@ng36.aol.com>

>A suggestion for a folder:
>
>Bahai Censorship

I second that. Absolutely. Let's be honest about it. Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics.

Wherever there is conflict, there are real problems that need resolution--not just in the interests of some, but for all. Why isn't the UHJ doing a better job addressing these issues honestly, without pretense, denial and obfuscation? Call in the outside conflict-resolution experts at least. Why let problems drift and fester until far more irreparable damage is done? To me this suggests that the Bahai are not prepared should they be confronted by larger, better organized and funded forces outside the Faith (should that day come at all).

It's time to officially level the playing field to include and welcome all voices, including Dr. Cole's. In fact, without recognizing the informed observations of Dr. Cole and others, I don't see how the Bahai faith can honestly succeed in the world. Such critical feedback is essential.

This is a wake up call, folks. How many Bahais are really listening? Can they afford not to? Where do Bahais begin from here to right the wrongs of their past? Will they admit to such wrongs? At the very least, a "censorship" folder would help legitimize the kinds of experiences that have traditionally been swept under the Persian carpet.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai
Date: Wednesday, December 09, 1998 10:26 PM
Subject: Re: Reply to "moderator" of soc.religion.bahai

>rlittle33@my-dejanews.com wrote in message ><73unh9$jgl$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>> I have been following Mr. Soltanis postings on >> alt.religion.bahai for some time, and wish to reply to >> what appears to be a veiled threat.
>
>A 'veiled threat'?! I don't understand why so many Bahais >have this urge to try to discredit people, imply something >negative, and resort to personal attack and name-calling!
>Is this something inherent in the doctrine or the natural >defense mechanism that causes you to resort to this kind of >rhetoric to justify your membership in an ideologically >defeated doctrine?
>
>Actually, what I said was pretty clear - nothing 'veiled' >about it. Although no one single entity runs the internet, >there are ways to expose people who are abusing established >protocol and stop carrying of newsgroups whose moderators >are blatantly biased and are breaking netiquette.
>
>> For some time Mr. Soltani has been posting on this >> newsgroup, as well as others, and he has consistently >> rebutted the claims of Baha'u'llah and the Bab, and >> has taken the stand that Muhammad is the last Prophet, >> the Seal.
>
>This is a fair statement; but, I have been on and off this >newsgroup. I have to return and spend my valuable time >exposing deceptive Bahai claims, when I notice that certain >individuals, either naively or intentionally, are once again >misrepresenting my faith and spreading falsehood about the >Word of God. By now, many people have realized that doing >so is not only the just and decent thing to do, but also >is obligated upon me and other Muslims. I don't understand >why you seem to have a difficulty recognizing my duty and >right, even after I have repeatedly provided proofs from >the Scriptures!
>
>Why do the missionaries of all misguided groups want to >silence the voice of reason and the Word of God? Are they >threatened by the truth and are fearful that some of their >unfortunate followers will awaken to the Word of God and >find true guidance?
>
>Incidentally, if you have noticed, none of my replies to >similar postings on soc.religion.bahai have been allowed.
>Don't you feel it odd that now, for almost a month, I have >been responding to all kind of allegation by Bahais on this >forum, but not one of my clarifications have been allowed >on SRB? Why do the moderators censor people who speak >reason and present clear evidence from Scriptures in support >of their claims? Why do they allow baseless conjecture, >misquotation, and misrepresentation of Islam, but not the >truth and response to their false allegations? What are >they hiding and what do they fear?

>

>> Mr. Soltani is free to do so, free to think and feel and >> believe as he wishes.

>

>You are too kind! Thank you.

>

>> If he refuses to open his mind and heart to the >> possibility that God has renewed His religion, then >> that is between him and God.

>

>Actually, if I were to disobey what Allah has so clearly >decreed (in many ways), then I would be an unbeliever. No, >thanks! I know Al-Islam pretty well and I know what Allah >(the Exalted) has said about the people before us who >ignored the Clear guidance, followed their own whims and >wishes, invented new 'faiths', and were doomed...

>

>Incidentally, we had this discussion almost a year ago, when >I explained the misconceptions you have been taught and were >spreading and provided dozens upon dozens of clear passages >from the Muslim Scriptures confirming that any doctrine >invented after Al-Islam is misguided and manmade. Obviously, >you have forgotten all our discussions...

>

>Perhaps, in light of what you have said, you need ask yourself >two simple questions:

>

> 1. Why do you refuse to follow the Word of God in a religion >that you yourself bear witness to be Divine? Speaking >of someone's mind and heart being sealed, perhaps you >need to work on your own house first...

>

> 2. If someone were to turn around and give you this same >line of argument, what would you answer?

>

>What if a member of another one of these other manmade
>"faiths" were to invite you to theirs, give you a lot >of mumbo-jumbo on why you should join, and - when you >refuse based on Hussain Ali's words - advance some >ridiculous statement like:

>

>"If you refuse to open your mind and heart to the >possibility that God has renewed His religion, then >that is between you and God."

>

>Would you give up your faith because some biased missionary >accused you of being closed-minded? I do not think so.

>Then I wonder, why are you even bothering to advance this >line of argument?

>

>When I say, this is cult mentality, some Bahais get all bent >out of shape and write all sort of articles to explain why >people should not see them as having been brainwashed! But, >the evidence is in pudding! So many Bahais on these forums >have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore >clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the >same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to >justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence.
>To me, that smells like cult mentality.

>

>> Mr. Soltani bases his beliefs upon the Quran, and says >> that Book is the authority, the standard by which he >> measures everything.

>
>As repeatedly I have stated, the people who ignore the >clear Word of God and resort to conjecture are doomed. I >base my ideas on clear Word of God and the teachings of >the last Messenger of Allah, Muhammad(pbuh), and always >have provided quote to substantiate what I have said.
>
>> However...
>>
>> The Quran requires a dependence upon God, an open, >> inquiring mind, a pure heart, a loving, gentle nature,
>> a reverence for all things and all people.
>
>Some people rely on deception and misrepresent the religion
>Of Allah, I am authorized to expose them the way I see fit.
>Incidentally, calling someone who steals a "thief" is not >having an abusive nature...
>
>> In contrast, Mr. Soltani consistently misspells the >> name of the Baha'i Faith, and uses terms such as "Bahaism" >> which he knows to be not only incorrect, but disrespectful.
>
>I am sorry, but you are once more only reflecting negatively >on yourself. I refer you to Webster's dictionary to see that >the word "Bahaism" is perfectly legal. And as far as your >"baha'i" versus my "Bahai", I like mine more and I know Persian >language! At least I do not abbreviate as "Bah", as some Bahais >abbreviate Muhammad as "Moh"...
>
>It is amusing that Bahai missionaries have no problem using the >words "Hinduism" and "Buddism", even though the followers of >these doctrines are hundreds of times more in number than and >have been in existence for thousands of years, and yet object >to someone else calling their doctrine "Bahaism".
>
>No doubt, this is more of the predictable strategy of these people.
>They like to change the subject, attack people who speak justly, >and distrust people from clear evidence to trivial and unfounded >arguments.
>
>> He comes into these Baha'i newsgroups with assertions which >> are inflammatory and says that he is offended by Baha'is.
>
>Of course I am offended and so should any decent person be.
>
>We have seen how Bahai "proofs" are blatant misrepresentation >of Islamic teachings which even sink as low as taking passages >out of context. As a long-time learned Bahai, you may find >it normal and acceptable to misrepresent the facts, truth, and >teachings of another faith and claim a different "interpretation"; >to me that is dishonest and offensive...
>
>> He makes statements without documenting the conclusions >> which he reaches, either from the Quran, or from the Baha'i >> writings.
>
>This is indeed amusing. After testifying that you have been >reading my posts on these newsgroups for a while, you have the >cheek to claim that I have not been providing evidence from >Quran or Bahai arguments? Sadly, your own statements say >volumes about your true purpose for even bringing up this kind >of baseless inflammatory attack... Those interested to see >what I've said and whether I quote Quran and answer to Bahai >misrepresentations, can look into <https://www.dejanews.com/> and >search for "kavosh and Bahai" in recent and past folders...

>
>Even my recent posting that exposed some of the misrepresentations >of Bahai missionaries, quoted what Bahais often use as "proof" >from Quran, next to actual passages of the Quran...
>
>I do not frankly believe anyone will fall for these baseless >attacks. Your strategy only goes to show the truth about what >knowledgeable Bahais do and what extents they will go to silence >the voice of reason and truth. I am glad this is not the time >of Shah and I am not living in Iran, otherwise I might have been >silenced in a more permanent way by those who collaborated with >Shah...
>
>> And finally, he makes what can only be considered to be >> threats.
>
>If you and your colleagues keep spreading falsehood about Islam >and Muslims on soc.religion.bahai and do not allow Muslims to >provide follow up responses, we will make the motion to discontinue >your propaganda forum, expose the falsehood of Bahais, and make >sure everyone on the Internet knows the truth about a doctrine >whose leaders purposely misrepresent other faiths and censor the >word of reason and truth... You want to consider this a threat?
>I see it as a promise; one that it is right and justified...
>
>> Firstly, the Baha'i Faith is recognized as being a world >> religion by virtually every national government in the >> world, save a few, such as Iran.
>
>I am more interested with what God has said about this manmade >doctrine, than what some ignorant politicians have done... Those >people consider any two-bit cult a faith - even the ones Bahais >consider to be man-made... Secondly, there are almost 50 Muslim >nations in existence...
>
>> The Baha'i institutions are organized and established in >> over 200 nations.
>
>And, this should tell me something about the truthfulness
>Of your doctrine? How many countries and localities has playboy?
>
>> Baha'i marriages are legal, students and employees are >> allowed to stay home on Baha'i holy days, Spiritual >> Assemblies are able to purchase and maintain properties >> for schools and centers, books and literature are >> legally printed and sold and owned and read.
>
>This is your evidence for being divine? Any cult would be >able to do the same.
>
>> The United Nations Organization has recognized the >> Baha'i Faith from the outset, and Baha'is are well >> represented in the non-governmental portions of this >> world organization.
>
>Being on the side of Israel and other anti-Islamic movements >has its advantages... Regardless, I do not see this as >truthfulness of your doctrine. The truth still remains >that you claim (obviously falsely) to accept divinity of >Al-Islam and Al-Islam rejects claims of Bahaism... The >fact that you lobby UN also goes to prove you are in truth >a political organization, regardless of all the talk of not >wanting to engage in politics...
>
>> Finally, Baha'is live in more localities in the world >> than Muslims, or any other religion save Christianity.

>
>I seriously doubt that even your exaggerated numbers of 5 >million cover more area than 1.6 billion Christians or 1.4 >Billion Muslims. Having an office in city X does not make >your representation the same as 100 Mosques in the same area; >the same holds of all other nations around the world... Your >supporters may publish such statements, but those are obviously >unacceptable to every thinking person...
>
>> I think that the assertion that the Baha'i Faith is >> a world religion is easily verifiable to be true.
>
>I see it as a man-made one; so do the majority of people >around the globe.
>
>> The Baha'i Faith is not rejected by every Muslim. A >> large percentage of Baha'is formerly were Muslims, and >> large numbers of Muslims admire the high ethical >> standards and the devotion to God which the Baha'i >> teachings inculcate.
>
>As we have seen, Bahais are unable to respond to the word >of God in Al-Islam. I doubt any sincere believer would >feel anything but sorrow for people who are following a >misguided and man-made faith which leads nowhere but to >destruction in the hereafter. I also like to point out >that Bahaism is declared as a man-made doctrine by all >Muslim scholars of repute for 150 years. In fact, any >individual who would ever accept what Bahai missionaries >claim (naturally, without any evidence) would cease to be >a Muslim, since he would be ignoring the Clear Word of God.
>
>> Unfortunately, many people are not allowed access to >> the Baha'i writings, and have only the statements of >> people like Mr. Soltani to guide them. Since Mr.
>> Soltani does not quote either the Quran or the Baha'i >> Writings, it is not possible for readers to make an >> informed decision for themselves, something which >> Baha'u'llah emphasizes.
>
>I think you enjoy saying things that are obviously false.
>
>But, then, Bahai missionaries and scholars have been also >spreading falsehood about Islam and Muslims for 150 years >and that should be expected... Once more, if anyone wants >to see if I have or have not quoted Muslim Scriptures, they >should check dejanews and see the truth...
>
>> The statement that Baha'is allow "anti-Islamic" postings >> is easily verifiable as being untrue.
>
>Misrepresenting Islam and preventing Muslims from replying >to allowed postings is blatant deception and subversion of >truth. The postings by Bahais missionaries about Islam, as >we have seen on this forum are often misquotations or >conjectures about selected passages and without merit.
>
>> The moderated newsgroup, soc.religion.bahai, is regulated >> by a very high standard of conduct which does not allow >> for any attacks upon any individual or group of people.
>
>This is the perfect forum for spreading "propaganda". Just >imagine if their so called "proofs", "arguments", and evidence >were being exposed freely everyday; would they be able to >create such an ideal atmosphere to misguide and brainwash?
>

>> No posting attacking Muslims or Islam or the Quran would >> ever be permitted, and the rejection of Mr. Soltanis article >> is proof, if any is needed. On this newsgroup, which is not >> moderated, there are numerous postings attacking the Baha'i >> Faith itself, such as those of Mr. Soltani, but I do not >> recall any attacks upon Islam, Muslims or the Quran here, >> which were written by Baha'is.
>
>Any time Bahai missionaries misrepresent Islam, take Quran >out of context, attack Muslims, and misrepresent history, >they are attacking Islam and Muslims; not to mention all other >decent people.
>
>> Baha'is have responded to the many attacks on them and >> their Faith, by quoting from the Baha'i writings, the >> Quran and the Christian and Jewish holy books, but I do >> not believe an objective person would term these replies >> as being "attacks" themselves.
>
>I think any reasonable individual can see that while longtime >Bahai missionaries have been hiding in the background, unable >to defend the claims of their scholars and missionaries about >Islam, no response to usual Bahai propaganda has been allowed >on soc.religion.bahai. Do you think everyone is so gullible >to think for a minute, that Muslims whose duty include spreading >the truth and expose falsehood would patiently and politely >respond to all kind of unfounded argument by Bahai missionaries >on this forum, and keep quiet when it comes to SRB? Obviously, >not! The fact is that the lack of response by knowledgeable >Muslims on that forums is solely attributable to a blatant >pattern of censorship and abuse by the moderators of SRB...
>
>If I used a colorful title now (mind you the content is nothing >but supported discussion), it was to attract attention and >expose the truth about Bahai missionaries and their strategies.
>Thank you for your help and collaboration in this regard...
>
>> Mr. Soltani states that he has received many complaints, and >> he appears to be attempting to force the Baha'is into silence.
>
>Obviously, I am not the only one and this is why all the talk >about creating a new forum talk.religion.bahai is going on.
>However, my purpose is to stop this blatant abuse of Internet >netiquette by Bahai missionaries in SRB.
>
>> The Baha'i Faith is over 150 years old, and for every one of >> those years there have been attempts to silence Baha'is.
>
>Anytime you have mass graves come forth and I accept your >repeated assertions of massive abuse...
>
>Islam is over 1400 years old and every year there have been >hundreds of thousands of Muslims killed around the world.
>While you wasted our time with your missionary propaganda, >probably a few dozen children died of disease and hunger in >Iraq, Bosnia, Kashmir, and elsewhere... If you think this is >reason for one's "divinity", I have a bridge to sell...
>
>If you have a complaint about the government of Iran, I >suggest you take it to an Iranian forum. After seeing the >blatant deceptive methods of Bahai missionaries, I know >better to take their word at face value...
>
>Besides, if I wanted to be impressed by every person who kills >himself or dies for some misguided idea (religious or otherwise), >I would be more impressed with heaven gates followers all of >whom took their own lives... Were they also following a divine >religion? They all died for their belief...

>

>This is the usual amo of missionaries. As we have seen it here, >they proudly come out and state the Muslim "shahadah" and call >themselves Muslims, when they know too well even a dictionary >defines a Muslim differently... They use the same strategy on >their poor naive victims and get them to do the same in Muslim >counties...

>

>In a Muslim state, just as Christianity and Judaism state, the >punishment for committing treason to God and State is death.
>The poor people, who are tricked to declare their faith in the >manner of a Muslim openly and then are allowed to recant publicly, >are punished, just like anyone else would be. A Muslim, Christian, >Jews, Hindu, Bahai, or any other person who did the same would be >penalized exactly in the same way. There is no bias against >Bahais on that regard...

>

>Nevertheless, we should know that Bahai missionaries have been >ideologically defeated when they come up with such "evidence" >and empty "proofs" for being a "faith"... Do they have nothing >left that attack the believers, spread falsehood, advance >baseless arguments, avoid discussion of Divine evidence, and >divert discussion to claims of abuse somewhere around the world...
>Sorry, if I say I am not impressed!

>

>In the meanwhile, I see all this shouting another attempt to >misguide more gullible People, intimidate Muslims and silence them >from exposing the falsehood of your doctrine, and seek political >Asylum and financial help for your movement.

>

>After seeing what Bahais are capable of doing on a newsgroup, I am >glad they no longer have a controlling hand in Iran; Otherwise, >they would abuse power even more and try to silence the voice of >Muslims as it was done at the time of Shah.

>

> =====

> None can dispute about the Signs of Allah but the Unbelievers.
> Let not, then, their strutting about through the land deceive thee!
> (The holy Quran, 40.4)

>

> Fain would they extinguish Allah's light with their mouths, but > Allah will not allow but that His light should be perfected, even > though the Unbelievers may detest (it).
> (The holy Quran, 9.32)

>

>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai
Date: Friday, December 04, 1998 11:09 PM
Subject: Re: REPOST - alt.religion.bahai - FAQ

>FG wrote in message
>>March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of >>talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in >>effect more than a year and a half later.
>
>>
>>November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly >>favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives >>FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing >>list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists
>>
>>May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG >>that contain his signature file:
>
>
>Wow!!! I see you too had to put up with this kind of abuse for >a long time... This kind of censorship and vindictiveness only >goes to speak badly against them and all the long time Bahai >supporters of the House of "Justice" in Israel who are now >trying to put a spin on this and save face... It would be much >better for their souls, not to mention credibility, if instead they >came out and expressed their dismay at all the evidence.
>
>I just have to wonder about people who are willing to accept >someone's alleged claim of "abuse" and promote their "story" >of abuse all over the net, but then turn a blind eye to so many >reports of abuse and censorship by different people. I wonder >if their faith teaches them of Justice and Fairness...
>
>Regards.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subj: censorship
Date: 12/3/1998 11:52:58 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: stomljen@enteract.com (Steve Tomljenovic)
To: FG@aol.com

Here is a something I've written recently in the thread "Re: Effective Prospecting" dated Dec 1, 1998. You might want to add it to your list of quotes..

I've had posts censored in the past as well. The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse. I think they are a bit defensive at the moment.

There is a concept in Baha'i thought that the Faith is like a sapling that needs to be protected until it can stand on it's own. Part of this "protection" is a degree of censorship. However, I don't think this is being handled very wisely in some respects. The Baha'i [soc.religion.bahai] moderators forget, I believe, how sensitive folks are on the Internet to these kinds of things.

----- Headers -----
Return-Path: <stomljen@enteract.com>
Received: from rly-zc01.mx.aol.com (rly-zc01.mail.aol.com [172.31.33.1]) by air-zc05.mail.aol.com (v53.17) with SMTP; Thu, 03 Dec 1998 11:52:58 -0500
Received: from smtp.enteract.com (thor.enteract.com [207.229.143.11]) by rly-zc01.mx.aol.com (8.8.8/8.8.5/AOL-4.0.0) with SMTP id LAA11240 for <FG@aol.com>; Thu, 3 Dec 1998 11:52:36 -0500 (EST)
Received: (qmail 3579 invoked from network); 3 Dec 1998 16:52:27 -0000 Received: from adam.enteract.com (stomljen@206.54.252.1) by thor.enteract.com with SMTP; 3 Dec 1998 16:52:27 -0000 Date: Thu, 3 Dec 1998 10:52:27 -0600 (CST)
From: Steve Tomljenovic <stomljen@enteract.com>
To: FG@aol.com
Subject: censorship
Message-ID: <Pine.BSF.3.96.981203104807.1686A-100000@adam.enteract.com>
MIME-Version: 1.0
Content-Type: TEXT/PLAIN; charset=US-ASCII

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: SRB censored: 11-21-97
From: Notarius <Use-Author-Address-Header@[127.1]>
Date: 1997/11/25
Message-ID: <19971125135951.29557.qmail@nym.alias.net>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,news.groups
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

1 Hymans note

Frederick wrote:

>----begin message posted to SRB:
>Dear Mr. Glaysher:
>Many thanks for your quotation but I saw no point to it except >to advertize the RFD for trb.
>The moderators have decided that srb is not the place to discuss >this issue and a moderators' posting will be made shortly >explaining the reasons. If you would like to resubmit the >quotation in support of your views on the Bahai Faith, without >the reference to the RFD to trb, I will be happy to post it.

>Bill Hyman
>co-moderator
>soc.religion.bahai

Has the message been posted? What is this about?

2 The decision of the BCCA-CC.

The decision creates uncertainty as to what is going on.
Frederick is cut off.

3 TRB can be voted down for technical reasons.

SRB can introduce a new policy. No reason to have TRB anymore.

Tell me if I am wrong. If I spend more time with Kafka the urge to print NOTS will be irresistable.

notarius

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Subject: Re: Reply to "moderator" of soc.religion.bahai
Date: Wednesday, December 09, 1998 9:37 PM

Pat Kohli wrote in message <366211D7.1FC785DF@mail.ameritel.net>...

>> Kavosh Soltani wrote:

>> I am very amused with your statements. Firstly, your assertion >> that Bahaism is a world religion is conjecture and an unproven >> fact which is reject by every Muslim.

>

> Pat Kohli

> Obviously not every Muslim accepts the Baha'i Faith as their > religion, but pretending it is not a religion does not make > it a non-religion. Check

> <https://www.interlog.com/~winters/encyclopedia/history.html>.

> Pretending that Sikh or Druse are not religions also does not > make them not religions.

You missed the irony in my reply...

Even though I was exposing the truth about some of the often misquoted text of Quran used by Bahai missionaries, the moderator claimed that my statement was "unproven"! I can't see what level of "proof" he demands nor do I understand why he feels it his right to prevent postings that aim to provide such proof or raise the discussion based on clear evidence...

If the moderator's excuse now is that everything to be discussed on SRB must have been "proven" apriori, then once more that's a double standard imposed solely on non-Bahais. Bahais routinely are allowed to post unproven accusations and misquotations about Islam and Muslims. I wonder why no one bothers to demand "proof" from Bahai missionaries when they speak of Islam and Muslims on SRB?

My reply pointed out that, if one wants to demand "proof", Bahaism itself has not been "proven", and the conjecture it advances about Islam is false...

>> Kavosh Soltani wrote:

>> Secondly, routinely you >> and your colleagues allow anti-Islamic postings by Bahai >> missionaries on your forum and then censor any follow up, >> clarification, or reply by Muslims.

>

> Pat Kohli

> Here are the threads from srb that I see on my news server:

> Subject Sender

> ..... ..

> Please identify the anti-Islamic postings.

Pat, are you trying to pull our legs? I did not say "right now", but routinely... You know, I have not been compiling a listing of all such postings, but actually this lasy series of postings (from last month or so until now), began when some Bahais started posting articles on SRB about Islam and their so called evidence for continuation of prophethood.

My postings were rejected as "irrelevant", while Bahai Emails consisting of nothing but verses of Quran were allowed!

I am certain you can browse and find them in dejanews...

>> Kavosh Soltani wrote:
>> What kind of a "newsgroup" is this? Is this a newsgroups about >> Bahaism, as it should be, or a house of Bahai missionaries and >> a forum for Bahais to openly misrepresent the teachings of a >> World Religion and offend Muslims? If you like to carry out with >> your missionary efforts to attack Islam without hearing the truth >> from Muslims, I suggest you get a private mailing list. If you allow >> a Bahai to make a posting on Islam on your forum (as you routinely >> do with finality of prophethood, Day of Judgment, etc.), it is >> dishonest not to allow Muslims to provide a reply.

>
> Pat Kohli
> srb is a moderated news group. I've gotten a rejection > message from Mr. Hyman as well. If you wish to discuss > finality of prophethood or Day of Judgement, there are > open threads on those topics right here at arb.

Once more you are oversimplifying things. If moderators of SRB feel that these topics are relevant to Bahaism when Bahai missionaries post their "evidence" from Islamic Scripture, then it only goes to show their bias when they reject replies by Muslims on the same topic.

>> Kavosh Soltani wrote:
>> I have had many complaints from Muslims on this issue and >> know that the biased standard used by SRB is unlike that of >> any other soc.religion.xxx newsgroup.

>
> Pat Kohli
> Perhaps you could direct your Muslim friends to post their > views on finality of prophethood and Day of Judgment at an > unmoderated group or perhaps an xxx.xxx.islam.x moderated > group. I am unaware that Baha'is believe in finality of > prophethood in a meaningful way, so it would not seem like > a Baha'i topic. Jews believe that the Law of God was > completed through Moses and no new Covenant has followed.
> Christians believe that the Covenant ends with the Injeel.
> Muslims believe that the Covenant ends with the Qor'an.
> Though Baha'is believe that the Manifestation of God for > this age is Baha'u'llah, we do not believe that the > Revelation of God ever ceases.

I am not concerned with what Jews, Christians, Bahais, or Heaven Gates followers have invented for themselves, at the moment. I am discussing Bias and Censor of follow up postings to SRB. Deliberate subversion of Islam by Bahai missionaries is ugly and their censor of Non-Bahais on SRB is unacceptable per Internet standards.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re: Why can't you....?
Date: 12/9/1998 9:15 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: Ruletherod
Message-id: <19981209091523.05401.00000013@ng34.aol.com>

>I have known the House to answer me in four days >and I have known them to take six months. The one that took six months was >well worth waiting for and the one that took four days would have caused me
a >nervous break down if I'd had to wait any longer!
>warmest, Susan

The logic the House used for taking for taking a year to answer my appeal was that they felt I would have come to my senses in all that time. I did. In my profound disillusionment (ridding myself of illusions) at their insensitivity--to a problem they helped create-- I began the long process of leaving the Faith. Of course, none of this is really important to anyone unless it is your faith being crushed.

I really believe, Susan, that if you had been put into my set of circumstances and had become too disgusted to continue making appeals--you would have lost your faith too.

The fact is Bahais leave the Faith quietly every year. They're typically called "inactive."
For all you Bahais out there with your heads blistfully in the sand--when not crying "foul" to what I'm saying: Do your homework and quit chiming in with the mob mentality.

Cf.

The Baha'i Technique - Slander & Shunning

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/technique.htm>

Compare Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Subject: How Soc.Religion.Bahai Censures the truth about Bahai activities....
Date: Saturday, November 28, 1998 9:15 PM

A few weeks ago, these guys censured my reply to Bahai missionaries who routinely misquote and misrepresenting Islamic Scriptures on SRB. Now, they think they have found some good reason to reject what really are answers to well known Bahai misquotations of Quran....
=====

-----Original Message-----

From: Island Business Center (Bill Hyman) <billh@samoatelco.com>
To: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Cc: srb <srb-mods@bccs.org>
Date: Saturday, November 28, 1998 1:14 AM
Subject: Re: Another Example of How Bahai Scholars and Missionaries Misguide their Unfortunate Followers

>Kavosh:
>
>I am returning your submission for several reasons.
>
>1. The title is disrespectful to another world religion.
>
>2. Your statement, "If anything, it is the Bahai scholars and missionaries who are guilty of knowingly spreading falsehood about the teachings of Al-Islam," is conjecture and unproven. Baha'is would certainly uphold everything in the Koran as true, but not necessarily your interpretation of it, or, in fact, the interpretation of anyone now living.
>
>3. I do not remember seeing the original submission from Rachel posted on this forum, and, even if it was, she is not a Baha'i but a follower of Al-Islam. You are therefore aguing Islamic points with someone from your own faith and that is not the purpose of this forum.
>
>I am forwarding this submission to Rachel so that she can reply to you.
>
>Bill Hyman
>co-moderator
>soc.religion.bahai
>-----
>From: "Kavosh Soltani" <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
>To: soc-religion-bahai@moderators.uu.net
>Newsgroups: soc.religion.bahai
>Subject: Another Example of How Bahai Scholars and Missionaries Misguide their Unfortunate Followers >Date: Fri, 27 Nov 1998 21:34:03 -0500
>
>Rachel r.woodlock@bigfoot.com (a Bahai) wrote:
>>Allah may have protected His deen, but He also warned that if Muslims fail >>like the previous generations He would raise up *another* people ... >> a threat >to not take one's position as holders of Allah's Word for >> granted!
>>
>>"...If ye turn back (from the Path), He will substitute in your >> stead another people; then they would not be like you!"
>> Surah Muhammad 47:38
>

>I see that once more you are just repeating what the "scholars" >of your faith have been falsely claiming for years. As I mentioned >before, even if I were to mistakenly accept the quotes you have >presented as being addressed to Muslims, we still will not have >what you are claiming to be presenting in support of new religions >after Al-Islam. As long as there are any of us fulfilling our obligation >(and there are millions of us), we have not turned our back to faith.

>
>Now, Rachel isn't rejecting the clear word of God in favor of mere >conjecture the biggest problem with Christianity? Is it not dangerous >for you to follow in their steps?

>
>If you allow me, I will, enshaAllah, show how wrong it is to quote >this passage as you have. Let's read the sentence within proper >context:

>
> "O ye who believe! Obey Allah, and obey the messenger, > and make not vain your deeds!
>
> Those who reject Allah, and hinder (men) from the Path of > Allah, then die rejecting Allah,- Allah will not forgive them.
>
> Be not weary and faint-hearted, crying for peace, when ye > should be uppermost: for Allah is with you, and will never put > you in loss for your (good) deeds.
>
> The life of this world is but play and amusement: and if ye > believe and guard against Evil, He will grant you your > recompense, and will not ask you (to give up) your possessions.
>
> If He were to ask you for all of them, and press you, ye would > covetously withhold, and He would bring out all your ill-feeling.
>
> Behold, ye are those invited to spend (of your substance) in > the Way of Allah: But among you are some that are niggardly.
> But any who are niggardly are so at the expense of their own > souls. But Allah is free of all wants, and it is ye that are needy.
> If ye turn back (from the Path), He will substitute in your stead > another people; then they would not be like you!"
> (The holy Quran, 47:33-38)

>
>I do not see how anyone can claim that this is a warning to Muslims >and a proof that prophethood will continue! This obviously is a >warning to those who:

- >
> 1. Are niggardly;
>
> 2. Reject Allah, and hinder (men) from the Path of Allah
> (i.e. follow false faiths or engage in vain talk).
>

>>"It is We Who have sent down the Qur'án to thee by stages...
>>It is We Who created them, and We have made their joints strong;
>>but, when We will, We can substitute the like of them by a >>complete change. This is an admonition: Whosoever will, let him >>take a (straight) Path to his Lord." >>Surah Ad-Dahr 76:23,28-9

>
>Once more, allow us to look at this passage within proper context:

>
> "It is We Who have sent down the Qur'an to thee by stages.
>
> Therefore be patient with constancy to the Command of thy > Lord, and hearken not to the sinner or the ingrate among them.
>
> And celebrate the name of thy Lord morning and evening,
>
> And part of the night, prostrate thyself to Him; and glorify Him > a long night through.
>

> As to these, they love the fleeting life, and put away behind > them a Day (that will be) hard.
>
> It is We Who created them, and We have made their joints > strong; but, when We will, We can substitute the like of > them by a complete change.
>
> This is an admonition: Whosoever will, let him take a (straight) > Path to his Lord."
> (The holy Quran, 76:23-29)
>
>How can you claim this to be a reference to Muslims, when the >Merciful Allah(the Exalted) has addressed it clearly to those who >"love the fleeting life, and put away behind them a Day (day of >Judgment) hard". Perhaps, if you had included the entire passage, >you would not have made such a gross mistake and would not >have said of Allah(the Exalted) what is not true...
>
>>"Now I do call to witness the Lord of all points in the East and the West >>that We can certainly- Substitute for them better (men) than they; And We >>are not to be defeated (in Our Plan)." Surah Al-Ma'arij 70:40-41
>
>I hope you do see a pattern here! I am a Muslim, a follower of >truth and clear guidance. I hope I will not be accused of being an >"anti-Bahai apologetic", when all I am doing is setting the record >straight, standing for truth, and showing the true teachings of >Al-Islam. If anything, it is the Bahai scholars and missionaries >who are guilty of knowingly spreading falsehood about the >teachings of Al-Islam.
>
>Let's read this passage also within the proper context:
>
> "Now what is the matter with the Unbelievers that they rush > madly before thee-
>
> From the right and from the left, in crowds?
>
> Does every man of them long to enter the Garden of Bliss?
>
> By no means! For We have created them out of the (base > matter) they know!
>
> Now I do call to witness the Lord of all points in the East > and the West that We can certainly-
>
> Substitute for them better (men) than they; And We are not > to be defeated (in Our Plan).
>
> So leave them to plunge in vain talk and play about, until > they encounter that Day of theirs which they have been promised!-
>
> The Day whereon they will issue from their sepulchres in > sudden haste as if they were rushing to a goal-post (fixed > for them),-
>
> Their eyes lowered in dejection,- ignominy covering them
> (all over)! such is the Day the which they are promised!"
> (The Holy Quran, 70:36:44)
>
>I hope you see how this passage is also addressed to >"Unbelievers" and not Muslims. The passage immediately >before that was addressed to Muslims; those interested >are referred to an accurate translation of the holy Quran.
>
>>"We have already sent down to you verses making things clear, >>an illustration from (the story of) people who passed away >>before you, and an admonition for those who fear (God)."
>>Surah An-Nur 24:34
>

>How does this help your case? Isn't Allah(the Exalted) >saying: we ALREADY sent down (in Al-Islam) verse making >THINGS CLEAR? Then why would we need new guidance?
>
>Ps. I am not asking for more conjecture, but clear evidence.
>
>>"To every people is a term appointed: when their term is >>reached, not an hour can they cause delay, nor (an hour) >>can they advance (it in anticipation).
>>
>>O ye Children of Adam! whenever there come to you apostles >>from amongst you, rehearsing My signs unto you,- those who >>are righteous and mend (their lives),- on them shall be no >>fear nor shall they grieve." Surah Al-A'araf 7:34-5
>
>The entire chapter of Al-A'raf (7) deals with those who ignored >the covenant Allah had taken from them (to follow Messengers >of Allah - and no one else) and allowed themselves to be guided >astray. In your example (Quran, 7:35), we really need to go >back to (7:24) and study the entire passage to see what Quran >is actually talking about and who is being addressed.
>
>This, as recorded in hadith and books of tafseer, is an address >by Allah to Adam and his children at the beginning of creation.
>This promise was certainly fulfilled through the 124,000 prophets >and 315 Messengers commissioned to mankind.
>
>As I've repeatedly mentioned, Allah has told us to understand >the verses of the Quran in light of other verses and the explanation >of the Prophet(pbuh). The passage you mentioned is also recorded >in several other chapters of the Quran (all discussions which took >place at the time of creation), and leave no doubt who is being >addressed. For instance, we read:
>
> "We said: "Get ye down all from here (Garden); and if,
> as is sure, there comes to you Guidance from me, > whosoever follows My guidance, on them shall be no > fear, nor shall they grieve.
>
> But those who reject Faith and belie Our Signs, they > shall be companions of the Fire; they shall abide there in."
> (The holy Quran, 2:38-39)
>
> He said: "Get ye down, both of you,- all together, > from the Garden, with enmity one to another: but if,
> as is sure, there comes to you Guidance from Me, > whosoever follows My Guidance, will not lose his way,
> nor fall into misery.
>
> But whosoever turns away from My Message, verily for > him is a life narrowed down, and We shall raise him > up blind on the Day of Judgment."
> (The holy Quran, 20:123-124)
>
>I hope you see the absolute similarities and how what Allah >is speaking of is the covenant taken from all people at the >beginning of Life.
>
>But, the same Creator who took this covenant from all people >at the time of creation, has also clearly told us that Al-Islam >is the very last revelation and the way to salvation. So, this >verse can only apply to Non-Muslims who are ignoring their >covenant with Allah and are following false religions. Just so >that we are on the same page, let me review:
>
>1. The verse does not say: "O You Believers" or "O Muslims";
>
>2. There are other verses which indicate this must have taken > place at the time of creation;

>
>3. The verse says "...If there come to you...", but Allah has clearly > told humanity that Al-Islam is the Perfected, Completed, Protected, > and Universal religion and the only deen accepted from humanity;
>
>4. Every Muslim is a Messenger of the Messenger of Allah(pbuh).
> When we recite Quran/Hadith, and enjoin good/discourage evil, > we are doing exactly the same thing our Prophet(pbuh) did. We > are delivering the same exact message to the humanity (but not > creating new faiths or religions);
>
>Lastly, I like to point one more fundamental concept and >teaching of Islam contained in the short verse you mentioned:
>
>5. The verse says "... If there come to you messengers from > AMONGST YOU...".
>
> "From Amongst you", meaning human being and not God, > Son of God, Manifestation of God, or Angels...
>
> This idea is supported by many verse of the holy Quran;
> for instance:
>
> Allah did confer a great favor on the believers when > He sent among them a messenger FROM AMONG > THEMSELVES, rehearsing unto them the Signs of Allah, > sanctifying them, and instructing them in Scripture and > Wisdom, while, before that, they had been in manifest error.
> (The Holy Quran, 3.164)
>
> And on the Day of Judgment, people will be reminded of > this warning of Allah:
>
> The Unbelievers will be led to Hell in crowd: until,
> when they arrive, there, its gates will be opened.
> And its keepers will say, "Did not messengers come > to you from among yourselves, rehearsing to you the > Signs of your Lord, and warning you of the Meeting > of This Day of yours?" The answer will be: "True:
> but the Decree of Punishment has been proved true > against the Unbelievers!" (The Holy Quran, 39.71)
>
> "O ye assembly of Jinns and men! came there not unto > you messengers from amongst you, setting forth unto > you My signs, and warning you of the meeting of this > Day of yours?" They will say: "We bear witness against > ourselves." It was the life of this world that deceived > them. So against themselves will they bear witness that > they rejected Faith. (The Holy Quran, 6.130)
>
> About the perfection of Al-Islam and the duty of all people to > embrace it whole-heartedly, we read:
>
> "Thus have We revealed it to be a judgment of authority > in Arabic. Wert thou to follow their desires after the > knowledge which hath reached thee, then wouldst thou > find neither protector nor defender against Allah."
> (The holy Quran, 13.37)
>
> "Had We sent down this Qur'an on a mountain, verily, > thou wouldst have seen it humble itself and cleave > asunder for fear of Allah. Such are the similitudes > which We propound to men, that they may reflect."
> (The holy Quran, 59.21)
>
> Verily this Qur'an doth explain to the Children of > Israel most of the matters in which they disagree.
> And it certainly is A GUIDE and a Mercy to those > WHO BELIEVE.

> (The holy Quran, 27.76-77)
>
> (It is) a Qur'an in Arabic, without any crookedness > (therein): in order that they may guard against Evil.
> (The holy Quran, 39.28)
>
> We have, without doubt, sent down the Message; and > We will assuredly GUARD IT (from corruption).
> (The holy Quran, 15.9)
>
>In short, I do not see how these kind of misquotations and >unfounded "interpretation" of Bahai scholars would cause >any knowledgeable believer to ignore hundreds of clear >passages of Islamic Scripture telling us of the Finality of >Prophethood and Message.
>
>Allah is not our enemy nor the author of confusion. But People >at times ignore the obvious and resort to false arguments to resist >submitting to the will of the Creator. Some reject Allah altogether >and others reject Him by rejecting his perfect religion and following >man-made ways which are more compatible with their own desires...
>
>As I have repeatedly pointed out, Muslims are submitters to the >Guidance sent down by the Merciful Creator. I already produced >a few dozen of hundreds of clear passages of Muslim Scripture >which indicate no new faith will be born. It is very disturbing to me >that there were no relies to my posting except conjectures and >misrepresentation of clear words of God.
>
>I hope those who truly believe in God, realize that a faith whose >leaders and missionaries are actively engaged in spreading >>falsehood about another faith can not be divine...
>
>Rachel, I hope that you will reflect upon all the evidence so far >provided, realize the falsehood of Bahaism, and submit to the >Merciful Creator in Al-Islam.
>
>=====

>None can dispute about the Signs of Allah but the Unbelievers.
>Let not, then, their strutting about through the land deceive thee!
>(The holy Quran, 40.4)
>
>O ye who believe! Enter into Islam whole-heartedly; and follow >not the footsteps of the evil one; for he is to you an avowed enemy.
>(The holy Quran, 2.208)
>
>Fain would they extinguish Allah's light with their mouths, but >Allah will not allow but that His light should be perfected, even >though the Unbelievers may detest (it).
>(The holy Quran, 9.32)

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kavosh Soltani <kavosh@muslimsonline.com>
Subject: Warning: soc.religion.Bahai Censures and is Biased against Muslims
Date: Saturday, November 28, 1998 9:31 PM

Many Muslims have complaint that while the "moderators" allow anti-Islamic propaganda by Bahai missionaries on their forum, they block every reply by Muslims who attempt to expose the falsehood of their faith and their ideas. Over the last years and half I have repeatedly been blocked, even when I have just provided a reply to a Bahai initiated statement.

Does anyone know how we can put a stop to this or get the internet community not to carry their propaganda material disguised as a newsgroup? If they want a forum to say anything they like about Bahaism and deny those who know the truth from freely speaking, let them create a private mailing list... soc.religion.xxx are forums about a religion and not exclusively for the followers of a particular faith.

Regards.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Robert J. Pease <bobpease@concentric.net>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: I would post on srb but they have been censoring me since May 1998
Date: Saturday, December 05, 1998 11:58 AM

FG wrote:

>
> I would post on srb but they have been censoring me since May 1998 > when they began suppressing people's signature files:
>
> The Talk.Religion.Bahai Interest Poll has begun for an > unmoderated newsgroup on the Baha'i Faith.
>
> The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted on December 3, 1998.
> You may vote at this time. Voting ends December 25, 1998.
>
> The talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on > news.announce.newgroups
> news.groups
> alt.religion.bahai
> soc.religion.bahai
> soc.rights.human
>
> or email the votetaker Dave Cornejo at dave@dogwood.com requesting > the trb CFV ballot.
> --
> FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> index.htm Talk.religion.bahai voter > ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, > or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the trb CFV ballot.

I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group.
I have not been allowed to post there unless I back up any objection to their version of dogma with verse and chapter quotes.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: afshin.afrashteh@utoronto.ca <afshin.afrashteh@utoronto.ca>

Subject: O MUSLIM! Do your duty!

Date: Thursday, December 17, 1998 12:06 AM

Peace be upon those that receive true guidance,

In the last couple of days you have seen posts requesting that you vote for talk.religion.bahai.

Let me explain yet again why it is IMPERATIVE that you vote NOW!!

If you visit srb.htm you will see a partial archive of the dark history behind the censorship at soc.religion.bahai

It is true that alt.religion.bahai an unmoderated newsgroup already exists but it is VERY poorly carried by ISPs unlike the talk.* hierarchy. Many people read the newsgroup via email also and don't have access to the web regularly so don't have access to dejanews.com. This is why the proposal for talk.religion.bahai has come up again and again and EVERY time baha'is have voted it DOWN.

Ask yourself WHY? WHY? WHY? WHAT are they hiding? WHAT are they afraid of if they feel they have the truth?

I as a muslim am coming to all you brothers and sisters in the spirit of Ramadan and am APPEALING to all of you to take a moment to VOTE for ISLAM and for LOVE of the PROPHET PBUH!!

I and other muslims have been censured MANY times at soc.religion.bahai when baha'is post articles attacking the finality of Islam and our beloved Prophet PBUH and then reject muslim replies. The baha'is then try to distort the picture by saying they allow buddhists to post. The fact is only ISLAM is a serious threat to bahaism and this is FACT that muslim replies have been REJECTED. Don't let these baha'is like Robert Little and Rachel to sugar-coat it for you. soc.religion.bahai is run by fanatic baha'is who even didn't allow posts by FG because his signature has a link to a site they DON'T LIKE. Check it out yourself by going to the above link or going to dejanews.com.

The Prophet PBUH said:

"Let not any one of you belittle himself. They said:

'O Messenger of Allah, how can any one of us belittle himself'? He said: 'He finds a matter concerning Allah about which he should say something, and he does not say [it], so Allah (mighty and sublime be He) says to him on the Day of Resurrection: "What prevented you from saying something about such-and-such and such-and-such"? He says: "[It was] out of fear of people." Then, He says: "Rather it is I whom you should more properly fear".'

Dear beloved brothers and sisters, talk.religion.bahai is needed by muslims so they can allow those who have been misled by bahaism see the muslim point of view. If this vote doesn't go through it might be at least a year before the issue comes up again. In the meantime, how many souls would have been misled into bahaism? How many souls will ALLAH swt hold us muslims partially responsible for, for having failed to do our divine duty.

Brothers and sisters, Ramadan is coming up. The reward for taking such a small step for the cause of Allah swt will be rewarded 70 times or more during Ramadan.

If the proposal still fails then so be it but YOU DO YOUR BEST so you can stand in front of Allah swt and say that you tried at the very least!

Now I have been told by the votetaker that he doesn't like me posting voting instructions but that "he is the only legitimate source of these instructions". So I can't post the exact voting instructions now.

Here's what you can do though:

1) Email vote@dogwood.com and ask for the voting instructions OR 2) Read the CFV (Call For Votes) posted by the votetaker at : <https://x12.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=420102929> 3) Spread the action alert to muslim mailing lists you are on and other brothers and sisters you privately know

Remember voting ends by Dec 24th so there isn't much time

Also learn more about the bahai faith at my website and start doing to baha'is you personally know or on the NET :

Answering Bahauallah
<https://www.geocities.com/pentagon/3016/main.htm>

May ALLAH swt reward in this effort and RAMADAN mubarak beloved brothers and sisters!

Afshin Afrashteh

-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network =====
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: hyle@my-dejanews.com <hyle@my-dejanews.com>
Subject: Re: Action Alert - Easy Reward from Allah(SWT), EnshaAllah
Date: Friday, December 18, 1998 3:35 AM

> Bismillahi arraHman arraHeem,
>
> ..... interested parties should cast their votes depending on whether they > feel yet another unmoderated forum about the Baha'i religion is warranted,
> .....

It is somewhat misleading to claim that a readily available unmoderated forum exists for discussions on the Baha'i Faith. The existing unmoderated newsgroup, alt.religion.bahai, is hardly accessible due to it being on the obscure hierarchy of 'alt.' I for one cannot access this newsgroup directly because my Internet Service Provider and its feed from usenet does not carry this newsgroup. It is also extremely inconvenient, slow, complicated, and costly to access this newsgroup via webpage services.

The proposal to create an unmoderated forum 'talk.religion.bahai' for the open discussion of the Baha'i Faith, is essentially a proposal to rename alt.religion.bahai to talk.religion.bahai. The 'talk.' hierarchy is much more widely carried and hence available to Internet users, because it is considered one of the big-8 hierarchies (e.g. soc., talk., news.)

Furthermore, there is no good reason why there can't be several unmoderated or moderated groups in any serious and popular topic. And note that without a widely accessible unmoderated group, all moderated groups in that topic are of questionable legitimacy.

I would like to remind that the 'right to free and unfettered discussion' is one of our fundamental and inalienable rights. I take exception at those who call for limiting our civil liberties by opposing the creation of unmoderated groups. Civil liberties are not subject to a (negative) vote. Voting against the creation of unmoderated groups is an act of censorship, IMO.

It is only fair that usenet allow the creation of (one or more) unmoderated groups on a widely accessible hierarchy, for any serious and popular topic in which demand has been amply demonstrated. It is an error by usenet to apply the same rules used for the creation of moderated groups to the creation of serious and popular unmoderated groups.

Free and unfettered discussion is an inalienable right.

S. Shambashi

-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network =====
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: joanmiller@looksmart.com <joanmiller@looksmart.com>

Subject: BAHAI METHODS

Date: Monday, January 04, 1999 12:51 PM

I have been a victim of what I can only describe as a psychological assault by a Bahai recruiter who has all the warning signs of a zealot who will do anything to enlarge his little group of Bahai. Since he is in a profession which requires a license in my state and since I was subjected to his bizarre methods while in his "care" I have taken what legal steps I can to prevent this from happening to others. My stay in the faith was brief and painful and I am angry about what happened. Anyone out there with a similar story?

jm

-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: budparker@my-dejanews.com <budparker@my-dejanews.com>
Subject: Censored e-mail to srb
Date: Saturday, March 06, 1999 6:50 AM

I have lurked on srb and trb and decided to post a comment on srb. I waited 24 hours and saw other messages, but not mine. I'll post it here. It relates to Dr. Maneck's post on Dr. Cole's post.

Smaneck wrote:

>While there were no doubt numerous mistakes made in the manner in which Dr. Cole and >some other academics were dealt with ...

I think there is a question about whether Dr. Cole was dealt with by individual members of the UHJ - or the House as a body. By dealing with him through ABMs and Counselors, is there a "legitimate sphere of authority" as you have written?

The way Dr. Cole, and other academics were dealt with, as well as the changed stance on unmoderated internet discussions -- it raises legitimate questions about... > whether or not the Universal House of Justice *is* operating within "its > legitimate sphere of authority"?

It would not hurt to review what is the legitimate sphere of authority of the UHJ!

Speaking for myself, a Bahai of over 20 years, I never paid too much attention to this and just lumped all their actions into "divinely inspired", but the events of last 5 years have been a wake-up call to deepen myself on this topic.

Bud

-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network =====
<https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: JerIversen <jeriversen@aol.com>

Subject: Help

Date: Wednesday, July 07, 1999 1:44 PM

Hi, everybody. I am having a big problem, and I wondered if you guys would be able to help me out.

I found out about the Baha'i Faith some time ago, and recently undertook some serious research to determine whether it was the right religion for me. At last, I have decided that I believe in Baha'u'llah as God's Prophet for this Age, and in his Son, 'Abdu'l-Baha, as the Center of his Covenant.

The next step would be to declare. I would love to declare. However, I am very scared of declaring. I feel scared because I have heard and read things that I find terrifying about what occurs within the Faith.

I have heard about seemingly innocent and pure-hearted Baha'is being publicly damned and excommunicated, or forced to resign from the Faith. They have done deeds that I cannot, no matter how hard I try, find in conflict with the Writings. They have written down some suggestions they had, maybe, or asked questions about some things. I really have looked, but I just can't find anything that says that Baha'u'llah doesn't want them to do that.

Apparently some people have been saying that writing suggestions and asking questions are in conflict with the Covenant. I just can't see where, no matter how hard I try. The only actual Covenant-Breakers I can find are the "Orthodox Baha'is," and the "Baha'is Under the Provisions of the Covenant," and little groups like those.

I heard most of these things on the Internet. I do not, however, believe they are false, or that they are lies. I am very sad and scared, because I think that many Baha'is would want these materials to disappear from the Internet. I feel with all my heart that it is very important that people be able to see them, and judge matters for themselves.

Because of this testimony, I cannot embrace the Baha'i Faith with all my being, which Baha'u'llah tells us is necessary for our salvation. The obstacle to my full immersion is that part of me experiences doubt and a desire for self-preservation in the face of this evidence. I feel that if I were completely honest and open within the Baha'i Faith, bad things might happen to me, just like what happens to other people. In short, I don't want to give myself completely over only to get "burned" beyond the possibility of healing.

One of the reasons I have not declared is that I wanted to write this message. I thought that if I wrote it as a registered Baha'i, people would get angry and try to punish me, or call me a Covenant-Breaker. I thought you would be less harsh, hearing this message written by someone who is not technically a Baha'i.

I would be very grateful if you would please help me. Thank you all very much.

Best,

ji

cc: alt.religion.bahai, soc.religion.bahai

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Subject: Re censorship (from SRB)
From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: 1997/08/12
Message-ID: <33F05315.7462@hotmail.com>
Newsgroups: alt.religion.bahai,talk.religion.misc
[More Headers]
[Subscribe to alt.religion.bahai]

shahin nikjoo wrote:

>
> Hi,
>
> I would like to question the wisdom of having moderators on this > usenet.

I and others have basically been doing that for almost a year.
Search www.dejanews.com under talk.religion.bahai and alt.religion.bahai for nearly 3000 messages to that effect.

>
> My own post was not accepted on thi usenet because it was seen as > a 'joke' (It was a serious joke).

Serious jokes aren't allowed, only frivolous ones....

>
> I've had a number of non-Bahais who were q. upset that their > comments were not posted on this usenet, and have become very > hostile to the group as a result.

A topic of frequent discussion on alt.religion.bahai....

>
> Is the 'moderator' policy asked for by the NSA??

An excellent question. I'm glad someone has finally had the prescence of mind to ask it....

> Is there an unmoderated Bahai usenet?

Talk.religion.bahai was unfairly defeated in my opinion by an abuse of the voting guidelines generally acceptable on UseNet. Alt.religion.bahai is now the only unmoderated forum for discussion on the Bahai Faith....

>
> I think censorship decreases the regard non-bahais have for the > faith & irritates to the extreme Bahais who gets censored.

I have been saying this for several months at least and so have other participants. It appears that those responsible for committing censorship have apparently convinced themselves that they, and they only, are "serving" the Faith.... A very old story in human history....

>
> I also don't think Bahais have anything to be afraid of w.r.t.

> questions posed - surely there are Bahai scholars well versed in > Laws etc.?

That's precisely the way it seems to me too....

>
> --
> shahin nikjoo

I for one appreciate your couragous, thoughtful comments on a very serious issue....

--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
Ask your ISP to add it; also available on www.dejanews.com, www.reference.com, and www.zippo.com.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Alison Marshall <alisonz@clear.net.nz>
Subject: Re: An apology to Fred
Date: Wednesday, February 10, 1999 2:28 AM

The paragraph Counsellor Birkland wrote to this academic seems to me to entirely misrepresent the academic's "activities", making him out to be some kind of "proto-covenant breaker", as he describes below. What follows is a message to Talisman I (20.5.96) written by this academic defending his honour against the Counsellor's attacks. The message contains a clear statement by its author accepting the authority and legitimacy of the institutions. It also explains that accusations of acting "against the covenant" were made to a number of people who simply discussed ideas that Baha'is are not used to hearing discussed openly.

Alison

-----
[three paragraphs omitted to protect the identity of the author]

For a time, I think, Talisman was successful. New ideas were discussed and launched. There were useful discussions on community life, worship, Baha'i governance, homosexuality, the infallibility and authority of the Universal House of Justice, and other subjects. Often these discussion produced consensus or, at least, a narrowing of disagreement, a clarification of concepts, and sometimes plausible proposals. A great deal of information was exchanged on history and texts. Draft translations were exchanged, with benefit both to those who read them and those who prepared them. Not least, friendships were made.

What I underestimated was the deeply conservative character of Baha'i governance, both formal and informal. Baha'is are *used* to hearing things discussed in particular ways, and a significant number of Baha'is will consider it contrary to the Faith to discuss these things in different ways. So, inevitably there were complaints, especially from those who felt themselves obliged to "defend" the Covenant against perceived attacks. There are, moreover, those in high positions in Baha'i administration who consider free speech to be a threat to the integrity of the Faith. Such a view, expressed as criticism of Western standards of human rights, has been increasingly evident in letters from the Universal House of Justice, beginning with the so-called "Rights and Freedoms" letter of 1988.

Such problems did not originate with Talisman. I was told as early as 1982 by a man who is now a member of the Universal House of Justice that he believed at least one participant in Talisman to be a covenant-breaker. I have heard similar things from responsible Baha'is, openly or more often by hint, many times since. It is an attitude that I consider reprehensible, but it exists and seems now to be dominant in the Faith--to our great shame, since it is a betrayal of the principle of freedom of conscience that Baha'u'llah stood for against the Muslim clergy and the Iranian state. Contrary to what Counselor Birkland says about me, I have no doubt about the authority or the legitimacy of Baha'i administrative institutions. However, I am deeply dismayed at a number of things that have been done in their name.

Talisman has clearly failed, and failed at considerable cost to the Faith as a whole, to the integrity of Baha'i administrative institutions, to the aspects of the Faith most dear to me, and to a number of individual participants.

1) David Langness' administrative rights were removed on the pretext of something he wrote on Talisman. I know this to be the case because I have read all the relevant documents available to David. He was chosen, I am certain, because he was already seen as an enemy by a number of influential Baha'is, particularly in the United States. Partly this was due to the *dialogue* fiasco of the late 80's. However, two other facts should also not be forgotten. First, last spring David wrote a commentary on the deliberations of the US national convention that he first posted on Talisman and then sent to the NSA. The NSA published this letter without David's permission with what was, to my mind, a rather lame and unconvincing rebuttal. Second, David has in the past received a significant number of votes at national convention. Given the way Baha'i elections work, he might well have been elected to a vacant NSA seat. The process by which his rights were removed was a travesty that has, in my opinion, besmirched the honor of the Universal House of Justice and the American NSA.

2) Juan Cole left the Faith because he believed--with justification, I think--that there was a significant risk of his being declared a covenant-breaker. Juan was the best-known advocate of the Faith in the field of Middle Eastern and Iranian studies. He has written extensively on the Faith and was seen by his non-Baha'i peers as a spokesman for the Faith. His recantation is a deep shock to other Baha'is in related academic fields. I think it will have a significant deleterious effect on the reputation of the Faith in academic circles.

3) Other people, myself included, have received phone calls from Stephen Birkland, wanting to talk to us about what we have written that the International Teaching Committee considers "against the Covenant." What these things might be is not specified (although I now read in *The American Baha'i* that I and others have "crossed the line into questioning the authority of institutions"), but the threat is clear. The fact that he is very clear that a *group* of people is being contacted only sharpens the point of the threat. I think it is inevitable that others will lose their administrative rights, be declared covenant-breakers, or be forced to leave the Faith. I do not wish to be the occasion of others being implicated in imaginary conspiracies.

4) Baha'i administrative institutions have been led to act in ways counter to their own honor and integrity. David Langness' case is the clearest example, but there has also been a haze of rumormongering, veiled threats, etc., that have no rightful place in Baha'i administration. The speeches of Birkland and Kazemzadeh at national convention is the clearest example.

5) Talisman itself has clearly ceased to function well. Discussion for weeks has been little more than namecalling, accusations, and belittling of the characters of others. It is not worth reading and is no credit to the Faith.

6) Finally, the net effect seems to have been only to discredit the ideas and standards that I stand for. The House and many other people now seem to consider academic intellectuals to be simply proto-covenant-breakers.

I fear that serious intellectual life is doomed in the Faith for at least a generation. The Universal House of Justice has become increasingly suspicious of academic scholarship and Western notions of open discourse. Almost all the people who went into Middle Eastern studies in the 1970s have now been driven out of the Faith or marginalized. But these are the people who can read the Writings in their original form, who understand their original context, and who are both trained and inclined to look at the Faith and the Writings in new ways grounded in history and the original texts. They are not the only people who can say important things about the Writings, but their particular contribution cannot be made by others. They and others who do not think about the Faith in the usual way will continue to be condemned, if only by whispers, for deviating from the usual way of talking about the Faith and will be seen as threats and enemies, potential or actual. Baha'i intellectual life will wither without sources of new ideas, and a generation of administrators will conclude that new ideas are a threat rather than an opportunity. Though the Faith may continue to grow in the Third World, it will stagnate in Europe and America, becoming even more an intellectually-isolated cult--benign, perhaps, but also ineffectual. With time this may change, but the process will take a generation or more and great opportunities will have been lost. I don't like this, since I have devoted half my life to the intellectual development of the Faith, but I see no way that it can be avoided. I hope that I am wrong, but I do not think so.

>Again, the missing passage is as follows:

>

>"The nature of the problem which your activities were creating for >the Baha'i community were clarified when you accidentally posted >to the Talisman forum a private message apparently intended for a >smaller group of participants, identified by you as "Majnun." You >cannot be unaware of the sense of betrayal experienced by your >fellow Baha'is, who had believed themselves engaged in a scholarly >exploration of Baha'u'llah's purpose, when they read a statement >which appeared to lay out a cynical "winning strategy" designed to >use the Talisman forum to spread disinformation, attack the United >States National Spiritual Assembly, and bring the administrative >processes of the Cause into discredit. Nor should you be >surprised at the dismay caused by your readiness, in this same >statement, to recognize a parallel between the activities of this >inner group and those of the notorious Covenant-breaker Ahmad >Sohrab. It was keenly disappointing to all of us who respected >both your adherence to the Cause and your professional >credentials, that you failed to immediately explain what seemed a >disturbing departure from standards which participants in such a >forum had every right to expect."

>

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: <pdodenhoff@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Another Inquiring Mind
Date: Tuesday, June 29, 1999 3:36 PM

In article <7l952h$1pb8@news2.newsguy.com>,
"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@email.msn.NOSPAMcom> wrote:
, what > the Universal House of Justice has done is to say that materialist > assumptions are not the only way to approach the Baha'i Faith and has > attempted to preserve, for all Baha'is, the right to use whatever approach
> each of us deems best.

Dear Rick,
While that may be your perception of what the House is saying in this letter, it is not the perception of many others, nor has it been the _experience_ of others who, trying to exercise that "right to use whatever approach" they deemed best, have been censored, castigated
by individual members of the institutions, often castigated by the Institutions themselves, expelled or threatened with expulsion, investigated, and generally, by words or actions, told that these methods, _because they do not always affirm the cherished ideas or beliefs, or because they do not support the "official" self-presentation made by The Faith to the public and academic community, and raise controversial questions_ are the products of "dogmatic materialism" or not valid because they do not always take into account such categories as revelation.

If indeed such a right were being preserved, these things would not be happening, people would not be resigning or simply becoming inactive, and the Baha'i community would, no doubt, be experiencing a vital, progressive, useful, dynamic, and exhilarating dialogue between _all_ the various groups and individuals: academics, artists, theologians, (not clerics, mind you), the Institutions, and every other sector of the Baha'i community, something no other religion has had the ability to accomplish without much pain, suffering, shunning, even bloodshed.
But it appears to me and many others that the direction being taken is down the same slippery slope toward a fundamentalist mentality that outwardly calls for scholarship, but rejects any which may challenge its authority or long-held, perhaps outmoded, ideas.

Yours,
Paul

Sent via Deja.com <https://www.deja.com/>
Share what you know. Learn what you don't.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: <pdodenhoff@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Another Inquiring Mind
Date: Tuesday, June 29, 1999 10:59 PM

In article <71bkk3$dtl@news1.newsguy.com>,
"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@email.msn.NOSPAMcom> wrote:
>How long are we going to be blamed for > our perceptions when, all along, we've been open to clear and convincing evidence that our perceptions have been faulty?

I think many on the other side of the issue have been saying the same thing, Rick.
>Take an > objective look at the famous Majnun post, and tell me you don't see a bunker > mentality running rampant through it. One of the problems with people who > are paranoid is that it's next to impossible to convince them that nobody's > after them. Their _perceptions_ have become their reality.

Ditto on my coment above. Do you not see a "bunker mentality" in the April 7th letter? I do and so do many others. The numbers are not as small as you may think, though. I have met and spoken with many Baha'is, including many who are not engaged in any academic study, who feel the same way, but do not speak out or ask questions for _fear_ of being labeled as someone who is creating disunity, being "investigated," or expelled. I know that as an assistant for protection, one of the things we discussed many times in meetings was the reluctance, even animosity, on the part of many LSA's and groups to whom we were assigned towards assistants. They were very often considered as "spies." These people on the LSA's for the most part are not academics. But they have the same fears, though they do not openly acknowledge them. But I can attest to the fact that the LSA to whom I was assigned did everything they could _never_ to meet with me despite my assurances and the Institutins that I was there to help. No, they never called me a "spy" to my face. Bt the secretary and chairman did say, quite frankly, "We don't need anyone reporting on us." And this was not my experience alone. I am not saying it's every asistant who has this experience, but I think it happens with increasing frquency.

> The difference is, as always, evidence--evidence that's shorn of flourishing > rhetoric, facts that are simply presented unadorned and unembellished. We > _never_ see this. I have _never_ been given the opportunity to view the > evidence as simply evidence by those who claim that all sorts of shennanigans are going on.

I think that this could apply to the claims made in the April 7 letter as well!

> You know, this kind of open, respectful and mature interchange of ideas is > precisely the kind of discourse I was hoping to find when I subscribed to > Talisman I how many years ago. When I got there, what did I find?

One of > the first posts I saw, under the subject "Guardianology" (or was it

> "Guardianologists"?), did little more than take pot-shots at other

Baha'is

> because the vews of those Baha'is didn't conform to the author's views.

> That post didn't come from any allegedly "fundamentalist" Baha'i.

I don't doubt that there have been many comments made _on both sides of the issue_ that sounded like pot-shots and indeed may have been. I think most folk would agree with me. Heck, I've been wrong in that regard as well. That's unfortunately the nature of internet discussion.

Yours,

Paul

>

Sent via Deja.com <https://www.deja.com/>

Share what you know. Learn what you don't.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Dale Grider <Howdybud@bellsouth.net>
Subject: Re: Bahai Fireside, CHRISTIAN response and rebuttal
Date: Friday, August 06, 1999 8:30 PM

I find Pat's 2 responses to the post I made indicating the Fireside Letters and the Grolin response very entertaining. In the first one Pat blasts me for using Townshend as if he were a manifestation. I didn't. I only said that his material accurately represents the Baha'i outlook and is very popularly used by Bahai's. Evidently Baha'is can use sources like Townshend to argue the Baha'i position, but if I do so it is an automatically invalid distortion of that position. Hmm Pat. You need to think that one through.

What was interesting was that in the second response in this thread Pat seems to accuse me of not being very thorough for not citing and reflecting upon the work of Sears! After reading Pat's first critical response one can imagine that I am in a no win situation with brother Pat!. If I cite Townsend it is the invalid use of a non authoritative author. If I fail to cite such an author on the other hand (such as Sears) then my treatment is incomplete. Pat says,

"I should like to read Dale's analysis of "Thief in the Night" as I would expect it to be addressed in an exhaustive treatment of the topic."

So now my treatment is not "exhaustive" by way of failing to cite the works of exactly the sort of author he blasted me for using in my citation of Townshend!

In fact, the Fireside Letters does quote and consider Sears' position from his book entitled, The Wine of Astonishment, which, like Townshend's works, accurately represents Baha'i principles with examples that end up helping reveal the fallacy of the basic Baha'i theological apologetic with respect to the Bible and Christian theology.

Will Pat consider such usage as the blasphemous inclusion of non authoritative material...or my thoroughness in covering the topic? We'll have to wait and see?

Dale:)

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Kidnykid <kidnykid@aol.comspamfree> Subject: Re: Interesting Conversations...
Date: Wednesday, February 24, 1999 1:04 AM

>The Faith as manifested in this country has always seemed >unpleasantly similar to the old Communist Party U.S.A. (right down to "5 >year plans").

Nice to note that someone else caught that similarity!

>severe lack of anything >that met my spiritual needs

Once again, an opinion I share, even if we disagree about the existence (or lack thereof) of a monotheistic Middle Eastern-derived concept of a Deity. I happen to find this concept more satisfying than you do, but we both find the Bahai faith a faith which nowhere near met our spiritual needs. I could not go nineteen days between church services - and let's face it, the Feast is a church service pure and simple.

>I had noticed early on the heavy authoritarianism in the >faith, however well disguised under the rubric "Independent Search for the >Truth".

In addition, I noticed an amazing similarity in the content of teaching from teacher to teacher and fireside to fireside, almost as if someone were telling these people what to say. Hardly a group of people who believe in independent investigation of truth!

>The faith here seems amazingly stagnant. I have had >substantial contact with Muslims and even lived in the Middle East (both >practices are unofficially forbidden to American Bahais). I was struck at >how similar the ideals of the enlightened and progressive Muslims are to the >Bahais, but how much more vital and alive their faith is.

Gotta agree here too, at least about the faith of those Muslims I have had the privilege of being exposed to. The aggravating thing is that I have personally met Bahais who are remarkably judgmental with regard to the faith of other Bahais; someone might be a vital and wonderfully developed Bahai (I have known one or two) with little or no book learning (that is, they do not know much or anything about the sacred writings of the faith) but those with more knowledge of said sacred writings but a relatively stagnant faith judge the others to be less mature.

Little wonder that I left. I feel that throwing the baby (God) out with the bath water (a misguided faith with lots of wrongheaded believers) is a bad idea; therefore, I am still a monotheist. But I choose not to be a Bahai.

Robin Peters

One casualty - my wits, as in frightened out of.
Leonard McCoy, MD, ship's surgeon, USS Enterprise

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

See Mahmoudi's coercive email to FG

Further details on Hoda Mahmoudi's coercive email

David Langness on Hoda Mahmoudi

---

From: <pdodenhoff@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Sunday, July 25, 1999 10:44 PM

In article <19990724160412.22476.00001847@ng-cg1.aol.com>,

smaneck@aol.com (Smaneck) wrote:

> > And yet when the UHJ addresses > >*Baha'i* academics, firm believers, moderates like Paul Dodenhof, they do so so harshly as to chase them right out of the faith.

**> >

**>

> Paul was not being addressed in the April 7 letter at all. The House was referring solely to certain persons whom I believe we are all acquainted who attempted to use their academic standing to attack try and recreate

the Faith in their own image. It is a pity that Paul and his wife did not see fit to consult with the House about the meaning of this letter and clarify any > misunderstanding before taking such a grave step.

> Susan Stiles Maneck

> History, Stetson University

Dear Susan,

I have been fairly quiet the past couple of weeks as we are in the throes of opening a new business and I have only a limited amount of time to read posts or post responses. But I do have to say again, as I have said before, that having been involved in the discussions between the Institutions and the Baha'i academic community the past couple of years, I am well aware of the standard type of response the House has given to various individuals regarding questions of academic methodologies, the "proper" use of scholarship in the Faith and the manner in which an increasing number of individuals, quite apart from Juan, have been treated with suspicion, investigation of their belief, etc. and how the House has merely given a slap on the wrist to ABM's and other AO leadership who have overstepped their authority.

After the persecution of Terry Culhane by Dan Freeman and Hoda

Mahmoudi, who I still believe acted with the consent if not at the instigation of Steve Birkland, what was the House response?

To say "Gee, maybe you should examine the way you say things, Mr. Culhane." I am paraphrasing here, but you know as well as I that that was their response to Terry's letter. Terry I am sure still has the letter.

Further, where is Freeman now? He was not removed from his position but simply moved to another area. This is akin to the moving of a Catholic priest who abuses children to another parish instead of kicking his butt out and turning him over to the authorities! You know as well as I do Susan, the disgusting manner in which Terry was treated by Freeman and Mahmoudi. In fact, *you* called me up on the phone at 11:30 p.m. and said, "We have a problem" referring to Birkland,

Freeman and Mahmoudi's actions. You sent me all of the info that night. You asked me to write a letter in support of Terry. As far as waiting, I took four days to think and pray about the letter I wrote in support of Terry, so I am not one to act in a reactionary manner. The same is true of my letter of resignation. I felt, after reading the April 7 letter and taking the time to pray about it, that I had no reason to ask for further "clarification" because I don't believe they will ever clarify anything! They have been very clear: it's their way or the highway. No discussion. Consultation, in this situation, is a joke as it *must* ultimately result in agreement with their decision.

Also, your memory seems to be rather selective. As I recall, I first heard about this crisis between academics and the AO at the Irfan Colloquium in Wilmette a couple of years ago. At that time, you were irate at the treatment Juan and others were receiving. That anger continued and was *very* evident in Teaneck at the meeting I helped arrange between Counselor Abdu'l-Missagh Ghadirian and ABM Gene Andrews and you, me, and a few other Baha'i academics. You expressed as loudly as anyone your disdain of the way the AO was treating Baha'i academics and the resulting scholar bashing among the friends.

Now, it may be that since then you have reconciled yourself to some of these things or have received some sort of spiritual insight which has calmed all your fears, and allowed you to condone such practices or at least live comfortably with them. Well, the opposite is true with me. I find the AO's actions reprehensible on many levels. Have Baha'i academics always been open and honest? No, and I have stated that clearly many times. But the actions of the AO, including the House, are all the more wrong since they are entrusted with the care of the Baha'i community, of whom Baha'i academics are a part.

Investigations??? Yes, they *do* happen and they are no better than religious McCarthyism.

You have accused me elsewhere of not continuing to dialogue. I am a firm advocate of dialogue, and you know this. *But* there comes a time when one must recognize that dialogue is monologue. In this case, the House and the AO do not listen as you believe they do. They smile benignly, nod their heads, and say, "You're wrong. We're right. Too bad. You either do it our way or you don't do it." That's not dialogue.

Review??? You may be able to live with it, Susan, but I call it censorship. It was one of the things which I could not honestly accept and obey, and one which was a deciding factor in my leaving the Faith.

I won't rehash here my entire letter nor will I begin a debate on yet another list with you about whether or not I have been "clear" about my issues with the AO and specifically the April 7 letter.

But I will say that I don't think you have been forthright in your own presentation of your own opinions of many of these issues and how you have made a 180 degree turn from what you were saying not so long ago. At that time, you had little respect or love for Steve Birkland and his shenanigans yourself as I recall.

So please Susan, come down a little from the high horse you're on these days! If you've had a renewal of your Faith, that's great. But please don't presume to be able to explain to others what I or Lisa or any other individual should have done or what we think or believe. And,

yes, that is exactly what you have been doing.
Yours,
Paul

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: <pdodenhoff@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Monday, July 26, 1999 9:44 AM

In response to my comment:

> >This is akin to the moving of a Catholic > >priest who abuses children to another parish instead of kicking his > >butt out and turning him over to the authorities!

Susan wrote:

> No, it is not. The ABM in question believed he was doing what he was supposed > to be doing, however misguided his understanding was. Now we can be punitive > and kick such people out, but what will we achieve? We will get some other > overly-zealous Baha'i in who will make the same mistakes because he hasn't > learned the lessons which the previous one has.

Susan. Please. This isn't the first time this guy has done this and I doubt it will be the last. How many more "misguided" mistakes at other peoples expense will the AO allow? And don't you think that even the *idea*of such "investigations" is wrong? You, who have even had your own loyalty questioned, I think, would be absolutely outraged by such nonsense!

>
> >You asked > >me to write a letter in support of Terry.
>
> Indeed, I did. And you know full well all the efforts I went through to put a > stop to this. And as you know, by working with the Institutions (instead of > making and expose) we did put a stop to it and Terry received an apology from > the Counselor and from the Universal House of Justice. Note that Terry is not > only still within the Baha'i community today but is filled with more confidence > and faith than I have ever seen him. That wasn't easy, because at first Terry > was reluctant to accept even an apology from the House. It took literally hours > of effort on the part of two Counselors to bring healing into that situation.
> But the point is that both the Counselors and the Hosue took that effort to do > that.For the resources that were expended in this effort it began to look like > a project of "Saving Private Ryan."
>
> >As I recall, I first > >heard about this crisis between academics and the AO at the Irfan > >Colloquium in Wilmette a couple of years ago. At that time, you were > >irate at the treatment Juan and others were receiving. That anger > >continued and was *very* evident in Teaneck at the meeting I helped > >arrange between Counselor Abdu'l-Missagh Ghadirian and ABM Gene Andrews

>
> By the time the Teaneck meeting rolled around I understood what the problem > with Juan & Co. was and why the Institutions had taken the stand they did. I > was still concerned about the level of scholar-baiting in the community and > still felt that this played a role in creating people like Juan. I still > believe that is true and I continue to work with the Institutions to change
> that climate.

Suan. I have said repeatedly that I disagree with Juan on many issues.
In Teaneck that was made clear by me. And likewise by you. BUT the point is that you were as angry about the actions of those involved, including Birkland as I and some others were.

I won't go on to respond to the rest of your post because my point is simply this: If indeed you have now had a reconciliation of sorts with the Institutions, that's great. I do not begrudge you, nor anyone else, the right to remain within the community, to work with it, and to support it. I will defend your right to do so. But at least be honest when responding to my letter if you absolutely feel you must, especially here where I see your posts are rather recent, and openly admit that in the recent past you have not been the staunch defender of the AO's policies that you are now. It will at least make plain that even *you* Susan, have had the same complaints and issues.
Paul

Sent via Deja.com <https://www.deja.com/>
Share what you know. Learn what you don't.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: <berekiah1@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Wednesday, August 04, 1999 9:22 PM

Ok. This killfile seems to have only worked for one person. Once again we see Maneck at it with her smear and slander campaign:

smaneck@aol.com (Smaneck) wrote:

>I think we can see that by the fact that Berekiah, who participated on the Majnun list, stongly and vocally supports him against the Guardian.<

This is sheer poppy-cock.

Yes, I strongly and vocally support the right of any individual to their intellectual and religious liberties. Be they the joe down the street, Margaret Thatcher, Saddam Hossein, Ayatollah Khomeini, Vaclav Havel, Pol Pot, Andrei Sakharov or Ahmad Sohrab. As also would Baha'u'llah and `Abdul-Baha imo. But this does not mean I find everything Sohrab or Thatcher say agreeable, either. If Maneck had cared to pay attention to what I said instead reading things into what I said, she would know that I claimed that Remey and Holley had consistently lied to SE on many occasions in the past, and that I believed the Sohrab case to be another occasion when this happened. I also said that just as Galilleo and Copernicus had been condemned by the Roman Catholic Church, so would Baha'i intellectual dissidents in the future find similar exoneration. But given that Sohrab is such a taboo subject amongst the fundamentalist guardianolaters within the BF, just as the Mojahedin is with the Khomeinists, all flags go up when one even mentions him.

Now Maneck reads what I say and turns me into a Sohrabian. One should go to Princeton University and kick the Dean of the University as well as the History Department's Chair in the behind for awarding doctorates to people who don't even understand basic subtleties. Since in fact I don't believe Maneck is as dense as she would have us believe, I think she is being completely disengenuous (what else is new?).

Maneck was not on Majnun (and neither were the other reactionaries who have jumped down our throats for the past three years) and was in no way party to the conversations or vetting that was going on amongst some of us. The issue of Sohrab came up because someone had privately written Juan from the UK and warned him that the administration was about to move against him, strangle Talisman and throw him (i.e. Juan) out, and given this eventuality he should go quietly and not make noise as Sohrab did. FYI this was back in December of 95. And as I understand it was precisely Juan's correspondent who first raised the issue of Sohrab. Juan, please feel free to correct me if am I wrong here? David Langness was already being threatened by Wilmette and we all believed at the time that the fundamentalists were going to use David as a convenient pretext to move against Talisman and all the liberals - the proverbial Reichstag fire, if you will. So as soon as Stephen Birkland started posting about how CBs were on Talisman, etc., being vague in how he put it, Majnun was created in order that we could strategise and find a way to stop what was about to take place.

I felt that we should take the dialogue out into the open - even if it was bound to get unsweet -, accusations by one person of illegal activities committed by a member of the NSA were submitted, and I said we should go the proper legal authorities. Walbridge took what I said in the wrong way and said I was making manifestos. Then he posted his accidental response, and rest is history and has remained a matter of paranoid conjecture ever since.

This is the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me God.

Berekiah

Sent via Deja.com <https://www.deja.com/>
Share what you know. Learn what you don't.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: Steve Marshall <forumbahai@es.co.nz>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Monday, August 02, 1999 6:38 PM

Sorry, I don't listen to individuals when they accuse others of being "weak in the Covenant". We could argue back and forth what the Covenant is and who is within it or not, but I don't want to. As Rachel seems to indicate, it just perpetuates "chaos - the second stage of community functioning where the pretense of unity in pseudocommunity has been given up for the unproductive clamour and clash of opinions."

I think that the "program" you refer to is the Internet itself. Suddenly individual Baha'is aren't reliant on institutional events, magazines, functions and programs to communicate with each other. Formerly nearly all communication between individual Baha'is was through institutional channels. Now, alternate non-institutional channels are opening up and lateral communication, not just the hierarchical up-down stuff, is starting to flow.

The network model of communication that favours people in the middle of the organisation who maintain lots of links, is coming into its own. The hierarchical model of communication, that gives power to the body isolated at the top of the pyramid, is no longer the only model around.

So, welcome to the program!

ka kite,
Steve

-----
Alison & Steve Marshall, Aotearoa | "Fanaticism consists in redoubling
forumbahai@es.co.nz (New Zealand) | your efforts when you have forgotten
Try: <https://www.rightwords.co.nz/> | your aim." - George Santayana

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: <pdodenhoff@my-deja.com>
Subject: Re: Letter of resignation
Date: Tuesday, June 29, 1999 11:23 AM

In article <718pea$1h77@news2.newsguy.com>,
"Rick Schaut" <RSSchaut@email.msn.NOSPAMcom> wrote:

>
> Please know that both of you are in my prayers. When one is not sure whom > to believe, making such a serious decision, and taking the attendant steps,
> must be monumentally difficult.
>
> I have, for quite some time now, believed that those who are sincere may > always find refuge in the fact that "Mercy" is one of God's attributes.
>
> I pray that you have not fallen victims to a campaign of misinformation and > betrayal, though I must say that this fear weighs very heavily on my heart, > particularly after reading your post.
>
> If you haven't already, I would strongly encourage both of you to take your > concerns directly to the Universal House of Justice. Their reply cannot do > you, or the Cause, any harm, can it?
>
> Regards,
> Rick Schaut

Dear Rick,
Thank you for your post and your concern.
I feel I must point out, though, a couple of things I have said on other lists of which you may not be aware.

The decision to resign was ours alone. My views regarding the issues raised in our letter concerning methodologies, scholarship, academic freedom, etc and the attendant crises over them within the Bahai Faith, were arrived at independently long before I knew any of the individuals involved in them and before I was active at all on the internet, and are not the result of any "campaign of misinformation."

I have been clear elsewhere in the past and still am that I have not always agreed with some of the positions, actions, attitudes, etc.
taken by various individuals or institutions involved in these issues.
I'm certain they disagree with mine on many occasions. I say "my" views on the academic issues because, while my wife agrees with my positions, I am the one who is involved in the academic community.
But, those concerns, especially heightened by the April 7 letter, raised in both of us other questions about positions the Faith has on other issues (see our letter again regarding these) and our own positions on those same issues. I don't want to reiterate here what we said in our letter, but simply, we came to the conclusion that, in order to be honest with ourselves, with the Faith, and with God, we had to make the choice to resign. Some will say that, despite our assertion in our letter, we cannot believe in Baha'u'llah and not remain in the Faith and "just accept" these issues as they are. Again, we have said that our relationship to Baha'u'llah is our own, and He alone, not any individual or Institution, in His love and compassion, knows our hearts and our motives.

You encouraged us to write the House with our concerns. Frankly, Rick, the academic issues have been addressed in many letters, both public and private, most often in a much more eloquent manner than my own. The responses do not vary greatly and I am certain my concerns would elicit the same type of response. As for the other issues concerning Lisa and I which are addressed in our letter, these are, as I am sure you will agree (except possibly the issue of review) things that simply will not change, and on which there are definite positions held by the Faith, positions with which we wholeheartedly disagree.

Thus it is not a matter of asking the House for clarification. It would be simply pointless. The position on homosexuality, women on the UHJ, etc. are clear already. The April 7 letter was the catalyst that caused us to reexamine our own position on these and resulted in our decision to resign.

Yours,

Paul

Yours

Sent via Deja.com <https://www.deja.com/>
Share what you know. Learn what you don't.

---

Homepage

---

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: srb-mods@bccca.org <srb-mods@bccca.org>
Subject: Moderator's Notice
Date: Monday, September 14, 1998 1:59 AM

Moderators' Notice:

As some signature files contain advertising, which is against the charter for this newsgroup, the moderators have decided that only a subscriber's name and a return e-mail address will be allowed in signatures. Longer signatures will be truncated.

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Letter setting out the Official Baha'i Theology as Fundamentalism and Literalism

. . . and Claiming the Right to Silence Baha'i Scholars

Continental Board of Counsellors for the Protection and Propagation of the Baha'i Faith in the Americas

16 July 1996

Dear X:

When I telephoned last May to ask for a second meeting to discuss in greater depth a number of concerns touched on in our earlier consultation, you indicated that you would prefer that I put these issues in writing. This letter, which has benefited from the comments of the International Teaching Center, seeks to respond to your request.

As I explained, my reason for the proposed meeting was a desire to assist you in understanding how a number of your postings to the members of [an] internet forum . . . were in conflict with the Teachings of the Baha'i Faith, and how their persistent promotion by you was becoming harmful to its interests. As you know, a special responsibility for the protection of the Faith is one of the primary functions assigned to the institution of the Counsellors.

While I have not archived your . . . postings, I retained a handful of them which seemed to me particularly inappropriate and disquieting in the context of a discussion ostensibly intended as a serious study of Baha'u'llah's Message. Copies of some of these which illustrate the issues mentioned here are enclosed for your reference.

Essentially, your statements convey an image of the Faith in which the Covenant, although it is fundamental to Baha'u'llah's Message, has little substance beyond a kind of nominal legitimacy and certain very narrowly defined functions assigned to its central institutions. The broad and unique authority explicitly conferred on the Guardianship and the Universal House of Justice in the Writings of the Founders of the Faith is systematically whittled down to a point that would, if taken seriously, paralyze the ability of the Cause to carry out the mission laid on it by its Founder.

The issue is not one of your having views which may be incompatible with the Teachings. Baha'i life is a continuing endeavor to understand and implement the truths of the Revelation of God to which we are committed. Nor would expressions of opinion during discussions among groups of Baha'is, however misleading or objectionable some of these comments might seem to many members of the community, normally be matters that the institutions of the Faith would feel responsible to take up. What has aroused the concern of the International Teaching Centre with respect to your . . . interventions, and has disturbed many of your fellow believers, has rather been a pattern of comment that appears to reflect a calculated and determined effort on your part, in the name of detached scholarly discussion, to impose on the presentation of Baha'u'llah's Message a strongly held ideological view that contradicts the authoritative and explicit interpretation of Baha'i Texts . . . these comments left me with the impression that you feel no compunction in disagreeing with Baha'u'llah and `Abdul-Baha themselves when their statements come into conflict with your strongly held personal convictions . . .

In a statement posted over a year and a half ago--and repeated this past May . . . you explained with great frankness the beliefs that motivate you. Please let me be equally candid, then, in expressing my opinion that, if you were today to advance such views in support of an application for enrollment in the Baha'i Faith, no Baha'i Assembly would accept your application or regard you as fulfilling the basic requirements for Baha'i membership set out by the Guardian:

"Full recognition of the station of the Forerunner, the Author, and the True Exemplar of the Baha'i Cause, as set forth in Abdul-Baha's Testament; unreserved acceptance of, and submission to, whatsoever has been revealed by their Pen; loyal and steadfast adherence to every clause of our Beloved's sacred Will; and close association with the spirit as well as the form of the present day Baha'i administration throughout the world--these I conceive to be the fundamental and primary considerations that must be fairly, discreetly and thoughtfully ascertained

before reaching such a vital decision."

I regret the bald tone of this necessarily brief and constrained presentation of my concerns as a Counsellor. As I say, it seemed to me greatly to be preferred if we could have discussed such important matters face to face, in an unhurried atmosphere of respect both for your personal convictions and the integrity of the Faith's Teachings. You are the only one who can know whether in your heart you do indeed believe in Baha'u'llah as the Manifestation of God to our age. Baha'i institutions do not have the right to pry into believers' innermost convictions, but they do have the obligation to counsel individuals whose dissemination of personal beliefs is doing harm to the interests of the Faith.

The International Teaching Centre has asked me--with the knowledge of the Universal House of Justice--to warn you that your promulgation of views contrary to the Teachings was damaging to the Cause. If you were to resume in any fashion this course of action, the effect would be to bring you into direct conflict with the Covenant.

With sincerity and concern,

Stephen Birkland, Member Continental Board of Counsellors in the Americas

cc: The International Teaching Centre
Continental Board of Counsellors in the Americas
National Spiritual Assembly of the United States

Editor's Note: This letter was sent to a Baha'i academic a couple years after electronic mail fora began making a big impact on the Baha'i community. The 'ideology' of which the author stands accused appears to be classical Liberalism, in the sense of devotion to human rights, parliamentary governance and procedure, reason, and academic scholarship. One can only speculate as to what ideology is being urged on the author, but it is not, obviously, one of the Left, and if you subtract both Liberalism and Marxism from the main available ideologies, you are probably left with some form of Fascism. Those not versed in Baha'i technical terminology or practices will need to be informed that the last paragraph contains a threat to have this individual shunned by all Baha'is (i.e. his family, long-time friends and readers) if he does not fall silent.

Related Links

- Inquisition: An Introduction
  - Documents on the Spanish Inquisition
-

- To Baha'i Studies
- To Talisman

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Straw man

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/straw-man.htm>

They need their straw man.... It doesn't matter who it is: me, you, etc.... anyone, the arguments don't matter, fundamentalists aren't about to pay any attention to ideas or their own history of perfidy, deceit, and dishonor.

Those who are really doing the ignoring is obvious to any fair-minded observer.... thoroughly documented below. And when one chooses NOT to play the role of their straw man, or simply go away, what do fundamentalists do?

FABRICATE ONE! Indeed, many, on talk.religion.bahai as elsewhere....

The OED offers some illustrative quotations.

1594. "A scarre-crowe to make them afraide, as wee vse to deale with children and with birdes by puppets and strawe-men."

1890. Frazer's Golden Bough provides an evocative quotation: "Some times a straw man was burned in the 'hut.'"

Webster 3rd New International.

Man of straw: "an imaginary argument of no substance advanced in order to be easily confuted or an imaginary adversary advancing such an argument. "Seems to be looking for a man of straw to belabor."

American Heritage Dictionary.

"One set up as an opponent to be easily defeated or refuted."

The Random House Dictionary

Strawman (2) A person used by another to disguise his own activities, as a perjured witness. (3) An unimportant person, object, or discussion: "Your argument is a straw man intended to divert us from the real issues."

Or I should emphasize the "etc," really, i.e., the straw men and women, who play the role, don it, fabricate it, versus those of us who are shunned and slandered into it....

For perceptive observers, it's pretty obvious who's playing the straw man around here.... Same tactics and techniques....

It may be true that the concept of straw man is related somehow to that of the scapegoat. Frazer's Golden Bough, and similarly sources, might be worthwhile for further exploration of these themes of ostracism, shunning, etc....

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Scapegoat.htm>

OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY. Scapegoat. (Lev. xvi) 1. Invented by Tindale 1530.... One of the two goats that was chosen by Lot to be sent away into the wilderness, the sins of the people having been symbolically laid upon it, while the other was appointed to be sacrificed. 2. One who is blamed or punished for the sins of others. 1867 Freeman, He has been made the scapegoat for many of the sins both of other individuals and of the whole nation.

"...In mythology, a furious mob mobilizes against scapegoats held responsible for some huge crisis. The sacrifice of the guilty victim through collective violence ends the crisis and founds a new order ordained by the divine. Violence and scapegoating are always present in the mythological definition of the divine itself. .... As the Greeks thought, the shock of death of the victim brings about a catharsis that reconciles. It extinguishes the appetite for violence. For the Greeks, the tragic death of the hero enabled ordinary people to go back to their peaceful lives." FROM New Perspectives Quarterly interview. Summer 2005. "Ratzinger Is Right." René Girard

Regardless of whether or not there is an historical connection between the straw man and scapegoat, both resonate with the same timber of spiritual violence and purgation, laying bare the desperation behind the "community" that would resort to such stratagems....

Compare

Scapegoat

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Scapegoat.htm>

talk.religion.bahai on Usenet

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Usenet.htm>

"The Bahai Technique":

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/technique.htm>

Shunning & Slander > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

FG
The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

----- Original Message -----

From: "Al-Kafir Al-Kabir" <kafiralkabir@hotmail.com>

Newsgroups: talk.religion.bahai

Sent: Saturday, August 23, 2003 12:29 AM

Subject: Spiritual abuse

- > The following is taken from a Sufi list and perfectly articulates the
- > kind of spiritual abuse rampant inside baha'ism.
- >
- >
- > Spiritual abuse is any interaction which seeks to:
- >
- > compel -- whether through force, pressure, intimidation, emotional
- > blackmail/duress, or other methods of covert control -
- anyone to
- > believe or act in certain ways. At the heart of any spiritual/mystical
- > path is the inherent, God-given freedom to accept or reject the
- > Divine purpose of life, and while individuals may wish to disagree or
- > discuss various possibilities concerning the precise nature of what
- > that Divine purpose is or what this purpose might entail, no one has
- > the right to impose on others what this should be or demand that
- > people must comply or conform with such possibilities. The freedom to
- > choose -- which is a Divinely given gift -- should not be curtailed
- > through coercive means -- physical, emotional, psychological, social,
- > or spiritual.
- >
- > Or, approached from another direction, spiritual abuse is:
- >
- > any interaction in which the intention or niyat of one person is to

- > corrupt, obstruct, undermine, interfere with, subvert, mislead,

- > destroy, or impair the essential relationship which each person

- > enjoys with his or her Creator -- that is, spiritual abuse is any

- > interaction in which there is some intention, agenda, purpose, or

- > goal other than a wish for the constructive enhancement of another

- > person's life -- not according to what one may believe is in someone

- > else's best spiritual interests, but according to what God's plan for

- > that individual is and, ultimately, the only person who has the

- > responsibility for deciding or judging what God's plan is for an

- > individual is the individual himself or herself. Others - - such as a

- > spiritual guide, teacher, shaykh, murshid, guide or pir -- may be

- > called upon as resources in assisting an individual to try to reach

- > the best informed decision possible, but it is a breach of spiritual

- > adab or etiquette to seek to manipulate that decision making process -

- > - especially when this is done for self-serving purposes ... no

- > matter how nobly and beautifully packaged this manipulation may be.

- >

- > Or, approached from, yet, another direction, spiritual abuse is:

- >

- > any form of interaction which seeks, intentionally, to treat

- > deception, disinformation, lies, misinformation, and falsehoods as if

- > they were spiritual guidance rather than error ... it is one thing to

- > have differences of opinion about this or that teaching and to

- > explore those differences in methodical, rigorous, but diplomatic

- > ways, and it is quite another to use discussion as a tool of

- > obfuscation for the purposes of influencing people to seek other than > the truth -- for the truth is all that stands between us and error.

**>

> And, finally, one might also say that spiritual abuse is:

**>

> any form of interaction which is authoritarian in nature and which > provides few or no degrees of freedom for full disclosure -- or, as > much as is feasible at any given time -- with respect to critically > examining -- in an appropriately respectful and discrete manner -- > issues involving identity, doubt, faith, truth, questions, concerns, > purposes, meaning, methodology, justice, knowledge, understanding, > integrity, adab, morality, duty, responsibility, or disparities > between what is said and what is done with respect to any of the > participants.

**>

> The foregoing is not exhaustive, but it serves as something of a > beginning I believe, for further discussion and critical exploration.

**>

> (The above was written by a member of the Sufi Spiritual Abuse

> Recovery Group and is posted here with the permission of the author.)

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Summary of Hearing on Defendants' Motions to Dismiss in the case of DEBORAH BUCHHORN, for herself) and for MINORITY MEMBERS OF THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, Plaintiffs, vs. TRUSTEES OF THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, and THE SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, a non-profit corporation, and the NATIONAL SPIRITUAL ASSEMBLY OF THE BAHÁ'Í'S OF THE UNITED STATES, an Illinois Corporation, Defendants. Case No. CV 2001-01978

July 18, 2001, 10:30 AM Judge Scott in Albuquerque, NM

The Local Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Albuquerque and The National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States are the DEFENDANTS. Deborah Buchhorn is the Plaintiff.

The Plaintiff filed a complaint against the Defendants for various wrongs committed against her as a member of the Baha'i Faith by the local and national institutions.

The Defendants filed a Motion to Dismiss the Complaint based upon subject matter jurisdiction and failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. In addition the NSA brought a separate Motion to Dismiss challenging the Court's personal jurisdiction of the NSA, a non-citizen of New Mexico.

The Defendants' attorney argued first.

She said that the complaint was barred on First Amendment grounds, that all of the plaintiffs (minority shareholder/members of the LSA community) were not named as required by the Rules, that it was a corporate derivative suit that was not appropriate, that it pleads fraud but fails to plead with particularity as required by the Rules, that the defamation action was barred by admissions of the Plaintiff, and that it claimed an unspecified right to communicate that does not exist.

The Defendants argued that the free exercise clause of the First Amendment bars the claim. The relief requested in the complaint that: 1) seeks to remove the Trustees of the LSA from serving in that capacity for 19 years, 2) enjoin the NSA an LSA from enforcing its literature review policy; 3) seeks determination that Defendants' secrecy practices violated the law; and 4) enjoin the Defendants from following their secrecy practices. These claims for relief demonstrate that the complaint involves a religious controversy.

The US Supreme Court has ruled (in a number of cases cited in the briefs) that civil courts must abstain from religious controversies. The long line of US Supreme Court cases state that church government must not be interfered with by civil courts, and there can be no review or entanglement of the courts with religious affairs.

In the Baha'i Teachings, the Baha'is must obey the Institutions and may not engage in backbiting or questioning of the decisions of the LSA or NSA, for the sake of unity and harmony. The Teaching of 'Abdul-Baha was that God would right any wrong as long as the Baha'is remain united in obedience to the Institutions. These are the religious teachings of the Baha'i Faith and the secular courts must not entangle themselves in it.

The Defendants next argued that the complaint is brought on behalf of un-named minority shareholders of the LSA of Albuquerque. The court rules of procedure require that they all be named, and for that reason the complaint should be dismissed.

Next, the Defendants argued that the complaint is improperly plead as a derivative suit. An appropriate derivative suit is where a member of a corporation seeks to exercise a right that the corporation has (but has failed to exercise that right on its own). In this complaint, the Plaintiff seeks redress for alleged wrongdoing against her --- not wrongdoing against the corporation. Thus, a derivative action is not appropriate.

The next argument was that the complaint failed to plead fraud with particularity. That is, it must state facts showing the time, place, and contents of the fraudulent communication, the identity of the person making it, and what he obtained through the fraud. The complaint therefore fails to state a claim for fraud.

As for the defamation claim, paragraph 13 of the Plaintiff's complaint admits that the Defendants did not defame her.

As for the alleged right to communicate, the Defendants argued that it was vague and not specified as to what right this is. The Defendants know of no such legal right.

The Plaintiff's attorney argued next.

The Plaintiff argued that for many years she was oppressed, defrauded, and abused in the manner of the Soviet KGB by Baha'i leaders. She appealed repeatedly to the NSA but received no relief. Plaintiff argued that Baha'is have the belief that the Universal House of Justice is infallible, but that they have misunderstood the Arabic word used by 'Abdul-Baha which translates into "morally immaculate" rather than infallible in the Papal sense.

American Baha'is view their Institutions as divinely guided and therefore they are particularly susceptible to authoritarian control techniques utilized by their leaders. Most of the Baha'is view the victims of these authoritarian control techniques as being sources of disunity in the community.

The Plaintiff next argued against the NSA's attempt to avoid personal jurisdiction of the court. She argued that the NSA and LSA are a single entity. The NSA asserts exclusive jurisdiction and authority over the LSA, tells the LSA what their bylaws are to be, and states in its own publications that the LSA is subject absolutely to NSA authority and jurisdiction, and that the LSA must obey and sustain the NSA.

As for the First Amendment issue, the Plaintiff argues that the assertion of a religious privilege should be raised by a motion for summary judgment instead of as an attack on the pleadings. It is a substantive defense and does not prevent a cause of action from being stated.

The First Amendment protects the spiritual aspect of religious teaching, except in cases of fraud (and this complaint is for fraud).

As for the temporal duties of the Baha'i leadership, the First Amendment does not protect them. If the court accepted the Defendants arguments, then religions would not be accountable to any court or anyone or anything else except their own religious laws.

The complaint deals with elections, inspection of books and records, and fraudulent activity in operating the corporation --- these are not religious issues.

The First Amendment does not protect fraud.

The Plaintiff's attorney said that he has a tape recording of Defendants attempting to extract confessions out of Baha'is. The Defendants carry tape recorders.

He said the complaint details oppression by the Baha'i leadership against the Plaintiff and that religious law must yield to violations of state law against oppression.

As for the shareholder derivative suit, Plaintiff argued that it was properly plead. The LSA has multiple causes of action against the NSA that the LSA has failed to assert.

The NSA ignored all appeals. There is no rule that all of the plaintiffs be named in a derivative suit.

As for fraud, NM law says that only the circumstances of fraud must be plead with particularity -- not the evidence.

The Defendants next argued rebuttal.

There is no rational way to interpret the allegations of the complaint and the request for relief other than that she is a Baha'i that requires obedience to the LSA and NSA, and that resort to the secular courts is not appropriate. Religious dispute would entangle the courts.

Defendant NSA next argued the NSA's personal jurisdiction question. There is a 3 part test. Plaintiff has burden of showing that NSA committed an act to submit itself to jurisdiction of NM court, Plaintiff's cause of action arouse out of that act, and that the NSA had sufficient minimal contacts with NM. Act complained of in complaint is how the NSA handled appeals and its literature review policy. NSA has offices in Illinois. The acts complained of occurred in Illinois. The NSA has no office, bank account, phone, no address in New Mexico. None of the NSA members are residents of New Mexico. There is no registered agent and no meetings of the NSA in New Mexico. The only thing plaintiff could identify that NSA did in New Mexico was pay for media advertising to introduce public to the Baha'i Faith. That is not an act under NM law that subjects the NSA to jurisdiction here. There is nothing to show that Plaintiff's cause of action arouse of that act (advertising). And there were no minimal contacts to satisfy due process concerns.

Judge Scott remarked that it appeared the NSA filed a general appearance (suggesting that the NSA had waived its personal jurisdiction challenge by failing to file special appearance).

Judge Scott took the case under advisement. He will rule by mail.

This reporter will follow up in a month to see if the order is on file.

Jeffrey Goldberg

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

[originally written 1988?]

The Service of Women on the Institutions of the Baha'i Faith

Anthony A. Lee, Peggy Caton, Richard Hollinger, Marjan Nirou, Nader Saiedi, Shahin Carrigan, Jackson Armstong-Ingram, and Juan R. I. Cole.

From 1844, the year of the founding of the Babi religion, to the present day, women have played important roles in Baha'i history. Babi and Baha'i women have often acted as leaders in the community, holding its highest positions and participating in its most important decisions. In the first days of His Revelation, the Bab Himself appointed Qurratu'l-'Ayn, Tahirih, as one of His chief disciples - one of the nineteen Letters of the Living who were the first to believe in Him and were entrusted by Him with the mission of spreading His Faith and shepherding its believers. This remarkable woman would soon become one of the most radical and influential of the Bab's disciples and the leader of the Babis of Karbala. Her vision and achievement have become legend. [1]

In later periods of Baha'i history, women have acted in central roles of leadership within the community. Bahiyyih Khanum, the Greatest Holy Leaf, the sister of 'Abdul-Baha, several times in her lifetime was called upon to act as the de facto head of the Baha'i Faith. When 'Abdul-Baha left the Holy Land to travel to the West, for example, He chose to leave the affairs of the Cause in the hands of His sister. Likewise, immediately after the ascension of 'Abdul-Baha - before Shoghi Effendi, the new Guardian, could arrive in Palestine to assume control of the Faith, the Greatest Holy Leaf assumed leadership. The Baha'is in the Holy Land instinctively turned to her as their guide and protector. And again, during the Guardian's absences from his duties during the early years of his ministry, he repeatedly entrusted the affairs of the Cause to the Greatest Holy Leaf. [2]

After the passing of Shoghi Effendi, women were once more called upon to serve the Baha'i Faith at its highest levels. The international leadership of the religion fell to the Hands of the Cause, the chief stewards of the Faith who had been appointed by the Guardian during his lifetime. The women Hands served along with the men to guide the Baha'i community through the turbulent years preceding the election of the Universal House of Justice. Once again, Baha'i women demonstrated their capacity to administer the affairs of the Faith at its highest levels.

THE BAHAI PRINCIPLE OF GRADUALISM.

Nonetheless, the service of women on the elected institutions of the Baha'i Faith has emerged only gradually. Although a few exceptional Baha'i women have always set the example for their sex, the role of women on Baha'i institutions in the community as a whole has not been comparable to that of men. Traditional notions of inequality, as well as the restrictions of a hostile environment, have caused the participation of women to lag behind. Even to the present day, the participation of women on National Spiritual Assemblies, Boards of Counsellors, and Auxiliary Boards is not equal to that of men, as the charts show. A long road has yet to be travelled.

Participation of Women in Baha'i Institutions

"The equality of men and women is not, at the present time, universally applied. In those areas where traditional inequality still hampers its progress we must take the lead in practicing this Baha'i principle. Baha'i women and girls must be encouraged to take part in the social, spiritual and administrative activities of their communities." The Universal House of Justice, Ridvan 1984.

Numbers of women members of National Spiritual Assemblies 1953 1963 1973 1979 1985

|             |    |    |    |     |     |
|-------------|----|----|----|-----|-----|
| Africa      | 0  | 4  | 58 | 53  | 103 |
| Americas    | 18 | 82 | 86 | 106 | 131 |
| Asia        | 0  | 11 | 35 | 33  | 39  |
| Australasia | 5  | 8  | 26 | 24  | 33  |
| Europe      | 11 | 44 | 40 | 44  | 48  |

|       |    |     |     |     |     |
|-------|----|-----|-----|-----|-----|
| World | 34 | 149 | 245 | 260 | 354 |
|-------|----|-----|-----|-----|-----|

The following table shows, by continent, the numbers of National Assemblies with their corresponding numbers of women members indicated by the column headings. For example, column 1, line 1, there are 4 Assemblies in Africa with no women members.

0 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

|             |   |    |    |    |    |   |   |   |   |   |
|-------------|---|----|----|----|----|---|---|---|---|---|
| Africa      | 4 | 9  | 13 | 6  | 6  | 4 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Americas    | 1 | 4  | 8  | 10 | 12 | 4 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| Asia        | 5 | 14 | 3  | 3  | 0  | 2 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Australasia | 2 | 6  | 4  | 2  | 2  | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| Europe      | 1 | 4  | 6  | 7  | 1  | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 |

Percentage of Women members of Institutions

<here there was a rather nice graph: see dialogue vol 1 no 3>

(Information provided by the Department of Statistics at the Baha'i World Centre, and reprinted from dialogue, volume 1, no. 3 (Summer/Fall 1986), p 31.)

The gradual emergence of women on the institutions of the Faith should not come as a surprise, however. Virtually all Baha'i laws and practices have gone through a gradual evolution in Baha'i history. The recognition of the principle of the equality of men and women, and its gradual application in the development of Baha'i Administration is no exception.

The principle of progressive revelation, the concept of the gradual emergence of divine purpose, is a universal principle which applies within the dispensation of each Manifestation, as well as between dispensations. Baha'u'llah Himself has explained:

Know of a certainty that in every Dispensation the light of Divine Revelation hath been vouchsafed to men in direct proportion to their spiritual capacity. Consider the sun. How feeble its rays the moment it appeareth above the horizon. How gradually its warmth and potency increase as it approacheth its zenith, enabling meanwhile all created things to adapt themselves to the growing intensity of its light. How steadily it declineth until it reacheth its setting point. Were it all of a sudden to manifest the energies latent within it, it would no doubt cause injury to all created things....

In like manner, if the Sun of Truth were suddenly to reveal, at the earliest stages of its manifestation, the full measure of the potencies which the providence of the Almighty hath bestowed upon it, the earth of human understanding would waste away and be consumed; for men's hearts would neither sustain the intensity of its revelation, nor be able to mirror forth the radiance of its light. Dismayed and overpowered, they would cease to exist. [3]

The Universal House of Justice has demonstrated how this principle of progressive revelation has applied, and continues to apply, to the implementation of Baha'i law, particularly to the laws of the Kitab-i Aqdas. The Central Figures of the Faith have promulgated these laws only gradually as the condition of the Baha'i community would allow. [4]

Similarly, 'Abdul-Baha recognised that women could not take their rightful place in the affairs of the world all at once. Throughout history women have been deprived of education and opportunity. Therefore, it was impossible that they would be able to immediately play an equal role in Baha'i life. But 'Abdul-Baha has insisted that all distinctions of sex will be erased once women attain proper education and experience. He says:

Woman's lack of progress and proficiency has been due to her need for equal education and opportunity. Had she been allowed this equality, there is no doubt she would be the counterpart of man in ability and capacity. [5]

In a talk given in New York, 'Abdul-Baha again pinpoints education as the key to women's equality:

...if woman be fully educated and granted her rights, she will attain the capacity for wonderful accomplishments and prove herself the equal of man. She is the coadjutor of man; his complement and helpmeet. Both are human, both are endowed with potentialities of intelligence and embody the virtues of humanity. In all human powers and functions they are partners and co-equals. At present in spheres of human activity woman does not manifest her natal prerogatives owing to lack of education and opportunity.[6]

In Paris He said:

...the female sex is treated as though inferior, and is not allowed equal rights and privileges. This condition is not due to nature, but to education. In the Divine Creation there is no such distinction. Neither sex is superior to the other in the sight of God. Why then should one sex assert the inferiority of the other...If women received the same educational advantages as those of men, the result would demonstrate the equality of capacity of both for scholarship.
[7]

On another occasion he made the same point:

The only difference between them [ie: men and women] now is due to lack of education and training. If woman is given equal opportunity of education, distinction and estimate of inferiority will disappear. [8]

And again:

Therefore, woman must receive the same education as man and all inequality be adjusted. Thus, imbued with the same virtues as man, rising through all the degrees of human attainment, women will become the peers of men, and until this equality is established, true progress and attainment for the human race will not be facilitated. [9]

It was clearly 'Abdul-Baha's position that lack of education and opportunity had relegated woman to an inferior position in society, and that through education and experience all inequalities of sex would be gradually removed. His own policies and actions concerning the service of women on the institutions of the Faith reflected this belief in gradualism.

THE FIRST BAHAI INSTITUTIONS

Any investigation of the history of the development of the Baha'i Administrative Order will reveal that Baha'i women only gradually took their place beside the men in this area of service - and not without struggle. This has been especially true in the East, where women were most heavily restricted. But lack of education and other cultural circumstances have affected the participation of women on Baha'i institutions all over the world.

The first Hands of the Cause appointed by Baha'u'llah were, for example, all males. 'Abdul-Baha appointed no additional Hands, and it was only during the ministry of Shoghi Effendi that women were appointed to this rank. Even so, it has been only Western Baha'i women who have been found qualified for this distinction.

At later times, when the first Auxiliary Boards to the Hands of the Cause were appointed, and then the first contingents of Boards of Counsellors, women were included. But circumstances dictated that it be mostly Western women who were appointed, and that their numbers were far fewer than those of men. As the above chart shows, that situation remains the same today. This is not due to any policy of discrimination on the part of the institutions of the Faith, but simply due to historical circumstances. As the position of women improves - especially in Asia and Africa - with respect to education and experience, we can expect that the current situation will change in favour of more participation of women.

The House of Justice of Tehran

The struggle for the equal participation of women in Baha'i Administration has been played out most dramatically, however, in the arena of the development of local institutions. The first of these bodies was formed in Tehran, Iran, at the initiative of individual believers.

In 1873, Baha'u'llah revealed the Kitab-i-Aqdas, the Most Holy Book, His book of laws. Here He established the institution of the House of Justice (bayt al-'adl). The Kitab-i-Aqdas states:

The Lord hath ordained that in every city a House of Justice (bayt al-'adl) be established wherein shall gather counsellors to the number of Baha [i.e., nine], and should it exceed this number it does not matter ... It behoveth them to be the trusted ones of the Merciful among men and to regard themselves as the guardians appointed of God for all that dwell on earth. It is incumbent on them to take counsel together and to have regard for the interests of the servants of God, for His sake, even as they regard their own interests, and to choose that which is meet and seemly.[10]

In the same book it is written:

O ye Men of Justice! (rijal al-'adl) Be ye in the realm of God shepherds unto His sheep and guard them from the ravaging wolves that have appeared in disguise, even as ye would guard your own sons. Thus exhorteth you the Counsellor, the Faithful.[11]

There are other references in the Kitab-i-Aqdas to the House of Justice (bayt al-'adl) or the Place of Justice (maqarr al-'adl) which define its function and fix some of its revenues. In most cases, these references are not specific but refer to the general concept of a House of Justice rather than a particular institution. The Universal House of Justice has explained:

In the Kitab-i-Aqdas Baha'u'llah ordains both the Universal House of Justice and the Local Houses of Justice. In many of His laws He refers simply to "the House of Justice" leaving open for later decision which level or levels of the whole institution each law would apply to.[12]

Although the Kitab-i-Aqdas was revealed in 'Akka in 1873, it was withheld for some time by Baha'u'llah before it was distributed to the Baha'is of Iran.[13] It appears that it was not until around 1878 that the Baha'is of Tehran received copies of the book and began to implement some of its laws in their personal lives.

Upon reading the Kitab-i-Aqdas, Mirza Asadu'llah Isfahani, a prominent Baha'i teacher living in Tehran, was particularly struck by the command of Baha'u'llah that a House of Justice should be established by the Baha'is in every city. Mirza Asadu'llah is an important figure in Baha'i history: he eventually married the sister of 'Abdul-Baha's wife; he was (as we shall see) one of the earliest Baha'i teachers sent to America by 'Abdul-Baha to instruct the new Western believers and he later accompanied 'Abdul-Baha on his travels in Europe. In any case, in 1878 he was the first to undertake the organization of a local House of Justice in Iran. He took the initiative to invite eight other prominent believers to form a body, responding to the laws of the Kitab-i-Aqdas, which they referred to as bayt al-'adl (House of Justice) or bayt al-a'zam (the Most Great House).

The organization of this first House of Justice was kept a secret, even from the believers. However, it met sporadically in the home of Mirza Asadu'llah for a couple of years. After consulting with this body, the prominent Baha'i men who had been invited to attend its meetings would seek to take action as individual Baha'i teachers that would implement its decisions.

Around 1881, the Tehran House of Justice was reorganized and more members were added. The House adopted a written constitution and pursued its activities with more organization and vigour than before. The constitution mandated, however, that the meetings remain strictly confidential, hidden from the body of the believers. This constitution also assumes that the members of the House would all be men (aqayan). Naturally, considering the social conditions in Iran at the time, no other arrangement was possible.

Some of the minutes of this early House of Justice survive today. It was a gathering of the older and more prominent Baha'i men of Tehran. Meetings were attended by invitation only, and at times included fourteen members or more. Eventually, this meeting came to be called the Consultative Gathering (majlis-i shur), while the house where the body met was referred to as the House of Justice (bayt al-'adl). These meetings sought to assist and protect the Baha'is through consultation on various problems. The House in Tehran sent Baha'i teachers to other cities in Iran to organize Houses of Justice there. Again, the decisions of the House were always carried out by individuals, and the consultations remained secret.

The organization of this body eventually met with some controversy. One important Baha'i teacher, Jamal-i Burujurdi, who later - in the time of 'Abdul-Baha - would become a notorious Covenant-breaker, objected strongly to the organization of a House of Justice in Tehran. Because of these objections, the Baha'is involved on the House appealed to Baha'u'llah for guidance. Baha'u'llah replied with a Tablet in which He approved of the House of Justice and strongly upheld the principle of consultation in the Baha'i Faith. [14]

Early Organisation in America

When the first rudimentary local Baha'i institutions were organized in the United States, their membership was also confined to men. Later, as various forms of Baha'i organization at the local level became more common, men and women served together. But it was the understanding of the Baha'is at the turn of the century that consultative bodies in the Baha'i community should be composed of men. This understanding became firmly institutionalized in the largest Baha'i communities of New York, Chicago, and Kenosha, Wisconsin, and was sanctioned by 'Abdul-Baha.

A scholarly history of the beginnings of Baha'i organization in America has yet to be written. Many of the details of these events have yet to be uncovered. However, it appears that the early American Baha'is were moved to form local councils for the first time in 1900, as a consequence of the defection of Ibrahim Kheiralla from the community. Kheiralla, a Lebanese Christian who had been converted to the Baha'i Faith in Egypt by a Persian Baha'i, 'Abdu'l-Karim Tihriani, had brought the Baha'i teachings to America and had acted as the head of the Faith in the West until that point. His repudiation of 'Abdul-Baha as the rightful leader of the Faith and chosen successor to his Father caused a temporary rift among the Baha'is.

In the fall of 1899, Edward Getsinger, a leading American Baha'i, appointed five men as a "Board of Counsel" for the Baha'is of northern New Jersey.[15] Isabella Brittingham was made the honorary corresponding secretary, but was not a member of the body. Later, in a letter dated March 21, 1900, Thornton Chase wrote from Chicago: "We have formed a 'Board of Council' with 10 members." In this letter, Chase lists the names of nine of these members, all of whom were men. [16]

In June of 1900, however, it appears that the Chicago Board was reorganized. 'Abdu'l-Karim Tihrani had travelled to America at the request of 'Abdul-Baha and had arrived in Chicago at the end of May. The Baha'is of Chicago immediately asked him to draw up rules and regulations that would govern the affairs of their Board. As a result, the Board of Counsel was expanded to nineteen members, some of whom were women. In a statement to the press the Baha'is indicated that this Board was being organized to replace Ibrahim Kheiralla, whom they repudiated as the leader of the Faith. [18]

Although 'Abdu'l-Karim remained in Chicago for only a short time, his nineteen-member Board appears to have functioned for about a year. However, on May 15, 1901, a nine-member, all-male House of Justice was elected in Chicago to replace it. This was done at the direction of Mirza Asadu'llah Isfahani, who had been sent to America by 'Abdul-Baha. Writing to the House of Justice in New York that had already been established, the Chicago House wrote:

Recently His Honor, Mirza Assad'Ullah, received a Tablet from the Master, Abdul-Baha, in which He has positively declared to be necessary the establishment here of the House of Justice by election by the believers with order and just dealing. According to this blessed Announcement, our believers have elected those whom they deemed best fitted, and thus The House of Justice was established. [19]

It was Mirza Asadu'llah who instructed the Baha'is of Chicago that the new House of Justice should be composed only of men. He and his company appear to have regarded the nineteen-member Board as illegitimate, possibly because women served as members.

The change to an all-male institution was not accomplished without anguish. Writing years later, Fannie Lesch, who had served on the Board of Counsel, wrote:

We had a Council Board of men and women after Dr. Kheiralla left us... Mirza Assad'Ullah ignored us, although they were all invited to meet with us, and he established a House of Justice of men only...[20]

Only days after the election of the Chicago House of Justice, a Ladies' Auxilliary Board was organized at the suggestion of Mrs. Ella Nash and Mrs. Corinne True. This Board was later to be known as the Women's Assembly of Teaching. It appears that the Ladies' Auxilliary was able to maintain control of the funds of the Chicago Baha'i community despite the election of the House of Justice.[21]

Men of Justice

The belief that women were not eligible for service on local Baha'i institutions was based on the language of certain passages of the Kitab-i Aqdas which refer to the House of Justice. Of course, as we have noted above, these passages do not make a distinction between local, national, and international bodies. The institution as a whole is addressed. Baha'u'llah twice uses the Arabic word rijal (gentlemen) to refer to the members of the Houses of Justice. He says:

O ye Men (rijal) of Justice! Be ye in the realm of God shepherds unto His sheep... [22]

And:

We have designated a third of all fines for the Place of Justice (maqarr al-'adl), and exhort its members (rijal) to show forth perfect equity...[23]

The word rijal (plural; singular is rajul) is exclusively masculine in Arabic. A dictionary would render an English definition of rajul as: man, gentleman; important man, statesman, nobleman. (A related form of the word, rujula or rujuliyya, would be translated as: masculinity; virility.) Since Baha'u'llah addressed the members of the Houses of Justice using this term, it appears that it was universally assumed that only men were eligible for service on such institutions.

The word rijal, meaning men, is used in the Qur'an and is part of an important passage which establishes the relationship between men and women in Islam (Qur'an 4:34):

Men (rijal) are superior to women (nisa') on account of the qualities with which God hath gifted the one above the other, and on account of the outlay they make from their substance for them.

However, Baha'u'llah has in His Writings clearly established the principle of the equality of men and women. It is therefore possible that when He used the word rijal He did not intend its normal meaning.

Although rijal is the normal Arabic word for men (as opposed to women), there are passages in the Writings of Baha'u'llah that indicate that He may have used the term in a special sense. Such passages suggest that, in a Baha'i context, the word may be understood to include women. Baha'u'llah has stated that women in His Cause are all to be accorded the same station as men - and He has used the very term rijal to make this point. For example, He writes:

Today the Baha'i women (lit., the leaves of the Holy Tree) must guide the handmaidens of the earth to the Lofty Horizon with the utmost purity and sanctity. Today the handmaidens of God are regarded as gentlemen (rijal). Blessed are they! Blessed are they! [24]

And in another passage:

Today whoever among the handmaidens attains the knowledge of the Desire of the World [i.e., Baha'u'llah] is considered a gentleman (rajul) in the Divine Book. [25]

And in another place:

...many a man (rajul) hath waited expectant for God's Revelation, and yet when the Light shone forth from the horizon of the world, all but a few turned their faces away from it. Whosoever from amongst the handmaidens hath recognized the Lord of all Names is recorded in the Book as one of those men (rijal) by the Pen of the Most High. [26]

Likewise, 'Abdul-Baha in one of his Tablets has made the same point:

Verily, according to Baha'u'llah, women are judged as gentlemen (rijal). [27]

However, such passages were not raised as an issue at the time, either because the believers were not aware of them, or because they did not find them applicable. Certainly, the American Baha'is had no access to these texts and had to rely on the understandings of the Persian teachers who were sent by 'Abdul-Baha to guide them.

Names and Terminology

In any case, it was the goal of Mirza Asadu'llah to establish a House of Justice among the believers in Chicago, as he indicated to the Baha'is that 'Abdul-Baha had instructed him to do. He had been at the centre of the organization of the first House of Justice in Tehran, and he assumed a similar role in Chicago. At his direction, the Baha'is in Chicago elected nine men by ballot to a new institution. Those elected were: George Lesch, Charles H. Greenleaf, John A. Guilford, Dr. Rufus H. Bartlett, Thornton Chase, Charles Hessler, Arthur S. Agnew, Byron S. Lane and Henry L. Goodall. [28]

At its first meeting, the House of Justice decided to raise the number of its members to twelve. The body appointed three additional Baha'i men to serve. The minutes of the meeting read:

Motion made and seconded that Messrs. Ioas, Pursels and Doney be selected as add'n [additional] members of this Board of Council. Said motion approved by Board. Secretary instructed to notify said members. [29]

This action was taken, no doubt, in accordance with the statement of Baha'u'llah in the Kitab-i Aqdas that the minimum number of members for a House of Justice is nine, "and should it exceed this number it does not matter." It is instructive to note that, in its first minutes, the secretary of the House of Justice refers to it as a "Board of Council." This illustrates the fluidity of terminology that was used for Baha'i meetings and institutions at the time. Standard terms for the Baha'i institutions did not become fixed and universal until well after the passing of 'Abdul-Baha. Today, the elected local and national Baha'i institutions are known as "Spiritual Assemblies," while the term "House of Justice" is reserved exclusively for the supreme, international institution. In the early years of this century, however, though these same terms were in use among the Baha'is, they were not used in the same ways.

'Abdul-Baha himself confirmed the legitimacy of the election of the first Chicago House of Justice. A Tablet, probably received in September 1901, is addressed from 'Abdul-Baha "To the members of the House of Justice, the servants of the Covenant, the faithful worshippers of the Holy Threshold of the Beauty of El-Abha." Two such Tablets addressed to the House of Justice of Chicago are translated in the compilation Tablets of Abdul-Baha Abbas. [31]

Shoghi Effendi, writing much later in 1929, has discussed the significance of these Tablets. He says:

That the Spiritual Assemblies of today will be replaced in time by Houses of Justice, and are to all intents and purposes identical and not separate bodies, is abundantly confirmed by 'Abdul-Baha Himself. He has in fact in a Tablet addressed to the members of the first Chicago Spiritual Assembly, the first elected Baha'i body instituted in the United States, referred to them as members of the "House of Justice" for that city, and has thus with His own pen established beyond any doubt the identity of the present Baha'i Spiritual Assemblies with the House of Justice referred to by Baha'u'llah. For reasons which are not difficult to discover, it has been found advisable to bestow upon the elected representatives of Baha'i communities throughout the world the temporary appellation of Spiritual Assemblies, a term which, as the position and aims of the Baha'i Faith are better understood and more fully recognised, will gradually be superseded by the permanent and more appropriate designation of House of Justice. [32]

This "temporary appellation" was assumed at the instruction of 'Abdul-Baha about a year after the election of the Chicago House of Justice. The minutes of the House of Justice for May 10, 1902, read:

Mr/ Greenleaf stated that he was instructed by Mirza Assad Ullah to inform this Body that here after and until otherwise informed it shall be known as the "House of Spirituality," in accordance with a Tablet recently received from our Master.

Motion made and seconded that the command of Master changing name of this Body as transmitted by Mirza Assad Ullah be entered upon our records.

Approved by House.

Motion made and seconded that a copy (translation) of that portion of tablet setting forth the change as above mentioned be procured and placed on file.

Approved by House. [33]

Extracts from this Tablet were indeed translated for the House of Justice, now the House of Spirituality. The heading to the translation indicates that the Tablet was received in Chicago by Mirza Assadu'llah on May 3, 1902. One extract reads:

The House of Justice of Chicago should be called "the House of Spirituality" (or the Spiritual House).

In short, no one must hurt the weak ones, there, but must treat them in kindness. Because now is the cycle of kindness and forgiveness to all people. [34]

In what is apparently a second Tablet on the subject, 'Abdul-Baha explained the reasons for the change. This Tablet was, some time later, translated and published:

The signature of that meeting should be the Spiritual Gathering (House of Spirituality) and the wisdom therein is that hereafter the government should not infer from the term "House of Justice" that a court is signified, that it is connected with political affairs, or that at any time it will interfere with governmental affairs.

Hereafter, enemies will be many. They would use this subject as a cause for disturbing the mind of the government and confusing the thoughts of the public. The intention was to make known that by the term Spiritual Gathering (House of Spirituality), that Gathering has not the least connection with material matters, and that its whole aim and consultation is confined to matters connected with spiritual affairs. This was also instructed (performed) in all Persia.

[35]

At the same time, and in the original Tablet received on May 3, 'Abdul-Baha had instructed that the name of the Women's Assembly of Teaching be changed to the "Spiritual Assembly." He instructed that "Spiritual Assemblies" should be organized in every place. However, although the change of name for the House of Justice was effected immediately, the instruction to change the name of the women's institution was ignored. This is probably because the translation of this command into English was so poor as to render it incomprehensible.

And so we read the following in the minutes of the House of Spirituality three years later (July 29, 1905):

Mr. Windust read portions of the Tablet received from the Master in May, 1902 authorizing change of name of this body from "House of Justice" to "House of Spirituality"; as it also stated in said Tablet that the name of the Women's "Assembly of Teaching" be changed to "Spiritual Assembly." It was decided that this matter be spoken of at some future joint meeting [with the women's group], as it had evidently been overlooked. [37]

As we have seen in the Tablets quoted above, in the first year after the election of the Chicago House of Justice, 'Abdul-Baha Himself used various terms to refer to that body. (Of course, we have quoted His Tablets in translation - the translations available to the Baha'is at the time.) These Tablets reflect the use of at least three different designations during this period: House of Justice (bayt al-'adl) in the earliest Tablets, House of Spirituality (probably, bayt-i rawhani) in one Tablet, and Spiritual Gathering (mahfil-i rawhani) in another.

This last term, mahfil-i rawhani, can also be translated as "Spiritual Assembly." However, it was usually translated as "House of Spirituality" in the publications and translations made at this time, even though this translation was in error. The Chicago body came to be known as the House of Spirituality from 1902, and so the translators rendered 'Abdul-Baha's references to it in these words, even if the original Persian did not warrant such a designation. This was because the term "Spiritual Assembly" had no fixed meaning in the early community and could refer to a number of different Baha'i meetings. 'Abdul-Baha had asked, for example, that the term be used for the Ladies' Auxiliary. It was also used by the Baha'is of this time to refer to any Baha'i community as a whole, some weekly teaching meetings, any consultative body, or any gathering of believers.

Terms used to designate the local administrative body were also fluid in 'Abdul-Baha's writings. In addition to the three designations above, the following additional names can be found: mahfil-i shur (Assembly of Consultation), mahfil-i shur rawhani (Spiritual Assembly of Consultation), bayt al-'adl rawhani (Spiritual House of Justice), anjuman (Council), anjuman-i adl (Council of Justice), and marakiz-i 'adl (Centres of Justice).

[38]

The Women's Struggle

The election of an all-male House of Justice in Chicago was a development to which some of the women in the Baha'i community were never reconciled. It is Corinne True in particular who stands out in the struggle to overturn the exclusion of women from that body. After the election, she immediately helped to organize the Women's Assembly of Teaching which worked side by side with the House - and not always harmoniously - for over a decade. Beyond this, she appealed directly to 'Abdul-Baha, asking that women be elected to the House of Justice.

Mrs. True's letter, which has recently come to light, indicates clearly that the change to an all-male body was the cause of some dispute. She writes to 'Abdul-Baha:

There has existed a difference of opinion in our Assembly [that is, the Chicago community] as to how it should be governed. Every believer desires to carry out the Commands of the Blessed Perfection [Baha'u'llah] but we want to know from our Lord himself [that is, 'Abdul-Baha] what these Commands are, as they are written in Arabic and we do not know Arabic. Will Our Lord write me direct from Acca and not have it go through any Interpreter [sic] in America and thus grant me the Authority to say the Master says thus & so, for he has written it to me...

Many in our Assembly feel that the Governing Board in Chicago should be a mixed Board of both men & women. Woman in America stands so conspicuously for all that is highest & best in every department and for that reason it is contended the affairs should be in the hands of both sexes. [39]

She was, however, disappointed when the Master would not support her point of view. He confirmed the practise of electing only males to the Baha'i governing board of Chicago, admonishing her to be patient. She appears to have received her reply from 'Abdul-Baha in June of 1902, but refrained from sharing this Tablet with the Chicago House until the fall of that year.

The Tablet is a famous one and reads in part (in modern translation):

Know thou, O handmaid, that in the sight of Baha, women are accounted the same as men, and God hath created all humankind in His own image, and after His own likeness. That is, men and women alike are the revealers of His names and attributes, and from the spiritual viewpoint there is no difference between them. Whosoever draweth nearer to God, that one is the most favoured, whether man or woman. How many a handmaid, ardent and devoted, hath, within the sheltering shade of Baha, proved superior to the men, and surpassed the famous of the earth.

The House of Justice, however, according to the explicit text of the Law of God, is confined to men; this for a wisdom of the Lord God's, which will ere long be made manifest as clearly as the sun at high noon.

As to you, O ye other handmaids who are enamoured of the heavenly fragrances, arrange ye holy gatherings, and found ye Spiritual Assemblies, for these are the basis for spreading the sweet savours of God, exalting His Word, uplifting the lamp of His grace, promulgating His religion and promoting His Teachings, and what bounty is there greater than this? [40]

Since 'Abdul-Baha had confirmed that women should be excluded from the Chicago House of Justice (later, House of Spirituality), this practice continued for some time, in Chicago and elsewhere. We might assume that the belief that women were to be permanently excluded from local Baha'i executive bodies was widespread, at least amongst the men. Women were to be involved in forming women's groups, which 'Abdul-Baha had named "Spiritual Assemblies" in one Tablet.

That did not end the issue, of course. It appears that American Baha'i women continued to discuss the possibility of membership on governing boards, with Corinne True being prominent among them. In 1909, Mrs. True received a Tablet from 'Abdul-Baha in response to her insistent questioning. It reads, in part:

According to the ordinances of the Faith of God, women are the equals of men in all rights save only that of membership on the Universal House of Justice [bayt al-'adl 'umumi], for, as hath been stated in the text of the Book, both the head and the members of the House of Justice are men. However, in all other bodies, such as the Temple Construction Committee, the Teaching Committee, the Spiritual Assembly, and in charitable and scientific associations, women share equally in all rights with men. [41]

This new Tablet from 'Abdul-Baha to Corinne True appears to have opened up a nationwide controversy over the rights of women to serve on Baha'i institutions. The use of the term "Universal House of Justice" in this Tablet caused some confusion. Corinne True and others assumed that 'Abdul-Baha intended by this Tablet that women were now to be admitted to membership on local Baha'i bodies, and more particularly to membership on the Chicago House of Spirituality.

Thornton Chase related the controversy which erupted in Chicago in a letter written a few months later (January 19, 1910):

Several years ago, soon after the forming of the "House of Justice" (name afterward changed by Abdul-Baha to House of Spirituality on account of political reasons - as stated by Him - and because also of certain jealousies) Mrs. True wrote to Abdul-Baha and asked if women should not be members of that House. He replied distinctly, that the House should be composed of men only, and told her that there was a wisdom in this. It was a difficult command for her to accept, and ever since (confidentially) there has been in that quarter and in those influenced by her a feeling of antagonism to the House of Spirituality, which has manifested itself in various forms... ..Mrs True received a Tablet, in which it was stated (in reply to her solicitation) that it was right for women to be members of all "Spiritual Gatherings" except the "Universal House of Justice", and she at once construed this to mean, that women were to be members of the House of Spirituality and the Council Boards, because in some of the Tablets for the House, it had been addressed as the "Spiritual Assembly" or "Spiritual Gathering".

But the House of Spirituality could not so interpret the Master's meaning... [42]

The difference of opinion was deep and serious. It took place within a wider context of gender tensions within the American Baha'i community at the time. The Chicago House of Spirituality consulted on the new Tablet to Corinne True at its meetings on August 31, 1909, and September 7, 1909. While it seemed clear to them that the Tablet did not admit women to membership on the House of Spirituality, they decided to write to 'Abdul-Baha for a clarification of His meaning. [43]

It appears that no record of a reply to the House on this point has survived. But, in the event, the practice of excluding women from membership did not change. The men of Chicago assumed that 'Abdul-Baha's reference to the "Universal House of Justice" intended the local Chicago institution. This is a reasonable assumption, given the lack of fixed terminology at the time.

The word 'umumi, with which 'Abdul-Baha qualified His reference to the House of Justice in Arabic, means public, general, or universal. Since it was known that Corinne True had asked about women's service on the Chicago House - which was understood to be a House of Justice, even if designated a House of Spirituality for various reasons - His reply seemed to indicate that only men could serve on the general (or universal) body, while women could serve on all subordinate bodies, such as the Assembly of Teaching, the Philanthropic Association, and so forth. And this is the interpretation of the Tablet that would stand for some years to come.

In May of 1910, Thornton Chase wrote to a believer about this question, which was still being debated:

As to women being members of the House, there is no question at all. Abdul-Baha's reply to Mrs True years ago, settled that, viz, that the members of the House should be men, and that the time would come when she would see the wisdom of that. This was in direct answer to her question to Him as to this matter. He has never changed that command, and He cannot, because it is the command of Baha'o'llah also, as applied to such bodies of business controllers.

But, in a Tablet to me, 'Abdul-Baha said "The House of Spirituality must encourage the women as much as possible". There is the whole procedure. "Encourage the women as much as possible". That is what He does: that is what we should do. Not to be members of the H. of S., but to all good works in the Cause, which they can possibly accomplish. It seems to me that the matter of membership in H. of S. should be simply ignored, not talked about, but if it obtrudes itself too strongly, just get out that Tablet to Mrs. True and the one to me (just mentioned) and offer them as the full and sufficient answer. [44]

Chase's views are undoubtedly representative of the understandings of the majority of Baha'is at the time. It was the common understanding that the Chicago House of Spirituality was properly composed of men only, and that ultimately all local Baha'i boards should be similarly composed. This was a position which was repeatedly sustained by 'Abdul-Baha, but which was never fully accepted by some Baha'i women.

In Kenosha, which had had an all-male "Board of Consultation" for some years, the issue of women's service on the Board became a matter of dispute in 1910, as a result of Corinne True's 1909 "Universal House of Justice" Tablet. On July 4, 1910, the Kenosha Board wrote to the House of Spirituality in Chicago asking if they had any Tablets from 'Abdul-Baha which instructed that women should be elected to local institutions. They explained that two of the Baha'i ladies in their community had insisted that such Tablets existed. [45]

The reply from the House of Spirituality, dated July 23, 1910, is very instructive. [46] The House was able to find three Tablets from 'Abdul-Baha which had bearing on the subject. One was the 1909 Tablet to Corinne True which had opened the controversy. Two others had been received from 'Abdul-Baha in 1910, in reply to more inquiries.

In a Tablet to Louise Waite (April 20, 1910), 'Abdul-Baha had instructed:

The Spiritual Assemblies which are organized for the sake of teaching the Truth, whether assemblies for men, assemblies for women or mixed assemblies, are all accepted and are conducive to the spreading of the Fragrances of God.

This is essential. [47]

'Abdul-Baha goes on to state that the time had not come for the establishment of the House of Justice, and he exhorts the men and the women to produce harmony and conduct their affairs in unity.

[48]

In another Tablet directed to the Baha'is of Cincinnati, where the question of women's participation in local organization had also become an issue, 'Abdul-Baha wrote something similar:

It is impossible to organize the House of Justice in these days; it will be formed after the establishment of the Cause of God. Now the Spiritual Assemblies are organized in most of the cities, you must also organize a Spiritual Assembly in Cincinnati. It is permissible to elect the members of the Spiritual Assembly from among the men and women; nay, rather, it is better, so that perfect union may result. [49]

The House of Spirituality concluded from these Tablets that:

...in organizing Spiritual Assemblies of Consultation now, it is deemed advisable by Abdul-Baha to have them composed of both men and women. The wisdom of this will become evident in due time, no doubt. [50]

By this time, Baha'is in different parts of the United States had established a variety of boards and committees as a means of local organization. Women had served on the Washington, D.C., "Working Committee" since its formation in 1907. They had been a part of the Boston "Executive Committee" from its beginning in 1908. Women also acted as officers of communities in places where Baha'is had elected no corporate body. But these were regarded, for the most part, as temporary, ad-hoc organizations not official Baha'i institutions, which were thought to be properly all male.

'Abdul-Baha's Tablets recognized all of these local bodies as "Spiritual Assemblies" (or Spiritual Gatherings, mahfil-i rawhani) and by 1910, He was urging that these Assemblies consist of both men and women. The House of Spirituality in Chicago was obviously puzzled by this command, though it expressed confidence that the wisdom of mixed Assemblies would "become evident in due time." However, since it knew that the Kenosha Board of Consultation had been established as an all-male body in accordance with earlier instructions from 'Abdul-Baha, the House of Spirituality suggested that the Kenosha Baha'is might wish to take a vote to determine whether a majority of believers would be in favour of a change. [51]

Rather than do this, however, the Kenosha Board of Consultation submitted the question to 'Abdul-Baha. The "supplication" (as they termed it) was signed by all of the men of the Board. It asked if the Board should be dissolved, to be reelected with women as members. The Board members pledged to the Master that if it was His wish they would dissolve, but they stated that their intentions had been pure at the founding of the Board and that it had been established in accordance with a Tablet that had been revealed for the House of Spirituality some years before. [52]

'Abdul-Baha, however, would not support the idea of dissolving the all-male Board. His reply, received March 4, 1911, explains:

Now Spiritual Assemblies must be organized and that is for teaching the Cause of God. In that city you have a spiritual Assembly of men and you can establish a spiritual Assembly for women. Both Assemblies must be engaged in diffusing the fragrances of God and be occupied with the service of the Kingdom.

The above is the best solution for this problem... [53]

As in other Tablets, He stated that conditions for the establishment of the House of Justice did not yet exist, and He urged unity between the men and women of the Baha'i community.

And so, through 1911, the status quo that had been established by Mirza Assadu'llah in Chicago in 1901, with the election of the first American House of Justice, held firm. All-male institutions continued to function in the most important Baha'i communities. These were supplemented by parallel women's groups. A variety of committees and boards had been established in smaller Baha'i communities that included women as members, but these were regarded by most Baha'is as only informal groups. While 'Abdul-Baha was urging that new "Spiritual Assemblies" include both men and women, He would not sanction the reorganization of the longer-established male bodies. Baha'i women in various parts of the country continued to discuss the need for change.

The Change Comes

It was not until 1912, during the visit of 'Abdul-Baha to America, that a decisive change was finally made. While 'Abdul-Baha was in New York, He sent word to the Baha'is of Chicago that the House of Spirituality should be reorganized and a new election held. He chose Howard MacNutt, a prominent Baha'i from Brooklyn, to travel to Chicago as His personal representative. MacNutt was instructed to hold a new election for a "Spiritual Meeting" (probably mahfil-i rawhani) of the Baha'is of Chicago. For the first time, women were eligible for election to this body.

MacNutt arrived in Chicago on August 8, 1912. At 'Abdul-Baha's instructions, a feast was held on August 10, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lesch, where the entire Chicago Baha'i community was invited to be the guests of 'Abdul-Baha. MacNutt delivered to the community 'Abdul-Baha's message of unity and love.

The election was held the following day on August 11.

The Baha'i magazine, Star of the West, carried this account of that historic election:

On Sunday evening, the 11th, the Chicago Assembly [meaning here, the whole Baha'i community] selected a "Spiritual Meeting" of nine, composed of men and women, whose service - according to the wish of Abdul-Baha - is, first, to promulgate the teachings of the Revelation, and, second, to attend to other matters necessary to the welfare of the assembly. Mr. MacNutt was present and gave an inspiring address.

A long struggle had ended.

Baha'i Institutions in the East

From the time of the dissolution of the Chicago House of Spirituality and its reelection, service on local Baha'i institutions has always remained open to women in America. 'Abdul-Baha had made it perfectly clear that the restrictions placed on women in this regard were intended to be only temporary ones. From that point forward, women were fully integrated into the emerging Baha'i Administration erected in the West.

The same was not true in the East, however. In Iran and in the rest of the Muslim world, social conditions made it impossible for the restriction on women's participation on local institutions to be lifted for some time. Local and National Spiritual Assemblies in Iran were limited to male membership during the entire period of the ministry of 'Abdul-Baha, and for most of the ministry of Shoghi Effendi. Again, the principle of gradualism was at play.

Of course, there were Baha'i women in Iran, as well in the United States, who campaigned for a greater role for women in the Baha'i community. Their concerns were not only with participation on local Houses of Justice, but also with the elimination of other social restrictions, such as the use of the veil in public. In a Tablet to one such woman activist, 'Abdul-Baha urged restraint and recommended a gradual approach:

The establishment of a women's assemblage (mahfil) for the promotion of knowledge is entirely acceptable, but discussions must be confined to educational matters. It should be done in such a way that differences will, day by day, be entirely wiped out, not that, God forbid, it will end in argumentation between man and women. As in the question of the veil, nothing should be done contrary to wisdom....

Now the world of women should be a spiritual world, not a political one, so that it will be radiant. The women of other nations are all immersed in political matters. Of what benefit is this, and what fruit doth it yield? To the extent that ye can, ye should busy yourself with spiritual matters which will be conducive to the exaltation of the Word of God and of the diffusion of His fragrances. Your demeanour should lead to harmony amongst all and to coalescence and the good-pleasure of all...

I am endeavouring, with Baha'u'llah's confirmations and assistance, so to improve the world of the handmaidens [that is, the world of women] that all will be astonished. This progress is intended to be in spirituality, in virtues, in human perfections and in divine knowledge. In America, the cradle of women's liberation, women are still debarred from political institutions because they squabble. (Also, the Blessed Beauty has said, "O ye Men [rijal] of the House of Justice.") Ye need to be calm and composed, so that the work will proceed with wisdom, otherwise there will be such chaos that ye will leave everything and run away. "This newly born babe is traversing in one night the path that needeth a hundred years to tread." In brief, ye should now engage in matters of pure spirituality and not contend with men. 'Abdul-Baha will tactfully take appropriate steps. Be assured. In the end thou wilt thyself exclaim, "This was indeed supreme wisdom!" [55]

Baha'i women were not admitted to service on the institutions of the Faith in Iran until 1954. But this restriction was understood to be temporary, to be removed as soon as circumstances would permit. As Iranian society allowed a greater role for women in general, and as Baha'i women became more educated and more prepared for administrative service, this restriction was lifted. The Guardian eventually made women's participation on Baha'i institutions in the East one of the goals of the Ten Year World Crusade (1953-1963). His hopes were rewarded by the signal distinction which some Baha'i women have achieved as administrators on local Assemblies and on the National Assembly of Iran.

The International House of Justice

The only remaining body within the Baha'i Faith whose membership continues to be limited to men is its supreme institution, the Universal House of Justice. First established in 1963, the Universal House of Justice is elected by the members of the National Spiritual Assemblies of the world. Naturally, the electors include many women. But the members of the House of Justice itself, from its inception, have all been male.

Shoghi Effendi anticipated that the Universal House of Justice would be established as an all-male body, even though he passed away before he could see this implemented. He did not comment generally on the subject, and he does not seem to have devoted a great deal of time to the issue. But in answer to questions from individual Baha'is, some letters were written on the Guardian's behalf by his secretaries which comment on the composition of the yet-to-be-formed House of Justice. For example, his secretary writes:

As regards your question concerning the membership of the Universal House of Justice, there is a Tablet from 'Abdul-Baha in which He definitely states that the membership of the Universal House of Justice is confined to men, and that the wisdom of it will be fully revealed and appreciated in the future. In the local, as well as national Houses of Justice, however, women have the full right of membership. It is, however, only to the International House that they cannot be elected. [56]

And in another letter:

As regards the membership of the International House of Justice, 'Abdul-Baha states in a Tablet that it is confined to men, and that the wisdom of it will be revealed as manifest as the sun in the future. [57]

Again:

Regarding your question, the Master said the wisdom of having no women on the International House of Justice, would become manifest in the future. We have no indication other than this... [58]

Again:

People must just accept the fact that women are not eligible to the International House of Justice. As the Master says the wisdom of this will be known in the future, we can only accept, believing it is right...[59]

The remarkable similarity of these letters to individual believers should be noted. In each case, the Guardian directed his secretary to refer to the Tablet of 'Abdul-Baha to Corinne True which was written in reply to her petition that women be elected to the Chicago House of Justice. This Tablet explains that the reason for the exclusion of women will become manifest in the future. Subsequent events demonstrated that 'Abdul-Baha had intended that this exclusion be only temporary - an exclusion that would be followed by the full participation of women on this body.

The exclusion of women from the Universal House of Justice today is observed by the Baha'i community primarily in obedience to these letters of the Guardian. Most Baha'is assume that this exclusion was intended to be a permanent one. However, since this instruction of the Guardian is tied so closely to the meaning of the one Tablet of 'Abdul-Baha which promises that the wisdom of the exclusion of women will become manifest in the future, and since it is known that the meaning of the Tablet was that women should be excluded only temporarily from the Chicago House, the assumption that women will be permanently excluded from the current Universal House of Justice may be a faulty one. A temporary exclusion may be intended.

The answer to this question, as with all other questions in the Baha'i community, will have to be worked out over time. The elements of dialogue, struggle, persistence and anguish which are so evident in the history of the gradual participation of women on local Baha'i administrative bodies will, no doubt, all attend the working out of that answer in the future. These elements are all present today.

A Tablet of Assurance

'Abdul-Baha repeatedly assured Baha'i women in His writings that the women of the future would achieve full and complete equality with men. In one of these Tablets He refers to the composition of the House of Justice. The Tablet is dated August 28, 1913, and it appears to have been written to a Baha'i woman in the East. In it, 'Abdul-Baha repeats His promise:

In this Revelation of Baha'u'llah, the women go neck and neck with the men. In no movement will they be left behind. Their rights with men are equal in degree. They will enter all the administrative branches of politics. They will attain in all such a degree as will be considered the very highest station of the world of humanity and will take part in all affairs. Rest ye assured. Do ye not look upon the present conditions; in the not far distant future the world of women will become all-refulgent and all-glorious, FOR HIS HOLINESS BAHU'U'LLAH HATH WILLED IT SO! At the time of the elections the right to vote is the inalienable right of women, and the entrance of women into all human departments is an irrefutable and incontestable question. No soul can retard or prevent it...

As regards the constitution of the House of Justice, Baha'u'llah addresses the men. He says: "O ye men of the House of Justice!"

But when its members are to be elected, the right which belongs to women, so far as their voting and their voice is concerned, is indisputable. WHEN THE WOMEN ATTAIN TO THE ULTIMATE DEGREE OF PROGRESS, THEN, ACCORDING TO THE EXIGENCY OF THE TIME AND PLACE AND THEIR GREAT CAPACITY, THEY SHALL OBTAIN EXTRAORDINARY PRIVILEGES. Be ye confident on these accounts. His Holiness Baha'u'llah has greatly strengthened the cause of women, and the rights and privileges of women is one of the greatest principles of 'Abdul-Baha. Rest ye assured! [60] (Final emphasis added.)

Notes

1. Nabil-i A'zam, The Dawn-Breakers, Wilmette, Ill.: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1932, pp 80-81, 270-71.
2. See, for example, Ruhiyyih Rabbani, The Priceless Pearl, London: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1969, pp 39-42 and 57-58; Baha'i Administration, Wilmette, Ill.: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1928, pp 25-26.
3. The Universal House of Justice, A Synopsis and Codification of the Kitab-i-Aqdas, the Most Holy Book of Baha'u'llah, Haifa: Baha'i World Centre, 1973, p 5.
4. Ibid., pp 3-7.
5. 'Abdul-Baha, The Promulgation of Universal Peace, Wilmette, Ill.: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1922-25 (1982), pp 136-37.
6. Ibid., pp 136-37.
7. 'Abdul-Baha, Paris Talks, London: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1912, p 161.
8. Promulgation, p 174.
9. Ibid., p 375.
10. Synopsis, p 13.
11. Ibid., p 16.
12. Ibid., p 57.
13. Ibid., pp 5-6.
14. All information in this section concerning the first House of Justice of Tehran is based on Ruhu'llah Mihrabkhani, Mahafil-i shur dar 'ahd-i Jamal-i Aqdas-i Abha, (Assemblies of consultation at the time of Baha'u'llah) in Payam-i Baha'i, nos. 28 and 29, pp 9-11 and pp 8-9 respectively.
15. Minutes of the North Hudson, N.J., Board of Counsel, National Baha'i Archives, Wilmette, Ill.
16. Chase to Blake, 21/3/00, Chase Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
17. Regulations relating to the Chicago Board of Council (Abdel Karim Effendi), Albert Windust Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
18. Kenosha Evening News, 29/6/00, p 1.
19. House of Justice in Chicago to House of Justice in New York, 23/5/01, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
20. Fannie Lesch, "Dr. C. I. Thatcher, Chicago, Illinois", (an obituary), Albert Windust Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
21. Minutes of the House of Justice (Chicago), 26/1/02 and 28/6/01. House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
22. Marzieh Gail and Fadil-i Mazandarani (trans.), typescript translation of the Kitab-i Aqdas.
23. Ibid.
24. Quoted in Ahmad Yazdani, Mabadiy-i Ruhani, Tehran: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 104 Badi', p 109.
25. Ibid.
26. Women: Extracts from the Writings of Baha'u'llah, 'Abdul-Baha, Shoghi Effendi, and the Universal House of Justice, comp. by The Research Department of the Universal House of Justice, Thornhill, Ont.: Baha'i Canada Publications, 1986, #7, p 3.
27. Quoted in Ahmad Yazdani, Maqam va Huquq-i Zan dar Diyanat-i

- Baha'i, vol. 1, Tehran: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 107 Badi'.
28. Minutes of the House of Spirituality, 24/5/01, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
29. Ibid., 20/5/01.
30. Synopsis, p 13.
31. Tablets of Abdul-Baha Abbas, Chicago: Baha'i Publishing Society, 1909, vol 1, p 3.
32. Shoghi Effendi, World Order of Baha'u'llah, Wilmette, Ill.: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1938, p 6.
33. Minutes of 10/5/02, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
34. Extract from the Tablet of the Master, 'Abdul-Baha, to Mirza AssadUllah, received in Chicago on the 3rd of May, 1902. House of Spirituality Papers. National Baha'i Archives.
35. Tablets of Abdul Baha Abbas, p 6.
36. The translation reads "We named the assemblies of teaching in Chicago the Spiritual Assemblies; you should organize spiritual assemblies in every place"; ( extract from the Tablet from the Master, se note 35 above).
37. Minutes, 29/7/05, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
38. See various published Tablets and public talks of 'Abdul-Baha, including: Kitab-i baday 'u'l-athar, Bombay, 1921, vol.1, pp 65, 119, 120, 251; and
39. True to 'Abdul-Baha, 25/2/02, Document 11137, International Baha'i Archives, Haifa, Israel.
40. Selections from the Writings of 'Abdul-Baha, Haifa: Baha'i World Centre, 1978, pp 79-80.
41. 'Abdul-Baha to Corinne True, 24/7/09, microfilm, National Baha'i Archives.
42. Chase to Remey, 19/1/10, Chase Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
43. Minutes, 31/8/09 and 7/9/09, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
44. Chase to Scheffler, 10/5/10, Chase papers, National Baha'i Archives.
45. Bahai Assembly of Kenosha to House of Spirituality, 4/7/10, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
46. House of Spirituality (Albert R. Windust, Librarian) to Board of Consultation, Kenosha, Wis., 23/7/10, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
47. Ibid.
48. Ibid.
49. Ibid.
50. Ibid.
51. Ibid.
52. Kenosha Assembly to Albert Windust, 16/5/11, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
53. 'Abdul-Baha to the members of the Spiritual Assembly and Mr. Bernard M. Jacobsen, Kenosha, Wis., 4/5/11, House of Spirituality Papers, National Baha'i Archives.
54. Star of the West, vol. 3, no. 10 (August 20, 1912) p 16. See also, 'Abdul-Baha's instructions to Howard MacNutt, August 6, 1912, microfilm collection, National Baha'i Archives.
55. Women, #11, pp 6-7.

- 56. Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, dated July 28, 1936, Baha'i News, No. 105 (February 1937) p 2.
- 57. Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, dated December 14, 1940, quoted in Dawn of a New Day (New Delhi: Baha'i Publishing Trust, n.d.) p 86.
- 58. Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, dated September 17, 1952, Baha'i News, No 267 (May 1953) p 10.
- 59. Letter written on behalf of Shoghi Effendi, dated July 15, 1947, quoted in "Extracts on Membership of the Universal House of Justice" (an unpublished compilation of the Universal House of Justice).
- 60. Quoted in Paris Talks (London: Baha'i Publishing Trust, 1912) pp 182-83.

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

A SELECTION of messages on the H-BAHAI forum regarding taqiyyih, Hikmat & Taqiyya (taqqiya or taqiya, taqia), "wisdom" and dissimulation, key Baha'i concepts

https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/taqiyya\_taqqiya\_taqiya\_taqiyyih\_hikmat.html

Excerpts from - <https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/archives/arb91197-62898.txt>

See also hikmat & taqiyya, "wisdom," "dissimulation" and "deception," key Baha'i concepts

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/hikmatMENU.htm>

For anyone interested, the Wikipedia article on taqqiya cites an outstanding article by Raymond Ibrahim. "How Taqiyya Alters Islam's Rules of War: Defeating Jihadist Terrorism". Middle East Forum. Winter 2010. Having read a number of articles on taqiyya (taqqiya or taqiya, taqiyyih, taqia) over the years, I highly recommend Raymond Ibrahim's piece. It is available online: <https://www.meforum.org/2538/taqiyya-islam-rules-of-war>

Compare Lebanese journalist Joseph Bishara writing that Imam Feisal Abdul Rauf, chairman of the Cordoba Initiative [9/11 mosque], does not really believe in tolerance. He stated that Rauf is deceiving the public based on the Islamic principle of taqiyya (concealing one's true beliefs) – that is, he is hiding his real intentions, which are to spread Islam in the U.S. while exploiting the liberties granted him by the U.S.

<https://www.memri.org/report/en/0/0/0/0/0/0/4677.htm>

The 1997 discussion below represents well what happens to any individual Bahai, regardless of the forum, on or offline, who questions the doctrine of taqiyyih (taqiyya), or anything else in the Haifan interpretation of the Bahai teachings--and how their opinions, essentially any dissident, are marginalized and suppressed. The irony of Juan Cole's involvement here in 1997 is that he was increasingly subjected to these same tactics, driving him further away from and apparently out of the Baha'i Faith.

---

From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@UMICH.EDU]

Sent: Thursday, November 20, 1997 2:39 PM

To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI

Subject: Re: Dissembling

From: "Susan Maneck" <smaneck@berry.edu>

Date: Thu, 20 Nov 1997 12:23:03 EST

Subject: Re: Dissembling

Fred Glaysher writes:

> More than a decade or so ago, I read somewhere of an Islamic word > or phrase that meant something like to dissemble one's faith when > having to do so for the good of Islam. The nuance apparently was > favorable toward the practice.

The term is *taqiyyih* and is disallowed in the Writings. However, it is replaced by a term *hikmat* or wisdom which at times functions similarly. I recently wrote an article on this subject entitled "Wisdom and Dissimulation" which is published in Baha'i Studies Review, vol. 6.

Jonah has it posted on his web site.

[This paper can be reached on the Web under "Papers by Susan Maneck" via <https://www-personal.umich.edu/~jrcole/bhscholr.htm> - ed.]

If you can't locate a copy of it, let me know and I'll send it to you. But I will be gone until after Thanksgiving. I'll see you all in San Francisco at the AAR and MESA.

Susan Maneck
Berry College

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@umich.edu]
Sent: Thursday, November 20, 1997 6:26 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Frederick:

Do you think psychologically you could handle being on talisman again without flaming other participants? There are very obnoxious conservatives on that list, but Josh doesn't want the list roiled (any more than it is) by vituperative language.

I'll be incommunicado till Thanksgiving, but we can talk then.

cheers Juan

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@UMICH.EDU]
Sent: Thursday, November 20, 1997 11:19 PM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Date: Thu, 20 Nov 1997 20:00:06 -0600
From: "Bijan/Farnaz Ma'sumian" <masumian@austin.cc.tx.us>
Subject: Re: Dissembling

The term you're looking for is probably "taqiyyih" (dissimulation/hiding one's religious belief system or pretending to belong to an accepted religious system to protect oneself) practiced by many Shi'is in time of physical danger. Some Babis and Baha'is may have practiced it occasionally but, to my knowledge, the Baha'i Writings do not support dissimulation. The closest thing in the Baha'i writings to "taqiyyih" I can think of would be Baha'u'llah's suggestion to "observe wisdom" meant to encourage his followers to avoid volunteering their religious preference indiscriminately and, in the process, create problems for themselves and their fellow-believers. This was particularly understandable in the 19th century due to the size of the nascent Baha'i community and the frequency and severity of the persecutions.

Bijan Ma'sumian
Austin, Texas

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrcole@umich.edu]
Sent: Sunday, November 30, 1997 12:57 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Dear Frederick:

The reason you were thrown off Talisman was that you called Sheila a "prig" and used similar abusive language toward several other participants, and *everyone* on the list was upset with you. Everyone of all ideological stripes. What Josh wanted from you was an acknowledgment that that behavior was inappropriate and that you will refrain from personally insulting other list members if you are readmitted. It was Josh's understanding that you had come to terms with this tendency to "flame" indiscriminately.

If I describe the situation correctly (i.e. that you are now willing to be civil even on an unmoderated list), message Josh at jsgreen@umich.edu and ask him to resubscribe you to Talisman, and tell him I said it was all right (you could forward him this message).

I think your point of view can be an important corrective to more hardline and rightwing ones, but only if you develop some "emotional intelligence" (the title of a book I highly recommend to you) about how to build a network of friends and supporters for your position.

cheers Juan

>FG
>-----Original Message-----
>From: Juan R. I. Cole <jrcole@umich.edu>
>To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
>Date: Thursday, November 20, 1997 5:25 PM
>Subject: Re: Dissembling
>
>
>>
>>Frederick:
>>

>>Do you think psychologically you could handle being on talisman again >>without flaming other participants? There are very obnoxious conservatives >>on that list, but Josh doesn't want the list roiled (any more than it is) >by >>vituperative language.
>>
>>I'll be incommunicado till Thanksgiving, but we can talk then.
>>
>>cheers Juan
>
>Though I have never fully understood the reasons nor the manner >in which I was brusquely thrown off talisman and then kept >off, even after six months, I harbor no ill will towards talisman >or anyone there that needs to be revisited....
>
>Sure, I'd accept reinstatement.... Please use the following >address: fglaysh@hotmail.com which I use exclusively for >mailing lists.
>
>And thanks for the invitation. My having access to talisman might >help a great deal with the passing of talk.religion.bahai....
>
>FG
>UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
>The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, >news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>
>
>
>

-----
From: L-Soft list server at H-Net - Humanities On-Line (1.8b)[SMTP:LISTSERV@h-net.msu.edu]

Sent: Sunday, November 30, 1997 2:32 PM

To: FG@HOTMAIL.COM

Subject: Message ("Your message dated Sun, 30 Nov 1997 13:32:37...")

Your message dated Sun, 30 Nov 1997 13:32:37 -0500 with subject "Re: Dissembling" has been submitted to the moderator of the H-BAHAI list: "Juan Cole, U of Michigan" <JR Cole@UMICH.EDU>.

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@UMICH.EDU]

Sent: Sunday, November 30, 1997 4:16 PM

To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI

Subject: Re: Dissembling

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>

Subject: Re: Re: Dissembling

Date: Sun, 30 Nov 1997 13:32:37 -0500

Bijan Ma'sumian wrote:

>The term you're looking for is probably "taqiyyih" (dissimulation/hiding >one's religious belief system or pretending to belong to an accepted >religious system to protect oneself) practiced by many Shi'is in time of >physical danger.

Were there situations in which Shi'is would practice "taqiyyih" with other Muslims not only with infidels? If so, can you give me an example or historical illustration of the practice? Is the word "taqiyyih" ever used in the Bahai Writings? Would you cite the passage....

>Some Babis and Baha'is may have practiced it occasionally >but, to my knowledge, the Baha'i Writings do not support dissimulation. The >closest thing in the Baha'i writings to "taqiyyih" I can think of would be >Baha'u'llah's suggestion to "observe wisdom" meant to encourage his >followers to avoid volunteering their religious preference indiscriminately >and, in the process, create problems for themselves and their >fellow-believers.

Are there other passages you know of, translated or not, in which Baha'u'llah suggests the same? Similarly, as with Islam, are they always in regard to non-believers?

To Susan Maneck:

Thanks for mentioning your paper on hikmat. I'm working on reading it. Perhaps that will answer some of these and other questions I have in regard to dissembling in the Muslim/Bahai context....

FG

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@umich.edu]
Sent: Tuesday, December 02, 1997 12:58 AM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Re: Dissembling

From: "Susan Maneck" <smaneck@berry.edu>
Date: Mon, 1 Dec 1997 19:25:29 EST
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Fred asks:

> Is the word "taqiyyih" ever used > in the Bahai Writings? Would you cite the passage....

Yes it is. Baha'u'llah explicitly forbids it and replaces it with *hikmat.* Here's the passage:

"In this Day, We can neither approve of the conduct of the fearful that seeketh to dissemble his faith, nor sanction the behaviour of the avowed believer that clamorously asserteth allegiance to this Cause. Both should observe the dictates of wisdom [bayad bi-hikmat amil bashand], and strive diligently to serve the best interests of the Faith." Gleanings. p. 343.

> Are there other passages you know of, translated or not, in which > Baha'u'llah suggests the same? Similarly, as with Islam, are they always > in regard to non-believers?

I don't think so. Passages involving hikmat seem to carry a broader meaning in the Lawh-i Maqsud, for instance.

"Every word is endowed with a spirit, therefore the speaker or expounder should deliver his words at the appropriate time and place, for the impression which each word maketh is clearly evident and perceptible. . . . One word may be likened unto fire, another unto light, and the influence of both is manifest in the world. Therefore, an enlightened man of wisdom should primarily speak with words as mild as milk, that the children of men may be nurtured and edified thereby and may attain the ultimate goal of human existence... It behoveth the prudent man of wisdom to speak with the utmost leniency and forbearance so that the sweetness of his words may induce everyone to attain that which befitteth man's station." TAB 172

While at times hikmat involves concealing one's genuine views in situations of insecurity and possible persecution, Baha'u'llah at other times spoke of it in broader terms as that sagacity of spirit which ought to typify all of our human interactions at all times. Consider this passage:

O Son of Dust!

The wise are they that speak not unless they obtain a hearing, even as the cup-bearer, who proffereth not his cup till he findeth a seeker, and the lover who crieth not from the depths of his heart until he gazeth upon the beauty of his beloved. Wherefore sow the seeds of wisdom and knowledge in the pure soil of the heart, and keep them hidden, till the hyacinths of divine wisdom spring from the heart and not from mire and clay. HW Persian no. 36

Susan Maneck
Berry College

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@UMICH.EDU]
Sent: Tuesday, December 02, 1997 8:20 PM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Re: Dissembling

From: "FG" <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: Re: Dissembling
Date: Tue, 2 Dec 1997 07:24:33 -0500

Susan Maneck wrote:

>Yes it is. Baha'u'llah explicitly forbids it and replaces it with >*hikmat.* Here's the passage:
>
>"In this Day, We can neither approve of the conduct of the fearful >that seeketh to dissemble his faith, nor sanction the behaviour of >the avowed believer that clamorously asserteth allegiance to this >Cause. Both should observe the dictates of wisdom [bayad bi-hikmat >amil bashand], and strive diligently to serve the best interests of >the Faith." Gleanings. p. 343.

Is THIS the only passage in the Bahai writings that uses the word
"taqiyyih"?

Are there really no other passages? And yet your article, which I've now read, seems to acknowledge it as a much broader idea and influence on especially early Bahai life.... You're too hasty to move onto the Lawh-i Maqsd, and so forth, if you will.... Linger a little longer...
[clip]

>While at times hikmat involves concealing one's genuine views in >situations of insecurity and possible persecution, Baha'u'llah at >other times spoke of it in broader terms as that sagacity of spirit >which ought to typify all of our human interactions at all times.

A change of subject, in my opinion.... I'm interested in the "broader terms" of the original concept and practice.... It seems to me more influential in the Bahai community, or the general tendency, I should say....

FG

-----
From: Negar Mottahedeh[SMTP:motta003@MAROON.TC.UMN.EDU]
Sent: Wednesday, December 03, 1997 10:18 AM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Dissembling

From: "Susan Maneck" <smaneck@berry.edu>
Date: Wed, 3 Dec 1997 01:16:10 EST
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Fred asks regarding the passage I cited from Gleanings:

>Is THIS the only passage in the Bahai writings that uses the word "taqiyyih"?

Probably not, but it is the one I know off the top of my head.

>Are there really no other passages? And yet your article, which I've now >read, seems to acknowledge it as a much broader idea and influence on >especially early Bahai life.... You're too hasty to move onto the Lawh-i >Maqsd, and so forth, if you will.... Linger a little longer....

What my article suggests is that *in practice* Baha'is tended to observe *hikmat* almost identically to the way Muslims observed *taqiyyih.* At times they would even explicitly deny being Baha'is. What they would not do is deny who Baha'u'llah was.

To my statement:

>>While at times hikmat involves concealing one's genuine views in >>situations of insecurity and possible persecution, Baha'u'llah at other >>times spoke of it in broader terms as that sagacity of spirit which ought >>to typify all of our human interactions at all times.

Fred says:

>A change of subject, in my opinion....

Or maybe an attempt to apply the principle to the present. :-)

Susan Maneck
Berry College

-----
From: Negar Mottahedeh[SMTP:motta003@maroon.tc.umn.edu]
Sent: Wednesday, December 03, 1997 6:58 PM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Dissembling

From: "FG" <fglaysh@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: Dissembling
Date: Wed, 3 Dec 1997 10:42:14 -0500

To my question:

>>Are there really no other passages? And yet your article, which I've now >>read, seems to acknowledge it as a much broader idea and influence on >>especially early Bahai life.... You're too hasty to move onto the Lawh-i >>Maqsd, and so forth, if you will.... Linger a little longer....

Susan responds:

>What my article suggests is that *in practice* Baha'is tended to observe >*hikmat* almost identically to the way Muslims observed *taqiyyih.* At >times they would even explicitly deny being Baha'is. What they would not >do is deny who Baha'u'llah was.

I'm more interested in "taqiyyih" becoming a broadly accepted way of conduct among Bahais.... What Marshall Hodgson states, whom you cite, as a "pattern of gradation and concealment of knowledge." Such patterns erode integrity and other virtues.... They lead to all manner of abuse, the end justifying the means....

>To Susan's statement:

>>>While at times hikmat involves concealing one's genuine views in >>>situations of insecurity and possible persecution, Baha'u'llah at other >>>times spoke of it in broader terms as that sagacity of spirit which >>>ought to typify all of our human interactions at all times.

>Fred says:

>>A change of subject, in my opinion....

Susan:

>Or maybe an attempt to apply the principle to the present. :-)

Not to my mind.... Or we might perhaps apply them in different ways....

FG

-----

From: Negar Mottahedeh[SMTP:motta003@MAROON.TC.UMN.EDU]
Sent: Thursday, December 04, 1997 12:42 AM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Disassembling

From: "Susan Maneck" <smaneck@berry.edu>
Date: Wed, 3 Dec 1997 23:04:12 EST
Subject: Re: Disassembling

Fred writes:

>I'm more interested in "taqiyyih" becoming a broadly accepted way of >conduct among Bahais.... What Marshall Hodgson states, whom you cite, as a >"pattern of gradation and concealment of knowledge." Such patterns erode >integrity and other virtues.... They lead to all manner of abuse, the end >justifying the means....

That is a real danger and one which I allude to in my article. In a recent letter I wrote to the Universal House of Justice I suggested that some of the tensions which have developed between academics and the administration have their roots in the Western emphasis on truth at all cost vs. the eastern emphasis on "wisdom." I asked how such principles can be reconciled without sacrificing integrity. It will be interesting to hear their response.

Susan Maneck
Berry College

-----
From: Negar Mottahedeh[SMTP:motta003@MAROON.TC.UMN.EDU]
Sent: Thursday, December 04, 1997 8:15 PM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Dissembling

Date: Thu, 4 Dec 1997 00:54:21 -0800
Subject: Re: Dissembling
From: white-wolf-arts@juno.com (robert b stauffer)

There were not a few Baha'is who fled Iran in the early 1980's, after controls to prevent them from leaving the country were set up by the Revolutionary Government, by disguising themselves as other than Baha'is (i.e. dissembling their Faith, rather than risk being turned back or worse). The UHJ made it clear that those leaving by virtue of the false pretense of being other than a Baha'i would have their administrative rights removed. Here is one letter from the UHJ explaining this situation:

Letter from the Universal House of Justice 3 July 1985

Department of the Secretariat
To the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States

Dear Baha'i Friends,

In reply to your letter of 13 June concerning the restoration of administrative rights for those who left Iran with official exit permits, the Universal House of Justice has requested us to convey the following guidance on its behalf.

When a person who has been deprived of his administrative rights applies for reinstatement, various factors have to be considered by your National Spiritual Assembly before reaching any decision. The person should express regret for the action which has resulted in sanctions being imposed on him. An admission of guilt may be perceived as a sign of true repentance. Although there is no way to be absolutely sure of the feelings of the believer, the House of Justice suggests that one can judge to a certain extent the believer's sincerity by his outward expression of repentance i.e. the actions of the believer during the period he has been under sanction. In other words, if your National Assembly is convinced that during this period the person has not done anything to harm the Faith, has made evident his profound regret at the action he performed, and provided that other factors in his case do not indicate anything to the contrary, you may recommend to the House of Justice that the individual be reinstated.

In the cases of any competent Local Spiritual Assembly which enjoys the confidence of your National Assembly, you may wish to endorse its recommendation provided you are satisfied that the above mentioned criteria have been considered by the Local Spiritual Assembly.

Those who have recanted their faith in order to come out of Iran should not receive the impression that after the passage of a year, by simply writing a letter of regret, they would be automatically admitted into the Baha'i community. Each case has to be studied separately. The result of this study must be conveyed to the House of Justice, which will reach a decision on the case in question only after consultation with the friends in Iran. One of the reasons why the House of Justice is so particular about these cases is that it does not wish any person to be under the false impression that anyone can use the Faith for his own personal convenience whenever it suits his self-interest. The believers who have denied their faith in order to leave Iran should realize that they have betrayed the many steadfast Baha'is who, at the cost of their lives, have steadfastly refused to recant their faith.

With loving Baha'i greetings,

(signed) Betty Frost
For the Department of the Secretariat

There were some Baha'is who left Iran with relatives who dissembled for them without their relative's knowledge; that is, a few told the authorities that the relatives traveling with them were also not Baha'is [ i.e. we are Muslim]. While Baha'is would be retained and not allowed to leave Iran if they admitted on exit-visas they were Baha'i (in the place on the visa that asked what religion they belonged to), other religious followers could be allowed to go. Those relatives, be they knowledgeable or not of the manner in which another relative essentially lied for them to get them out of the country, also had their Baha'i administrative rights removed. Most who left in this manner have had their rights restored in the ensuing years. A few have never been reinstated, refusing to request reinstatement, feeling this punitive measure by the Baha'i administration was too harsh a treatment for people seeking refuge from the persecution they faced if they had admitted they were Baha'i to the Iranian authorities.

Rob S.

-----
From: Negar Mottahedeh[SMTP:motta003@MAROON.TC.UMN.EDU]
Sent: Thursday, December 04, 1997 8:18 PM
To: Multiple recipients of list H-BAHAI
Subject: Dissembling

From: "FG" <fglaysh@HOTMAIL.COM>
Subject: Re: Dissembling
Date: Thu, 4 Dec 1997 08:35:13 -0500

>Frederick asked:

>>>>Are there really no other passages [regarding Wisdom/Hikmat]?

Bijan responds:

>Here are a few more passages from Baha'u'llah regarding the use of Hikmat >(Wisdom):

I'm more interested in "taqiyyih." I feel that's the more prevalent influence on Bahai thinking and practice for some.... Its moral tenor....

Susan Maneck mentions in her paper that Shiites commit taqiyyih with Sunnis. Does it work in reverse? That is, is there a Sunni form of taqiyyih? Or a universal sense of it for Muslims of any background, with any believer or non-believer?

In defense of Islam, is anything permissible?

FG

-----

From: Susan Maneck[SMTP:smaneck@berry.edu]
Sent: Friday, December 05, 1997 12:37 PM
To: FG (by way of Negar Mottahedeh)
Cc: mod-hb@umich.edu
Subject: Re: Dissembling

Dear Fred,

Negar and I have discussed your proposed posting to H-Bahai. We both agree it is rather too polemical for an academic forum. If you would like tone down its emotional content and focus on the issues involved you are welcome to resubmit. You do have an important point here to make, but it needs to be done without attacking.

Susan Maneck

>

> Susan Maneck writes:

>

> >That is a real danger and one which I allude to in my article. In a recent > >letter I wrote to the Universal House of Justice I suggested that some of > >the tensions which have developed between academics and the administration > >have their roots in the Western emphasis on truth at all cost vs. the > >eastern emphasis on "wisdom."

>

> There's no "wisdom" in deceit, lies, fabrications, distortions, > suppression, tyranny, blackballing, intrigue, ignominy, > skullduggery.... The euphemistic twisting of "wisdom" drains > all proper meaning from the word....

>
> >I asked how such principles can be reconciled > >without sacrificing integrity. It will be interesting to hear their > >response.
>
> Or whether it will be sophistry....
>
> FG
>
>
>

-----
From: Susan Maneck[SMTP:smaneck@berry.edu]
Sent: Friday, December 05, 1997 3:02 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Disassembling

Thank you for your cooperation.

-----
From: Juan R. I. Cole[SMTP:jrc@umich.edu]
Sent: Friday, December 05, 1997 6:15 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Fw: Disassembling

Dear Frederick:

Yes, Susan also cc'd me her comments. You should be aware in general that any rejection of a post can be politely appealed to the board of four moderators. In this case, though, I think we would all agree that she has a point.

cheers Juan

[The post was suppressed and never published on H-Bahai.]

---

Homepage

Questions? CONTACT ME HERE > https://en.allexperts.com/q/Bah-2728/indexExp\_113873.htm

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

The Baha'i Technique - Slander & Shunning

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/technique.htm>

Compare Shunning > Menu

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shunning.htm>

Shoot the Messenger, Character Assassination, ETC

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shoot%20the%20Messenger.htm>

---

"Men never do evil so completely and cheerfully as when they do it from religious conviction." Pascal, Penses #894.

"Unmeasured vituperation employed on the side of the prevailing opinion really does deter people from professing contrary opinions and from listening to those who profess them." --John Stuart Mill, On Liberty (51-52).

---

Compare Baha'i tactics to the communist cadre or The Modern Inquisition of Catholicism.

---

"Slandorous Vilification" = The Baha'i Technique - Ad Hominem, Libel, Slander, Demonize, Scapegoat, Ostracize, Shun, Banish, Backbite, Defame, Vilify, Discredit, Smear, Revile, Suppress, Attack, Bully, Intimidate, Threaten, Malign, Blackball, Deceive, Coerce, Silence, Harass... etc., etc.... CAUTION NON-BAHAI

-----
Numerous observers have noted common methods many fundamentalists among my fellow baha'is use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:
-----

Writing in 1941, Mirza Ahmad Sohrab may have been the earliest observer to note the Baha'i Technique: "The writer of the article in Bahai News reaches the height of his slandorous vilification when he likens Mr. and Mrs. Chanler and their Bahai friends to those enemies that preceded them. . . and their like" (138). See Excerpts from Mirza Ahmad Sohrab's Broken Silence: The Story of Today's Struggle for Religious Freedom. New York: Universal Publishing, 1942.
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/SohrabEx.htm>

Alison Marshall, 2002:

"I think the documentation illustrates how the Baha'i administration secretly watches, reports on and records the activities and views of members it sees as a threat. This spying can go on for years without the member knowing and despite general assurances to the contrary. When it suits the administration to act, it can summarily disenrol the person at any time and without any notice. In such circumstances, 'counselling' will comprise any communication that member has had with the institutions, whatever its nature, purpose and timing. This action will be accompanied by a backbiting campaign designed to destroy the member's reputation in the community. I think members of the Baha'i community, and those contemplating joining it, have a right to know how the Baha'i administration behaves." [2002]

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/AlisonMarshall.htm>

Professor Juan Cole, University of Michigan, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB [Covenant Breaker (heretic)] to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket. Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Cole10.htm>

Professor Juan Cole, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to being "Baha'i" at all). Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith. The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fallsilent. With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of "claiming authority," of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them. This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute. Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Cole71.htm>

Professor Juan Cole, 12/5/2002:

"The purpose of having this system where it is so easy to turn insiders into outsiders is to maintain very strict control over the community by its leaders. The idea is that everyone still on the inside will fear being made a non-person or being ostracized or being shunned, and so will keep quiet and let the leadership do as it pleases with them. Silent suffering of tyranny and injustice from one's leaders is the actual definition of a Baha'i in good standing. Of course, this requirement is cult-like...."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Cole80.htm>

FG, November 21, 2007:

"The so-called administrative order, while publicly hiding behind a facade of liberalism, is essentially practicing Islamic "takfir," in the words of Bernard Lewis, "recognizing and denouncing apostasy," labeling people "kafir" or infidels, and issuing "fatwas" or decrees, denying the very existence of other Bahais and denominations, all indicative of the worst in the Islamic heritage of the Bahai Faith-practices Baha'u'llah specifically rejected, teaching tolerance of different religious views, largely congruent with modern Western custom and practice. Nothing could be more diametrically opposed to the modern democracy of the Western civic and legal order than the jihad the ao is conducting...."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/apostates.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the soc.religion.bahai moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

FG, May 12, 1992:

"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [since 1976]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimidating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

FROM my book Letters from the American Desert, 2008. "Read Inside" on Amazon:

<https://www.amazon.com/Letters-American-Desert-Signposts-Journey/dp/0967042119/>

Ron House, November 14, 1997:

"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/House2.htm>

Ron House <house@usq.edu.au> wrote in message news:3DAE2CE7.7D7925AC@usq.edu.au... October 2002, WROTE REGARDING SUSAN MANECK's Technique:

If this were the the first, or a rare, occasion on which this specimen had got up to this shenanigan, we might let it pass. But it is, in my experience, her typical pattern of "debate": take something from another poster, think out some uncharitable 'consequence' that she thinks follows from it, and then assert as factual that the original posters were in favour of her uncharitable interpretation. It is, imho, a fundamentally malicious and dishonest way to conduct debate.

Steven Scholl, March 12, 2002:

"The problem in her [Susan Maneck] cult view of the world is the "dissident act" of shining a light on internal Baha'i affairs so that outsiders (and insiders) can learn about what really takes place in the Baha'i world. The great sin is ignoring the Baha'i taboo against speaking out against internal injustices because to do so is to tarnish the reputation of the Baha'i institutions. Good Baha'is are expected to take their abuse in silence. If they speak out against abuse, they are regarded as internal opposition and come under investigation from the Baha'i Inquisition. They are vilified and threatened, even told that their status in the afterlife is threatened if they don't change their ways. And, yes, this was a key element [in] the little drama that played out between the Baha'i leadership and myself."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Scholl4.htm>

Rod Wicks, January 22, 2004:

I disagree...and my disagreement is based on years of online discussions in which Susans [Maneck] propensity to accuse (openly or through innuendo) is reflected by other fundamentalist Baha'is. So too the evasiveness, the glib, trite smarmy non answer, the drive by 'blipvert' of one line innuendo, the refusal to stand and defend/justify/explain any attack or allegation, the retreat into cowards killfile when her dishonesty is exposed.....all these are common features of what has been described as the Baha'i Technique. I did not believe such a phenomena could exist when I first came online... today the evidence is irrefutable and undeniable. Susan M perfectly reflects all that is worst about contemporary Baha'i culture...'they' know it and love her for it.

No....Manic and fundamentalist co workers do not simply "represent" the Baha'i community...they **ARE** the community...their identification is total/complete. Any criticism of any aspect of Baha'i is perceived by Manic and Co as a direct personal attack and they respond by attacking the individual rather than the argument. They will invent and manufacture 'enemies of the faith', 'violators of the Covenant' and even stoop to open allegations of criminal activity.

The AO cannot possibly be deaf, dumb and blind to this activity any more than the online Baha'i gallery and lurkers are blind to it. It is granted approval, formal or informal, open or tacit...it matters not.

The truth is apparent in examination of the facts...the facts are available in review of the archives...the archives reveal incident after incident/event after event in which Susan (or co fundamentalist) levels a baseless and unprovoked serious allegation, refuses substantiation, hides behind glib and evasive [expletive] and/or killfile and receives open or tacit support for doing so.

Susan represents a prevailing culture of abuse, slander, denial and evasion.

<https://groups.google.com/groups?selm=8ccded73.0401212239.6e99f512%40posting.google.com&output=gplain>

"O beloved of the Lord! If any soul speak ill of an absent one, the only result will clearly be this: he will dampen the zeal of the friends and tend to make them indifferent. For backbiting is divisive, it is the leading cause among the friends of a disposition to withdraw. If any individual should speak ill of one who is absent, it is incumbent on his hearers, in a spiritual and friendly manner, to stop him, and say in effect: would this detraction serve any useful purpose? Would it please the Blessed Beauty, contribute to the lasting honour of the friends, promote the holy Faith, support the Covenant, or be of any possible benefit to any soul? No, never! On the contrary, it would make the dust to settle so thickly on the heart that the ears would hear no more, and the eyes would no longer behold the light of truth."

(Abdul-Baha, Selections from the Writings of Abdul-Baha, p. 230)

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dermod Ryder, February 28, 2002:

"This is what is known as the "love bomb" technique. Disregard and entirely ignore the substance of any complaint or criticism and throw out this carpet of "bahai love" which will overwhelm the reason and appeal to the emotion. I've been vaccinated! What I also glean from recourse to this technique is that there is no answer to the points I raised. In effect you guys who support the AO do so through thick and thin to the point where you cannot and will not admit that it has any faults of any substantive value. Because guys like me cannot agree with you - the fault is obviously ours."

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Johnson18.htm>

Dermod Ryder, September 19, 2001:

"And then Eureka! I realised why Fred gets the treatment he does . . . for Fred has painstakingly not only assembled the evidence of the canker within but he constantly publicises it to the extent that he really gets up noses and AO noses at that! . . . I basically agree with him that the AO terrorises people - terror is more than bombs or kamikaze aircraft. A whispered aside in the right circumstances can instil terror (like a threat to be made a CB) - most ethnic cleansing is carried out by a piece of "good" advice to the effect that one would be better off NOT living in this neighbourhood, from a gentleman who is known or assumed to have the "right connections" to ensure the advice is heeded. Twenty years ago the AO tried that particular threatening tactic on with me and were told where they could stick it! Others can also testify to that including Dennis Rogers whose experiences were posted on TRB recently. And you guys hate Fred for this, for his continued exposing of the sewer that the AO has become. Of course you all hate Juan, Alison, Michael, Nima etc as well and for the same reason and give them the same treatment but somewhat reduced for they don't post as much as Fred who is just a real pain in the butt for doing what he does so well! Fred is an avid counter terrorist and he's good at it as the whimpering from the BIGS proves!"

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Ryder2001.htm>

Nima Hazini, February 2007:

BAHA'IM Tactics & Technique

1. As far as possible they hold back from responding

2. Then they claim no knowledge [of the given issue] by feigning ignorance
  3. After the exposé has exposed they will try to divert to secondary and totally peripheral and irrelevant side-issues
  4. The exposé is then painted as someone with an axe to grind, biased, deluded (while they, the bahais, still have not responded to the main issue exposed)
  5. Next they relate mental instability and insanity to the exposé i.e. [shoot the messenger]
  6. Then, the last tactic, is to wheel out several dubious personas on the scene who claim to be neutral non-bahai observers who then begin attacking the exposé as well as the issue exposed and supporting the bahais and their issues as so-called non-bahais
- <https://groups.google.com.au/group/talk.religion.bahai/msg/e92d0d7971734039?hl=en&>

David Langness, 31 Mar 1997:

"I would advise you to be careful about any meetings, calls or correspondence with Hoda Mahmoudi, who used to be an ABM here in Southern California. She is quite conservative, and sees herself -- as do many of the appointed branch, sadly -- as a staunch defender of the Faith and the faithful, able and more than willing to marginalize people like you and I to discredit our ideas. This cultlike practice of shunning and casting out any dissidents has unfortunately become the chief tactic of those fundamentalist Baha'is bent on maintaining the current leadership. My worry is that the more progressive Baha'is like Juan Cole and Steve Scholl and yourself will all leave the Faith and thereby increase the power of the conservatives."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Langness.htm>

-----

The Baha'i Technique is available on the web at

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/technique.htm>

-----

For two excellent introductions to the Bahai Wars:

Professor Juan R. I. Cole, University of Michigan,
"Fundamentalism in the Contemporary U.S. Baha'i Community,"
Religious Studies Review, Vol. 43, no. 3 (March, 2002):195-217:
<https://www-personal.umich.edu/~jrcole/bahai/2002/fundbhfn.htm>

Karen Bacquet, "Enemies Within: Conflict and Control in the Baha'i Community." Published in American Family Foundation's Cultic Studies Journal, Volume 18, pp.109-140:
<https://www.angelfire.com/ca3/bigquestions/enemies.html>

COMPARE

Geoffrey Chaucer, AD 1340-1400.

Prologue to the Pardoner's Tale:

For in truth, many a sermon
Comes often out of evil intention;
Some for the pleasing and flattery of people,
To have advancement by hypocrisy,
And some for worldly fame, and some for hate.
For, when I dare not oppose a man otherwise,
Then I sting him with my sharp tongue
In preaching, so that he cannot escape
Being falsely slandered, if he Has wronged my brothers or myself.
For, although I do not tell his exact name,
Men can readily guess whom I mean
By hints and by other devices.

Thus I pay back people who do us bad turns;
Thus I spit out my venom under color
Of holiness, while seeming holy and sincere....

(Translator, Vincent F. Hopper. 1948)

-----
OXFORD ENGLISH DICTIONARY. "Scapegoat (Lev. xvi) 1. Invented by Tindale 1530.... One of the two goats that was chosen by Lot to be sent away into the wilderness, the sins of the people having been symbolically laid upon it, while the other was appointed to be sacrificed. 2. One who is blamed or punished for the sins of others. 1867 Freeman, He has been made the scapegoat for many of the sins both of other individuals and of the whole nation."

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Scapegoat.htm>

For an individual's use of The Baha'i Technique, see
Susan Maneck - DRIVING people out of the Bahai Faith

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Maneck9.htm>

Outside observers should be especially careful and alert to Hikmat & Taqiya, "wisdom" and dissimulation, key Baha'i concepts

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/hikmatMENU.htm>

For anyone interested, the Wikipedia article on taqqiya (taqiyya or taqiya) cites an outstanding article by Ibrahim, Raymond. "How Taqiyya Alters Islam's Rules of War: Defeating Jihadist Terrorism". Middle East Forum. Winter 2010. Having read a number of articles on taqqiya over the years, I've highly recommend Raymon Ibrahim's piece. It is available online: <https://www.meforum.org/2538/taqiyya-islam-rules-of-war>

-----
From another perspective, Karen Bacquet's Net Games:

Fallacies, Gambits, and Maneuvers in Baha'i Cyberspace

<https://www.angelfire.com/ca3/bigquestions/Netgames.html>

--

FG

The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/>

--

See Professor Juan R. I. Cole, University of Michigan,
"Fundamentalism in the Contemporary U.S. Baha'i Community,"
Religious Studies Review, Vol. 43, no. 3 (March, 2002):195-217:

<https://www-personal.umich.edu/~jrcole/bahai/2002/fundbhfn.htm>

In his book Modernity and the Millennium, published by Columbia University Press in 1998, Professor Cole observes the Baha'i administration has increasingly come under the control of fundamentalists, "stressing scriptural literalism . . . theocracy, censorship, intellectual intolerance, and denying key democratic values (196)."

CAUTION *** Psychological War Zone *** Newcomers ____
<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Caution.htm>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

I have deleted their names and email addresses to protect them from retaliation.

---

(1)

>Thanks, for the email. SRB is sort of * tame * and I was sure there >must be more going on than what one reads there. While the Bahai Faith >makes a lot of sense to me, the censorship and the people who practice >it do not. Good luck with your efforts. I am sure Baha'u'lah would >approve.

(2)

>thank you for your e-mail. I appreciate the link to your webpage. Only >had time to scan it really quickly, and it sounds very interesting. I'll go >back and give it the time it deserves asap.

(3)

>thanks for your message.
>The ng seems to have a fundamentalist tone.
>I think Bahai's must drop some axioms about infallibility >of interpretations by Abdul and Shoghi if they are to >attract any thinkers of substance.

(4)

>I assume that you've mailed this information because you obtained my email >address after I posted on the soc.religion.bahai newsgroup one time. While >I thought your web page was interesting and well done (and you are obviously >extremely well educated), I really don't have any interest in "things >Baha'i" any more.
>

>I was an active member of the faith for a few months (I guess my name >appeared "on the books" for about 2 years), I withdrew formally back in May.
>Therefore, please don't send me anything similar in the future.
>
>Best of luck with your quest or mission or whatever. I hope that whomever >is bothering you stops it.
>
>Thanks & brightest blessings.....

(5)

>I would like to be added to the Bahaii mailing list, if I may.
>
>I found out about the mailing list from Fredericks approach to the Bahaii >newsgroup. And as so many others I am somewhat upset about the censorship >in effect on this list.
>
>So please add me to the mailing list...and I am in high hopes that my >writings will not be censored as it has been the case in previous times.
>
>Thank you and brgds

(6)

>This relatively new (one year) Baha'i couple, asking many of the same >questions you and others have raised, just found the SRB site which led us >to your Freedom of Conscience site. Bravo! Please put us on your mailing >list: [name & address deleted] We, too, have >discovered that "the Emperor has no clothes", and believe it's time for >some hard, honest, challenging discussion and reassessment.
>
>Our over-riding concern is, what now? Do we, like so many others, just >completely walk away from the Baha'i faith -- do we throw out all the >writings, all the potential the Baha'i faith has to offer, and passively
>watch an authoritarian bureaucracy flush the whole thing down the tubes?

>In view of the unbreakable, if not infallible, choke-hold the >administration has over the minds of its followers, is there any reasonable >hope of accomplishing anything from within -- or will we probably just get >thrown out of the club with the rest of the naysayers?
Have any (other than >the infamous Orthodox Bahai "Covenant Breakers") ever considered creating a >new group based on, or at least incorporating, the Baha'i writings? It all >just seems a darned shame.

(7)

>I have seen your posts over time and I know where you are coming from. I >don't always agree, but I admit there is more than a grain of truth to >your comments about the Baha'i community. This Faith is so new that >everyone is still trying to figure out what it is, even Baha'is that are >very deepened.
>
>I had an idea this weekend and since you have contacted me I will run it >by you. What do you think of a web discussion site for the Baha'i Faith?
>If you are not familiar with this they work much like a newsgroup, but >are dependent on web access. The appearance is similar to the dejanews >setup. I am thinking of calling it [deleted] and formally state >that it is for discussion of things spiritual as I am sure that if I say >it is for discussion of the Baha'i Faith I will be harrassed by >individuals who don't like what they see.
>
>As a friend of mine once said, "Until the Baha'i Faith gets real and >shows the Baha'i Faith, wrinkles and all, it will never grow."

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

The Modern Inquisition: Seven Prominent Catholics and their Struggles with the Vatican. The Overlook Press, 2000. By the Australian and former priest Paul Collins.

Paul Collins' "Author's Note" is available online at https://www.natcath.com/NCR\_Online/documents/CollinsREASONS.htm

See also The Baha'i Cadre System

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/cadre.htm>

Shoot the Messenger, Character Assassination, ETC

<https://fglaysher.com/bahaicensorship/Shoot%20the%20Messenger.htm>

Given Shoghi Effendi's patterning the Baha'i organization on the Catholic Church, I highly recommend people interested in understanding the Baha'i Wars, FROM ANOTHER PERSPECTIVE, read this entire book. Copies are available through online booksellers.

"It is worth noting that there is no presumption of innocence as there is in the common law and in most civilised legal traditions. Here the old canonical view that 'error has no rights' clearly prevails. It is also important to spell out precisely what happens here: a group of anonymous bureaucrats, none of whom, except Ratzinger, has any demonstrated expertise in theology or ministry, let alone any established reputations as serious theologians, are 'evaluating the gravity of the question'. They often decide whether a professional theologian with established publications and a well-deserved reputation, or a person with a long track record in their particular ministry, should have their work submitted for judgement by an equally anonymous consultor who is also demonstrably a person of very limited theological and ministerial vision or competence" (37).

"From then on, all dialogue passes through the accused person's superior, conducted completely in writing. It is meant to be kept strictly secret on the grounds that this protects the accused person's reputation. In fact, it renders them more vulnerable. As I argue in my own story, the safest procedure is to 'go public' fairly quickly so that the CDF has to think seriously about its own reputation and public image before it acts or uses arbitrary measures" (39).

"First, there is no precise definition of the offence. Second, the *Regulations* do not distinguish at all between judge, prosecutor and investigator. The CDF carries out all roles and often the same person acts in the various roles. Third, the accused is given little opportunity to plead his or her case. Fourth, there is no presumption of innocence. Fifth, there is no right of appeal. And, finally, the secrecy provisions mean that justice is not seen to be done, especially when the penalty is automatic excommunication. 'To rush into imposing an extreme sentence (perhaps even without ever having listened to the author) can hardly be a sign and symbol of justice' " (43).

"It [CDF] is a creature of the counter-reformation and has no place in the contemporary Church. It has proved on several occasions to be essentially irreformable. Nowadays it is . . . a manifestation of an exaggerated and over-centralised papalism. Its present personnel demonstrably have little or no pastoral experience nor, with the exception of the cardinal prefect, do they have well-established reputations as theologians. No doubt its personnel are well-intentioned but their view of the wider Church is not just ignorant, it is blinkered and myopic. As a result it is difficult to see what positive contribution the CDF makes to the contemporary Church" (44).

"Yet Rome [uhj] seems obsessed with control. In a personal letter reflecting his own experience of the Holy Office, the great French Dominican ecclesiologist Cardinal Yves Congar (1904-95) says that the Vatican wants the whole Christian world 'to think nothing, to say nothing, except what they propose'. He continues: 'It is clear to me that Rome has never looked for and even now does not look for anything but the affirmation of its own authority. Everything else interests it only as a matter for the exercise of this authority ... the whole history of Rome is about insisting on its own authority and the destruction of everything that cannot be reduced to submission.' " (44).

Charles Curran:

"Finally on 17 September 1985 Ratzinger wrote 'concluding the inquiry' and asking for a reply, saying that 'one who holds such positions cannot be called a Catholic theologian'. Right through the whole affair the core issue was that of dissent. In my very first response to them I focused on dissent, and simply did not respond to specifics about sexuality. Fundamentally, I argued that responsible dissent from the non-infallible magisterium is legitimate. Basically, the CDF has responded that there can be no dissent from the non-infallible magisterium. But the problem is that they never argue their position; they simply state it. They never engage in any form of dialogue" (68-69).

Tissa Balasuriya:

"It strikes me that there is widespread fear among Catholics when they deal with theology and institutions such as the CDF. As a result, almost all of the structures of the Church become inoperative. At all levels--diocesan, national and even the international level--everyone becomes stymied. There is a sort of 'holy fear', a kind of religious reign of terror, with threats of hell, excommunication and exclusion. These psychological weapons are used to frighten people, as the threat of torture was in the past by the Inquisition. That is why it is important to emphasise that where there is love, there is no fear. If we do not become a community of love and acceptance, people will just bypass the Church" (107).

Tissa Balasuriya:

"At the heart of all this is the question of conscience. We cannot accept arbitrary authority, and there comes a point when we must say that eternal destiny is not determined by particular persons, or what is called 'orthodoxy', but by one's conscience and by our relationship to the divine. In India and Sri Lanka there is a tradition of spiritual resistance to dominant establishments. This comes originally from the Buddha and is exemplified by Gandhi and others. As a result, people in this culture support you if you are poor and manifest an understanding of the divine as universal, beneficent and compassionate" (108).

Jeannine Gramick and Robert Nugent

"As I look back over the whole affair, I feel that Church authorities follow rigid and totalitarian procedures. While I knew that in theory before, I now know it experientially. I guess it has made me more convinced than ever that we need governmental changes in our Church. In 1989, when we saw the totalitarian structures in Eastern Europe crumbling, we facetiously said that the Church is really the last bastion of totalitarianism, and I think it is true. We need to work harder to have processes in our Church that are more mutual, collaborative, open and respectful of due process" (156).

Jeannine Gramick and Robert Nugent

"But the administrators of the Bishop of Rome should be just that: administrators. The problem is that they assume authority and hierarchical power that they should not have. I have to admit that in the US the future of Church reform looks bleak. For reform to happen you need two things: reform-minded people who are in authority, like the bishops, and a willingness to work for reform at the grass-roots. On both counts, I see grave deficiencies" (157).

LAVINIA BYRNE

"The things that hurt me most in this war of nerves and attrition between the CDF and myself was first, that they did not know me; second, that they did not know my work; and third, that they thought it a good idea to ask me to sign up to two discrete bits of Catholic teaching, taking no account of my assent to the rest of the Church's teaching. You trivialise people's religious experience by demanding to know, 'Do you believe this or that particular teaching?' " (180).

LAVINIA BYRNE A nun for over 30 years, a particularly poignant story. See her website at <https://www.laviniabyrne.co.uk/>

"I wonder if we do not need a kind of 'post-Vatican' Church, one in which the way the Church is administered actually moves it into the twenty-first century, something much fleetier of foot, much more transparent, much more accountable. We need a Church structure which is missionary, zealous and apostolic. This would require a complete overhaul of what I see as the 'Whitehall' of the Church" (186).

Hans Kung

"I was enough of a Roman among Romans to know that you cannot win by debating the substantial theological issues with the CDF. They are always right, and there is no other possibility. It is just like dealing with the Kremlin: what they ultimately want is for you to say exactly what they say.... Occasionally, you won a point with them, but they were always adamant that I would not be allowed to see my file, was not permitted to know who would defend me, and was given no right of appeal" (201).

Hans Kung

"In retrospect, I can see a pattern in my life that I did not plan.... I was now free to move from Christianity, Christian existence and the Church, to the world at large: to world religions, world literature and finally to the notion of a global ethic. It seems to me that this is an example of divine providence--God's plan emerges from our human confusion. I felt an invisible hand in my life guiding me.... Looking back, things seem to have worked out perfectly.... But what I see as the central challenge for Catholicism is a radical reform of the structure of the Catholic Church" (205).

Hans Kung

"I do not believe that the maintenance of a medieval dictatorship has any future.... All this demonstrates that the influence of the pope is increasingly limited: he can constantly travel the world and lecture Catholics through sermons and encyclicals, but he has not been able to change their views on a single controversial issue, neither on birth control, nor abortion, nor euthanasia, nor even on ecumenism. So now the Roman Curia tries to exercise control through manipulation: for example, the appointment of reactionary bishops, demanding special licenses to teach theology, the marginalisation of those (including bishops) of whom the Curia disapproves, and above all through the use of the Inquisition. In the end none of it has worked, nor will it work....

I have remained in the great Catholic tradition of two thousand years. I know that I am defending that great tradition, not a medieval paradigm which did not emerge until the eleventh century. Ultimately, I feel rooted in the Gospel itself. If anyone can show that my position is opposed to the Gospel, then I would say immediately, 'I am ready to correct myself.' But I am not ready to correct myself when I have scripture behind me and only the CDF against me" (206-207).

Paul Collins

"My book [Papal Power] is blunt: 'The Holy Office may have changed its name but the ideology underpinning it has survived. It has certainly not changed its methods. It still accepts anonymous accusations, hardly ever deals directly with the person accused, demands retractions and imposes silences, and continues to employ third-rate theologians as its assessors. This body has no place in the contemporary Church. It is irreformable and should be abolished" (214).

"What is important for the whole Church now is the urgent task of either the radical reform of the CDF, or its complete abolition. My own view is that history shows that reform has proved impossible on several previous occasions when it has been tried. Therefore, the Church's only recourse is abolition.... Whatever the demands of the Counter-Reformation may have been, the new millennium calls for a whole new approach: one that is open, transparent and in accord with human dignity and rights....

The transition we face is from inquisition to freedom." (244)

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

(Hoda Mahmoudi's email may be found at the end.)

---

March 31, 1997

The Universal House of Justice of the Bahais of the World Haifa, Israel

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

After careful reflection and prayer for the past few days, I've decided that open public discussion and knowledge are more important than my own status as a Bahai.

I have been a Bahai for more than twenty years, since 1976. I became a Bahai by reading almost every single Bahai book published at the time. Given my background as a Catholic and poet, I was deeply moved by the beauty and profundity of the Bahai Writings. As a young person, I spent two months travel teaching throughout Michigan with several other youthful, innocent Bahais. Like many, I have sacrificed financially to contribute to the Bahai Faith. I pioneered for a year and a half in Japan, for two years on an American Indian reservation, and have travel taught in China. The spiritual profundity of the Bahai vision, as reflected in the work of the African-American poet Robert Hayden, inspired me to study at the University of Michigan under him and to spend considerable time and labor editing his collected poems and prose for Liveright and the University of Michigan Press. I have published two essays in the Bahai magazine World Order and spent more time than I can remember at Bahai summer camps, workshops, and deepenings. Throughout all my varied Bahai experience, I have loved the Figures and Teachings of the Faith even as the conviction has grown that all information and discussion in the Bahai Faith is subtly manipulated, controlled, and distorted for the "good of the Faith." There seems to be a pervasive, rigid control of all thought, ideas, and information that calls into question the motives of the individuals in power in the Bahai Administration.

As a published writer and former college and university instructor of rhetoric and literature for over ten years, I believe the whole process of "review" has become a complete farce and disgrace to the Bahai Faith and is suggestive of the worst censorship under the most repressive regimes, religious or secular, of historical experience. If one truly wishes to understand why many Bahais, both highly educated and others, leave the Bahai Faith or become "inactive" and withdraw into silence and uninvolvedness with the religion, one need only to look objectively at what seems to be the oppressive and coercive methods of people in the Bahai Administration itself to find the answer.

My experiencing of these same methods of censorship and distortion on soc.religion.bahai proved to be the last intolerable straw. My attempt to form an unmoderated newsgroup on the Internet that no one could manipulate and censor has a long experience of Bahai tyranny in the background. The resorting to deceit and back-channel communication by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai and others naively believing they're working for the benefit of the Bahai Faith by campaigning for 691 unethical NO votes on talk.religion.bahai further proves the pervasive acceptance of disreputable tactics by Bahais in their attempt to maintain a stranglehold over all thought and discussion.

Recently, more than ever, I've often recalled the words to me in private several times of Robert Hayden, the only Bahai to be appointed Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress: "Why I continue to have anything to do with the Bahai Faith, I do not know, I do not know." I myself no longer know.

I suppose I hope that the oppressive, coercive methods that have come to be accepted and justified in the Bahai Administration, demonstrated for instance in the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the incidents surrounding the Bahai Encyclopedia, the listserv Talisman I, and the continually crude, unreadable propaganda vehicle of the American Bahai, might yet be put aside in favor of the beautiful vision of Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha for freedom of religious conscience and belief and a humane, tolerant universalism. I fear that all too often the religious totalitarianism of Baha'u'llah's fanatical homeland has seeped into every nook and cranny of His religion, smothering out the free light of the human soul and hamstringing His Administration.

It was with the bitterest of feelings that I observed some time ago the Bahai exhibition, a deceitful propaganda event really, on freedom of religious conscience and belief sponsored by the National Spiritual Assembly in the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington, D.C., so far in reality from the truth was it, so misled, trusting, and uninformed were the Congressmen of my country....

If censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith, I would like to know what passages of the Bahai Writings support it and what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship. It seems to me that censorship pervades the Bahai Faith so thoroughly that some Bahais regularly use it as a method of intimidation and silencing of anyone with an unconventional opinion by accusing the individual of being a covenant breaker. This tactic was used against me by at least three Bahais during the discussion period for talk.religion.bahai and tacitly condoned by the moderators and others.

I include, at the end, a threatening, coercive email message I received on March 27, 1997, from Mr. Hoda Mahmoudi, Auxiliary Board Member for Michigan, at a crucial juncture of the discussion and voting for talk.religion.bahai and would like an explanation of his motives.

I, and perhaps the rest of the world, would greatly appreciate evidence that there are not now nine ayatollahs residing in Israel on Mt Carmel.

Respectfully,

FG

---

Further details on Hoda Mahmoudi's coercive email

David Langness on Hoda Mahmoudi

Paul Dodenhoff on Mahmoudi

Some might want to compare Mahmoudi's tactics with those used against Kalimat Press and Juan Cole. Below, Mahmoudi is clearly intervening in the first interest poll voting for talk.religion.bahai the very day when the RESULTS we're released, revealing over 600 bahais had voted NO to oppose the formation of the newsgroup, an unprecedented number of NO votes for any poll on Usenet. Since I was the primary advocate of its creation, Mahmoudi's intentions below, to anyone familiar with how the bahai administration regularly operates, was to coerce and silence me and stop the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup forum uncontrolled by bahai fundamentalists.

---

>Date: Thu, 27 Mar 1997 15:45:46 -0500

>To: FG@hotmail.com

>From: Hoda Mahmoudi <hmahmoudi@olivetnet.edu>

>Dear Mr. Glaysher:

>

>I have been reading your e-mail postings recently. I would like to speak >with you by phone about some of your thoughts and opinions regarding >matters relevant to the Baha'i Faith. As an Auxiliary Board members for >Michigan, I am always interested in issues which relate to individual >spiritual responsibility and the Baha'i Faith's principle of unity.

My

>phone number is 616/789-0590.

>

>Hope to hear from you soon.

>

>Hoda

>

>

>

>

>

>Hoda Mahmoudi, Ph.D.

>Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs

>Olivet College

>Olivet, MI 49076

>616/749-7614

---

Re: Letter to Mahmoudi: The Old Lie

See also:

From the UHJ: 14 October 1997

From the UHJ: 19 December 1997

To the UHJ: December 21, 1997

To the Universal House of Justice - July 24, 1998

To uhj 12-10-1999

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

In additon to the message below, are a sampling of over thirty messages I sent to the UHJ1 in the fall of 1997:

Re: TRB: Suggestions received--VERY LONG 11/20/97
Re: Fred Glaysher gets it backwards again! 11/22/97
To UHJ #1 \(FWD: anonymous remailers\) 12/3/97
To UHJ #2 \(FWD: anonymous remailers\) 12/4/97
To UHJ #3 \(FWD: anonymous remailers\) 12/5/97
To UHJ #4 \(FWD: anonymous remailers\) 12/5/97
Re: Talk.religion.bahai \(To UHJ \(FWD: anonymous remailers\) 12/8/97
To UHJ #5 \(Juan Cole: "democratic \(ha!\)\) 12/13/97
To UHJ # 6 \(Juan Cole: Protest to Islamic Authorities\) 12/13/97
To UHJ #7 \(Juan Cole: The "Science" of history\) 12/18/97
To UHJ #8 \(Juan Cole: Mutual Tolerance\) 12/18/97
To UHJ #9 \(Re Response from UHJ 12/21/97
Re: To UHJ #9 \(Re Response from UHJ\) 12/23/97
Re: re: Re: To UHJ #9 \(Re Response from UHJ\) 1/7/98

---

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Thank you for your email response of 19 December 1997.

I have carefully read and considered it. I am concerned that it does not evince an understanding of the unusual nature of Usenet interest polling but seems to think of it as though it were a normal national election of some sort.

With all respect and humility, permit me to say that your repeated emphasis on conscience fails to take into account the fact that Bahais actually did deprive other people, Bahais and non-Bahais, of the rights of their own consciences during the last massive NO vote and will be doing so again if they vote NO a second time.

Every indication suggests that Bahais are about to make the same mistake. I am concerned that your response to me, as your earlier response to Mr. Roger Reini, may be misconstrued by such Bahais as giving your blessing to them, condoning their onslaught against talk.religion.bahai, as have the repeated interference of the Co-ordinating Committe for the Bahai Computer and Communication Association (BCCA).

I ask you to consult with a Bahai who is actually well versed in the subtleties of Usenet interest polling, not "voting" in the everyday sense of the word. I suggest Roger Reini, (rreini@wwnet.com) to whom you allude.

I ask you to reflect on these words by a highly respected non-Bahai, Russ Allbery, much involved with Usenet newsgroup creation, on the general consensus that exists on reasons for voting:

"There is no official 'list of acceptable reasons for voting'; Nothing of the sort is enforced. There's no way of knowing why people vote the way they do. There is, however, a general consensus that certain patterns of voting constitute abuse of the system. Block voting on religious, cultural, ethnic, or political grounds is one of the things that is frowned upon. It is unlikely that even extreme block voting would cause a result to be overturned, but it's practically assured that block voting will earn an extremely bad reputation for the group doing the block voting. In other words, yes, the Baha'i could vote down the newsgroup en masse and be successful. This would, however, also earn the Faith a reputation (fairly or no) amongst those people who followed the proposal as a religion that advocates censorship. I think it's in the best interest of Baha'is and the Baha'i Faith to avoid that."
(Message-ID: <m3pvo9ggjh@windlord.Stanford.EDU>)

Because Bahais have already abused the interest polling system, analogous to what Baha'u'llah denounced in the Kitab-I-Aqdas as the "destruction of books," electronic books or magazines in this context, and appear about to do so again, actually smashing or keeping the printing press switch from being turned on, I appeal to you once more to attempt to understand the nature of the system governing Usenet and to provide fundamentalist Bahais with the guidance they apparently need in order to allow other people the sanctity of their own God-given consciences, and a forum within which to express themselves.

I appeal to you to do what is in the best interest of the Bahai Faith.

I can't imagine how the interest polling can possibly proceed in a just and fair manner without your mastering the difficult issues involved and rendering further guidance.

With sincere and heartfelt respect for your office,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

Tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the American Revolution Washington Square, Philadelphia

---

Freedom is a Light for which Many Men have Died in Darkness

In Unmarked Graves within this Square Lie Thousands of Unknown Soldiers of Washington's Army Who Died of Wounds and Sickness during the Revolutionary War

The independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils and joint efforts of common dangers, suffering and success [Washington Farewell Address, Sept. 17, 1796]

Beneath this Stone Rests a Soldier of Washington's Army Who Died to Give You Liberty

---

Virtual Tour

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: To UHJ (FWD: anonymous remailers)
Date: Wednesday, December 03, 1997 4:58 PM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Since similar activities as these have occurred during the discussion period for talk.religion.bahai, and may occur again, I am forwarding and posting with permission this message from Professor Juan Cole on the mailing list irfan to you and news.groups, so you may consult on these types of activities by Bahais while there is still time to prevent another massive abuse of it the Usenet voting system.... A Bahai subscribed to Bahai-Discuss masquerading as me (bahai@hotmail.com) recently perpetrated a similar highly questionable act that led directly to the BCCA removing me from its mailing lists. Given this pervasive approach by many fundamentalist minded Bahais to their use of mailing lists and newsgroups, I request again, with all sincerity and respect for your office, that you intervene on the approaching vote for talk.religion.bahai and instruct Bahais not to further disgrace the Faith with their fanaticism in the eyes of non-Bahais on the Internet.

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Forwarded message begins:

I am sorry to inform you that a devoted Baha'i who has in the past been a wonderful and thoughtful and polite contributor to irfan and talisman has been under investigation by the counselors and has received a threatening letter from the "universal" house of "justice". My information, which is second hand, appears to indicate that irfan postings were included in the indictment and had been archived and sent to the accused as proof of his perfidy. This use of Irfan messages (if my information is correct) strikes me as completely unethical (surprise!) on the part of the Baha'i authorities, since they can only have gotten the messages from someone who is on irfan under false pretenses and lied about their willingness to comply with the no-forwarding policy.

This individual was always unfailingly polite and never criticized the Baha'i institutions in any way. The only possible charge against him is that he is not a fundamentalist. In all the ridiculous and trumped-up heresy cases that have been brought by the uhj and its counsellors against devoted Baha'is in the past two years, to my knowledge not a single conservative, however rude or obstreperous, has been charged, which pretty clearly signals the real intent of these show trials and purges.

I think it may be time for any Baha'i of liberal views who is involved in regular email conversations to think seriously about becoming anonymous, for self-protection. Talisman is glad to accept anonymous email addresses; the Irfan board should decide the issue there, but I should think there is not a problem as long as anonymity doesn't encourage people to act up.

America Online (AOL) allows its subscribers up to six aliases. There are also numerous anonymous remailing services on the Web, the most famous of which is www.hotmail.com. I don't know much about this sort of thing, since I insist on speaking my mind under my own name and then enjoying my notoriety. But I have heard that there is at least one anonymous remailer that provides excellent security against surveillance of the account. Probably a Web keyword search under anonymous remailer would turn up more information.

Obviously, there are thousands of Baha'is who do not share the current uhj's fundamentalist mindset, and they can't put them all on trial, so most of you are probably safe enough. Their tactic appears to be to identify persons who are persistent posters and who therefore are becoming "prominent," with whom they disagree about their vision of the Baha'i faith, and then to target them in hopes of either silencing them or forcing them out of the religion. They probably also hope that a few such publicized cases will scare every other non-fundamentalist into silence, as well. If so, they haven't dealt with many Americans.

cheers    Juan

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: talisman <talisman@umich.edu>; UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: Re: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)
Date: Tuesday, December 23, 1997 11:22 AM

Roger Reini wrote in message <349E655F.7F72@SPAMBLOCKford.com>...
>FG wrote:

>>
>> Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:
>>
>> Thank you for your email response of 19 December 1997.
>>
>> I have carefully read and considered it. I am concerned that >> it does not evince an understanding of the unusual nature of >> Usenet interest polling but seems to think of it as though it >> were a normal democratic national election of some sort.
>
>When I originally asked the Universal House of Justice to consider the >issue, I supplied an extensive background file, the bulk of which was a >Joe Bernstein post from February 1997 (taken from the first >talk.religion.bahai discussion). This post listed the traditional >reasons and rationales for voting.

Joe Bernstein, "CANONICAL REASONS FOR VOTING on Usenet newsgroup proposals."

>
>When the House issued its advice, it was aware of these issues. I am >sure that its advice reflected this awareness.

I'm not so sure. It seems quite doubtful even. It appears to me that it must have been too busy to attend to the details of Bernstein's piece or whoever handled it in the secretariat failed to pass on to them the subtleties of the issues involved in interest polling and made it appear a normal type of election voting. If it was aware of the nature of interest polling, it's disregarding the whole Usenet system. Many serious questions would result if that's the case for Usenet and Bahais, I would think....

>
>If the House wished to consult with me on this issue (as you suggest), I >would be honored and willing to do so. Personally, I think this >unlikely, but you never know.

Well, I hope they do because whoever advised them last time must have given them an inaccurate understanding of interest polling.

>
>Roger (rreini@wwnet.net)

If anyone can more clearly articulate than I have in my "To UHJ #9" the nature of interest polling, please write the UHJ at secretariat@bwc.org

I'm forwarding this message to the UHJ as a further plea that they take the time and find the people capable of helping them understand what interest polling is actually all about....

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <fglaysh@hotmail.com>
To: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Cc: house@usq.edu.au <house@usq.edu.au>; Chris@breacais.demon.co.uk <Chris@breacais.demon.co.uk>
Subject: Re: re: Re: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)
Date: Wednesday, January 07, 1998 8:43 AM

SOME KIND OF WEIRD CODE THING IS FAILING TO PUT IN THE ">" FOR THE ORIGINAL MESSAGE. SORRY TO HAVE TO USE CAPS.

-----Original Message-----

From: Eric D. Pierce <PIERCEED@sswdserver.sswd.csus.edu>
To: fglaysh@hotmail.com <fglaysh@hotmail.com>; talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Cc: Chris@breacais.demon.co.uk <Chris@breacais.demon.co.uk>;
house@usq.edu.au <house@usq.edu.au>
Date: Tuesday, January 06, 1998 4:12 PM
Subject: re: Re: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)

Mr. Glaysher,

This is really becoming rather tedious in its repetition. I find your opinions about the communications from the BWC to be so wildly speculative as to be of very little value, and they continue to make it difficult to stomach the possibility of supporting t.r.b.

SORRY YOU FEEL THAT WAY....

For anyone that saw the original "pro-t.r.b." question that was put to the Universal House of Justice, it was obvious that the reply from the BWC neither supported nor opposed t.r.b., and they had no intent to send a coded "anti-t.r.b." message. Given the fact that the tone of the question was "pro-t.r.b.", the fact that the BWC declined to warn the questioner away from a "pro-t.r.b." opinion could easily been seen as implicit support of the legitimacy some "pro-t.r.b." views.

NOT SO OBVIOUS AT ALL, IN MY OPINION.... IT SEEMS TO ME THAT MANY BAHAIS, ON BAHAI-DISCUSS AND ELSEWHERE, HAVE TAKEN THE UHJ'S MESSAGE AS A CODED NOD TO ATTACK WITH ANOTHER MASSIVE NO VOTE....

Your attempts to over-interpret the message from the BWC in order to drum up support for a forum that will allow you to gain a wider audience for your frequently abusive and paranoid excesses and fanaticisms is discouraging.

I AM REACTING TO THE MANNER IN WHICH MANY BAHAIS HAVE INTERPRETED THE UHJ'S MESSAGE. I HAVE TRIED
NOT TO INTERPRET IT. IT APPEARS TO ME THAT YOU YOURSELF INTERPRET IN EXTENSIVELY IN THIS MESSAGE. I DON'T BELIEVE SUCH CHARACTERIZATIONS OF MY POSTINGS ARE FAIR....
INCIDENTALLY, I DO NOT WANT AN UNMODERATED FORUM FOR MYSELF ALONE, THOUGH MANY HAVE TRIED TO MAKE IT APPEAR AS SUCH. RATHER, FOR ALL BAHAIS AND NON-BAHAIS, AS MADE CLEAR IN THE RFD....

As far as I know, you have provided *NO* coherent supporting analysis from any scholars in Baha'i studies (or other sources, etc.) as to the legitimacy of the use of the "book burning" comparison. I get the impression that you have discovered an emotionally laden issue that you have decided to use to flog your real or supposed opponents in the Baha'i community with (rather than explore consultatively).

IT IS MY OPINION THAT THE BOOK BURNING ANALOGY IS A LOGICAL EXTENSION OF ONE OF THE TEACHINGS TO COVER A MODERN, TECHNOLOGICAL DEVELOPMENT THAT DID NOT EXIST AT THE TIME OF REVELATION.... NO FLOGGING INTENDED.... RATHER, AN APT COMPARISON FOR THE REALITY OF THE RESULTS OF THE LAST MASSIVE NO VOTE (691 REMEMBER) THAT DEPRIVED BAHAI'S AND NON-BAHAI'S THE CHANCE TO CREATE AND READ TALK.RELIGION.BAHAI.....

I am also confused by the manner in which you consider the Usenet system to be analogous to some near-sacred social institution or democratic governmental entity. The nuances and minutiae of the interest polling mechanism for newsgroup creation is something that you should hardly expect Baha'i institutions to gloriously advocate or become immersed in, especially given the loose "enforcement" of a voluntary set of ideas in such a chaotic and decentralized environment.

BAHA'U'LLAH TEACHES WE SHOULD RESPECT THE LAWS OF ESTABLISHED SYSTEMS OF GOVERNING.... DO YOU ADVOCATE OTHERWISE? MANY, MANY INTEREST MANUALS HAVE PUBLISHED THE USENET CONSENSUS ON INTEREST POLLING AND MAKE IT CLEAR THAT NO VOTES ARE AN ABUSE OF THE SYSTEM. AS A BAHAI, WHY ARE YOU NOT CONCERNED ABOUT BAHAI ABUSE OF INTEREST POLLING? USENET VOTING IS NOT THE CHAOS YOU MAKE IT OUT TO BE. RUSS ALLBERY'S PASSAGE IN THE RFD MAKES THAT QUITE CLEAR. HE IS INCIDENTALLY A MEMBER OF THE USENET VOLUNTARY VOTETAKERS (UVV).

IF BAHAI'S WERE DESTROYING AND ATTACKING THE NEXT NATIONAL ELECTION FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, SHOULD THE INSTITUTIONS BE CONCERNED? I HUMBLY THINK SO....

While some of the consensus-driven aspects of the Usenet system are probably laudible in their democratic underpinnings, there are many other aspects of Usenet that are hardly compatible with Baha'i ideals of enlightened social/ethical systems.

SO IS THAT A JUSTIFICATION TO UNDERMINE IT? BY ANALOGY, SHOULD BAHAI'S BOMB AND DESTROY OTHER SOCIAL STRUCTURES THEY DISAGREE WITH OR THINK INCOMPATIBLE WITH BAHAI IDEALS? LOGICALLY EXTENDED, SUCH THINKING AMONG BAHAI'S WORRIES ME A GREAT DEAL....

I hope I have been as clear as possible that the problems I have identified above seem counter-productive to a balanced "pro-t.r.b." agenda, and are obstacles to bringing about a positive acceptance of the legitimacy of an unmoderated usenet Baha'i forum.

ARE YOU ADVOCATING VOTING NO? SUCH A VOTE WOULD BE ANOTHER DISGRACE FOR THE BAHAI FAITH AND WOULD DO MORE TO HARM ITS REPUTATION, AS RUSS ALLBERY POINTS OUT IN THE RFD, THAN ANYTHING THAT COULD EVER BE SAID ON TRB....

Feel free to further distribute or post responses elsewhere, but if doing so, please remove Mr. Shuette's name/address (unless he has instructed otherwise).

Eric D. Pierce
(home email: EPierce@ns.net)
Sacramento, California - USA

cc: talisman@umich.edu,
"Chris Manvell" <Chris@breacais.demon.co.uk>,
"Ron House" <house@usq.edu.au>

-----
On 6 Jan 98 at 7:08, FG wrote:

> From: "FG" <fglaysh@hotmail.com>
> To: "talisman" <talisman@umich.edu>
> Copies to: "UHJ" <secretariat@bwc.org>
> Subject: Re: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)
> Date sent: Tue, 6 Jan 1998 07:08:06 -0500

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Cheryll & Wade Schuette <schuette@s.imap.itd.umich.edu>
> To: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
> Date: Wednesday, December 24, 1997 7:13 AM
> Subject: Re: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)

>

>

> >Fred Glaysheer wrote:

> >

> >>> I'm not so sure. It seems quite doubtful even. It appears to me that > >>> it must have been too busy to attend to the details of Berstein's > >>> piece or whoever handled it in the secretariat failed to pass on to > >>> them the subtleties of the issues involved in interest polling and > >>> made it appear a normal type of election voting.

> >

> >Don C commented:

> >>And perhaps they believe they have more important topics to consult on.

[WS:]

> >And I'll add:

> >

> >In any case, Fred's request is not internally consistent. The UHJ has > >taken a hands-off, let everyone decide for themselves what to do position, > >which seems exactly what Fred wanted. What MORE does he want, now?

[FG:]

> I don't believe the UHJ has taken a "hands-off" position. The entire > notion of conscience is inappropriate to an interest poll. They entered > the discussion and have now affected it, for some, if not many, and > I would think it only reasonable to ascertain whether or not they truly > understand what they are doing.... I don't believe so.... It appears to > me they must have been misinformed. Their counsel of "conscience" > is actually tantamount to supporting voter fraud, in, let's say, a > national election in Canada or the United States.... I don't believe > the UHJ would or should do such a thing. Ergo, I assume someone > in the Secretariat failed them or they received flawed advice on > the nature of Usenet interest polling--notice, not "voting."

[WS:]

> >If the UHJ took a position FOR the newsgroup, wouldn't that be precisely > >the sort of "politically" motivated and centrally-sponsored group voting > >that he's been criticizing so vehemently for months as inappropriate or > >criminal?

[FG:]

> I am not advocating that the UHJ should take a position FOR > talk.religion.bahai. Rather, that they not take a position AGAINST > trb, which they have, I hope, inadvertently done.... Their "conscience" > is, by the way, against the consciences of many others, Bahai and > non-Bahai.... If one fully understands interest polling, it is reminiscent > of the hatred and passion that often animates old world politics and > religious intrigues.... 100+ people cannot honestly and fairly be > denied their right to form a newsgroup within which to express their > consciences. Baha'u'llah's injunction against the "destruction of > books" fits this context quite well.... To suppress trb would be > tantamount to a violation of his stricture in the Kitab-i-Aqdas....
> If the UHJ knowingly chooses to do that, fine, it may.... But I hope > for better....

[WS:]

> >Call the vote, already. If it loses, wait 6 months, prove TRB has value > >with a longer track record, and call another vote. I just can't believe > >that all this endless jockeying around is accomplishing anything useful.

[FG:]

> Why would it lose? On what basis? Political and religious passion > and opposition are illegitimate reasons for voting NO. Over 5,000 > postings to alt.religion.bahai is more than sufficient proof that > 100+ people are interested in creating a newsgroup on the subject, > as are the over 1,200 different threads and over 513 different > individuals who posted up to October 1997. I can't believe all the > endless opposition to free speech and conscience that many > Bahais have displayed.... If the UHJ opposes trb, it should come > out in the open and say so, not pretend it's neutral by employing > stratagems to justify and excuse the NO votes of fundamentalist > Bahais.... Again, I hope for better and will cc this message to > the UHJ to help them understand the nature of Usenet interest > polling....
>
> >Wade
>
> FG
> UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
> The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, > news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>

-----
Eric D. Pierce
Information Technology Consultant
Client-Server Database/PC Network Server Student Services
Lassen Hall 1008
California State University, Sacramento
Sacramento, CA 95819 - USA desk phone (916) 278-7586 internet email: PierceED@csus.edu la casa (home): EPierce@ns.net
-----

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: bahai-st <bahai-st@johnco.cc.ks.us>; UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org> Subject: Re: Fred Glaysher gets it backwards again!
Date: Saturday, November 22, 1997 9:48 AM

The Baha'i Studies List:

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Please consider this message in your consultation on talk.religion.bahai and the BCCA.

-----Message begins:

?@?.com wrote in message ...

Please don't feel you need to hide your identity. I won't personally threaten you as Bahais on Bahai-Discuss have threatened me....

>In article <653vht$ivl@news2.zippo.com>, FG ><FG@hotmail.com> writes

>>Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

>

>No point in putting this here as you know they are not in this >newsgroup.

There is every point in posting this message to news.groups.
Continuing Bahai censorship has left me with no other option but to appeal directly to the Universal House of Justice.

>>

>>Please consider the following in your consultation on the BCCA.

>>

>

>Who says they are consulting on the BCCA?

All I can say is that I have requested that they do so.

>Quite frankly Fred, and you can read this as it is said, You disgust me >with your prejudices against the Persians, you disgust me in the way >that you name call the Universal House of Justice, You disgust me in the >way that your ego has to prevail, you disgust me that you call yourself >a Baha'i, you disgust me that you take an innocent statement and turn it >into a diatiabe against yourself. Not withstanding that you may have >moderated your language recently, it is obvious that the same ole Fred >is still here.

Even if any of this were true, none of it would be a sufficient reason to deprive others of their God-given right to freedom of conscience and opinion by subverting the "government" of the land of Usenet and by "book-burning" talk.religion.bahai through another massive NO vote.

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-
To switch to the digested list, send the following commands to `major@johnco.cc.ks.us` in the message body
-
unsubscribe bahai-st
subscribe bahai-st-digest

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: talk.religion.bahai (To UHJ (FWD: anonymous remailers))
Date: Monday, December 08, 1997 7:54 AM

Chris wrote in message <5RgAABA+Tvi0Ewv$@baha.demon.co.uk>...
>In a message which I read on news.groups, FG
><FG@hotmail.com> wrote
>>You might recall, Chris, that bahai@hotmail.com was criticized by >>you and a few others and THEN responded to the effect explaining >>why he posted under a pseudonym.... Clearly, he was receiving >>messages, not just blind-posting.... They have his ID #....
>
>His/her original response to me was after he posted to ARB, I think.
>But, now you mention it, you may well be right that he/she did respond >to posts on BD. Anyway, I didn't say that he/she wasn't subscribed to >BD under another name, I just said that it is possible to post blind, >though not always. Thus while they have his/her ID No., they may well >not know who b@h.c is even so.

When subscribing to BCCA lists, one is also asked for one's name and address and phone number. I could post the e-form here if anyone wants.... Bahai@hotmail.com served the BCCA interests, by attacking and discrediting me and talk.religion.bahai.... As did the woman who attacked me, and that's why they kicked me off and not them....

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: bahai-st <bahai-st@johnco.cc.ks.us>; BCCA <bcca-cc@bcca.org>; UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: Re: TRB: Suggestions received -- VERY LONG
Date: Thursday, November 20, 1997 8:37 AM

The Baha'i Studies List:

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

I'm forwarding this message to you because I believe the BCCA has undermined your recent message to Roger Reini regarding your acceptance of unmoderated Usenet newsgroups, attacked me personally, depriving me of fundamental Bahai rights of free speech and religious conscience. I ask that you investigate the BCCA's motives for interfering in the Usenet vote on talk.religion.bahai.

Permit me to say with all respect that your emphasis on conscience and voting does not apply properly to Usenet proposals which are actually considered merely interest polls. This message contains a statement by Russ Allbery, someone highly versed in Usenet procedures, who points out such political abuse of the system by bloc voting NO will only further tarnish the image of the Bahai Faith. As it is not my wish to see this happen, I ask you to consider issuing a statement that in no uncertain terms requests that Bahais respect the worldwide voting system established on Usenet and not subvert it by another massive bloc vote.

I shall now be periodically forwarding to you messages that I believe might help inform you of the subversion by Bahais of the Usenet voting system.

Respectfully,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

FG wrote in message <3472EA07.39C8@hotmail.com>...

>Chris Manvell wrote:

>>

>> My comments:

>> The version of the 2nd RFD I posted to Fred read, "All followup >> discussion should be posted to news.groups and alt.religion.bahai."

>> This was changed slightly either by Fred, or more likely David, to read,

>> "All followup discussion should be crossposted to news.groups,alt religi >> on.bahai."

>> I feel that this follows the spirit of Usenet by emphasising the role >> of news.groups as the PRIME place for discussion. We cannot stop >> discussion in other areas but, strictly speaking, it should also go to

>> NG.

>

>By David Lawrence. He made a few other minor ones for technical reasons.

>

>> How about changing the second sentence to read, "The newsgroup will be >> part of the talk.* hierarchy, which has to date been used most commonly >> for unmoderated groups." Anyone come up with a better suggestion that >> can be put in one sentence of less than 2 lines?

>
>The change is fine with me.
>
>> However, although this might buy more votes, I am rather uncomfortable >> about using a message from the House to "sell" a product. Certainly it >> should be taken into account, but I feel that it would be using the >> House unethically to put it in the RFD. The message is available for >> all to read on my web site at <www.baha.demon.co.uk/trb-uhj.htm>.
>
>I agree with you. The message can be reposted any time anyone >desires to do so.
>
>> >Ginger Glaser wrote:
>> >>
>> >> This group is for open discussion of issues relating to the Baha'i >> >> faith, and is not endorsed in any way by the Baha'i Church. (my >> >> apologies if I chose the incorrect term)
>>
>> Fred wrote
>> >Well, maybe you have a good point. We don't use the word church.
>> >No problem. Just Bahai Faith will do it though. Ginger's sentence >> >seems hard to make sense.... I'm willing to go with it. Chris, what >> >you think? Others?
>>
>> I like it. Perhaps "...in any way by any Institution of the Baha'i >> Faith"? May be a little hard for non-Baha'is to grasp though.
>> "Baha'i Faith" would be fine by me. I think it would be a great >> addition. Good idea Fred.
>>
>> My comments: I am all for it. I suggest that anyone reading the group >> would get to know about the Institutions pretty quickly.
>> I will add: "This group is for open discussion of issues relating to >> the Baha'i Faith, and is not endorsed in any way by the any of the >> Institutions of the Faith." to the RFD.
>
>As an unmoderated newsgroup, it ought to be obvious and self-evident >to anyone that by definition the postings do not represent institutional >opinion. Nevertheless, I am willing to accept Ginger's passage with >light emendation of "Church" to "Baha'i Faith." I will veto any >language, for historical reasons, that include the phrasing not >endorsed in any way "by any institution of the Baha'i Faith." I should >be forthright about why. The author of those words threatened to >rmgroup alt.religion.bahai shortly after it was created by Jonathan >Grobe, and I won't accept a single word from him in the RFD.
>Ginger's passage should be used only after carefully comparing it >for similar language in the RFD/charter for soc.religion.bahai.
>Compromise requires both sides meet half way. It's time for >others to show they can be conciliatory too....
>
>> Chris on FAQ:
>> Also it must be of such a nature that it cannot be used as a >> whipping post for any poster, Baha'i or non-Baha'i. The FAQ, if there >> is one, could be totally independant of any disclaimer, the latter being >> very short and quickly read.
>>
>> Roger Reini attempted a FAQ in early August. It was soundly rejected >> by people other than myself as biased. I'm against an official FAQ, >> though people may post one to the newsgroup any time they wish after >> it's passed.
>
>In terms of a disclaimer, I would like the following sentence to follow >immediately after Ginger's: "This disclaimer is not intended to be used >as a 'whipping post,' by or against Bahais or non-Bahais, after the >passing of the RFD." This sentence would address my concern that such >an intention lies behind the desire for a disclaimer.

>
>Chris wrote:
>> > Even if TRB does not >> >make it, I feel that things have improved considerably this time round.
>
>Why should the RFD not make it? There are no valid and honest reasons >for voting NO.
>
>At this point, I believe that claiming anything in or out of the RFD >as a valid reason for voting NO is untenable. The only reason anyone >might still be considering to vote NO remains one of political and >religious passion against the expression of other people's >consciences.
>
>I believe the posting statistics should remain as is up to October 20, >1997, the day the 1st RFD was posted. That would avoid including >in the count discussion that took place in news.groups.
>
>On behalf of myself and Chris, if he is in agreement, I would like >to invite Sharon Bouchard, Ron House, and Michael McKenny to >be proponents, if they're willing. I think the offer always stands too >to Guy Macon and Russ Allbery. Each proponent would have veto >power over any changes to the RFD, which would then remain as >is--that is, either the status quo, or unanimous agreement. If it's >good enough for the UN, it's good enough for me....
>
>It seems to me that all the little changes to the RFD are really >substitute arguments for the underlying aversion of many Bahais >against speech they can't control.... It was for such reasons that >I added to the 2nd RFD "Readers are asked to observe standard . . . >voting procedure in their use of this newsgroup and during its >creation." I now think this should be emphasized even more so.
>I would therefore like to include the following passage by Russ >Allbery in the RFD immediately after that sentence, if he does >not mind:
>
>"There is no official "list of acceptable reasons for voting." Nothing >of the sort is enforced. There's no way of knowing why people vote >the way they do. There is, however, a general consensus that >certain patterns of voting constitute abuse of the system. Block >voting on religious, cultural, ethnic, or political grounds is one of >the things that is frowned upon. It is unlikely that even extreme block >voting would cause a result to be overturned, but it's practically >assured that block voting will earn an extremely bad reputation for >the group doing the block voting. In other words, yes, the Baha'i >could vote down the newsgroup en masse and be successful. This would, >however, also earn the Faith a reputation (fairly or no) amongst those >people who followed the proposal as a religion that advocates >censorship. I think it's in the best interest of Baha'is and the >Baha'i Faith to avoid that."
>(Message-ID: <m3pvo9ggjh.fsf_-_@windlord.Stanford.EDU>)
>
>I also urge Roger Reini, Sharon Bouchard, and Chris Manvell to share >this passage by Russ, with his permission, with Bahais on >Bahai-Discuss and elsewhere. It should greatly aid the augmentation >of their understanding of Usenet voting.
>
>It seems to me that the following revision to the 2nd RFD might be >reconsidered against Henrietta Thomas' version of it: "Readers are >asked to observe Baha'i standards of conduct and not to start or >prolong flamewars in the group, but to focus instead on articles and >threads written in more moderate terms." I do not have her original, >never compared this draft to it, feel uneasy about it, and yet have not >had the chance to search for it on www.dejanews.com.

>
>Ultimately, it seems to me, tinkering with the RFD, like the making >of books, has no end....
>
>--
>FG
>UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
>The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, >news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-
To switch to the digested list, send the following commands to major@johnco.cc.ks.us in the message body
-
unsubscribe bahai-st
subscribe bahai-st-digest

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: To UHJ #2 (FWD anonymous remailers)
Date: Thursday, December 04, 1997 8:28 AM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Since the following message further elaborates on issues that also concern many Bahai and non-Bahai participants in regard to talk.religion.bahai, I am reposting this message from Professor Juan Cole at the University of Michigan to news.groups and to you and appeal to you again to stop fanatical Bahais from undermining the Usenet interest polling system, the justly established "government" of Internet newsgroups....

I ask you to help such Bahais understand your recent words:
"In general, the House of Justice has no objection to Baha'is' participating in public, unmoderated discussions about the Faith, whether those discussions take place in person or through some form of electronic communication."

Respectfully,

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-----Begin forwarded message from talisman and irfan:

Look, my dear friends, I didn't send my message to Irfan about anonymous remailers in order to provoke a witch hunt against the people forwarding the messages. I have much more respect for the people who declined to sign on to Irfan because they knew they would feel an impulsion to pass "offending" messages over to the Baha'i administration. But it has long been obvious that a number of persons were signed on to Irfan under false pretences, as, essentially, spies. While I think this makes them "not Baha'is" since Shoghi Effendi strictly forbade lying, I think we can all understand the immature sense of "ethics" that drives them to do this. They are between 3 and 4 on the Kohlberg scale. They don't know how to reconcile their loyalty to the faith with their ethical obligations to other irfanis (stage 3); and they are willing to sacrifice their personal integrity for the sake of a group ideology (an odd mixture of stage 2 and stage 4). All totalitarian organizations and one-party states produce such people, and the Baha'i community is riddled with more informers per square inch than was the old Soviet Union or the Shah's Iran.

The reason I sent my message was simply to acknowledge that my expectation that the Baha'i *institutions* would not be so dishonorable as to act on information supplied unethically was incorrect. They appear entirely willing to snoop through informants' reports from private lists for signs of heresy and then to initiate proceedings against the poster.

In this situation, and given what has happened to devoted Baha'is who sacrificed so much of their lives for the good of the Baha'i faith and for service to humankind and universal ideals, such as Linda Walbridge, Steve Scholl, David Langness, Michael McKenny and a number of other persons who have been silenced behind the scenes, it appears to me that the only viable way to continue to function as a real Baha'i (as opposed to a fundamentalist cultist masquerading as a Baha'i) in cyberspace is to become anonymous. I have forwarded some information about relatively secure anonymous remailers.

I personally think that one of the things that drives the ongoing inquisition is concern about cyberspace visibility translating into electability, so anonymity might be enough to induce the authorities to lay off.

The point is that the Baha'i institutions have developed a mixture of totalitarian and fundamentalist ideology that disallows academic scholarship (thus the silencing of Fadil Mazandarani, the expulsion of Abbas Amanat, and the charging of Linda Walbridge and me), disallows independent Baha'i media not controlled by the institutions, and disallows the public expression of individual faith commitments at variance with the totalitarian/fundamentalist orthodoxy. In a very clever set of reversals, these authoritarian policies are actually attributed to Baha'u'llah, `Abdul-Baha and Shoghi Effendi, despite the clear evidence that they did not and would not have approved of any such thing. The various repressive strategies adopted by this one-party Baha'i state, including informing, surveillance, blackballing, threats, administrative sanctions, and ultimately shunning, have been remarkably effective in stultifying Baha'i intellectual and spiritual life and keeping the religion a tiny cult in the industrialized world. (Most Baha'is have no idea how tiny the religion really is--only a few hundred in most European countries, e.g.).

The *only* way for the faith to break out of this gridlock and develop and flourish in the West is for the Baha'is to develop civil society. There have to be *public* institutional spaces wherein the failed policies that have caused such stagnation here and elsewhere can be critiqued, wherein critical thinking can be pursued in common, and an alternative to totalitarian fundamentalism developed. The hard-line, old-style Baha'is in the mold of Holley and Furutan are attempting to prevent this healthy development by targeting thinking Baha'is and chasing them out or dropping them off the rolls or silencing them. They think they are defending the faith even though they are wreaking enormous harm to it. Just as Brezhnev thought he was defending socialism in invading Czechoslovakia or Afghanistan, but was in fact digging its grave.

If anonymity in email is necessary to go forward with genuine Baha'i thinking, which is to say, with universal love, service to humankind, the unity of science and religion (and therefore of reason and faith), the equal rights of all, freedom of conscience and speech, and other principles we all thought we were endorsing when we joined the Baha'i faith (but the opposite of which are secretly held by the cult "administrative order")--then let there be anonymity.

cheers    Juan

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: To UHJ #3 (FWD anonymous remailers)
Date: Friday, December 05, 1997 1:05 PM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Please consider this forwarded message as further evidence of the atmosphere of fear and suspicion and distrust that fundamentalist-minded Baha'is have created on private mailing lists and during the discussion for talk.religion.bahai.

I beg you to prove to the world that it is not so.... That the glorious Words of Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha on free speech and religious conscience actually mean something among Baha'is....

With all respect, hope, and trust in your high office,

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-----Begin forwarded message:
Dear Richard:

I must say I am shocked and disturbed at your diatribe at me. When did I ever attack you or bring your character and motivations into question? Are you really doing to others as you would have them do unto you?

> He has mounted a bitter campaign > against Baha'i institutions for some time now posting anything he can > find that might tend to discredit the Rulers and the Learned of this > Cause.

Well, actually, I am the one against whom a bitter campaign was mounted, by Farzam Arbab, Doug Martin, Ian Semple, Fred Schechter, Monajjem, Stephen Birkland, and others. I was just minding my own business, studying the writings and doing deepenings for the friends in cyberspace. All of a sudden I am being made out some kind of proto-covenant breaker. And the charges against me were things like talking about Baha'u'llah as a historical person. Stephen Birkland sat in my living room and accused me of talking about Baha'u'llah as a historical person. And this sort of nonsense was being construed by the uhj and the itc as covenantal. He was a historical person, by the way. And after they drove me out of the faith I loved with these utterly false and dishonest charges, the cued or at least allowed their minions to go around slandering me as mentally unbalanced or as thirsting for leadership or some such.

Let me ask you, Richard. What exactly have I done to any of these cultists that even slightly compares to what they did to me?

> There were several instances of this last year including an > attack on a very mild mannered and self-effacing Counselor who resides in > Canada. Those who were subscribed to the list last year will remember > this sad episode.

Your self-effacing Dr. Ghadirian stood up in front of a large crowd in London, where I was not present, and libelled me and David Langness as "enemies from within" of the Baha'i faith. Being a counsellor does not give him license to backbite or to spread falsehoods in public. All I did was protest being treated this way by him. I still haven't gotten the apology from him I deserve, by the way.

>I'm not a member of Irfan because Juan Cole wouldn't allow me to join >when he started the list because he considered me one of those perfidious >fundamentalists he's always excoriating.

Richard, I haven't had anything to do with Irfan@umich.edu for a very long time. Take it up with their board. When it started it was a private list I ran off my x500 program, and I let people on to it who I thought were involved in serious Baha'i studies. I suppose you have amply demonstrated what you thought and think of me, which doesn't exactly call into question my earlier judgment. But I do want you to know that I bear you no ill will and that I know you can be very sweet, and that it is your desire for unity and harmony that drives you to demonize me for protesting injustice. I don't like the role that has been thrust on me, either, you know. But I don't see how I can lie down and let these people walk all over my friends; it wouldn't be right.

As for the Inquisition launched against a friend of ours, your questioning of my assertion is just a muddying of the waters. After what happened to the prominent Talismanians and to Michael McKenny, does a further Inquisition really sound so implausible to you?

Anyway, all I said was I now think if someone wants to be a true Baha'i in cyberspace, they'd better do it anonymously. What's wrong with my saying that?

cheers    Juan

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>
Subject: To UHJ #4 (FWD anonymous remailers)
Date: Friday, December 05, 1997 1:15 PM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Please accept this forwarded message as further evidence of the dire straits to which the Baha'i Faith has come as a result of the destructive attacks by literal-minded Baha'is on the consciences of others.... Some of these self-same fundamentalist vices have been demonstrated in regard to talk.religion.bahai....

Respectfully,

FG

UseNet: alt.religion.bahai

The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<http://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-----Original Message-----

From: Juan R. I. Cole <jrcole@umich.edu> [to talisman]
Date: Friday, December 05, 1997 12:08 AM
Subject: Re: anonymous remailers

**>

>>I said I imagined you believe you are doing some kind of good and I meant

>>it, but I don't believe you can step back from yourself and see the harm

>>you are causing.

**>

>Dear Richard:

**>

>Could you please be more specific about *my* causing any harm? Human >beings, real, living human beings, are being manipulated, libelled, given >nightmares, silenced or forced out, and having the most treasured parts of >their identity torn from them. It happened to me. It happened to Linda >Walbridge. It happened to Steve Scholl. It happened to Michael McKenny.

>And it has happened to many others behind the scenes, who decided to handle >it differently. This is being done to devoted Baha'is. Linda Walbridge >pioneered in difficult circumstances in both Lebanon and Jordan, and she >made enormous sacrifices (including monetary and quality-of-life sacrifices >with regard to her children) for the faith while her husband was working for >it on the Encyclopedia project. She never harmed the faith she loved.
>Unlike the treasurer of the Phoenix LSA, she never embezzled $70,000 from >the Baha'i faith, yet the treasurer of the Phoenix LSA is still a Baha'i
and >has not been accused of contravening the covenant. Unlike some high Baha'i >officials she was never guilty of any infraction of Baha'i law or of sexual >harrassment or of lying to the Baha'is. Yet they have cushy offices and >make pompous speeches and are being paid out of your donations to the faith.
>What was her crime? To express her views on email, views which were >legitimately hers as a Baha'i in good standing (i.e. she was guilty of doing >the same thing that Richard Logan and Burl Barer do every day). She had
the >right to declare her conscience and express her views, according to Shoghi >Effendi. That right was withdrawn from her suddenly, by narrow-minded >elderly men eager to slap down an uppity woman. And she was forced out of >the faith she loved, by the very people who should have been nurturing her >faith and helping her forward. She was betrayed, deeply, treasonously, >inexcusably.
>

>And this is somehow *my* fault?

**>

>>I'm convinced

>>that it was unnecessary for things to have come to this--that you allowed >>yourself to be swept into a self-fulfilling prophecy. I could be very >>wrong in this but I'm letting know as a brother and a collegial admirer.

**>

>Richard, if I wanted revenge there are lots of ways for me to get it far >more efficacious than sending occasional messages to 80 Baha'is. I was in >the religion for nearly quarter of a century. I have lots of documentation >of Baha'i leaders' peccadilloes. I'm not interested in that sort of thing.

>When you set out for revenge you have to be sure to dig *two* graves.

**>

>What I am interested in doing is protesting against the *systemic* >injustices being committed against Baha'is by their own administration.

And

>I have the same interest in this as I do protesting, as a member of Amnesty

>International, violations of human rights in any setting. When the Baha'i >administration stops conducting intellectual pogroms and inquisitions that >are contrary to Baha'i law and contrary to basic Baha'i scriptural >principle, then all you will hear from me is translations of Baha'u'llah's >tablets.

**>

>>The question of credibility is always at issue when allegations are made.

**>

>I said that I was provided information from a source I trust (who was in >direct contact with the principal), that an Irfani is currently being >prosecuted for email messages that include Irfan messages, which the >prosecutors (i.e. the uhj and the counselors) can only have received >illicitly and can only use by disregarding the right to privacy and >confidentiality that should be enjoyed by everyone on irfan. I stand by >this statement and I think there are enough others who know the particulars >such that I need not be seen as the only source for this information, nor is >it biased in any way.

>
>As for the possibility that I could have handled things differently, I >respectfully disagree. While I am glad to say I am all to fallible and make >mistakes all the time (something your uhj, out of institutional pride, would >never admit about *itself*), I do not believe this was one of them.
>You see, I put up with quite a lot over the years from the Baha'i >administration, and I never considered leaving the faith. It was not a >matter, as with Louis Gregory, of my simply being dropped off salary. I was >never on salary, and never sought to be. I endured being buttonholed and >hassled about my academic writing (which is no one's business but mine),
and
>I endured being backbitten & so forth. For 24 years.
>
>But when the Baha'i *institutions& *falsely* accused me of contravening a >covenant for which I had risked my life on more than one occasion, it >demonstrated to me that the religion had gone seriously bad, that it had >become corrupt and cult-like, and that there was no place in it for persons >like myself except if they should live their lives in silence and in fear
of >the ignorant and narrow-minded. Since this is demonstrably the opposite of >what Baha'u'llah and `Abdul-Baha wanted for the world, it is hard to escape
>the conclusion that the religion has been betrayed by its leaders, just as

>Islam was betrayed by the ulama and Christianity was betrayed by the popes >and the priests.
>
>Roman Catholicism has benefitted enormously from the Protestant, secular
and >other non-Catholic critique it has been submitted to in the past 400 years, >and is demonstrably a better religion after Vatican II than it was during >the Inquisition. And in the same way that the non-Catholics have done so >much to help the Church right itself after it had gone deeply astray from >Jesus's principles, so non-Baha'is with an intimate knowledge of the Baha'i >faith have a duty to try to help that religion return to its scriptural >roots and principles. This is all the more urgent given that those Baha'is >within the administrative order who speak out about the problems they see >are swiftly silenced or expelled. And just as the Vatican has never thanked >Voltaire for helping reform it, I doubt the Baha'i authorities, after they >finally have their version of Vatican II and release the poor Baha'is from >intellectual bondage, will thank any of us who helped them achieve that >reform. So be it. But that is what is desirable: that the Baha'i >institutions start acting as Baha'u'llah and `Abdul-Baha and Shoghi Effendi >would have wanted them to, instead of like Inquisitors and musty Stalinists.
>
>
>cheers Juan

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: To UHJ #5 (Juan Cole: "democratic (ha!))
Date: Saturday, December 13, 1997 6:47 AM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

I ask that you consider this forwarded message from Juan Cole, Professor of history at the University of Michigan, as further documentation of the abuses being wrought on the Bahai Faith by the fundamentalist mindset that seems to many to have overtaken it. Though he withdrew from the Bahai Faith, after being a member for 24 years, he has recently said of several individuals in the Bahai administration, and perhaps broadly, "they drove me out of the faith I loved."

Since many Bahais during the discussion appear to have followed seemingly similar tactics to those described here, while others during this consultation might worry that the Bahai administrative order has become this despotic, I am sharing this message on news.groups and hope you will redeem these much sullied and doubted words of Abdul-Baha:

"Just as in the world of politics there is need for free thought, likewise in the world of religion there should be the right of unrestricted individual belief. . . . When freedom of conscience, liberty of thought and right of speech prevail--that is to say, when every man according to his own idealization may give expression to his beliefs--development and growth are inevitable." The Promulgation of Universal Peace, 197.

I thank you for acknowledging the receipt of the 27 messages I have sent you since November 20, 1997, and hope that they might help you understand the broad and serious nature of the concerns represented by the vote for talk.religion.bahai.

Respectfully,

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-----begin forwarded message from talisman:

Richard:

After the barbaric and dishonest way the "universal" house of "justice" dealt with Michael McKenny, you are in some state of doubt as to whether there is a fight going on? The fight is to determine whether those who hold the views I listed yesterday may continue to be Baha'is in good standing. The answer is: only if they hide their consciences from view, quaking in fear of the conservatives and fundamentalists who have clawed their way onto the universal house of justice, and who are eager to institute inquisitions and expulsions against anyone who dares actually be a Baha'i and think for him or herself. And the point of these inquisitions and expulsions is to ensure conservative hegemony, to ensure that no voice can be heard in the community save a conservative one. This is not only a fight, it is a full-scale persecution. That would be all right if this were the sort of thing Baha'u'llah or `Abdul-Baha had ordained. But it isn't. It is the most profound betrayal of a prophet by his successors since the popes instituted the Inquisition.

[Response to] Quanta:

I should think the current universal house of justice has by its pronouncements and actions made abundantly clear that it is not interested in consultation or group reasoning together as a means of problem solving. These people have worked themselves into a state of mind that they think they are prophets speaking with the voice of God, and you either agree with them or you are not a Baha'i and they can arrange to make your life miserable. (They even think they have the authority to say something about legitimate academic methodology! That's the funniest thing of all). They have said this over and over again in the past two years. They are not interested in your faith or sincerity or grappling with difficult questions or trying to work together through consultation to resolve problems. They are interested in dictating a narrow ideology to all Baha'is (despite the fact that there isn't the slightest scriptural mandate for their behaving in this manner), and in having all Baha'is kowtow to it. They don't throw around the word Supreme so much because they like Motown. Since most people don't join a religion because they are desperate for someone to tell them what they can or cannot think or say, the result of this sort of narrow-mindedness is to keep the religion tiny in literate countries. I can't tell you how many ex-Baha'is I have met in cyberspace who complain bitterly about being regimented and shepherded. I mean, you could understand this sort of thing in the Amish, who want to be a small isolationist sect, or in the Catholics, who have believers to spare. But as a tactic for a very small group (I doubt there are really more than 1 1/2 million Baha'is) to attract believers and grow itself into a world religion, it sucks.

There are some issues on which it is worthwhile writing to them. This is not one of them. My advice: Do your own thing as long as you can.

cheers Juan

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: To UHJ #6 (Juan Cole: Protest to Islamic Authorities)
Date: Saturday, December 13, 1997 8:26 AM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

I ask you to consider this forwarded message, from some of today's most widely recognized writers of international stature, including one Nobel laureate. The oppressive atmosphere that has developed in the Bahai Faith during recent memory, as Dr. Juan Cole suggests here, and others have testified elsewhere, seems appallingly reminiscent of that in present day Iran.

As a published poet and literary critic, having edited the poems and prose of Robert Hayden, I deeply feel the irony and poignancy of this critique and comparison. Indeed, it was the initial conviction, born of 21 years of membership in the Bahai Faith, that no real artistic work of worth could ever be written in the present Bahai environment that has compelled me to sacrifice myself, my membership in the Bahai Faith, if need be, to help create an unmoderated forum on Usenet.

I beg you again with all my heart and soul to give evidence to the world that the Bahai Faith lives up to its own teachings on human rights and free speech and respects the conscience with which God has endowed humankind.

--
FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups,
news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd2.htm>>

-----begin forwarded message from talisman:

The following letter written to the heads of states participating in the Islamic Conference Organization meeting in Tehran groups some well-known progressive intellectuals and addresses issues of concern also to those on the present list.

It should be remembered that the same regime responsible for these crackdowns on writers has persecuted the Iranian Baha'i community. Ironically, there is every evidence that many in the Baha'i administration would also not allow freedom of speech to writers if they gained control of the machinery of state.

cheers

Juan Cole
History
U of Michigan

-----
OPEN LETTER

From: Edward Albee, Homero Aridjis, Yasar Kamal, Edward Said, Michael Scammell, Anthony Appiah, Paul Auster, Nadine Gordimer, Arthur Miller

To Heads of States participating in the Islamic Conference (December 8-11, 1997, Tehran)

December 8, 1997

We speak today as writers engaged in the constant struggle to defend our right and the right of our colleagues around the world to express ourselves freely without fear of reprisal. This week, two significant events coincide: International Human Rights Day (December 10th) and the Islamic Conference in Tehran (December 8th-11th).

In light of the rich literary heritage of the participating countries, we wish to draw attention to the plight of many writers who must struggle every day with the unacceptable choice to either protect their own safety and remain silent; or to speak their minds and risk imprisonment, torture and even death. In Tehran this week, many people will speak, and many will be spoken of: we wish to mention a few who will not. We turn our attention first to the host country of the conference, the Islamic Republic of Iran. By censoring many of its brightest literary figures and silencing all dissent, the government has gone to great lengths to undermine Iran's long and distinguished tradition of letters. The editor, Faraj Sarkuhi, is imprisoned today for nothing more than attempting to speak his mind. He will not be on any agenda at the Conference, but his presence in a cell somewhere nearby will surely cast a cloud over the proceedings. So will the deaths of writers and intellectuals such as Soltanpoor, Saidi-Sirjani, Mir'ala'i, Tafazzoli, and Zalzadeh. The recent suppression of Simin Behbahani shows that the signatories of the 1994 Declaration of 134 Iranian Writers remain in danger today.

It is not only in Iran that writers have been censored, imprisoned, exiled, or killed by official and unofficial groups. In Algeria, Abdel Kadr Alloula, the playwright, filmmaker and actor was gunned down for his denunciation of violence. In Syria, the poet, Faraj Birqdar, has been imprisoned for ten years. In Kuwait, Iraqi poet Khalaf Alwan Jallud Al-Maliki is serving 15 years in prison. In Iraq, Aziz Al-Syed Jasim, journalist and author, is imprisoned indefinitely for refusing to write a book about Saddam Hussein. In Turkey, Recep Marasli, a publisher, was arrested in March 1997 for expressing his views on Kurdish culture and identity. Even writers of international stature, such as Turkey's Yasar Kamal and Egypt's Naguib Mahfouz, have been targeted in recent years.

We condemn these violations irrespective of the perpetrator. We appeal to the participants in the Islamic Conference to put an end to these abuses and to promote freedom of expression which will inevitably enrich their cultural heritage.

We believe that the coincidence of International Human Rights Day and the 1997 Islamic Conference points to a larger truth in which the caprices of chance play no part: try as they may, governments who repress their own citizens cannot escape the standard of freedom set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. As we celebrate the declaration's forty-ninth anniversary this week, we reaffirm our commitment to human rights and our conviction that all leaders who violate such principles as freedom of expression shall witness the erosion of their power, and shall be defeated by the strength inherent in words.

Signed

Edward Albee, Homero Aridjis, Yasar Kamal, Edward Said, Michael Scammell, Anthony Appiah, Paul Auster, Nadine Gordimer, Arthur Miller

Homepage

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: talisman <talisman@umich.edu>
Subject: Re: To UHJ #7 (Juan Cole: The "Science" of history)
Date: Thursday, December 18, 1997 8:48 AM

-----Original Message-----

From: David Bikman <dbikman@bwc.org>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: talisman@umich.edu <talisman@umich.edu>
Date: Thursday, December 18, 1997 7:25 AM
Subject: Re: To UHJ #7 (Juan Cole: The "Science" of history)

>Mr. Glaysher,
>
>What exactly do you want the House of Justice to do?

While I don't necessarily believe it's my place to tell the UHJ what to do, I would think for starters it might want to recognize the extent to which a fanatical mindset has taken over among the rank and file, as well some in the administration below it.... I would think it might want to make clear to all that witch hunts and bookburning and public whippings are a little too overly zealous.... As it appears to me now, too often the literal-minded are allowed to run wild....

A few unambiguous statements along these lines, I would think, might go a long way toward reviving the broad, open, universal religion the Founders talked about.... Of course, as for all Bahais, words would have to be followed by deeds....

Talk.religion.bahai would be a most apropos occasion, providing evidence and restoring confidence and trust, clearing the air, as it were, perhaps for many....

>
>David Bikman

>
>--
>you wrote:

>
>> Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

>>
>> I fervently ask you to do something to stem the flood of >> fundamentalist fanaticism that many Bahais and non-Bahais >> believe has overwhelmed the Bahai Faith, reducing it to a >> gross distortion of its broad and liberal Teachings, and >> protect the Usenet interest poll on talk.religion.bahai from >> being once again a victim of Bahai intolerance.

>>
>>FG

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups,
news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: To UHJ #8 (Juan Cole: mutual tolerance)
Date: Thursday, December 18, 1997 9:01 AM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

I believe this message speaks well to the lack of tolerance by some Bahais during the now much too long discussion period for talk.religion.bahai and the resulting abuse of the Usenet voting system....

FG
UseNet: alt.religion.bahai
The RFD for talk.religion.bahai can be found on news.groups, news.announce.newgroups, or at <<https://www.baha.demon.co.uk/rfd.htm>>

-----begin forwarded message from talisman:

"If men could only learn the lesson of mutual tolerance, understanding, and brotherly love, the unity of the world would soon be an established fact. Bahá'u'lláh spent His life teaching this lesson of Love and Unity. Let us then put away from us all prejudice and intolerance . . ." `Abdul-Baha, Paris Talks

Would not mutual tolerance and brotherly love require that we all listen respectfully to one another, without charging anyone with being a covenant breaker simply because he or she seems to be saying new things? Recognizing that there are conservative and liberal Baha'is, is it really "mutual tolerance," "brotherly love" and "unity" for conservative Baha'is to employ their control of the central institutions to declare the liberals "not Baha'is" or guilty of "making statements contrary to the covenant?" Isn't it a form of prejudice and intolerance for conservative Baha'is to wax suspicious of Baha'i academics, to mutter about "intellectual pride" (while ignoring the greater problem of institutional pride), and to attempt to silence them? Is this "tolerance"? Or is it intolerance? Is this to be free of "prejudice" or is it anti-intellectual bigotry? Notice that Baha'u'llah "spent His life" teaching this "lesson of Love and Unity." What love have Baha'i liberals found at the hands of the conservatives? Have they been unified with them or excluded from their midst? How can Baha'is hope to bring Christians and Muslims together if they cannot even bring devoted Baha'is of various opinions together? Is unity really achieved through intimidation, threats, sanctions, and expulsion? What sort of fascist unity is that? Does this sound like "brotherly love" to any of you?

cheers Juan

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>

To: Mark A. Foster <owner@sociologist.com>; talisman <talisman@umich.edu>; UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>

Subject: To UHJ #9 (Re Response from UHJ)

Date: Sunday, December 21, 1997 11:23 AM

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

Thank you for your email response of 19 December 1997.

I have carefully read and considered it. I am concerned that it does not evince an understanding of the unusual nature of Usenet interest polling but seems to think of it as though it were a normal democratic national election of some sort.

With all respect and humility, permit me to say that your repeated emphasis on conscience fails to take into account the fact that Bahais actually did deprive other people, Bahais and non-Bahais, of the rights of their own consciences during the last massive NO vote and will be doing so again if they vote NO a second time.

Every indication suggests that Bahais are about to make the same mistake. I am concerned that your response to me, as your earlier response to Mr. Roger Reini, may be misconstrued by such Bahais as giving your blessing to them, condoning their onslaught against talk.religion.bahai, as have the repeated interference and intrigues of the Co-ordinating Committee for the Bahai Computer and Communication Association (BCCA).

I ask you to consult with a Bahai who is actually well versed in the subtleties of Usenet interest polling, not "voting" in the everyday sense of the word. I suggest Roger Reini, (rreini@wwnet.com) to whom you allude.

I ask you to reflect on these words by a highly respected non-Bahai, Russ Allbery, much involved with Usenet newsgroup creation, on the general consensus that exists on reasons for voting:

"There is no official 'list of acceptable reasons for voting'; Nothing of the sort is enforced. There's no way of knowing why people vote the way they do. There is, however, a general consensus that certain patterns of voting constitute abuse of the system. Block voting on religious, cultural, ethnic, or political grounds is one of the things that is frowned upon. It is unlikely that even extreme block voting would cause a result to be overturned, but it's practically assured that block voting will earn an extremely bad reputation for the group doing the block voting. In other words, yes, the Baha'i could vote down the newsgroup en masse and be successful. This would, however, also earn the Faith a reputation (fairly or no) amongst those people who followed the proposal as a religion that advocates censorship. I think it's in the best interest of Baha'is and the Baha'i Faith to avoid that."
(Message-ID: <m3pvo9ggjh@windlord.Stanford.EDU>)

Because Bahais have already abused the interest polling system, analogous to what Baha'u'llah denounced in the Kitab-I-Aqdas as the "destruction of books," electronic books or magazines in this context, and appear about to do so again, actually smashing or keeping the printing press switch from being turned on, I appeal to you once more to attempt to understand the nature of the system governing Usenet and to provide fundamentalist Bahais with the guidance they apparently need in order to allow other people the sanctity of their own God-given consciences, and a forum within which to express themselves.

I appeal to you to do what is in the best interest of the Bahai Faith.

I can't imagine how the interest polling can possibly proceed in a just and fair manner without your mastering the difficult issues involved and rendering further guidance to Bahais.

With sincere and heartfelt respect for your office,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

---

Homepage

---

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

> Subject: NO! vote campaign: talk.religion.bahai
> From: FG@hotmail.com
> Date: 1997/03/12
> Message-Id: <5g674t$6ba$1@bilbo.reference.com>
> Newsgroups: talk.religion.misc
> [More Headers]
>
> This appeal for NO votes was apparently posted recently to the > Bahai woman's discussion listserv.
>
> >Mark Towfiq (towfiq@justice.medford.ma.us) wrote:
>
> >Subject: RE: Pointer: CFV talk.religion.bahai
>
> >Dear friends, a situation which has been developing over the past few > >months has finally come to a head.
> >
> >As many of you may already know, the soc.religion.bahai newsgroup > >was created in the Holy Year (1992) to serve as a forum for the > >Friends to discuss the Faith on USENET and a non-threatening > >place for people investigating the Baha'i Faith to ask questions > >and receive answers. As part of its creation, we decided that > >it should be moderated, and that the Charter should spell out > >very clearly what were unacceptable types of postings. Among > >such unacceptable postings were deemed personal insults and > >attacks on individuals and religious institutions.
> >Later last year, the Charter was made more explicit to exclude > >postings which undermine the Covenant. The newsgroup has been > >moderated by a set of Baha'is since its inception who, in my > >opinion, have applied the Charter and Baha'i principles to a > >high degree of fairness, and have maintained a rather good tone > >and environment. We have received numerous compliments about > >this over the years.

> >
> >Recently, an individual, FG (I do not know if > >he is a Baha'i or not), has accused the moderators of > >soc.religion.bahai of "censorship", claiming that they will not > >allow his point of view to be posted there. As a result, he > >has asked for the creation of a new, unmoderated forum, called > >talk.religion.bahai. The postings which Mr. Glaysher complains > >about were all rejected on the basis of tone; he wanted to > >post open insults and sarcasm, and the moderators > >asked him to re-phrase his postings. He refused, and claimed > >he was being censored, and embarked upon this campaign
to > >create a new newsgroup.
> >Dear Friends, if this new newsgroup is created, in my opinion
> >it will cause great confusion; there will now be two, almost > >identical fora to discuss the Faith, but one of them will allow > >any sorts of postings, including postings from Covenant-breakers.
> >Besides this fact, such a newsgroup is not necessary, as there > >exist plenty of open forums on USENET (such as > >talk.religion.misc) where Mr. Glaysher may post his opinions > >"freely".
> >
> >HOW TO VOTE NO: Send email to: jjd@primenet.com
> >
> >With the only text of the message being:
> >
> > I vote NO on talk.religion.bahai
> >
> >I would be happy to provide further information or > >answer any questions about this matter.
> >
> >Regards,
> >Mark Towfiq
> >

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience

10-24-99

This file is the oldest export of Outlook Express that I have saved - 10-24-99. Many prior posts and files lost during system crashes. Many duplications may exist in subsequent or other archives. Some posts simply never made it into an archive.

From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, December 04, 1998 8:48 AM
Subject: AOL Bahai Forums - Steve Case, Mark Foster

Dear Mr. Foster:

I and others on AOL would appreciate your resigning from your position [as Forum Leader] so that something may begin to improve. We have been discussing periodically since at least August your disappearance and now ask you to step down.

FG...The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> Talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the trb CFV ballot.

FG...The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> Talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the trb CFV ballot.

-----
Rough Draft to Steve Case:

Dear Mr. Case,

There are serious and long standing problems with the way the Bahai Forums are run. As members of AOL, who pay $21.95 a month, we're concerned that AOL is permitting unknowingly a very high level of censorship and manipulation to take place by essentially religious zealots who will not permit others to speak their minds.

As members, former members, or non-members of the Bahai Faith, we have witnessed censorship practiced by Bahais in many forums on and off the Internet. We presently are attempting to create an unmoderated newsgroup, talk.religion.bahai on Usenet. FG's web site documents numerous abuses by Bahais of the human rights of members and non-Bahais:

The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

We ask you to investigate the situation on the AOL Forums and appoint someone as Forum Leader who will be a fair and objective person allowing all opinions to find expression and not abuse their duties in favor of fanatical views or perhaps appoint two or three people to counterbalance one another with veto power so that at least some kind of system of checks and balances might exist to protect people from the tyranny of past Bahai Forum Leaders.

At the very least, we feel the resolution must allow the following changes under the Bahai Forums which some members have been advocating since the middle of August 1998:

alt.religion.bahai and any new future newsgroups on the Bahai Faith, such as talk.religion.bahai, should it pass, ought to be added to the list of available Newsgroups under Bahai

Libraries should finally function and accept all postings to them of any point of view uncensored by the Forum Leader.

Such web sites as FG's The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience should be added to Links <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> and any other link suggested by an AOL member ought to be automatically added to the list and not censored for religious reasons.

We know that the Bahai AOL Forums have had a stormy history. We hope that you will help us find a lasting solution to these profound problems of religious freedom and conscience. At the moment, we believe the "frozen" nature of the Bahai Forums very much plays into the hands of those opposed to freedom of speech and hope a compromise can be reached allowing for a new atmosphere of openness and toleration on AOL's Bahai Forums.

FG...The Baha'i Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> Talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the trb CFV ballot.

-----

From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 16, 1998 7:14 AM
To: FG
Subject: My Response to AOL Shawna T

Subj: Bahai Forums - Why Susan Maneck should be made Message Board Manager
Date: 12/16/1998 7:12:29 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: FG
To: ShawnaT
CC: FG

Shawna T
Office of the Chairman

Dear Shawna,

Thank you for acknowledging my message to Mr. Case.
I appreciate your re-routing it to the appropriate person as AOL and I look forward to hearing from him or her.

Since my original message to you efforts by some Bahais to use the AOL forums to undermine the Usenet system of interest polling on talk.religion.bahai have only increased, especially by Susan Maneck. It's a very complicated situation with a long and tumultuous history on AOL.

I trust the person you're referring me to will have the patience and tenacity to help improve the Bahai Forums.

Respectfully,

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> Talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the "trb CFV."

-----

Subj: Bahai Forums - Why Susan Maneck should be made Message Board Manager
Date: 12/15/1998 9:43:39 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: Steve Case
To: FG

Dear FG,

I am responding to your letter on behalf of Steve Case. Thank you for taking the time to write to us.

We appreciate member feedback because it is the best way for us to know what we are doing right -- and what we could do better.

I have passed your comments to the appropriate person at America Online.
Please feel free to write us again at any time.

Sincerely,

Shawna T
Office of the Chairman

-----

Dear Mr. Case:

The continuing serious neglect of the Bahai Forums would not be solved in the best interest of all AOL members by appointing Susan Maneck. My experience with her on a scholar mailing list h-bahai at the University of Michigan and her recent attacks on the creation of talk.religion.bahai on Usenet convince me that she would not be a fair arbiter. She has recently threatened to violate Usenet interest poll custom by calling for a NO vote against the proposed newsgroup talk.religion.bahai, which has been defeated in the past by a massive NO vote campaign mounted by other Bahais in a similar fashion: <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

I hope you will help find a solution to prevent another such Bahai from having control over the free speech and conscience of AOL members.

Specifically she has continued to ignore my and others' concerns about 3 key areas. I've clipped them out of the REVISED PETITION:

alt.religion.bahai and any new future newsgroups on the Bahai Faith, such as talk.religion.bahai, should it pass, ought to be added to the list of available Newsgroups under Bahai

Libraries should finally function and accept all postings to them of any point of view uncensored by the Forum Leader.

Such web sites as FG's The Bahai Faith &
Religious Freedom of Conscience should be added to Links <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> and any other link suggested by an AOL member ought to be automatically added to the list and not censored for religious reasons.

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> Talk.religion.bahai voter ballot is on news.announce.newgroups, news.groups, alt.religion.bahai, or email the votetaker dave@dogwood.com requesting the "trb CFV."

-----Original Message-----

From: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>; fbaker@ncsa.uiuc.edu <fbaker@ncsa.uiuc.edu>; house@usq.edu.au <house@usq.edu.au>;
johnwalker@ozemail.com.au <johnwalker@ozemail.com.au>;
fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu <fran@amber.crhc.uiuc.edu>; smaneck@stetson.edu <smaneck@stetson.edu>; rdsteph@ibm.net <rdsteph@ibm.net>
Date: Monday, December 07, 1998 5:03 AM
Subject: Re: [Fwd: talk.religion.bahai]

>Resending this to all due to a typo I made in Susan's email address.

>--Fran

>

>Fran Baker wrote:

>>

>> Sorry, Susan, but sometimes an appeal to courtesy is not appropriate.

>> I have to let my coproponents know what you are planning to do.

>> I can't believe you are letting a personality conflict resulting >> from a passionate disagreement color your judgment in what is >> essentially a human rights issue. You have crossed a line here.

>>

>> --Fran

>>

>> PS Who is rdsteph@ibm.net? Hi, whoever you are!

>>

>> -----

>>

>> Subject: talk.religion.bahai

>> Date: Mon, 7 Dec 1998 12:31:28 -0500

>> From: "Susan Maneck " <smaneck@stetson.edu>

>> To: rdsteph@ibm.net

>> CC: Fran Baker <fran@crhc.uiuc.edu>

>>

>> Dear Ron and Fran,

>>

>> I am seriously contemplating calling for a "no" vote on >> talk.religion.bahai. I wanted to contact you first and explain to you >> my rationale because I know this is something you have both >> worked hard for. In the past I have not participated in the votes at >> all. I wouldn't vote for it because I wanted nothing to do with a list >> promoted by Fred and I felt that there ought to be the requisite >> number of 150 truly interested individuals to form it. On the other >> hand, I would not vote now because I thought it wrong because I >> did not think that an unmoderated list should be opposed in >> principle. Now, however, I find the manner in which Fred is going >> about seeking to establish this list to be more than I can stomach >> and publicly calling for a "no" vote appears to be the only way to >> register the extent of our outrage against this kind of behaviour.

>> What I refer to specifically is the campaign of slander and calumny >> against not only the Institutions, but against myself and the Bahai >> Studies list. As you know, he accuses this list and me of >> censorship, which you yourself know is not true. He is also trying >> to prevent my managing the Baha'i Message Board of AOL for the >> same reason. He constantly spams that Board making any >> genuine discussions virtually impossible.

>>

>> I'm going to sit on this a couple of days and give myself a cooling >> off period before taking any action, but I've really had it "up to here" >> with this jerk.

>>

>> Please do me the courtesy of not forwarding this message to Fred

>> (although you may convey my sentiments and my intentions). I do >> not care to see it up in his website tomorrow.

>>

>> warmest, Susan

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, December 27, 1998 9:47 AM
To: FG
Subject: 3 Issues

Subject: 3 Issues
Date: 12/27/1998 9:28 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: FG
Message-id: <19981227092856.12903.00001848@ng-fd1.aol.com>

At the end of 1998, the 3 Issues remain here on the Bahai Forum:

alt.religion.bahai added to newsgroups

Libraries functioning and accepting all postings to them and uncensored by Bahais.

My web site The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience added to Web Sites and all others freely accepted as well:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

baha'i

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Wednesday, January 06, 1999 8:44 AM

To: talisman; baha-faith @ egroups.com

Subject: Antinomies - Robert Browning, Dostoevsky

From a May 1992 letter:

I've been reading lately a narrative poem by Robert Browning, "Bishop Blougram's Apology." I've read it a number of times over the years, and it's one that I continue to think about. The character of the bishop is partly based on John Henry Newman and another contemporary figure in the Roman Catholic Church, the latter of whom was especially noted for his abuse of power and position. Over dinner, the bishop justifies his corruption to a young journalist who has noticed his calculation, insincerity, and hypocrisy. In much of the poem, Browning is dealing with the nature of religious doubt. While the bishop is a hypocrite who embraces Catholicism because it gives him "cabin comforts" and the "estimation" of the masses, the journalist is charmingly naive in his insistence that religious faith should be "absolute." In a marvelous passage Browning recognizes the complex duality of the human soul:

No, when the fight begins within himself,
A man's worth something. God stoops o'er his head, Satan looks up between his feet--both tug-- He's left, himself, i' the middle: the soul wakes
And grows. Prolong that battle through his life!
Never leave growing till the life to come!

ll. 690

Putting this truth in a sophist's mouth, Browning probes much deeper into the struggle for faith than the "pious" usually allow themselves. To my mind, the health of the spirit requires that freedom--given by God--to doubt and question and probe every single dogma of religion in its oppressively organized phase. On the other hand, Browning's point is partly that doubt itself, like evil and suffering, is a test of one's belief, for mature belief can only grow out of the struggle with doubt.

There is something deeply, inescapably, eternally dialectical in the human being and in the very nature of existence, the way it develops, evolves, progresses.

Dostoevsky, in his chapter "The Grand Inquisitor," In The Brothers Karamazov, meditates dialectically on the dilemma of free will and obedience to religious authority. Christ returns during the Spanish Inquisition and is imprisoned by the Grand Inquisitor who accuses Christ of leading men into confusion by giving them freedom of choice and conscience. The Grand Inquisitor informs Christ that

We have corrected Your work and have now founded it on miracle, mystery, and authority. And men rejoice at being led like cattle again, with the terrible gift of freedom that brought them so much suffering removed from them.

The Inquisitor goes on to tell Christ that man's "greatest need on earth" is "to find someone to worship, someone who can relieve him of the burden of his conscience, thus enabling him finally to unite into a harmonious ant-hill where there are no dissenting voices. . . ." In place of individual responsibility to God, the Inquisitor promises to free mankind from "the frightening torment they know today when they have to decide for themselves how to act." Christ listens to this sophist without uttering a word, and then, at the end, before being allowed to leave, rises and kisses the Inquisitor. Ivan, a nihilist, who relates this story, asserts all too accurately that in the modern world "everything is permitted." The Grand Inquisitor, grasping for power, a character to whom Nietzsche must have responded deeply, "doesn't believe in God." Dostoevsky knew these rich tensions were part of human nature. At times, the Bahá'í administration grossly fails to understand that Bahá'u'lláh has also blessed humankind with this burden of freedom and responsibility.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, January 13, 1999 8:00 AM
To: FG
Subject: Antinomies - Frodo, Prospero

Frodo:
"But I have been too deeply hurt, Sam. I tried to save the Shire, and it has been saved, but not for me. It must often be so, Sam, when things are in danger; some one has to give them up, lose them, so that others may keep them. But you are my heir...."

Prospero:
"Now my charms are all o'erthrown,
And what strength I have's mine own,
Which is most faint....
But release me from my bands,
With the help of your good hands.
Gentle breath of yours my sails
Must fill, or else my project fails,
Which was to please. Now I want Spirits to enforce, art to enchant;
And my ending is despair
Unless I be relieved by prayer,
Which pierces so, that it assaults
Mercy itself, and frees all faults.
As you from crimes would pardoned be,
Let your indulgence set me free."

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, January 16, 1999 8:23 AM
To: FG
Subject: Antinomies - Milosz

"It appears that my oeuvre is Christian and even (practically) irreproachable according to the criteria of Catholic theology.
I am not so sure, though I like to hear this. Certainly, it stands out against the background of twentieth century poetry, also Polish poetry, which is agnostic or atheist. Yet the religious content of my poems is not the result of design by a believer; it grew out of my doubts, turmoil, and despair, as they searched for a form. If not for a strong heretical seasoning, the religious content would not have been there. Thus, my resistance to being squeezed into the rubric of "Catholic poet" was well founded."

Czeslaw Milosz, Road-side Dog

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, January 16, 1999 8:50 AM
To: FG
Subject: soc.religion.bahai - brief quotations

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:
"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb84.htm>

Kent Johnson:
"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb61.htm>

Ron House:
"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of
soc.religion.bahai."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb53.htm>

Timothy Mulligan:
"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb59.htm>

RobertNik:
"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb54.htm>

Bruce Burrill:
"What are Baha'i afraid of?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb60.htm>

Zute flute:
"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb50.htm>

YU ZIR:
"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb46.htm>

Matthew Cromer:
"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with..."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb47.htm>

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:
"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb77.htm>

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:
"Sorry to hear that you've been suppressed on srb. Your comments were always very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Ex7.htm>

Harold Shinsato:
"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb33.htm>

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:
"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb79.htm>

Laeterna:
"To say I was flabberghasted at this type of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored2.htm>

Guy Macon
"Please explain which portion of the charter the following post violates."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored1.htm>

Robin Peters:
"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb43.htm>

jgoldberg:
"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb57.htm>

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:
"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb76.htm>

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 19, 1999 12:19 PM
Subject: Abdul-Baha on conscience & liberty

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, January 21, 1999 6:38 AM
Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>; Letters to Editor <letters@nytimes.com>;
bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998
Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 9:03 PM
July 24,1998

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

As a Bahai, I am saddened by the news of the execution of yet another Bahai in Iran. However, the immediate public statements made by Firuz Kazemzadeh of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, reminiscent of Robert Henderson's piece in The New York Times on January 13th of this year, appear equally lamentable for their blatant hypocrisy: "We had hoped that President Khatami's assertions about freedom, justice and the rule of law in Iran would apply to the Baha'is of that country.... We urge the international community to protest vigorously Mr. Rowhani's killing and to seek justice for the beleaguered Iranian Baha'i community."

The tragic loss of Bahai lives in Iran and the subsequent exploitation of their deaths by Bahai spokesmen, often in the American media, always courting the President and other members of the government, has become a predictable pattern rendered intolerable in the context of continuing and pervasive Bahai censorship and denial of human and civil rights in the United States and elsewhere. Such incidents as I queried you about in my unanswered email of March 31, 1997, available on my Web site, regarding the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the resignations of a number of scholars from the Bahai Encyclopedia, the attacks on the listserv known as Talisman I at Indiana University, the harassing and blacklisting of many individuals, Bahai and non-Bahai, suggest profoundly deep-seated problems within the Bahai community and administration.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/To-UHJ1.htm>

To these incidents must now be added the apparent conspiracy for more than a year and a half of the Bahai Computer and Communications Committee (BCCA), under the chairmanship of Mark Towfiq, to defeat twice now, along with the collusion of other Bahais, the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup on the Bahai Faith which would be known as talk.religion.bahai. You may find extensive documentation for all of these violations of the basic human rights of many Bahais and non-Bahais on my Web site, "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

Because the third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai on Usenet is approaching, after August 28th, I ask you again to investigate the BCCA and its depriving me of access last November from all private Bahai-only mailing lists at a crucial moment just when the tide of discussion was going very much in favor of the newsgroup, noted by many observers. I also ask whether you supported or were involved in that decision? The relevant files can be found on my Web site under Bahai-Discuss Archives.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

Similarly, I would like to know whether your institution or the BCCA has approved of or advocated the recent ban of my email signature file by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai, as well as their complete ban for more than a year and a half now on all discussion regarding talk.religion.bahai.

The prevailing atmosphere of suppression of free speech and religious conscience that now characterizes the Bahai Faith cannot but call into question the honesty of many members of the Bahai administration and perhaps the institutions themselves.

I ask once more whether censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith and what passages of the Bahai Writings support it, what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship?

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, January 21, 1999 7:25 AM
Subject: The Bahai Technique

During the last year and a half, a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:
"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:

"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:
"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: Steven Scholl[SMTP:sscholl@jeffnet.org]
Sent: Thursday, February 04, 1999 12:40 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Fw: Call for Manuscripts - - New Publisher

Dear Fredercik,

I noticed in your message the following:

>>While the first book I'll be publishing this August is moving along >>well, I'm considering also publishing this year a collection of the >>articles on my website I've called Assorted Controversial >>Documents:
>>
>>"A Modest Proposal" 1987
>>"The Service of Women" 1988?
>>"Crisis of Faith" 5/15/96
>>Letter: Stephen Birkland, Continental Board of Counsellors 7/16/96
>>"Baha'i Leaders Vexed by On-Line Critics" Winter 1997
>>Mark Towfiq's NO Vote Campaign on BCCA mailing lists 3/12/97
>>Susan Maneck's NO Vote Campaign on AOL 12/7/98

I have no problem with you posting my e-mail materials on your site but I do not want to see these writings end up in your proposed book. I suggest you stick to more official documents like the Service of Women paper, you CAN use A Modest Proposal and you should publish all the homosexuality documents and responses from gay and lesbian Baha'is. That would make for a stronger book.

Hope this helps.

Steve

---

Steven Scholl, Publisher
White Cloud Press
PO Box 3400
Ashland OR 97520
Phone/fax 541-488-6415

e-mail: sscholl@jeffnet.org
Web: <https://www.whitecloudpress.com>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, February 06, 1999 7:48 AM
To: FG
Subject: REPOST - alt/talk.religion.bahai - FAQ-history

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
February 6, 1999
This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly,
I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai
and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai

-----
January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates
alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases
a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated
newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the "neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999: Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
-----

This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: K. Paul Johnson[SMTP:pjohnson@vsla.edu]
Sent: Monday, February 08, 1999 11:56 AM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Your Gnosis article

According to FG:

>
> Paul,
>
> I'd like to reprint your article "Baha'i Leaders Vexed by On-Line > Critics" from Gnosis in a collection of pieces I mentioned recently > on trb. It would at a minimum include these controversial pieces > from my website:
>
> A Modest Proposal" 1987
> "The Service of Women" 1988?
> "Crisis of Faith" 5/15/96
> Letter: Stephen Birkland, Continental Board of Counsellors 7/16/96
>
> Please let me know if this would be acceptable to you and > whether you know of anything else I might include.

Hey Fred,

I'm OK with it, although have doubts about the market for such a book.

Cheers,
Paul

-----
From: Juan R Cole[SMTP:jrcole@umich.edu]
Sent: Monday, February 15, 1999 1:34 PM
To: FG
Subject: Re: Collection of Articles

Fred:

Jackson's email is up under editors at the H-Bahai site.

I didn't actually have anything to do with writing that piece in the sense of composing words. I think I was in Egypt and incommunicado. I did, I suppose, help inspire it in the early 1980s with some informal comments to some of the authors. I didn't mind having my name appended, but I was out of the loop then and didn't know about the controversies generated till later.

cheers Juan

On Mon, 15 Feb 1999, FG wrote:

> Juan,
>
> I'm unfamiliar with Jackson. Could you send > me his email if you have it? I thought you were > one of the authors of the Service of Women.
> The copy I have has your name on it:
>
> The Service of Women on the Institutions of the Baha'i Faith
>
> Anthony A. Lee, Peggy Caton, Richard Hollinger, Marjan Nirou, Nader > Saiedi, Shahin Carrigan, Jackson Armstong-Ingram, and Juan R. I.
> Cole.
>
> Who did write it?
>
> Fred
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Juan Cole <jrcole@umich.edu>
> To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
> Date: Saturday, February 06, 1999 1:28 PM
> Subject: Re: Collection of Articles
>
>
>
> Dear Fred:
>
> I don't know the history of the Service of Women paper from the inside > because I wasn't around then; maybe in Egypt. Steve Scholl or Jackson would > be the ones to ask.
>
>
>
> cheers Juan
>
>
>
>
>

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 6:29 AM
To: TOSGeneral@aol.com
Cc: FG@hotmail.com; RBCFAdmin@aol.com
Subject: (no subject)

This person is referring to my opinions as "vitriol" and in other insulting terms, while Mark Foster the putative Forum Leader permits it employing his double standard since she's a true blue Bahai fundamentalist.

FG@aol.com

Subject: Re: Folder changes being discussed
Date: 2/27/1999 3:14 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: <A HREF="aol://3548:Wrldunity9">Wrldunity9</A> Message-id: <19990227151411.16109.00000862@ng116.aol.com>

Hi Susan,

Yes, but still ... "two wrongs don't make a right."

My original comment was for Fred also. And as I always tell my daughter, no matter what anyone or everyone else does, you are responsible for yourself, and you can't go wrong taking the high road.

I hope that one day Fred will realize that if he indeed had any valid point to make on his so-called "technique," his continual spamming and spreading of vitriol only influences people to avoid his message. Obsession is not a pretty thing, and I hope Fred can find a way to overcome it and be happy instead.

Most sincerely,
Becky

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 2:57 PM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

Kathy Pascoe wrote in message <36fc499b.240054124@news.newsguy.com>...

>

>Deana, please don't jump on Robert either. I don't think any threats to >shun people have come from him.

Like many of the Bahai fundamentalists here on trb, he has accused or intimidated that people were or are covenant breakers many times during the last few years.

Skim around in www.dejanews.com or my archives for examples. Try keyword covenant breaker etc....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 2:59 PM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990228103054.11960.00004460@ng-cg1.aol.com>...

>>You're a liar and you know it....

>

>Fred,

>

>I would be careful with those accusations. I have many remedies at my disposal

>(which I may have considered), you know. How much money do you have?

Notice, like Maneck, when caught redhanded, the new technique seems to be legal threats....

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:04 PM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

Kathy Pascoe wrote in message <37067c0d.252969591@news.newsguy.com>...

>On Sun, 28 Feb 1999 16:47:19 GMT, mirele@newsguy.com (Deana Marie >Holmes) wrote:

>

>> On 28 Feb 1999 15:30:54 GMT, rbcfmark@aol.com (RBCF Mark) wrote:

>>

>> >>You're a liar and you know it...

>> >

>> >I would be careful with those accusations. I have many remedies at my disposal

>> >(which I may have considered), you know. How much money do you have?
>>
>> <snort>
>>
>> I'd like to see this one played out in court.
>>
>> It would be a black eye for the Baha'i Faith.
>
>No, it might be a black eye for Mark. It might be a black eye for the >Administrative Order if they supply the attorney.

The AO has lots of hack Iranian "attorneys" who have no respect for legal and political system. I would find it most eloquently amusing for the likes of Maneck, Foster, Towfiq, Hyman, and such other fanatics to attempt to redeem their "good" names in court. I doubt any jury of 12 would look at the evidence on www.dejanews.com or my archives and rule in their favor....

>People in lots of newsgroups make noises about attorneys that they never >follow though on, so I'm of the opinion that threats about taking legal >action shouldn't be posted at all.
>
>(In the news.admin.net-abuse.* hierarchy, spammers get mocked about >their 'cartooneys', since the 'attorneys' they threaten people with are >invariably non-existent.)
>
>To Mark: stay above the fray. If someone calls you names repeatedly, >and you don't respond at that level, or with legal threats you've no >intention of carrying out, that person tars him or herself more than you >are tarred (my opinion, of course, YMMV, yadda yadda).

Far from tar, he has lied when he claimed he was not targetting me nor be unfair in his abuse of the AOL TOS system. Several other AOL members have emailed me. I'm sure they'd be happy to appear in court on my behalf too....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

>--
>Kathy Pascoe ~ kathy@scconsult.com (at home)
>Confused about newsgroups? Visit <news:news.newusers.questions>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:04 PM
To: TOSBoards1; HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AAli929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700#ao
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

Kathy Pascoe wrote in message <37067c0d.252969591@news.newsguy.com>...
>On Sun, 28 Feb 1999 16:47:19 GMT, mirele@newsguy.com (Deana Marie >Holmes) wrote:
>
>> On 28 Feb 1999 15:30:54 GMT, rbcfmark@aol.com (RBCF Mark) wrote:
>>
>> >>You're a liar and you know it...
>> >
>> >I would be careful with those accusations. I have many remedies at my disposal
>> >(which I may have considered), you know. How much money do you have?
>>
>> <snort>
>>
>> I'd like to see this one played out in court.
>>
>> It would be a black eye for the Baha'i Faith.
>
>No, it might be a black eye for Mark. It might be a black eye for the >Administrative Order if they supply the attorney.

The AO has lots of hack Iranian "attorneys" who have no respect for legal and political system. I would find it most eloquently amusing for the likes of Maneck, Foster, Towfiq, Hyman, and such other fanatics to attempt to redeem their "good" names in court. I doubt any jury of 12 would look at the evidence on www.dejanews.com or my archives and rule in their favor....

>People in lots of newsgroups make noises about attorneys that they never >follow though on, so I'm of the opinion that threats about taking legal >action shouldn't be posted at all.
>
>(In the news.admin.net-abuse.* hierarchy, spammers get mocked about >their 'cartooneys', since the 'attorneys' they threaten people with are >invariably non-existent.)
>
>To Mark: stay above the fray. If someone calls you names repeatedly, >and you don't respond at that level, or with legal threats you've no >intention of carrying out, that person tars him or herself more than you >are tarred (my opinion, of course, YMMV, yadda yadda).

Far from tar, he has lied when he claimed he was not targetting me nor be unfair in his abuse of the AOL TOS system. Several other AOL members have emailed me.

I'm sure they'd be happy to appear in court on my behalf too....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

>--
>Kathy Pascoe ~ kathy@scconsult.com (at home)
>Confused about newsgroups? Visit <news:news.newusers.questions>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:07 PM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990228171349.13527.00006519@ng-ch1.aol.com>...
>Hi, Kathy -
>
>I appreciate the input, and you are probably right about staying out of the >fray. However, I don't say things that I don't mean.
>
>Of course, considering one's options doesn't *necessarily* mean that one
will >pursue them. And there is nothing to be gained by rushing into such things.
As
>I see it, time is on my side. ;-)
>
>Cordially, Mark Foster

You're a liar. You claimed you have not targetted me, and you have.... Others have thought so too on AOL. You don't deserve to be called a "Forum Moderator." You're obviously censoring for the Bahai fundamentalists there, as has been done by others on soc.religion.bahai, bahai-discuss, and so forth.

Your specious excuses twisting the TOS rules only redounds to your shame....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:07 PM
To: TOSBoards1; HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AAli929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700#ao
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990228171349.13527.00006519@ng-ch1.aol.com>...
>Hi, Kathy -
>
>I appreciate the input, and you are probably right about staying out of the >fray. However, I don't say things that I don't mean.
>
>Of course, considering one's options doesn't *necessarily* mean that one
will >pursue them. And there is nothing to be gained by rushing into such things.
As
>I see it, time is on my side. ;-)
>
>Cordially, Mark Foster

You're a liar. You claimed you have not targetted me, and you have.... Others have thought so too on AOL. You don't deserve to be called a "Forum Moderator." You're obviously censoring for the Bahai fundamentalists there, as has been done by others on soc.religion.bahai, bahai-discuss, and so forth.

Your specious excuses twisting the TOS rules only redounds
to your shame....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:10 PM
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990227231928.15440.00001973@ng-fi1.aol.com>...
>Hi, Juan -
>
>I agree that the Baha'i community needs to be more tolerant of diversity.
It
>saddens me that we are so far from conforming to the standard that >taught us.

^Abdul-Baha

How about you Mark and your constant hatch jobs on people on AOL? I find it disgusting that you come in here and pretend to liberality of motive....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:12 PM
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990227232123.15440.00001976@ng-fi1.aol.com>...
>I think that doctrinal unity means that we accept the essentials (whatever
they >are <g>). However, I have also observed a tendency of people to simply echo >each other, which strikes me as a lack of critical thought.

You're obviously regularly exploiting this pronounced pattern of the fundamentalist lackies on AOL.... You know you can count on them to chime in when you need them to shore up your deceitful attacks that pretend to be supporting the TOS rules.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:12 PM
To: HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AAli929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700@aol.com; PParv
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990227232123.15440.00001976@ng-fi1.aol.com>...
>I think that doctrinal unity means that we accept the essentials (whatever
they >are <g>). However, I have also observed a tendency of people to simply echo >each other, which strikes me as a lack of critical thought.

You're obviously regularly exploiting this pronounced pattern of the fundamentalist lackies on AOL.... You know you can count on them to chime in when you need them to shore up your deceitful attacks that pretend to be supporting the TOS rules.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 01, 1999 3:21 PM
Subject: Re: Open plea to Fred

Well, Paul, I know you mean well, and I respect your point of view. Yes, we have disagreed in the past and yes you have been candid. You're entitled to your opinions.

While thanking you for your many contributions that helped create talk.religion.bahai, we'll have to agree to disagree, as they say....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

K. Paul Johnson wrote in message <36dac2f3.0@vlnsvr>...
>Dear Fred,
>
>Since I'm being accused of unfairness for criticizing Saman for >being consistently aggressive in tone (which he's since stopped), >but allegedly ignoring your level of aggression (although you >know I've commented negatively on it several times) I want to >make something perfectly clear. While I think you are on the >right side of the issues, your demeanor is a serious detriment >to the message you are trying to convey. You come across as if >your outrage valve has been stuck in the fully open position for >a very long time. Communicating in a nonstop tone of tirade, >personal denunciation, ranting, etc. makes people take you a lot >less seriously than if you said the same things differently. You >can see that in the case of others; can't you see it in your own?

>You are hurting the cause you profess to serve.
>
>If being around Baha'is in cyberspace really makes you this stressed out, >manically aggressive, whatever it is, and you can't change that, >it would be best to avoid them. Nothing, absolutely nothing, is >worth spending a large portion of your life in a state of >hyperarousal like this. Not only is it bad for one's mental >health, it is very dangerous physically.
>
>Please calm down, for your own sake and for the cause of open >exploration of the merits and demerits of the Baha'i religion and >administration. Shouting does no one any good.
>
>Sincerely,
>
>Paul
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 02, 1999 7:15 AM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

Vinson Jamir wrote in message <36DB5708.437E577E@bellsouth.net>...
>Dear Milissa,
> Seems to me that Fred refers to behaviors of which he disapproves rather than >nationalities and races. I have yet to see any critical comments about Iranian >culture, language, and history emanating from Fred. He simply disapproves of >the behavior of some Iranians within the organization of the Baha'i Faith.
I >would hope the term "Iranian bashing" would imply something more than such limited >criticisms.

Thank you for your more nuanced understanding of what I'm saying. It is the "behavior of some Iranians" within the Bahai Faith that I disapprove of and have always said so. There are exceptions. The general tendency, though, is not pleasant to watch nor experience, and quite destructive to the Bahai Faith....

> To be a qualified "basher" of any particular nationality or ethnicity,
it >should be required that the alleged bashing involve denigration of the entire >ethnicity as such, not merely that some of its members exhibit certain behaviors >within one particular organized religious movement. Consider, for example, how >many times we hear about Italian crime families. Imagine someone being accused of >racism and prejudice for merely mentioning the existence of Italian crime >families! It is behavior we hear about from Fred, repeatedly, but not >condemnation of entire nationalities as such.
> I'll wager there are certain aspects of Iranian culture and society
Fred

Quite deeply, actually.... I've spent considerable parts of my adult life studying the Bahai Writings and the classical Iranian writers. If I had no respect for Iranians per se, I would certainly not have bothered. The accusation of racism against me is but merely another form of the Bahai Technique, in my opinion....

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards >really likes.

>
>vinson
>
>
>Milissa Boyer Kafes wrote:
>
>> Hi Frederick--
>>
>> you wrote:
>> (snip)
>>
>> > The AO has lots of hack Iranian "attorneys" who have no >> > respect for legal and political system. I would find it most >> > eloquently amusing for the likes of Maneck, Foster, Towfiq, >> > Hyman, and such other fanatics to attempt to redeem their >> > "good" names in court. I doubt any jury of 12 would look at >> > the evidence on www.dejanews.com or my archives and >> > rule in their favor....
>>
>> PLEASE Frederick, stop with the Iranian bashing! I know so many Iranians (both >> Baha'i and non-Baha'i)who are so cool.
>>

>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 02, 1999 7:19 AM
Subject: Re: Draper (was: "every planet hath its creatures.")

I would be quite interested in reading Draper's book as well. I have looked for it in the past but was unable at the time to find a copy of it. It should be fascinating reading as a crucial text influencing Abdu-l'Baha's intellectual development.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

jrcole@umich.edu wrote in message <7bfu6b$145$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>Yeah, we have a copy of the 1873? edition here at U-M. I'm going to get it >out and have it photocopied (that would be more like $20!) I have a scanner >with an Automatic Document Feed, so I can just put it right through.
Anybody >who does any serious scanning should have an ADF. They aren't expensive any >more.
>
>cheers Juan
>
>
>

>Juan Cole, History, U of Michigan
><https://www-personal.umich.edu/~jrcole/bahai.htm>
>Buy *Modernity and the Millennium: The Genesis of the Baha'i Faith* at:
><https://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ISBN%3D0231110812/002-4036721-8058448>
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 6:35 AM
To: TOSGeneral@aol.com
Cc: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Insult

This person is insulting me by referring to me and my ideas and posts as "bizarre" and in a derogatory fashion.

Subject: Re: Bahai Censorship Folder
Date: 3/2/1999 5:02 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: <A HREF="aol://3548:WScott1995">WScott1995</A> Message-id: <19990302170211.29244.00002443@ng31.aol.com>

Susan,

Fred said: >>>Do you support the terrorist tactics of Bahai fundamentalism?<<<

You said: >>>Did you see this? <<<

Nope, not until you posted it. I don't read Fred's posts usually, especially when he posts ten at a time. They are too bizarre and life is too short. :)

>>>Now we know why Fred posts our private correspondence. He's terrorized by us!<<<<

LOL! Yes, we're pretty terrible, everyone knows that! ;) <g>

Love and peace, Wendy-----<-@

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 6:07 AM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

The illustrious Bahai Forum Leader on AOL Mark Foster commenting on the request for a Folder titled Bahai Censorship:

>>Several people said that they wanted it. So, I thought that we could give it >>a try. If problems result because of it, it can always be removed later.

FG writes:

>So is this an example of Bahai love and tolerance? Here we appear to have the >real motives of what appears to be the Forum Censor, not Leader....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 8:05 AM
Subject: Re: Love bombing

Dale Grider wrote in message <36DC7ABF.17E4AAC7@bellsouth.net>...

The problem of sin >and its eternal consequences is thus swept under the spiritual carpet.

As a Bahai, I couldn't agree more.... Many of my fellow Bahais live in a dreamy little state of mind that relegates the dark realities of man's human nature to non-existence. However, I don't believe the Bahai Writings neglect the reality of sin and evil....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 6:45 AM
To: help@onelist.com
Subject: false subscriptions to onelist.com

This morning I found 475 messages in my inbox mainly from several onelist.com mailing lists. I realize you have policies against this and don't blame your service. I would appreciate your help in unsubscribing my email from all of your lists or determining what false email I've been entered as or whatever you need to do to stop the bombardment. I've included three sample headers and messages.

Thanks.

FG
FG@hotmail.com

Someone has subscribed me to chatover21@onelist.com

111-homeworkers@onelist.com

a1opportunities@onelist.com

fortune@onelist.com

pchelp@onelist.com

ssbdfreeads-owner@onelist.com

40PlusSingles@onelist.com

pcworks@MailingList.net

From: Shannon Taylor <taylor@netpathway.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: chatover21@onelist.com
To: Chat_Over <chatover21@onelist.com>
Subject: [chatover21] Still A Little Girl
Date: Wed, 03 Mar 1999 19:02:14 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 17:00:11 1999
Received: (qmail 9635 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 01:00:05 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.135.229] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id 635DcDBaF0128M03; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 01:00:05 GMT
Received: (qmail 27055 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 00:54:31 -0000
Received: (qmail 26975 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 00:54:29 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO sammy.netpathway.com) (208.137.139.2) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 00:54:28 -0000 Received: from netpathway.com (port34-wayn.netpathway.com [208.137.139.231])
by sammy.netpathway.com (8.8.5/8.8.5) with ESMTP id SAA06217 for <chatover21@onelist.com>; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 18:56:44 -0600 Message-ID: <36DDCD86.9F8BF85A@netpathway.com>
X-Mailer: Mozilla 4.5 [en] (Win95; I) X-Accept-Language: en
Mailing-List: list chatover21@onelist.com; contact
chatover21-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list chatover21@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:chatover21-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 8bit

From: Shannon Taylor <taylor@netpathway.com>

Sarah I love the poems you sent ..here is one you may like...

The troubles outside seem so far away.
The fighting of wars, making a world decay.
But here in my private little world,
I feel safe and secure, like a little girl.

But in my private retreat it's great.
So different from the world outside, a world full of hate.
I find only peace and love to surround me here.
The feeling of goodness like God is near.

So let me be a little girl so small,
Then I won't have to worry at all.
I'll stay here where I'm safe from the world.
I'll face tomorrow when I'm not a little girl.
I'll settle down with a day dream or two,
After the work is all done and the house is all clean.
Feeling like a little girl, that is hiding from time,
Knowing that I'm grown up in body and mind.

But WAIT, I can't give up my private little world.
Maybe I'll just give up being a little girl.
Life is hard when you are a grown up, it's so much colder.
Oh well, I'll worry about it tomorrow...when I'm older.

© Shannon Taylor

-----
To unsubscribe from this mailing list, or to change your subscription to digest, go to the ONelist web site, at <https://www.onelist.com> and select the Member Center link from the menu bar on the left.

From: "Jeff Wilhelmi" <jwilh007@prairie.lakes.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
To: <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>
Subject: [40PlusSingles] Re: Oh, Yeah....
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:17:15 -0600
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 15:15:22 1999
Received: (qmail 10231 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 23:15:15 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.13] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
591DccXPP0022M04; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 23:15:15 GMT
Received: (qmail 31838 invoked by alias); 3 Mar 1999 23:16:15 -0000
Received: (qmail 31827 invoked from network); 3 Mar 1999 23:16:13 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO Mail.lakes.com) (209.181.160.3) by pop.onelist.com
with SMTP; 3 Mar 1999 23:16:13 -0000 Received: from Prairie.lakes.com (Prairie.Lakes.com [209.181.160.1]) by Mail.lakes.com (8.8.7/8.8.7) with ESMTP id RAA10634 for <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:17:15 -0600 Received: from jwilh007.lakes.com (Modem036-Sleepyeye.lakes.com [209.181.177.168] (may be forged)) by Prairie.lakes.com (8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP
id RAA14638 for <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>; Wed, 3 Mar 1999
17:17:14 -0600
Message-ID: <005f01be65cb$fa88fa40$a8b1b5d1@jwilh007.lakes.com>

X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 4.72.2106.4
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V4.72.2106.4
Mailing-List: list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com; contact
40PlusSingles-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:40PlusSingles-unsubscribe@ONElist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

From: "Jeff Wilhelmi" <jwilh007@prairie.lakes.com>

Complex sounds more like duplex. But who loves ya baby??? Jeff
-----Original Message-----
From: Bluespearl@aol.com <Bluespearl@aol.com>
To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>
Date: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 2:27 PM
Subject: [40PlusSingles] Re: Oh, Yeah....

>From: Bluespearl@aol.com
>
><< What is it, I send in my pic, next we go from # 1 to # 5, people on list > leave. Is it me or > just my damn complex again???? Jeff from Minnesota >>
>
>Ha Ha Jeff! I thought I was the one with the inferiority complex....
>
>Abby
>
>-----
>Have you visited our new web site?
><https://www.onelist.com>
>Onelist: Helping to create Internet communities
>

-----
Start a new hobby. Meet a new friend.
<https://www.onelist.com>
Onelist: The leading provider of free email list services

From: "Tim Klymkow" <klymkow@a-znet.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: pcworks@MailingList.net
To: <pcworks@MailingList.net>
Subject: Re: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98
cd.
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:40:58 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 14:49:21 1999
Received: (qmail 10014 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 22:49:15 -0000 Received: from lion.esosoft.net [207.153.254.66] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP id 040DccwXN0117M03; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 22:49:14 GMT
Received: from moose.esosoft.net (moose@moose.esosoft.net [192.41.5.145])by lion.esosoft.net (8.9.1/8.9.1) with ESMTP id RAA23724;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:47:31
-0500 (EST)
Received: from localhost (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id
PAA25454; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:46:21 -0700 (MST)
Received: by moose.esosoft.net (bulk_mailer v1.9); Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:56
-0700
Received: (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id PAA24669; Wed, 3
Mar 1999 15:43:53 -0700 (MST)
Received: from mail.a-znet.com (root@[209.177.29.6]) by moose.esosoft.net
(8.8.5) id PAA24640; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:48 -0700 (MST)
X-Authentication-Warning: moose.esosoft.net: Host root@[209.177.29.6]
claimed to be mail.a-znet.com
Received: from klymkow1 (syr2161.a-znet.com [209.2.143.161])by mail.a-znet.com
(8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP id RAA01585;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:53:33 -0500
Message-ID: <005f01be65c7$5065d1e0$6950fea9@klymkow1>
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 5.00.0810.800
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V5.00.0810.800
Sender: owner-pcworks@MailingList.net
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Gary,
The only method that works is to rename (or mark as hidden, or delete) all instances of WIN.COM on your hard drives, and then run setup from the DOS prompt.

Info courtesy of Sean Erwins's Windows 98 FAQ at <https://www.listmaker.net/win98/index.html#upgrade> .

Hope this helps!

Tim Klymkow

----- Original Message -----
From: Gary <ggshaw@uq.net.au>

Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 4:55 AM
Subject: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.

>Problem: Win95b installed. Want to >upgrade to Win98. I only have Win98 OEM
>CD. I get the following message after >Win98 has copied temp files to begin >install.
>"Your computer has an operating system >installed, which cannot be upgraded by >this version.
>
>"error SU0168"
>
<snip>

===== PCWorks Mailing List =====
Visit Our Random "Member HomePage of the Week":
Shelley Gaffney's "Shelley's Money Making Opportunities"
<https://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/Labyrinth/9790/>
PCWorks WebPage <https://www.telesouth1.com/~pcworks>
=====

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 10:09 AM
To: TOSGeneral@aol.com
Cc: TOSBoards1@aol.com; FG@hotmail.com
Subject: TOS Bahai Forums/Message Boards/For Non-Bahais

This person is also intimating that I'm a covenant breaker and therefore a heretic. As a Bahai in good standing for more than 23 years, I find this insulting and request that you place a TOS on his account.

Subject: Re: PS: Fred on being a Bahá'í
Date: 3/3/1999 3:23 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: <A HREF="aol://3548:Bennachti">Bennachti</A>
Message-id: <19990303152323.15538.00002757@ng96.aol.com>

<< That someone professing to be a Bahá'í would create a link to this site on his own web site doesn't speak well for that person's profession of devotion to the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh. >>

Roy,

Of course there is a big difference between being a Baha'i, and being "a member of the Baha'i Faith". The person who you quoted just said he is "a member". 'Abdul-Baha was clear about what the qualities of a true Baha'i are.

True Baha'is believe in peace and unity, love, harmony, friendliness and fellowship with their fellow believers and humankind in general. They also engage themselves in service to humankind. The absence of those qualities shows a lack of Baha'i spirit, which is central to our Faith.

No matter how much some people offer their love and friendship, some others insist on eyeing it with suspicion and hatred. That is not the Baha'i way.
So be it. To them their religion, and to us, our religion.

Zaynab

<A HREF="https://hometown.aol.com/rbcfbenna/aolchats.html">AOL Bahá'í Chats
</A>
A website with resources for learning about the Bahá'í Faith <A HREF="https://members.aol.com/bennachti/bahai.htm">Camphor Fountain</A> Bahá'í Faith Information
For Seekers of Truth And Students of Life

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:28 AM
To: abuse@usa.net
Subject: listserv spam from testcase2@usa.net

Dear abuse@usa.net

Someone has been using an account at testcase2@usa.net for nearly a month now to bombard my FG@hotmail.com account with false subscriptions to listservs. Two listserv administrators at Indiana.edu have helped a lot to figure out where it's coming from and I include their messages below along with the header and message of one piece of mailing showing testcase2@usa.net in the FROM.

If you could turn off that account completely it would really help. I also ask you to identify to me who the person is behind the spam so that I might be able to do something about it. They've begun a second wave of attacks just yesterday and today from lists at www.onelist.com whom I've notified but seem to still be passing many of the messages, though not all, through the testcase2@usa.net address. The last message here shows that address again.

I had 475 messages in my inbox this morning most from this account testcase2@usa.net

Thanks in advance for anything you can do to stop this.

Desperately in need of your help,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----

From: LISTSERV Administrator <lstadmin@indiana.edu>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>; stephenl@indiana.edu <stephenl@indiana.edu>
Date: Friday, February 26, 1999 10:32 AM
Subject: Re: false listserv subscription

>Frederick and Larry,
>
>Do you anything about the subscription testcase2@usa.net? If I'm >reading the headers right it looks like the message sent to Frederick >came from that address.
>
>Larry -- if you want to test this you could set testcase2 to nomail and >we could see if that stops the flow of mail to Frederick.
>
>Peg Bassett
>UITS Messaging Team
>
>On Mon, 22 Feb 1999, FG wrote:
>
>> Sorry it's taken me a week or so to reply. I'm still receiving >> all the messages posted to your listservs. I'm going to try >> to attach them and insert them in here to give you the >> complete headers in one way or another.
>>
>> I really appreciate your help. My account is completely >> overwhelmed by all this junk mail and takes several >> minutes to download the few legitimate messages.
>>
>> FG
>> FG@hotmail.com
>>
>>
>> >From testcase2@USA.NET Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: from [204.68.24.139] by hotmail.com (1.1) with SMTP id
>> MHotMailB89ACFE724011D101708CCC44188B9B990; Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: (qmail 18627 invoked by uid 0); 22 Feb 1999 12:28:53 -0000 >> Received: from listserv.indiana.edu [129.79.5.189] by mx02 via mtad (2.6) >> with ESMTD id 831DBVmoK0146M02; Mon, 22 Feb 1999 12:14:36 GMT >> Received: from piano (129.79.5.189) by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows NT v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F38FDCE0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
>> Feb 1999 7:14:14 -0500
>> Received: from LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU by LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU >> (LISTSERV-TCP/IP >> release 1.8c) with spool id 17591351 for
>> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:12
>> -0500 >> Received: from imo12.mx.aol.com by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows
>> NT
>> v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F2CC3EC0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
>> Feb
>> 1999 7:14:12 -0500 >> Received: from BGeoT@aol.com by imo12.mx.aol.com (IMOV18.1) id ODDL24348
>> for
>> <deep-south-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:08
>> -0500 (EST)
>> Mime-Version: 1.0
>> Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
>> Content-transfer-encoding: 7bit
>> X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 205
>> Message-ID: <7f98222.36d14a10@aol.com>
>> Date: Mon, 22 Feb 1999 07:14:08 EST
>> Reply-To: BGeoT@AOL.COM
>> Sender: "A discussion list for genealogy in AL, GA, FL and MS"
>> <DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU>
>> From: George Turnipseed <BGeoT@AOL.COM>
>> Subject: [D-S] JOHNSTON&CALDWELL-HancockCoMS-1800s
>> To: DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU

```
>> I am searching for info, ancestors of James Johnston born c1810 in NC, >> married Eleonore ____ c1830 Hancock Co MS. Their son, George W Johnston
>> born 1841 married Victoria V Caldwell.
>> Please contact by e-mail: BGeoT@aol.com
>> George Turnipseed
>>
>> -----
>> List problems?
>> Check
>> your WELCOME message FIRST
>> https://php.indiana.edu/~stephenl/problems.htm SECOND >> then contact stephenL@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>
>> To: Stephens, Larry V <stephenl@indiana.edu>; 'FG'
>> <FG@hotmail.com>; 'lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu'
>> <lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu>
>> Cc: 'help@hotmail.com' <help@hotmail.com>; 'support@hotmail.com'
>> <support@hotmail.com>
>> Date: Tuesday, February 16, 1999 12:49 PM
>> Subject: RE: false listserv subscription
>>
>>
>> >I've searched back through all of the LISTSERV log files for February I did
>> yes,
>> >not find a subscription request from Mr. Glaysher for the >> Deep-South-Roots-L
>> >list. I also did not find any indication that mail to this list was >> >distributed to >> >the address FG@hotmail.com.
>> >
>> >Mr. Glaysher -- are you still receiving list mail from our server? If
>> yes,
>> >could >> >you please forward a copy of a recent message, with full headers to me?
>> >
>> >
>> >Peggy Bassett
>> >University Information Technology Services
>> >Indiana University, Bloomington
>> >bassett@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>> >> owner-java-com@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >> Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >>
>> >> LINGUIST@LINGUIST.LDC.UPENN.EDU
>> >> LISTSERV@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> linguist@linguistlist.org
>> >>
>> >> PENNSYLVANIA-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> owner-pennsylvania-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu
>> >> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >>
>> >> MTG-STRATEGY-L@ORACLE.WIZARDS.COM
>> >> PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
>> >> owner-pli-y2klaw@pli.edu
>>
>>
>
>
```

From: "Tim Klymkow" <klymkow@a-znet.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: pcworks@MailingList.net
To: <pcworks@MailingList.net>
Subject: Re: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:40:58 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 14:49:21 1999
Received: (qmail 10014 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 22:49:15 -0000 Received: from lion.esosoft.net [207.153.254.66] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTD id 040DccwxN0117M03; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 22:49:14 GMT
Received: from moose.esosoft.net (moose@moose.esosoft.net [192.41.5.145])by lion.esosoft.net (8.9.1/8.9.1) with ESMTD id RAA23724;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:47:31
-0500 (EST)
Received: from localhost (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id
PAA25454; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:46:21 -0700 (MST)
Received: by moose.esosoft.net (bulk_mailer v1.9); Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:56
-0700
Received: (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id PAA24669; Wed,
Mar 1999 15:43:53 -0700 (MST)
Received: from mail.a-znet.com (root@[209.177.29.6]) by moose.esosoft.net
(8.8.5) id PAA24640; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:48 -0700 (MST)
X-Authentication-Warning: moose.esosoft.net: Host root@[209.177.29.6]
claimed
to be mail.a-znet.com
Received: from klymkowl (syrt2161.a-znet.com [209.2.143.161])by

mail.a-znet.com
(8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP id RAA01585;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:53:33 -0500
Message-ID: <005f01be65c7$5065d1e0$6950fea9@klymkow1>
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 5.00.0810.800
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V5.00.0810.800
Sender: owner-pcworks@MailingList.net
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Gary,
The only method that works is to rename (or mark as hidden, or delete) all instances of WIN.COM on your hard drives, and then run setup from the DOS prompt.

Info courtesy of Sean Erwins's Windows 98 FAQ at <https://www.listmaker.net/win98/index.html#upgrade> .

Hope this helps!

Tim Klymkow

----- Original Message -----
From: Gary <ggshaw@uq.net.au>

Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 4:55 AM
Subject: PCWorks: Error SU0168 uprgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.

>Problem: Win95b installed. Want to >upgrade to Win98. I only have Win98 OEM
>CD. I get the following message after >Win98 has copied temp files to begin
>install.
>"Your computer has an operating system >installed, which cannot be upgraded by
>this version.
>
>"error SU0168"
>
<snip>

===== PCWorks Mailing List =====
Visit Our Random "Member HomePage of the Week":
Shelley Gaffney's "Shelley's Money Making Opportunities"
<https://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/Labyrinth/9790/>
PCWorks WebPage <https://www.telesouth1.com/~pcworks>
=====

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:34 AM
Subject: Technique Bahai

During the last year and a half, a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:
"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:
"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:

"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Juan Cole wrote, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to being "Baha'i" at all)."

"Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith."

"The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fall silent."

"With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of "claiming authority," of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them."

"This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute."

"Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:37 AM
Subject: Maneck's Technique

Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:
"It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning, they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."

"I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"

FG, February 15, 1999:
"Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking "slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or interpretation."

"All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and psychological demonization and terrorism."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:38 AM
Subject: FAQ - arb & trb - history

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
March 3, 1999
This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly,
I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and
religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and
conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai
and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai

-----
January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newsgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the "neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999:
Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
-----

This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:40 AM
Subject: brief - srb - quotes

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:
"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb84.htm>

Kent Johnson:
"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb61.htm>

Ron House:
"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb53.htm>

Timothy Mulligan:
"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb59.htm>

RobertNik:
"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb54.htm>

Bruce Burrill:
"What are Baha'i afraid of?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb60.htm>

Zute flute:
"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb50.htm>

YU ZIR:
"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb46.htm>

Matthew Cromer:
"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with...."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb47.htm>

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:
"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb77.htm>

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:
"Sorry to hear that you've been suppressed on srb. Your comments were always very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Ex7.htm>

Harold Shinsato:
"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb33.htm>

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:
"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb79.htm>

Laeterna:
"To say I was flabberghasted at this type of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored2.htm>

Guy Macon"

"Please explain which portion of the charter the following post violates."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored1.htm>

Robin Peters:

"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb43.htm>

jgoldberg:

"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb57.htm>

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:

"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb76.htm>

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----

From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:41 AM

Subject: 7-24-98 Universal House of Justice

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>

To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>; Letters to Editor <letters@nytimes.com>;

bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>

Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998

Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 9:03 PM

July 24,1998

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

As a Bahai, I am saddened by the news of the execution of yet another Bahai in Iran. However, the immediate public statements made by Firuz Kazemzadeh of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, reminiscent of Robert Henderson's piece in The New York Times on January 13th of this year, appear equally lamentable for their blatant hypocrisy: "We had hoped that President Khatami's assertions about freedom, justice and the rule of law in Iran would apply to the Baha'is of that country.... We urge the international community to protest vigorously Mr. Rowhani's killing and to seek justice for the beleaguered Iranian Baha'i community."

The tragic loss of Bahai lives in Iran and the subsequent exploitation of their deaths by Bahai spokesmen, often in the American media, always courting the President and other members of the government, has become a predictable pattern rendered intolerable in the context of continuing and pervasive Bahai censorship and denial of human and civil rights in the United States and elsewhere. Such incidents as I queried you about in my unanswered email of March 31, 1997, available on my Web site, regarding the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the resignations of a number of scholars from the Bahai Encyclopedia, the attacks on the listserv known as Talisman I at Indiana University, the harassing and blacklisting of many individuals, Bahai and non-Bahai, suggest profoundly deep-seated problems within the Bahai community and administration.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/To-UHJ1.htm>

To these incidents must now be added the apparent conspiracy for more than a year and a half of the Bahai Computer and Communications Committee (BCCA), under the chairmanship of Mark Towfiq, to defeat twice now, along with the collusion of other Bahais, the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup on the Bahai Faith which would be known as talk.religion.bahai. You may find extensive documentation for all of these violations of the basic human rights of many Bahais and non-Bahais on my Web site, "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

Because the third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai on Usenet is approaching, after August 28th, I ask you again to investigate the BCCA and its depriving me of access last November from all private Bahai-only mailing lists at a crucial moment just when the tide of discussion was going very much in favor of the newsgroup, noted by many observers. I also ask whether you supported or were involved in that decision? The relevant files can be found on my Web site under Bahai-Discuss Archives.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

Similarly, I would like to know whether your institution or the BCCA has approved of or advocated the recent ban of my email signature file by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai, as well as their complete ban for more than a year and a half now on all discussion regarding talk.religion.bahai.

The prevailing atmosphere of suppression of free speech and religious conscience that now characterizes the Bahai Faith cannot but call into question the honesty of many members of the Bahai administration and perhaps the institutions themselves.

I ask once more whether censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith and what passages of the Bahai Writings support it, what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship?

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 8:54 AM
Subject: Re: False TOSs on AOL - Bahai Forum Leader Mark Foster

Vinson Jamir wrote in message <36DE126C.100D27E2@bellsouth.net>...

He loves
>Persian literature and maybe even certain Persian dishes,

"Love" is too unqualified of a word. While I respect Rumi and other classical Iranian poets, they fail, as Yeats once said of an idealistic poet, to have a Vision of Evil.... I was especially struck by this once reading the Mathnawi and simply put it aside and have never had any desire to pick it up again. Much Bahai "literature" strikes me the same way....

Koreshe bademjan.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 9:07 AM
To: abuse@mindspring.net
Subject: mindspring spammer

Please help stop the person who is spamming me with false listserv subscriptions. They may be originating from mindspring.com or usa.net. My note to usa.net should explain the situation to you. The last message here contains reference to mindspring.com:

Thank you.

FG
FG@hotmail.com

Dear abuse@usa.net

Someone has been using an account at testcase2@usa.net for nearly a month now to bombard my FG@hotmail.com account with false subscriptions to listservs. Two listserv administrators at Indiana.edu have helped a lot to figure out where it's coming from and I include their messages below along with the header and message of one piece of mailing showing testcase2@usa.net in the FROM.

If you could turn off that account completely it would really help. I also ask you to identify to me who the person is behind the spam so that I might be able to do something about it. They've begun a second wave of attacks just yesterday and today from lists at www.onelist.com whom I've notified but seem to still be passing many of the messages, though not all, through the testcase2@usa.net address. The last message here shows that address again.

I had 475 messages in my inbox this morning most from this account testcase2@usa.net

Thanks in advance for anything you can do to stop this.

Desperately in need of your help,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----

From: LISTSERV Administrator <lstdmin@indiana.edu>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>; stephenl@indiana.edu <stephenl@indiana.edu>
Date: Friday, February 26, 1999 10:32 AM
Subject: Re: false listserv subscription

>Frederick and Larry,
>

>Do you anything about the subscription testcase2@usa.net? If I'm >reading the headers right it looks like the message sent to Frederick >came from that address.

>
>Larry -- if you want to test this you could set testcase2 to nomail and >we could see if that stops the flow of mail to Frederick.

>
>Peg Bassett
>UITS Messaging Team
>

>On Mon, 22 Feb 1999, FG wrote:

>
>> Sorry it's taken me a week or so to reply. I'm still receiving >> all the messages posted to your listservs. I'm going to try >> to attach them and insert them in here to give you the >> complete headers in one way or another.

>>
>> I really appreciate your help. My account is completely >> overwhelmed by all this junk mail and takes several >> minutes to download the few legitimate messages.

>>
>> FG
>> FG@hotmail.com
>>

>>
>> >From testcase2@USA.NET Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: from [204.68.24.139] by hotmail.com (1.1) with SMTP id
>> MHotMailB89ACFE724011D101708CCC44188B9B990; Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: (qmail 18627 invoked by uid 0); 22 Feb 1999 12:28:53 -0000 >> Received: from listserv.indiana.edu [129.79.5.189] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)
>> with ESMTP id 831DBVmoK0146M02; Mon, 22 Feb 1999 12:14:36 GMT
>> Received: from piano (129.79.5.189) by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows NT v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F38FDCE0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
>> Feb 1999 7:14:14 -0500

>> Received: from LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU by LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU (LISTSERV-TCP/IP
>> release 1.8c) with spool id 17591351 for
>> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU; Mon, 22 Feb 1999

07:14:12
>> -0500 >> Received: from imo12.mx.aol.com by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for Windows

>> NT
>> v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F2CC3EC0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
Feb
>> 1999 7:14:12 -0500

>> Received: from BGeoT@aol.com by imo12.mx.aol.com (IMOV18.1) id ODDL24348
>> for
>> <deep-south-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:08
>> -0500 (EST)

>> Mime-Version: 1.0
>> Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
>> Content-transfer-encoding: 7bit
>> X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 205
>> Message-ID: <7F98222.36d14a10@aol.com>
>> Date: Mon, 22 Feb 1999 07:14:08 EST
>> Reply-To: BGeoT@AOL.COM

>> Sender: "A discussion list for genealogy in AL, GA, FL and MS"
>> <DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU>
>> From: George Turnipseed <BGeoT@AOL.COM>
>> Subject: [D-S] JOHNSTON&CALDWELL-HancockCoMS-1800s
>> To: DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>>

>> I am searching for info, ancestors of James Johnston born c1810 in NC, >> married Eleonore ____ c1830 Hancock Co MS. Their son, George W Johnston
>> born 1841 married Victoria V Caldwell.
>> Please contact by e-mail: BGeoT@aol.com
>> George Turnipseed
>>

>>
>> -----
>> List problems?
>> Check
>> your WELCOME message FIRST >> <https://php.indiana.edu/~stephenl/problems.htm> SECOND
>> then contact stephenl@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>>

>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>
>> To: Stephens, Larry V <stephenl@indiana.edu>; 'FG'
>> <FG@hotmail.com>; 'lstdmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu' >> <lstdmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu>

>> Cc: 'help@hotmail.com' <help@hotmail.com>; 'support@hotmail.com'
>> <support@hotmail.com>
>> Date: Tuesday, February 16, 1999 12:49 PM
>> Subject: RE: false listserv subscription
>>
>>
>> >I've searched back through all of the LISTSERV log files for February I
did >> >not find a subscription request from Mr. Glaysher for the >> Deep-South-Roots-L
>> >list. I also did not find any indication that mail to this list was >> >distributed to >> >the address FG@hotmail.com.
>> >
>> >Mr. Glaysher -- are you still receiving list mail from our server? If
yes,
>> >could >> >you please forward a copy of a recent message, with full headers to me?
>> >
>> >
>> >Peggy Bassett
>> >University Information Technology Services
>> >Indiana University, Bloomington
>> >bassett@indiana.edu

>> >>
>> >> owner-java-com@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >> Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >>
>> >> LINGUIST@LINGUIST.LDC.UPENN.EDU
>> >> LISTSERV@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> linguist@linguistlist.org
>> >>
>> >> PENNSYLVANIA-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> owner-pennsylvania-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu
>> >> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >>
>> >> MTG-STRATEGY-L@ORACLE.WIZARDS.COM
>> >> PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
>> >> owner-pli-y2klaw@pli.edu
>>
>>
>
>

From: "Tim Klymkow" <klymkow@a-znet.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: pcworks@MailingList.net
To: <pcworks@MailingList.net>
Subject: Re: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98
cd.
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:40:58 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 14:49:21 1999
Received: (qmail 10014 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 22:49:15 -0000 Received: from lion.esosoft.net [207.153.254.66] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP id 040DccwN0117M03; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 22:49:14 GMT
Received: from moose.esosoft.net (moose@moose.esosoft.net [192.41.5.145]) by lion.esosoft.net (8.9.1/8.9.1) with ESMTP id RAA23724;Wed, 3 Mar 1999
17:47:31
-0500 (EST)
Received: from localhost (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id
PAA25454; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:46:21 -0700 (MST)
Received: by moose.esosoft.net (bulk_mailer v1.9); Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:56
-0700
Received: (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id PAA24669; Wed, 3
Mar 1999 15:43:53 -0700 (MST)
Received: from mail.a-znet.com (root@[209.177.29.6]) by moose.esosoft.net
(8.8.5) id PAA24640; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:48 -0700 (MST)
X-Authentication-Warning: moose.esosoft.net: Host root@[209.177.29.6]
claimed
to be mail.a-znet.com
Received: from klymkow1 (syr2161.a-znet.com [209.2.143.161])by mail.a-znet.com
(8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP id RAA01585;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:53:33 -0500
Message-ID: <005f01be65c7$5065d1e0$6950fea9@klymkow1>
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 5.00.0810.800
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V5.00.0810.800
Sender: owner-pcworks@MailingList.net
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Gary,
The only method that works is to rename (or mark as hidden, or delete) all instances of WIN.COM on your hard drives, and then run setup from the DOS prompt.

Info courtesy of Sean Erwins's Windows 98 FAQ at <https://www.listmaker.net/win98/index.html#upgrade> .

Hope this helps!

Tim Klymkow

----- Original Message -----
From: Gary <ggshaw@uq.net.au>

Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 4:55 AM
Subject: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.

>Problem: Win95b installed. Want to >upgrade to Win98. I only have Win98 OEM
>CD. I get the following message after >Win98 has copied temp files to begin
>install.
>"Your computer has an operating system >installed, which cannot be upgraded by
>this version.
>
>"error SU0168"
>
<snip>

===== PCWorks Mailing List =====
Visit Our Random "Member HomePage of the Week":
Shelley Gaffney's "Shelley's Money Making Opportunities"
<https://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/Labyrinth/9790/>
PCWorks WebPage <https://www.telesouth1.com/~pcworks>
=====

Received: from unknown (HELO smtp1.mindspring.com) (207.69.200.31) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 13:55:55 -0000

From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 05:40:36 1999
Received: (qmail 8075 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 13:40:16 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.135.253] by mx03 via mtad (2.6) with ESMTP id 700DcDN0o0172M03; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 13:40:15 GMT
Received: (qmail 29602 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 13:35:28 -0000
Received: (qmail 29557 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 13:35:27 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO smtp1.mindspring.com) (207.69.200.31) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 13:35:27 -0000
Received: from hp-customer (user-381c01j.dialup.mindspring.com [209.86.0.51]) by smtp1.mindspring.com (8.8.5/8.8.5) with SMTP id IAA01449;
Thu, 4 Mar 1999 08:40:03 -0500 (EST)
Message-Id: <3.0.1.32.19990304083637.006a7b0c@pop.mindspring.com>
X-Sender: dufrinr@pop.mindspring.com
X-Mailer: Windows Eudora Light Version 3.0.1 (32)
Date: Thu, 04 Mar 1999 08:36:37 -0500
To: (Recipient list suppressed)
From: "Classify98.com" <dufrinr@mindspring.com>
Mailing-List: list fortune@onelist.com; contact fortune-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list fortune@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:fortune-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
Mime-Version: 1.0
Content-Type: text/plain; charset="us-ascii"
Subject: [fortune] Classify98.com On-line Classifeid Ad Submission Service
From: "Classify98.com" <dufrinr@mindspring.com>

ANNOUNCING ! Classify98.com - On-line Classified Ad Submission Service

List your Classified Ad with up to 300 Classified sites for only $19.95

Classify98.com will professionally submit your Ad within 24 hours and send you a detailed report of every submission. All you need to do is fill in the secure on-line order form

To accomplish the same task manually would take days if not weeks of your time, so why advertise in just a handful of places when your Ad can be seen all over the US and the world.

Submit you classified ad today at :

<https://www.trellian.com/cgi-bin/msw/entry?id=4625&file=https://www.classify98.com>

Continued Success

Rodney J. Dufrin

* * * * *

NetPromo Site Submission Service : Submit to 900 Sites FREE

<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/netpromo/main.html>

16 SAFE to email list. Get your list today !
<mailto:list@getresponse.com>

FREE Autoresponders that follow-up :
<https://www.getresponse.com/?12795>

-----
We have a new web site!

<https://www.onelist.com>

Onelist: The leading provider of free email community services

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 10:01 AM
To: TOSGeneral@aol.com
Cc: TOSBoards1@aol.com; FG@hotmail.com
Subject: TOS Bahai Forums/Message Boards/for Non Bahais

This person attacks the sincerity of my religious convictions:

Subject: Fred on being a Bahá'í
Date: 3/3/1999 11:40 AM Eastern Standard Time
From: <A HREF="aol://3548:Arhil">Arhil</A>
Message-id: <19990303114024.00290.00002884@ng-fd1.aol.com>

<<As a MEMBER OF THE BAHAI FAITH for over 23 YEARS,>>

Fred -

You make a big point, both in these folders & in your web site, about how long you've been a Bahá'í & how devoted you are to the Faith. If this is true, then I have a question for you - Why do you have links on your web site to Christian & Muslim sites which declare Bahá'u'lláh to be a false prophet & the Bahá'í Faith to be a corruption of true religion (I'm speaking specifically of "Bahá'í Christian Fireside Letters" & "Answering Bahá'u'lláh")? This is not consistent w/ your claims of devotion.

In love and brotherhood,
Roy

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 10:06 AM
To: TOSGeneral@aol.com
Cc: TOSBoards1@aol.com; FG@hotmail.com
Subject: TOS Bahai Forums/Message Boards/For Non-Bahais

This person is threatening me in a manner that only Bahais can do to other Bahais and which non-Bahais may entirely fail to perceive: He's intimating I'm disloyal to the Bahai Faith and its teachings and therefore a "covenant breaker," the worst accusation a Bahai can make of another. I request that you place a TOS on his account for this coercive tactic.

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Subject: PS: Fred on being a Bahá'í
Date: 3/3/1999 2:46 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: <A HREF="aol://3548:Arhil">Arhil</A>
Message-id: <19990303144610.28354.00002877@ng117.aol.com>

Fred -

As a further note, the "Answering Bahá'u'lláh" web site displays a copy of Bahá'u'lláh's picture. The Universal House of Justice has given guidance on this matter:

"Concerning the question of display of the photograph of Baha'u'llah, the Guardian's instructions were that this should be done only with the utmost reverence, and then only on special occasions."
(From a letter dated 1 August 17 written by the Universal House of Justice to an individual believer)

"It would be good to advise the young Persian believer who has this picture that, while we do not wish to suggest that he should remove the photograph from his book, it would be inappropriate for him to show it to others in a casual manner. As you know, the photograph of Baha'u'llah is very precious and it should be handled with due reverence and respect."
(From a letter dated 7 February 1972 written by the Universal House of Justice to an individual believer)

"The portraits of the Bab and Baha'u'llah should be shown infrequently and on very special occasions, such as a special observance connected with an event intimately associated with the Forerunner or Founder of our Faith.

"We do not think that the regular National Convention is such a special occasion, and we feel that the privilege of displaying these very precious portraits should not be abused."
(From a letter dated 12 July 1973 written by the Universal House of Justice to the National Spiritual Assembly of Panama)

Obviously, the creators of the web site had no such concerns regarding reverence. That someone professing to be a Bahá'í would create a link to this site on his own web site doesn't speak well for that person's profession of devotion to the Cause of Bahá'u'lláh.

In love and brotherhood,
Roy

"Thy Name is my healing, O my God, and remembrance of Thee is my remedy."
- Bahá'u'lláh

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 4:39 PM
To: guylaw@yahoo.com
Subject: testcase2usa.net spammer

Dear guylaw@yahoo.com

Someone has been using an account at testcase2@usa.net for nearly a month now to bombard my FG@hotmail.com account with false subscriptions to listservs. Two listserv administrators at Indiana.edu have helped a lot to figure out where it's coming from and I include their messages below along with the header and message of one piece of mailing showing testcase2@usa.net in the FROM.

If you could turn off that account completely it would really help. I also ask you to identify to me who the person is behind the spam so that I might be able to do something about it. They've begun a second wave of attacks just yesterday and today from lists at www.onelist.com whom I've notified but seem to still be passing many of the messages, though not all, through the testcase2@usa.net address. The last message here shows that address again.

I had 475 messages in my inbox this morning most from this account testcase2@usa.net and another 319 this afternoon!!

Thanks in advance for anything you can do to stop this.

Desperately in need of your help,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----
From: LISTSERV Administrator <lstdmin@indiana.edu>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>; stephenl@indiana.edu <stephenl@indiana.edu>
Date: Friday, February 26, 1999 10:32 AM
Subject: Re: false listserv subscription

>Frederick and Larry,
>
>Do you anything about the subscription testcase2@usa.net? If I'm >reading the headers right it looks like the message sent to Frederick >came from that address.
>
>Larry -- if you want to test this you could set testcase2 to nomail and >we could see if that stops the flow of mail to Frederick.
>
>Peg Bassett
>UITS Messaging Team
>
>On Mon, 22 Feb 1999, FG wrote:
>
>> Sorry it's taken me a week or so to reply. I'm still receiving >> all the messages posted to your listservs. I'm going to try >> to attach them and insert them in here to give you the >> complete headers in one way or another.
>>
>> I really appreciate your help. My account is completely >> overwhelmed by all this junk mail and takes several >> minutes to download the few legitimate messages.
>>
>> FG
>> FG@hotmail.com
>>
>>
>> >From testcase2@USA.NET Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: from [204.68.24.139] by hotmail.com (1.1) with SMTP id
>> MHotMailB89ACFE724011D101708CCC44188B9B990; Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: (qmail 18627 invoked by uid 0); 22 Feb 1999 12:28:53 -0000 >> Received: from listserv.indiana.edu [129.79.5.189] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)
>> with ESMTP id 831DBVmoK0146M02; Mon, 22 Feb 1999 12:14:36 GMT
>> Received: from piano (129.79.5.189) by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows NT v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F38FDCE0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
>> Feb 1999 7:14:14 -0500
>> Received: from LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU by LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU (LISTSERV-TCP/IP >> release 1.8c) with spool id 17591351 for

```

>> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU; Mon, 22 Feb 1999 07:14:12
>> -0500 >> Received: from imo12.mx.aol.com by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for Windows
>> NT
>> v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F2CC3EC0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
Feb
>> 1999 7:14:12 -0500 >> Received: from BGeoT@aol.com by imo12.mx.aol.com (IMOV18.1) id ODDL24348
>> for
>> <deep-south-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:08
>> -0500 (EST)
>> Mime-Version: 1.0
>> Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
>> Content-transfer-encoding: 7bit
>> X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 205
>> Message-ID: <7f98222.36d14a10@aol.com>
>> Date: Mon, 22 Feb 1999 07:14:08 EST
>> Reply-To: BGeoT@AOL.COM
>> Sender: "A discussion list for genealogy in AL, GA, FL and MS"
>> <DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU>
>> From: George Turnipseed <BGeoT@AOL.COM>
>> Subject: [D-S] JOHNSTON&CALDWELL-HancockCoMS-1800s
>> To: DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>>
>> I am searching for info, ancestors of James Johnston born c1810 in NC, >> married Eleonore ____ c1830 Hancock Co MS. Their son, George W Johnston
>> born 1841 married Victoria V Caldwell.
>> Please contact by e-mail: BGeoT@aol.com
>> George Turnipseed
>>
>> -----
>> List problems?
>> Check
>> your WELCOME message FIRST
>> https://php.indiana.edu/~stephenl/problems.htm SECOND
>> then contact stephenL@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>
>> To: Stephens, Larry V <stephenl@indiana.edu>; 'FG'
>> <FG@hotmail.com>; 'lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu'
>> <lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu>
>> Cc: 'help@hotmail.com' <help@hotmail.com>; 'support@hotmail.com'
>> <support@hotmail.com>
>> Date: Tuesday, February 16, 1999 12:49 PM
>> Subject: RE: false listserv subscription
>>
>>
>> >I've searched back through all of the LISTSERV log files for February I
>> did >> >not find a subscription request from Mr. Glaysheer for the >> Deep-South-Roots-L
>> >list. I also did not find any indication that mail to this list was >> >distributed to >> >the address FG@hotmail.com.
>> >
>> >Mr. Glaysheer -- are you still receiving list mail from our server? If
>> yes,
>> >could >> >you please forward a copy of a recent message, with full headers to me?
>> >
>> >
>> >Peggy Bassett
>> >University Information Technology Services
>> >Indiana University, Bloomington
>> >bassett@indiana.edu
>>
>> >>
>> >> owner-java-com@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >> Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >>
>> >> LINGUIST@LINGUIST.LDC.UPENN.EDU
>> >> LISTSERV@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> linguist@linguistlist.org
>> >>
>> >> PENNSYLVANIA-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> owner-pennsylvania-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu
>> >> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >>
>> >> MTG-STRATEGY-L@ORACLE.WIZARDS.COM
>> >> PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
>> >> owner-pli-y2klaw@pli.edu
>>
>>
>>

```

From: "Tim Klymkow" <klymkow@a-znet.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: pcworks@MailingList.net
To: <pcworks@MailingList.net>
Subject: Re: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:40:58 -0500
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 14:49:21 1999
Received: (qmail 10014 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 22:49:15 -0000 Received: from lion.esosoft.net [207.153.254.66] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP id 040DccwxN0117M03; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 22:49:14 GMT
Received: from moose.esosoft.net (moose@moose.esosoft.net [192.41.5.145]) by lion.esosoft.net (8.9.1/8.9.1) with ESMTP id RAA23724;Wed, 3 Mar 1999
17:47:31
-0500 (EST)
Received: from localhost (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id
PAA25454; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:46:21 -0700 (MST)
Received: by moose.esosoft.net (bulk_mailer v1.9); Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:56
-0700
Received: (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id PAA24669; Wed, 3
Mar 1999 15:43:53 -0700 (MST)
Received: from mail.a-znet.com (root@[209.177.29.6]) by moose.esosoft.net
(8.8.5) id PAA24640; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:48 -0700 (MST)
X-Authentication-Warning: moose.esosoft.net: Host root@[209.177.29.6]
claimed
to be mail.a-znet.com
Received: from klymkow1 (syr2161.a-znet.com [209.2.143.161])by mail.a-znet.com
(8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP id RAA01585;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:53:33 -0500
Message-ID: <005f01be65c7$5065d1e0$6950fea9@klymkow1>
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 5.00.0810.800
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V5.00.0810.800
Sender: owner-pcworks@MailingList.net
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Gary,
The only method that works is to rename (or mark as hidden, or delete) all instances of WIN.COM on your hard drives, and then run setup from the DOS prompt.

Info courtesy of Sean Erwins's Windows 98 FAQ at <https://www.listmaker.net/win98/index.html#upgrade> .

Hope this helps!

Tim Klymkow

----- Original Message -----
From: Gary <ggshaw@uq.net.au>

Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 4:55 AM
Subject: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.

>Problem: Win95b installed. Want to >upgrade to Win98. I only have Win98 OEM
>CD. I get the following message after >Win98 has copied temp files to begin
>install.
>"Your computer has an operating system >installed, which cannot be upgraded by
>this version.
>
>"error SU0168"
>
<snip>

===== PCWorks Mailing List =====
Visit Our Random "Member HomePage of the Week":
Shelley Gaffney's "Shelley's Money Making Opportunities"
<https://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/Labyrinth/9790/>
PCWorks WebPage <https://www.telesouth1.com/~pcworks>
=====

From: "O'Flynn, Austin" <AOFlynn@CHW.EDU> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
To: PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
Subject: Re: [PLI-Y2KLAW] Y2K Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 22:59:01 -0800
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 07:16:52 1999
Received: (qmail 17007 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 15:16:42 -0000 Received: from pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
797DcDPqp0069M02; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 15:16:41 GMT
Received: from pli (pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1])by pli.pli.edu (8.8.8/8.8.8)
with ESMTP id KAA13773;Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:16:24 -0500 (EST)

Received: from PLI.PLI.EDU by PLI.PLI.EDU (LISTSERV-TCP/IP release 1.8c)
withspool id 72642 for PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.PLI.EDU; Thu, 4 Mar 1999
10:14:48-0500
Received: from pli (pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1]) by pli.pli.edu
(8.8.8/8.8.8)with ESMTP id KAA13456 for <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.PLI.EDU>; Thu, 4
Mar
199910:04:44 -0500 (EST)
Approved-By: guylaw@YAHOO.COM
Received: from plint7.pli.edu (PLINT7.pli.edu [208.205.105.9]) by pli.pli.edu(8.8.8/8.8.8) with ESMTP id CAA12884 for <pli-y2klaw@pli.pli.edu>;
Thu, 4 Mar 1999 02:04:28 -0500 (EST)
Received: by PLINT7 with Internet Mail Service (5.5.2232.9) id <GF5L79GM>;
Thu,4 Mar 1999 02:02:01 -0500
Received: from sfmh-imc-01.sfmh.chw.edu
(sfmh-imc-external.CHW.edu[192.234.76.2]) by plint7.pli.edu with SMTP
(Microsoft ExchangeInternet Mail Service Version 5.5.2232.9) id
GF5L79GL; Thu,
4 Mar1999 02:01:58 -0500
Received: by sfmh-imc-01.sfmh.chw.edu with Internet Mail Service
(5.0.1457.3)id
<1WSD2QT5>; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 23:04:30 -0800
X-Priority: 3
X-Mailer: Internet Mail Service (5.0.1457.3)
Message-ID:
<699530BA536DD211A26300A0C9C7504E2D9B22@corp-msg-02.sfmh.chw.edu>
Sender: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
Comments: To: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

Year 200

Readiness Disclosure Statement

Re: Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users.
If you are concerned about the voiding a system warranty by doing your testing, it infers you are talking about a relatively new system, in which case such testing ought to have been provided for in the contract.
We at Catholic Healthcare West have decided not to rely merely on statements from the vendor with respect to mission critical systems.
All mission critical systems are being tested, including all interfaces.
For newly installed systems, we include such right to test in the contract, and to test as per our scripts. For older systems, we obtain not merely a Y2K compliance statement, but all test scripts and results thereof. We also seek copies from the vendor of any third party verification of such testing. And then we test the application ourselves.
You should note that many public Y2K Statements have the same caption as I have above, that is, they are given pursuant to the Federal Year 2000 Information and Readiness Disclosure Act that such statement cannot be used against the issuer in any legal action, with certain exceptions.
Therefore, often the public Y2K Statement by a vendor are no more than a heads up, leaving you to decide whether you want to act on it or not.
Where there are patient lives at risk, due diligence warrants that you treat such statements as informational only; nothing more.
I have not heard that the FDA is advising hospitals to the contrary.
And even if they were, until they put their dollars on the line or appropriate regulation is passed, their advice is but circumstantial evidence at best on what the standard for due diligence should be.

The statement given above is personal and has not been approved or endorsed by CHW. Austin O'Flynn
Associate Corporate Counsel
CHW
<https://www.chw.edu>

-----Original Message-----
From: Hanson Research Service, Inc. [<mailto:lhanson@HANSONINFO.COM>]
Sent: Tuesday, March 02, 1999 10:58 AM
To: PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
Subject: Re: [PLI-Y2KLAW] Y2K Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users

Debra --

I recently gave a speech to a medical society on Y2K issues that included a discussion about the status of biomedical devices. Research for the presentation clearly indicated that there are conflicting opinions about whether reliance on a vendor's claim of Y2K compliance is adequate, or whether the equipment should be tested independently by an experienced engineer. Hospitals have been cautious about relying on vendor certification, especially when the devices are critical to the welfare
of patients. A New Zealand hospital reported that it had tested a number
of pieces of one type of medical equipment and found that half were not Y2K compliant. This alarmed the hospital since the vendor had certified
that the equipment was Y2K compliant. Some hospitals maintain that it is not only necessary to self test a particular device, but every single sample--a tedious and expensive process. I can supply the citations for the above, which do not represent formal medical studies but rather observations
from medical practitioners. I would be interested in listserv opinion on what constitutes due diligence in this matter.

Regards,
Louise

>I represent a health-care provider which uses sophisticated biomedical >equipment. The company's inside biomedical administrators would like to be >able to rely on the public y2k compliance statements issued by the >equipment vendors to the FDA, and are hesitant to conduct their own testing
>because, they say, (i) the FDA recommends (prohibits?) against user >testing, and (ii) the vendor warranties may be nullified if the user
>"tampers" with the software. Does anyone have any opinions on these >issues, or any authority in support of or against this position? Is it >reasonable for an end-user to rely on vendor statements of compliance,
or >should a user (who, of course, has less technical expertise than the vendor >concerning its particular piece of equipment) have to test on its own
the >equipment supplied by a multitude of vendors? The concerns are two-fold:
> (i) contractual rights of the company against the vendor if it turns out >that the equipment is non-compliant; and (ii) potential liability of
the >company to patients using any equipment which malfunctions.
>
>Your thoughts and suggestions are appreciated.
>Debra Glazer, Esq.
>Irvine, CA 92612
>(949) 854-0173
>FAX (949) 854-0198
>Debra.Glazer@worldnet.att.net
>
>
>-----
>PLI-Y2KLAW
>Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
>810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
><https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
>List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
>Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com
>
>The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational >purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be >considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from >competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.
>
>Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and >receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The >information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most >current legal developments.
>
>

Louise Hanson, President E-mail: lhanson@hansoninfo.com
Hanson Research Services, Inc. Phone: (785) 832-9234 (business);
1628 Dudley Court (785) 841-3026 (home)
Lawrence, KS 66044 Fax: (785) 832-9242
-----
PLI-Y2KLAW
Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
<https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com

The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most current legal developments.

-----
PLI-Y2KLAW
Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
<https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com

The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most current legal developments.

-----
PLI-Y2KLAW
Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
<https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com

The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most current legal developments.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 4:44 PM
To: abuse@usa.net
Subject: testcase2@usa.net spammer

Dear abuse@usa.net

319 more messages this afternoon:

Someone has been using an account at testcase2@usa.net for nearly a month now to bombard my FG@hotmail.com account with false subscriptions to listservs. Two listserv administrators at Indiana.edu have helped a lot to figure out where it's coming from and I include their messages below along with the header and message of one piece of mailing showing testcase2@usa.net in the FROM.

If you could turn off that account completely it would really help. I also ask you to identify to me who the person is behind the spam so that I might be able to do something about it. They've begun a second wave of attacks just yesterday and today from lists at www.onelist.com whom I've notified but seem to still be passing many of the messages, though not all, through the testcase2@usa.net address. The last message here shows that address again.

I had 475 messages in my inbox this morning most from this account testcase2@usa.net and another 319 this afternoon!!

Thanks in advance for anything you can do to stop this.

Desperately in need of your help,

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----
From: LISTSERV Administrator <lstadmin@indiana.edu>
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Cc: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>; stephenl@indiana.edu <stephenl@indiana.edu>
Date: Friday, February 26, 1999 10:32 AM
Subject: Re: false listserv subscription

>Frederick and Larry,
>
>Do you anything about the subscription testcase2@usa.net? If I'm >reading the headers right it looks like the message sent to Frederick >came from that address.
>
>Larry -- if you want to test this you could set testcase2 to nomail and >we could see if that stops the flow of mail to Frederick.
>
>Peg Bassett
>UIITS Messaging Team
>
>On Mon, 22 Feb 1999, FG wrote:
>
>> Sorry it's taken me a week or so to reply. I'm still receiving >> all the messages posted to your listservs. I'm going to try >> to attach them and insert them in here to give you the >> complete headers in one way or another.
>>
>> I really appreciate your help. My account is completely >> overwhelmed by all this junk mail and takes several >> minutes to download the few legitimate messages.
>>
>> FG
>> FG@hotmail.com
>>
>>
>> >From testcase2@USA.NET Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: from [204.68.24.139] by hotmail.com (1.1) with SMTP id
>> MHotMailB89ACFE724011D101708CCC44188B9B990; Mon Feb 22 08:25:12 1999
>> Received: (qmail 18627 invoked by uid 0); 22 Feb 1999 12:28:53 -0000 >> Received: from listserv.indiana.edu [129.79.5.189] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)
>> with ESMTP id 831DBVmoK0146M02; Mon, 22 Feb 1999 12:14:36 GMT
>> Received: from piano (129.79.5.189) by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows NT v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F38FDCE0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
>> Feb 1999 7:14:14 -0500
>> Received: from LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU by LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> (LISTSERV-TCP/IP
>> release 1.8c) with spool id 17591351 for
>> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:12
>> -0500 >> Received: from imo12.mx.aol.com by listserv.indiana.edu (LSMTP for >> Windows

```

>> NT
>> v1.1a) with SMTP id <0.F2CC3EC0@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22
Feb
>> 1999 7:14:12 -0500 >> Received: from BGeoT@aol.com by imo12.mx.aol.com (IMOV18.1) id ODDLa24348
>> for
>> <deep-south-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu>; Mon, 22 Feb 1999
>> 07:14:08
>> -0500 (EST)
>> Mime-Version: 1.0
>> Content-type: text/plain; charset=US-ASCII
>> Content-transfer-encoding: 7bit
>> X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 205
>> Message-ID: <7f98222.36d14a10@aol.com>
>> Date: Mon, 22 Feb 1999 07:14:08 EST
>> Reply-To: BGeoT@AOL.COM
>> Sender: "A discussion list for genealogy in AL, GA, FL and MS"
>> <DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU>
>> From: George Turnipseed <BGeoT@AOL.COM>
>> Subject: [D-S] JOHNSTON&CALDWELL-HancockCoMS-1800s
>> To: DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>>
>> I am searching for info, ancestors of James Johnston born c1810 in NC, >> married Eleonore ____ c1830 Hancock Co MS. Their son, George W Johnston
>> born 1841 married Victoria V Caldwell.
>> Please contact by e-mail: BGeoT@aol.com
>> George Turnipseed
>>
>> -----
>> List problems?
>> Check
>> your WELCOME message FIRST
>> https://php.indiana.edu/~stephenl/problems.htm SECOND
>> then contact stephenL@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: List Administrator <list-admin@indiana.edu>
>> To: Stephens, Larry V <stephenl@indiana.edu>; 'FG'
>> <FG@hotmail.com>; 'lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu'
>> <lstadmin@othello.ucs.indiana.edu>
>> Cc: 'help@hotmail.com' <help@hotmail.com>; 'support@hotmail.com'
>> <support@hotmail.com>
>> Date: Tuesday, February 16, 1999 12:49 PM
>> Subject: RE: false listserv subscription
>>
>>
>> >I've searched back through all of the LISTSERV log files for February I
>> did >> >not find a subscription request from Mr. Glaysher for the >> Deep-South-Roots-L
>> >list. I also did not find any indication that mail to this list was >> >distributed to >> >the address FG@hotmail.com.
>> >
>> >Mr. Glaysher -- are you still receiving list mail from our server? If
>> yes,
>> >could >> >you please forward a copy of a recent message, with full headers to me?
>> >
>> >
>> >Peggy Bassett
>> >University Information Technology Services
>> >Indiana University, Bloomington
>> >bassett@indiana.edu
>>
>>
>> >> owner-java-com@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >> Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
>> >>
>> >> LINGUIST@LINGUIST.LDC.UPENN.EDU
>> >> LISTSERV@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> linguist@linguistlist.org
>> >>
>> >> PENNSYLVANIA-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >> owner-pennsylvania-roots-l@listserv.indiana.edu
>> >> DEEP-SOUTH-ROOTS-L@LISTSERV.INDIANA.EDU
>> >>
>> >> MTG-STRATEGY-L@ORACLE.WIZARDS.COM
>> >> PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
>> >> owner-pli-y2klaw@pli.edu
>>
>>
>>
>>

```

```

From: "Tim Klymkow" <klymkow@a-znet.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: pcworks@MailingList.net
To: <pcworks@MailingList.net>
Subject: Re: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98
cd.
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:40:58 -0500

```

MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Wed Mar 3 14:49:21 1999
Received: (qmail 10014 invoked by uid 0); 3 Mar 1999 22:49:15 -0000 Received: from lion.esosoft.net [207.153.254.66] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP id 040DccwxN0117M03; Wed, 03 Mar 1999 22:49:14 GMT
Received: from moose.esosoft.net (moose@moose.esosoft.net [192.41.5.145])by lion.esosoft.net (8.9.1/8.9.1) with ESMTP id RAA23724;Wed, 3 Mar 1999
17:47:31
-0500 (EST)
Received: from localhost (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id
PAA25454; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:46:21 -0700 (MST)
Received: by moose.esosoft.net (bulk_mailer v1.9); Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:56
-0700
Received: (moose@localhost) by moose.esosoft.net (8.8.5) id PAA24669; Wed, 3
Mar 1999 15:43:53 -0700 (MST)
Received: from mail.a-znet.com (root@209.177.29.6] by moose.esosoft.net
(8.8.5) id PAA24640; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 15:43:48 -0700 (MST)
X-Authentication-Warning: moose.esosoft.net: Host root@[209.177.29.6]
claimed
to be mail.a-znet.com
Received: from klymkow1 (syr2161.a-znet.com [209.2.143.161])by mail.a-znet.com
(8.8.7/8.8.7) with SMTP id RAA01585;Wed, 3 Mar 1999 17:53:33 -0500
Message-ID: <005f01be65c7$5065d1e0$6950fea9@klymkow1>
X-Priority: 3
X-MSMail-Priority: Normal
X-Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 5.00.0810.800
X-MimeOLE: Produced By Microsoft MimeOLE V5.00.0810.800
Sender: owner-pcworks@MailingList.net
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Gary,
The only method that works is to rename (or mark as hidden, or delete) all instances of WIN.COM on your hard drives, and then run setup from the DOS prompt.

Info courtesy of Sean Erwins's Windows 98 FAQ at <https://www.listmaker.net/win98/index.html#upgrade> .

Hope this helps!

Tim Klymkow

----- Original Message -----
From: Gary <ggshaw@uq.net.au>

Sent: Wednesday, March 03, 1999 4:55 AM
Subject: PCWorks: Error SU0168 upgrade win95 to win98 with oem win98 cd.

>Problem: Win95b installed. Want to >upgrade to Win98. I only have Win98 OEM
>CD. I get the following message after >Win98 has copied temp files to begin
>install.
>"Your computer has an operating system >installed, which cannot be upgraded by
>this version.
>
>"error SU0168"
>
<snip>

===== PCWorks Mailing List =====
Visit Our Random "Member HomePage of the Week":
Shelley Gaffney's "Shelley's Money Making Opportunities"
<https://www.geocities.com/TimesSquare/Labyrinth/9790/>
PCWorks WebPage <https://www.telesouth1.com/~pcworks>
=====

From: "O'Flynn, Austin" <AOFlynn@CHW.EDU> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
To: PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
Subject: Re: [PLI-Y2KLAW] Y2K Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users
Date: Wed, 3 Mar 1999 22:59:01 -0800
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 07:16:52 1999
Received: (qmail 17007 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 15:16:42 -0000 Received: from pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
797DcdPqp0069M02; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 15:16:41 GMT
Received: from pli (pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1])by pli.pli.edu (8.8.8/8.8.8)
with ESMTP id KAA13773;Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:16:24 -0500 (EST)
Received: from PLI.PLI.EDU by PLI.PLI.EDU (LISTSERV-TCP/IP release 1.8c)
withspool id 72642 for PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.PLI.EDU; Thu, 4 Mar 1999
10:14:48-0500
Received: from pli (pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1]) by pli.pli.edu
(8.8.8/8.8.8)with ESMTP id KAA13456 for <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.PLI.EDU>; Thu, 4
Mar

199910:04:44 -0500 (EST)
Approved-By: guylaw@YAHOO.COM
Received: from plint7.pli.edu (PLINT7.pli.edu [208.205.105.9]) by pli.pli.edu(8.8.8/8.8.8) with ESMTP id CAA12884 for <pli-y2klaw@pli.pli.edu>;
Thu, 4 Mar 1999 02:04:28 -0500 (EST)
Received: by PLINT7 with Internet Mail Service (5.5.2232.9) id <GF5L79GM>;
Thu, 4 Mar 1999 02:02:01 -0500
Received: from sfmh-imc-01.sfmh.chw.edu
(sfmh-imc-external.CHW.edu[192.234.76.2]) by plint7.pli.edu with SMTP
(Microsoft ExchangeInternet Mail Service Version 5.5.2232.9) id
GF5L79GL; Thu,
4 Mar1999 02:01:58 -0500
Received: by sfmh-imc-01.sfmh.chw.edu with Internet Mail Service
(5.0.1457.3)id
<1WSD2QT5>; Wed, 3 Mar 1999 23:04:30 -0800
X-Priority: 3
X-Mailer: Internet Mail Service (5.0.1457.3)
Message-ID:
<699530BA536DD211A26300A0C9C7504E2D9B22@corp-msg-02.sfmh.chw.edu>
Sender: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
Comments: To: PLI Year 2000 Law List <PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

Year 200

Readiness Disclosure Statement

Re: Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users.
If you are concerned about the voiding a system warranty by doing your testing, it infers you are talking about a relatively new system, in which case such testing ought to have been provided for in the contract.
We at Catholic Healthcare West have decided not to rely merely on statements from the vendor with respect to mission critical systems.
All mission critical systems are being tested, including all interfaces.
For newly installed systems, we include such right to test in the contract, and to test as per our scripts. For older systems, we obtain not merely a Y2K compliance statement, but all test scripts and results thereof. We also seek copies from the vendor of any third party verification of such testing. And then we test the application ourselves.
You should note that many public Y2K Statements have the same caption as I have above, that is, they are given pursuant to the Federal Year 2000 Information and Readiness Disclosure Act that such statement cannot be used against the issuer in any legal action, with certain exceptions.
Therefore, often the public Y2K Statement by a vendor are no more than a heads up, leaving you to decide whether you want to act on it or not.
Where there are patient lives at risk, due diligence warrants that you treat such statements as informational only; nothing more.
I have not heard that the FDA is advising hospitals to the contrary.
And even if they were, until they put their dollars on the line or appropriate regulation is passed, their advice is but circumstantial evidence at best on what the standard for due diligence should be.

The statement given above is personal and has not been approved or endorsed by CHW. Austin O'Flynn
Associate Corporate Counsel
CHW
<https://www.chw.edu>

-----Original Message-----
From: Hanson Research Service, Inc. [mailto:lhanson@HANSONINFO.COM]
Sent: Tuesday, March 02, 1999 10:58 AM
To: PLI-Y2KLAW@PLI.EDU
Subject: Re: [PLI-Y2KLAW] Y2K Testing of Biomedical Equipment by Users

Debra --

I recently gave a speech to a medical society on Y2K issues that included a discussion about the status of biomedical devices. Research for the presentation clearly indicated that there are conflicting opinions about whether reliance on a vendor's claim of Y2K compliance is adequate, or whether the equipment should be tested independently by an experienced engineer. Hospitals have been cautious about relying on vendor certification, especially when the devices are critical to the welfare
of patients. A New Zealand hospital reported that it had tested a number
of pieces of one type of medical equipment and found that half were not Y2K compliant. This alarmed the hospital since the vendor had certified
that the equipment was Y2K compliant. Some hospitals maintain that it is not only necessary to self test a particular device, but every single sample--a tedious and expensive process. I can supply the citations for the above,
which do not represent formal medical studies but rather observations
from medical practitioners. I would be interested in listserv opinion on what constitutes due diligence in this matter.

Regards,
Louise

>I represent a health-care provider which uses sophisticated biomedical >equipment. The company's inside biomedical administrators would like to be >able to rely on the public y2k compliance statements issued by the >equipment vendors to the FDA, and are hesitant to conduct their own testing

>because, they say, (i) the FDA recommends (prohibits?) against user >testing, and (ii) the vendor warranties may be nullified if the user
>"tampers" with the software. Does anyone have any opinions on these >issues, or any authority in support of or against this position? Is it >reasonable for an end-user to rely on vendor statements of compliance,
or >should a user (who, of course, has less technical expertise than the vendor
>concerning its particular piece of equipment) have to test on its own
the >equipment supplied by a multitude of vendors? The concerns are two-fold:
> (i) contractual rights of the company against the vendor if it turns
out >that the equipment is non-compliant; and (ii) potential liability of
the >company to patients using any equipment which malfunctions.

>
>Your thoughts and suggestions are appreciated.

>Debra Glazer, Esq.
>Irvine, CA 92612
>(949) 854-0173
>FAX (949) 854-0198
>Debra.Glazer@worldnet.att.net

>
>

>-----

>PLI-Y2KLAW
>Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
>810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
><https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
>List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
>Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com
>
>The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational >purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be >considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from >competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

>
>Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and >receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The >information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most >current legal developments.

>
>

Louise Hanson, President E-mail: lhanson@hansoninfo.com
Hanson Research Services, Inc. Phone: (785) 832-9234 (business);
1628 Dudley Court (785) 841-3026 (home)
Lawrence, KS 66044 Fax: (785) 832-9242

>-----

PLI-Y2KLAW
Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
<https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com

The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most current legal developments.

>-----

PLI-Y2KLAW
Sponsored by The Practising Law Institute
810 Seventh Avenue New York, NY 10019
<https://www.pli.edu> (800) 260-4PLI
List Moderator: Charles Kerr, ckerr@mofo.com
Technical Contact: Guy Alvarez, guylaw@yahoo.com

The electronic messages that appear on this list are for informational purposes only. They are not intended to be and should not be considered legal advice nor substitute for obtaining legal advice from competent, independent, legal counsel in the relevant jurisdiction.

Transmission of this information is not intended to create, and receipt does not constitute, an attorney-client relationship. The information contained on this list may or may not reflect the most current legal developments.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 04, 1999 5:11 PM
To: admin@onelist.com
Subject: FOR Lupe: testcase2@usa.net spammer

Lupe,

I appreciate your help. I've received another 320+ messages this afternoon for a total of over 800! My account won't even let me download anything it's so over taxed.

I hope you can figure this thing out.

Thanks!

Fred Glaysher
FG@hotmail.com

From: Bluespearl@aol.com Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
Subject: [40PlusSingles] Re: List Complaint
Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:33:20 EST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 13:42:10 1999
Received: (qmail 4631 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 15:36:31 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.223] by nm199 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTTP
id 976DcDPKE0121M19; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 15:36:30 GMT
Received: (qmail 9489 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 15:43:38 -0000
Received: (qmail 9484 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 15:43:37 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO imo28.mx.aol.com) (198.81.17.72) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 15:43:37 -0000 Received: from Bluespearl@aol.com by imo28.mx.aol.com (IM0v19.3) id hQBDa02500 for <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:33:20 -0500 (EST)
Message-ID: <3ce379d0.36dea7c0@aol.com>
X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 4
Mailing-List: list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com; contact 40PlusSingles-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:40PlusSingles-unsubscribe@ONElist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

From: Bluespearl@aol.com

<< because I love to flam, >>

New sport in Michigan, Jeff???
Just teasin ya, big guy!
Have a good day!
Peace
Abby

-----
Ideas on how we can improve ONElist?
<https://www.onelist.com>
Check out the Suggestion Box feature on our new web site

From: Richard Diederer <Richard.Diederer@ICT.NL> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: Java and COM <Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM>
To: Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM
Subject: Interface pointer leakage in Java?
Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:39:46 +0100
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@USA.NET Thu Mar 04 07:00:34 1999
Received: from [204.68.24.99] by hotmail.com (1.0) with SMTP id MHotMail30980124334803335065324993427014755607220; Thu Mar 04 07:00:34 1999
Received: (qmail 28120 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 11:13:47 -0000
Received: from VMS.DC.LSOFT.COM [209.119.1.27] by nm199 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTTP id 089DcDLNS0024M19; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 11:13:46 GMT
Received: from peach (209.119.0.4) by VMS.DC.LSOFT.COM (LSMTP for OpenVMS v1.1a) with SMTP id <7.3953A299@VMS.DC.LSOFT.COM>; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 5:42:16 -0500
Received: from DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM by DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM (LISTSERV-TCP/IPrelease 1.8d) with spool id 730655 forJava-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 05:46:24 -0500 Received: from 193.79.216.3 by PEACH.EASE.LSOFT.COM (SMTP release 1.0d) withTCP; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 05:46:24 -0500
Received: from duif.dev.ict.nl (duif.dev.ict.nl [192.168.1.7]) bycyberbus.ict.nl (8.9.3/8.9.3) with SMTP id LAA20185 forJava-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 11:52:51 +0100
Received: by duif.dev.ict.nl (Lotus SMTP MTA v4.6.2 (693.3 8-11-1998)) idC125672A.0036706E ; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 10:54:37 +0100

X-Lotus-FromDomain: ICT
Message-ID: <C125672A.00366FAC.00@duif.dev.ict.nl>
Sender: Java and COM <Java-COM@DISCUSS.MICROSOFT.COM>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain Content-Disposition: inline

Hi,

I was wondering why DLLHOST.EXE remains active after local or remote instantiation of a Java COM object.
After running Rational Purify on my application, I found two stubborn interface pointer leaks:

```
[W] ILK: COM Interface leak from interface pointer 0x77bc9198, allocated in CoGetMalloc
    Leak from IMalloc interface with reference count of 2 (0x77bc9198)
    Allocation location
        CoGetMalloc+0xc [C:\WINNT\SYSTEM32\ole32.dll ip=0x67b2175c]
        VariantTimeToSystemTime+0x147e [C:\WINNT\SYSTEM32\oleaut32.dll ip=0x6534bc9f]
        SysAllocStringLen+0x77 [C:\WINNT\SYSTEM32\oleaut32.dll ip=0x653414be]
        SysAllocString+0xb [C:\WINNT\SYSTEM32\OLEAUT32.dll
ip=0x553418c0]
        execute_java_constructorV+0x3d6f [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll ip=0x7c03b5bd]
        execute_java_constructorV+0x37b4 [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll ip=0x7c03b002] execute_java_constructorV+0x3a94 [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll ip=0x7c03b2e2]
        JITResolveInterface+0x421f [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll
ip=0x7c010686]
        JITResolveInterface+0x40a3 [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll ip=0x7c01050a]
        JITResolveInterface+0x902 [C:\WINNT\System32\msjava.dll ip=0x7c00cd69]
[W] ILK: COM Interface leak from interface pointer 0x7c0da8f8, allocated in CoGetClassObject
    Leak from IClassFactory interface with reference count of 1 (0x7c0da8f8)
    Allocation location
        CoGetClassObject+0xc [C:\WINNT\SYSTEM32\ole32.dll ip=0x67b2178f]
        ???
[C:\Project\MIP\Java\PMSJClient_General\PMSJClient.exe ip=0x00401682]
        ???
[C:\Project\MIP\Java\PMSJClient_General\PMSJClient.exe ip=0x0040f059]
```

Could this be the reason for keeping DLLHOST.exe active or is there another explanation?
If yes, is there a solution/workaround for my problem? I explicitly release my interface pointers and set my COM objects to null after using them.

Richard.

-----
Users Guide <https://www.microsoft.com/workshop/essentials/mail.asp> contains important info including how to unsubscribe. Save time, search the archives at <https://discuss.microsoft.com/archives/index.html>

From: BetRTimes@aol.com Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: chatover21@onelist.com
To: chatover21@onelist.com
Subject: [chatover21] Re: see ya...
Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 16:15:48 EST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From: testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 04 13:55:34 1999
Received: from [204.68.24.140] by hotmail.com (1.0) with SMTP id
MHotMail309803733413894135065324753427014796395510; Thu Mar 04 13:55:34
1999
Received: (qmail 4544 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 21:17:04 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.13] by mx03 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
473DcDVRD0170M03; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 21:17:03 GMT
Received: (qmail 4644 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 21:17:58 -0000
Received: (qmail 4638 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 21:17:57 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO imo27.mx.aol.com) (198.81.17.71) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 21:17:57 -0000 Received: from BetRTimes@aol.com by imo27.mx.aol.com (IMOV19.3) id h0LIa20330
for <chatover21@onelist.com>; Thu, 4 Mar 1999 16:15:48 -0500 (EST)
Message-ID: <443760b9.36def804@aol.com>
X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 13
Mailing-List: list chatover21@onelist.com; contact
chatover21-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list chatover21@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:chatover21-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close

Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

From: BetRTimes@aol.com

In a message dated 3/4/99 3:11:27 PM Central Standard Time, elliemc@viptx.net
writes:

<< BOP on the HEADOLA >>

Uh.. EL, sweetie....

Jill is the only one that gets to BOP me on the head..

-----
Ideas on how we can improve ONelist?

<https://www.onelist.com>

Check out the Suggestion Box feature on our new web site

From: JCWagner@aol.com Save Address Block Sender

To: JCWagner@aol.com

CC: business_express@onelist.com, psaclass@onelist.com, 110@onelist.com,1aabiz@onelist.com, 1websuccess@onelist.com, A1-winner@onelist.com,a1biz@onelist.com, aaabiz4u@onelist.com, anyandall@onelist.com,aproject21@onelist.com, asafelist@onelist.com, bizoppseeks@onelist.com,emailops@onelist.com, eric@onelist.com, fdenton@onelist.com,freebies@onelist.com, freelow@onelist.com, homebasedbusiness@onelist.com,1world-list@onelist.com,
wholesale@onelist.com,
saf-t-mail@onelist.com,111-homeworkers@onelist.com, bizopps@onelist.com, freebiznet@onelist.com,freeadvertising@onelist.com,
powermail@onelist.com,
adrite@onelist.com,gema-media@onelist.com, adlist@onelist.com, euromarket@onelist.com,hotjobs@onelist.com, iMall@onelist.com,
UR12_ADS@onelist.com,millionaires@onelist.com,
In4mation4U@onelist.com,ADvertisement@onelist.com, 1111-network@onelist.com, info-foru@onelist.com,netsnooper@onelist.com, 1Help@onelist.com, imporex@onelist.com,trafgen@egroups.com, chances@onelist.com, ssbdfreeads@onelist.com,wildfire@onelist.com, -Web-Cash-@onelist.com, freehits@onelist.com,-ABigOpp@onelist.com, 1cashalert@onelist.com, 20dollardeals@onelist.com,freestart@onelist.com

Subject: [NetSnooper] Looking for some new free Business Opportunities...visit our sites today...

Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 11:30:45 EST

MIME-Version: 1.0

From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 04 08:59:23 1999

Received: from [204.68.24.141] by hotmail.com (1.0) with SMTP id
MHotMail30980195627341235065324993427014797475210; Thu Mar 04 08:59:23
1999

Received: (qmail 14798 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 16:54:59 -0000

Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.211] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP

id 073DcDq370010M04; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 16:54:58 GMT

Received: (qmail 14664 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 17:00:46 -0000

Received: (qmail 14580 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 17:00:45 -0000

Received: from unknown (HELO imo13.mx.aol.com) (198.81.17.3) by pop.onelist.com

with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 17:00:45 -0000

Received: from JCWagner@aol.com by imo13.mx.aol.com (IMOV18.1) id
EVQLa05340;

Thu, 4 Mar 1999 11:30:45 -0500 (EST)

Message-ID: <e784edbe.36deb535@aol.com>

X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 236

Mailing-List: list netsnooper@onelist.com; contact

netsnooper-owner@onelist.com

Delivered-To: mailing list netsnooper@onelist.com

Precedence: bulk

List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:netsnooper-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>

View Email Message Source

Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close

Content-Type: text/plain

Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

From: JCWagner@aol.com

JCW Assocs. Marketing

has a gift for you..check these Biz Opps out today..

visit the Cyberfusion Network soon

<https://cfn-net.com/cfn/jcwassoc>

get a free office suite

<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/jcwagnerassocs> become an account exec

<https://www.adgrafx.com/jcwagner>

courtesy of:

Joan C. Wagner Assocs.

Consulting Services

Management and Marketing

My Ffa Link Page
<https://www.ffmpeg.com/links/6339.htm>
 +AF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBfAF8AXwBf-Get Your Own Free Classified Site
<https://www.websitings.com/classads/1342813.htm>
<https://go.citynews.com/dir.html/larrmac>

-----
We have a new web site!
<https://www.onelist.com>
Onelist: The leading provider of free email community services

Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close

(Move to Selected Folder)

In-Box
Sent Messages Drafts Trash Can To-Messages

-----
----
© 1999 Microsoft Corporation. All Rights Reserved. [Contact Us|Help]

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:07 AM
Subject: Evil (Re: three signs of maturity of humankind (was: Science and Religion))

Vinson Jamir wrote in message <36DF2DC1.87B4D101@bellsouth.net>...

> Help me with this. An authenticated source reports 'Abdul-Baha as >saying, "... all the qualities and admirable perfections of man, are purely >good, and exist. Evil is simply their nonexistence. So ignorance is the >want >of knowledge; error is the want of guidance; forgetfulness is the want of >memory; stupidity [my favorite!] is the want of GOOD SENSE. All these >things >have no real existence." (Some Answered Questions, p.263)(Emphasis ADDED)

The same man said this:

"This attachment of the soul and spirit to the human world, which is sin, was inherited by the descendants of Adam, and is the serpent which is *always* in the midst of, and at enmity with, the spirits and descendants of Adam. *That enmity continues and endures.*" (Emphasis ADDED....)

Bahais themselves have confirmed for me the Reality of Evil....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:11 AM
Subject: Bahai hypocrisy (Re: Shunning (was: Interesting Conversations))

Ron House wrote in message <36DCC3FF.4F006B3@usq.edu.au>...

>
>It is easy for Baha'is to be too critical of the rough and tumble of >Internet discussions. After attending one of the etherial, unworldly >Baha'i events, one could easily come here and be disappointed.
>Fortunately for me, I learned that the ever so syruppy, hyper-polite, >prayer-filled people are the most hypocritical and hateful, and that >politeness is no measure of a person's real spirituality. I prefer to >ask: who is giving me their _real_ thoughts, held for sincere and good >reasons, trying to achieve some good in the world? Those are the people >I feel close to.

I believe Ron is touching on something quite significant about the Bahai Faith today, including here online.... In my experience in dealing with soc.religion.bahai, the BCCA, Bahais on Usenet and now AOL during the last two years, it has indeed been the nauseatingly spiritual and self-righteous who have been the most hypocritical, dishonest, and hateful in their opposition to the freedom of speech and conscience Abdul-Baha respected and admired....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:19 AM
To: abuse@usa.net
Cc: admin@onelist.com
Subject: testcase2@ usa.net spammer - 3 more headers

Three more headers in case these can help you stop testcase2@ usa.net

More than 1,700 messages have bombarded my account yesterday and today! Almost all of them are from www.onelist.com

Fred Glaysher
FG@hotmail.com

From: Announce_Your_MLM-help@listbot.com Save Address Block Sender
To: testcase2@usa.net
Subject: ListBot Warning
Date: 5 Mar 1999 07:12:36 -0000
From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 23:12:53 1999
Received: (qmail 24288 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 07:12:51 -0000 Received: from www61.linkexchange.com [216.32.177.237] by mx05 via mtad
(2.6)with ESMTP id 319DceHmU0060M05; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 07:12:51 GMT
Received: (qmail 16703 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 07:12:48 -0000 Received: from yoda.linkexchange.com (216.32.177.231)by www61.linkexchange.com with QMQP; 5 Mar 1999 07:12:48 -0000 Message-ID: <920617956.512.qmail@ech>
Mailing-List: ListBot mailing list contact Announce_Your_MLM-help@listbot.com
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

This is an automatically generated message created by the ListBot system.

This is a warning message to let you know that your mail is bouncing.
If this email reaches you, then please disregard this message.

Thanks!

Sincerely,

The ListBot Team
Part of the LinkExchange family at <https://www.linkexchange.com/>

From: "L-Soft list server at Practising Law Institute \ (1.8c\)" <LISTSERV@pli.pli.edu> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: PLI-Y2KLAW-request@PLI.EDU
To: Test Case <testcase2@USA.NET>
CC: Guy Alvarez <guylaw@YAHOO.COM>
Subject: Your removal from the PLI-Y2KLAW list
Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 17:42:56 -0500
From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 22:59:42 1999
Received: (qmail 6300 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 23:03:45 -0000 Received: from pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
395DcDwrk0114M02; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 22:43:10 GMT
Received: from pli (pli.pli.edu [208.205.105.1])by pli.pli.edu (8.8.8/8.8.8) with ESMTP id RAA17027;Thu, 4 Mar 1999 17:42:56 -0500 (EST) Message-Id: <199903042242.RAA17027@pli.pli.edu>
X-LSV-ListID: PLI-Y2KLAW
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

Thu, 4 Mar 1999 17:42:56

You have been removed from the PLI-Y2KLAW list (PLI Year 2000 Law List)
by Guy Alvarez <guylaw@YAHOO.COM>.

From: Guy Alvarez <guylaw@yahoo.com> Save Address Block Sender
To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Subject: Re: testcase2usa.net spammer
Date: Thu, 4 Mar 1999 14:36:44 -0800 (PST)
MIME-Version: 1.0
From guylaw@yahoo.com Thu Mar 4 14:38:15 1999
Received: from send1e.yahoomail.com (205.180.60.64)by sendaol.mail.yahoo.com
with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 14:37:01 -0800
Message-ID: <19990304223644.26193.rocketmail@send1e.yahoomail.com>
Received: from [153.35.219.72] by send1e; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 14:36:44 PST
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

Wow!

Sound terrible. I will do anything I can to help

I will delete that address immediately.

Second, I cannot find out anything about the individual who subscribed to this list except for the name they supplied. test case.

Sorry no help there!

I would contact USA NET and find out who owns the account. They must have registered their names in order to set it up

Hope this helps!

==

Guy Alvarez
List Manager

---

DO YOU YAHOO!?

Get your free @yahoo.com address at <https://mail.yahoo.com>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:37 AM
To: abuse@usa.net
Cc: admin@onelist.com
Subject: testcase2@usa.net spammer - YET MORE HEADERS

Lupe
ONElist Tech Support <admin@onelist.com>

abuse@usa.net

Here are more sample headers and messages.

The messages just keep pouring in. I hope you can help me. I need my account for business to make a living!

Fred Glaysher
FG@hotmail.com

From: Sparked <sparked1@yahoo.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: brandy@smartbot.net
To: ads-to-the-max@onelist.com
Subject: [fortune] Don't Miss Out On This One! Only $20!
Date: Fri, 5 Mar 1999 05:36:05 -0800 (PST)
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 5 06:06:54 1999
Received: (qmail 25631 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:35:25 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.135.229] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id 855DceNjZ0120M04; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 13:35:25 GMT
Received: (qmail 5218 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 13:29:22 -0000
Received: (qmail 5206 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 13:29:21 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO send201.yahoomail.com) (128.11.68.125) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 5 Mar 1999 13:29:21 -0000
Message-ID: <19990305133605.11257.rocketmail@send201.yahoomail.com>
Received: from [209.208.18.161] by send201.mail.yahoo.com; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 05:36:05 PST
Mailing-List: list fortune@onelist.com; contact fortune-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list fortune@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:fortune-unsubscribe@ONElist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

From: Sparked <sparked1@yahoo.com>

Believe it or not!!!
THIS SAME LITTLE AD can put $200-$300 in cash in your mailbox...EVERYDAY!
Have you tried many other programs only to be disappointed in the results?
Are you tired of MLM that makes someone else money while you still struggle to succeed?
Can you afford $20 to change your financial future forever?
THEN LOOK NO FURTHER! This opportunity is for you!
Begin working for yourself and not for someone else!
NOT MLM.....YOUR OWN home business!
It's working for me and it will for you too.....guaranteed!
This little cookie cutter spits out $20 checks to you everyday!
It's a 3-part automated system, consisting of a KILLER classified ad...a powerful one page
sales letter, delivered by auto responder.
And a QUALITY product, delivered to your customer by the company.

You can set up today...and actually be getting checks mailed to you tomorrow.

For complete details: send a blank email to the address below and place "more info"
in the subject line:

mailto: brandy@SmartBotPRO.net

To sign up for a free web page visit:
<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/sparked2>

From: "T H" <zapit7@hotmail.com> Save Address Block Sender
To: accesscom@onelist.com
Subject: [tlraab] Money on the NET???
Date: Fri, 05 Mar 1999 05:41:13 PST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 5 05:49:16 1999
Received: (qmail 3358 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:48:00 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.13] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id
739DceNv80053M04; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 13:47:59 GMT
Received: (qmail 28423 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 13:42:26 -0000
Received: (qmail 28408 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 13:42:24 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO hotmail.com) (207.82.251.117) by pop.onelist.com
with SMTP; 5 Mar 1999 13:42:24 -0000
Received: (qmail 8782 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:41:14 -0000 Message-ID: <19990305134114.8781.qmail@hotmail.com>
Received: from 207.142.80.92 by www.hotmail.com with HTTP; Fri, 05 Mar 1999
05:41:13 PST
X-Originating-IP: [207.142.80.92]
Mailing-List: list tlraab@onelist.com; contact tlraab-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list tlraab@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:tlraab-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

From: "T H" <zapit7@hotmail.com>

If you are serious about tapping into the MULTI-BILLION DOLLAR internet marketplace...
(and, make no mistake about it... it is not just the mega companies like Microsoft that are reaping huge profits... tens of thousands of "Mom and Pop" sites are earning serious income right now TODAY !!! and EVERY day , on the net)

Kick YOUR business into High Gear with this "Special Offer"

1. Addresses of opportunity seekers.
2. Listing of Websites that offer FREE services.
(We have picked some of the BEST of these)
3. An introduction to HTML that will put you ahead of the class.

Here is just some of what Item 2 includes:

(autoresponder systems)
(your own classified advertising site)
(your own FFA link site)
(guest book)
(referral system)
(banner creations)
(business opportunities)
(web space)
(e-mail accounts)
(translator) (software)
(web site analysis)
(credit card merchant account)

For all the details and ordering information:

<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/yoursite/specialintro2.html>

Don't DELAY start building TODAY ...

Or to order Items 2 & 3 without the addresses see:

<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/herschel/freestuff.html>

Thanks and have a great day !!!

<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/herschel/Tom4.html>
(Custom Web Design and Banners)

*****

-----
Come check out our brand new web site!

<https://www.onelist.com>
Onelist: Making the Internet intimate

From: Sparked <sparked1@yahoo.com> Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: brandy@smartbot.net
To: online_marketing_mlm@onelist.com
Subject: [NetSnooper] Don't Miss Out On This One! Only $20!
Date: Fri, 5 Mar 1999 05:39:14 -0800 (PST)
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 5 06:09:51 1999
Received: (qmail 27307 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:38:01 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.207] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id 954DceNMa0051M04; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 13:38:00 GMT
Received: (qmail 16477 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 13:32:00 -0000
Received: (qmail 16442 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 13:31:59 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO send205.yahoomail.com) (128.11.68.129) by pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 5 Mar 1999 13:31:58 -0000 Message-ID: <19990305133914.4463.rocketmail@send205.yahoomail.com>
Received: from [209.208.18.161] by send205.mail.yahoo.com; Fri, 05 Mar 1999
05:39:14 PST
Mailing-List: list netsnooper@onelist.com; contact
netsnooper-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list netsnooper@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:netsnooper-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

From: Sparked <sparked1@yahoo.com>

Believe it or not!!!
THIS SAME LITTLE AD can put $200-$300 in cash in your mailbox...EVERYDAY!
Have you tried many other programs only to be disappointed in the results?
Are you tired of MLM that makes someone else money while you still struggle to succeed?
Can you afford $20 to change your financial future forever?
THEN LOOK NO FURTHER! This opportunity is for you!
Begin working for yourself and not for someone else!
NOT MLM.....YOUR OWN home business!
It's working for me and it will for you too.....guaranteed!
This little cookie cutter spits out $20 checks to you everyday!
It's a 3-part automated system, consisting of a KILLER classified ad...a powerful one page
sales letter, delivered by auto responder.
And a QUALITY product, delivered to your customer by the company.

You can set up today...and actually be getting checks mailed to you tomorrow.

For complete details: send a blank email to the address below and place "more info"
in the subject line:

mailto: brandy@SmartBotPRO.net

To sign up for a free web page visit:
<https://www.myfreeoffice.com/sparked2>

---

New hobbies? New curiosities? New enthusiasms?
<https://www.onelist.com>
Sign up for a new email list today

---

This safe email list is owned by NetLinks
Stop by and place your FREE ad today!
<https://onlinebiz.com/index.html>

From: "Doyle Smith" <d_smith27@hotmail.com> Save Address Block Sender Reply-To: ssbdfreeads@onelist.com
To: wildfire@onelist.com
Subject: [ssbdfreeads] Pre-confirmed HOT LEADS.
Date: Fri, 05 Mar 1999 05:14:09 PST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 5 06:00:44 1999
Received: (qmail 13595 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:14:17 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.205] by mx02 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id 289DceNoo0175M02; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 13:14:14 GMT
Received: (qmail 715 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 13:08:16 -0000
Received: (qmail 707 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 13:08:15 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO hotmail.com) (209.185.131.147) by pop.onelist.com

with SMTP; 5 Mar 1999 13:08:15 -0000
Received: (qmail 15738 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:14:10 -0000 Message-ID: <19990305131410.15737.qmail@hotmail.com>
Received: from 207.18.60.238 by www.hotmail.com with HTTP; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 05:14:09 PST
X-Originating-IP: [207.18.60.238]
Mailing-List: list ssbdfreeads@onelist.com; contact ssbdfreeads-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list ssbdfreeads@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:ssbdfreeads-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

From: "Doyle Smith" <d_smith27@hotmail.com>

Pre-confirmed HOT LEADS, qualified leads, advertising space
AND RESIDUAL MONTHLY INCOME
All in One Great Program!
All for as low as $29 per month.
WOW ... THIS ONE IS HOT!!!!!!
<https://www.leads4profit.com/cgi-bin/view.cgi/main/247m/>

-----
Come check out our brand new web site!
<https://www.onelist.com>
Onelist: Making the Internet intimate
-----

Get your business listed at Sunny Side Business Directory.
<mailto:sunnyside@altavista.net> or visit
<https://www.freeyellow.com/members5/richbizky/>

From: bhmoore2@yahoo.com Save Address Block Sender
To: -0nlythebestOpps@onelist.com Subject: [-0nlythebestOpps] You'll MARVEL at This Little Money Maker...It's SO simple...

Date: 5 Mar 1999 07:42:48 -0000
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 5 06:21:57 1999
Received: (qmail 25882 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 07:47:54 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.219] by mx09.netaddress.usa.net via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP id 757DceHv20074M09; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 07:47:53 GMT
Received: (qmail 10591 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 07:42:48 -0000
Received: (qmail 10586 invoked by uid 99); 5 Mar 1999 07:42:48 -0000 Message-ID: <920619768.10585@onelist.com> Received: from 209.239.135.35 by www.onelist.com with HTTP; 5 Mar 1999 07:42:48 -0000 Mailing-List: list -0nlythebestOpps@onelist.com; contact -0nlythebestOpps-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list -0nlythebestOpps@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:-0nlythebestOpps-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain

From: bhmoore2@yahoo.com

It works completely on Email...
No Spamming Needed or Tolerated...
It's automated in three steps...

ONE...We give you a KILLER ad...
TWO...You send our POWERFUL one-page letter by auto responder explaining the whole system...
THREE...We deliver a QUALITY product to your customers...

Set up and make money literally in hours...
The best part is...
Your customers get to do the same thing and make money too...
That makes your business' IMAGE soar...

AND...You can do this over and over...
For complete details send an Email with INFO as the subject to:
cookiesystem@smartbotpro.net

ACT NOW...

-----
Have you visited our new web site?
<https://www.onelist.com>
Onelist: Helping to create Internet communities
-----

Check out this great site:
<https://hotyellow98.com/rjnico/index.html>

From: AnnieL56@aol.com Save Address Block Sender
Reply-To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
To: 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
Subject: [40PlusSingles] Re: I think.....
Date: Fri, 5 Mar 1999 08:50:06 EST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From testcase2@usa.net Fri Mar 05 06:05:19 1999
Received: from [204.68.24.141] by hotmail.com (1.2) with SMTP id
MHotMailB8A92F9FBADAD1017093CC44188D80FC0; Fri Mar 05 06:05:19 1999
Received: (qmail 5101 invoked by uid 0); 5 Mar 1999 13:50:16 -0000 Received: from onelist.com [209.207.164.209] by mx04 via mtad (2.6)with ESMTP
id 601DceNYP0036M04; Fri, 05 Mar 1999 13:50:15 GMT
Received: (qmail 8771 invoked by alias); 5 Mar 1999 13:44:30 -0000
Received: (qmail 8766 invoked from network); 5 Mar 1999 13:44:30 -0000 Received: from unknown (HELO imo12.mx.aol.com) (198.81.17.2) by pop.onelist.com
with SMTP; 5 Mar 1999 13:44:30 -0000 Received: from AnnieL56@aol.com by imo12.mx.aol.com (IMOV19.3) id hIRVa19425 for <40PlusSingles@onelist.com>; Fri, 5 Mar 1999 08:50:06 -0500 (EST)
Message-ID: <ac28a06f.36dfe10e@aol.com>
X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 236
Mailing-List: list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com; contact
40PlusSingles-owner@onelist.com
Delivered-To: mailing list 40PlusSingles@onelist.com
Precedence: bulk
List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:40PlusSingles-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

From: AnnieL56@aol.com

In a message dated 3/5/99 4:54:34 AM Pacific Standard Time, zankam@enetis.net
writes:

<< Don't encourage her so early in the morning. >>

Well...i just got thru all the other mail from last night...you guys had much more excitement than Jeff asking for a private e-mail address. Proud of all of you...

-Annie

-----
Is ONelist important to you? Has it changed your life?
<https://www.onelist.com>
Come visit our new web site and share with us your stories

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:45 AM
Subject: Re: Love bombing

Dale Grider wrote in message <36DF5968.A1485DD2@bellsouth.net>...

It's not whether I think I am presenting inarguable >"facts" that makes the Fireside title valid, it's the fact that any >"Fireside" that is going to be more than an exercise is mutual back >patting is going to have to genuinely welcome and engage sincere dissent >as part and parcel of the process of discovering truth.

Dale touches here on a valid criticism of Bahai "Firesides." They are usually indoctrination sessions with little to no give and take.
In general, really, my fellow Bahais are incapable of "engaging sincere dissent." All they are taught to do by the UHJ is categorically condemn it, shun it, and pat oneself on the back....

I respect Dale's site and his sincerely held Christian beliefs.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 9:48 AM
Subject: Re: Newsgroup etiquette attn: Joel Marangella & followers

BrentMRreed wrote in message <19990305021550.20118.00000735@ng-cg1.aol.com>...
>

>You are so arrogant. It seems that this group rarely ever manifests the >Spirits of Justice and Fairness, Courtesy and Eloquence, that were so >beautifully exemplified in the lives and writings of Baha'u'llah and >'Abd'ul-Baha.

All fair-minded observers will recognize these words as true....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,

alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:08 PM
Subject: Re: infallibility (propositional or not?)

Meaningless pyscho-babble, from someone who regularly censors people on AOL....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

owner@sociologist.com wrote in message <7bovj5$rpi$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>I am reposting this message from the listserv, Baha'i Studies.

>-----
>
>
>Hi, xxxx,
>
>At 23:10 03/05/1999 +0900, you wrote:
>>I think that, in not essentially different ways, this >>is the position that Mark takes with regards to >>religious truth and inerrancy (Mark, tell me if I am >>wrong).
>
>I agree with you, of course, with respect to objectivity. Some >people assume that it means total phenomenological reduction or >epoche (bracketing of biases); whereas most scientists recognize >the impossibility of Husserl's proposition. Objectivity refers, >of course, to the use of agreed-upon standards of measurement >(including tests of reliability and validity).
>
>An objective study is one in which bias (statistically, standard >error) is reduced through the implementation of proper controls.
>Therefore, the scientist can be biased (who isn't?), while a >particular study need not be quite so biased (unless one accepts >the Marxian view that all researchers are terminally trapped in >bias by virtue of their social class membership).
>
>Anyway, it is all a matter of degree. No social scientists, that >I know anyway, would pretend that they are ever completely >unbiased. Such a situation would negate one's humanness.
>
>Now, with respect to inerrancy, I think you _may_ have missed my >point. What I am saying is that so-called propositional >infallibility is reductionistic, i.e., it reduces authoritative >divine guidance (which is, as I see it, synonymous with >infallibility [not propositional infallibility]) to rational >consistency.
>
>Now, I am not saying that the Baha'i teachings are not >rationaly consistent (although I doubt that this can be >demonstrated fully one way or the other). What I *am* saying is >that infallibility, IMO, has nothing to do with rational >consistency (propositional statements).
>
>As I see it, infallibility exists sui generis. It is an emergent >reality and is not something which can be demonstrated by >*rational proofs*. Rather, infallibility is _transrational_ (a >term sometimes used by Ken Wilber).
>
>The human mind has no ability to think in terms of >infallibility. To us (at least in this world), everything is >relative.
>
>For instance, what I have found is that each time I feel I have >resolved one contradiction, I am confronted by additional ones.
>(As R. Khanum has said on more than one occasion, the Baha'i >Faith is loaded with contradictions.)
>
>Therefore, to my understanding, infallibility refers to >*authoritative moral guidance*. In other words, following the >Baha'i Teachings (normative conformity) produces, individually >and collectively, the outcome intended by its Author >(Baha'u'llah). Likewise, obeying the Guardian and the House of >Justice produces the outcome intended by its inspired Source
>(the Bab and Baha'u'llah).
>
>That is why I think it is more useful to focus on authority than >infallibility. The latter is something we accept (but can't do >much of anything with). The former is a statement of our >covenantal responsibilities.
>
>Warmly,
>Mark (A. Foster, Ph.D.), Assoc. Prof. of Sociology
>Johnson County Community College * <https://bahai.nu>
><https://www.MarkFoster.net> * <https://MarkFoster.org>
>
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----

><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:19 PM
Subject: fw Maneck on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on

Subject: Re: Juan Cole - Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 Years On Date: 3/3/1999 11:52 PM Eastern Standard Time
From: Smaneck
Message-id: <19990303235224.08680.00000731@ng-cg1.aol.com>

This is a most interesting statement of Dr. Cole's which has been posted here, wherein he reaffirms his continuing belief in Baha'u'llah. He also expresses confusion as to why anyone might have suggested that he was in any way challenging the Covenant. While there were no doubt numerous mistakes made in the manner in which Dr. Cole and some other academics were dealt with, it seems to me that there are and were some legitimate concerns involved from the standpoint of the Covenant. Leaving aside a discussion of who did what to whom, I would like to focus on just one passage from Dr. Cole's present statement. Juan wrote:

>I abhor schism and urge all Baha'is to recognize the legitimate >authority of the Universal House of Justice in its legitimate spheres of >authority;

Now it may be that I am misunderstand Juan here, but the question that arises in my mind is would Juan arrogate to individual Baha'is the right to decide whether or not the Universal House of Justice *is* operating within "its legitimate sphere of authority"? If so, it is clear that the Covenant would thereby be deprived of its very purpose, namely to maintain the unity of the community in responsiveness to God, for anyone could now choose to violate the directives and ignore the policies of the House on the grounds that the person didn't happen to believe the House was acting within its proper "sphere." The Covenant would thereby become meaningless and we would thereby be subject to the very kind schisms which Juan says he decries, for some could even go so far as to suggest that the House of Justice itself has violated the Covenant.
warmest,

Susan Maneck

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:21 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Juan Cole - Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 Years On

<HTML><FONT SIZE=3 PTSIZE=10>>While there were no doubt numerous mistakes made in the manner in which Dr.
>Cole and some other academics were dealt with,

Wow, is that ever a mouthful....

>for some could even go so far as to suggest that the House of Justice itself >has violated the Covenant.

The UHJ has certainly violated the Teachings on freedom of speech and liberty....

</HTML>
<HTML><FONT SIZE=3 PTSIZE=10><BR>
FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:<BR>
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,<BR>
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards<BR>
</HTML>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:26 PM
Subject: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on Subject: Rob: Juan Cole - Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 Years On Date: 3/4/1999 12:08 PM Eastern Standard Time

From: Ruletherod
Message-id: <19990304120855.21671.00003617@ng37.aol.com>

>To my way of thinking, a large part of the problem of Covenant-breaking – if not the entire problem – is that of ego. --Rob

In my experience, Rob, the Egos of Greatest Destruction have been select Baha'i VIPs with incorrigible egos who preach loyalty to the Covenant every chance they get. These people, because of this kind of posturing (for self-aggrandizement), in my observation, have done far more harm to the Faith than the people stigmatized as "Covenant-breakers," however justified or incorrect. The covenantbreakers are just easier targets....while the Big Fish get way with murder. It's all a matter of perspective. It's the people with hidden agendas we need to worry about, not the soap box preachers of questionable information.

>Any authority that gets in the way of achieving their aims becomes suspect in their eyes.

Maybe. But before you cast Juan Cole (see post heading) as a traitor here, you'd have to walk in his shoes first...something few Baha'is here have done. As far as I know, the House hasn't branded him a covenantbreaker. Until then, we shouldn't even be arguing this in reference to him.

>God preserve us from falling into such a trap.

The hysteria surrounding this issue is itself a self-deceptive trap. If you don't agree with someone like him, simply ignore his message. But he has every right to express his sincere beliefs (however critical) like anyone else.....as other people have a right to listen if they so choose. We can be democratic about this, after all.

-----
From: FG@aol.com[SMTP:FG@aol.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:41 PM
To: RBCFAdmin@aol.com
Cc: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: False TOS by Mark Foster - hikmat folder

I believe Foster is using his power to target people with TOSs to silence and intimidate them and he does it here as well by deleting the person's message. Asserting false TOSs against people violates the TOS rules, and Foster does it constantly in my opinion.

The ones he's alleged against me are the same type and that's why I refused and refuse to accept the burden of emailing you TOSsed messages. AOL has them. I'm innocent untill proven guilty. The burden of proof is on you and Foster.

He continues to use his "authority" to the detriment of AOL members he disagrees with for religious reasons. I and others, for instance, requested a Folder titled "Bahai Censorship." He created one titled merely Censorship which misses the entire point of the Forum. Further, I've requested since August that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai be added to the Newsgroup menu along with soc.religion.bahai, the fundamentalist newsgroup. He has continually made excuses and continues to drag it along.

I believe it's your responsibility to act as a fair arbiter and intervene. Notice it's a fair request. Alt.religion.bahai has had over 30,000 posts to it and existed since April of 1997. Talk.religion.bahai, newly formed on a Big 8 hierarchy, had 1,700+ posts in its first month.

AOL should not support the fundamentalists in what is essentially a legitimate debate over religious interpretations but allow a free and open discussion, which Foster is doing everything in his power to stymie.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:45 PM
Subject: Re: fw Maneck on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on

Maneck wrote:

While there were no doubt numerous mistakes made in the manner in which Dr. >Cole and some other academics were dealt with,

Wow, is that ever a mouthful....

>for some could even go so far as to suggest that the House of Justice itself >has violated the Covenant.

The UHJ has certainly violated the Teachings on freedom of speech and liberty....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:<BR>
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,<BR>
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards<BR>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 6:52 AM
Subject: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

Bahais on AOL have been successful in terminating my account through a systematic campaign of slander
and deceit.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 6:52 AM
To: HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AAli929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700@aol.com; PParv
Subject: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

Bahais on AOL have been successful in terminating my account through a systematic campaign of slander
and deceit.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: RobertNik@aol.com[SMTP:RobertNik@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 6:53 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St.

In a message dated 08/03/99 11:52:02 GMT, you write:

<< Bahais on AOL have been successful in terminating
my account through a systematic campaign of slander
and deceit.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards
>>

Oh no. I nver thought it would get to this. look its not that big a deal. its just the internet after all.

all the best

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 8:04 AM
Subject: Re: Censored e-mail to srb

budparker@my-dejanews.com wrote in message <7br4pb$mg2$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>
>It would not hurt to review what is the legitimate sphere of authority of the >UHI!

>
>Speaking for myself, a Bahai of over 20 years, I never paid to much attention >to this and just >lumped all their actions into "divinely inspired", but the events of last 5 >years have been a wake-up call to deepen myself on this topic.

It is my belief that their "legitimate sphere of authority" is anything they say it is. What the Bahai Writings say is irrelevant, especially in terms of individual rights and free speech and liberty.

I hope my website documents many of the events of the last ten years. I shall be adding pertinent messages relating to the Majnun incidents before long, not to mention the events now on AOL which have affected more people than just myself....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 11:48 AM
To: abuse@mindspring.net
Subject: Re: Issue 990304-3411539

>We feel our user is responsibly maintaining an opt-in mailing list.
>Have you tried the removal instructions? Although it's a bad idea >to reply to most spam, this is a managed list and I feel that following >the included procedure may work for you. Remember that someone may have >owned the address FG@hotmail.com before.
>
>Regards,
>
>Len Gordon
>MindSpring AUP/Abuse Investigator

The spammer at testcase2@usa.net is definitely not running an opt-in mailing list. I DID NOT request 1,700 pieces of onelist.com email in a period of TWO days. My name is extremely rare and no else has owned my address.

Please help stop this bombarding of my account by deleting his and my address from every list you may run.

Thank you.

Fred Glaysher
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----

From: abuse@mindspring.net <abuse@mindspring.net>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 11:04 AM
Subject: Issue 990304-3411539

>> Received: from unknown (HELO smtp1.mindspring.com) (207.69.200.31) by >> pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 13:55:55 -0000
>>
>>

>> >From testcase2@usa.net Thu Mar 4 05:40:36 1999
>> Received: (qmail 8075 invoked by uid 0); 4 Mar 1999 13:40:16 -0000 >> Received: from onelist.com [209.207.135.253] by mx03 via mtad (2.6) >> with ESMTP id 700DcDNOo0172M03; Thu, 04 Mar 1999 13:40:15 GMT
>> Received: (qmail 29602 invoked by alias); 4 Mar 1999 13:35:28 -0000
>> Received: (qmail 29557 invoked from network); 4 Mar 1999 13:35:27 -0000 >> Received: from unknown (HELO smtp1.mindspring.com) (207.69.200.31) by >> pop.onelist.com with SMTP; 4 Mar 1999 13:35:27 -0000
>> Received: from hp-customer (user-381c01j.dialup.mindspring.com >> [209.86.0.51]) by smtp1.mindspring.com (8.8.5/8.8.5) with SMTP id
IAA01449;
>> Thu, 4 Mar 1999 08:40:03 -0500 (EST)
>> Message-Id: <3.0.1.32.19990304083637.006a7b0c@pop.mindspring.com>
>> X-Sender: dufrinr@pop.mindspring.com
>> X-Mailer: Windows Eudora Light Version 3.0.1 (32)
>> Date: Thu, 04 Mar 1999 08:36:37 -0500
>> To: (Recipient list suppressed)
>> From: "Classify98.com" <dufrinr@mindspring.com>
>> Mailing-List: list fortune@onelist.com; contact fortune-owner@onelist.com
>> Delivered-To: mailing list fortune@onelist.com
>> Precedence: bulk
>> List-Unsubscribe: <mailto:fortune-unsubscribe@ONelist.com>
>> Mime-Version: 1.0
>> Content-Type: text/plain; charset="us-ascii"
>> Subject: [fortune] Classify98.com On-line Classifeid Ad Submission Service
>> From: "Classify98.com" <dufrinr@mindspring.com>
>>
>>

>> ANNOUNCING ! Classify98.com - On-line Classified Ad Submission Service
>>
>> List your Classified Ad with up to 300 Classified sites for only $19.95
>>
>> Classify98.com will professionally submit your Ad within 24 hours and >> send you a detailed report of every submission. All you need to do is >> fill in the secure on-line order form
>>
>> To accomplish the same task manually would take days if not weeks >> of your time, so why advertise in just a handful of places when your >> Ad can be seen all over the US and the world.
>>

>> Submit you classified ad today at :

>>
>>
>> <https://www.trellian.com/cgi-bin/msw/entry?id=4625&file=https://www.classify98.com>
>> ..com
>>

>> Continued Success

>> Rodney J. Dufrin

>> * * * * *

>> NetPromo Site Submission Service : Submit to 900 Sites FREE

>> <https://www.myfreeoffice.com/netpromo/main.html>
>>

>> 16 SAFE to email list. Get your list today !
>> <mailto:list@getresponse.com>
>>

>> FREE Autoresponders that follow-up :
>> <https://www.getresponse.com/?12795>
>>
>>
>>

>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> -----
>> We have a new web site!
>> <https://www.onelist.com>
>> Onelist: The leading provider of free email community services
>
>
>Hello,
>
>We feel our user is responsibly maintaining an opt-in mailing list.
>Have you tried the removal instructions? Although it's a bad idea >to reply to most spam, this is a managed list and I feel that following >the included procedure may work for you. Remember that someone may have >owned the address FG@hotmail.com before.
>
>Regards,
>
>Len Gordon
>MindSpring AUP/Abuse Investigator
>
>"To protect and serve the MindSpring internet community"
>
>Appropriate Use Policy
><https://www.mindspring.net/aboutms/policy.html>
>User Agreement
><https://www.mindspring.net/prod-svc/users.html>
>Comprehensive Anti-Spam Site
><https://www.mindspring.com/~nomorespam>
>
-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:15 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

This is very unfortunate and quite sinister what the bahais on AOL did to you. I had my account terminated twice, and all I did was get a new account on a different credit (my mom's credit card so they wont recognize my first name). Please dont let the fundamentalists win, meaning that if you dont ever get back on AOL again. You need to stand up for what's right, and not let tyranny make you quit. When my account was cancelled twice, in a few minutes I was back on AOL with a different account and screen name because I knew that injustice will never make me into a quitter. I hope you will do the same. I am not sure if they will recognize your name if you use a credit card with the same name, because on the first time my account was cancelled I use another credit card with my name and nothing unusual happened. The second time I used my mom's credit card because I didnt have any more credit cards. But I hope to see you soon and back on AOL. Being back on AOL is a slap to the faces on the bahais who were sucessful in their campaign in kicking you off. The next post I will tell you about what happened while I was in the bahai chat, and what Wendy said about you.

-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:23 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

Two days ago I was in the bahai chat room when I discussed bahai censorship with Wendy. I asked her about the treatment of some bahais when it came to independent thinking, and I cited you as an example. Wendy further said that Fred Glaysher is not a bahai and he might have some mental problems. I asked her why she said that about you, she replied that you spread lies about the bahai faith, you attack people with no reason at all, and you are trying to boost your ego. I told her what about all the personal verbal attacks against you, she said that you deserve such "criticism" because you have shown nothing but evil. I wonder where is Wendy's "compassion." Wendy said that bahais love everybody including their enemies, but how she expressed herself about you seem to be a clear cut contradiction to that principle.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:44 PM
To: MrMahdi@aol.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

Thanks Mr. Mahdi for letting me know. May
I post your message on talk.religion.bahai?

Fred

-----Original Message-----

From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:23 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

>Two days ago I was in the bahai chat room when I discussed bahai censorship >with Wendy. I asked her about the treatment of some bahais when it came to >independent thinking, and I cited you as an example. Wendy further said
>that >Fred Glaysher is not a bahai and he might have some mental problems. I >asked >her why she said that about you, she replied that you spread lies about the >bahai faith, you attack people with no reason at all, and you are trying to >boost your ego. I told her what about all the personal verbal attacks against >you, she said that you deserve such "criticism" because you have shown nothing

>but evil. I wonder where is Wendy's "compassion." Wendy said that bahais >love everybody including their enemies, but how she expressed herself about >you seem to be a clear cut contradiction to that principle.
>

-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:56 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

You're welcome. You can post my message, I feel that letting people know what's going on is something that we need to do. Is it possible to give me a link to "talk.religion.bahai?" I for some reason never tried to go and see that place, mainly because I really didn't know where it was exactly. Also, will you update your web page any time soon? Would you also list the posts from you and others that were yanked off by Mark?

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 1:20 PM
To: MrMahdi@aol.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

Thanks.

Sure will list my and others' suppressed posts. Send anything you have and get them on as soon as I can which may take a while though.

On AOL go Keyword Newsgroups and then Expert Add talk.religion.bahai and it should be right there for you. Let me know if you can't find it.

Fred

-----Original Message-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:56 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re:
Personal St...

>You're welcome. You can post my message, I feel that letting people know what's >going on is something that we need to do. Is it possible to give me a link
to
>"talk.religion.bahai?" I for some reason never tried to go and see that >place, mainly because I really didn't know where it was exactly. Also, will >you update your web page any time soon? Would you also list the posts
from >you and others that were yanked off by Mark?
>

-----
From: Ruletherod@aol.com[SMTP:Ruletherod@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 1:30 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Cc: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

So they finally did it. I'm not surprised because most of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have the rabid fanatics (mostly women in my opinion) who think they own the Baha'i faith ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!"). Even some Baha'is who've recently joined the Faith think it's their exclusive club and that you and I were born yesterday--that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The irony is that they're reducing the religions of both the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned.

It's their shunning mentality, backed up by select writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am never to support the Baha'i faith again. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

One of our friends recently told me: The Baha'is like Wendy, Sunni and Zaynab are doing untold damage to the reputation of the Faith themselves (in their eyes of neutral lurkers) with their narrow-minded, smug and exclusionary attitudes...and that the harm they're doing to the Faith is an unrecognized justice. They're their own worst enemies but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with a screw loose.....but that's another story.

Let me know how things ultimately turn out for you. There's no one else to side with me at the board anymore (as PL has left and Larry is too turned off) and the regular crowd is giving me the cold shoulder in the hope that I'll just leave. I've pretty much done that for now.

Mark's arrival has somehow dulled everything. It was better when it was a free-for-all and the non-Bahai folder was at the top of the list. The threat of censorship chills everything.

I was also surprised to learn that many of the regulars at the board like Wendy, Roger, Debbie and some others are far older than I me. I'll be 46 myself this May.

Please keep these thoughts confidential or they'll hang me with them. Thanks. Take care, friend.

-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Monday, March 08, 1999 2:15 PM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

Thanks again. I hope to see you back on AOL, I am sure that will be a slap in the face of the bahais who were successful in getting your account terminated (like they did mine account twice, but I came came with a "vengeance" so to speak).

-----
From: Ruletherod@aol.com[SMTP:Ruletherod@aol.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 4:54 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Cc: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: FYI: Posted views on the board

Fred, I followed the stream of thought of our last e-mail discussion by mentioning similar points (the one's that I wanted to reword) in some AOL board folders.

I was replying to comments (to earlier postings of mine) by Wendy and Roy. Wendy was saying I wasn't a Baha'i in the Forum Leader folder (not entirely true--but still none of her business) and in the Baha'i Laws folder, Roy was encouraging me to turn in my Baha'i card and "gracefully bow out." Anyway, I took the opportunity to express my views. Just wanted you to know. --Rule

PS--I've noticed that the discussions at the Baha'i Studies list rarely stoop to the levels we've encountered at the B. spirituality board. Susan also sounds closer to some of our positions there, despite her committed allegiance to the UHJ/Covenant. I would have been better suited to that site....less frustrated, perhaps.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 6:40 AM
Subject: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

FYI

-----Original Message-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:15 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

>This is very unfortunate and quite sinister what the bahais on AOL did to you.
>I had my account terminated twice, and all I did was get a new account on a >different credit (my mom's credit card so they wont recognize my first name).
>Please dont let the fundamentalists win, meaning that if you dont ever get >back on AOL again. You need to stand up for what's right, and not let tyranny >make you quit. When my account was cancelled twice, in a few minutes I was >back on AOL with a different account and screen name because I knew that >injustice will never make me into a quitter. I hope you will do the same.
I >am not sure if they will recognize your name if you use a credit card with the >same name, because on the first time my account was cancelled I use another >credit card with my name and nothing unusual happened. The second time I used >my mom's credit card because I didnt have any more credit cards. But I hope >to see you soon and back on AOL. Being back on AOL is a slap to the faces on >the bahais who were sucessful in their campaign in kicking you off. The next >post I will tell you about what happened while I was in the bahai chat, and >what Wendy said about you.
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 6:53 AM
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

Deana Marie Holmes wrote in message <36d83268.49279794@enews.newsguy.com>...
>
>I occasionally drop in on the Baha'i groups, and I am glad that t.r.b >passed this time around. I've voted for it on at least two of the >three occasions it was up for a vote, because I believe in unfettered >discussion. I am glad to see Michael McKenny and Juan R. I. Cole >posting here. It distresses me that there are people out there who >simply have no concept of unfettered discussion, and are trying to >suppress discussion in the name of what, I am not sure. If your faith >is that insecure, then maybe you ought to examine your faith.

The people who now run the Bahai Faith are extremely insecure....

>

>I would only like to note that there are a number of people out there, >including myself, who dislike chaining up discussion, and harassing >people for their beliefs and their thoughts, and I am distressed to >hear accounts that this is happening in the Baha'i Faith. I would >only point to alt.religion.scientology and note that riling people up >over these issues only tends to make them want to do something about >it. I may not have much of an interest in Baha'i belief per se, but I >do have quite an interest in free and open discussion, and I commend >those who further that aim, and wonder about those whose intent is to >shut down discussion. (You know who you are.)

Thanks for letting Bahais know how their censorship looks from the outside.... Unfortunately, I'm sure they'll continue to ignore such views.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

>

>Carry on!

>

>

>Deana Marie Holmes / member of the "Gang of Three" (Rod Keller)
>The Few, The Proud, The Banned (2x + 1 ISP on Scientology ban list) >$cientology: Sponsor Windows84: "Where CAN'T you go today?" >mirele@xmission.com

-----

From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 6:58 AM
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

jrc@umich.edu wrote in message <7ba4jh$bha$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>

>

>Dear Deana:

>

>Bless you! Ever since cyberspace emerged, members of the house of justice >like Doug Martin, Farzam Arbab and Ian Semple, who live in Haifa, have been >sending around "counselors" like Stephen Birkland (a professor at Metro >University in Minneapolis!) and A.M. Ghadirian (Montreal), along with >lesser >lackeys like their "Auxiliary Board Members" such as Freeman (Kansas City)
>to >call Baha'is to special meetings. At these meetings they are browbeaten >about their email messages being too liberal, depicting Baha'u'llah as a >mere >mortal, taking a historical view of scripture. And they are threatened that >if they don't shut up, they will be disfellowshipped or even shunned.
>(Being >declared a "covenant breaker" in the Baha'i faith means that your Baha'i >spouse has to divorce you to face shunning, that Baha'i relatives can't see >you at family reunions, and that all your Baha'i friends of 25 years must >cut >you off without a further word).

This kind of shunning also takes place in cyberspace.

>

>And, of course, they simply declared Michael McKenny, a devoted Baha'i for >quarter of a century, "not a Baha'i", which, of course, led to his >ostracism
>by many of his former Baha'i friends.

>

>The Baha'i authorities have also attempted to suppress scholarly papers, >like >the one examining the possibility of women serving on the all-male house of >justice.

>

>I had thought that they were behaving themselves better in the past year >and a >half, as they allowed TRB to be voted in, and hadn't moved against any >Baha'i
>thinkers for a while. But in fact I have heard rumors of a new round of >Inquisition recently.

The Bahai fascists in the Administration did not "allow" talk.religion.bahai to be passed. They definitely fought it tooth and nail right up to the very last shrieks of Susan Maneck.... Once again, it was non-Bahais who voted for and created talk.religion.bahai. The record is in the RESULT on my website and elsewhere for those who care to look more in detail.

Let me mention that the moment trb passed, the fundamentalists dug in their heels on AOL by bringing back Mark Foster as "Forum Leader." More on that shortly.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

>
>
>cheers Juan
>
>
>>
>
>Juan Cole
>History, U of Michigan
><https://www-personal.umich.edu/~jrcole/bahai.htm>
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 7:00 AM
Subject: Re: Baha'i Schools of Thought

McKenny Michael wrote in message <7bbn72$5fv@freenet-news.carleton.ca>...

> Now, if any action is taken against anyone on account of what that >person has written here, this action should be detailed completely here, >so that the readers, Baha'is and non-Baha'is, may see what the current >practise, or lack thereof, of Baha'i principle is.

I shall detail what has taken place to terminate my AOL account shortly....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

> If really Counsellor Birkland or Counsellor Ghadirian or any other >Baha'i official is going after people who posted here, or, indeed, anyone >at all, for the expression of personal opinion, let us read fully about >it. Let us see what today is considered heresy in the Baha'i Faith, in >contradiction to Baha'u'llah's urging harmony rather than divisive efforts >to imposes uniform thought.

> In my opinion, the more openly this dark shadow of inquisition is >exposed to the light of public scrutiny, the more hesitant officials will >be to demonstrate their remoteness from the path presented by Baha'u'llah.

> Let us read a full account of all efforts to interfere with freedom of >expression. I include here all encouragement by such Baha'i officials that >talk.religion.bahai not be read. However, I especially underline the great >necessity to place on public record any attempt by such as Counsellors >Birkland and Ghadirian, acting on behalf of the UHJ, to intimidate and >silence anyone. If such people succeed in keeping secret their visits and >their demands people shut up, this allows them to imagine they can profit >from such unprincipled action. May they realize fully the negative impact >of such medieval behaviour.

> Let us see the true colour of this creature. In my opinion, by looking >closely at this, gods willing, a metamorphosis will take place, and the >entity will become what it was intended. Who, honestly, wishes to be known >as heading a fundamentalist cult dispatching inquisitors around to enforce >thought control? Since the thing is advertised as something quite different >and more beneficial than that, let's shine the spotlight on it, and see if >actually the light will banish these unwholesome shadows, leaving in real >existence what is a blessing to humans.

> May no iota of efforts at suppression of conscience remain hidden.

> May the light ever banish all darkness.

> May those charged with diffusing spiritual fragrances be about their >time consuming task, ceasing this contrary interference in matters of >conscience.

To the Future,
Michael

>> cheers Juan

>>

>--

>"My name's McKenny, Mike McKenny, Warrant Officer, Solar Guard."

> (Tom Corbett #1 STAND BY FOR MARS p2)

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:24 AM
To: FG
Subject: Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further suppress knowledge and information.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people new to AOL from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similiarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clearly to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available on AOL's list of newsgroups.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices leaves no doubt in my mind that he and other Bahais, undoubtedly some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:31 AM
Subject: Re: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further suppress knowledge and information.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people new to AOL from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clearly to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available on AOL's list of newsgroups.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices leaves no doubt in my mind that he and other Bahais, undoubtedly some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke with on the phone, was that I had point out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members requested one titled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and it's ability to exploit its TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:31 AM
To: HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AAli929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700@aol.com; PParv
Subject: Re: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further suppress knowledge and information.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people new to AOL from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clearly to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available on AOL's list of newsgroups.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices leaves no doubt in my mind that he and other Bahais, undoubtedly some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke with on the phone, was that I had point out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members requested one titled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and it's ability to exploit its TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:42 AM
Subject: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

FYI

-----Original Message-----

From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:23 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...)

>Two days ago I was in the bahai chat room when I discussed bahai censorship >with Wendy. I asked her about the treatment of some bahais when it came to >independent thinking, and I cited you as an example. Wendy further said

that >Fred Glaysher is not a bahai and he might have some mental problems. I asked >her why she said that about you, she replied that you spread lies about the >bahai faith, you attack people with no reason at all, and you are trying to >boost your ego. I told her what about all the personal verbal attacks against >you, she said that you deserve such "criticism" because you have shown nothing
>but evil. I wonder where is Wendy's "compassion." Wendy said that bahais >love everybody including their enemies, but how she expressed herself about >you seem to be a clear cut contradiction to that principle.
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:49 AM
Subject: Bahai Censorship on AOL (Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account)

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further suppress knowledge and information.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups.
AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups.
It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999.
Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening.
As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke with on the phone, was that I had point out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested one entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:51 AM
Subject: Re: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal Statement on Baha'u'llah, 3 years on)

FYI

-----Original Message-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 2:15 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

>Thanks again. I hope to see you back on AOL, I am sure that will be a slap
>in >the face of the bahais who were successful in getting your account >terminated >(like they did mine account twice, but I came came with a "vengeance" so to >speak).
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:53 AM
Subject: fw Mr Mahdi Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account

FYI

-----Original Message-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 12:56 PM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

>Youre welcome. You can post my message, I feel that letting people know
>whats >going on is something that we need to do. Is it possible to give me a link
>to
>"talk.religion.bahai?" I for some reason never tried to go and see that >place, mainly because I really didnt know where it was exactly. Also, will >you updating your web page any time soon? Would you also list the posts
>from >you and others that were yanked off by Mark?
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:57 AM
To: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Re: Posted views on the board

>PS--I've noticed that the discussions at the Baha'i Studies list rarely >stoop to the levels we've encountered at the B. spirituality board. Susan >also sounds closer to some of our positions there, despite her committed >allegiance to the UHJ/Covenant.

Don't trust Susan. I've watched her on several lists and forums change and stab people when it suits her purposes.... You should read her article on hikmat to understand what she's really doing. There's a link to it on my website and on Cole's.

I'd really appreciate your revised message. It would help people on trb to understand that I was not alone in being attacked by Foster.

Fred

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 8:59 AM
Subject: fw RobertNik@aol.com Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account

FYI

-----Original Message-----
From: RobertNik@aol.com <RobertNik@aol.com>

To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Monday, March 08, 1999 6:53 AM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St.

>In a message dated 08/03/99 11:52:02 GMT, you write:
>
><< Bahais on AOL have been successful in terminating > my account through a systematic campaign of slander
> and deceit.
>
> FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
> alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards
> >>
>
>Oh no. I nver thought it would get to this. look its not that big a deal.
its
>just the internet after all.
>
>
>all the best
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 9:01 AM
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account

Sent to Jerri White, Administrator, Lifestyles Forum, at AOL prior to my termination:

-----Original Message-----
From: FG@aol.com <FG@aol.com>
To: RBCFAdmin@aol.com <RBCFAdmin@aol.com>
Cc: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Friday, March 05, 1999 5:41 PM
Subject: Re: False TOS by Mark Foster - hikmat folder

>I believe Foster is using his power to target people >with TOSs to silence and intimidate them and he >does it here as well by deleting the person's message.
>Asserting false TOSs against people violates the TOS >rules, and Foster does it constantly in my opinion.
>
>The ones he's alleged against me are the same type >and that's why I refused and refuse to accept the >burden of emailing you TOSsed messages. AOL has >them. I'm innocent untill proven guilty. The burden of >proof is on you and Foster.
>
>He continues to use his "authority" to the detriment of >AOL members he disagrees with for religious reasons.
>I and others, for instance, requested a Folder titled >"Bahai Censorship." He created one titled merely >Censorship which misses the entire point of the Forum.
>Further, I've requested since August that alt.religion.bahai >and talk.religion.bahai be added to the Newsgroup menu >along with soc.religion.bahai, the fundamentalist newsgroup.
>He has continually made excuses and continues to drag >it along.
>
>I believe it's your responsibility to act as a fair arbiter and >intervene. Notice it's a fair request. Alt.religion.bahai has >had over 30,000 posts to it and existed since April of 1997.
>Talk.religion.bahai, newly formed on a Big 8 hierarchy, >had 1,700+ posts in its first month.
>
>AOL should not support the fundamentalists in what is >essentially a legitimate debate over religious interpretations >but allow a free and open discussion, which Foster is >doing everything in his power to stymie.
>
>
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 9:04 AM
To: ONElist Tech Support
Cc: abuse@usa.net
Subject: Re: TESTCASE2@USA.NET Thanks!

I just want to thank everyone involved in stopping the testcase2@usa.net spammer. My mailbox is back to a normal four or five messages a day instead of 800 plus!

Gratefully,

Fred Glaysher
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----
From: ONElist Tech Support <admin@onelist.com>

To: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Friday, March 05, 1999 2:34 PM
Subject: Re: TESTCASE2@USA.NET SPAMMER Re: Your account size is too large

>Hi Fred
>
>I have written to testcase2@usa.net and request he cease from sending you
>any >mail. As you are subscribed to ONElist it must be being forwarded >directly from the email address.
>
>Kate >ONElist Team
>--
>When replying to this message, please include the entire message.
>ONElist Tech Support                      Free Mailing Lists
>https://www.onelist.com                      admin@onelist.com
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 09, 1999 1:12 PM
Subject: REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke with on the phone, was that I had point out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested one entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 10, 1999 7:54 AM
Subject: REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

For an instance of "back-channel" email coercion on AOL see <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

For an instance of Foster's double standard handling fundamentalist Bahais see Susan Maneck's accusations on AOL against me of "slander" and references to my views as "garbage": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke on the phone, was that I had pointed out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested a Folder entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience: <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 11, 1999 7:07 AM
To: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Re: Bahais terminate my AOL account (Re: fw Ruletherod on AOL Re: Personal St...

Rule,

Looking again at your message, I'm not sure you need to revise it. I could post it as from an AOL member who request anonymity. I don't see anything in it that would identify you:

>So they finally did it. I'm not surprised because most of the regulars at the >AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant >supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have the rabid fanatics (mostly >women in my opinion) who think they own the Baha'i faith ("Don't you go >messing with MY religion, buddy!"). Even some Baha'is who've recently joined >the Faith think it's their exclusive club and that you and I were born >yesterday--that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The irony is that >they're reducing the religions of both the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of >sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for women. I had higher hopes, >but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the >enemy to be shunned.
>
>It's their shunning mentality, backed up by select writings, that kills it for >me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over >emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving writings up like >a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am never to support the >Baha'i faith again. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their >definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."
>
>One of our friends recently told me: The Baha'is like Wendy, Sunni
>and Zaynab are doing untold damage to the reputation of the Faith themselves >(in they eyes of neutral lurkers) with their narrow-minded, smug and >exclusionary attitudes...and that the harm they're doing to the Faith is an >unrecognized justice. They're their own worst enemies but they're too filled >with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with a screw >loose.....but that's another story.
>
>Let me know how things ultimately turn out for you. There's no one else to >side with me at the board anymore (as PL has left and Larry is too turned off) >and the regular crowd is giving me the cold shoulder in the hope that I'll >just leave. I've pretty much done that for now.

>
>Mark's arrival has somehow dulled everything. It was better when it was a >free-for-all and the non-Bahai folder was at the top of the list. The threat >of censorship chills everything.
>
>I was also surprised to learn that many of the regulars at the board like >Wendy, Roger, Debbie and some others are far older than I me.
>I'll be 46 myself this May.

-----
From: Ruletherod@aol.com[SMTP:Ruletherod@aol.com]
Sent: Friday, March 12, 1999 7:16 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Cc: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Revised version of my message for your site (anonymously)

Dear Fred,

I've edited the following Email you sent me (representing my previous message). Such revision is necessary or all the people I've mentioned will get hurt--not my intention. I want to avoid the personal and just speak to the issue. Because of select words in my original message, some Baha'is would know right away that I'd written it (and they might anyway). So I've changed them too. Yes, you can leave my name off it this time so readers will just consider the message on its own merits. People will be more accepting of my criticisms if they're not quite so harsh (words that were written when I was upset). After all, my target audience is a general one, representing all kinds of lurkers. We have to be tactful and accurate in the final analysis.

Thank you.

---

>So they finally did it [terminated your account]. I'm not surprised because some of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have a few zealous extremists who think they own the copyright on the name Baha'i ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!").

Because some Baha'is don't know "the opposition" well, they imagine we were born yesterday and haven't studied the Writings; that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The sad irony is that they're reducing the religions of the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for society's disfranchised women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned?

It's this shunning mentality, backed up by select Writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving Writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am not to support the Baha'is. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

The religious extremists are their own worst enemies (an unrecognized justice) but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with the screw loose.....but that's another story that I'm presently consulting my shrink about.

-----
From: Ruletherod@aol.com[SMTP:Ruletherod@aol.com]
Sent: Friday, March 12, 1999 7:16 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Cc: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Revised version of my message for your site (anonymously)

Dear Fred,

I've edited the following Email you sent me (representing my previous message). Such revision is necessary or all the people I've mentioned will get hurt--not my intention. I want to avoid the personal and just speak to the issue. Because of select words in my original message, some Baha'is would know right away that I'd written it (and they might anyway). So I've changed them too. Yes, you can leave my name off it this time so readers will just consider the message on its own merits. People will be more accepting of my criticisms if they're not quite so harsh (words that were written when I was upset). After all, my target audience is a general one, representing all kinds of lurkers. We have to be tactful and accurate in the final analysis.

Thank you.

---

>So they finally did it [terminated your account]. I'm not surprised because some of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have a few zealous extremists who think they own the copyright on the name Baha'i ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!").

Because some Baha'is don't know "the opposition" well, they imagine we were born yesterday and haven't studied the Writings; that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The sad irony is that they're reducing the religions of the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for society's disfranchised women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned?

It's this shunning mentality, backed up by select Writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving

Writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am not to support the Baha'is. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

The religious extremists are their own worst enemies (an unrecognized justice) but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with the screw loose....but that's another story that I'm presently consulting my shrink about.

-----
From: Ruletherod@aol.com[SMTP:Ruletherod@aol.com]
Sent: Friday, March 12, 1999 7:16 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Cc: Ruletherod@aol.com
Subject: Revised version of my message for your site (anonymously)

Dear Fred,

I've edited the following Email you sent me (representing my previous message). Such revision is necessary or all the people I've mentioned will get hurt--not my intention. I want to avoid the personal and just speak to the issue. Because of select words in my original message, some Baha'is would know right away that I'd written it (and they might anyway). So I've changed them too. Yes, you can leave my name off it this time so readers will just consider the message on its own merits. People will be more accepting of my criticisms if they're not quite so harsh (words that were written when I was upset). After all, my target audience is a general one, representing all kinds of lurkers. We have to be tactful and accurate in the final analysis.

Thank you.

---

>So they finally did it [terminated your account]. I'm not surprised because some of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have a few zealous extremists who think they own the copyright on the name Baha'i ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!").

Because some Baha'is don't know "the opposition" well, they imagine we were born yesterday and haven't studied the Writings; that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The sad irony is that they're reducing the religions of the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for society's disfranchised women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned?

It's this shunning mentality, backed up by select Writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving Writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am not to support the Baha'is. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

The religious extremists are their own worst enemies (an unrecognized justice) but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with the screw loose....but that's another story that I'm presently consulting my shrink about.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 12, 1999 5:51 AM
Subject: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

FYI - TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT:

So they finally did it. I'm not surprised because most of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have the rabid fanatics (mostly women in my opinion) who think they own the Baha'i faith ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!"). Even some Baha'is who've recently joined the Faith think it's their exclusive club and that you and I were born yesterday--that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The irony is that they're reducing the religions of both the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned.

It's their shunning mentality, backed up by select writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am never to support the Baha'i faith again. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

One of our friends recently told me: The Baha'is like Wendy, Sunni and Zaynab are doing untold damage to the reputation of the Faith themselves (in they eyes of neutral lurkers) with their narrow-minded, smug and exclusionary attitudes...and that the harm they're doing to the Faith is an unrecognized justice. They're their own worst enemies but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with a screw loose.....but that's another story.

Let me know how things ultimately turn out for you. There's no one else to side with me at the board anymore (as PL has left and Larry is too turned off) and the regular crowd is giving me the cold shoulder in the hope that I'll just leave. I've pretty much done that for now.

Mark's arrival has somehow dulled everything. It was better when it was a free-for-all and the non-Bahai folder was at the top of the list. The threat of censorship chills everything.

I was also surprised to learn that many of the regulars at the board like Wendy, Roger, Debbie and some others are far older than I me. I'll be 46 myself this May.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 12, 1999 5:51 AM
To: HANI72@aol.com; CRust60001@aol.com; AALi929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700@aol.com; PParv
Subject: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

FYI - TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT:

So they finally did it. I'm not surprised because most of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have the rabid fanatics (mostly women in my opinion) who think they own the Baha'i faith ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!"). Even some Baha'is who've recently joined the Faith think it's their exclusive club and that you and I were born yesterday--that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The irony is that they're reducing the religions of both the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned.

It's their shunning mentality, backed up by select writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am never to support the Baha'i faith again. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

One of our friends recently told me: The Baha'is like Wendy, Sunni and Zaynab are doing untold damage to the reputation of the Faith themselves (in they eyes of neutral lurkers) with their narrow-minded, smug and exclusionary attitudes...and that the harm they're doing to the Faith is an unrecognized justice. They're their own worst enemies but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with a screw loose.....but that's another story.

Let me know how things ultimately turn out for you. There's no one else to side with me at the board anymore (as PL has left and Larry is too turned off) and the regular crowd is giving me the cold shoulder in the hope that I'll just leave. I've pretty much done that for now.

Mark's arrival has somehow dulled everything. It was better when it was a free-for-all and the non-Bahai folder was at the top of the list. The threat of censorship chills everything.

I was also surprised to learn that many of the regulars at the board like Wendy, Roger, Debbie and some others are far older than I me. I'll be 46 myself this May.

-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 1999 1:06 AM
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better. I often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and Jool are elated at your non-presense on AOL. It is kind of sad that they will consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like then a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais and anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at all. Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt mean I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or groups of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on censorships are too much for them to handle.

-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com[SMTP:MrMahdi@aol.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 1999 1:06 AM

To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better. I often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and Jool are elated at your non-presense on AOL. It is kind of sad that they will consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like then a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais and anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at all. Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt mean I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or groups of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on censorships are too much for them to handle.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 1999 8:36 AM
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

FYI - Draft #2 TO PROTECT THE INNOCENT:

>So they finally did it [terminated your account]. I'm not surprised because some of the regulars at the AOL board (there are many more where they came from) are the intolerant supporters of Baha'i orthodoxy. And then you have a few zealous extremists who think they own the copyright on the name Baha'i ("Don't you go messing with MY religion, buddy!").

Because some Baha'is don't know "the opposition" well, they imagine we were born yesterday and haven't studied the Writings; that we're the unwelcome Strangers in the Night. The sad irony is that they're reducing the religions of the Bab and Baha'u'llah to a series of sentimental tea cliques and spoiled brat clubs for society's disfranchised women. I had higher hopes, but what can you accomplish when you're routinely perceived as one of the enemy to be shunned?

It's this shunning mentality, backed up by select Writings, that kills it for me. (They conveniently forget the other writings about fanaticism, reason over emotion, justice, etc.) The more they hold those self-serving Writings up like a crucifix and cloves of garlic, the more resigned I am not to support the Baha'is. If they want enemies, they'll have them. And their definition of the word "enemy" is: "Think like us or you're not one of us."

The religious extremists are their own worst enemies (an unrecognized justice) but they're too filled with "holy certitude" to know this. They think I'm the one with the screw loose....but that's another story that I'm presently consulting my shrink about.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 13, 1999 8:44 AM
To: Barthaman@aol.com
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

>Fred, you need to take this version down immediately and replace it with the >one I sent you this morning. This will burn all my bridges as Baha'is and non->Baha'is will be forwarding it to others. Larry won't like it either because it >was sent out without his permission.

Barthaman, you are also Ruletherod, apparently?

I wouldn't worry about burning bridges with the Bahai fanatics since none really exist.... Who's Larry?

>Oh God, I thought you'd wait long enough for my response.
>I'm writing under this screen name because I'd didn't see it under my other >one. Some of the Baha'is I mentioned below are friends who won't >like being listed in this context. I'm embarrassed and saddened. Zaynab, for >instance, changed toward me in recent days--now she'll think I've stabbed her >in the back.

You can blame it on me. My fellow Bahais need to hear the undiluted Truth.... I'm sorry if you're mad at me for posting it. I waited a few days and asked you if it would be okay anonymously. I clipped your name and closing and don't really think it will matter since the fanatics have gone into the shunning mode with anything I post.

Other people too need to know the truth....

You're first draft has more vigor and life to it.

Fred

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 1:36 PM
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

Smaneck wrote in message <19990313145342.11473.00000238@ng-cg1.aol.com>...
>I have just finished communicating with the person who wrote this private >message to Fred. He had specifically requested Fred *not* publicize his private >email and is extremely distressed that his wishes were ignored and his privacy
>violated in this fashion.

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 1:40 PM
Subject: fw MrMahdi Re: Bahai Censorship on AOL

FYI

From: MrMahdi@aol.com
To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship
on AOL)
Date: Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 EST
MIME-Version: 1.0
From mrmahdi@aol.com Fri Mar 12 22:08:45 1999
Received: from MrMahdi@aol.com by imo17.mx.aol.com (IM0v19.3) id iWAJa09661for
<FG@hotmail.com>; Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 -0500 (EST)
Message-ID: <d62d26f5.36ea0064@aol.com>
X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 13
View Email Message Source
Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
Content-Type: text/plain
Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit

Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better. I often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and Jool are elated at your non-presense on AOL. It is kind of sad that they will consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like then a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais and anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at
all.
Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt mean
I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or groups
of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on censorships
are too much for them to handle.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 1:44 PM
To: Barthaman@aol.com
Cc: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: Re: Fwd: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

Barthaman,

Maneck is making the claim below on talk.religion.bahai:

I have just finished communicating with the person who wrote this private message to Fred. He had specifically requested Fred *not* publicize his private email and is extremely distressed that his wishes were ignored and his privacy
violated in this fashion.
Susan Stiles Maneck
History, Stetson University

May I post your message below there in response?

Fred

>From: Barthaman@aol.com
>To: FG@hotmail.com

>CC: Barthaman@aol.com
>Subject: Fwd: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)
>Date: Sat, 13 Mar 1999 10:26:50 EST
>MIME-Version: 1.0
>From: barthaman@aol.com Sat Mar 13 07:38:29 1999
>Received: from Barthaman@aol.com by imo23.mx.aol.com (IMOV19.3) id iENJa15478; Sat, 13 Mar 1999 10:26:50 -0500 (EST)
>Message-ID: <472cc36f.36ea83ba@aol.com>
>X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 4
>
>I lost my computer connection during that time. Larry is Nadle.
>
>Private conversations are often candidly to the point because we're >assuming our words are not being lurked upon by the people who would be most >offended -- including the people we care about. When we think otherwise, we're >less candid with the truth.....unless it's a public forum.....and even >there we don't invite people into our locker rooms to study our anatomy.
>
>I realize the misunderstanding in this instance. However, my silly comment >about some people being older than me may be taken wrong by some as a putdown
>-- and age has nothing to do with the issues we've been addressing.
Anyway, I >hope that when the dust clouds finally settle I won't be a handful of bones
>six feet under.....with my soul stored >in someone's freezer.
>
><< attach3 >>

---

Get Your Private, Free Email at <https://www.hotmail.com>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 1:56 PM
To: MrMahdi@aol.com
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

Mr. Mahdi,

Thanks for saying all this. I appreciate hearing from someone on AOL who's fair and honest about what is taking place there. You fully understand the complexity of the deceit that some Bahais are committing there, unlike the people in charge of the AOL TOS system.

I've posted your message on talk.religion.bahai.
Hope you don't mind. I think others would benefit from hearing your views too.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----Original Message-----
From: MrMahdi@aol.com <MrMahdi@aol.com>
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Saturday, March 13, 1999 1:06 AM
Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai Censorship on AOL)

>Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better.
I
>often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and >Jool are elated at your non-presense on AOL. It is kind of sad that they will >consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like then >a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below >me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais
and >anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at
all.
>Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt
mean
>I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or >suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, >but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or groups
>of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized >campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on censorships
>are too much for them to handle.
>

---

From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 2:02 PM
Subject: Re: fw MrMahdi Re: Bahai Censorship on AOL

Mr. Mahdi,

Thanks for saying all this. I appreciate hearing from someone on AOL who's fair and honest about what is taking place there. You fully understand the complexity of the deceit that some Bahais are committing on AOL, while those in charge of the AOL TOS system definitely don't even have a clue....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

FG wrote in message <7ch0ae$2f0u@news1.newsguy.com>...

>FYI
>
>From: MrMahdi@aol.com
>To: FG@hotmail.com
>Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai >Censorship
> on AOL)
>Date: Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 EST
>MIME-Version: 1.0
>From mrmahdi@aol.com Fri Mar 12 22:08:45 1999
>Received: from MrMahdi@aol.com by imo17.mx.aol.com (IMOV19.3) id
>iWAlJa09661for
> <FG@hotmail.com>; Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 -0500 (EST)
>Message-ID: <d62d26f5.36ea0064@aol.com>
>X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 13
>View Email Message Source
>Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
>Content-Type: text/plain
>Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit
>
>Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better.
I
>often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and >Jool are elated at your non-presence on AOL. It is kind of sad that they >will >consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like >then >a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below
>me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais
and >anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at
>all.
>Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt
>mean
>I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or >suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, >but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or >groups
>of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized >campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on >censorships
>are too much for them to handle.
>
>
>
>
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, March 14, 1999 2:02 PM
To: RBCFAdmin@aol.com
Subject: Re: fw MrMahdi Re: Bahai Censorship on AOL

Mr. Mahdi,

Thanks for saying all this. I appreciate hearing from someone on AOL who's fair and honest about what is taking place there. You fully understand the complexity of the deceit that some Bahais are committing on AOL, while those in charge of the AOL TOS system definitely don't even have a clue....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

FG wrote in message <7ch0ae$2f0u@news1.newsguy.com>...

>FYI
>
>From: MrMahdi@aol.com
>To: FG@hotmail.com
>Subject: Re: Anonymous AOL member on Bahai Forums (REVISED: Bahai >Censorship
> on AOL)
>Date: Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 EST

>MIME-Version: 1.0
>From mrmahdi@aol.com Fri Mar 12 22:08:45 1999
>Received: from MrMahdi@aol.com by imo17.mx.aol.com (IMOV19.3) id
>iWAlJa09661for
> <FG@hotmail.com>; Sat, 13 Mar 1999 01:06:28 -0500 (EST)
>Message-ID: <d62d26f5.36ea0064@aol.com>
>X-Mailer: AOL 4.0 for Windows 95 sub 13
>View Email Message Source
>Reply Reply All Forward Delete Previous Next Close
>Content-Type: text/plain
>Content-Transfer-Encoding: 7bit
>
>Its sad what happened to you, I hope things will work out for the better.
I
>often am in the bahai chats, and some of the bahais like Wendy, Zaynab, and >Jool are elated at your non-presence on AOL. It is kind of sad that they >will >consider you as a non-bahai and a mad man. I see often from people like >then >a snobbish type of I am better than you and I will not deal with those below
>me type of attitude. They give the impression that they are real bahais
and >anybody who is not up to their standards are less bahai are not bahai at
>all.
>Of course as you know I dont agree with the bahai faith, but that doesnt
>mean
>I will not stand up for a fellow human being when he is being oppressed or >suppressed without right. In this case, a person's religion is irrelevant, >but his honor and him being human is relevant. I have seen persons or >groups
>of people try to bring down a person, but I never saw such a well-organized >campaign of trying to take a person down all because his views on >censorships
>are too much for them to handle.
>
>
>
>
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 15, 1999 6:40 AM
Subject: Re: fw MrMahdi Re: Bahai Censorship on AOL

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Ken Roberts wrote in message <36EC1374.D82B7DEC@worldnet.att.net>...
>Frederick,
>

>I have only perused this list twice now. I don't normally even view >newsgroups, let alone participate in them. One thing, though, is >immediately obvious:
>
>Whenever your name appears in a thread, your name is the ONLY name in >the thread.
>
>Another thing that comes to mind is that you always claim there's some >conspiracy someplace. I'm not saying that there isn't, exactly, since I >have no firsthand knowledge.
>

>Consider this: On most lists I've heard of, being the only person on a >thread that has many entries is considered spam. Spam is a big problem >on the internet. Most internet service providers will lock a user out >who can be proven to have sent spam. It's a perfectly valid complaint, >like when neighbors complain that a stereo is too loud, or that a party >is too obnoxious. Spam is like shouting in a library. Everyone knows >you're there, but nobody will acknowledge your existence until someone >comes to take you away.
>

>Perhaps you should consider toning your attacks down so that people >would pay more attention? Talk with another human. It helps you get a >perspective.
>

>FG wrote:
>>
>> Mr. Mahdi,
>>

>> Thanks for saying all this. I appreciate hearing >> from someone on AOL who's fair and honest about >> what is taking place there. You fully understand the >> complexity of the deceit that some Bahais are >> committing on AOL, while those in charge of the AOL >> TOS system definitely don't even have a clue....
>>

>> FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
>> alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 15, 1999 7:07 AM
Subject: Re: Juan Cole and the "Orientalists" mbkafes@bestweb.net wrote in message <7cc8fe$9vm$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>Mr Mahdi--
>
>But why on earth would you want him to post a message where you admit to >fradulently getting an account on AOL twice and encouraging others to do so?
>Its fraud and illegal. You could get sued. But if you don't care, that's >certainly ok with me.

Because he obviously doesn't have anything to hide, unlike the fanatic Bahais on AOL; because he obviously isn't about to allow himself to be beaten down by a hoard of liars; because he obviously recognizes that AOL's TOS system is rife with abuse and shortcomings, as do half the people on the Internet....

The significant point in all this is the fact that Bahais are manipulating AOL and driving people off it for reasons of conscience....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 15, 1999 7:10 AM
Subject: Re: Juan Cole and the "Orientalists"

I defend the right of Mr. Mahdi and other Muslims to express their point of view on AOL and elsewhere.
Further, it seems to me, the Bahai writings supposedly guarantee free speech and conscience to all peoples, including Muslims. I don't know of a caveat Baha'u'llah ever made denying such rights to Muslims....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Mr Mahdi wrote in message <19990313143540.07250.00000152@ng67.aol.com>...
>Religion and obeying God are not the same, and dont cofuse the two. Islam is >about obeying God the way God want us to obey Him, not the way religion wants >us to obey Him.
>
>>Therefore, Baha'is do not 'convert' people from one religion to another.
>>Baha'is believe in and love the prophet Muhammad. From the Baha'i viewpoint,
>>Muhammad is Jusus (Muhammad says that in the Koran) and Baha'u'llah is >>Muhammad and Allah is Allah. Baha'is obey God as best they can, and Muslims
>>do the same.
>
>I am sick and tired of the filthy lies coming from bahais about islam.
>Muhammad (saaw) never said he was Jesus, and nor does the Quran. Show me a >verse where it says that. Islam is based on Quran and sunnah, and Islam >doesnt mean any religion that claims to "submit to God." "Buniya Islam 'ala >khams" means Islam is built on five pillars, and the bahai faith dont have >these five pillars. The devil bahaullah is not Muhammad, Muhammad (saaw)
will >always be Muhammad ibn 'Abdullah. Bahaullah wasnt that. Muhamamd was sent >with the Quran to all of mankind, while bahaullah try to undermine the Quran.
>
>>With all that said, God made a covenant with humanity. He kept His agreement, >>and has given us Baha'u'llah, so that we might build the 'Kingdom of God
on >>earth as it is in heaven'.
>
>God never breaks His promise like the Quran says. Read 3:85, 48:28, 5:3, >3:110, and many other verses. Then come back to me with a response.
>
>>God renewed His Faith by sending Baha'u'llah, He did not 'abrogate' his own >>Faith. He changed certain social laws (as did Muhammad), due to changing >>social conditions. He requires Baha'is to love the authors of all religions,
>>for they are one, and God is one, and religion is one.
>
>Allah said that Islam is perfect, completed, and chosen. Perfection and >Completion need no revision. Islam agrees with human natures, and human nature
>hasnt changed since Adam and Eve. Allah changed laws, Muhammad didnt.
>Muhamamd was obeying Allah not Allah was obeying Muhammad (saaw).

>
>>Muhammad changed the Qiblih, and Baha'u'llah changed it also.
>>
>>Muhammad changed the laws on prayer and fasting. Baha'u'llah changed the laws >>also.
>
>Muhammad didnt change the Qiblah (not "Qiblih) nor did he change the prayer and >fasting, Allah did. Read 9:36 about the months. Muhammad said in his "khutba >ul-Wida' " that there will no new religion after me, nor will there be a new >prophet or messenger. This is in total contradiction to the bahai belief.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:52 AM
Subject: Technique Bahai

During the last few years or more a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:
"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:
"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:
"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."
"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:
"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:
"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:

"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Juan Cole wrote, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to being "Baha'i" at all)."

"Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith."

"The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fall silent."

"With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of "claiming authority," of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them."

"This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute."

"Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:53 AM
Subject: Maneck's Technique

Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:

"It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning, they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."

"I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"

FG, February 15, 1999:

"Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking "slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or interpretation."

"All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and psychological demonization and terrorism."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:54 AM
Subject: FAQ - arb & trb - history

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
March 16, 1999

This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly, I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:

<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:

<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai

-----
January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG
that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the
"neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999:
Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
-----

This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:55 AM
Subject: brief - srbahai - quotes

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:
"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb84.htm>

Kent Johnson:
"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb61.htm>

Ron House:

"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb53.htm>

Timothy Mulligan:

"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb59.htm>

RobertNik:

"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb54.htm>

Bruce Burrill:

"What are Baha'i afraid of?"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb60.htm>

Zute flute:

"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb50.htm>

YU ZIR:

"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb46.htm>

Matthew Cromer:

"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with...."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb47.htm>

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:

"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb77.htm>

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:

"Sorry to hear that you've been suppressed on srb. Your comments were always very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Ex7.htm>

Harold Shinsato:

"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb33.htm>

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:

"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb79.htm>

Laeterna:

"To say I was flabberghasted at this type of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored2.htm>

Guy Macon

"Please explain which portion of the charter the following post violates."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored1.htm>

Robin Peters:

"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb43.htm>

jgoldberg:

"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb57.htm>

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:

"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb76.htm>

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:56 AM
Subject: 7-24-98 Universal House of Justice

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>; Letters to Editor <letters@nytimes.com>;
bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998
Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 9:03 PM
July 24,1998

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

As a Bahai, I am saddened by the news of the execution of yet another Bahai in Iran. However, the immediate public statements made by Firuz Kazemzadeh of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, reminiscent of Robert Henderson's piece in The New York Times on January 13th of this year, appear equally lamentable for their blatant hypocrisy: "We had hoped that President Khatami's assertions about freedom, justice and the rule of law in Iran would apply to the Baha'is of that country.... We urge the international community to protest vigorously Mr. Rowhani's killing and to seek justice for the beleaguered Iranian Baha'i community."

The tragic loss of Bahai lives in Iran and the subsequent exploitation of their deaths by Bahai spokesmen, often in the American media, always courting the President and other members of the government, has become a predictable pattern rendered intolerable in the context of continuing and pervasive Bahai censorship and denial of human and civil rights in the United States and elsewhere. Such incidents as I queried you about in my unanswered email of March 31, 1997, available on my Web site, regarding the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the resignations of a number of scholars from the Bahai Encyclopedia, the attacks on the listserv known as Talisman I at Indiana University, the harassing and blacklisting of many individuals, Bahai and non-Bahai, suggest profoundly deep-seated problems within the Bahai community and administration.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/To-UHJ1.htm>

To these incidents must now be added the apparent conspiracy for more than a year and a half of the Bahai Computer and Communications Committee (BCCA), under the chairmanship of Mark Towfiq, to defeat twice now, along with the collusion of other Bahais, the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup on the Bahai Faith which would be known as talk.religion.bahai. You may find extensive documentation for all of these violations of the basic human rights of many Bahais and non-Bahais on my Web site, "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

Because the third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai on Usenet is approaching, after August 28th, I ask you again to investigate the BCCA and its depriving me of access last November from all private Bahai-only mailing lists at a crucial moment just when the tide of discussion was going very much in favor of the newsgroup, noted by many observers. I also ask whether you supported or were involved in that decision? The relevant files can be found on my Web site under Bahai-Discuss Archives.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

Similarly, I would like to know whether your institution or the BCCA has approved of or advocated the recent ban of my email signature file by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai, as well as their complete ban for more than a year and a half now on all discussion regarding talk.religion.bahai.

The prevailing atmosphere of suppression of free speech and religious conscience that now characterizes the Bahai Faith cannot but call into question the honesty of many members of the Bahai administration and perhaps the institutions themselves.

I ask once more whether censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith and what passages of the Bahai Writings support it, what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship?

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:58 AM
Subject: Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

For an instance of "back-channel" email coercion on AOL see <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

For an instance of Foster's double standard handling fundamentalist Bahais see Susan Maneck's accusations on AOL against me of "slander" and references to my views as "garbage": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke on the phone, was that I had pointed out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested a Folder entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 6:59 AM
Subject: Liberty and conscience - Abdul-Baha

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 7:00 AM
Subject: Re: fw MrMahdi Re: Bahai Censorship on AOL

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Ken Roberts wrote in message <36ED9DEC.934280AF@worldnet.att.net>...
>FG wrote:
>>
>> "The Bahai Technique":
>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>
>>
>> FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
>> alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards
>
>So, all you can do is post urls to pre-canned propaganda?
>
>I'm sorry I bothered to post a message to you. I can assure you it >won't >happen again.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 16, 1999 7:15 AM
Subject: Re: Love bombing, i.e., Bahai

Somehow I had missed this message when it was first posted. I believe it is quite perceptive of some of the tactics that are used in the Bahai Faith, especially with new adherents who are regularly flattered for being so spiritual as to perceive and accept the Bahai truth....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Timothy F. Mulligan wrote in message <36D831DB.C4F8C463@central.uh.edu>...
> I would like to caution non-Baha'is about a >conversion tactic employed in these newsgroups.
>It is called "love bombing," and it is a common >cult recruitment ploy.
>
> Baha'i Robert Little is especially given to >"love bombing." He commonly "bombs" inquirers >with emotion. For instance, he once cited a >woman's warm, grandmotherly hugs as a reason to >believe in Baha'ism. Yesterday, he oozed about >"laughter" and "joy."
>
> I do not believe that Bahaism meets all the >criteria for a cult, although it does meet several >of them. DO NOT underestimate your susceptibility >to cult tactics like love bombing and the >withholding by adherents of "difficult" facts about >their religion.
>
> Mr. Little and other Baha'is here are as much >victims as they are victimizers. It is a sad >thing when a human life is spent trying to entice >others to share a delusion.
>
> You should base your beliefs on solid evidence >and sound reasoning. Accept no substitutes.

>
>Tim Mulligan
>tmulligan@central.uh.edu
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 17, 1999 6:55 AM
Subject: Re: 'Here stand I..'

McKenny Michael wrote in message <7cmbv$kmc@freenet-news.carleton.ca>...

The intent of Baha'u'llah was to >provide an all-inclusive, universal framework. By abandoning the essential >principles of the Baha'i Faith and underlining only the principle of >obedience, the Universal House of Justice has transformed what was meant >to be a world religion into a fundamentalist cult.

I believe these observations are true. Many non-Bahais need to understand that ultimately it is the Universal House of Justice that supports and encourages the fanaticism that some Bahais continue to demonstrate in forum after forum on the Internet, while negating and undermining the very words of Baha'u'llah Himself....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 18, 1999 6:30 AM
Subject: Re: Qur'anic use of rijal = women as well

McKenny Michael wrote in message <7co7rg$d3h@freenet-news.carleton.ca>...

>
>In >my opinion it is quite regrettable that many people today, both Baha'is and >those in many other religions, feel it necessary to exclude views and >individuals, even considering such as inimical, which differ from their >own.

The reality is that the gentle universalism of its Founders has simply been lost as it has hardened into a fanatical institutionalism....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 18, 1999 6:37 AM
Subject: Re: xxx and the "Orientalists"

Still nursing your grudge?

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Milissa Boyer Kafes wrote in message <7cp4m4$9rs$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>Frederick--

>

>You write:

>>the Bahai writings supposedly >> guarantee free speech and conscience to all peoples, >> including Muslims. I don't know of a caveat Baha'u'llah >> ever made denying such rights to Muslims....

>

>

>This is, of course, correct.

>

>It is also true that Baha'u'llah enjoined Baha'is to defend their religion.
>Where is your post refuting Mr Mahd'i's calling Baha'u'llah a devil? Why do >you hold other's rights to free speech higher than your own duty to defend >Baha'u'llah?

>

>I think you will find your posts not only read, but much more persuasive if >people could see *you* using *your* freedom of speech to do something other >than bitch all the time.

>

>Peace

>Milissa Boyer Kafes

>mbkafes@bestweb.net

>

>===== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network =====

><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, March 19, 1999 6:32 AM
Subject: Re: 'Here stand I..'

Michael McKenny wrote in message <7crect$cr6@freenet-news.carleton.ca>...
>

> It is identical within Baha'i. Despite the persecution by the Universal >House of Justice of those Baha'is who are able to convey convincingly the >current distance of practise by the Universal House of Justice from the >essential Baha'i principles, and the quite understandable rejection of the >Baha'i Faith by those most in tune with these principles, still there is >spirit in the Baha'i Faith and many spiritual people are drawing energy >from and walking along this spiritual path.

I couldn't agree more....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 22, 1999 6:06 AM
Subject: Re: 'Here stand I..'

Michael McKenny wrote in message <7d0bua$193@freenet-news.carleton.ca>...

>Fantastic constructions of "Compilations of compilations" of recorded >words of the prophet, the master, the guardian, their secretaries, the >UHJ, out of context and as literally understood, while permitting a >certain mindset to feel it has comprehended and contained a vast effusion >of spirituality, while allowing a certain temperament to exercise power >and impose its personal perception as authoritative, excludes other views, >drives away other people, divides instead of harmonizing humanity.

The "compilations" mentality is part of the problem of Bahai fundamentalism. It often has led to a narrow-minded, literal ignorance lording itself over others and driving people out of the Bahai Faith by the tens of thousands.

> May those who have the most invested, in ego, in personal power, in >self-identification as one of a tiny elite at the peak of an exclusive >club be empowered by the inspired spirit which is the wellspring of the >religion to take the essential, necessary and principled steps required >to transform Baha'i from a divisive cult into a beneficial, constructive >and harmonizing framework for the well-being, prosperity and advancement >of human civilization.

It's concomitant is a "tiny elite" that has clawed its way to the "top."

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, March 22, 1999 6:27 AM
Subject: Re: The Meekness of God

Smaneck wrote in message <19990321202115.08406.00000457@ng-ch1.aol.com>...

>
>Dear friends,
>
>The problem which necessitated my withdrawal from this forum, I am happy to >report has been fully and satisfactorily resolved. Now begins the more >difficult task of finding ways to insure that this sort of thing does not >happen in the future. Notwithstanding the resolution of this problem, I have >decided that my energies can best be devoted elsewhere than on this forum, so I >will be spending most of my time on managing the Baha'i Studies list instead.

You mean your participation in the midwest inquisition is now complete? How many lashes did you apply?

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]

Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 1999 6:44 AM
Subject: Re: The Meekness of God

Smaneck wrote in message <19990322075853.01127.00000001@ng-fi1.aol.com>...

FG wrote:
>>You mean your participation in the midwest inquisition
>>is now complete? How many lashes did you apply?
>>
>
>No one would believe that but you Fred.

Ms. Maneck's quip does not respond to the fact that Juan Cole and she herself acknowledged approximately a month ago that a new Bahai inquisition in the midwest had begun. Perhaps she would like to share with people on Usenet the verdict....

I can only take her earlier remark regarding her being more "effective" on the bahai-studies mailing list to refer to her ability to censor and manipulate the discussion there as she and Mark Foster have done on AOL, and he in his previous position as the "moderator" of bahai-studies. Incidentally, evidence of Foster's censoring me on bahai-studies may be found in my archives on my website by searching for his name in files roughly a year to a year and a half ago.

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 1999 6:29 AM
Subject: Re: The Meekness of God

Smaneck wrote in message <19990323083504.10126.00000018@ng-fi1.aol.com>...

FG wrote:
>>Ms. Maneck's quip does not respond to the fact that >>Juan Cole and she herself acknowledged approximately >>a month ago that a new Bahai inquisition in the midwest had >>begun. Perhaps she would like to share with people on >>Usenet the verdict....
>
>Innocent.

Quite laughable, really....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 1999 6:35 AM
Subject: Re: The Meekness of God

Smaneck wrote in message <19990323085855.10138.00000022@ng-fi1.aol.com>...

FG wrote:
>>Perhaps she would like to share with people on >>Usenet the verdict....
>>

Maneck wrote:
>>Innocent.
>

And then Maneck added:
> The Universal House of Justice has made in clear that the Instituitons are >not to be concerned with policing the thoughts of the believers. But there will >always be individual members of the Institutions who just don't get it. These >matters can and do get corrected when one works *with* the Institutions.

How can you even write some a false and deceptive statement? The UHJ has done nothing for the past decade but tyrannize and terrorize the consciences of many, many Bahais, driving literally TENS of THOUSANDS out of the religion. Their tactics have been amply demonstrated and revealed on the Internet by their sycophants.

As far as I'm concerned, you're one of them....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 1999 7:09 AM
Subject: Re: The Meekness of God

FG wrote in message <7dai8l$vb@news1.newsguy.com>...
>Smaneck wrote in message <19990323083504.10126.00000018@ng-fi1.aol.com>...
>
>FG wrote:
>>>Ms. Maneck's quip does not respond to the fact that >>>Juan Cole and she herself acknowledged approximately >>>a month ago that a new Bahai inquisition in the midwest had >>>begun. Perhaps she would like to share with people on >>>Usenet the verdict....
>>
>>Innocent.
>
>Quite laughable, really....

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world.
Moreover, if interrogation of conscience, which is one of the private possessions of the heart and the soul, take place in this world, what further recompense remains for man in the court of divine justice at the day of general resurrection? Convictions and ideas are within the scope of the comprehension of the King of kings, not of kings; and soul and conscience are between the fingers of control of the Lord of hearts, not of [His] servants."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 1999 10:53 AM
Subject: Majnun page added to my website

I've added a page on the Majnun incident during 1996 for those interested. It may very well be the earliest documented attack by Bahais on the Internet on free speech and conscience.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:35 AM
Subject: REPOST - Technique Bahai

During the last few years or more a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:
"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:
"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:

"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Juan Cole wrote, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to being "Baha'i" at all)."

"Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith."

"The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fall silent."

"With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of "claiming authority," of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them."

"This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute."

"Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:36 AM
Subject: REPOST - Technique Maneck

Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:

"It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning, they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."

"I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"

FG, February 15, 1999:

"Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking "slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or interpretation."

"All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and psychological demonization and terrorism."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:37 AM
Subject: REPOST - alt/talk.religion.bahai FAQ & history

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
March 30, 1999
This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access
alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly,
I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and
religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and
conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai
-----

January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the "neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999:
Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

-----
This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:38 AM
Subject: REPOST - brief quotes - soc.religion.bahai

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:
"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb84.htm>

Kent Johnson:
"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb61.htm>

Ron House:
"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of
soc.religion.bahai."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb53.htm>

Timothy Mulligan:
"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb59.htm>

RobertNik:
"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb54.htm>

Bruce Burrill:
"What are Baha'i afraid of?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb60.htm>

Zute flute:
"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb50.htm>

YU ZIR:
"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb46.htm>

Matthew Cromer:
"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with...."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb47.htm>

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:
"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb77.htm>

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:
"Sorry to hear that you've been surpressed on srb. Your comments were alway very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Ex7.htm>

Harold Shinsato:
"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb33.htm>

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:
"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb79.htm>

Laeterna:
"To say I was flabberghasted at this say of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored2.htm>

Guy Macon"
"Please explain which portion of the charter the following post violates."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored1.htm>

Robin Peters:
"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb43.htm>

jgoldberg:
"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb57.htm>

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:
"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb76.htm>

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb.htm>

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
On alt.religion.bahai and AOL, Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:39 AM
Subject: REPOST - Universal House of Justice - 7/24/98

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>; Letters to Editor <letters@nytimes.com>;
bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998
Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 9:03 PM
July 24,1998

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

As a Bahai, I am saddened by the news of the execution of yet another Bahai in Iran. However, the immediate public statements made by Firuz Kazemzadeh of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, reminiscent of Robert Henderson's piece in The New York Times on January 13th of this year, appear equally lamentable for their blatant hypocrisy: "We had hoped that President Khatami's assertions about freedom, justice and the rule of law in Iran would apply to the Baha'is of that country.... We urge the international community to protest vigorously Mr. Rowhani's killing and to seek justice for the beleaguered Iranian Baha'i community."

The tragic loss of Bahai lives in Iran and the subsequent exploitation of their deaths by Bahai spokesmen, often in the American media, always courting the President and other members of the government, has become a predictable pattern rendered intolerable in the context of continuing and pervasive Bahai censorship and denial of human and civil rights in the United States and elsewhere. Such incidents as I queried you about in my unanswered email of March 31, 1997, available on my Web site, regarding the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the resignations of a number of scholars from the Bahai Encyclopedia, the attacks on the listserv known as Talisman I at Indiana University, the harassing and blacklisting of many individuals, Bahai and non-Bahai, suggest profoundly deep-seated problems within the Bahai community and administration.

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/To-UHJ1.htm>

To these incidents must now be added the apparent conspiracy for more than a year and a half of the Bahai Computer and Communications Committee (BCCA), under the chairmanship of Mark Towfiq, to defeat twice now, along with the collusion of other Bahais, the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup on the Bahai Faith which would be known as talk.religion.bahai. You may find extensive documentation for all of these violations of the basic human rights of many Bahais and non-Bahais on my Web site, "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

Because the third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai on Usenet is approaching, after August 28th, I ask you again to investigate the BCCA and its depriving me of access last November from all private Bahai-only mailing lists at a crucial moment just when the tide of discussion was going very much in favor of the newsgroup, noted by many observers. I also ask whether you supported or were involved in that decision? The relevant files can be found on my Web site under Bahai-Discuss Archives.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

Similarly, I would like to know whether your institution or the BCCA has approved of or advocated the recent ban of my email signature file by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai, as well as their complete ban for more than a year and a half now on all discussion regarding talk.religion.bahai.

The prevailing atmosphere of suppression of free speech and religious conscience that now characterizes the Bahai Faith cannot but call into question the honesty of many members of the Bahai administration and perhaps the institutions themselves.

I ask once more whether censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith and what passages of the Bahai Writings support it, what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship?

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:40 AM
Subject: REPOST - Liberty & Conscience - Abdu'l-Baha

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 6:41 AM
Subject: REPOST - Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similiarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

For an instance of "back-channel" email coercion on AOL see <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

For an instance of Foster's double standard handling fundamentalist Bahais see Susan Maneck's accusations on AOL against me of "slander" and references to my views as "garbage": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke on the phone, was that I had pointed out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested a Folder entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: billk@erols.com[SMTP:billk@erols.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 3:24 PM

To: FG@hotmail.com
Subject: hello from a trb reader

Fredrick,

I have read your reposts today. I see you have requoted Juan Cole; I guess because it is a public e-mail, that is okay to do?

I thought your letter to the UHJ was a move in the right direction. While I do not support extremes of liberty (as Baha'u'llah has written), I am distressed at the closing down of dialog, Talisman 1 - and I think you should get an answer to your letter(s).

I do not equate the killing of an Iranian Bahai to be equal to the supressing of certain literature -- killing is worse. I do think there is an overboard attempt to get writing campaigns at every killing. Wasn't it Shoghi Effendi who prohibited Bahai's from leaving Iran? And now because of Fundamentalistic Muslims - they are being killed.

The effort a few months ago to actually go to school officials in local communities to protest the closing of a Bahai college -- that was way overboard -- and in that instance I could agree that it would be hypocritical to ban publications and yet protest the closing of a college.

Well I originally wrote not to critique your article but to ask you a few questions...

Are you still a Bahai? With some Bahais resigning or being forced out, I wasn't sure what your status was.

Was there ever pressure put on you to resign?

In the unlikely case anything I write here is of interest in stimulating other conversation and because I am not sure of net etiquette, here is the following request -- Do not put this or any part of this on your web site, trb, or any other internet or other place. You may however excerpt parts from it without naming me, however I would prefer if you just take these ideas as your own.

(I am a Bahai from NJ)

Bill K

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 6:34 AM
Subject: fw a Bahai re Bahai Censorship

FYI

Notice the acknowledgment by this Bahai of "some Bahais being forced out."

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----Original Message-----

From: [name & address deleted]
To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
Date: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 7:20 AM
Subject: hello from a trb reader

>Fredrick,

>

>I have read your reposts today. I see you have requoted Juan Cole; I guess because it is a public e-mail, that is okay to do?

>

>I thought your letter to the UHJ was a move in the right direction.

>While I do not support extremes of liberty (as Baha'u'llah has written), I am distressed at the closing down of dialog, Talisman 1 - and I think you should get an answer to your letter(s).

>

>I do not equate the killing of an Iranian Bahai to be equal to the supressing of certain literature -- killing is worse. I do think there is an overboard attempt to get writing campaigns at every killing. >Wasn't it Shoghi Effendi who prohibited Bahai's from leaving Iran? And now because of Fundamentalistic Muslims - they are being killed.

>

>The effort a few months ago to actually go to school officials in local communities to protest the closing of a Bahai college -- that was way overboard -- and in that instance I could agree that it would be hypocritical to ban publications and yet protest the closing of a college.

>

>Well I originally wrote not to critique your article but to ask you a few questions...

>

>Are you still a Bahai? With some Bahais resigning or being forced out, I wasn't sure what your status was.

>

>Was there ever pressure put on you to resign?

>

. . .

>(I am a Bahai from [location deleted])

>

>[name deleted]

>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 6:38 AM
Subject: Re: 'Here stand I..'

The reality of the situation is that both these Bahais have repeatedly attacked and attempted or been successful at censoring other Bahais and non-Bahais in several different forums.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

RBCF Mark wrote in message <19990329153653.23482.00002634@ng-ch1.aol.com>...

>Rick Schaut wrote:

>>Given that the institutions are >>the ones calling for, and approving, >>the compilations with which Mr.
>>Jamir is finding fault, this does >>constitute an attack on those >>institutions.

>

>Rick,

>

>Please don't take this message as anything other than the concern of a Baha'i brother.

>

>I really don't see how any of us, as individuals, have the right to say whether >someone is attacking the institutions. Have you read many of Vinson's postings?

>He is a polite and thoughtful believer with a deep understanding of the teachings.

>

>You seem, to me, to be arguing for something like verbal inerrancy, or propositional infallibility, which is not something that "the institutions" you >refer to (including the House of Justice) have, to my knowledge, ever claimed >for themselves.

>

>If I said, ten years ago, that I think it is unfortunate that the Kitab-i-Iqan >isn't numbered by paragraphs, would that be an attack on the institutions?

As

>you may know, future editions of that book will be numbered in this way.

>

>If I said that I think it is sad that more Writings of the Bab aren't published, would that be an attack on the institutions?

>

>My point, again, is that it only the institutions themselves which have the right to make this sort of determination. IMO, our responsibility, as >individuals, is to focus on our own flaws while, at the same time, holding a >sin-covering eye to those of others.

>

>Mark A. Foster

>owner@sociologist.com

>RBCF Mark (on AOL only)

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 7:54 AM
Subject: Re: fw a Bahai re Bahai Censorship

It occurs to me I shouldn't excise this sentence in my attempt to protect this person from recrimination by our fellow Bahais:

"You may however excerpt parts from it without naming me. . . ."

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

FG wrote in message <7dvlhs$6jc@news1.newsguy.com>...

>FYI

>

>Notice the acknowledgment by this Bahai of "some Bahais being forced out."

>

>FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

><https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,

>alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

>
>
>
>
>-----Original Message-----
>From: [name & address deleted]
>To: FG@hotmail.com <FG@hotmail.com>
>Date: Tuesday, March 30, 1999 7:20 AM
>Subject: hello from a trb reader
>
>
>>Fredrick,
>>
>>I have read your reposts today. I see you have requoted Juan Cole; I >>guess because it is a public e-mail, that is okay to do?
>>
>>I thought your letter to the UHJ was a move in the right direction.
>>While I do not support extremes of liberty (as Baha'u'llah has >>written), I am distressed at the closing down of dialog, Talisman 1 - >>and I think you should get an answer to your letter(s).
>>
>>I do not equate the killing of an Iranian Bahai to be equal to the >>supressing of certain literature -- killing is worse. I do think there >>is an overboard attempt to get writing campaigns at every killing.
>>Wasn't it Shoghi Effendi who prohibited Bahai's from leaving Iran? And >>now because of Fundamentalistic Muslims - they are being killed.
>>
>>The effort a few months ago to actually go to school officials in local >>communities to protest the closing of a Bahai college -- that was way >>overboard -- and in that instance I could agree that it would be >>hypocritical to ban publications and yet protest the closing of a >>college.
>>
>>Well I originally wrote not to critique your article but to ask you a >>few questions...
>>
>>Are you still a Bahai? With some Bahais resigning or being forced out,
>>I wasn't sure what your status was.
>>
>>Was there ever pressure put on you to resign?
>>
>>. . .
>>
>>(I am a Bahai from [location deleted])
>>
>>[name deleted]
>>
>
>
>
>
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 9:03 AM
Subject: Technique REPOST Bahai

During the last few years or more a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:

"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humor the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:

"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:

"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Juan Cole wrote, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to

being
"Baha'i" at all).

"Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith."

"The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fall silent."

"With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of 'claiming authority,' of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them."

"This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute."

"Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 9:05 AM
Subject: FAQ & History - alt/talk.religion.bahai

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
March 30, 1999
This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access
alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly,
I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai
-----

January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the

"neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999:
Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
-----

This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 9:06 AM
Subject: Bahai Censorship on AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.

2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similiarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

For an instance of "back-channel" email coercion on AOL see <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

For an instance of Foster's double standard handling fundamentalist Bahais see Susan Maneck's accusations on AOL against me of "slander" and references to my views as "garbage": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke on the phone, was that I had pointed out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested a Folder entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 01, 1999 9:08 AM
Subject: Liberty - Abdul-Baha - Conscience

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, April 02, 1999 8:51 AM
Subject: Re: Has Baha'u'llah's Blueprint changed starjo8853@my-dejanews.com wrote in message <7ds8mo$u5j$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>We know that prophecy is subject to change as all things are subject to >change
>and it seems as we examine the Baha'i Faith as it exists today that the >Blueprint has altered.....

Alas, you seem to be right.... The Bahai Faith appears to be in the grips of a narrow-minded fanaticism that's thoroughly intolerant of the liberty and freedom of conscience its Founders lauded and respected. Like most reactionary coups, this one too seems merely bent on retrenchment and denial....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 07, 1999 10:26 AM
Subject: Re: Survey Results: A Nosecount

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

ktooke@mail.coin.missouri.edu wrote in message <7eas90$2g9$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>Earlier, I posted a survey in hopes of getting a nosecount of readership in >this forum. Here are the results, for what it is worth.

>
>Only 8 people responded to the survey. Of the eight, two classified >themselves as regular Baha'is, three as Baha'is with unusual views, two as >disaffected Baha'is, and one as a guest. Considering the number of posters >exceeded 8 during the time period, I think these results say more about >people's reluctance to participate in a survey than about readership.

>
>As a followup, I looked at posters for about one week. I counted 17 >posters, >many repeat posters. Of the 17, I inferred 6 were posting in favor of a >standard Baha'i approach, one posted in favor of an unusual interpretation
>of >the Baha'i Faith, one in support of an administration other than the Haifa >UHJ, two sounded like disaffected former Baha'is, one sounded like a guest, >and one was definitely a critic. Five of the posters I was reluctant to >even >infer a classification. I note in passing that most of the posts in favor
>of >a standard Baha'i approach were responses to an earlier post.

>
>Obviously there are no statistically significant results here. It seems to >me
>the majority of traffic is attacks on, disagreements with, and defenses of >some standard Baha'i position. (This is no surprise on the Internet.) I >initiated the survey upon noticing, while lurking, a distressing (to me) >lack >of discussion about as opposed to attacks, disagreements, defenses. You may, >of course, draw your own inferences at any time. Thanks for listening.

>
>-----the original survey-----
>Out of my own curiosity, I would like to do a nose count of readers of this >group.
>Please self-classify yourself by answering the following questions:
>(If I have accidentally used a word offensive to you, please substitute your >own >word)
>
>Do you post to this newsgroup regularly, occasionally, or not at all?

>Regular Occasional Quiet
>
>What is your relationship to the Baha'i Faith? (You may give your own answer, >but forgive me for suggesting a classification) Regular Baha'is with standard >views(usual Baha'i) Regular Baha'is with irregular views(unusual Baha'i) >member of a competing administration(alternate Baha'i) Former member of the >Baha'i Faith, involuntary termination (expelled Baha'i) Former member of
the >Baha'i Faith, voluntary termination (disaffected Baha'i) Never enrolled in >the Baha'i Faith, please pick a word you like: (seeker,friend,guest,critic) >Usual, Unusual, Alternate, Expelled, Disaffected, Seeker, Friend, Guest, >Critic
>
>I promise not to use your email address for anything other than clarifying >the answer you send. (I accept anonymous answers, but please only one >response per newsgroup reader) I will post this unscientific nose count >(totals only) when responses stop coming, as a matter (I hope) of common >interest. I am NOT asking for arguments in favor of your position, so please >keep your response short.
>
>
>Tookey
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@email.msn.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 07, 1999 11:12 AM
Subject: Re: Maneck's Technique

Kent,

I must say that that's the way I see it too.... The real worry, though, to me is that the UHJ itself seems to support the fanatics and fundamentalists and have themselves perverted the Writings of Baha'u'llah incontestably supporting free speech and conscience.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

Kent Johnson wrote in message <7e4tqv$4pj$1@autumn.news.rcn.net>...

>It seems to me Cole is referring to a very, very, very weird offshoot of
the >Baha'i Faith that condones and institutionalizes heresy trials, specific >shunning practices, and curses. If such practices are Baha'i then I am not >Baha'i. It seems to me the Faith is better off when Baha'is denounce the >fundamentalist mind set of other Baha'is.
>

>Warm Baha'i Love, --Kent

>
>FG <FG@hotmail.com> wrote in message >news:7clgmk$na5@news1.newsguy.com...
>> Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:
>> "It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading >> Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the >> desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning, >> they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."
>>
>> "I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with >> hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and >> tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning >> and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have >> shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and >> slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is >> about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"
>>

>> FG, February 15, 1999:
>> "Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to >> shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when >> why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since >> the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to >> keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her >> hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her >> to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to >> have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the >> tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be >> supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking
>> "slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is >> able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates >> whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to >> appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or >> interpretation."
>>

>> "All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing >> the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and >> psychological demonization and terrorism."
>>

>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG
FG@hotmail.com

Soledad
Robert Hayden

Read by the author

-----
----

(And I, I am no longer of that world)

Naked, he lies in the blinded room chainsmoking, cradled by drugs, by jazz as never by any lover's cradling flesh.

Miles Davis coolly blows for him:
O pena negra, sensual Flamenco blues;
the red clay foxfire voice of Lady Day

(Lady of the pure black magnolias) sobsings her sorrow and loss and fare you well, dyrweeps the pain his treacherous joiners [dryweeps] have released him from for a while.

His fears and his unfinished self await him down in the anywhere streets.

He hides on the dare side of the moon, [dark] takes refuge in a stained-glass cell, flies to a clockless country of crystal.

Only the ghost of Lady Day knows where he is. Only the music. And he swings oh swings: beyond complete immortal now.

From Collected Poems by Robert Hayden. Copyright © 1971 Erma Hayden. Used with the permission of Liveright Publishing Corporation.

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:17 AM
Subject: Re: Maneck's Technique

planetjeff@my-dejanews.com wrote in message <7egkdf$ri9$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>In article <uIZbbFRg#GA.239@upnetnews05>,
> "FG" <FG@email.msn.com> wrote:
>> Kent,
>>
>> I must say that that's the way I see it too.... The real >> worry, though, to me is that the UHJ itself seems to >> support the fanatics and fundamentalists and have >> themselves perverted the Writings of Baha'u'llah >> incontestably supporting free speech and conscience.
>>
>[clip]
>
>Huh?!?! In what way exactly do you believe the Universal House of Justice >has "perverted" the Writings of Baha'u'llah? This sounds like an extreme >stretch of the imagination and an intentional misuse of a word in an >incendiary manner.

Not in the least extreme nor incendiary.... The UHJ has betrayed the Teachings of Baha'u'llah on freedom of speech and individual liberty. It's consistently support the fundamentalists and fanatics on soc.religion.bahai, the BCCA mailing lists, AOL, and elsewhere in cyberspace.
Offline, there's an irrefutable record of Bahai abuse of the consciences of many, many Bahais and non-Bahais.

The responsibility for these many acts of suppression and censorship lies in the hands of the members of the UHJ.

You might read Juan Cole's Modernity & the Millennium, available from Columbia University Press, for a discussion of Baha'u'llah and Abud'l-Baha's commitment to values that the UHJ has definitely abandoned and undermined.

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:22 AM
Subject: technique BAHAI REPOST

During the last few years or more a number of observers have noted several common methods many Bahais use to avoid various issues or discredit people who hold opinions other than their own:

FG, May 12, 1992:

"The Baha'i Faith has become very oppressive and manipulative of the individual. That to me is merely a statement of fact, as I have experienced it, for nearly sixteen years now [over 22]. The usual stratagem in dealing with anyone who would express his conscience in good faith is to pretend the Cause is above any kind of criticism whatsoever while intimating that anyone who would speak honestly must have something wrong with him, i.e., his spiritual life isn't what it should be, he doesn't understand the nature of unity, or he's accused of trying to obtain power for himself, which at times seems merely a calculated way of discrediting the person, and so on. Another common strategy used to acquire control over the individual is to humiliate the person by letting him pour himself out, etc., and then self-righteously giving him the Truth."

Ron House, November 14, 1997:

"I know what you mean. I've found over the years that there is a technique used by traditional Baha'is and others to squash dissension: harry the dissenter so much he says something intemperate, then point out how 'loving' and 'compassionate' they are and how nasty the dissenter is. The trouble is that this technique works, so I've been making a conscious effort not to fall for it. Also, when they get the dissenter discouraged and miserable enough, he invariably makes a slip-up sooner or later that they can REALLY let loose the venom over. IMHO, they did this to you when you misread Sharon's intentions. At any other time, they would overlook faults, as Baha'u'llah says, but when they're in this mode they go for the jugular. Very sad."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/House2.htm>

FG, June 1998:

"Some of the most striking methods demonstrated repeatedly by many Bahais during the last year and a half of discussion about an unmoderated newsgroup is their refusal to listen and respond to the criticisms of those who are in favor of talk.religion.bahai, ignoring their concerns, never responding analytically to their messages and reasoning and logic and evidence, attacking them through character assassination and ad hominem, ganging up on individuals, and "circling the wagons" around every action of the srb moderators or others who are opposed to talk.religion.bahai."

"More than twenty different people on my web site have posted messages explaining their experience with srb censorship yet many srb Bahais NEVER address their concerns. Ignoring such charges will not make them go away. NO ONE has to "try" to link the trb interest poll with censorship on srb; the moderators themselves have done that by suppressing droves of people for years. There are many people who believe such suppression is part and parcel of the Bahai community as it exists today. A YES vote need not necessarily support such a belief. There are other reasons Bahais might vote YES."

Fran Baker, May 1998:

"Just have to say that in my experience this is a common technique of manipulative people in general; it is especially effective with thoughtful people who are willing to see both sides of things, i.e., their own fault. I consider this brow-beating technique to be a form of abuse. The only way to deal with it is to call them on it every time and to refuse to let yourself be beat up, i.e., not to do your part of the "tango." This can be very hard to do, but it works. You can break this pattern in a personal relationship. I don't know whether it's possible when a group acts this way. Very scary."

Dr. Juan Cole, June 12, 1998:

"Let me ask you why in the world you think that I would risk my professional reputation by publicly stating falsehoods? ...The very technique of the more glaze-eyed among these people is to unbearably bully a Baha'i whom they don't like, use unjustified threats of declaring him or her a CB to silence the individual, and if the person will not be silenced, then to depend upon the gullibility of the Baha'is in refusing to listen to any victim's story because, of course, the Baha'i institutions are infallible and divinely guided and could never do anything wrong. It is a perfect racket."

"Of course, this technique of making liberals go away has been enormously successful, and ex-Baha'i liberals have no credibility with the remaining Baha'is nor do most of them have any energy to continue to make a case, either to the Baha'is or the outside world, for the incredible abuses that go on inside this organization ostensibly committed to tolerance!"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Cole10.htm>

K. Paul Johnson, September 15, 1998:

"If that principle [people are innocent until proven guilty] were followed by Baha'i administration and individuals in their condemnations of their fellow believers, I would have very little to complain about regarding Baha'i affairs. But character assassination by innuendo is the preferred way of dealing with anything remotely resembling dissidence. Seems like that's exactly what you're doing to Juan Cole in your message. Saying I don't want to know what you've "got" on him, thus attacking me but insinuating you have some awful proof of unspecified guilt on his part. If that's not character assassination by innuendo, what is?"

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson18.htm>

Gibro28W, October 12, 1998:

"In summary, the biggest problem, as I see it, is that most Baha'is don't take criticism seriously--they tune it out as "negative" or "harmful to spiritual growth." This selfish attitude is very stupid. First of all, Baha'is entice people to join them. When they do, they indoctrinate them until they think like the group. But as soon as a red flare of doubt goes up in the convert's mind, they're cordoned off by the group and reminded of their "spiritual" obligations in the name of Baha'u'llah or the "Covenant." If left unresolved and doubt gives vent to prolonged criticism, the convert is sent packing or is kicked out. What we have here is a broken family that had failed to truly listen to the needs of its members in the first place."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb73.htm>

Barthaman on September 14, 1998:

"Baha'i dissenters, more or less, are wounded souls abandoned by their fathers, so-to-speak. They have been cast out and dismissed or shunned without having had a fair hearing. Consider their pain when the rest of their "family" dismisses them too. Can you know what it's like to be accused of heresy and shunned following a sincere intellectual conflict (inspired by doubt)--after you've sacrificed years in devoted service to your religion? Can you comprehend their sense of betrayal and injustice? This is why disillusioned believers leave their religions each year--while some still hang around, banging on the door now and then, demanding a refund for their lost youth. In time they will have to move on, however, writing the Baha'i Faith off as another lesson in fraud. Mock these people all you want--but for the grace of God, the next dissenter could be you. Don't be too confident, my friend."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb66.htm>

Juan Cole wrote, February 23, 1999:

"There is nothing to be puzzled by. Right wing Baha'is only like to hear the sound of their own voices (which are the only voices they will admit to being "Baha'i" at all)."

"Obviously, the world is so constructed that they cannot in fact only hear their own voices. They are forced to hear other voices that differ from theirs. This most disturbs them when the voices come from enrolled Baha'is or when the voices speak of the Baha'i faith."

"The way they sometimes deal with the enrolled Baha'is is to summon them to a heresy inquiry and threaten them with being shunned if they do not fall silent."

"With non-Baha'is or with ex-Baha'is, they deal with their speech about the faith by backbiting, slandering and libelling the speaker. You will note that since I've been on this list I have been accused of long-term heresy, of "claiming authority," of out and out lying (though that was retracted, twice), of misrepresentation, of 'playing fast and loose with the facts,' and even of being 'delusional.' I have been accused of all these falsehoods by *Baha'is*, by prominent Baha'is. I have been backbitten by them."

"This shows that all the talk about the danger a sharp tongue can do, all the talk about the need for harmony, for returning poison with honey, for a sin-covering eye, is just *talk* among right wing Baha'is. No one fights dirtier than they when they discover a voice they cannot silence and cannot refute."

"Paul Johnson has seen all these things, as well, for the past five years. He can explain it to you."

Cf. K. Paul Johnson's general reflections on coercive techniques
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Johnson21.htm>

And LaAeterna's method of silencing opponents
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb65.htm>

This document at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:25 AM
Subject: FAQ history & alt/talk.religion.bahai

-----
Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for
Alt.Religion.Bahai, Talk.Religion.Bahai
April 11, 1999
This FAQ will be reposted approximately every two weeks.

-----
People with only web access might want to use www.dejanews.com
www.reference.com or www.newsguy.com They all offer reading and posting capabilities for people who can't directly access
alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai and filter out spam.

Alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai are available on America Online (AOL) Keyword, Newsgroups, then search for alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai

If your ISP does not offer talk.religion.bahai, follow this news.groupie advice: "If your ISP doesn't have the group shortly,
I suggest that you ask the newsmaster there to add it (Try news@isp.net, or newsmaster@isp.net) Ask politely. Include the msg ID of the results posting, and of the newgroup msg."

Dave Cornejo's RESULT posting:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=431106082&CONTEXT=918305125.781648012&htnum=0>

David Lawrence's newgroup msg creating talk.religion.bahai:
<https://x3.dejanews.com/getdoc.xp?AN=434026333&CONTEXT=918304600.713490686&htnum=3>

-----
NOTE: Not all people agree on the interpretations given below.

Question #1 "Why create arb or t.r.b.?"

ANSWER #1: Because many people believe they experienced or are continuing to experience censorship when attempting to post to soc.religion.bahai. See the quotations from Abdul-Baha:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #2: Because the Bahai writings support free speech and
religious conscience.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

ANSWER #3: [fill in the blank according to your own opinion.]

Question #2: "Why do the srb moderators oppose trb?"

ANSWER: Perhaps they'll supply an answer to place here.
(Two years later their NO votes are their only answer.)

Question #3: "Are Bahais opposed to freedom of speech and
conscience?"

ANSWER: Despite glowing words of love and support for other people's opinions, despite the Universal House of Justice stating at least publicly it is not opposed to an unmoderated forum, the record of actual behavior by Bahais and on soc.religion.bahai
and the experience of many Bahais and people who have left the Bahai Faith give serious reason for concern.

-----
Chronology of major events: talk.religion.bahai

-----
January 17, 1997: The 1st proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted to news.announce.newsgroups.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRFD.htm>

Early March 1997: Mark Towfiq, chairman of the BCCA, the Bahai Computer and Communication Association, posts to three Bahai-only mailing lists a call for Bahais to vote NO against talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Towfiq.htm>

March 1997: soc.religion.bahai bans all discussion of talk.religion.bahai from its newsgroup. This ban is still in effect more than a year and a half later.

March 31, 1997: The 1st proposal was defeated 157 YES to 691 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/1stRESULT.htm>

April 3, 1997: Jonathan Grobe, a non-Bahai, creates
alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/arb.htm>

October 14, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases
a message stating it has no objection to unmoderated
newsgroups:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ1.htm>

November 1997: At a time when discussion was highly favorable in support of talk.religion.bahai, the BCCA deprives FG of access to the private Bahai-only mailing list bahai-discuss and all of its other lists, inflaming Bahai passions against trb. See bahai-discuss archived files and correspondence between FG and the BCCA committee:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

December 19, 1997: The Universal House of Justice releases a message that suggests it does not understand the nature of Usenet interest polling:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/UHJ2.htm>

January 12, 1998: The 2nd proposal for talk.religion.bahai was submitted.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRFD.htm>

February 22, 1998: The 2nd proposal was defeated 109 YES to 65 NO.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/2ndRESULT.htm>

May 25, 1998: srb bans all messages from FG that contain his signature file:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb23.htm>

September 9, 1998: America Online (AOL) places a Bahai-inspired TOS against FG; AOL removes the TOS after considering both sides of the issue, i.e., Bahai messages attacking and threatening him and the experience of others:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

September 14, 1998: soc.religion.bahai extends its ban on FG's signature file to include all signature files and URLs from all posters, allowing only email addresses and the name of the poster:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srbban.htm>

October 14, 1998: Soc.religion.bahai moderator Bill Hyman backbites and casts aspersions on proponent Ron House and attempts to undermine the new support for the "neutral" RFD:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb67.htm>

December 3, 1998: The Call For Votes (CFV) was posted to news.announce.newgroups and news.groups for the 3rd interest poll for talk.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRFD.htm>

December 7, 1998: Bahai scholar Susan Maneck begins her NO vote campaign on AOL and alt.religion.bahai.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

January 10, 1999: Talk.religion.bahai passes 218: 63.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/3rdRESULT.htm>

-----
For past discussion of censorship on soc.religion.bahai and other issues, including censorship within the Bahai community, see the website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>
-----

This document at <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/FAQ.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:28 AM
Subject: Bahai Censorship - AOL

In August of 1998 I took out an account on AOL. It quickly became apparent that my fellow Bahais were using AOL in such a way as to further withhold knowledge and information from AOL's more than 14 million members.

It appeared to me that there were four main issues.

Alt.religion.bahai, which had been created in April of 1997 and which had had more than 20,000 messages posted to it, was not even offered in the list of AOL newsgroups. AOL personnel with which I spoke over the phone were very puzzled why it wasn't and even implied that some action would have had to have been taken to keep it from automatically being picked up and added to their newsgroups. It took more than a month of strenuous effort to get AOL to add alt.religion.bahai.

On the AOL Bahai Forums it became apparent that Bahais were manipulating and controlling information by NOT making it available, by essentially preserving the frozen, non-functioning state of affairs or the status quo:

1. The Libraries were not accepting new uploads for others then to download and read.
2. The list of Newsgroups on the Main Menu for Bahai offered only soc.religion.bahai with no mention of alt.religion.bahai, or talk.religion.bahai once it was created in January of 1999. Coupled with soc.religion.bahai's suppression of all mention of alt.religion.bahai or talk.religion.bahai, this prevents people from even hearing of their existence.
3. The available links for Web Sites on the Main Menu for Bahai did not offered my website The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience, though it has to be one of the most visited sites on the Bahai Faith with more than 7,000 hits since May 1998.

As the months went by, my repeated attempts to improve these deficiencies met with greater and greater opposition from the Bahai fundamentalists on AOL. Similiarly, my requests, beginning in August of 1998, that the Forum Leader, Mark Foster, who no one had seen for months, resign, for derilection of duty, were increasingly opposed while various excuses were offered for his absence. Not until talk.religion.bahai was passed five months later in January 1999 did he suddenly reappear only to begin immediately reporting absolutely EVERY message I posted to AOL as a TOS. It quickly became clear to me that he was back in order to target and build a case against me to have me suspended from AOL. My account was then temporarily suspended on three different occasions and finally terminated March 6, 1999.

Of the four issues, only two have partially been remedied.

1. Alt.religion.bahai and now talk.religion.bahai are available under AOL's Keyword Newsgroups, Expert Add.
2. The Libraries are accepting some uploads, though Foster banned the 15+ megabytes I uploaded in late February of my entire archive of discussion for talk.religion.bahai and which is at least available on my website. It's obvious Foster is finding pretexts for suppressing further uploads.

While Foster has claimed since mid-January that alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai would be added to the Main Menu under Newsgroups, he continued to make excuses for it not happening. As of March 9, 1999 they were not yet listed under Newsgroups along with soc.religion.bahai.

All of these factors, coupled with Mark Foster's abuse of his position as Forum Leader and his harassing and targetting of dissenting voices, not only mine, leaves no doubt that he and other Bahais, including some among the Bahai Administration, are involved in censoring discourse on AOL.

For an instance of "back-channel" email coercion on AOL see <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

For an instance of Foster's double standard handling fundamentalist Bahais see Susan Maneck's accusations on

AOL against me of "slander" and references to my views as "garbage":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

The immediate pretext for terminating my account, according to the AOL official with whom I spoke on the phone, was that I had pointed out in a newly created Folder called Censorship that I and other AOL members had requested a Folder entitled Bahai Censorship and thereby undermined the authority of the Forum Leader....

In closing let me add that AOL personnel are extremely uninformed about the Bahai Faith, especially its practice of censorship, and its ability to exploit the TOS system....

Half a megabyte of messages documenting Bahai censorship on AOL may be found at

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:29 AM
Subject: conscience, liberty: Abdul-Baha

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."

Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:30 AM
Subject: Maneck, her technique

Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:
"It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning, they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."

"I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"

FG, February 15, 1999:
"Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking "slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or interpretation."

"All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and psychological demonization and terrorism."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG....The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:33 AM
Subject: 7-24-98 - UHJ's betrayal of Baha'u'llah

From: FG <FG@hotmail.com>
To: UHJ <secretariat@bwc.org>; Letters to Editor <letters@nytimes.com>;
bahai-faith @ makelist.com <bahai-faith@makelist.com>
Subject: To UHJ July 24, 1998
Date: Friday, July 24, 1998 9:03 PM
July 24,1998

Dear Members of the Universal House of Justice:

As a Bahai, I am saddened by the news of the execution of yet another Bahai in Iran. However, the immediate public statements made by Firuz Kazemzadeh of the National Spiritual Assembly of the United States, reminiscent of Robert Henderson's piece in The New York Times on January 13th of this year, appear equally lamentable for their blatant hypocrisy: "We had hoped that President Khatami's assertions about freedom, justice and the rule of law in Iran would apply to the Baha'is of that country.... We urge the international community to protest vigorously Mr. Rowhani's killing and to seek justice for the beleaguered Iranian Baha'i community."

The tragic loss of Bahai lives in Iran and the subsequent exploitation of their deaths by Bahai spokesmen, often in the American media, always courting the President and other members of the government, has become a predictable pattern rendered intolerable in the context of continuing and pervasive Bahai censorship and denial of human and civil rights in the United States and elsewhere. Such incidents as I queried you about in my unanswered email of March 31, 1997, available on my Web site, regarding the crushing of the magazine Dialogue, the resignations of a number of scholars from the Bahai Encyclopedia, the attacks on the listserv known as Talisman I at Indiana University, the harassing and blacklisting of many individuals, Bahai and non-Bahai, suggest profoundly deep-seated problems within the Bahai community and administration.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/To-UHJ1.htm>

To these incidents must now be added the apparent conspiracy for more than a year and a half of the Bahai Computer and Communications Committee (BCCA), under the chairmanship of Mark Towfiq, to defeat twice now, along with the collusion of other Bahais, the creation of an unmoderated newsgroup on the Bahai Faith which would be known as talk.religion.bahai. You may find extensive documentation for all of these violations of the basic human rights of many Bahais and non-Bahais on my Web site, "The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience": <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/index.htm>

Because the third interest poll for talk.religion.bahai on Usenet is approaching, after August 28th, I ask you again to investigate the BCCA and its depriving me of access last November from all private Bahai-only mailing lists at a crucial moment just when the tide of discussion was going very much in favor of the newsgroup, noted by many observers. I also ask whether you supported or were involved in that decision? The relevant files can be found on my Web site under

Bahai-Discuss Archives.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/archive.htm>

Similarly, I would like to know whether your institution or the BCCA has approved of or advocated the recent ban of my email signature file by the moderators of soc.religion.bahai, as well as their complete ban for more than a year and a half now on all discussion regarding talk.religion.bahai.

The prevailing atmosphere of suppression of free speech and religious conscience that now characterizes the Bahai Faith cannot but call into question the honesty of many members of the Bahai administration and perhaps the institutions themselves.

I ask once more whether censorship is allowed in the Bahai Faith and what passages of the Bahai Writings support it, what are the "rules," if you will, of Bahai censorship?

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 8:34 AM
Subject: srb - censorship

Robert J. Pease, December 5, 1998:
"I support your efforts to expose SRB as a fundamentalist group."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb84.htm>

Kent Johnson:
"It turns my stomach that they call themselves a Baha'i Group while doing these things so obviously partisan and consciously unjust."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb61.htm>

Ron House:
"I think the following is a clear case of malicious rejection of an article by the worst of the moderators of soc.religion.bahai."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb53.htm>

Timothy Mulligan:
"(Sigh) Fred, I'm beginning to think you're right about those SRB moderators."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb59.htm>

RobertNik:
"these guys are pompous arseholes IMHO."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb54.htm>

Bruce Burrill:
"What are Baha'i afraid of?"
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb60.htm>

ZuteFlute:
"Frankly I could not see anything in the letter I wrote which would prompt someone to ask whether or not I am a Baha'i."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb50.htm>

YU ZIR:
"But as an outsider, I can perhaps see the point Fred Glaysher is making, and which point none of SRB's defenders seem to address."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb46.htm>

Matthew Cromer:
"The current moderators regulate the contents--posting articles which they agree with..."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb47.htm>

Kavosh Soltani, December 9, 1998:
"So many Bahais on these forums have shown to be ready to forget logic and reason, ignore clear evidence and Word of God, and come up with exactly the same line of tired and inaccurate excuses and arguments to justify their position, that it can not be a simple coincidence."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb77.htm>

Shakti3, December 4, 1998:
"Sorry to hear that you've been suppressed on srb. Your comments were always very "right on." Altho it does not surprise me one bit, seeing the way these newsgroups operate."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Ex7.htm>

Harold Shinsato:

"It seems like there is an oppression over the Baha'i Faith."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb33.htm>

Steve Tomljenovic, December 3, 1998:

"The moderators are a bit overzealous at times. Since all the controversy started, it has gotten worse."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb79.htm>

Laeterna:

"To say I was flabberghasted at this type of "moderating" was putting it mildly indeed."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored2.htm>

Guy Macon"

"Please explain which portion of the charter the following post violates."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/censored1.htm>

Robin Peters:

"I think you're to be commended for your persistence in the face of consistent censorship."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb43.htm>

jgoldberg:

"I refuse to post on soc.religion.bahai because of the arbitrary and mean-spirited manner of censorship practiced by the moderators. "
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb57.htm>

Ruletherod, November 17, 1998:

"Too much damage has already been done in the name and to the name of Baha'u'llah by right-wing administrative bullies, linear-thinking apologists, and doctrinaire-fundamentalists. You can't just blame it all on the critics."
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb76.htm>

Many other similar messages may be found on my web site under soc.religion.bahai censorship.
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/srb.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, April 11, 1999 9:38 AM
To: msnmembercommunications3
Subject: Re: United States TS MSN 2.6 FG 4/7/99 12:19:34 PM

Daniel,

You've misread my concern.

There are three newsgroups on the Bahai Faith:

alt.religion.bahai
soc.religion.bahai
talk.religion.bahai

MSN offers the first two but not the last one:
talk.religion.bahai, which covers different topics from the first two.

I know all three of them are available on AOL.

Could you, or whoever the person would be, consider adding talk.religion.bahai too?

I'd appreciate it.

FG
FG@hotmail.com

-----Original Message-----

From: msnmembercommunications3 <msnmembercommunications3@msn.com>
To: 'FG@email.msn.com' <FG@email.msn.com>
Date: Thursday, April 08, 1999 4:55 PM
Subject: RE: United States TS MSN 2.6 FG 4/7/99 12:19:34 PM

>Hello,

>

>Thank you for posting to Ask msn Member Support. I appreciate the >opportunity to assist you.

>

>If you are having problems using the newsgroups with Outlook Express, then >here are some settings that we need to check:

>* Open Outlook Express.

```

>* Click on Tools > Accounts.
>* Click on the News tab at the top of the Internet Accounts screen.
>* Highlight Msnnews.msn.com under Account, and click on Properties at the >right.
>* Click on the Server tab at the top.
>* Make sure there is not a check mark next to "This server requires me to >log on."
>* Click on Apply/OK.
>* Repeat these steps for Netnews.msn.com EXCEPT make sure there is a check >mark next to "This server requires me to log on." Also, you will need to >place a check in "Log on using Secure Password Authentication."
>
>This should allow you to access both newsgroups successfully.
>The Support for Internet Explorer (all versions), Outlook Express, >Dial-Up Networking, NetMeeting, Internet Mail & News, etc., belongs >to the Internet Support Technical team. You may contact them at >425-635-7123, or online at https://support.microsoft.com/support/
>
>
>In order to ensure a quick response to future concerns; please continue to >utilize the on-line forms at the address provided below.
>
>https://memberservices.msn.com/
>
>We hope you are enjoying The Microsoft Network, and we look forward to >meeting all your service needs.
>
>
>Thanks,
>Daniel W.
>msn Member Support
>
>
>
>-----Original Message-----
>From: FG@email.msn.com [SMTP:FG@email.msn.com]
>Sent: Wednesday, April 07, 1999 11:22 AM
>To: msnmembercommunications3@msn.com
>Subject: United States TS MSN 2.6 FG 4/7/99 12:19:34 PM
>
>[Description]
>Question = I'm a new member to msn.com. I notice a favorite newsgroup I >use all the time is not available: talk.religion.bahai Is there anyway you >can add that to the list? It was just passed on a Usenet wide vote in >January of 1999 and offers different discussion topics from >alt.religion.bahai or soc.religion.bahai
>
>Thanks!
>
>Fred Glaysher
>FG@msn.com
>
>Error Message = None
>
>[Routing Information]
>Country = United States
>Member ID = FG
>Email ID = FG@email.msn.com
>Reference Number = FG471999121934
>
>[Technical Details] >Modem Model =
>MSN Access # =
>CPU Type = 586
>OS = Win95
>Program Viewer = MSN 2.6
>Internet Explorer = MSIE 4.01
>
>[Question Details]
>Date/Time of occurrence = 4/7/99 12:19:34 PM
>
>[MSN Component Version Details] >User Agent String = Mozilla/4.0 (compatible; MSIE 4.01; MSN 2.6; Windows >95)
>
>ENUM::00000000D900B5FABC7BD211B4E100104B6DF96984353204
>
-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, April 12, 1999 5:35 AM
Subject: Re: technique (Glaysher) - > REPOST

"The Bahai Technique":
https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

kohli@mail.ameritel.net wrote in message <7ere32$f5l$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>In article <923836925.376.102@news.remarQ.com>,
> "FG" <FG@hotmail.com> wrote:
>
>
>(familiar compilation snipped)
>

```

>Dear Fred,
>
>I share your concern about freedom of expression. I find the internet a >wonderful place for folks to express themselves. I see spam as one of the >biggest obstacles to that expression. When one individual presumes that >their >message is really what people want, despite lack of indication that the >message is wanted, that message gets the same priority as a message that >others really do want. With a sea of messages, spam dilutes the messages of >others, messages that are wanted, messages that are other people's >expressions.
>
>It is unfortunate that you have been banned from some segment(s) of the >internet. Please consider that some may see you as spamming and what you may >see as censorship, others see as protection of their freedom of expression >from someone who has their own canned means of diluting others expressions.
>
>v/r
>Pat
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, April 12, 1999 3:59 PM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Mr Mahdi wrote in message <19990412142029.02130.00002193@ng-fr1.aol.com>...
>Susan has increased her racist attacks on Islam in the AOL bahai messages >boards. I want people who are members AOL to got to the bahai message boards >and see for yourself. I am just amazed on how Susan has a PhD, her rebuttals
>and her apologetic nature in intellectual discussion just makes you wonder
did >she pay someone to approve her dissertation. She with the help of other
bahai >fundies launched a campaign against Fred Glaysher as as you all know he was >kicked off AOL. Susan can with impunity attack Islam and lie about Muhammad
>(saaw) and the Quran and Hadith. But if a person is to respond to her lies, he >or she might get their post yanked off and sent to TOS. People need to the >that Susan Maneck has a history of bigotry esp. towards Islam and Muslims.
>Mahdi

Can't say I'm surprised.... She has on many occasions shown herself to be quite capable of the most unscrupulous deceit and intrigue and on a number of forums. I doubt if anyone at AOL has enough sophistication to see through what she's really doing and how the AOL forums are manipulated by her and Mark Foster.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, April 12, 1999 3:59 PM
To: HANI72@aol.com; CRust6001@aol.com; AAl1929596@aol.com; ccrawfeild@aol.com; Mr Mahdi; Nadle; Ruletherod; Macho786@aol.com; Member1700@aol.com; PParv
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Mr Mahdi wrote in message <19990412142029.02130.00002193@ng-fr1.aol.com>...
>Susan has increased her racist attacks on Islam in the AOL bahai messages >boards. I want people who are members AOL to got to the bahai message boards
>and see for yourself. I am just amazed on how Susan has a PhD, her
rebuttals
>and her apologetic nature in intellectual discussion just makes you wonder
did >she pay someone to approve her dissertation. She with the help of other
bahai >fundies launched a campaign against Fred Glaysher as as you all know he was >kicked off AOL. Susan can with impunity attack Islam and lie about Muhammad
>(saaw) and the Quran and Hadith. But if a person is to respond to her lies, he >or she might get their post yanked off and sent to TOS. People need to the >that Susan Maneck has a history of bigotry esp. towards Islam and Muslims.
>Mahdi

Can't say I'm surprised.... She has on many occasions shown herself to be quite capable of the most unscrupulous deceit and intrigue and on a number of forums. I doubt if anyone at AOL has enough sophistication to see through what she's really doing and how the AOL forums are manipulated by her and Mark Foster.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, April 12, 1999 4:02 PM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck

Ken2040 wrote in message <19990412153508.06955.00001764@ng136.aol.com>...
>Mahdi,
> Susan has said some wonderful things about Islam on the Message Boards. I >don't think it is fair or accurate to name-call like this. Ken

Name call? I find it amusing that you defend her on such a count. Vintage Bahai Technique....

If you're truly concerned about name calling, you might wish to reprimand her for her references to my opinions as "slander" and "garbage."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

Or do you find those references palatable?

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Monday, April 12, 1999 4:09 PM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

R. G. Boomers wrote in message ...

>
>Dr. Maneck has been one of the most interesting, helpful, >and friendly posters in the Bahai newsgroups. Not many are >going to listen to your accusations without you providing >examples of her alleged bigotry and lies.
>
>George

She's a deceitful liar who in conjunction with Mark Foster is manipulating and suppressing information on AOL.

I suggest you and others honestly seeking to decide for themselves read:

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://209.185.176.10/~FG/AOLcensorship.txt>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 5:41 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

For an example of the way Wendy and other Bahais, including Maneck, operate on AOL see
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

Mr Mahdi wrote in message <19990412200211.27487.00002043@ng16.aol.com>...
>>Dr. Maneck has been one of the most interesting, helpful, >>and friendly posters in the Bahai newsgroups. Not many are >>going to listen to your accusations without you providing >>examples of her alleged bigotry and lies.
>
>LOL, only if you knew. I wish I can post all the things Susan said about
me,
>Islam, Fred, and many other people. After Fred was unjustly kicked off AOL,
>Susan with boldness increased her misrepresentations by misquoting me, Islamic >texts, and other things and people in order to show me as a liar or one
that >is ignorant, etc. I wish Fred was back on AOL or anybody else that can post

>all of the posts in the AOL bahai message boards where Susan is launching a >campaign against me. She and few other bahais esp. Wendy has tried to advocate
>all the people who post on the message boards to not to respond to me, they are >calling for a boycott. They have went to main folder in the bahai message >boards on AOL writing posts begging people to ignore me. This is pure >censorship.
>Mahdi

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 5:47 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Mr Mahdi wrote in message <19990412233126.27518.00002128@ng25.aol.com>...
>> I first met Mahdi in a chat room where he began >>to swear at me in Persian crying, "Death to Baha'is."
>
>You are misquoting me like you always do, it is becasue you are not a fair >minded or honest individual. You lack intellectual sincerity thats why you >wont last a second in a debate with intlellectuals. Regarding the chat room >incident, I was asked about Islam's punishment for bahais who left Islam
for >the bahai faith. I said that in Islam the punishment for apostasy is death.
>Susan of course didnt tell you guys that, she rather twist the truth and defame
>my character. Susan is proof that you dont have to be an intellectual to get a >PhD, you just got to past tests and do a lot of homework and research.
>
>>Incidently, for those of you who have been hanging out on arb and trb for >>want >>of anything better to do, SRB appears to be up and running again.
>
>Susan, you are even try to make people ignore me right here. You will see me >in SRB as well as here if that is requires me to do so. What you said just now >is little in comparision to what you have said in AOL, you do things with >impunity, knowing that your posts wont be yanked.

It is true that she and the supposed "Forum Leader" Mark Foster have learned how to manipulated and cozen AOL personnel to their advantage and thereby
"yank" with impunity other people's messages now on AOL.... It is a form of censorship and suppression.

You and the other cowards >use the Internet to attack people you dont even know, you will never to that to >me in real life. You probably shake in your boots when you realize who you >have been talking trash to all along. If you want to see me in person, I be at >the mosque at 1702 Hays St, San Antonio, TX 78202. I can assure you will treat >me with respect. You launch biased campaign agaist Fred Glaysher and >unfortunately you guys were successful, but you guys have kicked me off once >before, but like a street soldier I came back harder and stronger than ever.
>I hope people have the chance to have AOL and see what Susan and other
bahai
>fundamentalists have done on the message boards, esp. recently.
>Mahdi

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

<https://209.185.176.10/~FG/AOLcensorship.txt>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 5:55 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Smaneck wrote in message <19990412211918.05321.00000213@ng-ch1.aol.com>...
>
>Incidently, for those of you who have been hanging out on arb and trb for want >of anything better to do, SRB appears to be up and running again.

Where "scholars" like Maneck who refer to other Bahais' ideas as "garbage" and "litter" are given refuge and adjulation....

Her comment here above shows once again that Bahais are very much attempting to control available information to the unsuspecting....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

From: Smaneck <smaneck@aol.com>
Subject: Re: AOL censorship via TOS allegations
Date: Thursday, February 18, 1999 2:17 PM
Fred writes:
>I highly doubt the veracity of the >claim that he was so sick.
What do you need Fred, a doctors excuse?
>Regardless, I repeatedly emailed >directly to him and requested that he resign, a request he's >always ignored.
The nerve of Mark! When Fred issues a demand like that Mark should comply immediately.
>Ms. Maneck herself referred to my opinions on AOL a number >of times as "garbage."
And nobody else would *ever* characterize the litter you spam these lists with in that manner.

Susan Stiles Maneck
History, Stetson University

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 5:59 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

kohli@mail.ameritel.net wrote in message
<7euj71$51i$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...
>Mr Mahdi wrote:
>>
>> Susan has increased her racist attacks on Islam in the AOL bahai messages >> boards.
>
>I doubt that Islam can be considered an ethnicity or a race. Perhaps we >can play a game w/ racism. It is such a serious accusation, it >shouldn't be made lightly and we can have a game so that racism can have >an aspect of levity - see below.
>
>> I want people who are members AOL to got to the bahai message boards >> and see for yourself. I am just amazed on how Susan has a PhD, her
>rebuttals
>> and her apologetic nature in intellectual discussion just makes you >wonder did >> she pay someone to approve her dissertation. She with the help of other
>bahai >> fundies launched a campaign against Fred Glaysher as as you all know he >was >> kicked off AOL.
>
>Fred needed the help of no Baha'is other than himself in getting kicked >off of AOL. His spamming approach to the internet is well known here.
>Despite reasoned attempts to explain the mistaken tactic to him, he >seems to persist.
>
>> Susan can with impunity attack Islam and lie about Muhammad >> (saaw) and the Quran and Hadith.
>
>Please cite your examples. I still remember the pste job you did from >Imran and the similar attempt at character assasination on Dr. Cole, at >your keyboard.
>
>> But if a person is to respond to her lies, he >> or she might get their post yanked off and sent to TOS.
>
>Lies have ways of revealing themselves for what they are.
>
>> People need to the
>> that Susan Maneck has a history of bigotry esp. towards Islam and >Muslims.
>
>Perhaps, if you know your racists you can identify who made the remarks >below on alt.religion.bahai and/or talk.religion.bahai?
>
>For five points, who, speaking of Iranian Baha'is, wrote:
>"Part of their monopoly is the absolute control they have to interpret >out of existence the more liberal and democratic beliefs of Baha'u'llah >and Abdul-Baha."?

>
>For five points, who wrote:
>"... It's so revealing of the mentality many Iranian Bahais seek to >conceal behind their sneers of contempt.'?
>
>For ten points, about Iranians in general, not just Baha'is, who wrote:
>"Here we have it again.... This cultural racism of Iranians manifests >itself in many ways in everyday Bahai "community" life...."?
>
>For ten points, who, when told that ethnic slurs have no place in the >Baha'i community, wrote:
>"False. Nothing could be more common."?
>
>Since some reseach is allowed in this game, you might be able to get >help at <https://www.dejanews.com/>; that is a clue.
>
>Mr. Mahdi, both Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l Baha discouraged us from being >racists. As you may see, not all Baha'is take that guidance to heart.
>
>Blessings!
>- Pat
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 6:27 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Juan Cole, February 13, 1999:
"It is a very, very, very weird religion. And if anyone is reading Susan Maneck's absolutely bone-chilling screeds on the desirability of Heresy Trials and carefulness in Shunning,
they are seeing what it is like at the core of the religion."

"I really am sorry for them and her, since they seem sort of filled with hate and quite paranoid, yet say they are preaching love, unity and tolerance. Susan will say, 'may your abdomen be split by lightning and your guts fall out you filthy heretic whom I wish I could just have shunned and buried', and then she'll sign herself "warmest" and slander a university by adding it to her sig line. As if what she is about has anything at all to do with *universities*!"

FG, February 15, 1999:
"Ms. Maneck's approach appears to me to be always to shunt the discussion off or back to who said what where when why how and so on.... The farther back in time the better, since the person's memory, being human, is bound to be unable to keep up or to have stocked the evidence needed on his or her hard drive or find it on dejanews.com. And it then allows her to claim pretty much anything she wants to while seeming to have discredited her opponent. Further, she relies on the tactics of demagoguery knowing they usually prevail and will be supported by other fundamentalist Bahais. By shrieking
"slander" and referring to others' opinions as "garbage," she is able to create an emotional atmosphere that essentially negates
whatever the topic or content might be and that allows her to appear to win what is often a narrowly legalistic point or interpretation."

"All of this is done, of course, in conjunction with her employing the more common Bahai techniques of intimidation and psychological demonization and terrorism."

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

Smaneck wrote in message <19990412211918.05321.00000213@ng-ch1.aol.com>...
>
>>Susan has increased her racist attacks on Islam in the AOL bahai messages >>boards.
>

>Mr. Mahdi appears to be under the misapprehension that Islam is a race rather >than a religion. I believe however that those following my controversy with >Darrick are well aware of my views on racial issues. As for my views on Islam >and Muhammad, I dare say that I have a higher opinion of the Prophet and his >religion than does Mr. Mahdi who seems to be under the impression that Islam >sanctions violence and hatred. I first met Mahdi in a chat room where he began >to swear at me in Persian crying, "Death to Baha'is."
>
>Incidentally, for those of you who have been hanging out on arb and trb for want >of anything better to do, SRB appears to be up and running again.
>
>Susan Stiles Maneck
>History, Stetson University
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>Susan Stiles Maneck
>History, Stetson University

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 6:33 AM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Maneck's scholarly, loving-Bahai references to my views as garbage and "litter" may be found at
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck7.htm>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/AOL.htm>

<https://209.185.176.10/~FG/AOLcensorship.txt>

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/Maneck1.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

FG wrote in message <924001102.466.101@news.remarQ.com>...

>

>

>"The Bahai Technique":

><https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

>

>FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:

><https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,

>alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

>

>

>

>kohli@mail.ameritel.net wrote in message

><7euj71$51i$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

>>Mr Mahdi wrote:

>>>

>>> Susan has increased her racist attacks on Islam in the AOL bahai messages

>>> boards.

>>

>>I doubt that Islam can be considered an ethnicity or a race. Perhaps we >>can play a game w/ racism. It is such a serious accusation, it >>shouldn't be made lightly and we can have a game so that racism can have >>an aspect of levity - see below.

>>

>>> I want people who are members AOL to get to the bahai message boards >>> and see for yourself. I am just amazed on how Susan has a PhD, her

>>rebuttals

>>> and her apologetic nature in intellectual discussion just makes you

>>wonder did

>>> she pay someone to approve her dissertation. She with the help of other

>>bahai

>>> fundies launched a campaign against Fred Glaysher as as you all know he >>was >>> kicked off AOL.

>>

>>>Fred needed the help of no Baha'is other than himself in getting kicked >>>off of AOL. His spamming approach to the internet is well known here.

>>Despite reasoned attempts to explain the mistaken tactic to him, he >>seems to persist.

>>

>>> Susan can with impunity attack Islam and lie about Muhammad

>>> (saaw) and the Quran and Hadith.

>>

>>>Please cite your examples. I still remember the pste job you did from >>Imran and the similar attempt at character assassination on Dr. Cole, at >>your keyboard.

```
>>
>>> But if a person is to respond to her lies, he >>> or she might get their post yanked off and sent to TOS.
>>
>>Lies have ways of revealing themselves for what they are.
>>
>>> People need to the
>>> that Susan Maneck has a history of bigotry esp. towards Islam and >>Muslims.
>>
>>Perhaps, if you know your racists you can identify who made the remarks >>below on alt.religion.bahai and/or talk.religion.bahai?
>>
>>For five points, who, speaking of Iranian Baha'is, wrote:
>>"Part of their monopoly is the absolute control they have to interpret
>>out of existence the more liberal and democratic beliefs of Baha'u'llah >>and Abdul-Baha."?
>>
>>For five points, who wrote:
>>"... It's so revealing of the mentality many Iranian Bahais seek to >>conceal behind their sneers of contempt."?
>>
>>For ten points, about Iranians in general, not just Baha'is, who wrote:
>>"Here we have it again.... This cultural racism of Iranians manifests >>itself in many ways in everyday Bahai "community" life...."?
>>
>>For ten points, who, when told that ethnic slurs have no place in the >>Baha'i community, wrote:
>>"False. Nothing could be more common."?
>>
>>Since some reseach is allowed in this game, you might be able to get >>help at https://www.dejanews.com/; that is a clue.
>>
>>Mr. Mahdi, both Baha'u'llah and 'Abdu'l Baha discouraged us from being >>racists. As you may see, not all Baha'is take that guidance to heart.
>>
>>Blessings!
>>- Pat
>>
>>===== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network =====
>>https://www.dejanews.com/ Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own
>
>
```

```
-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 7:01 AM
Subject: Bahai Troll (Re: technique (Glaysher) - > REPOST)
```

This poster is obviously a Bahai troll - someone pretending to be someone he is not.... This may be confirmed by searching www.dejanews.com for any other messages on Usenet posted by this individual - ZERO....

It is evident the Bahai fundamentalists are behind this technique too....

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai,
alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

numero919@my-dejanews.com wrote in message <7eugkd$2q6$1@nnrp1.dejanews.com>...

```
>Fred,
>
>In the post which I am responding to, you do nothing but clutter trb. You do >not acknowledge Pat. You do not say in what ways you might agree or disagree >with her. You just post back 3 some links to your writings and web site.
YOU >have done this on other occasions.
>
>I agree with Pat (and I think she speaks for others) that you are >overdoing your repetitive postings. I like many of the Bahai quotations, I >think they need to be heard in "these times", you have some interesting >perspectives, but perhaps you could condense them to 1 or 2 postings.
>As far as every 2 week postings, if you feel that is your mission, fine >but keep it to 1 or 2 postings.
>
>By persisting in the way you are (spam postings and non-postings) you >undermine the trb Forum which, I believe you aided in setting up.
>
>Also, let's hear more from you, (but new original stuff.)
>
>John
>
>In article <7esi89$95d$1@remarQ.com>,
> "FG" <FG@hotmail.com> wrote:
>> "The Bahai Technique":
>> https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm
>>
>> FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
```

>> <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, >> alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards
>
>>>snip
>> >Dear Fred,
>> >
>> >I share your concern about freedom of expression. I find the internet a >> >wonderful place for folks to express themselves. I see spam as one of the
>
>>>snip
>
>-----== Posted via Deja News, The Discussion Network ==-----
><https://www.dejanews.com/> Search, Read, Discuss, or Start Your Own

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 10:03 AM
To: Mr Mahdi
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

Mr. Mahdi,

I wonder whether you've noticed if alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai have yet been added to the Newsgroup menu on the main Bahai menu?

I had asked Foster to do it in the middle of January and he continued to drag his feet on it and make excuses about it. They obviously don't want the 14+ million people on AOL to know about either one.

I'd appreciate it if you could check and let us know on talk.religion.bahai.

Thanks.

Fred

-----Original Message-----

From: Mr Mahdi <mrmahti@aol.com>
Newsgroups: talk.religion.bahai
Date: Monday, April 12, 1999 11:31 PM
Subject: Re: Susan Maneck: The anti-muslim bigot

>> I first met Mahdi in a chat room where he began >> to swear at me in Persian crying, "Death to Baha'is."
>
>You are misquoting me like you always do, it is because you are not a fair > minded or honest individual. You lack intellectual sincerity that's why you > won't last a second in a debate with intellectuals. Regarding the chat room > incident, I was asked about Islam's punishment for bahais who left Islam
for > the bahai faith. I said that in Islam the punishment for apostasy is death.
> Susan of course didn't tell you guys that, she rather twist the truth and defame
> my character. Susan is proof that you don't have to be an intellectual to get a > PhD, you just got to pass tests and do a lot of homework and research.
>
>> Incidentally, for those of you who have been hanging out on arb and trb for >> want >> of anything better to do, SRB appears to be up and running again.
>
> Susan, you are even trying to make people ignore me right here. You will see me > in SRB as well as here if that requires me to do so. What you said just now > is little in comparison to what you have said in AOL, you do things with > impunity, knowing that your posts won't be yanked. You and the other cowards > use the Internet to attack people you don't even know, you will never do
that to > me in real life. You probably shake in your boots when you realize who you > have been talking trash to all along. If you want to see me in person, I be at > the mosque at 1702 Hays St, San Antonio, TX 78202. I can assure you will treat > me with respect. You launch biased campaign against Fred Glaysher and > unfortunately you guys were successful, but you guys have kicked me off
once > before, but like a street soldier I came back harder and stronger than ever.
> I hope people have the chance to have AOL and see what Susan and other
bahai
> fundamentalists have done on the message boards, esp. recently.
> Mahdi

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, April 13, 1999 4:46 PM
To: Ruletherod
Subject: A favor to ask

Rule,

I wonder whether you've noticed if alt.religion.bahai and talk.religion.bahai have yet been added to the Newsgroup menu on the main Bahai menu?

I had asked Foster to do it in the middle of January and he continued to drag his feet on it and make excuses about it. They obviously don't want the 14+ million people on AOL to know about either one.

I'd appreciate it if you could check and let me know.

Thanks.

Fred

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 14, 1999 5:58 AM
Subject: Re: FAQ - The TRUTH about FRED

Humor doesn't conceal

"The Bahai Technique":
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai, Message Boards

Gyr Falcon wrote in message <3715b05b.1198095@news.dave-world.net>...
>Now that trb is a reality, the three creators of the cyberjoke called >"FRED," Dr. Juanito Coleslaw of Michigan, Francesca Muffin Baker of >Champaign-Urbana and Ron Hovel of Australia, announced the true nature >of the project today.

>
>FRED (Fanatical Robot E-Demonstration) is a computer science >experiment in artificial intelligence, the three explained.

>
>Dr. Juanito Coleslaw, noted Arabist and cunnilinctus, said from his >Michigan campus, "This whole episode just shows the gullibility of >fundamentalist Baha'is who are being led like sheep by the ayatollahs >of the uhj. Do you really think an entity, FRED, stupid enough to get >thrown off Talisman I, all BCCA lists and even AOL could be a real >person?"

>
>Dr. Coleslaw noted that in the first two instances the FRED ploy might >have seemed credible. "But rabid racists, pornographers and pedophiles >don't get thrown off AOL. That should have been the giveaway," he >chuckled.

>
>"I can't believe that people took what was basically a random-thought >generator and spam program seriously," said Francesca Muffin Baker.
>"Do they think a real person would spam hundreds of lists, message >boards and newsgroups with the same messages over and over? How can >people be so stupid?"

>
>"I take that back. They fell for the Melissa virus too," she added.

>
>"The poetry on the FRED homepage should have given us away," said >noted Australian misogynist Ron Hovel who never met a woman he didn't >dislike. "We entered all the poetry of T.S. Eliot, Lord Byron, and Rod >McKuen into a poetry-generator and used the scrambled results to >create the FRED poetry pages. We really had a belly laugh over that >pretentious drivel."

>
>When the anemic trio emailed the FRED-bot of their plans to reveal its >identity, FRED parsed the message and wrote back: "It is one of those >Antinomian antinomies of human nature I'll just have to live with."

>
>Reaction from arb and trb regulars was swift.

>
>"I still bet I'm taller than FRED," huffed humorist and mental midget >Timothy Mullandgin.

>
>Noted theologian Darrick Everkid of the Church of Latter Day Kooks, >founder of the CAIN project, remarked, "And I always thought FRED was >a negro."

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 15, 1999 5:57 AM
Subject: Re: Hate mail from Fred

This allegation is false. The message this troll cites below as mine was not sent by me.

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

Gyr Falcon wrote in message <3715c0f6.8509420@news.dave-world.net>...
>I received the following:

>
>
>Read Message

>
Help

> - Next
>
> Back to Inbox
>
> Message - Download
>
>
> From:
> "FG" <FG@hotmail.com> Add to > Address Book
> To:
> "Gyr Falcon" <gyrfalcon01@yahoo.com>
> Date:
> Tue, 13 Apr 1999 21:30:43 -0500
> Subject:
> Leave me alone
> Reply-to:
> FG@hotmail.com
>
>
>

>Gyr Falcon, what an idiotic name. I know you are some >fundamentalist hiding behind that fake name. Leave me the hell >alone you little worm or I will have you thrown off the Internet. You >people are disgusting.
>
>

>FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of >Conscience: <https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On >talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or >Newsgroups
>
>

>Get Free Email and Do More On The Web. Visit <https://www.msn.com>
>
>

> Message - Download
>
> - Next
>
> Back to Inbox
>

>Terms of Service
>Copyright © 1994-1999 Yahoo! Inc. All rights reserved.
>
>
>
>
>

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@hotmail.com]
Sent: Friday, April 16, 1999 7:55 AM
Subject: Bahai Bullies & the UHJ's Fundamentalism

I'm alarmed at the recent Bahai attempts, by someone writing under the pseudonym Gyr Falcon and others, at character assassination, ridicule, and generally portraying me and others as disturbed individuals. Please notice that the Bahai who is hiding behind Gyr Falcon has also been posting false messages under my name yet not a single Bahai has protested his doing so.

I have never claimed to be perfect. At times I have apologized to Bahais, Muslims, and other non-Bahais when I felt, or was convinced, that I was wrong or had spoken unfairly. I find the constant technique to portray me as a megalomaniac or paranoid quite offensive.

Fair-minded Bahai and non-Bahai observers may judge for themselves whether my and others' allegations of censorship are valid by reading the "Assorted Controversial Documents" on my website at

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

As further corroboration that I am not the only person concerned with the intolerance and censorship that has overtaken the Bahai Faith, I recommend Professor Juan Cole's new book Modernity & the Millennium: The Genesis of the Bahai Faith in the Nineteenth-Century Middle East, available through Columbia University Press or Amazon.com at

<https://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/0231110812/o/qid=924015204/sr=2-1/002-1823748-4014252>

In his conclusion, which would never have passed the system of Bahai "review" that the UHJ imposes on all publications brought out under their control, Professor Cole quite accurately identifies the distortions that have been wreaked upon Baha'u'llah's Teachings:

"Some contemporary leaders of the Baha'i Faith have given answers increasingly similar to those of fundamentalists, stressing scriptural literalism, patriarchy, theocracy, censorship, intellectual intolerance, and denying key democratic values. While the values of the nineteenth-century Baha'i movement, which was far more tolerant, continue to exist as a minority view, by the late 1990s a different set of emphases prevailed." (196)

He himself and many others have suffered at the hands of the fundamentalists who have taken control of the religion:

"The rise of academic Baha'i scholarship has caused tension in the community, whose present-day leadership tends to be fundamentalist and antiliberal in orientation, and this has led to pressure on a number of prominent academics to resign or dissociate themselves from the movement." (201)

These same forces of fundamentalist orthodoxy are evident on talk.religion.bahai and alt.religion.bahai for impartial viewers to witness. They will be evident to all perceptive observers of whatever forum Bahais may be trying to influence.

As a Bahai for more than 23 years, I myself have always found especially repulsive the manner in which Bahai fundamentalists attempt to manipulate the institutions and leaders of government, the United Nations, and public opinion, while pretending to values they deride in private or at Bahai-only meetings.

Ultimately, it is the Bahai Universal House of Justice that is responsible for the perversion and corruption of such clear and elevating teachings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha as the following:

"These are effectual and sufficient proofs that the conscience of man is sacred and to be respected; and that liberty thereof produces widening of ideas, amendment of morals, improvement of conduct, disclosure of the secrets of the contingent world."
Abdul-Baha, A Traveler's Narrative, 91.

The UHJ is in the end responsible for inciting Bahai fanatics and fundamentalists to attack other Bahais and non-Bahais merely for their views expressed on and off line in free forums of public discussion.

I recommend all newcomers to these matters read "The Bahai Technique":

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/technique.htm>

FG...The Bahai Faith & Religious Freedom of Conscience:
<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm> On talk.religion.bahai, alt.religion.bahai, and AOL: Keyword Bahai or Newsgroups

-----
From: FG[SMTP:FG@email.msn.com]
Sent: Friday, April 16, 1999 8:01 AM
Subject: Bahai Bullies & the UHJ's Fundamentalism

I'm alarmed at the recent Bahai attempts, by someone writing under the pseudonym Gyr Falcon and others, at character assassination, ridicule, and generally portraying me and others as disturbed individuals. Please notice that the Bahai who is hiding behind Gyr Falcon has also been posting false messages under my name yet not a single Bahai has protested his doing so.

I have never claimed to be perfect. At times I have apologized to Bahais, Muslims, and other non-Bahais when I felt, or was convinced, that I was wrong or had spoken unfairly. I find the constant technique to portray me as a megalomaniac or paranoid quite offensive.

Fair-minded Bahai and non-Bahai observers may judge for themselves whether my and others' allegations of censorship are valid by reading the "Assorted Controversial Documents" on my website at

<https://members.tripod.com/~FG/bahai.htm>

As further corroboration that I am not the only person concerned with the intolerance and censorship that has overtaken the Bahai Faith, I recommend Professor Juan Cole's new book Modernity & the Millennium: The Genesis of the Bahai Faith in the Nineteenth-Century Middle East, available through Columbia University Press or Amazon.com at

<https://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/0231110812/o/qid=924015204/sr=2-1/002-1823748-4014252>

In his conclusion, which would never have passed the system of Bahai "review" that the UHJ imposes on all publications brought out under their control, Professor Cole quite accurately identifies the distortions that have been wreaked upon Baha'u'llah's Teachings:

"Some contemporary leaders of the Baha'i Faith have given answers increasingly similar to those of fundamentalists, stressing scriptural literalism, patriarchy, theocracy, censorship, intellectual intolerance, and denying key democratic values. While the values of the nineteenth-century Baha'i movement, which was far more tolerant, continue to exist as a minority view, by the late 1990s a different set of emphases prevailed." (196)

He himself and many others have suffered at the hands of the fundamentalists who have taken control of the religion:

"The rise of academic Baha'i scholarship has caused tension in the community, whose present-day leadership tends to be fundamentalist and antiliberal in orientation, and this has led to pressure on a number of prominent academics to resign or dissociate themselves from the movement." (201)

These same forces of fundamentalist orthodoxy are evident on talk.religion.bahai and alt.religion.bahai for impartial viewers to witness. They will be evident to all perceptive observers of whatever forum Bahais may be trying to influence.

As a Bahai for more than 23 years, I myself have always found especially repulsive the manner in which Bahai fundamentalists attempt to manipulate the institutions and leaders of government, the United Nations, and public opinion, while pretending to values they deride in private or at Bahai-only meetings.

Ultimately, it is the Bahai Universal House of Justice that is responsible for the perversion and corruption of such clear and elevating teachings of Baha'u'llah and Abdul-Baha as the following:

